FINAL SURRENDER SIGNED IN BERLIN RUINS; SOVIET JOINS IN PROCLAIMING TRIUMPH; TRUMAN WARNS VICTORY 'IS BUT HALF WON'

Patton's Men Last U.S. Army To Fire Shot

MAY 9, 1945

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, Wednesday, May 9—(AP) Germany bowed today to the most crushing defeat ever inflicted upon a nation, her abject surrender proclaimed to the World by the United States, Britain and Russia.

The Moscow radio in behalf of Premier Marshal Stalin, whose Red armies broke the armed might of Hitler's Reich on the Eastern front, announced the unconditional surrender to the Russian people at 1:10 a. m. today, two hours and ten minutes after President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill proclaimed V-E Day.

The announcement said the final articles of capitulation were signed yesterday in Berlin, the ruined capital symbolic of the fall of the Third Reich

Field Marshal Wilhelm Kietel, chief of the German high command signed the articles in the presence of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, assistant comander of the Red Armies; Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, deputy supreme commander in the west; Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, chief of the U. S. strategic air forces in Europe, and Lt. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, comander of the French first army.

For Germany it was a crowning ignominity — von Kietel, whose armies all but mastered Europe, forced to sign in the ashes of Germany's first city the surrender articles which stripped the Reich of its last vestige of military strength.

Guns of War Silenced

The guns of Europe, which through five years, eight months and seven days of unexampled war inflicted possibly 40,000,000 casualties, fell silent at one minute past midnight today (6:01 p. m. Tuesday, Eastern War Time.)

Actually, guns on the western front were stilled yesterday to prevent further bloodshed as the Allied world celebrated V-E Day 11 months and two days after Gen. Eisenhower's armies stormed into France to liberate a Europe in Nazi chains.

The last shot on the western front was fired in Czechoslovakia by the 80th infantry division of Gen. Patton's third army, the last to remain in action. Patton issued his [illegible] (8 a. m. ... War Time) ... rn Nazis in Czechoslova... the last to submit — agree... he terms of unconditional sur... er, and a "cease fire" order ... s issued in Prague at 1.25 p. m., (Eastern War Time).

The final terms were signed at 2:41 a. m., Monday (British Double Summer Time, 8:41 p. m., Sunday, Eastern War Time) in a red brick school house in Reims, which for months had been Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters.

The fact of this historic signing had been first reported to the world 24 hours before by Edward Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press staff on the Western Front.

Eisenhower Praises Armies

In a ringing order of the day, Eisenhower told his armies that "The crusade on which we embarked in the early summer of 1944 has reached its glorious conclusion.

"It is my especial privilege in the name of all nations represented in this theater of war to commend each of you for valiant performance of duty," he said.

"Though these words are feeble they come from the bottom of a heart overflowing with pride in your loyal service and admiration for you as warriors. Your accomplishments at sea, in the air, on the ground and in the field of supply have astonished the world."

In a special message to Allied prisoners of war, Eisenhower said they must remain where they were for the present but "your return home will be organized as speedily as feasible."

German forces which once held nearly all Europe in their iron grip thus knuckled to the "unconditional surrender" formula dictated by Churchill and the late President Roosevelt at Casablanca.

Under the stern formula Germany's guns are at rest, her air fleets are yielded, and her warships, U-boats and merchantmen at sea are headed toward Allied ports to give up.

Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl, German chief of staff, signed the surrender document for Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, successor as head of the prostrate Reich to the dead or missing Hitler.

Had Pen Ready

With the stroke of a pen which Eisenhower long had saved for the occasion, Jo... unconditionally t... n-mander, ...ary Force, and simultaneously to the Soviet high command all forces on land, sea and in the air who are at this date under German control."

The signature of this former Hitler favorite was witnessed for Eisenhower by Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, his chief of staff, Gen. Ivan Susloparov for the Soviet high command and Gen. Francois Sevez for the French.

This act sealed the fate of Japan, which one day will be forced to sign a similarly harsh surrender, for now the full power of the United States and Britain will be loosed against the island empire. Seventy veteran U. S. combat divisions in Europe alone are released.

The fixing of the four signatures to four copies of the surrender articles required four minutes.

Plea for Mercy

When the signing was completed, Germany in the person of Jodl made a plea for mercy, and was answered with silence.

"General," said Jodl addressing Smith, "with this signature the German people and the German armed forces are, for better or worse, delivered into the victors' hands. . .

"In this hour, I can only express the hope that the victors will treat them with generosity."

Jodl and other members of the German delegation were ushered from this room of silence into the office of Eisenhower who eyed them coldly and asked them sternly if they understood the terms and their responsibility. They said yes.

This was the crowning act five years, eight months and six days after Germany marched into Poland Sept. 1, 1939, touching off the Second World war.

Hitler's legions were masters of western Europe and stood on guard behind what they thought was the impregnable Atlantic wall of fortress Europe when Eisenhower's armies landed on the beaches of Normandy June 6, 1944.

From D-Day to V-Day, these armies:

Landed at a point where Hitler boasted invasion was foredoomed.

Drove 700 miles across Europe.

Liberated France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Denmark, Norway and overran most of Germany, much of Austria and part of Czechoslovakia.

Shattered the Atlantic wall and the Siegfried line.

Crossed the Rhine and trapped more than 300,000 German troops in the Ruhr in the greatest double envelopment in military history.

Closed up to the Elbe river, crossed it and joined with the Russians who had beaten back 1,400 miles from Stalingrad and captured Berlin, the world's fourth city and greatest metropolis ever taken by storm.

The warplanes of five air forces gained complete mastery of the skies by driving the once-dreaded German air force out of existence.

The cost of these successes was high in human blood and suffering.

American ground forces on the Western front alone suffered 79,795 killed, 334,919 wounded and 58,501 missing, a total of 473,215 casualties.

In his order of the day, Eisenhower said his armies of the west had put 5,000,000 of the enemy "permanently out of the war" and had "taken in stride military tasks

Eyewitness Describes Scene at Reims—Jodl Begged Generous Treatment—Eisenhower Later Thanked His Allied Aids.

[The following dispatch from Reims supplements that in which Edward Kennedy yesterday gave the first account of the German surrender. It is believed to be based on Kennedy's original dispatch. It is known that Kennedy wrote 1,500 words at Reims which were passed by the field censor, and wrote more upon returning to Paris. But only about 300 words were transmitted from Paris yesterday before his communications were broken.]

Reims, France, May 7 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Through an iron-faced Prussian general, speaking after he had finished signing the unconditional surrender of the Nazis, Germany today pleaded for mercy for the German people. On the wall behind his back was a huge chart tabulating Allied casualties.

He was Col.-Gen. Gustaf Jodl, chief of staff of the German Army.

He was standing in a room of a red school house in Reims, where Gen. Eisenhower had his advanced headquarters. On a big wooden table in front of him lay four identical documents to which he had just affixed his signature — one each for the United States, Britain, France and Russia. Each bore the words first written by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at Casablanca: "Unconditional Surrender."

Seventeen correspondents were present at the signing and heard Jodl's plea. After he had signed the four instruments of surrender, and after the military representatives of the four Powers had signed them, Jodl asked for permission to speak. He was told that he might.

Asks Generous Treatment.

He held himself stiffly erect. His voice was low and soft. He said: "With this signature, the German people and armed forces are, for better or worse, delivered into the victors' hands. In this war which has lasted more than five years, both have achieved and suffered more than perhaps any other [illegible] in the world. this hour, [illegible] only express hope that the victor will treat generously with them."

His face was expressionless. So were the faces of the American, British, Russian and French generals who represented the Allies. All had seen the German murder camps and all knew the furious cruelty of German occupying forces.

Jodl finished speaking and sat down. A moment passed in dead silence.

Then the German representatives were taken down the hall to meet Gen. Eisenhower.

Only One Looks Up.

Eisenhower and his deputy, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, were waiting. They stood behind Eisenhower's small desk.

Jodl entered first, followed by Gen.-Admiral Hans George Friedeburg and then by Col. Fritz Poleck, a supply expert, who glanced once at the Allied officers and then studied the floor. Friedeburg looked out the windows. Only Jodl, his bald head gleaming beneath naked electric light bulbs, looked the American and British commanders in the face.

Again there was a moment of heavy silence.

Then Eisenhower spoke. He was brief and terse as always. His voice was cold and stern. His steel blue eyes were hard. In a few clipped sentences, he made it plain that Germany was a defeated nation and that henceforth all orders to the German people would come from the Allies. He said they would be obeyed.

Then the Germans filed out. It was over.

Nazi Germany has ceased to exist.

The war had ended.

May Be the Peace of Reims.

The surrender marked the climax of two days of negotiations in this cathedral city, scene of many dramatic events in European history. Possibly what was born here today will be known as the Peace of Reims. Certainly, the doom of the Third Reich was sealed in the big brick Ecole Professionelle, which in peace time was a co-educational industrial school. Today it was Eisenhower's advanced headquarters.

The Allied and German delegates sat down at a wooden table twenty feet long, and ten feet wide, with its top painted black. The war room itself is L-shaped, about eighty feet long and thirty feet wide on the outer sides of the L. Its walls of Nile green beaverboard are covered with battle maps, their red lines marking what were the fronts, and etching the plight of the Wehrmacht which once had almost all of the continent under its heel.

Also seated with the signatories were Major-Gen. Sir Frederick E. Morgan, Deputy Chief of the Allied Staff; Capt. Harry E. Butcher, Eisenhower's naval aid; Admiral Sir Harry Burroughs, commander of Allied Naval Forces; Lieut. Ivan Cherieff of the Red Army; Lieut.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe; Air Marshal Sir James M. Robb, chief of the Allied Air Staff; Major-Gen. H. R. Bull, Assistant Chief of Staff, and Col. Ivan Zenkovitch of the Red Army.

The Allied representatives sat along the side of the table nearest the wall and along its right end. Facing them across the black table were Jodl and Friedeburg and Major William Oxenius, Jodl's aid. Behind the Germans stood Major-Gen. K. W. D. Strong, Chief of Intelligence, SHAEF, who acted as interpreter.

Reporters Ushered In.

Correspondents were ushered into the war room upon receiving word of the agreement upon final terms.

Most of the Allied officers entered the room at 2:29 A. M. Lieut.-Gen. Bedell Smith followed five minutes later. The strain of the climactic months of the war was evident in his serious face.

There was another wait of five minutes. Then Jodl, in a grey-green uniform and silver trim of a Wehrmacht officer, strode in with the blue-uniformed Friedeburg. Jodl wore his Knight of the Iron Cross decoration. Friedeburg's highest military decorations likewise were on display.

Neither seemed crestfallen. They moved slowly but resolutely to the table, there standing at attention. The Allied officers bowed stiffly.

MAY 9 1945

There Are Four Copies . . .

Every one's visage — ally or enemy—was rigid. Not a trace of a smile appeared on any face.

"There are four copies," Gen. Smith remarked dryly, "to be signed."

Jodl was the first to put down his name at 2:41 A. M. Copies were passed across to be signed by Ivan Susloparov of the Red Army; Gen. Smith and Gen. Francois Sevez of France, in that order. The terms of the naval agreement were signed by Admiral Burroughs, and the terms of the land and air disarmament were signed by Smith, and presented to the Germans to be carried out.

It was 2:45 A. M. The ink of the signatures was still damp. Then Jodl spoke, beseeching generosity of the Allied conquerors.

Chairs scraped and the Germans rose stiffly to stand at attention. The Allies got to their feet and bowed formally and the Germans walked out of the room at 2:47 A. M.

Jodl, his graying blond hair almost bald at the top, now looked glum and seemed a little unsteady. Friedeburg was solemn, and behind his bushy eyebrows, he appeared not at all happy.

It was then that they were escorted down the hall to meet General Eisenhower for the first time. Even the cares which the leader of millions of Allied fighting men had borne for many months could not hide Eisenhower's look of rugged good health and concentrated energy. But his face was stern as he made it plain to the German envoys that Germany must now obey Allied orders.

Huge Victory Smile.

After their departure, Eisenhower summoned together all the Allied officers who had participated in the ceremony of surrender. His face broke into a huge victory smile. His eyes now sparkled with joy.

Sir Arthur clasped his hand. Then Eisenhower greeted Smith warmly, thanking him for his spectacular work of the past two days. He thanked all of those present, and held up the fountain pens with which the surrender had been signed—making a V-sign with them for the camera men.

He left his office at 3:39 A. M. for the war room, where he made a brief victory speech into the news reel microphones.

"Just a few minutes ago, Germany surrendered all her remaining forces on land and sea," he said. "They have been thoroughly whipped and the surrender is unconditional.

"In January, 1943, the late President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met in Casablanca. There they pronounced a formula of unconditional surrender for the Axis Powers. In Europe that has been fulfilled. The Allied forces which landed on the Continent on June 6, 1944, have utterly defeated the Germans on land, on sea and in the air."

Eisenhower remarked that it was "particularly fitting" that the surrender was signed "in the heart of France," a country which had contributed in large measure to the common victory.

"This unconditional surrender was achieved by teamwork, not only among the Allies but by all the services of the land, sea and air," he said. And here his voice was filled with emotion. He said he owed "a debt of gratitude that can never be repaid" to all his aids and to all the men who had fought under his command.

"The only payment is the lasting gratitude of all free citizens of all the United Nations," the Commander in Chief added.

How Conference Came About.

Negotiations for the surrender grew out of the conference between Friedeburg and Field Marshal Montgomery last Thursday. After agreeing to surrender of German forces in Holland, Denmark, northwest Germany, the Frisian Islands and Helgoland at that meeting, the German delegates indicated that the Reich leadership wished to discuss the larger question of a complete surrender of all armed forces.

Eisenhower accordingly approved a conference at Reims for Saturday and transportation was furnished for bringing Friedeburg and Poleck. They left Montgomery's headquarters at Lueneberg by plane at 8 A. M. on Saturday, escorted by Lieut.-Col. Viscount Bury and Major F. J. Lawrence of Montgomery's staff.

They changed planes at Vorst. Bad weather prevented them from continuing past Brussels. While waiting for an automobile, the party had luncheon at a Royal Air Force snack bar. They ate sandwiches and drank "Scotch ale" brewed in Brussels.

Friedeburg drank his ale from the bottle, seeming to relish it.

Then a staff car, driven by a girl of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, Private Bobbie Alexander of Inverness, Scotland, took the group onward at 1:30 P. M. Friedeburg, who had dozed in the plane, fell sound asleep in the car. He had explained that he was exhausted by lack of sleep for the most of ten days.

Poleck looked out morosely at the countryside most of the time. A grimace of displeasure showed on his face as the car passed wrecked German tanks, trucks and gun carriers along the road.

At 5:04 P. M., the emissiaries reached advanced headquarters just as the news of the surrender of German Army Group G in Austria to Gen. Jacob L. Devers was flashed.

The inhabitants of Reims quickly noticed the two German uniforms. They could not know exactly what was happening, but they knew it was something big. Eisenhower has spent far more time at Reims than at main headquarters further to the rear.

The Germans Tidy Up.

Brig. F. J. Foord, the British Chief of Operational Intelligence, SHAEF, and Lieut.-Col. W. A. S. Morrice, British Assistant Secretary of the General Staff, met the Germans in this square. Soon G. I.'s, Tommies and Wacs were craning their necks for a glimpse of the unusual visitors.

The Germans asked to tidy up before meeting the high Allied officers. Friedeburg hummed softly to himself as he scrubbed his hands and changed his collar. Poleck teetered on his heels nervously. He seemed almost dazed.

Major-Gen. Strong escorted Friedeburg to Gen. Smith, where he came to sharp attention in front of a battery of Allied officers including Spaatz, Morgan, Burroughs, Bull, Robb, Butcher, Col. P. G. H. Phillimore who drafted the surrender terms and Major Ruth M. Briggs, Gen. Smith's secretary.

The discussion lasted twenty-two minutes. It opened with a request that Friedeburg show his credentials and his authority to represent Grand Admiral Doenitz, the new head of the German State.

so difficult as to be classed by many doubters as impossible."

"The route you have traveled," he said, "through hundreds of miles is marked by the graves of former comrades. From them has been exacted the ultimate sacrifice.

"The blood of many nations—American, British, Canadian, French, Polish and others—has helped to gain the victory. Each of the fallen died as the member of a team to which you belong, bound together by a common love of liberty and a refusal to submit to enslavement."

Last Communique

In what may be the last SHAEF communique, the western command announced the unconditional surrender and added:

"Allied expeditionary forces have been ordered to cease offensive operations but will maintain their present position until the surrender becomes effective."

With the biggest news of all time in his possession, Eisenhower was ordered Monday to withhold the announcement until it could be made in Washington, London and Moscow Tuesday.

The supreme commander recommended the release time be stepped up because news of such moment could not remain a secret, but the governments set the time for today.

In the final act of the drama opened May 3, when the Germans began negotiating for the surrender of the northwest corner of the Reich, Denmark and western Holland, and intimated to Field Marshal Montgomery that they wanted to propose something even bigger.

Eisenhower agreed, and a delegation headed by Gen. Admiral Hans George von Friedeburg, who succeeded Doenitz as commander in chief of the Germany navy, was taken by automobile from Montgomery's headquarters to Reims on Saturday.

Friedburg tried to talk only surrender to the western Allies, but Smith said surrender must be to all. Washington, London and Moscow were kept informed constantly.

Susloparov, a general of artillery, was on hand to sit in for Russia on any discusion of unconditional surrender.

Friedburg sent a message by SHAEF code to the British Second Army for transmission to Doenitz saying Eisenhower demanded that the German delegates be empowered to make an unconditional surrender.

It was demanded that Doenitz send his chief of staff or some other military commander with full authorization to act, and Jodl then went to Reims.

Supreme headquarters now believes that Doenitz took over from Hitler only to arrange the unconditional surrender, and he may or may not have been Hitler's selection.

western front. In reply, Smith gave him the terms in writing—unconditional surrender to Russia as well as to the western Allies. All German forces, aircraft and seacraft were to remain at their present positions. The German Command was to forward and enforce the prosecution of all orders of the Allied commands.

Smith declared that the German position was hopeless. Friedeburg agreed and said that the Germans preferred to surrender only to the western Allies, expressing fear that the Russians would kill many German soldiers.

Almost impatiently, Smith brushed aside the assumption. He said even more emphatically that the Allies would consider only unconditional surrender to all four nations.

Whisky and Sandwiches.

Friedeburg then attempted to describe what he called the sufferings and hardships of the German people. Smith answered that the German people were enemies and would remain so until they surrendered. After surrender the Allies would "act in accordance with the normal dictates of humanity," he said.

The German Admiral appeared perfectly composed. He rose and took the terms to the office assigned him in the school building. There he sat down with Poleck and studied them anew.

Whisky and sandwiches were sent in to them.

Once during their deliberations Strong visited them to clarify some points in Eisenhower's terms.

Word Sent to Washington.

Meanwhile Eisenhower sent urgent messages to Washington, London and Moscow informing them that Friedeburg was authorized only to offer surrender of the remaining German forces on the western front, that this offer had been rejected, and that the Admiral was now seeking authorization from Doenitz to make a full surrender to Russia as well as to the western Allies.

At the same time Sasloparoff and Zenkovitch, the Russian representatives at SHAEF, received details of the situation from Gen. Smith and they and other high SHAEF officers waited for any formal meeting which might be arranged on receipt of authority from Doenitz.

Finally Friedeburg appeared with a mesage addressed to Doenitz. This outlined the terms and embrodied Smith's suggestion that Doenitz either give Friedeburg full authority for a total surrender or send his Chief of Staff and the commanders-in-chief of his army, navy and air forces with such authority. A warning that the new German Government would have to shoulder the guilt for continuing the fighting also was contained in the message.

New Yorker on Hand.

This was sent in code to the British Second Army for transmission by courier across the German lines.

While awaiting Doenitz's reply, Friedeburg and Poleck spent the night in a seven-room house at 3 Rue Goinot, Reims, with Col. Lord Bury, Major Lawrence and Lieut. George Reinhardt of New York, SHAEF interpreter. Military policemen stood guard outside.

On instructions from Eisenhower, Smith made another suggestion during the conversation that an immediate cessation of hostilities be ordered to save lives while awaiting the formal surrender.

Doenitz's response came on Sunday with Jodl, who had entered British lines from German territory. He was met by Major-Gen. Frederick D. E. Guingand, Montgomery's Chief of Staff and his aid, Major Okenims.

Jodl was flown to Reims, landing at 5:20 P. M. He was met by Brig. Foord. Jodl returned the Englishman's salute somewhat arrogantly.

Brought to the schoolhouse, Jodl washed and then went to the room where Friedeburg was waiting. The Admiral did not salute as Jodl walked in. They talked together for a considerable time.

Red Uses Own Pen.

Smith received them at 6:15 and at 7:56 Strong sent word to the correspondents that nothing would be signed for at least three hours. At 9:12 the Germans left headquarters to dine at a nearby cottage.

Eisenhower had two fountain pens ready. He had been keeping them for such an occasion since the close of the North African campaign in 1943. All the signatories used them except Susloparoff, who pulled a big green fountain pen from his pocket when it was his turn to write.

The Germans' residence in Reims was staffed by American enlisted personnel. Pfc. Joyce Bennett of New York, former secretary to the manager of the Hotel Windemere, was the WAC manager. The three cooks were T/4 Eric Ericson of North Caldwell, N. J., T/5 Charles Fickinger of Belleville, Ill., and T/5 George Clark of Monmouth, Ill. Pfc. Charles Phillips of Winona, Tenn., and Pfc. John Hynsall of Pontiac, Mich., served the Germans as orderlies. Private William Bittay of New Brunswick, N. J., was waiter.

On Saturday night during a late dinner of tomato juice, pork chops, mashed potatoes, carrots, peas, fruit, coffee and red wine, Friedeburg commented on the fine table linen with the remark that the owner of the house "must be quite rich." Later, the Germans drank Martinis shaken by American officers and a WAC private first class contributed—not too enthusiastically—some biscuits she had received in a parcel from home. On Sunday morning, the Germans had breakfast of bacon and eggs. They had fried chicken at noon.

The military policemen who guared the house were Pfcs. Jack H. Arnold of Lancaster Pa., Charles F. Trautner of Oakland, Cal., Joseph R. Fink of Detroit, Frederick A. Stone of Pittsburgh, Clifford P. Cleland of Plattsburgh, N. Y., and Elmer L. Cole of Little Falls, N. J.

All of the civilians of Reims and the military personnel there were on edge all day Sunday.

The final discussions hinged largely on details of the disarmament of German forces. The last conference opened late in the evening.

Brig.-Gen. Frank A. Allen Jr., chief of Public Relations, SHAEF, stepped into the ground floor conference room assigned to correspondents and said: "Gentlemen, I think this is it. Follow me in double file."

In Reims, where the Kings of France were once crowned and where Joan of Arc carried her standard in triumph, the wheels of military formality slowly ground out the final product of allied wills.

NO ANNOUNCEMENT YET BY RUSSIANS

London, May 8 (A. P.).—Marshal Stalin announced in an order of the day tonight the capture of the big Czecho-Slovak rail junction of Olmuetz. The order was read over the Moscow radio at 6:45 P. M. (12:45 P. M. Eastern war time). At that hour there had been no announcement from Moscow of the German surrender. The Soviet Monitor who received the broadcast had told correspondents about 6:40 P. M. that an "important announcement" was due from Moscow at 6:45.

The capture city of 66,440 is the seventh largest in Czecho-Slovakia and 128 miles east, southeast of embattled Prague.

The Moscow radio warned in a broadcast to Germany at 10 A. M. Eastern war time today that isolated units of the German Army still fighting against the Red Army "should cease hostilities immediately." The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

"My German listeners," the broadcast said. "Hitler Germany is destroyed. The Nazi army is in ruins. The Himmlers, Hitlers and Goerings are gone, but the German people and the German state will last."

DOEN... STATES GERMAN PEOPLE MUST FACE FACTS

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

LONDON, May 8 (A.P.)—Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, announcing that he had discharged his "foremost task—saving the lives of German people"—ordered German forces to cease fire tonight, pronounced the end of the Nazi Reich and ...ced the fate of the people and ...nself at the mercy of the Allies. ...ddressing the German people ... the Flensburg radio Hitler's ...cessor said "All arms will be ...nt" at 11 p.m. European time ... p.m. E.W.T.) tonight.

This order, if obeyed, would end all the remaining fighting by the Germans on land and sea and in the air—the last ragtag resistance reported today's, presumably the last, German high command communique.

Speaking sadly and solemnly, Doenitz, who once told his submarine commanders to go out and "Kill, kill, kill," rendered to the people an accounting of his historic eight days as Fuehrer in which Germany surrendered unconditionally to the Allies.

'Beaten Occupied Nation'

He pointed the Germans toward the future as a beaten and occupied nation in which "We must face facts squarely," and called upon them to "walk dignified, disciplined and courageous x x x in the hope that our children may one day have a free and secure existence."

Doenitz declared that the Nazi party had been severed from the state and "The Nazi party has left the scene of its activities."

The admiral said he ordered the German high command to surrender unconditionally on the night of May 6-7 in order "to save the life of the German people" and "German soldiers of countless battles are now treading the bitter path to captivity and thereby making the last sacrifice for the life of our women and children and for the future of our nation."

"With the occupation of Germany," Doenitz continued, "Power has been transferred to the occupying authorities. It is up to them to confirm me in my function and the government I have appointed, or decide whether to appoint a different one. Should I be required to help our fatherland I will remain at my post.

(A Moscow radio commentator, I. Yermashev, branded Doenitz as a war criminal equally guilty with Hitler and Himmler and demanded death for all the top Nazi figures.)

"Duty keeps me on my difficult post for the sake of Germany. I will not remain one hour more than can be reconciled with the dignity of the Reich. I will disregard my person in this matter.

"We bow to all those who have fallen. x x x In the coming years of want I will help the courageous women and children as far as I humanly can to alleviate their conditions."

MAY 9 1945

Allies Order All Nazi Ships Into Nearest Allied Ports

London, May 8 (A. P.).—Allied radios today flashed orders to all German and German-controlled ships at sea to head for the nearest Allied ports and remain there for further orders.

Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, Germany's current Fuehrer, announced that all German arms would be silent by 11 P. M. (6 P. M., Eastern war time) tonight.

U-boats at sea are being ordered to surface, to fly a black flag or pennant and report their position in plain language to the nearest Allied wireless telegraph station. They will then proceed on the surface to such port as may be directed. All warships and merchant ships, whether in port or at sea, are to train all weapons fore and aft. Breech blocks are to be removed and torpedo tubes to be unloaded.

In harbor, all ammunition, explosives, torpedo warheads and all portable weapons will be landed. Mine-sweeping vessels and salvage vessels, though similarly disarmed, will be instructed to complete with fuel, if necessary, and to prepare themselves immediately for minesweeping or salvage service as directed. Instructions will be given for boom defenses at ports and harbors to be kept open. Demolition charges and controlled mines and minefields at all ports and harbors are to be rendered ineffective.

Hitler's successor as Fuehrer of the German people said in an address over the German-controlled Flensburg radio that the Germans would lay down all their arms in accordance with the unconditional surrender terms he had ordered.

In slow, deliberate terms he told the Germans that the Nazi party had been severed from the German State and that "the party has left the scene of its activities."

Doenitz, addressing the German people, said he ordered the High Command to surrender unconditionally the night of May 6-7 on all fronts.

"On May 8 at 11 P. M. the arms will be silent," he said.

Bitter Path to Captivity.

The German leader said that "German soldiers of countless battles now are treading the bitter path to captivity and thereby are making the last sacrifice for the life of our women and children and for the future of our nation.

"With the occupation of Germany," Doenitz said, "the power has been transferred to the occupying authorities. It is up to them to confirm me in my function and the Government I have appointed, or decide whether to appoint a different one. Should I be required to help our fatherland, I will remain at my post.

"Duty keeps me on my difficult post for the sake of Germany. I will not remain one hour more than can be reconciled with the dignity of the Reich."

Doenitz explained why he ordered surrender.

"When I took over from the Fuehrer, I took it as my first task to save the life of the German people. We bow before the sacrifices of our nation, of its fighting army, of all men, women and children," he said. "It was impossible to carry on this struggle. A very difficult path lies before us. We must walk it dignified, disciplined and courageous. We must work hard."

Doenitz warned the German people that "the power is with the occupying authorities," and he urged them to walk the "difficult path united in the hope that our children in Europe may one day have a free and secure existence."

The Fuehrer said he had pledged himself "to help as far as possible to alleviate the fate of the German people," and added: "Whether this will be possible, I do not know."

His speech, slowly and solemnly delivered, was concluded with the remark that the "German people and the Reich must remain united."

REDS CALL DOENITZ A WAR CRIMINAL

MAY 9 1945

London, May 8 (1945).—A Moscow radio commentator declared today Grand Admiral Doenitz, now chief of the German Government, was a war criminal equally guilty with Hitler and Himmler and demanded death for all of them.

Commenting on Nazi crimes at the Oswiecim death camp in Poland, the commentator, I. Yermashev, said:

"The Oswiecim camp was organized by Himmler as SS Reichsfuehrer—the same Himmler who together with Hitler and all other criminal leaders of Germany, among whom no small place belongs to the present Fuehrer Doenitz, carried out the sanguinary Fascist program of extermination of peoples.

The Soviet operational war bulletin—probably Moscow's last—also announced that Soviet forces had surged into the Czechoslovak province of Bohemia from Saxony and had captured Most (Bruex), 43 miles northwest of Prague.

Blazing Prague Liberated As Fighting in Europe Ends

LONDON, Wednesday, May 9—(AP) The Russians, fighting through the last day of the war, yesterday captured the Saxon capital of Dresden and won final-hour victories in southern Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia while Czechoslovak partisans hoisted the free flag of the republic over liberated Prague.

NIGHT

The Red army's battle against the Germans apparently went on until the official deadline for the end of all hostilities—12:01 a. m. (London time—6:01 p.m. E.W.T.). The Moscow radio carried Premier Stalin's proclamation of victory at 1:10 a.m.—an hour and nine minutes later.

Meanwhile, one of the Germans' most farflung resistance points disappeared yesterday when the German commander of the Dodecanese islands in the Aegean sea, Gen. Wagener, surrendered and about 10,000 troops under his command gave up their arms. There was no word from Crete—the only remaining Nazi outpost in the Mediterranean.

Another last-minute victory was won by Marshal Tito's Yugoslav army of national liberation which liberated the Croatian city of Zagreb, last of the puppet capitals once forming part of Hitler's fallen European empire.

"Cease fire" was ordered in Prague, in flames from wanton Nazi destruction at 7:25 p.m. (London time—1:25 p. m. E.W.T.), although a few Nazi fanatics continued to loot and fire the Czechoslovak capital. Late broadcast from the city said that some German troops—who now become outlaws outside the scope of the international law—were shelling Prague's hospitals and had set fire to historic Hradcany castle, for centuries the symbol of Czechoslovak national life.

In successive orders of the day, following by four, five and seven hours, the victory proclamations of President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill, Marshal Stalin announced the capture of Dresden; the fall of the Czechoslovak city of Olmuetz (Olomouc), and the seizure of four strongholds in Czechoslovakia and Austria be-

Bomb-blasted Dresden, ninth largest city of the Reich and the last great German city in Nazi hands, fell to Marshal Ivan S. Konev's first Ukrainian army. The city, once a great cog in Germany's war production machine and having a pre-war population of 630,000 persons, was captured "following two days of fighting in which our troops smashed enemy resistance and captured this powerful German defense strongpoint in Saxony," Stalin said.

Sweeping up to 25 miles west of the city, Konev's troops captured 15 south German towns and drove within four miles northeast of Chemnitz by taking Frankenburg. It was possible a junction was made with American forces in the Chemnitz area.

It was south of Dresden that Konev's troops crossed the high Ore mountains and broke into Bohemia to take the towns of Most, Duchov (Dux) and Telpice-Sanov (Teplitz-Schoenau). East of Dresden, Konev's men, Moscow announced, captured five large towns near the German-Czechoslovak border where German troops had held out on the Red army's flank.

At the same time, Konev's troops also surged into four towns near the Sudeten border following the collapse of the lower Silesian capital of Breslau.

NAZIS GIVE UP IN PRAGUE AS ALLIES CLOSE IN

A few Die-hard Germans Looting and Shooting in Capital.

WHEELER

PATTON IS IN OUTSKIRTS

Other Pockets All Over Europe Are Waiting to Be Taken Over.

London, May 8 (A. P.).—A handful of Nazi holdouts in Prague and some parts of the shrunken Moravia-Bohemia pocket fought on today as the rest of the world celebrated the end of the European war. Czech broadcasts from the embattled capital said Nazis still were shooting, burning and looting in the city at noon in defiance of the signing of an unconditional surrender by their commander.

The Patriots, no win control of all Prague transmitters, broadcast this noon report: "Some German formations, disobeying the cease fire order, are shelling and setting fire to houses, shooting civilians and looting. Parts of Prague are in flames, and firemen are prevented by German gunfire from approaching the burning buildings. In some places in the center of the city German tank formations are attacking Czecho-Slovak formations."

German broadcasts said that continued resistance in the southern pocket was designed to permit Army remnants to retreat westward.

Patton and Reds Close In.

Gen. Patton's American Third Army had driven northeast from captured Pilsen to the outskirts of the capital and three Russian armies were driving toward the same goal from the east, northeast, north and southeast.

The Patriot broadcast said Nazi Gen. Ferdinand von Schoerner, commander in Bohemia and Moravia, signed unconditional surrender terms at 1:30 A. M. (battlefront time) and that units were to "cease fire" as soon as they received word of the capitulation.

Earlier the partisans said American staff officers had made contact with them, bringing a message of the unconditional surrender of all German armies. The Czechs said advance American tank units were four miles from Prague. Units of three Russian armies had been reported sixty miles from the Czech capital.

How the Pockets Stand.

As for the other German pockets, this was their disposition as the Russians and the western Allies began the final roundup:

Norway—German troops remained in their barracks, awaiting the Allied will, as British ships were reported steaming into Norwegian harbors.

Latvia—An estimated 300,000 Germans, Latvians and Russians of uisling Gen. Vlassov's army were pocketed by the Red Army against the sea and on the Vistula estuary near Danzig, and were faced with the choice of surrender or annihilation.

Yugoslavia—The German radio at Flensburg said withdrawals from Yugoslavia continued as the Yugoslav radio announced the liberation of Ljubljana, capital of federal Slovenia, seventy-four miles northwest of Zagreb.

Eastern Moravia—Fighting still was reported by the Germans as Russian armies began the mop-up.

The French Ports — Isolated German forces in Dunkerque, La Rochelle, St. Nazaire, Bordaux and Lorient were expected to lay down their arms without further trouble.

The Channel Islands—Germans cut off hopelessly for months were reported ready to give up under unconditional surrender terms.

Allies Expected in Dutch Cities.

The Eindhoven radio said Allied armies were expected to arrive in Rotterdam, Amsterdam and The Hague today. A considerable number of Dutch soldiers serving with the Canadians will be among the troops which take over the last areas from the Germans, the broadcast said.

Despite Von Schoerner's capitulation, Nazis apparently still opposed the Russians in eastern Moravia and adjacent sectors. The German-controlled Flensburg raido said, "our troops are fighting hard to save Germany from Bolshevism in the last few hours." This broadcast said the Germans had failed to prevent Russian breakthroughs north of Olomouc (Olmuetz) but declared the Russians were stopped on a "new line." It said Soviet attempts to fight into the protectorate by shifting the center of attack had failed.

The Germans admitted their forces were in flight westward in the hope of being captured by the Americans before the trap was snapped by the three Russian armies.

As fighting dwindled on the continent, the Allies were not overlooking the U-boats on the high seas. These were presumed to be returning to their bases after Doenitz's cease activity order. But naval patrols were out and the Orkney Islands fishermen continued their anti-submarine vigil.

Truman Calls Victory Hour Solemn, Glorious

Warns Nation That Hard Task Still Is Ahead of Us

Following is the text of President Truman's radio address on the surrender of Germany:

This is a solemn but a glorious hour. I only wish that Franklin D. Roosevelt had lived to witness this day. Gen. Eisenhower informs me that the forces of Germany have surrendered to the United Nations. The flags of freedom fly over all Europe.

For this victory we join in offering our thanks to the Providence which has guided and sustained us through the dark days of adversity.

Our rejoicing is sobered and subdued by a supreme consciousness of the terrible price we have paid to rid the world of Hitler and his evil band. Let us not forget, my fellow Americans, the sorrow and the heartbreak which today abide in the homes of so many of our neighbors—neighbors whose most priceless possession has been rendered as a sacrifice to redeem our liberty.

We can repay the debt which we owe to our God, to our dead and to our children only by work—by ceaseless devotion to the responsibilities which lie ahead of us. If I could give you a single watchword for the coming months, that word is work, work, work.

We must work to finish the war. Our victory is but half won. The West is free, but the East is still in bondage to the treacherous tyranny of the Japanese. When the last Japanese division has surrendered unconditionally, then only will our fighting job be done.

We must work to bind up the wounds of a suffering world—to build an abiding peace, a peace rooted in justice and in law. We can build a peace only by hard, toilsome, painstaking work—by understanding and working with our Allies in peace as we have in war.

The job ahead is no less important, no less urgent, no less difficult than the task which now happily is done.

I call upon every American to stick to his post until the last battle is won. Until that day, let no man abandon his post or slacken his efforts.

Done at the City of Washington this 8th day of May, in the year of our Lord 1945, and of the independence of the United States of America the 169th.

V-E Day Proclamation Text

Following is the text of President Truman's proclamation on the end of the war in Europe:

By the President of the United States of America.

A proclamation.

The Allied armies, through sacrifice and devotion and with God's help, have won from Germany a final and unconditional surrender. The Western World has been freed of the evil forces which for five years and longer have imprisoned the bodies and broken the lives of millions upon millions of freeborn men. They have violated their churches, destroyed their homes, corrupted their children, and murdered their loved ones. Our armies of liberation have restored freedom to these suffering peoples, whose spirit and will the oppressors could never enslave.

Much remains to be done. The victory won in the west must now be won in the east. The whole world must be cleansed of the evil from which half the world has been freed. United, the peace-loving nations have demonstrated in the west that their arms are stronger by far than the might of dictators or the tyranny of military cliques that once called us soft and weak. The power of our peoples to defend themselves against all enemies will be proved in the Pacific as it has been proved in Europe.

For the triumph of spirit and of arms which we have won, and for its promise to peoples everywhere who join us in the love of freedom, it is fitting that we, as a Nation, give thanks to Almighty God, who has strengthened us and given us victory.

Now, therefore, I, Harry S. Truman, President of the United States of America, do hereby appoint Sunday, May 13, 1945, to be a day of prayer.

I call upon the people of the United States, whatever their faith, to unite in offering joyful thanks to God for the victory we have won and to pray that He will support us to the end of our present struggle and guide us into the way of peace.

I also call upon my countrymen to dedicate this day of prayer to the memory of those who have given their lives to make possible our victory.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

TRUMAN PRAISES ALLIED LEADERS FOR GREAT TASK

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP) President Truman sent messages of congratulations and praise to Allied leaders across the Atlantic today as he formally told his own country that Germany is defeated.

Messages went from the White House to Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin, General Eisenhower and General de Gaulle. All carried the same theme—affection, appreciation and congratulations to the war leaders abroad.

He told Churchill: "The government of the United States is deeply appreciative of the splendid contribution of all the British Empire forces and of the British people to this magnificent victory."

Message to Stalin

To Stalin he messaged: "x x x You have demonstrated in all your campaigns what it is possible to accomplish when a free people under superlative leadership and with unfailing courage rise against the forces of barbarism."

He struck a more personal note in his message to General Eisenhower after offering "The fervent congratulations and appreciation of myself and of the American people. x x x"

"I send also," he continued, "My personal appreciation of the superb leadership shown by you and your commanders in directing the valiant legions of our own country and of our allies to this historic victory.

"Please transmit this message to the appropriate officers of your command and publish it to all allied forces in your theaters of operation."

His message to De Gaulle said: "x x x This is an appropriate time to send through you America's congratulations to the people of France on their permanent liberation from the oppression they have endured with high courage for so long.

"I wish also to send to you this expression of our appreciation of the contribution made by valiant soldiers of France to our allied victory."

27 MILLION MEN FOUGHT IN EUROPE

MAY 9 1945

Washington, May 8 (A. P.).—V-E day ends six years of titanic combat involving all told as many as 27,000,000 men in the European and African theaters.

The War Department estimated today that the Allies at their peak of supremacy had 16,100,000 men under arms, including 600,000 underground fighters.

It broke it down this way: Americans 4,000,000; Russians 10,000,000; British 1,000,000 (including continental air force); French 500,000; ⅓ underground 600,000 (of which about 500,000 were French forces of the interior).

In late summer of 1944, Germany had 8,000,000 troops, most of them first class. Also fighting under the German banner were 200,000 Rumanians, 400,000 Bulgars, 200,000 Finns, 40,000 Czechs and 1,0,000 impressed "foreigners," principally Poles, Slavs and Russians. In addition there were 1,300,000 Italians in active combat in 1943.

Germans Arrogant At Start Of Surrender, Wilt Quickly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seventeen press and radio correspondents, including one woman, crowded into the school room at Reims and watched almost incredulously as the Germans silently signed the documents of unconditional surrender early Monday.

Margaret Ecker of Vancouver, war correspondent for the Canadian Press, the only woman in the party from Paris to witness the ceremony, said in a broadcast from Paris Tuesday that Gen. Eisenhower's first words after he dismissed the Nazi emissaries were:

"I'll certainly be glad to get rid of those damn Germans."

Miss Ecker added, in a classic understatement, that the signing was "probably the most impressive thing I have ever seen, or perhaps ever will see."

"We found it awfully hard to believe that those ordinary sheets of paper passing from hand to hand were really the surrender and the end of the war which has devastated the lives of our generation," she said.

W. W. Chaplin, describing the historic scene in an NBC broadcast from Paris, said:

"Gen. Jodl signed the papers of surrender with a quivering hand. Then I heard him make one of the strangest little speeches in history, beseeching our generosity toward Germany because, he said, Germany has suffered so.

"I was so close that I could see a dot of perspiration running slowly down his fat, flat face, onto his jutting chin; his signature writing finis to the nightmarish history of Nazism.

"Standing close behind him, I noticed, there was a chart showing Allied casualties in dead, wounded and missing, with a total in seven figures. Beside that chart he stood and begged for generosity."

Miss Ecker said the German officers appeared arrogant when they began the negotiations, but were "very subdued" when the ceremonies ended.

Charles Collingwood of CBS described how Gen. Jodl, after singing the last of four documents, put the cap back on the pen and looked up at the men sitting across the plain wooden table.

"Opposite him sat Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff," Collingwood recounted. "Gen. Smith looked tired. He had been negotiating for 33 hours, but his mouth was hard and so were his eyes.

Russians Impassive

"As Jodl looked to his right he could see a big, powerful man in the uniform of a Russian general. He was Gen. Ivan Susloparov, the Russian delegate. Over his shoulder peered the extraordinary head of another Russian. The head was bald as a gourd, with fierce, unwavering eyes, whose bright and sinister gaze did not for an instant leave the drawn face of Gen. Jodl.

"Jodl did not meet his eyes for long, but looked around the table at Admiral Sir Harold M. Burrough, the Allied naval commander at Gen. Carl Spaatz, the air commander, at Gen. Sevez, the French representative."

Collingwood described Jodl as a "typical, stiff-necked Prussian professional soldier x x x the embodiment of what we think of as Prussian arrogance."

Drew Middleton of The New York Times writing from Supreme headquarters, said there was "some comment" over the fact that great Britain, which first declared war on Germany, was not represented among the signatories. Gen. Smith signed both for Eisenhower and for the British.

...KATIVE NAZIS ...DED ALLIES IN FINAL CAMPAIGNS

MAY 9 1945

By TOM REEDY

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP) The Army disclosed today that one of its most valuable weapons in Europe was the German soldier's inability to keep his mouth shut.

A War department authority said it now can be told that some of the Allies' most valuable information about the enemy was obtained from the enemy himself.

From the North African invasion, American commanders were frankly amazed at the willingness of the German soldier to talk about his unit. The Army source said in some cases the information was a vital factor in the operation immediately ahead.

"The only reason we ever could figure out," this officer said, "was this: The German for so long was not permitted to speak freely on any subject in his homeland that when he was captured he spoke out. Apparently that was one thing the German high command neglected in the so-called discipline of the German army."

The American soldier was drilled to give only his name and serial number. He was told by his commanders that any more information than that would endanger the lives of his buddies. The officer said it worked, too, in the case of Americans.

The U. S. commanders also were surprised that such an old soldier as Field Marshal Gerd Von Rundstedt would give any information.

Von Rundstedt, the officer said, told the Allied generals a great deal about the German army system—information which now is being studied for future guidance. In the Field Marshal's case, however, the information had nothing to do with current military operations which were virtually over when he was captured.

JAPAN IS WARNED UTTER DEFEAT IS INEVITABLE FATE

MAY 9 1945

'Our Victory Is But Half Won' President Truman Declares to Nation.

NEW BLOWS READY

Leaders United in Determination to Conquer Japan, End Terrorism.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

American and British political and military leaders in their V-E statements Tuesday, grimly warned that Japan can expect increased attacks as a result of the conquest of Germany.

The Japanese apparently were well aware of their perilous situation. Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo called at the Imperial palace in Tokyo to make a personal report to Emperor Hirohito after a four-hour cabinet meeting "on the latest European situation."

"Our victory is but half won," declared President Truman at Washington. In a press conference statement he elaborated: "the longer the war lasts, the greater will be the sufferings which the people of Japan will undergo—all in vain."

Prime Minister Churchill, in a London broadcast to the empire residents of the far east asserted "the armed might of the British Commonwealth and America with their Allies against Japan is now free to strike with tremendous and undivided power. Lift up your hearts, for we are coming."

King George Pledges Victory

King George VI, in a message to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek gave his promise that "all available resources of my empire will be concentrated on the complete defeat of Japan which must precede the peace, one and indivisable, which is the goal of the United Nations. I look forward with you to the day of that defeat which draws steadily nearer, certain and inexorable."

To Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands the King sent his "sincere wish that the liberation of your majesty's colonies in the far east may soon follow."

From Gen. Eisenhower's commanders in Europe came a chorus that showed their attention already had shifted to the Pacific.

"Like Germany, Japan must be completely and irretrievably beaten," said Admiral Harold Stark, commander of the U. S. Naval forces in Europe. "We must devote all our energies, mind and muscle to the grim struggle ahead."

Gen. Patton of the U. S. Third army declared "with the help of almighty God and with the inspired leadership of our President and the high command we shall conquer x x x Japan until the last danger to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness shall perish from the earth."

Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the Allied Strategic Air forces in Europe, said the U. S. Air force would devote "its full attention to the concentration of all available air power against the Japanese empire." Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, commander of the U. S. Eighth Air Force, added his conviction that the airmen would "go on to that other war with the same spirit, with the same unflinching courage and with the same results."

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson, commander of the U. S. Ninth Army, said "we will not rest until Japan has been defeated, and should the Ninth army be ordered into action in the Pacific, we are ready to carry on and help bring a final and lasting peace to the world."

Gen. Hodges of the U. S. First said "we still have one more of the aggressor nations to defeat x x x x hard work, hard fighting and great sacrifices are still ahead on the home and fighting fronts and not until victory day in the Pacific can we lay aside our weapons and resume life in a free world."

Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, commander of the 15th Army, declared "Japan, arch criminal of the East, is still oppressing and enslaving peace loving people, still torturing our prisoners and still attempting to destroy the freedom for which we stand. Ahead of us lies the grim necessity of completing the overthrow of this enemy x x x."

Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the Allied First Airborne army, added that "the same invincible fighting spirit displayed in Europe will be carried to the Pacific and will hasten the day of victory."

To Send Mighty Forces

In Washington, Gen. Marshall said Germany's defeat would make it possible "to send mighty forces to the Pacific to crush the enemy without fail and we hope with little of delay." Navy Secretary Forrestal commented: "Let us now go forward to speedy and complete victory in the Pacific."

Japan lost diplomatic ground during the day.

The Swiss Federal council protested to the Tokyo government and asked compensation for damages because of Japanese tactics in limiting the activities of the Swiss ministry in Japan and mistreating Swiss nationals. The council received reports that a number of Swiss citizens had been killed in Manila by Japanese troops.

The Indian government disclosed that the Axis had attempted with little success to undermine the loyalty of Indian prisoners of war. It said only a few were persuaded to join the "Indian national army" of Subhas Chandra Bose, renegade Indian politician who was reported to have fled from Burma to Singapore.

"In Italy," the communique added, "Indians in an Axis-formed unit mutinied when they learned it was to fight against the Allies. In France, a number of prisoners of war discarded their German uniforms and joined the Maquis. Indians landed from a Japanese submarine on the Indian coast promptly reported to the nearest officer of the Indian army and revealed their orders to him."

The Japanese Domei news agency, in a broadcast reported by OWI, followed the Nazi line of trying to cause a rift among the Allies by asserting that Togo's Sunday denunciation of "German violation of the Tripartite (Axis) pact" had "exploded like a bombshell in London."

The broadcast said Japanese "observers" paid special attention to Togo's statement because it "coincided with the crisis between the Anglo-Saxons and Soviets over the Polish question."

OWI said the Stockholm newspaper Expressen, however, interpreted the Togo statement as "the first careful peace-feeler to the Anglo-Saxons via Moscow" and added that "Tokyo doesn't seem to realize yet that the same fate awaits Japan as has now befallen Germany—unconditional surrender."

PRISONERS OF WAR TOLD OF V-E DAY

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—German prisoners of war in this country got official word today that their homeland had given up the fight.

In a formal proclamation to the 343,000 German prisoners held here, the war deparmtent notified them of the unconditional surrender and told them:

"As prisoners of war, you continue to be subject to American laws and regulations."

The German surrender will not alter plans to use Germany's captive warriors as farm workers in this country, authorities said.

The house food investigation committee said it had army assurance that the prisoners will be used on labor-short farms through the fall harvesting season. They are needed urgently in sugar beet fields.

The War Department said it intends to repatriate enemy prisoners of war as soon as feasible, under terms of the Geneva convention for treatment of war prisoners. It was explained, however, that the need of available shipping space to carry on the war against Japan will make it impossible to send prisoners home immediately.

CAPITAL TEMPERS CELEBRATION OF DEFEAT OF NAZIS

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—Official VE-Day rejoicing — from military men and civilian leaders alike—was tempered tonight with the grim determination to carry the tide of utter defeat on to Japan.

"The world has never witnessed" such a victory as the Allied triumph in Europe, said army chief of staff George C. Marshall as President Truman broadcast his victory-in-Europe proclamation.

But he and other officials kept the eye of a warring nation focused on Japan.

"Japanese industry will have to be battered into the same chaos that engulfed Germany's military machine," said Gen. H. H. Arnold, air force commander.

Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King saluted the European victory but reminded: "another hard job still lies ahead in the Pacific."

Congressional leaders, too, tempered their joy at Germany's defeat with solemn warnings of the task that lies ahead. For example:

Chairman Mead (D-N.Y.) of the Senate War Investigation Committee: "We still have a major war to fight and we must continue to maintain the armed strength necessary to win that war."

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio): "The overwhelming defeat of those who would have conquered the world is the best insurance of peace which our generation could have. If we make that peace permanent we must use the great power we have acquired in the world wisely and with proper consideration of the rights and interests of all other peoples."

And from the ranks of labor:

AFL President William Green: "V-E Day is cause for deep rejoicing, but the workers of America cannot relax their efforts yet. Half the job of winning the war—the most important half—is now over, but a great deal of hard fighting and hard work still lies ahead before Japan is conquered and world peace restored."

GREW REMINDS ALL THAT WAR GOES ON

MAY 9 1945

Wasington, May 8 (A. P.).—In a V-E day statement, Acting Secretary Joseph C. Grew called on the nation today to redouble its energy "to the unfinished business in the Pacific."

Grew's statement, released after President Truman's proclamation of victory in Europe, asked America to "remember also that even in Europe our victory is not the end of our labors."

"The Nazi menace is crushed at last," Grew said. "We are proud of our men, proud of the country which produced them and provided them with the weapons. We are thankful to our Allies.

"In the hour of triumph let us dedicate ourselves with redoubled energy to the unfinished business in the Pacific. And let us remember also that even in Europe our victory is not the end of our labors. We must assure ourselves and those to come after us that Germany shall never again have power to threaten the peace and decency of the world.

"It is source of hope and confidence to us all that the labor of organizing for the preservation of peace had begun at San Francisco before the labor of war in Europe had been finished."

Some Sections Of Censorship Code Abolished

Price Modifies Others; Rules on Weather, Air Raids and Sabotage Out

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP).—The end of the war in Europe brought an easing of censorship restrictions today, though basic military information was still kept subject to authorization by competent authorities.

Byron Price, Director of Censorship, announced that the voluntary code which has governed publication of war news in the United States since Jan. 15, 1942, would soon be rewritten in shorter form. In the mean time, several sections were eliminated or modified.

Wholly eliminated were provisions dealing with information on attacks by air, for which elaborate precautions had been set up while Germany was a major air power; weather reports, on which rules already had been eased; and sabotage, on which there had been a prohibition against "specifications (including information on 'bottlenecks') which saboteurs could use to damage military objectives."

Rules on publication of information about war prisoners, internees and civilian prisoners were cut down to a prohibition against "information as to arrival, movements, confinement or identity of military prisoners from war zones" unless given out by competent authority.

What Rules Covered

Heretofore, those rules had covered enemy aliens, the location of internment camps and the place of confinement of civilians convicted of treason, espionage or sabotage.

The regulation on any damage done in the United States by enemy action was revised, but still covered substantially the whole ground, forbidding use of "information about actual or impending enemy attacks on the continental United States."

The prohibitions against use of information on war-materiel production was modified to apply only to secret or new weapons, designs, formulas, processes or experiments, to matériel used for "specialized military operations" and to actual movement or transportation of war matériel.

Army Units May Be Listed

Until today publication had been forbidden on designs or rates of production of any specific type of matériel, and on strategic stockpiling and imports.

Specific permission was given for identification and location of all American military units in Europe through May 8, but any report on subsequent movements will require appropriate authority.

Price said the end of German resistance "alters security requirements materially, although it by no means erases the need for, or importance of, voluntary censorship."

He issued a parallel revision of the broadcasting code.

His statement on relaxation of press censorship follows:

"The end of German resistance alters security requirements materially, although it by no means erases the need for, or importance of, voluntary censorship.

Amendments Set Forth

"A new, shorter code will be issued soon. Meantime, the present code (edition of December 1, 1943) is amended effective at once as shown below:

"Ship sinkings, damage by enemy attacks, etc.—eliminate entire section and substitute the following:

"Information about the sinking or damaging from war, causes of war or merchant vessels in any waters; information about actual or impending enemy attacks on the Continental United States.

"Attacks by air—eliminate entire section.

"Production — eliminate entire section and substitute the following:

"New or secret weapons, indentity and location of plants making them; secret designs, formulas, processes or experiments connected with the war.

"Rate of production of materiel used in or for specialized military operations.

"Movement or transportation of war materiel.

Sabotage Section Killed

"Sabotage—eliminate entire section.

'BROWNOUT' ENDS, MAY LIFT RACING BAN AND CURFEW

MAY 9 1945

Lights On Again in American Cities as War Ends in Europe.

BIG TASK AHEAD

War Production Must Be Met, Krug Warns—to Relax Controls Slowly.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, May 8 — (AP) The lights of American cities winked on tonight in token of Europe's liberation and the government made ready to tell the public its homefront policies for the war against Japan.

Director Fred M. Vinson of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion set a news conference for tomorrow (11 a.m. E.W.T.) to release his chart for the future, wrapping up the plans of 26 war and civilian agencies.

The War Production board lifted the lighting "brownout" immediately after President Truman's victory broadcast. With that action, the capital looked to Vinson for a decision on the midight curfew, the racing ban and other minor check reins on the national life.

His predecessor, James F. Byrnes, recommended prompt abolition of these regulations after V-E day, and there was indication Vinson would go along.

But these were minor considerations and WPB Chairman J. A. Krug made it clear that the relaxation of industrial and manpower controls would be gradual and deliberate.

Bitter Fight Ahead

"In this hour of victory in Europe, American workers will not forget the bitter war ahead in the Pacific," said the production in a V-E statement. "War production must continue in tremendous volume and on schedule to meet all military needs.

"There will be plenty of work for everyone."

While the flood lighting of the Washington monument and the capitol dome told Washington that the coal brownout was over, WPB cautioned the country that "all-out conservation of fuel will continue to be necessary." The dome will be darkened tomorrow, as it has been since Pearl Harbor, but the brownout regulations for the public at large are lifted permanently.

These additional developments marked the day on the civilian front:

May Get More Gas

1—OPA and the petroleum administration said the predicted 50 per cent increase in A-card gasoline rations probably must wait 30 days at least, pending studies of Army and Navy fuel needs. Except possibly for tires no other alleviation of rationing is now in site.

2—The Office of Defense Transportation said it was not "even considering" lifting the prohibition against conventions, because the transportation problem will grow more serious as emphasis shifts to the Pacific war.

3—OPA Administrator Chester Bowles decided tentatively to announce price ceiling policies on civilian goods newly reentering production at a news conference Friday. A spokesman said OPA in general would stand by its policy of holding reconversion prices on washing machines, vacuum cleaners, refrigerators and oher long absent goods to the 1942 level.

4—The continuing shortage of some civilian goods was underscored by a WPB announcement that large portions of the textile industry are being moved up to the third highest priority on manpower, on a par with tanks, planes and bombs.

5—Harold G. Boeschenstein, vice chairman of the War Production board, predicted an early increase in tires available for civilian cars.

6—WPB authorized the aviation industry to resume manufacture of transport planes for commercial airlines providing military production is not hampered.

7—The War department ordered a ten per cent cut in heavy artillery ammunition production.

The action, intended to help the industry increase wool and cotton output 18 per cent by channeling more workers into the mills, affects weaving, knitting, felting, and all other mill operations on cottons, woolens and worsteds. Fabric-finishing operations also are covered in mills which are working at least 80 per cent on priority orders. Similar priority goes to rayon mill operations including spinning.

Mills and departments making luxury fabrics, including carpets, bed spreads, lace, drapery and upholstery fabrics were not granted the higher manpower standing.

DETROIT WORKERS CELEBRATE, WALK OUT OF FACTORIES

MAY 9 1945

DETROIT, May 8. — (AP) War work in this arsenal city came to a standstill today as men and women who have been making bomber planes, aircraft engines, tanks, guns and other weapons left their jobs to celebrate the defeat of Germany.

Some of the factories made no attempt to open; others were forced to close down by a heavy exodus of workers that followed President Truman's proclamation of victory in Europe; the few plants that remained open were able to maintain only limited production schedules.

Pleas by industry leaders to the workers to stay on the job were ignored but there was no disorder. Industry spokesmen indicated they expected full shifts to report for work tomorrow.

As Alvan MacAuley, president of the Automotive Council for War Production, and R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), were emphasizing the necessity of production to defeat the Japanese, a group of UAW-CIO local union heads issued a statement predicting growing unemployment in the Detroit area.

Asserting that cutbacks in war production "will cost the jobs of 40,000 to 50,000 members of the UAW-CIO" in the Detroit area, they called for "an emergency V-E meeting" next Thursday evening. Its purpose, they said, will be to plan action to: "Smash the little steel wage formula in order to obtain 48 hours' pay for a 40-hour work week; abolish all manpower controls; obtain reconversion pay to supplement inadequate unemployment compensation benefits; bring about speedy reconversion to civilian production of unused plants and facilities to provide jobs for war workers and all returning veterans."

Text of Churchill Address

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 8.—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's address:

Yesterday morning at 2:41 a.m. at Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters, Gen. Jodl, the representative of the German high command and of Grand Admiral Doenitz, the designated head of the German state, signed the act of unconditional surrender of all German land, sea and air forces to the Allied Expeditionary Force and simultaneously to the Soviet high command.

Gen. Bedell Smith and Gen. Francois Sevez signed the document on behalf of the supreme commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force and Gen. Susloparov signed on behalf of the Russian high command.

Today this agreement will be ratified and confirmed at Berlin, where Air Chief Marshal Tedder, deputy supreme commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force, and Gen. De Lattre de Tassigny will sign on behalf of Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. Zhukov on behalf of the Soviet high command.

The German representatives will be Field Marshal Keitel, chief of the high command and the commander in chief of the army, navy and air forces.

Hostilities will end officially at one minute after midnight tonight, Tuesday, the 8th of May.

But in the interest of saving lives, the cease fire began yesterday to be sounded all along the front, and our dear Channel Islands are also to be freed today.

The Germans are still in places resisting the Russian troops, but should they continue to do so after midnight they will, of course, deprive themselves of the protection of the laws of war and will be attacked from all quarters by the Allied troops.

It is not surprising that on such long fronts and in the existing disorder of the enemy, the commands of the German high command could not in every case have been observed immediately. This does not, in our opinion with the military advice at our disposal, constitute any reason for withholding from the nation the facts communicated to us by Gen. Eisenhower of the unconditional surrender already signed at Rheims nor could it prevent us from celebrating today and tomorrow, Wednesday, as Victory in Europe day. Today, perhaps, we shall think mostly of ourselves. Tomorrow we shall pay a particular tribute to our heroic Russian comrades whose prowess in the field has been one of the grand contributions to the general victory.

The German war is therefore at an end.

After years of intense preparations Germany hurled herself on Poland at the beginning of September, 1939, and in pursuance of our guarantee to Poland and in common with the French Republic, Great Britain, the British Empire and Commonwealth of Nations, declared war upon this foul aggression.

After gallant France had been struck down we from this island and from our united empire maintained the struggle single-handed for a whole year until we were joined by the military might of Soviet Russia and later by the overwhelming power and resources of the United States of America.

Finally almost the whole world was combined against the evildoers who are now prostrate before us. Our gratitude to our splendid Allies goes forth from all our hearts in the island and throughout the British Empire.

We may allow ourselves a brief period of rejoicing, but let us not forget for a moment the toils and efforts that lie ahead.

Japan, with all her treachery and greed, remains unsubdued. The injuries she has inflicted against Great Britain, the United States and other countries and her detestable cruelties call for justice and retribution.

We must now devote all our strength and resources to the completion of our task both at home and abroad.

Advance, Britain! Long live the cause of freedom! God save the King.

3. The German high command will at once issue to the appropriate commanders, and insure the carrying out of any further orders issued by the supreme commander, Allied Expeditionary Force, and by the Soviet high command.

4. This act of military surrender is without prejudice to, and will be superseded by any general instrument of surrender imposed by, or on behalf of the United Nations and applicable to Germany and the German armed forces as a whole.

5. In the event of the German high command or any of the forces under their control failing to act in accordance with this act of surrender, the supreme commander, Allied Expeditionary Force, and the Soviet high command will take such punitive or other action as they deem appropriate.

Signed at Reims, France at 0241 hours (2.41 A. M.) on the seventh day of May, 1945.

On behalf of the German high command—Jodl.

In the presence of:

On behalf of the supreme commander, Allied Expeditionary Force—W. B. Smith.

On behalf of the Soviet high command—Ivan Susloparoff.

On behalf of the French—F. Sevez.

Naval Surrender Terms

The text of the "naval terms of surrender":

For the information of the public, it may be stated that all German and German-controlled warships, auxiliaries, merchant ships and other craft at sea are being ordered to report their positions in plain language to the nearest Allied wireless telegraph station, and are being given orders to proceed to such Allied ports as directed. They will remain in those ports until further directions are received.

All warships, auxiliaries, merchant ships and other craft in harbor are being ordered to remain in harbor.

U-boats at sea are being ordered to surface, to fly a black flag or pennant and report their position in plain language to the nearest Allied wireless telegraph station. They will then proceed on the surface to such port as may be directed.

All warships and merchant ships, whether in port or at sea, are being instructed to train all weapons fore and aft. Breech blocks will be removed and torpedo tubes will be unloaded.

In harbor, all ammunition, explosives, torpedo warheads and all portable weapons will be landed. Mine-sweeping vessels and salvage vessels, though similarly disarmed, will be instructed to complete with fuel, if necessary, and to prepare themselves immediately for mine-sweeping or salvage service as directed.

Instructions will be given for boom defenses at ports and harbors to be kept open. Demolition charges and controlled mines and mine fields at all ports and harbors are to be rendered ineffective.

All personnel will be ordered to remain either on board their ships or in their establishments until other directions are received.

Churchill Says Surrender Will Be Ratified at Berlin

Ceremonial in Foe's Capital Set for Today—De Gaulle Proclaims Victory in France —Stalin Is Not Yet Heard.

MAY 9 1945

London, May 8 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill today proclaimed the victory in Europe, declaring that the unconditional surrender of Germany will be ratified and confirmed at Berlin and that hostilities will cease at one minute after midnight, British time (6:01 P. M., New York time).

The Prime Minister told the world that the Germans had signed the unconditional surrender of all their land, sea and air forces in Europe yesterday at 2:41 A. M., French time (8:41 P. M., Sunday).

Gen. de Gaulle at the same time told the people of France that "the war is won" and that "the victory of the Allied nations is the victory of France."

Dispatches from Supreme Headquarters made it clear that the surrender was to all the Allies, but the Moscow radio was silent even after Gen. de Gaulle, President Truman and Mr. Churchill had spoken. There had been a general expectation that Stalin would speak simultaneously.

However, the Romanian radio, in a broadcast recorded by the American FCC, quoted an official Russian news agency dispatch as saying that the surrender was an accomplished fact and that Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky would probably sign it in Berlin on behalf of Russia.

Officially Confirms A. P.

Mr. Churchill officially bore out yesterday's dispatch in which Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press said that the German capitulation occurred at Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters at Reims at 2:41 A. M., French time, yesterday. The capitulation was made simultaneously to the Allies and to the Soviet High Command. Gen. Jodl, representative of the German High Command, and Grand Admiral Doenitz, the new Fuehrer, signed the pact for Germany.

"Today," Mr. Churchill said, "this agreement will be ratified and confirmed at Berlin, where Air Chief Marshal Tedder, Deputy Supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force, and Gen. Tassigny will sign on behalf of Gen. Eisenhower."

He said that the Germans are "still in places resisting the Russians," but added that if resistance continued after midnight "they will, of course, deprive themselves of the protection of the laws of war and will be attacked from all quarters by the Allied troops."

He said it was not surprising that orders of the German High Command should not be obeyed at once—because of the foes disorganization. But he added immediately that, as a result of information furnished by Gen. Eisenhower, it should not prevent "us from celebrating today and tomorrow as Victory in Europe Days."

German War Is Ended.

"The German war is therefore at an end," he said.

He reminded Britain at the same time however, that "we may allow ourselves a brief period of rejoicing, but let us not forget for am oment the toil and efforts that lie ahead."

"Japan, with all her treachery and greed," he declared, "remains unsubdued. The injury she has inflicted on the United States and other countries and her detestable cruelties call for justice and retribution. We must now devote all our strength and resources to the completion of our task both at home and abroad."

Long Live Freedom.

Mr. Churchill closed his historic message with these words: "Advance, Britannia! Long live the cause of freedom! God save the King!"

As he ended, buglers from the Scots Guards sounded their ceremonial Song of Victory.

At Bucbingham Palace, packed thousands cheered in exultation as the King and Queen with the two Princesses appeared on the balcony and waved to express their joy over peace in Europe.

King George wil speak to the British people at 9 P. M. (3 P. M.). Gen. Eisenhower, the architect of victory in the west; Field Marshal Montgomery, who chased the Nazis across Africa, France and the Reich, and Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, who carved out victory in the south, also will be heard.

Eisenho... Victory Order

By THE ASSOCIATED PR...

Following is the text o... Eisenhower's victory orde... the day as transmitted fro... preme Allied Headquarters:

Victory order of the day

Men and women of the A... Expeditionary Force:

The crusade on which we embarked in the early summer of 1944 has reached its glorious conclusion. It is my especial privilege in the name of all nations represented in this theater of war to commend each of you for valiant performance of duty.

Though these words are feeble they come from the bottom of a heart overflowing with pride in your loyal service and admiration for you as warriors. Your accomplishments at sea, in the air, on the ground and in the field of supply have astonished the world.

Even before the final week of the conflict you had put 5,000,000 of the enemy permanently out of the war. You have taken in stride military tasks so difficult as to be classed by many doubters as impossible. You have confused, defeated and destroyed your savagely fighting foe.

On the road to victory you have endured every discomfort and privation and have surmounted every obstacle ingenuity and desperation could throw in your path.

You did not pause until our front was firmly joined up with the great Red army coming from the east and other Allied forces coming from the south.

Full victory in Europe has been attained. Working and fighting together in a single and indestructible partnership, you have achieved a perfection in unification of air, ground and naval power that will stand as a model in our time.

The route you have travelled through hundreds of miles is marked by the graves of former comrades. From them have been exacted the ultimate sacrifice: blood of many nations—American, British, Canadian, French, Polish and others — has helped to gain the victory. Each of the fallen died as a member of the team to which you belong, bound together by a common love of liberty and a refusal to submit to enslavement.

No monument of stone, no memorial of whatever magnitude could so well express our respect and veneration for their sacrifice as would perpetuation of the spirit of comradeship in which they died.

As we celebrate victory in Europe let us remind ourselves that common problems of the immediate and distant future can be best solved in the same conceptions of cooperation and devotion to the cause of human freedom as have made this expeditionary force such a mighty engine of righteous destruction.

Let us have no part in the profitless quarrels in which other men will inevitably engage as to what country and what service won the European war. Every man, every woman and every nation here represented has served according to his or her ability and the efforts of each have contributed to the outcome. This we shall remember—and in doing so we shall be revering each honored grave and be sending comfort to the loved ones of comrades who could not live to see this day.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER.

PROCLAMATION

In 1943 the late President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill met in Casablanca. There they pronounced the formula of unconditional surrender for the Axis powers. In Europe that formula has now been fulfilled. The Allied force which invaded Europe on June 6, 1944, has, with its great Russian allies and the forces advancing from the south, utterly defeated the Germans on land, sea and air. This unconditional surrender has been achieved by team work, team work not only among all the Allies participating but among all the services, land, sea and air.

To every subordinate that has been in this command of almost 5,000,000 Allies, I owe a debt of gratitude that can never be repaid. The only repayment that can be made to them is the deep appreciation and lasting gratitude of all the free citizens of all the United Nations.

King George Calls on British Empire To 'Give Thanks to God for Deliverance'

MAY 9 1945

By JAMES E. KING

LONDON, May 8—(AP) Prime Minister Churchill, with a solemn reminder that Japan "remains unsubdued" and still must be brought to justice, today formally proclaimed the war with Germany was ended.

Shortly afterwards King George VI in a special V-E day broadcast to the British Empire from Buckingham Palace called upon his people to "give thanks to God for a great deliverance."

Churchill in a world broadcast from 10 Downing street said that the unconditional surrender of Germany signed at Reims at 2:41 a.m., Monday would "be ratified and confirmed" at Berlin and that all hostilities would cease at one minute after midnight, British time (6:01 p.m., EWT).

Germans continuing to resist after that hour, the Prime Minister said, "will of course deprive themselves of the protection of the laws of war and will be attacked from all quarters by the Allied troops."

Rides In Open Car

Beaming broadly and smoking a cigar, the 70-year-old Prime Minister rode to Commons in an open car through cheering crowds after his historical official announcement of the end of the European war.

There in Commons, where five years ago he rallied Britain to a defiant defense against huge odds, he gave a first hand report of the surrender to Parliament.

While the end of the war was officially proclaimed in London and Washington, Moscow's official announcement was yet to come. Premier Churchill indicated it would follow after the formal signing of the peace agreement in Berlin.

"Tomorrow," he said, "it may be specially desirable for us to emphasize the debt we owe to our Soviet ally whose main celebrations will be taking place then."

As he entered Commons, smiling broadly, all the typical stolidness of the house was brushed aside and the members jumped up shouting with joy, shaking hands all around and back slapping one another. The historic chamber echoed to the cheers of the members of Parliament and gallery spectators joined in the thunderous reception.

Churchill himself joined in, but declared firmly "we may allow ourselves a brief period of rejoicing but let us not forget for a moment the toil and efforts that lie ahead."

Will Crush Japan

"Japan with all of her treachery and greed remains unsubdued," he reminded. "The injury she inflicted on Great Britain, the United States and other countries and her detestable cruelties call for justice and retribution. We must now devote all our strength and resources to the completion of our task both at home and aboard."

Churchill concluded his talk in Commons with these words:

"Advance Britannia. Long Live the Cause of Freedom. God Save the King."

Then on a motion by the Prime Minister Commons in a procession behind the speaker marched to neighboring St. Margaret's church for a service of Thanksgiving.

Hat on the back of his head and smiles radiating from around his ever-present cigar the Prime Minister rode later in the afternoon to Buckingham Palace and the crowds again got their money's worth as he waved and gave the V-sign again and again in the slow progress along the few blocks from 10 Downing street to Buckingham.

Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, and Ernest Bevin, labor minister, also called on the King as did Sir John Anderson, chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister, and Lord Woolton, minister of reconstruction, and the British chiefs of staff.

The King, bareheaded and in naval uniform, came out of the Palace and joined his ministers and military and naval chiefs to be photographed. Flying fortresses roared low over bomb-marked Buckingham and the sardined thousands had a wonderful time.

The King in his message to the Empire reminded the people that "total victory has not yet been won. In the Far East we have yet to deal with the Japanese, a determined and cruel foe. To this we shall turn with the utmost resolve and with all of our resources."

Broadcast By King George

MAY 9 1945

London, May 8 (AP)—The text of the British peoples follows:

Today we give thanks to God for a great deliverance.

Speaking from our empire's oldest capital city—war-battered but never for one moment daunted or dismayed—speaking from London, I ask you to join with me in that act of thanksgiving.

Germany, who drove all Europe into war, has been finally overcome. In the Far East we have yet to deal with the Japanese, a determined and cruel foe. To this we shall turn with the utmost resolve and with all our resources. But at this hour, when the dreadful shadow of war has passed far from our hearts and homes in these islands, we may at last make one pause for thanksgiving, and then we must turn our thought to the tasks all over the world which peace in Europe brings with it.

Tribute To The Dead

First let us remember those who will not come back: their constancy and courage in battle, their sacrifice and endurance in the face of a merciless enemy; let us remember the men in all the services, the women in all the services, who have laid down their lives.

We have come to the end of our tribulation and they are not with us at the moment of our rejoicing.

Next let us salute in proud gratitude the great host of the living who have brought us to victory. I cannot praise them to the measure of each one's service, for in a total war the efforts of all rise to the same noble height and all are devoted to the common purpose. Armed or unarmed, men and women, you have fought and striven and endured to your utmost. None knows that better than I do, and as your King I thank with a full heart those who bore arms so valiantly on land and sea or in the air; and all civilians who, shouldering their many burdens, have carried them unflinchingly and without complaint.

Defended World Liberties

With those memories in our minds, let us think what it was that has upheld us through nearly six years of suffering and peril. The knowledge that everything was at stake—our freedom, our independence, our very existence as a people; but the knowledge also that in defending ourselves we were defending the liberties of the whole world; that our cause was the cause not of this nation only, not of this Empire and Commonwealth only, but of every land where freedom is cherished and law and liberty go hand in hand.

In the darkest hours we knew that the enslaved and isolated peoples of Europe looked to us. Their hopes were our hopes; their confidence confirmed our faith. We knew that if we failed or faltered the last remaining barrier against a world-wide tyranny would have fallen in ruins. But we did not falter, and we did not fail. We kept faith with ourselves and with one another; we kept faith and unity with our great allies. That faith, that unity have carried us to victory through dangers which at times seemed overwhelming.

Much Hard Work Ahead

So let us resolve to bring to the tasks which lie ahead the same high confidence in our mission. Much hard work awaits us, both in the restoration of our own country after the ravages of war and in helping to restore peace and sanity to a shattered world.

This comes upon us at a time when we have all given of our best. For five long years and more, heart and brain, nerve and muscle, have been directed upon the overthrow of Nazi tyranny. Now we turn, fortified by success, to deal with our last remaining foe. The Queen and I know the ordeals which you have endured throughout the Commonwealth and Empire. We are proud to have shared some of them with you, and we know also that we shall all face the future together with stern resolve and prove that our reserves of will power and vitality are inexhaustible.

Hopes For Lasting Peace

There is great comfort in the thought that the years together, that the years of darkness and danger in which the children of our country have grown up, are, please God, over forever. We shall have failed, and the blood of our dearest will have flowed in vain, if the victory which they died to win does not lead to a lasting peace, founded on justice and established in good will.

To that, then, let us turn our thoughts on this day of just triumph and proud sorrow: and then take up our work again, resolved as a people to do nothing unworthy of those who died for us and to make the world such a world as they would have desired, for their children and for ours.

This is the task to which now honor binds us. In the hour of danger we humbly committed our cause into the hand of God and He has been our strength and shield. Let us thank Him for His mercies and in this hour of victory commit ourselves and our new task to the guidance of the same strong hand.

Gen. Bradley's Remarks to Troops

MAY 9 1945

PARIS, May 8 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley's statement today follows:

When American troops landed on the Normandy beaches on June 6, 1944, all United States ground forces were fighting under the command of the First United States Army.

Within six weeks, with men and equipment pouring ashore, we had grown to a force twice the size of a normal army. On July 26 this massive First Army attacked from behind its hedgerows to tear a gaping hole in the strong side of the enemy. By Aug. 1 its seventeen divisions had fanned out into the plains of France and were heading to cut off Brest and lay the noose for the Argentan-Falaise trap. And so, on August the first, we divided this huge American force into two armies, the First and the Third, with the Twelfth Army Group in command of both. It was a plan the group had been working on since the fall of 1943.

In the nine months that followed we have amassed two additional armies, until today the Twelfth Army Group comprises the First, Third, Ninth and Fifteenth American Armies. It is the first wholly American group of armies to take the field in any war. It is the greatest accumulation of power and force in the nation's history.

Our armies have speeded the liberation of France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. They have fought 700 miles from the beaches to conquer half of Germany and join forces with the Russians. They have stabbed across the Czechoslovak border and into the hills of Austria. They have destroyed whole groups of German armies in the west, given hope to the peoples of Europe and speeded the timetable for our own war in the Pacific.

The achievements of this group of American armies are monuments not only to the vitality and resourcefulness of the American people, but they are living evidence to the courage, the skill and the bravery of those American soldiers who lie dead near the battlefields we have won, and those troops—tens of thousands of them—recuperating in our hospitals today

We have captured more than 2,000,000 enemy prisoners, 350,000 in the Ruhr pocket and 1,000,000 since we crossed the Rhine. Germany was defeated when her armies were destroyed. Virtually every German that faced us in the original armies of the west has been killed, wounded or taken a prisoner of war.

At Argentan the First Army closed its trap to annihilate entire corps of the German Army. It blocked the retreat to the north, while our Third Army raced around the end and carved the enemy into prisoner pockets. Not until he reached the Siegfried Line was the enemy able to recover from the terrifying cost of these battles.

When von Rundstedt threw his three big armies into the Ardennes we smashed his armor, flung the remnants back and broke through his great fortifications. Within a month we had destroyed the German armies destined to defend the Rhine and crowded our cages with another quarter of a million German troops. Without breaking our stride we crossed the Rhine to encircle the Ruhr and trap the German armies that had hoped to save the heart land. Rushing quickly to the east while also attacking to our rear, we bypassed his mountain stronghold and bagged another 50,000. During the month of March we captured on an average a German division a day. This was increased during April.

Today I wish to commend every man and officer in this group of American armies I have been privileged to command. No greater army and no finer troops have fought anywhere, under any flag, and I want to express my deep appreciation to General Hodges of the First Army, to General Patton of the Third Army, General Simpson of the Ninth Army and to General Gerow of the Fifteenth Army. We have worked closely together to give us the flexibility and the power to concentrate anywhere at any time we chose.

Germany is beaten, completely and utterly beaten. But today we must carry our effort to the scene of the war with Japan. There can be no let-up and no slowdown until the job is done. Only then shall we win the peace that will make this V-E Day a day of hope and promise for all generations.

Patton Review of 3d Army Campaign

PARIS, May 8 (AP)—Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s statement today follows:

Now that victory in Europe has been achieved, let us review the Third Army's part in this epic struggle.

From Africa to Brest, thence across France, Germany and into Austria, the Third Army and its equally victorious army of the Nineteenth Tactical Air Command, have fought their way. The Seine, the Loire, the Moselle, the Saar, the Rhine and the Danube, not to mention twenty other lesser rivers, have been successfully stormed. The Siegfried Line has been penetrated at will. Metz, Trier, Coblenz and Frankfort and countless other cities and towns have been cleared of the enemy. More than 80,000 square miles of country have been liberated or conquered.

You have demonstrated your irresistible prowess in France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, Czechoslavakia and Austria. You have captured more than three quarters of a million Nazi soldiers, and have killed or wounded at least half a million others. But, in thinking of the heritage of glory you have achieved, do not be unmindful of the price you have paid. Throughout your victorious advances your line of march is marked with the graves of your heroic dead, while the hospitals are crowded with your wounded.

Nor should we forget the efforts of those at home, who have invariably provided us with the sinews of war, the means to victory. To those at home, we promise that with their unremitting assistance we shall continue, so that with the help of Almighty God and through the inspired leadership of our President and the High Command, we shall conquer not only Germany, but also Japan, until the last danger to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness shall perish from the earth.

Hodges' Tribute to the First Army

PARIS, May 8 (AP)—Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' statement today was as follows:

With victory in Europe an accomplished fact, it is fitting that we of the First United States Army should pause to review our accomplishments and to pay tribute to those who gave their lives and to those who lie wounded so that our Army might move relentlessly forward. I wish they all would know that we have not forgotten the part they have played in this great First United States Army and their part in this hard-won victory.

From the beaches of Normandy to the heart of Germany has been a long, difficult struggle, but we can rest secure in the knowledge of a job well done.

Speaking now to the men of the First Army, America will long remember D-Day in Normandy and the bitter fighting that followed as you expanded your bridgeheads and liberated the Cherbourg Peninsula, and then the long summer days of hedgerow fighting as you moved into position for the break-through at St. Lo.

In your 450-mile dash from St. Lo to the Siegfried Line, you liberated vast areas of northern France and Belgium. You were the first to crack the Siegfried Line and, during the Ardennes campaign, you held the best troops the Germans could concentrate. You recoiled from the blow to drive the Nazis back across the banks of the Rhine.

It was the First Army that seized the first bridgehead at Remagen. With skill and audacity, you breached the last Nazi obstacle on the road to Berlin. Your drive toward Berlin is history now, with its total of nearly 900,000 prisoners captured since D-Day. After crossing the Rhine at Remagen, you drove relentlessly east and north, exploiting your break-through and linking up with the Ninth Army to close the Ruhr pocket on over 324,000 Germans.

From Kassel, you fought on two fronts separated by over 200 miles. On the west you mopped up the pocket, and to the east you advanced swiftly to the Elbe. It was you who first contacted our gallant Soviet allies at Torgau, a fitting climax to a long line of firsts for the First United States Army.

On this day of victory in Europe you should feel proud—proud of the fight you have made, proud of the tremendous work on the home front, proud of our allies and proud of our cause.

Millions of mothers and fathers in America have contributed courage, sacrifice and superb fighting men to this victory.

However, our fight is not yet over. We still have one more of the aggressor nations to defeat. I have every confidence in the final victory. Hard work, hard fighting and great sacrifices are still ahead at home and on the fighting fronts.

And not until victory day in the Pacific can we lay aside our weapons and resume life in a free world.

General Jodl's Cease-Firing Order

Effective May 9, at 12:01 a. m., in all theaters of war by all formations of armed forces and all armed organizations or individual persons, all hostilities against all former enemies are to be discontinued.

Every destruction of, or damage to, arms, ammunition, aircraft, equipment and stores of all kinds, as well as damage to, and sinking of, ships is in contradiction to the terms accepted and signed by the high command of the armed forces, and in the common interest of the German people must be prevented with all possible means.

This announcement must be considered as an order by everybody who should not have received it through official military chanels.

Effective May 9, at 12:01 a. m., only open language must be used in all wireless communications of all branches of the armed forces.

On behalf of the Grand Admiral. JODL, Colonel General.

Admiral Doenitz

LONDON, May 8 (AP).—The text of the address to the German people today by Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz as broadcast by the Flensburg radio:

German men and women: When I addressed the German nation on May 1 telling it that the Fuehrer had appointed me his successor, I said that my foremost task was to save the lives of the German people. In order to achieve this goal, I ordered the German high command during the night May 6-7 to sign the unconditional surrender for all fronts.

On May 8 at 2300 hours (11 p. m.) the arms will be silent.

German soldiers, veterans of countless battles, are now treading the bitter path to captivity, and thereby making the last sacrifice for the life of our women and children, and for the future of our nation.

We bow to all who have fallen. I have pledged myself to the German people that in the coming times of want I will help courageous women and children, as far as I humanly can, to alleviate their conditions. Whether this will be possible I do not know.

We must face facts squarely. The unity of state and party does not exist any more. The party has left the scene of its activities.

With the occupation of Germany, the power has been transferred to the occupying authorities. It is up to them to confirm me in my function and the government I have appointed or decide whether to appoint a different one. Should I be required to help our Fatherland, I will remain at my post.

Should the will of the German people express itself in the appointment of a head of state, or should the powers of occupation make it impossible for me to continue in my office, remains to be seen.

Duty keeps me on my difficult post for the sake of Germany. I will not remain one hour more than can be reconciled with the dignity of the Reich. I will disregard my person in this matter.

All of us have to face a difficult path. We have to walk it with dignity, courage and discipline which those demand of us, who sacrificed their all for us. We must walk it by making the greatest efforts to create a firm basis for our future lives.

We will walk it unitedly. Without this unity we will not be able to overcome the misery of the times to come. We will walk it in the hope that one day our children may lead a free and secure existence in a peaceful Europe.

On this thorny path, which we all will have to tread, I will try to help you as much as is possible, should I remain at my post.

Should we succeed in going this way together, this step will be a service to the nation and to the Reich.

Last Straw in Nazi Collapse Was Soldiers' Refusal to Fight

Disclosure Made by German Delegates At Rheims Surrender Ceremony

The following dispatch from Rheims supplements yesterday's by Edward Kennedy which gave the first account of the German surrender. It is believed it is based on Mr. Kennedy's original dispatch, of which only about 300 words were received before communications were broken. A Rheims dispatch today said 17 correspondents, including Mr. Kennedy, were present at the surrender ceremony.

By the Associated Press.

RHEIMS, France, May 7 (Delayed by Censor.)—The last straw in German resistance came when commanders could not get German soldiers to fight, it was disclosed by the German delegates who came to Gen. Eisenhower's advance headquarters at Rheims early today to sign the instrument of surrender.

The negotiations on the Allied side were headed by Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Gen. Eisenhower's chief of staff, and on the German side by Gen. Gustav Jodl, chief of staff to the German Army.

The supreme commander himself did not see the German delegates until the surrender ceremony was completed.

When he did he asked the Germans sternly if they fully understood the terms of surrender and if they were prepared to carry them out. They said they were.

Gen. Jodl snapped to attention as Gen. Eisenhower laid aside the gold-topped fountain pen with which he signed the documents and said: "I want to say a word."

He spoke in English, but then continued in German, saying:

"General, with this signature, the people and German armed forces are, for better or worse, delivered into the victor's hands.

"In this war, which has lasted more than five years, both have achieved and suffered more than perhaps any other people in the world. In this hour I can only express the hope that the victor will treat them with generosity."

There was no reply to his remarks and he left the room.

It was a strange scene, almost drab and commonplace in view of the momentous nature of the occasion.

The room at Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters was in the red bricked Industrial College of Rheims. Around the walls were war maps on which the Germans could well see the hopelessness of the military situation.

In the center of the room was a plain uncovered and cracked table 20 feet long and 8 feet wide, painted gray. At the head of the table there were two empty chairs.

The delegates were seated as follows:

Lt. Gen. Sir Frederick E. Morgan, assistant chief of staff, intelligence.

Maj. Gen. Sevez, representing Gen. Juin, Gen. De Gaulles' chief of staff.

Admiral Sir Harold Burrough, commander of the Allied naval forces.

Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Allied chief of staff.

First Lt. Ivan Vherniaev, Russian interpreter.

Maj. Gen. of Artillery Ivan Susloparov, Russian chief of staff.

Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander United States Strategic Air Forces.

Air Marshal Sir J. M. Robb, chief of air staff.

Maj. Gen. H. R. Bull, assistant chief of staff operations.

Col. Ivan Zenkovitch, aide to Gen. Susloparov.

Maj. Gen. Wilhelm Oxenius, personal aide to Gen. Jodl.

Col. Gen. Jodl, German chief of staff.

Gen. Admiral Hans Geoge von Friedeburg, commander in chief of the German Navy.

Gen. Smith and Gen. Jodl sat opposite each other.

Nazis Wear Decocrations.

The Germans, except the admiral, who was in blue, wore gray green uniforms and full decorations.

They used the regular German military salute, not that of the Nazis.

It was a bare setting, brightened only by the blazing lights used by the photographers.

Each delegate had a pencil and a pad of paper before him. There were china ashtrays at each plate, but nobody smoked.

The documents had already been prepared on plain legal forms. There were four copies, all in plain manila folders, without ribbons, seals or trimmings. There was an air of austerity throughout the proceedings.

The actual signing was done with two gold-topped fountain pens which Gen. Eisenhower had kept for the purpose since the campaign in North Africa.

Little Unnecessary Talking.

There was little unnecessary conversation; the Russian and French delegates did not even speak.

Here are a few details of the last moments before the surrender.

Gen. Eisenhower arranged for the German representatives to be brought to Rheims on Saturday, May 5. The party consisted of Admiral Friedeburg and Col. Poleck, a supply expert. The party was unable to make the whole trip by air and, after landing at Brussels, continued by car.

Before leaving the party lunched at an RAF snack bar on spam sandwiches and Scotch ale. Admiral Friedeburg drank his directly out of the bottle and seemed to enjoy it.

In the car Admiral Friedeburg fell asleep almost immediately, but Col. Poleck looked out of the car window glumly.

Allies Give Terms.

At the beginning of this preliminary meeting Friedeburg was required to show his credentials and authority to represent Admiral Doenitz. It was clear, however, that he was not authorized to surrender.

The Allied chief of staff gave Friedeburg the terms of the supreme commander, which had already been drawn up.

Gen. Smith explained to Friedeburg the hopelessness of the German military position. The admiral expressed the fear that many German soldiers would be killed by the Russians unless they were allowed to surrender directly to the Allied armies in the west.

Gen. Smith showed no sympathy with this suggestion and declared that the Allies were not prepared to talk about anything but unconditional surrender to all the Allies.

Pubs Overflow, Firecrackers Pop, as London Celebrates V-E

LONDON, May 8—(AP) London's millions tossed aside the weariness of more than five years of war today, cheering themselves hoarse as Prime Minister Churchill officially proclaimed Germany's complete capitulation.

Carrying on the uproarious celebration that started yesterday with first news of the European war's end, tha for once unrestrained British jammed Whitehall, the Buckingham Palace area and Trafalgar Square and heard the Prime Minister's V-E day speech.

They carried flags. They wore flowers. They blew horns. They shook rattlers. They shouted and sang. They resembled nothing so much as an American football or circus crowd multiplied many times over.

In Trafalgar Square a sea of happy faces stretched from the base of Nelson's monument out of sight into the distant street intersections.

Fire crackers popped. Pubs overflowed, some even serving beer along the sidewalks.

The great city itself seemed to cheer with its people. Its horrible war scars were hidden by vast ribands of bunting and gaily flapping flags and banners.

There was a strong underlying current of solemnity to the fete. At bombed St. Paul's cathedral a noon victory service brought a swelling chorus of voices to the hymn "Now Thank We All Our God."

The service was very simple. There was no sermon. Prayers were offered for "the courage and endurance of all who have guarded this land from peril of invasion," and for restoration of order, health and civil life in Europe.

United Nations, replacing the victory bonfires that illuminated the skies of the ancient capital last night.

Throughout last night laughing, dancing, singing civilians, sailors and soldiers thronged the streets of London.

The scenes were repeated in towns and cities all over England. There was dancing and singing, too, in France, Belgium, the Netherlands and in Denmark.

Paris Celebrates.

For the first time in almost six years a battery of high-powered flood lamps illuminated the white columns of the Church of the Sacred Heart in Paris last night. Frenchmen stood in the gleaming light and sang "The Marseillaise."

Mingling amid the Parisian gayety were American doughboys parading with pretty French girls on their arms. Flying Fortresses overhead dropped flares and rockets went up all over the city.

The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes in Paris got out its victory edition. Les Nouvelles brought out a red, white and blue edition with the baner headline "La Guerre est Finie." Colored flags of France, the United States and Russia waved clear across the page and the Goddess of Liberty took up two full columns on the left side.

In London witnesses to the hilarity but no deterrent were the shattered buildings and gaping holes where buildings had been before Nazi bombs found their mark.

Piccadilly Jammed.

Thousands of the celebrators formed circles, waved flags and danced in jam-packed Piccadilly Circus.

Three British soldiers, two sailors and four airmen danced on top of a bus as it moved through the area, to the uproarous delight of the crowd.

American soldiers kissed English girls. They linked arms and joined the crowd singing "There Will Always Be an England."

Thousands who paraded to Buckingham Palace chanted "We want the King, we want the King." They saw the red carpet already flung over the royal balcony from which the King and Queen will receive homage today, but the royal couple failed to appear.

Other celebrants packed pubs and hotel bars. Dusty bottles of champagne, saved for the occasion, were brought up from cellars.

Lights in Windows.

Christmas tree lights outlined the windows of houses. Skyrockets soared into the skies. One bonfire flickered at a new cross that marked the place where a rocket bomb killed 170 people only a few months ago.

Tonight public houses and other licensed bars may remain open until midnight—an extra hour. Food shops will be opened for only a few hours and underground railways, central buses and trams will operate on Sunday schedules.

Both today and tomorrow will be holidays. Although London newspapers will publish today, afternoon papers will not publish tomorrow and morning papers will not publish on Thursday.

Londoners Celebrate Wildly, Undeterred By Gaping Buildings

HITLER'S BODY FOUND, RUMOR

Red General Said To Have Made Disclosure To British

MAY 9 1945

London, May 8 (AP)—Dispatches from the British 2d Army front said today a Russian general had disclosed that a body purported to be that of Adolf Hitler had been found by the Red Army troops in the ruins of Berlin.

The general was reported to have said that photographs taken of the body would be studied in Moscow.

There was no confirmation from the Soviet capital. Moscow dispatches said Russian troops still were combing the city for Hitler's body, which apparently had not been unearthed from a vast underground headquarters discovered in the area of the Reichschancellery, where the Germans said Hitler died May 1.

Pilugin Relates Report

During a meeting two days ago between Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, dispatches said, Russian officers asked Col. Anotoly Pilugin, Tass agency war correspondent attached to the British attached to the British 2d Army, whether the British believed Hitler was dead or alive.

Pilugin was said to have replied that there was mixed opinion and then a Russian general, whose identity Pilugin did not disclose, stated flatly that the Russians had found the body of a man identified as Hitler.

All Hitler's domestic help who fell into Russian hands reportedly viewed the body. All but one of the chauffeurs and maid-servants were said to have identified the dead man as Hitler.

Cook's Body, One Says

The one servant declared emphatically that the body was that of one of Hitler's cooks. The servant was said to have declared that he believed the "cook double," whom he knew intimately, had been assassinated while Hitler himself escaped.

The general was reported to have told Pilugin that bodies, supposedly of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and his wife and children, also had been discovered but Goebbels's was so badly burnt it was not recognizable.

Meanwhile, General Admiral Hans Georg Friedeburg, commander in chief of the Germar. Navy, told Allied officers after Germany's surrender in Reims that there was "no doubt about Hitler's death."

Himmler Flees To Denmark

He said Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler had fled for Denmark and probably was near Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz's command post in Flensburg.

In Moscow, the afternoon newspaper Bolshevik announced the discovery of Hitler's vast underground headquarters in Berlin. The entrance was through a concrete tower located in the courtyard of the Reichschancellery—the same courtyard in which many bodies of high Nazi officials were discovered earlier.

Not far from Hitler's personal rooms, the Russians found Goebbels's apartment. There they found a packed suitcase crammed with documents, including a detailed plan for the evacuation of Hitler from Berlin.

KING HAAKON STEADIES NORSE

MAY 9 1945

Warns Them Against Rash Acts at This Time.

London, May 8 (A. P.).—King Haakon VII cautioned his people of Norway today against "rash behavior," reminding them that the surrendered German occupation forces still are in the country.

"The state of war has not yet been repealed, but the armistice has come into force," the monarch said in a broadcast. "In the present situation it is more than ever necessary for every one to preserve that calm and behave in that dignified manner which has been the source of our people's strength during the whole period of occupation. Our difficulties are still not at an end."

The exiled government announced it would remain in London "for the time being." Five of its members, however, were authorized to proceed home and "take charge of the re-establishment of a legal civil administration."

Crown Prince Olaf, commander in chief of Norwegian forces, said he had placed them all at Gen. Eisenhower's disposal "in order that, together with Allied forces, they can engage in the task of disarming the Germans."

Prime Minister Johan Nygaardsvold said Norway's chief objective must be to restore the country and return to civil administration.

Leopold Liberated As Yanks Overpower German SS Troops

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 8.—Liberated by American troops after five years of Nazi imprisonment, Leopold III, King of the Belgians, today faced a future beset with uncertainty.

The 43-year-old monarch and his Queen—a commoner whom he married while a prisoner—were rescued by American 7th Army Doughboys who overpowered German SS (Elite Guard) troops guarding the royal party at Strobl, 8 miles east of Salzburg in Austria.

With the King and Queen were 18 members of their staff and their four children, three of the latter by his first wife, Queen Astrid, who died in an automobile accident in Switzerland in 1935.

A group of civilians had tipped the Doughboys off to the whereabouts of the royal entourage, and their liberation followed quickly.

Reports from Belgium have indicated that the King's homecoming would be received with mingled feelings by his countrymen.

Some Belgians resent bitterly the fact that King Leopold did not flee to an Allied haven, as did the Queen of the Netherlands. Some also think he should explain why he capitulated to the Nazis 18 days after they invaded Belgium.

The Belgian public was described about a week ago as in a high state of excitement over prospects of his return. The cabinet was prompted to issue a statement on April 28 that reports of his liberation were without foundation.

Most Belgians were said to be strongly in favor of a monarchy, but reported gaining ground was the suggestion that the King abdicate in favor of his heir, 14-year-old Prince Baudouin, with Prince Charles continuing as regent.

When Belgium was liberated the cabinet returned from its exile and with 15 days convened the prewar Parliament. In compliance with the constitution, Prince Charles was elected regent.

Leftist groups have been occupied with constitutional problems that will have to be dealt with if the King returns. Some assert it is up to Parliament to decide whether King Leopold is in a position to fulfill his constitutional duties.

London, May 8 (AP)—General de Gaulle, in a broadcast to the French people today, said the "victory of the Allied nations is the victory of France."

Stalin Remains Silent While Truman and Churchill Broadcast

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 8.—While Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman today announced the unconditional surrender of Germany, Premier Stalin remained silent.

Supreme Allied headquarters in Paris made it clear that the surrender was to all the Allies, but the Moscow radio was silent even after the historic news had been announced officially from 10 Downing street and the White House.

The only news on the surrender from Moscow's viewpoint was contained in a Romanian radio broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission. The radio quoted a Russian official news agency dispatch as saying the German capitulation was an accomplished fact and that Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky probably would sign it in Berlin on behalf of Russia.

Allies Told to Halt Offensive Operations

By the Associated Press.

MAY 9 1945

LONDON, May 8.—Supreme Allied headquarters in a special communique today said "Allied expeditionary forces have been ordered to cease offensive operations, but will maintain their present position until the surrender becomes effective."

Headquarters announced the Germans agreed to:

Order all resistance halted; yield all ships and aircraft unscuttled and undamaged; insure compliance with all further orders from the Allied supreme commander and the Soviet high command.

The surrender document specified that nothing it contained limited or restricted any terms which might later be imposed on the Reich.

"In the event of the German high command or any of the forces under their control failing to act in accordance with this act of surrender," it warned, "the supreme commander * * * and the Soviet high command will take such punitive or other action as they deem appropriate."

British King Sends Message to Truman

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 8.—In a congratulatory message to President Truman, King George expressed confidence today that the spirit of comradeship developed between Britain and the United States "will continue not only until Japan has been finally defeated, but also in the years to come."

"With the cessation of hostilities on the continent, I hasten to send to you, Mr. President, my warmest congratulations on the attainment of victory over our common foe in Europe," the King said. "It is my earnest prayer that the day of final victory may not be far distant."

The message to Mr. Truman was one of 16 sent by the King to the heads of various states and governments.

Spaatz Says USAAF Will Be Hurled At Japs

London, May 8 (AP)—Now that Germany is defeated the United States Army Air Force will devote its "full attention to the concentration of all available air power against the Japanese Empire." Gen. Carl A. Spaatz said today in a radio address to America.

Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle, commander of the United States 8th Air Force, spoke on the same program with the commander in chief of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe. Doolittle said: "Now that the war in Europe is over, I know they will go on to that other war in the same spirit, with the same unflinching courage and with the same results."

fiasco of all time."

"Through no fault of censorship, which must obey higher orders," he wrote, "I cannot even tell you whether the war is over or not—and coming from Supreme Headquarters tonight, I suppose that's pretty funny."

The correspondent said that "while peace news is being broadcast all over the world, the British and American newspaper men's copy still lies here, pending the permission of officials.

"Even in their defeat the Germans can laugh at us for our confusion. For those who have been abroad on war stories since 1938 and 1939 this is the final humiliation.

"It is a pity that SHAEF lacks the courage of Lord Nelson, who put his telscope to his blind eye. The only advantage they seem to have over Nelson is that they are more at sea."

German Tears and Hunger Mark War Tattered Berlin

(John Groth, veteran 37-year-old artist and war correspondent, wrote this story after a visit to Berlin the day it fell. He had last visited Berlin in 1934, when Hitler staged his Nazi blood purge. Groth's correspondent's accreditation has been suspended by supreme headquarters since his return from Berlin to the American-held area, but the censorship embargo on his story was lifted with Tuesday's official announcement of the German surrender.)

BERLIN, Thursday, May 3—(AP) Hitler's legacy—the broken, smoking chaos of Berlin—sprawls under the vivid banners of the Red army today. German tears and hunger mark the end of the Nazi empire.

We entered the once-arrogant capital of the European new order at 1:30 p.m., in a dusty jeep mixed in with trucks of a Russian convoy returning from the west.

Russian storm troops were crushing the SS remnants in the last hour of battle in the shell-torn waste of the Tiergarten.

For miles around that tiny pocket of resistance stretched lifeless mounds of debris of what had been a city of 4,000,000.

Tempelhof airdrome, once the hub of a continent's airways, was a skeleton of hangars and terminal buildings, with the gray-winged planes of the Luftwaffe scattered beyond in drooping postures like wounded birds.

Dreary Rain Falls

Slowly plodding past us on the Berliner Strasse came long lines of Soviet horse-drawn transports. The drivers looked like nomads from the steppes of central Asia. There was a dreary rain falling from an overcast sky—appropriate for this Teutonic Gotterdaemerung.

Smashed, overturned street cars showed where enemy barricades had been conquered in turn by the Russian assault that days earlier had moved from the Berliner Strasse north of Belle Alliance Strasse. It was the only clear way into the city from the south.

A demolished bridge at Bleucher Platz forced our jeep to make a detour. But a block away we found a temporary wooden span over which a great stream of sedans flowed, each carrying Red officers intent on a sightseeing tour through the heart of Berlin just as Americans had toured Paris.

I had to inquire of a German civilian in order to identify Belle-Alliance Platz, which I once knew well, with the streets radiating from it unrecognizable as streets. They were heaps of almost mountainous rubble.

German women, children and old men were clearing paths under the guard of Russian tommygunners and riflemen. There are no young German men left. Civilians moved abjectly, picking up bricks by hand.

We threaded a narrow lane between walls of debris, going several blocks before we saw a sign we were on the Wilhelmstrasse. Some hulks of buildings still were afire.

One building collapsed just as we crossed the Leipziger Strasse. Kaiserhof, the former palatial home of Nazi mouthpiece Paul Joseph Goebbels, still stood.

The scarred walls and a hillock of muddy masonry of the Reichschancellery on the left side of Wilhelm Platz still smelled of battle. Empty windows gaped in the fire-scorched facade. Part of the roof had fallen in.

Three Red flags flew over this seat of government for the Reich that Hitler predicted would last 1,000 years. A mammoth black and white photograph of Premier Marshal Stalin had been hung by his proud troops on one of the chancellery's walls. A defaced picture of Hitler could still be seen.

We asked some Russian officers whether their search yet had produced Hitler's body. They said they only knew what the Moscow radio had reported about his alleged death.

Our Soviet allies seemed very elated about the fact that American and British bombers had wreaked such great destruction upon Berlin before the Red army's assault.

Welcomed as Comrades

They threw their arms around us and welcomed us as "comrades." Many others, however, exhausted by long hours of battle, dozed in their vehicles parked along the street.

They had foraged bottles with which to celebrate the victory.

There were 14 dead horses and eight knocked-out vehicles from Wilhelm Platz to Unter Den Linden. Rubble heaps seemed higher as we approached that once stately boulevard.

You could smell death. There were bodies under the wreckage.

Turning left into Unter Den Linden I looked first for the horses drawing a chariot atop the Brandenburg gate. All but one of the horses were flat, as though a shell had hit them. To the left of the gate the Hotel Adlon was full of holes, like a Swiss cheese.

Unter Den Linden, where Hitler held his victory parades, was a mass of twisted vehicles. Up the stret came a bedraggled group of prisoners and Germans carrying stretchers with bodies on them. Everywhere German men and women were sweeping and cleaning under the eyes of the Russians. The street itself was strewn with land mines dug up by the victorious army's sappers.

Russian officers and Russian marines were photographing each other in groups beside the Brandenburg gate, which had a long anti-tank block built into it. Beyond were the sound of machine gun and rifle fire and occasional grenade explosions.

I climbed over the block and went into Hindenburg Platz, and there were Russian tanks and infantry moving west toward the Tiergarten area north of Charlottenburger Chausse where the firing was going on. On my right the old Reichstag had three large red banners flying above it.

The Reichstag itself was a complete wreck.

Back of Uter Den Linden I stood and made sketches of the German civilians cleaning up the rocks.

Some guards were Russian Wacs. All traffic corners had smartly dressed Wacs with flags directing traffic. They were dressed in boots, blouse, skirts very smartly fitted and wore berets. They carried guns. It seemed out of place for them to be with guns. They were not at all friendly toward German women.

We went up Unter Den Linden. Every building was ruined, testifying to the fury of the air force. I went to the Lustgarten, passing many 88's, some of which were intact, and several burned out Russian and German tanks. I was not able to recognize any of the buildings aside from the tomb of the unknown soldier and that only because of the columns in front.

It was the worst destruction I have seen since St. Lo.

I did not recognize the state theater. It was a shell and the huge canopy was broken. On the Lustgarten the cathedral top had been sheared off, like the top of a hardboiled egg.

The old museum facing it was on fire.

In front of the Schloss museum statues were lying around like dead Germans.

An impassable road block forced me back, winding among butterfly mines, rocks, fire and bricks to the Friedrickstrasse and north of it past buildings still on fire which heated the street like an oven. Ashes were falling on the jeep.

I stopped at the Friedrickstrasse station, a frequent bombing target. The huge ceiling of the station was broken. From there I went up across the Spree river where the bridge was intact. But other bridges up and down the river were smashed. Standing on the bridge and looking north toward the Hermes hotel where I stayed in 1934 I could see my old room had been ripped out by a shell.

Beg for Bread

Returning down Friedrickstrasse I saw Germans scrambling for burned potatoes lying in the street. Berliners seemed hungry and begged for bread when they saw my vehicle was American.

I crossed Unter Den Linden again and turned on Behrenstrasse, but was stopped by a wall of rubble. I went back to Friedrickstrasse again. I asked a German woman bending under a bag on her back "which way is Potsdamerplatz." She burst into tears and ran away.

I finally followed wagon trains going out of the city.

The only people standing in the streets were Russian soldiers. The only civilians I saw were walking quickly or working. Coming across Germany with the American and British armies I saw many Germans smiling, but I saw only tears in Berlin.

REPORT HIMMLER GONE TO DENMARK

MAY 9 1945

REIMS, France, May 8—(AP) Adm. Hans Georg Von Friedeburg, German negotiator in the unconditional surrender, said Heinrich Himmler had gone to Denmark and probably was near Admiral Doenitz' command post in Flensburg.

He said there was no doubt about Adolf Hitler's death but he did not state whether the body had been cremated or buried.

All Germany is in chaos, he said, with all transportation within Germany at a standstill for weeks, Denmark choked with millions of displaced persons and 1,000,000 wounded soldiers and civilians crowded into hospitals and houses in the Schleswig-Holstein peninsula. No anaesthetics or even enough paper for bandages are available, he said.

DOENITZ LAUNCHED SURRENDER TALKS

Reims, France, May 8 (A. P.).—Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz went to the Danish-German frontier after taking over the German state and soon made overtures from Flensburg to surrender through his emissaries, it can now be disclosed.

After Denmark, Holland and northwest Germany were surrendered, Flensburg—which has become the headquarters of the German High Command—was in the peculiar position of having been surrendered and being surrounded by Allied troops while still the command post. The city of 62,000 is close to the Danish frontier.

The Germans were left alone within the limits of the town and a telephone line was established between Field Marshal Montgomery's Twenty-first Army Group headquarters and Doenitz's office. The German radio at Flensburg remained operating and through it, Hitler's successor on Sunday asked Germans everywhere to refrain from destroying vital installations. Yesterday, the German High Command used the Flensburg station to inform the beaten Reich of its unconditional surrender and also to order all German ships at sea to sail into port.

HOW ...ST ARMY MARKS V-E DAY

MAY 9 1945

Brooklynite Voices Reaction of Those Who Won War.

By DON WHITEHEAD.

With the First Army, May 8 (A. P.).—Among the men who won the victory in Europe there was a strange apathy today to the official announcement that the war had ended.

It was warm, the sun shone and no guns thundered. It seemed unreal and the men who had been in combat could hardly realize it was over even though the fighting for them had been ended for several days and they knew that Germany had collapsed.

"This is the day we looked forward to for a long time," said Corp. Julian Emig of Brooklyn, N. Y. "Now that it's here we don't want to do any of the things we planned. A year ago we were all planning how we would get drunk on V-E day. Now look at us, doing the same things we did before."

There was only a simple ceremony at First Army Headquarters. The American flag was raised over the headquarters for the first time on the Continent by military police, who then lowered it to half staff in accordance with regulations on the thirty-day period of mourning for the late President Roosevelt.

Doughboys sat along the west bank of the Mulde River discussing their chances of getting home before going to the Pacific, for most soldiers feel their next move will be to fight the Japs.

Across the river the Russians were moving in to occupy German territory up to the boundaries set in agreements reached between the Soviet Union, the United States and Britain.

G. I.s Find Italian Gold

Cache Valued Between 5 and 15 Million Uncovered in Tyrol

WITH AMERICAN FORCES ON THE AUSTRIAN BORDER, May 6 (Delayed) (AP).—In a fantastic "liberation" roundup through the Italian Tyrol, American soldiers in the last two days have uncovered an assortment of articles—the gold reserve of the Bank of Italy, a two-year supply of German ammunition, and fabulous art treasures the Nazis had cached away in Alpine hideouts.

(A Rome disatch said the gold was valued between $5,000,000 and $15,000,000, and the art objects "in the millions.")

Then there have been other things—a large amount of machinery, believed to have been snatched from factories in Milan and Turin, and, very important to the G. I.s, twenty-five cases of old Peier Heidsick champagne. The G. I.s who discovered the champagne are keeping pretty quiet about it, however.

Seyss-Inquart Arrested

With the Canadian 1st Army, Holland, May 8 (AP)—Arthur Seyss-Inquart, German Commissioner for the Netherlands, was placed under arrest today by the Canadian 1st Army. He faces war-crimes charges.

Montgomery Tells Russian Of War's End

Wismar, Germany, May 7 [AP—Delayed]—On the steps of a three-story brown stucco house which once belonged to the Gauleiter of this little Baltic port, Field Marshal Montgomery sprang the news on Soviet Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky today that the war had ended.

The two army commanders were going through the formalities of making welcome speeches to each other and posing for photographers when Montgomery, through an interpreter, surprised Rokossovsky with the information.

The 2d White Russian Army commander broke into smiles and grabbed Montgomery's hand vigorously while Russian generals lined up behind the two leaders, chatted and laughed excitedly.

Body of Hitler Found in Berlin, Russian Says

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE BRITISH 2D ARMY, May 8.—Col. Anotoly Pilugin, war correspondent of Tass, official Soviet news agency, says a Russian general had stated that the body of a man identified as Adolf Hitler had been found in the ruins of Berlin.

During a meeting two days ago between Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky of the 2d White Russian Army, Col. Pilugin said the Russian general stated that the Reds had found in Berlin the bullet-torn and battered body of a man identified as Hitler. He did not disclose the identity of the general.

NO CELEBRATING BY NINTH ARMY

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WITH THE A.E.F. IN GERMANY, May 8—(AP) This is one of the most futile days I've spent in two years of war reporting.

I've been hunting for reaction to V-E day. There isn't any on this Ninth Army front.

Our radios have been blaring out news of celebrating in London, New York, and elsewhere. Surely it seemed there should be some signs of such a celebration here—on the front itself.

But a lone soldier lying lazily in the sun described it all.

"It don't mean a damn thing," he said when assured he would not be quoted by name. He said he wanted anonymity "because my wife would kill me after all, it's a big day back home."

He then enlarged upon his sentiments in slow, sleepy sentences.

"We've known it was coming. We've known it wouldn't affect what would happen to us immediately. Hell, we celebrated more men when we pulled out of the line 10 days ago, because we knew it was over as far as we were concerned then. Man, we've left too many guys behind us to feel like hell-raising today."

But still, Sgt. Robert K. Harrison, former Knoxville, Tenn., Journal police reporter, and I kept looking for reaction. The nearest we came to it was Lt. Harry R. Peters of Hollis, N. Y. His reaction was simply an awareness of his lack of reaction—because Harry was an infantryman overseas when the last war ended, and he realized the difference between then and now.

"Then it came sudden-like, and then it represented everything," he said.

G. I.s' V-E Day Reaction: 'It Don't Mean a Thing'

Says 9th Army Lost Too Many to Feel Like 'Hell-Raising'

WITH THE A. E. F. IN GERMANY, May 8 (AP).—There isn't any reaction to V-E Day on this 9th Army front.

THIRD ARMY FIRES LAST AMERICAN SHOT AT GERMANS

By EDWARD D. BALL

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY, May 8—(AP) The U. S. Third army, firing the final shot against the Germans on the western front, was told by Gen. Patton today: "We have ahead of us a hard, bitter campaign against the Japanese."

"The same, invincible fighting spirit displayed in Europe," he said in a message to his troops, "will be carried to the Pacific and will hasten the day of victory in the Pacific war."

Patton wound up the war in command of the biggest army in American history—12 infantry and six armored divisions totalling 500,000 men.

His army—the last in action of the western armies—spent the last day bagging 50,000 Germans who came in of their own accord, and in firing sporadic shots at isolated units which had not heard the news. The latter gave up after brief exchanges.

The final shot was fired by the 80th infantry division before the "cease fire" order was issued by Patton at 8 a.m.

The front last night was aflame in celebration from end to end. Bonfires blazed across the picturesque Bohemian landscape. Multi-colored flares blazed skyward, ack-ack batteries pencilled the moonless night with millions of red tracers.

The main supply routes, where only faintly glowing lights like cat's eyes had been permitted, looked like Hendrik Hudson parkway. Headlights were turned on full tilt and the blackout forgotten.

Chaplains held Thanksgiving services today, or were making arrangements for them. There was but one thought—home—in the minds of everybody.

British Control Commission Gets Warm Welcome In Oslo

Oslo, Norway, May 8 (AP)—An Allied Control Commission for Norway arrived in Oslo in British flying boats shortly before nightfall tonight in the midst of Norway's celebration of her liberation.

After five years of German occupation, Norway's reception of freedom was fervent but peaceful, although there were unofficial reports that Vidkun Quisling, Premier of the Nazi puppet government, and Josef Terboven, German Commissioner for Norway, had been seized by the home front.

Crown Prince Expected

Huge crowds jammed Oslo's main squares hoping to see the members of the control commission, whose chief has not yet been identified. The people also were excited by rumors that Crown Prince Olav also might arrive by plane.

Twenty-four hours after the news of unconditional German surrender had reached the populace there was no report of any shooting either in the capital or elsewhere.

Oslo's inhabitants, however, participated in day-long demonstrations, marching and cheering.

Norwegian flags, never displayed during the occupation, were flying everywhere.

Many Norwegians In Tears

Jubilant crowds greeted Allied and neutral correspondents who traveled to the capital by train from the Swedish frontier. Many of the people lined along the railway were crying openly. At every crossing, every farmhouse and every village and town the joyous people sang over and over again their national anthem. "Yes, we love our country."

Quisling—whose name became a part of the English language as a synonym for treason—was reported at patriot headquarters to have been surprised on his estate near Oslo at 3 A.M. and interned by homefront guards. The same report said Terboven was taken at the same time. Neither report was official.

Roundup Of Traitors On

The homefront, which carried on an underground battle throughout the occupation, was known to have started a full-scale roundup of quislings, but apparently there was no hurry about this procedure. It seemed to be taken for granted that there was no place for the Nazis to flee.

Rumors spread through Oslo streets that British warships were anchored in the Oslo Fjord, and the people expected that a welcome British force would land and march into the capital.

Internees May Leave Sweden

Stockholm, May 8 (AP)—Almost 400 military internees, including 215 American flyers who made forced landings in Sweden, may leave the country as soon as the Allies arrange transportation for them, Swedish authorities announced tonight.

GUSTAV SENDS HAAKON MESSAGE

Stockholm, May 8 (A. P.).—King Gustav dispatched the following V-E Day message to King Haakon of Norway last night:

"On the day of Norway's liberation I send your Majesty, the royal family and the whole Norwegian people my warmest regards. At the same time I express the feeling of great joy and relief which the whole Swedish nation felt upon hearing the happy message of today.

"A. Scandinavia is free again and we expect hopefully a future of Scandinavian cooperation and brotherly confidence."

Swedes Break Ties With Germany and Mark End of War

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, May 8.—Neutral Stockholm severed diplomatic relations with Germany last night as crowds danced in the streets in celebration of the end of the European war.

The break with Germany was announced by the Foreign Ministry in a brief statement which declared the government was assuming custody of the German Legation, consulates and other buildings.

Celebration over the news of Germany's capitulation were the most boisterous ever seen in this usually undemonstrative capital. Stockholm's Broadway, the Kungsgatan, was completely blocked with celebrators.

Some of the demonstrators stoned the offices of the German Tourist Bureau, provoking cheers from the crowds.

King Gustav sent messages to all the liberated nations of Europe expressing his "warm hopes" for the years to come and "to the great nations which have given their blood for this liberation."

STOCKHOLM, May 8 (AP).—Celebrations over the news of Germany's capitulation were the most boisterous ever seen in this usually undemonstrative capital. BRITISH FLEETS OFF NORSE PORTS

Stockholm, May 8 (A. P.).—The newspaper Aftonbladet said today a British fleet was at anchor ten miles from Oslo.

An Aftonbladet correspondent who went to Oslo during the night returned to Sweden today in order to telephone one of the first eyewitness reports of the fleet's arrival.

A British fleet has been sighted sailing into Trondheim Fjord and is expected to reach Trondheim tomorrow, the BBC, quoting the Norwegian Telegraph Service, broadcast tonight. This news was linked with acounts of the German Norwegian commander's broadcast to his troops telling them to stand ready to surrender. NBC heard the British broadcast.

Oslo radio announced tonight that the blackout is lifted throughout Norway immediately, ABSIE radio reported in a broadcast recorded by CBS.

HITLER'S HIDE-OUT IN BERLIN FOUND

Moscow, May 8 (A. P.).—A front dispatch said today that the Russians had uncovered a vast underground headquarters in Berlin used by Adolf Hitler, but that the search for the bodies of the Fuehrer and his Propaganda Minister Goebbels continued in vain. A dispatch to the newspaper Moscow Bolshevik said that the entrance to the elaborate hideaway was through a concrete tower situated in the Reichschancellery courtyard, where the bodies of many high Nazis who had committed suicide were discovered.

A narrow door in the tower led to Hitler's den, far below ground. There the Russ found a hideout of several floors, comfortably equipped with electrical heaters, stoves, fans, indirect lighting—everything to make the Fuehrer comfortable.

Other rooms served as garages, with special entrances into a long tunnel which led to a street far from the Chancellery. One room was a kitchen, electrically equipped. The kitchen contained huge stores of food, and its closets were stocked with Bavarian beer and delicacies from all over plundered Europe.

Breslau a Skeleton

Moscow, May 8 (A. P.).—Front dispatches indicated today that the Red Army's prisoner bag in the capture of long besieged Breslau, capital of lower Silesia, would reach almost 50,000.

Front dispatches said the city was in ruins, after a siege of eighty-two days.

"Breslau caught fire in February, and it lasted the whole of March and April, and even now clouds of heavy smoke are over the city," said an Izvestia dispatch. "Huge buildings have become piles of rubble from which iron beams stand out like the bones of a skeleton."

As Day Dawned in Moscow.

Moscow, May 8 (A. P.).—The Russian people at 7 A. M. (Moscow time) today did not yet know of the impending V-E day announcement. The Moscow radio, which brings the people its first news at 6 A. M., led off with the regular Soviet communique and the rest of the broadcast was devoted largely to a current war loan campaign.

"We are on the verge of some great event," was the way one Muscovite put it this morning. "I can feel it."

20,000 Followers Of Mihailovich Stream Into Italy

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE 8th ARMY, Northern Italy, May 6 (delayed).—About 20,000 men, women and children from the tattered army of Gen. Draja Mihailovich, a mixture of regular Yugoslav Army soldiers and Cheteniks, began streaming into an Italian concentration camp south of Udine yesterday.

They posed a perplexing postwar problem.

In farm wagons, on motorcycles, in broken-down German vehicles and on foot they came into the British 8th Army lines with all their arms, after a fearful trek which started more than six months ago when Russian troops entered Serbia.

Gen. Mihailovich—King Peter's war minister when the German's invaded Yugoslavia—was not with them, but officers said they believed he, too, would soon come out. (Marshal Tito, leader of the Yugoslav Army of Liberation and head of the present provisional government, has repeatedly accused Mihailovich of aiding the Germans—a charge Mihailovich has hurled back at Tito.)

Three Divisions in Trek.

On the trek from Serbia, three divisions represented here — the Shumadiska, Dinarska and Litschka divisions—fought in turn against the Germans, against Marshal Tito's Partisans and against Croatia's Fascist Ustachi troops.

One lieutenant said 3,000 persons died of hunger, typhus and smallpox in Bosnia.

Fifty-two officers died of typhus, he said.

These weary travelers were loud and apparently unanimous in their hatred of Tito.

"We want our king to return immediately and Tito doesn't," one of them said bitterly.

Troops Loyal to King.

Most of the troops wore the crown insignia of the regular prewar Yugoslav army. Others wore only the Chetnik insignia with skull and crossbones.

Gen. Damjanovic of Mihailovich's staff came out with the troops and was believed to have been in conference with Allied military leaders on the delicate problems involved.

Some of the refugee troops expressed themselves as opposed to any return to a Yugoslavia which would be controlled by Tito. A propaganda official attached to Mihailovich's army declared that Tito had set up "a military dictatorship" in Yugoslavia. He warned against "bolshevization of all Europe and eventually America." His statement was given in German, since his audience did not speak Serbian.

MUSSOLINI'S WIDOW SEIZED

Held In Custody With Two Children At Monte Catini

MAY 9 1945

With the U.S. 5th Army at the Italian-Austrian Frontier, May 8 (AP)—Signora Rachele Mussolini, widow of il Duce, was taken into custody five days ago somewhere in northern Italy, it was learned tonight.

Two of the Mussolini children, not identified by name, were also picked up and taken with her to Monte Catini, west of Florence, but no other information was immediately available.

Vittorio Reported Seized

An unconfirmed report said Vittorio Mussolini, a son, had been seized near the Swiss border. Neither army nor partisan sources were able to confirm this report, nor say whether he might have been one of the children taken into custody with his mother.

Signora Mussolini was reported recently to have made a futile attempt to enter Switzerland with a younger son, Romano, shortly before Benito Mussolini himself was captured and executed by partisans.

Couple Had 5 Children

The Mussolinis had five children. The eldest, Countess Edda Ciano, took refuge in Switzerland with her three children in January, 1944, at the time Count Ciano was executed by the Fascist Government of northern Italy for treason in the overthrow of his father-in-law from the Italian dictatorship.

One son, Capt. Bruno Mussolini, was killed in 1941 in the explosion of a new bomber he was testing.

Besides Vittorio and Romano, there also is a daughter, Anna Maria.

NAZIS BEGIN MARCH FROM ALL DENMARK

Copenhagen, May 8 (A. P.).—Nearly 300,000 German troops today started the homeward march from all Denmark in miles-long columns along the main roads. The Germans transported their luggage on wheel barrows, parambulators and other makeshift vehicles.

Before their departure they burned official papers and blew up all hand grenades. All their weapons are being left at the border.

Nazis on Baltic Isle Fire on Red Planes

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—German antiaircraft batteries on the Danish Baltic island of Bornholm blasted away at Russian planes yesterday, and the Soviet airmen dropped bombs which caused damage and casualties.

(The Swedish Telegraph Agency said the bombs fell on the towns of Ronne and Neksoe on the island, in the Baltic just off the southern tip of Sweden. An undetermined number of persons were killed and injured, the agency added.

Meanwhile, a new wave of enthusiasm over the German surrender was touched off in the Danish capital. A convoy of Field Marshal Montgomery's armored trucks and cars 12 miles long crossed the Danish border last night.

Christmas Moeller, new Foreign Minister, arrived by air from London in time for King Christian's first state council in two years.

Total casualties from shootings in Copenhagen which accompanied the country's liberation mounted to 83 dead and 643 wounded.

BELGIAN FASCIST LANDS IN SPAIN

San Sebastian, Spain, May 8 (A. P.).—Leon de Grelle, Belgian Fascist leader, and five companions landed on a beach here today after a plane trip from North Germany. The identity of the five men with De Grelle was not learned immediately, but it was believed they were German. All were interned by the Spanish pending investigation.

Two of the plane's occupants were injured slightly when it crashed while landing on the beach near the hear. of San Sebastian. Spanish authorities here said De Grelle, like Pierre Laval, would be held for disposition by the United Nations.

Spain Severs Relations, Takes Over Reich Property

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said relations ceased through the disappearance of the German government.

Dodecanese Islands Nazi Garrison Gives Up

Cairo, Egypt, May 8 (AP)—One of the Germans' most farflung points of isolated resistance disappeared today when General Wagener, commander of 10,000 troops in the Dodecanese Islands, surrendered to a British brigadier.

The surrender took place at Simi Island. This leaves Crete as the only German outpost in the Mediterranean.

NAVY GUNS POUND JAPS ON OKINAWA

MAY 9 1945

Six Japanese Vessels Sunk as Bitter Fighting Continues on Island.

ERICKSON

GUAM, Wednesday, May 9 —(AP) Ranging to Korea and Honshu, naval aircraft sank six Japanese ships, including a small freighter-transport, and damaged 13 small ships and fishing vessels yesterday and Monday.

Meantime, battleships and cruisers turned their heavy guns, ranging from 5-inchers and 14 and probably 16-inch rifles, on Japanese positions guarding the southern Okinawa defense line. They destroyed gun emplacements, some artillery weapons and mortars, fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in today's communique.

Adverse weather limited ground operations yesterday and there were "no substantial changes" in either the Marine or Army lines.

Nimitz said 14,000 tons of shipping were sunk and 3,500 tons damaged by search planes of fleet air wing one which discovered concentrations of shipping in coastal waters off Korea.

The fleet's heaviest bombardment ships, battle-wagons and cruisers with their heavy, long range guns were used a second successive day to pour their devastating shells into Japanese positions on southern Okinawa. American ground forces have been held at a virtual standstill there for several days although two of the three army divisions which originally began the southward push on D-day, April 1, have been relieved by relatively fresh outfits.

Nimitz said the navy's surface craft fired several hundred rounds of illumination shells over the front throughout Monday night "which effectively reduced the enemy's attempts at infiltration."

This would indicate that the Japanese, convinced of their eventual defeat despite the strength of their fortifications, had determined to attempt suicidal infiltrations in great number to kill or cripple as many Yanks as possible rather than surrender. This has been their policy on every central and far western Pacific island when trapped.

Okinawa Yanks Gain, Kill Japs at Rate Of 1,000 Each Day

By the Associated Press.

GUAM, May 8.—American Doughboys and Marines, killing Japanese at the rate of 1,000 a day, pressed relentlessly forward on the stubbornly contested Southern Okinawa front today. Flame-throwing tanks were burning the way.

In five weeks of fighting, the Yanks have killed 36,535 Japanese, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported today. American losses up to last Thursday were 2,337 killed, 11,432 wounded and 514 missing. At this ratio 15 Japanese were killed for every American.

Infantrymen of the 77th Division, scaling precipitous heights with wooden ladders and ship cargo nets, took a high escarpment near the center of the line in a 400-yard advance yesterday. From here they began clearing the southern slope in a downhill drive toward Shuri, second city of Okinawa, about a mile away.

Marines Advance.

Nearby on the west the 1st Marine Division gained about 300 yards to the outskirts of Dakeshi village. The 7th Infantry Division on the east coast advanced an equal distance, but ran into considerable machine-gun and small arms fire near Gaja village.

The Marines reported finding two women in Japanese uniforms dead in front of their lines. Earlier in the Okinawa campaign five similarly uniformed women were killed attacking an artillery post.

Heavy guns of naval vessels destroyed numerous blockhouses, pillboxes and other installations in support of the ground advance. Carrier and land-based planes tore into enemy positions.

Jap Planes Over Island.

A few Japanese planes were over the Okinawa area yesterday but no damage was reported. American aircraft, however, ranged deep into Japanese home waters. Naval planes sank or damaged nine good-sized freighters and tankers off Korea and three coastal cargo ships south of Honshu.

Marine pilots downed three Japanese fighters northwest of Okinawa.

Meanwhile, there was general elated satisfaction here over news of victory in Europe. One soldier remarked: "Well, now it's Japan against the world." Another commented: "This has been a secondary war for a long time, but now we have the big show."

B-29'S OVER KYUSHU FIND NO OPPOSITION

Campaign to Knock Out Enemy Air Bases Shows Effect— Tokyo Reports New Blow

MAY 9 1945

GUAM, May 8 (AP)—Crews returning from today's B-29 attack on Kyushu reported an utter lack of air opposition and no anti-aircraft fire, indicating the effectiveness of the campaign to knock out enemy air bases on that southern Japanese homeland island.

Targets of the attack, the eighteenth on Kyushu since March 27, were identified as industrial areas in the cities of Miyakonojo and Imabari and the Oitu and Kokubu airfields.

All planes of the "substa... raiding force returned to the... bases in the Marianas.

Kyushu is the enemy's main starting base for the continued air attacks on American invasion forces at Okinawa, 325 miles southwestward.

About sixty-five to seventy American Mustang fighters from Iwo, "led by a few B-29's," attacked "airfields and munitions factories" in the vicinity of Tokyo around noon yesterday (Japanese time), according to various Tokyo voice and wireless emissions recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

According to a Tokyo domestic broadcast, about fifty Mustangs carried out a strafing and bombing attack on airfields and munition factories "in the Chiba area" east of Tokyo between 11:35 A. M. and 12:10 P. M., while another group struck at the "Kisarazu area" in southern Chiba prefecture in a similar attack.

"Another unit of P-51's, consisting of about five, penetrated over the capital city but did not attempt to attack," the broadcast said. It said that the Mustang formations over Honshu had been "led" by a "few B-29's" flying at a "considerable height," but failed to specify where these Superfortresses had struck.

Meanwhile the Japanese Domei agency reported that a "concentrated attack" had been made on the Cape Asizuri area of southwestern Shikoku by an "undetermined number" of Superfortresses about 6:50 A. M. yesterday (Japanese time). It said that between 7:30 and 8:30 A. M. another force of twelve B-29's had raided the "northern Kochi area" on the south coast of the island.

In acknowledging the raids on Kyushu previously announced by the Twentieth Air Force, Domei said that five Superfortresses had carried out "blind bombings from above the clouds" over Oita city on the northeastern coast for an hour, beginning at 7:30 A. M. yesterday, while another unit of nine B-29's made a similar attack on Miyakonojo and Miyazaki in the southeastern part of the island.

Another B-29, the Tokyo radio said in a domestic broadcast, dropped bombs on "the Omura area" in western Kyushu about 8 A. M. yesterday after "penetrating" the Nagasaki district.

B-29s Bomb Kyushu 18th Time, Blasting Airfields and Industry

By the Associated Press.

GUAM, May 8. — Kyushu, southernmost of Japan's home islands, was bombed for the 18th time today. Nearly 50 Super Fortresses blasted key airfields and industrial areas in the campaign which began March 27 to neutralize Japan's defense against the Okinawa invasion.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, said in a broadcast that about 70 Iwo Jima-based Mustang fighter planes bombed and strafed airfields on Boso Peninsula south of Tokyo today in a raid lasting an hour.

Bombing through overcast with percision instruments, the B-29s dropped their loads at Kokubu and Oita Airfields and industrial areas in the towns of Imabari and Miyakonojo. Results were unobserved.

It was the second strike in two days. Super Forts yesterday cratered four enemy airfields against heavy enemy opposition. Two planes were lost.

Lt. Clifford Kimless of Long Island, N. Y., saw eight hangars on Usa Airfield "blasted right off the map." He bagged two enemy fighters of 40 which attacked his plane.

All U.S. Guns Fire V-E Salvo at Japs

GUAM, May 8—(AP) All American naval and artillery weapons within range of Japanese troops on southern Okinawa fired a single charge simultaneously at noon today in celebration of the end of the European war.

The news was broadcast to all patients at field hospitals.

Japs In Mindanao Fighting Harder

Manila, Wednesday, May 9 (AP)—Stiffened Japanese resistance around captured Davao on Mindanao Island was reported by Gen. Douglas MacArthur today. Twenty-fourth Division Yanks were forced back by Japanese counterattacks.

This was the first report of any serious fighting since the second invasion of Mindanao April 17.

Richard Bergholz, Associated Press correspondent, reported that a strong force of Japanese penetrated the thin American lines to establish defenses running from the Libby airdrome southwest across the Talomo River, partially isolating one battalion which had taken the village of Mintal.

Few Reinforcements Arrive

A few reinforcements were reaching the battalion over a little used trail.

Japanese artillery was shelling Yank positions near the Libby airfield. The American hold on the field was tenacious.

In central Mindanao, meantime, the 31st Division continued to crowd the retreating Japanese into mountain defenses.

On little Tarakan Island, off Borneo, the Australians and Dutch expanded their gains Monday by capturing an evacuated Japanese headquarters. They were within 2 miles o fthe Djoeata oil field, north o fthe airfield from which Allied medium bombers and fighters already are operating.

Second Largest Oil Field

Djoeata is the second largest oil field on Tarakan.

MacArthur disclosed that the long-winded 37th Infantry Division, which invaded Luzon at Lingayen Gulf and fought into Manila, is now fighting around Balete Pass on northern Luzon with the 25th and 32d Divisions.

The 37th and the 25th have flanked strongly held Balete Pass from moth sides and advance elements were within 2 miles of the important Santa Fe road juncture.

Bombers hammered eenmy shipping and targets from Formosa to Celebes. About 170 fighters and bombers concentrated on Formosa Sunday and Monday.

Allied Planes Begin Using Tarakan Strip As Australians Gain

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, May 8.—United Nations fighters and bombers operated from the newly won 4,600-foot Tarakan airfield today as battle-seasoned Australians stormed across rough Tarakan Island, off Borneo, to within rifle range of the eastern shore.

One of the most bitterly contested spots remaining was the north portion of Tarakan City, near the airport, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

In the two widely separated points of remaining Japanese resnstance in the Philippines, Gen. MacArthur reported advances on Mindanao and stubborn fighting on Northern Luzon, approximately 750 miles to the north.

On Mindanao, the 31st Division eliminated a Japanese force at Pinaolay Lake and then swept on 8 miles to take Maramag Airfield unmolested.

Patrols of the 25th Division on Luzon probed to within 1,000 yards of viciously defended Balete Pass, while other troops deployed in a large encircling maneuver along the Villa Verde trail, by-passing pockets of resistance to be liquidated later by heavier units.

Japanese communications in the strongly held Cagayan Valley were hit by 285 tons of bombs.

Formosa and Amoy, China, were pounded by heavy bombers. An oil storage area at Amoy went up in flames.

Within 24 hours of securing Tarakan Airfield, swift Venturas and Lightnings scored heavily on fuel depots, shipping and shipyards around Miri, Borneo, while Navy Venturas and RAAF-flown B-24s, B-25s and fighters supported the Tarakan Island ground action.

Australians Still Battle Japanese in New Guinea

100,000 of By-Passed Enemy Remain To Be Cleaned Out

MANILA, May 8 (AP).—In the steaming jungle country of New Guinea, and on scattered islands of the southwest Pacific, a "forgotten war" continues as Australian troops clean out an estimated 100,000 by-passed Japanese.

There was an early theory that these enemy soldiers, left in the wake of a war which has swept to their homeland, would die on the vine. The contrary seems to be the case.

As long as fifteen months ago American flyers reported that Japanese gardens around Rabaul, New Britain, "look like California truck gardens." They are far too big to be destroyed by oiling or by bombs.

Then, too, places like Wewak and Rabaul were once valued staging bases by the enemy in his fond dream of an Australian invasion, and vast stockpiled supplies provide the by-passed Nipponese.

Estimates of by-passed Japanese include about 10,000 on Bougainville, 40,000 or 50,000 on New Ireland, another 10,000 on Wewak, possibly 10,000 in the Shortland Islands, and 5,000 on Choiseul.

OKINAWA OBSERVES V-E DAY WITH WAR

Some Men Die And Others Ask If They Are Forgotten

The following dispatch, by Gordon Cobbledick, former sports writer and now war correspondent for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, tells of Okinawa on V-E day.

Okinawa, May 8 [AP—Via Navy Radio]—We stood in the rain this morning and heard the voice from San Francisco, only half believing. There had been so many false reports. But this seemed to be the McCoy.

"Confirmed by General Eisenhower's headquarters," the voice was saying. "Prime Minister Churchill proclaimed May 8 as V-E day."

Artillery thundered and the planes roared low overhead and we couldn't hear all that the voice was saying.

"President Truman — Marshal Stalin announced—the Canadian Government at Ottawa—unauthorized announcement — American news agency—"

Ambulances Skid And Bounce

So this was V-E day. It was V-E day in the United States and Great Britain and Russia but on Okinawa the ambulances skidded through the sticky red mud and bounced over rutted rocky coral roads.

Some of the men who rode them gritted their teeth behind bloodless lips and let no cry escape them. Some stared into space through eyes that were dull with the look of men to whom nothing mattered greatly. Some screamed with pain that the morphine couldn't still. And some lay very quiet under ponchos that covered their faces.

It was V-E day all over the world but on Okinawa. Two doughboys lay flat behind a jagged rock and one said, "I know where the bastard is and I'm going to get him."

He raised his head and looked and then he stood, half crouched and brought his Garand into position.

Smiled Sheepishly And Died

When he tumbled backward the rifle clattered on the rocks. The boy looked up and smiled sheepishly and said, "I hurt my arm when I fell," and the blood gushed from his mouth and ran into a quick torrent over the stubble of beard on his young face and he was dead.

It was V-E day at home but on Okinawa men shivered in fox holes holes half filled with water and waited fo rthe command to move forward across the little green valley taht was raked from both ends by machine-gun fire.

It was V-E day but on Okinawa a very young Marine cried like a frightened child and his voice rose shrilly: "I can't stand it any more. Oh Jesus, I can't stand it." A grizzled sergeant watched him for a minute, half in compassion, half in contempt, and then called: "Corps-[illegible] him back. He's no good up here."

"The Only Son We Had"

It was V-E day but on Okinawa a staff officer sat looking dully at the damp earther floor of his tent. A young lieutenant, his green field uniform plastered with mud, stood awkwardly beside him.

"I was with him, sir," the lieutenant said. "It was a machine-gun bullet, sir. He never knew what hit him." He paused. "He was a good Marine, sir."

The staff officer said, "He was the only son we had."

On Okinawa a flame-throwing tank lumbered across a narrow plain toward an enemy pillbox. From a cave a gun spat viciously and the tank stopped and burst into fire. When the crewmen clambered out machine guns chattered and they fell face forward in the mud and were still.

Forests Of Crosses Grow

It was V-E day everywhere but on Okinawa the forests of white crosses grew and boys who had hardly begun to live died miserbly with the red clay of this hostile land.

It was a day for celebration but on Okinawa the war moved on. Not swiftly, for swift war cannot be waged against an enemy who burrows underground where bombs and shells and all the instruments of quick destruction can't touch him. Not gloriously, for there is little glory in any war and none at all in cold and mud. But the enemy wouldn't wait and the war moved on.

"And Forget About Us"

It was V-E day and on Okinawa a soldier asked, "What were they going to do back in the States—get drunk and forget about us out here?"

Another said, "So they'll open the race tracks and turn on the lights and give people all the gas they want and the hell with us."

Another said, "They'll think the war is over and they'll quit their jobs and leave us to fight these bastards with pocket knives."

Chiang Appeals to Allies For All-Out War on Japan

Kuomintang Congress Asks Unconditional Surrender

CHUNGKING, May 8 (AP).—In a V-E Day broadcast Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek appealed to the Allies today to employ all of their forces in smashing Japan and pledged that China would do everything in her power to discharge her share of the responsibility.

At the same time the sixth National Kuomintang Congress now in session adopted a proposal to send a dispatch to the Japanese people offering them unconditional surrender.

This proposal followed a rumor now current in high quarters that ex-Premier Prince Konoye and other influential members of the Japanese nobility are in favor of peace and intend to come out in the open when the time is opportune.

During the day Apollon Petrov, new Soviet Ambassador to China, presented his credentials to Chiang. In a brief statement he said he intends to devote all of his efforts to "the development and consolidation of neighborly relations between China and Soviet Russia."

Chinese Kill 3,000 in Honan

CHUNGKING, May 8 (AP).—Chinese forces killed more than 3,000 of a body of 4,000 Japanese surrounded west of Hsihsiakow in southwestern Honan Province, the high command announced tonight, adding that the remnants of the Japanese escaped "under cover of gas."

CALCUTTA, May 8 (AP)—Fifteen thousand Burmese, who received limited training by the Japanese, have risen against their recent masters and killed about 1,200 Japanese troops, it was announced today. Those slain included a general and a major general.

Royal Air Force fliers said that in five days between the Japanese departure from Rangoon and the arrival of the British virtually every public building was looted and so were many private establishments.

'JOB IS HALF DONE' VIEW IN HONOLULU

By MURLIN SPENCER

HONOLULU, May 8.—(AP) Rejoicing over V-E Day in Europe was tempered in the Pacific war theater by warnings from high ranking army, navy and marine officers that "the job is only half done."

Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Army commander in Pacific ocean areas, told General Eisenhower in a congratulatory message that Yank soldiers in the Pacific are looking forward to the day when troops from Europe join them in the final assault against the Japanese. His message said:

"Soldiers of the Pacific ocean areas join me in extending heartiest congratulations to you and your troops on this historical day of victory over our enemy in Europe.

"We now look forward to the day when fighting men from your theater of operations will unite with us to mount the final assault that will tear from Japan the same unconditional surrender which you have so gallantly won from our German enemy."

Vice-Adm. D. W. Bagley, commander of the Hawaiian sea frontier, said "freedom loving peoples of the world will rejoice today 'n the triumph of Allied arms in Europe.

Mexicans Are Reminded Pacific War Continues

Mexico City, May 8 (AP)—War's end in Europe brought no public demonstrations in Mexico City.

People were reminded that war continues in the Pacific where Mexico's 201st Air Squadron is ready for action. There are scores of thousands of Mexicans scattered among Allied armies.

All Mexico learned again yesterday and today of the high rank given the Associaited Press (La Prensa Asociada in Latin America) by newspapers and the public. Edward Kennedy's dispatch of the German surrender was accepted everywhere as the truth and there was general puzzlement at the reluctance of governments promptly to confirm the surrender.

Halifax V-E Day Fete Starts Riot

Halifax, N.S., May 8 (AP)—Looting mobs, growing out of Halifax's boisterous V-E day celebration, raged through the business districts today, smashing store windows, battling police and causing loss unofficially estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Civil authorities clamped an 8 P.M. curfew on this Canadian port city and service police were called in to clear the streets.

The Halifax business district looked as though it had been hit by a storm. Two fires, apparently of incendiary origin, were reported. Power lines were cut at one point and a large section of the city was without lights for more than an hour.

Trolley Overturned

The city began a peaceful victory celebration last night with service men and civilians joining in revelry. But as it continued through the night celebration increased in violence.

Window smashing started and toward midnight a mob attacked a streetcar, bashed its windows and, failing to overturn it, set it on fire. When a patrol wagon reached the scene, it was overturned and fired.

Liquor stores were broken into and their contents distributed among the mob. At dawn the riot began to quiet then was renewed at midafternoon.

Beer By The Case

A mob estimated at 500 sailors, service men and civilians roamed the main business section, smashing every window. Bursting through a police cordon at a brewery, they carried out beer by the case.

Looting began as the stores were broken open. Women and men walked off coolly, their arms loaded with clothing and other merchandise.

Navy shore patrols joined with military police and civilian volunteers in efforts to clear the streets tonight.

Australia Celebrates V-E Day Calmly

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, May 8.—Australia took the news of V-E day quietly today.

A public holiday has been proclaimed for tomorrow, and thanksgiving services will be held in all states. Big interdenominational services will be held in most public squares.

The official surrender announcement will be given tonight at Canberra by Acting Prime Minister J. B. Chifley, who is serving for Prime Minsiter John Curtin, now recovering from an illness.

A. P. Suspension Lifted in 7 Hours, but Banger Reporter Still Stands.

Paris, May 8 (A. P.).—Brig.-Gen. Frank A. Allen Jr., director of the public relations division of Supreme Headquarters, has lifted the suspension imposed yesterday on Associated Press filing facilities from the European theater, but his official order said it still applied to Edward Kennedy, chief of the A. P.'s western front staff.

It was Kennedy who sent the Reims dispatch which gave the world its first word of Germany's unconditional surrender. Kennedy went to Reims Sunday to cover the story, and returned to Paris at dawn Monday. The first 1,500 words of his story about what he had seen and heard was passed by a field censor and the remainder was written when he returned to Paris.

By noon Monday Paris was aflame with reports that the story was about to break, coming from many quarters of the globe. It was learned and authenticated that Gen. de Gaulle was writing a speech to commemorate the occasion. From Stockholm a British agency carried a flat statement that the event had been announced by the Swedish radio.

Paris dailies, under London date lines, asserted without qualification that Britain was only awaiting the official announcement.

Flashed to World.

About 2:30 P. M., Paris time (8:30 A. M., Eastern war time) European radio monitors picked up a broadcast from the Flensburg radio to the German armed forces of land, sea and air, ordering them to cease resistance. This immediately was flashed to the world and reached the Associated Press offices in Paris through normal channels.

On the basis of this fact Kennedy interviewed SHAEF censors and demanded immediate release of his Reims story. He asserted that according to SHAEF's long established policy, military security was the only consideration on which correspondent's reports were censored. He said that in view of broadcast reports from Flensburg, London and Stockholm there was no military security involved, and he also openly notified the censors that he intended to file his story.

Kennedy said that he considered the function of his staff and of himself was to report the news, and that he did not feel bound by any considerations of political censorship.

An Experienced Correspondent.

Kennedy is one of the world's most experienced war correspondents. He covered the Spanish civil war and was assigned to the war in the western desert in 1940 before the United States became involved in hostilities. He followed the British and later the American armies across Africa and through a large part of the Italian campaign, entering southern France when the Seventh Army invaded last fall.

Kennedy made no secret of his intention to transmit the Reims story. Before his message was completed Gen. Allen notified the Associated Press office that the Associated Press Paris staff was suspended "until charges are investigated." The order was amended a few moments later to include all Associated Press correspondents on the Western front.

Gen. Allen authorized the Associated Press to notify its New York and London offices of the suspension, but through an error the authorization failed to reach all ranks of censors and messages to this effect were delayed for four hours.

Phone Service Cut Off.

Meanwhile telephones in the Associated Press Paris office in the Scribe Hotel were cut off and the Associated Press staff at SHAEF was instructed not to enter the briefing room where correspondents normally are given information on military movements.

Kennedy continued his efforts to obtain from SHAEF censorship the reason for his suspension in terms of military security.

As he returned to the hotel where a majority of the correspondents both live and work numbers of them shook his hand and congratulated him on the stand he had taken and the tremendous beat he had scored—even thought it had been at their expense.

At 11 P. M., seven hours after the suspension was imposed, Gen. Allen sent an official order rescinding the suspension for all members of the Associated Press staff except Kennedy.

SHAEF censorship subsequently permitted any and all correspondents to quote details from Kennedy's dispatch concerning what he saw and heard at Reims.

CENSORSHIP END SOUGHT

Associated Press Head Sends Request To Eisenhower

MAY 9 1945

New York, May 8 (AP)—Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, called on General Eisenhower tonight to abolish military censorship in Europe now that the war is over and to permit Edward Kennedy, Associated Press corresypondent, to state his own case on his dispatch on Germany's surrender.

Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press Paris bureau, who telephoned the news from Paris to London Monday, remained under suspension by Supreme Headquarters in Paris and was not permitted to file any dispatch or messages.

Accused Of Double-Cross

Kennedy therefore was unable to give his own account of the events or to reply to a published statement by 54 correspondents accusing him of "the most disgraceful, deliberate and unethical double-cross in the history of journalism."

This language was included in a strongly phrased formal protest in which the 54 correspondents, accredited to Supreme Headquarters, demanded that General Eisenhower prohibit the Associated Press from carrying any official news of the surrender from the European theater of operations for 24 hours after the announcement.

The Supreme Commander informed them that no action could be taken against an organization for the act of an individual correspondent.

Still Under Investigation

Supreme Headquarters said the whole case still was under investigation, but meanwhile it also suspended Morton Gudebrod, member of the Associated Press Paris staff, who, with approval of French censorship, had distributed the surrender article to French papers on Monday.

The other members of the Associated Press staff in Paris and throughout the European theater were permitted to file dispatches, however, after Supreme Headquarters lifted at 11 P.M. Monday a ban it had placed on all of them, although all facilities for Kennedy remained suspended.

Headquarters ruled that they could not quote Kennedy directly or indirectly on the events in Reims at the signing of the unconditional and final German surrender, which Kennedy witnessed.

All available eyewitness information, however, was allowed to be incorporated in a Reims datelined dispatch filed from Paris by the Associated Press.

After German Broadcast

While Kennedy was not allowed to give his side of the controversy, Releman Morin, of the Associated Press Paris staff, reported that only after the German radio had announced the surrender Monday did Kennedy take any action. Kennedy then interviewed the headquarters censors and demanded immediate release of his Reims story. He had written 1,500 words at Reims and it had been approved by a military field censor.

"He asserted," Morin wrote, "that according to SHAEF's long-established policy, military security was the only consideration whereon correspondents' reports were censored.

"He said that in view of the broadcast reports from Flensburg, London and Stockholm, there was no military security involved, and he also openly notified the censors that he intended to file his story.

"He said he considered the function of his staff and his own function was to report news, and that he did not feel bound by any consideration of 'political censorship.'"

Two Refuse To Sign

This view was echoedy b two accredited corespondents at SHAEF who refused to sign the protest petition. They wede Larry Rue, of the Chicago Tribune, and John O'Connell, of the Bangor (Maine) News.

Rue asked a meeting of the correspondents, "do the correspondents here really want to cut off the news of 1,400 newspapers and still take th eposition that they do not believe in suppression of news?"

O'Connell said the protesting correspondents "may find that they are in a peculiar position with their own newspapers, which through the Press story were able erican readers news of e without delay."

...e suspension of the entire AP staff in the European theater was lifted, only after Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, had sent a radiogram to General Eisenhower asking the facts.

Eisenhower's Reply

General Eisenhower replied today to Cooper's inquiry through the War Department, stating:

"Associated Press suspended during investigation of method transmission of release unauthorized story this date unsubmitted SHAEF censorship channels, reference your message to General Eisenhower dated 7th May.

"Suspension filing privileges Associated Press revoked and authority now granted correspondents other than Ed Kennedy to submit material for transmission.

"Kennedy suspended due self-admitted deliberate violation SHAEF regulations and breach confidence. Investigation filing story by Kennedy continues and report results of findings will be communicated you as soon as practicable."

Cooper's Request

Cooper immediately replied to General Eisenhower with radiogram:

"This is acknowledgement of your reply to my message May 7 with appreciation for your explanation of the decision revoking suspension of Associated Press privileges. I respectfully and urgently request your consideration of the following:

"First, that every facility be afforded Edward Kennedy to state his case personally and to transmit the fullest report thereof to me as requested in my message to you yesterday so that the American people as well as members of the Associated Press may be apprised completely of the facts connected with Kennedy's transmission of the German surrender story instead of being limited to the brief unilateral and undocumented statement contained in your reply:

Raises Security Question

"Secondy, that the position of Supreme Headquarters be stated as respects the elements of military security involved in connection with this story, particularly in the light of German broadcasts proclaiming the surrender which were published generally throughout the world approximately one hour before the Associated Press received Kennedy's first patch;

"Thirdly, that you make equally available to the Associated Press and representatives of all other news and radio organizations a precise statement setting forth categorically reasons for maintaining what can now be only military censorship over civil affairs, since there is no longer any European enemy.

"I suggest this because there is general concern over possibility of continuance of censorship over political matters in a Europe at peace, and anything you can do which will give immediate effect to removal of such censorship will be hailed by the American public, which, from expressions received here, considers of transcedent importance the removal of any obstacle to coverage of news of the European reconstruction."

Sent Back To Kennedy

Cooper sent the text of Gneral Eisenhower's message back to Kennedy in Paris by radio.

In Washington, Col. Luther L. Hill, acting director of the War Department bureau of public relations, said this afternoon that the department was not contemplating taking any action in the matter.

"It is being handled by General Eisenhower's headquarters," Hill said. "General Eisenhower has publicly stated that no action will be taken which will affect the legitimate transmission of Associated Press dispatches to its member papers."

MAY 9 1945

Correspondents' Letter

The text of a letter from 54 correspondents at Supreme Headquarters to General Eisenhower:

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower,
Supreme Allied Command, SHEAF.
Dear General Eisenhower:

We the undersigned SHAEF-accredited correspondents have learned with utter astonishment of the decision to lift the ban on the Associated Press in connection with the unauthorized publication of the official news of the unconditional surrender of Germany.

It is our firm conviction that this action is a most outrageously unfair treatment of those news agencies and newspapers whose correspondents have respected the confidence placed in them by SHAEF; and who as a result of so doing have suffered the most disgraceful, deliberate and unethical double-cross in the history of journalism. .

Hold Organization At Fault

Any position that the Associated Press as an organization was not guilty of any infraction of SHAEF regulations is, in our opinion, incomprehensible. The organization in question published the story and made no effort whatever to retract it when it became evident that publication was a flagrant violation of SHAEF security regulations imposed on all other correspondents concerned.

Furthermore: The Paris bureau of the Associated Press distributed the story to all French newspapers. This involved the activities of more than one representative of that agency.

It is an accepted fact that an organization is responsible for its personnel in the case of men selected as bureau chiefs.

Each accredited SHAEF correspondent who participated in the mission in question was pledged on his honor to secrecy by Brig. Gen. Frank Allen.

Quote Secrecy Pledge

General Allen made to the correspondents involved a statement to the following effect:

"This story is off the record until the respective heads of the Allied governments announce the fact to the world.

"I therefore pledge each and every one of you on your honor not to communicate the result of this conference or the fact of its existence until it is released by SHAEF."

The Associated Press cannot escape responsibility for the fact that a man selected as its representative at SHAEF . . . deliberately circumvented SHAEF censorship in order to file his story for immediate publication in complete defiance of the pledge. Much less can the Associated Press escape responsibility for continuing to publish the story when it was evident that it was unauthorized.

Correspondents Kept Faith

To permit the Associated Press to carry at the time of its authorized release any official news out of the ETO (European Theater of Operations) concerning the surrender of Germany is, in our opinion, most unjust to those correspondents who have kept faith with you.

If this decision is allowed to stand, it will in our opinion completely undermine any sense of responsibility on the part of the correspondents to abide by or respect in the future SHAEF PRO (Public Relations Office) rules and regulations.

The fact that the Associated Press correspondent was able to telephone an unauthorized story of this nature to London is in itself glaring evidence of incompetence on the part of that branch of the Allied military which is responsible for security in Paris.

"Defiance Of Solemn Pledge"

That the Associated Press should be permitted to continue to benefit from its defiance of a solemn pledge of secrecy imposed by SHEAF on news of such importance to the world is incredible.

Newspapers Assail Suspension Of AP as Blow to Free Press

By the Associated Press.

Suspension of the Associated Press' European filing privileges as a consequence of Edward Kennedy's news story of Germany's surrender was described by the American press and its leaders as a challenge to a free press.

SHAEF lifted the suspension of AP staff privileges on the continent, except for Mr. Kennedy, after the AP's protest was supported by a mounting tide of editorial comment, appeals to President Truman and statements from the Nation's press. The suspension lasted nearly seven hours.

Many of the statements termed the suspension "unprecedented" and a "disgrace to the American concept of a free press," condemned official action in withholding confirmation of the surrender and praised Mr. Kennedy's exclusive story.

Daniels and Howard Protest.

"I can see no justification for suspending the Associated Press," Josephus Daniels, publisher of the News and Observer, Raleigh, N. C., and World War Secretary of the Navy, wired President Truman.

Roy W. Howard, president of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, also urged the President to intercede in lifting the ban.

"The Associated Press has a well-earned reputation for public-spirited journalistic service," Mr. Howard said. "It and all of its member papers should not be subjected, as was the United Press and its clientele in 1918, to the unfair inferences which are sure to result unless this suspension is immediately withdrawn."

Story "Mangled by Red Tape."

Editorially, the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard said: "The most important news story of modern times was mangled yesterday by the worst combination of international red tape and of Government stupidity that the present generation has ever seen."

Commented the Philadelphia Record: "It was a gastly paradox that, in the hour of triumph for democratic ideals, the public relations office of the United States Army should be guilty of a most undemocratic act: Suspensison of the right of the Associated Press to transmit its news from the European theater of operations."

The New York World-Telegram, Scripps-Howard newspaper, said editorially: "We regard this action of SHAEF as unconscionable and believe it should be immediately rescinded."

The New York Post said it had acted "with a sense of responsibility is foreign not only to the national system, but to the military tradition. An outrage. . . . The Army, while lifting the ban on AP, has suspended Edward Kennedy. Will the Army please stop trying to save its face?"

Called "Blow" at Our Principles.

Frank B. Noyes, president of the Evening Star Newspaper Co., Washington, said the suspension "strikes a blow at one of the principles for which we have fought this war—freedom of the press and the right of people everywhere 'to know.'"

J. L. Maloney, managing editor of the Chicago Tribune: "I have asked our Washington bureau to protest the barring of the AP at the White House both in writing and by telephone."

John S. Knight, publisher of the Knight Newspapers and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said in a telegram to President Truman: "This action is in direct conflict with concurrent resolution adopted by both houses of Congress calling for greater freedom of world news."

Jonathan Daniels, White House press secretary, said the White House had no comment on the numerous protests which had been received. This was shortly after word came from Paris that the suspension had been lifted, except for Mr. Kennedy.

AP Head Excoriates Action.

Immediately after the suspension order Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, dispatched messages to Gen. Eisenhower and Secretary of War Stimson and apprised the White House of them, inquiring the reasons for the suspension and calling on Mr. Stimson to intervene to lift it.

Mr. Cooper also sent a message to Mr. Truman urging on behalf of newspapers everywhere that he furnish confidentially in advance the text of his V-E day announcement so that it could be published simultaneously with its broadcast.

In a note to member editors of the Associated Press Mr. Cooper called their attention to the situation and to indications "that news of the German surrender or confirmation thereof is being withheld from the public by official sources," and declared:

"Since this suppression cuts squarely across fundamental rights respecting freedom of access to facilities, vigorous representations have been made to the highest authorities. These representations have been made in the belief that the right of peoples everywhere 'to know' is at stake."

"Joke on the People."

In his message to Mr. Stimson, Mr. Cooper pointed out that the Associated Press dispatch was not received "until an hour after the German government itself had announced the surrender, which has been more or less the rule on all news developments during the war."

Mr. Stimson's attention also was called "to the fact that the King of England has congratulated Gen. Eisenhower on the successful conclusion of hostilities and all other things disclosed thus far point to the accuracy of Edward Kennedy's account.

"If the account is true, surely the United States Government does not want to play a joke upon the American people by further delaying confirmation of news to which the people . . . as well as their armies are omptly entitled."

Action Held Unwarranted.

The message to Gen. Eisenhower pointed out that no notice of the suspension had been received by the A. P., and asked that "if this has occurred, please extend to the Associated Press the courtesy of telling me why the action was taken * * * and what is the indictment."

He continued:

"Obviously all the newspapers and radio stations served by the Associated Press and the millions of peoples these newspapers and radio stations serve have done nothing to warrant any adverse action against them as a whole, nor have the large number of Associated Press newsmen who have served valiantly on all the European fronts committed any action warranting this unprecedented suspension."

Ed Kennedy Fought Censorship, Stuck to War, Dodged Laurels

By GRAHAM HOVEY,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

His spectacular "beat" on Germany's surrender brought a soft-voiced, Brooklyn-born Irishman the world-wide professional recognition he merited—but deliberately shunned—for years.

For Edward Kennedy is one of the most selfless war correspondents in the business. He also is one of the best.

Those are personal opinions, based on an association which lasted for two and a half years and from Algiers to Rome to Paris. But they are opinions shared by many war correspondents of several nations who have known Kennedy overseas.

Ed Kennedy fought hard during this war for soldiers; for his staff; for competing newsmen, and particularly for enlightened military censorship—but to date has never fought for his own aggrandizement.

He probably saw more of the war against Germany than any other American reporter, but he consistently refused to capitalize on that background.

For example, when he returned to the United States, for the first time in six years, following the Tunisian campaign, he was besieged with book and lecture tour offers. He actually tried to shut himself up in a New York hotel room and write a book.

Couldn't Stay Away From War.

But the invasion of Sicily came along and Ed could stand it no longer. He returned a handsome advance to the would-be publishers of his book; threw away his manuscript, and raced back to the Mediterranean. As a colleague remarked, Kennedy was simply too indigenous" to the war to stay away.

As chief of Associated Press correspondents successively in the Middle East, Tunisia, Italy and France, Kennedy often passed along ideas to members of his staff which resulted in outstanding war stories. Then he saw to it that the recipient of the idea was also the recipient of the credit.

George Tucker, a member of Kennedy's staff, once paid his chief a remarkable tribute by saying no AP staffer in the Mediterranean ever turned out a war story that Ed could not have handled at least as well himself.

When the fall of Rome became imminent in late May last year, it was decided that Kennedy should take over one of the front-line assignments and help cover the fall of the Italian capital since he had worked there before the war. Yet, when Kennedy came to the front, he spent the better part of the morning telling Sid Feder he felt "like a heel" for making the transfer.

"Can you beat that?" asked Feder. "He speaks Italian—I don't. He knows Rome—I've never seen the place. Yet, he apologizes for taking my place at the front to cover the Rome story." That was the Kennedy selflessness at work.

Battled for Newsmen's Rights.

Another example of it occurred in Algiers when the correspondent of a rival press association was suspended for 10 days, merely on the basis of a story he had filed through Army censorship in the routine way—and was refused a hearing by Brig. Gen. Robert A. McClure, chief of information and censorship for Gen. Eisenhower.

It would have given the AP staff a theoretical advantage, at least, if the suspension of the rival reporter had been allowed to stand. But it was Kennedy who waged the hardest battle on behalf of the suspended newsman, and who helped win a concession for review, by Gen. McClure, of the principle involved.

I know a lot about that episode. I was the suspended reporter, working at that time for another service.

Despite his mild manners and equally mild voice, Kennedy fought what he regarded as unjust censorship throughout the war. When an AP dispatch by Joseph Morton on Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans was held up in Algiers, Kennedy carried the fight to Field Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, then supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean—and won.

Work in France Earns Suspension.

Kennedy's most spectacular journalistic feat prior to the German surrender scoop got him suspended, just as the surrender story did.

Shortly after the Allied invasion of the French Riviera last August, some reporters felt certain United States Army commanders were too reticent to give full credit for the tremendous work of the French underground forces.

To dramatize the effectiveness of the job done by these "Maquis," Kennedy, four other newsmen and Pvt. Douglas Hooey of Sussex, N. J., drove a jeep through a 7th Army road block north of Grenoble and continued for 150 miles through official no man's land to the outskirts of Geneva on the Franco-Swiss frontier.

Theer, Thomas F. Hawkins, chief of the AP staff in Switzerland, met the party and drove back to Bern to file the news and beat Kennedy on his own story.

Spurred on by their discovery of the sizable portions of France cleared of Germans entirely by the gallant efforts of the Maquis, the group—by then known as "Task Force Kennedy"—decided to attempt a trip through the heart of France to make contact with Gen. Eisenhower's armies in the north.

Starting north from Montpellier, near the Mediterranean, "Task Force Kennedy," guided by the French underground, drove in zigzag fashion through nearly 1,000 miles of no man's land still inhabited by elements of five German divisions and made contact with elements of Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army at Nantes.

Always Legitimate Newsman.

From there the group went on to Paris, where they were suspended for going from one theater of operations into another without permission. I know about that one, too, for I was fortunate enough to be a member of "Task Force Kennedy."

How Kennedy obtained the news of the German surrender at Rheims has not yet been divulged. But all who know him will readily testify that he operated in legitimate fashion. He always does.

When Mr. Kennedy came back here for a brief visit in June, 1943, he visited the city room of The Star, where he was a member of the editorial staff from 1928 to 1930. A graduate of Carnegie Tech, Mr. Kennedy joined the Associated Press staff in 1932 and went abroad after three years on the Washington staff. Now 39, he has been a reporter for 20 years.

Kennedy Story Called 'Lifetime Scoop' and 'Jump-the-Gun' Work

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Radio news commentators on major networks yesterday called the Associated Press story of Germany's surrender both the "scoop of a lifetime" and a "jump-the-gun dispatch."

Comments by some of the newscasters follow:

Leland Stowe, Blue Network: "There are no hedges, no weasel phrases in Kennedy's sensational paragraphs. In content they are calm, factual reporting. * * * SHAEF did not deny anything in Kennedy's dispatch. I believe Ed has scored the scoop of a lifetime."

John W. Vandercook, NBC: "If the greatest phase of the greatest war in history has dwindled away in anticlimax, if a billion people around the world have been deprived of the clean-cut, honest and well-earned celebration, in which all could have shared * * * then we must blame first the last bleat of a Nazi radio and second what is forgivingly called 'American journalistic enterprise' * * * the now-famous jump-the-gun dispatch. * * *"

Robert Trout, CBS: "The news was obviously authentic."

Don Hollenbeck, NBC: "* * * The AP got out on the limb again, and this time it looks as if nobody is going to saw it off. Ed Kennedy seems to have got himself one of the biggest scoops in the world—he had the right stuff and he sent it."

H. V. Kaltenborn, NBC: "My guess is that the surrender of Germany took place exactly as Kennedy reported it from France. Kennedy got the information and by some miracle got it past the censors. Because it was accurate it could not be denied. Because it was unofficial and unauthorized it could not be confirmed."

Cecil Brown, Mutual: "It is evident that the Associated Press got the surrender story out of France today because censorship broke down. But once the story was out, Washington neither confirmed nor denied it. The result was that the Nation responded as expected, and many man-hours of work went out of jobs and into dances of joy."

Fulton Lewis, jr., Washington (Mutual): "Granted that the story is true—and let me say that I have been unable to find any one, in any official sources today, who does not agree thoroughly that it is true—the worst that can have happened is that a reporter has told the truth to the American people, who had every right to know the truth."

Fred Vandevanter, WOR: "Kennedy had his information and there is little reason to doubt that he had it correctly, but it was not supposed to be released * * * in any way that would give the appearance of authenticity. Maybe Kennedy was overzealous * * * maybe it was given him by some underling in Press Relations. Any one of dozens of things might have happened, but none of them should have happened."

John Daly, CBS: "Official confirmation of Germany's unconditional surrender is still lacking * * * but there was never any doubt that the news was accurate."

24 Hours Ahead.

By the Associated Press.

Official proclamation of V-E day, the final and unconditional surrender of Germany to the Allies, came as 9 A. M. Eastern war time today, a little less than twenty-four hours after the Associated Press had disclosed that the European war was over and that the final papers had been signed.

This is the story of how the Associated Press scored the overwhelming news beat, acclaimed by editors throughout the world as possibly the most resounding in journalistic history.

The story was broken by Edward Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press western front staff, who was present at Reims, France, seventy-five miles east of Paris, Sunday night and early Monday when the surrender articles were signed by representatives of the American, British, Russian and French military commands and the German Government of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz.

Kennedy returned to Paris at dawn Monday, May 7.

At 3:24 P..M., British time (9:24 A. M., Eastern war time), Monday, Kennedy got through a telephone call from Paris to the London bureau of the Associated Press. The connection was faulty and his voice was faint.

Lewis Hawkins of the London bureau, who knew Kennedy well, having worked with him on the western front, recognized his voice. He took down the flash that the war was actually over—that Germany had surrendered unconditionally and completely.

MAY 9 1945

Dictates Ten "Takes."

Then Kennedy dictated slowly and quietly ten "takes" of his story.

He said that the surrender articles were signed in Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters at Reims at 2:41 A. M., French time Monday. (8:41 P. M., Eastern war time, Sunday).

He gave the names of those signing for each party, with other pertinent details, plus a quote from the German chief of staff, Col.-Gen. Gustav Jodl:

"With this signature the German people and armed forces are, for better or worse, delivered into the victors' hands."

After the few short sentences the telephone connection was broken and never restored. The London censors passed the story without question, since it was matter in transit, rather than originating in their jurisdiction.

Held for Eight Minutes.

The Associated Press foreign desk in New York held the initial flash for eight minutes until sufficient of Kennedy's story was received to insure its authenticity. Then the flash went out at 9:35 A. M., Eastern war time yesterday.

Shortly thereafter the public relations division of Supreme Headquarters suspended the transmitting facilities of the Associated Press and all its correspondents throughout the European theater of operations.

Protests from Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, were made to Secretary of War Stimson and to Gen. Eisenhower. Word that the protest had been made was passed along to the White House, along with a request from Mr. Cooper that President Truman issue to the press in confidence the text of any proclamation he might contemplate, so that it could be published on an even basis with President Truman's radio announcement, when it came.

These messages went unanswered, but within seven hours Supreme Headquarters in Paris lifted the Associated Press suspension for all except Kennedy.

Kennedy's Story Gets Through.

The German Government radio, broadcasting on the wave length of the Flensburg station, had announced at 8:38 A. M., Eastern war time, Monday, that Germany had surrendered.

Kennedy's story got through a little more than an hour later.

Both the German broadcast and the Associated Press account were ignored officially. But four hours after the A. P. story had been cleared the British Ministry of Information announced that Prime Minister Churchill would make a formal V-E day proclamation today (Tuesday) at 9 A. M., Eastern war time, and that King George also would speak on the radio at 3 P. M., Eastern war time, and that today "is to be treated as victory-in-Europe day."

Moscow remained silent, but in Washington Monday afternoon it was announced by Presidential Secretary Jonathan Daniels that President Truman would address the nation by radio, also at 9 A. M., Eastern war time, and that the press and radio would be given a text of his speech a half hour in advance.

Edward Murrow of the Columbia Broadcasting System broadcast from London yesterday afternoon that the heads of State had intended to make the announcement at noon yesterday but that their program was delayed because Premier Stalin was not ready.

The British Press Association, reporting a flurry of telephone calls among the three great capitals, said that "differing views were apparently held on which hour the public should be told, but finally tomorrow afternoon (Tuesday morning) Eastern war time was decided upon."

Press Association added that "the surprisingly delay in announcing V-E day, in spite of the complete capitulation by the Germans," was due to the importance "attached to synchronizing the news in London, Washington and Moscow."

AP Tells How Kennedy Scored His 'Beat' on Germany's Surrender

Visited Rheims and Notified Censors He Would Cable Story

MAY 9 1945

BULLETIN.

PARIS (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower today informed correspondents at Allied headquarters that no action could be taken against a news agency or organization for the act of any individual correspondent or correspondents. His view was expressed by telephone after 54 correspondents signed a letter asking that all Associated Press correspondents in this theater be suspended until 24 hours after official announcement of Germany's surrender. Two correspondents attached to headquarters refused to sign the letter.

By the Associated Press.

Edward Kennedy, the veteran Associated Press correspondent who "scooped" the world yesterday on the unconditional surrender of Germany, obtained his information from a personal visit to Rheims and notified American military censors in Paris that he intended to cable the story to New York, it was established today.

The details surrounding Mr. Kennedy's "beat" were garnered as he remained under a censorship ban preventing him from filing other dispatches to this country. However, Allied military headquarters in Paris has lifted the blackout on other Associated Press dispatches from the European theater of operations which was imposed temporarily yesterday.

Went to Rheims Sunday.

Mr. Kennedy, who has covered European war developments since 1940, went to Rheims Sunday to cover the capitulation of Germany to the Allied powers, according to a dispatch from the Associated Press bureau in Paris. He returned to the French capital at dawn yesterday. An Army field censor passed a 1,500-word dispatch he wrote on what he had seen and heard personally at Rheims. The remainder was written after he returned to Paris.

Subsequent developments surrounding Mr. Kennedy's "beat" and suspension from filing privileges follow:

By noon yesterday Paris was aflame with reports that the story was about to break, coming from many quarters of the globe. It was learned and authenticated that Gen. Charles de Gaulle was writing a speech to commemorate the occasion. From Stockholm a British agency carried a flat statement that the event had been announced by the Swedish radio.

Paris dailies, under London datelines, asserted without qualification that Britain was only awaiting the official announcement.

About 2:30 p.m., Paris time (8:30 a.m., EWT) European radio monitors picked up a broadcast from the Flensburg radio to the German armed forces of land, sea and air, ordering them to cease resistance. This immediately was flashed to the world and reached the Associated Press offices in Paris through normal channels.

On the basis of this fact, Mr. Kennedy interviewed SHAEF censors and demanded immediate release of his story from Rheims.

Protests Political Censorship.

He asserted that according to SHAEF's long established policy, military security was the only consideration on which correspondent's reports were censored. He said that in view of broadcast reports from Flensburg, London and Stockholm there was no military security involved, and he also openly notified the censors that he intended to file his story.

Mr. Kennedy said he considered the function of his staff and himself was to report the news, and that he did not feel bound by any considerations of political censorship.

Mr. Kennedy made no secret of his intentions to transmit the Rheims story.

Before his message was completed Brig. Gen. Frank Allen, chief censor in Paris, notified the Associated Press office that the Associated Press Paris staff was suspended "until charges are investigated." The order was amended a few moments later to include all Associated Press correspondents on the western front.

Gen. Allen authorized the Associated Press to notify its New York and London offices of the suspension, but through an error the authorization failed to reach all ranks of censors and messages to this effect were delayed for four hours.

Telephones Cut Off.

Meanwhile, telephones in the Associated Press office in the Scribe Hotel were cut off and the Associated Press staff at SHAEF was instructed not to enter the briefing room where correspondents normally are given information on military movements.

Mr. Kennedy continued his efforts to obtain from SHAEF censorship the reason for his suspension in terms of military security.

As he returned to the hotel where a majority of the correspondents both live and work, numbers of them shook his hand and congratulated him on the stand he had taken and the tremendou[s] eat he had scored—even though i[t] d been at their expense.

At 11 p.m., seven hour[s] er the suspension was imposed, [Gen.] Allen sent an official order res[cind]ing the suspension for all mem[bers] of the Associated Press staff except Mr. Kennedy.

SHEAF censorship subsesently permitted any and all correspondents to quote details from Mr. Kennedy's dispatch concerning what he saw and heard at Reims.

London Tells of Filing.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press bureau in London filed to the New York office this account of how Mr. Kennedy's dispatch was received and transmitted:

"The London staff was sweating out the peace news in an atmosphere loaded with rumor, expectancy and cigarette smoke, when one of many telephones on the main news desk rang about 3:24 p.m. London time (9:24 a.m. E. W. T.), and Russell Landstrom looked from his job of herding copy to the cable and radio channels to answer it.

"'This is Paris calling,' came a faint muffled voice. Then it faded and came back so Mr. Landstrom could catch the word 'Paris' again, and he turned the telephone over to Lewis Hawkins.

"Very dimly the voice said that Germany had surrendered unconditionally at Rheims. Mr. Hawkins asked who was calling and was told that it was Morton Gudebrod of the Associated Press Paris staff.

"Being unfamiliar with Mr. Gudebrod's voice, Mr. Hawkins was asking for details and authority when Mr. Kennedy broke in to say: 'This is Ed Kennedy, Lew. Germany has surrendered unconditionally. That's official. Make the date Rheims, France, and get it out.'

Recognized Voice.

"Mr. Hawkins, well acquainted with Mr. Kennedy, recognized his voice, and after jotting down the flash called a woman traffic operator to take the call in a dictation booth and copy the story Mr. Kennedy had ready.

"The flash moved from London by cable and radio at 3:26 p.m. (9:26 a.m. EWT).

"Then Mr. Hawkins found that the operator had been unable to hear Mr. Kennedy sufficiently clearly to get the bulletin, so Mr. Hawkins took the call back on the news desk and with difficulty wrote down the first bulletin with a pencil, then handed the phone over to James F. King while he hurried the bulletin to the wires at 3:34 p.m. (9:34 a.m., EWT).

"Mr. King took the next two or three sentences, passing penciled sheets across the desk to Alex Singleton for copying before they went to Mr. Landstrom for final editing and filing.

"Mr. Kennedy's voice faded again and again, and Mr. King gave way to Dwight L. Pitkin, who continued taking Kennedy's slow, careful but faint dictation until 10 'takes' had been brought in, copied, edited and cleared to New York. Then the connection faded entirely or was cut off, and communication was not reestablished.

No British Censorship.

"British censors had had no special instructions on handling surrender stories, and since Mr. Kennedy's dispatch originated abroad, and was only being relayed through London, under standard British censorship practice, there was no question raised about passing it."

When the flash reached the New York foreign desk, it was held up for eight minutes pending receipt of sufficient of Mr. Kennedy's datelined and detailed dispatch to make certain that there was no possibility of error. There was none, and the news was sped throughout the Allied world at 9:35 a.m. (EWT).

For four hours afterward, officials in Washington, London and Moscow were silent. Then the British Ministry of Information announced that Prime Minister Churchill would make a formal V-E day proclamation today at 9 a.m. (EWT), and that King George would speak at 3 p.m. (EWT).

The British Press Association reported that "the surprising delay in announcing V-E day in spite of the complete capitulation by the Germans" was due to the importance "attached to synchronizing the news in London, Washington and Moscow."

Stalin Not Ready.

The Press Association said that telephone calls had been in progress all day among Washington, London and Moscow, and that "differing views were apparently held on which hour the public should be told, but finally tomorrow afternoon was decided upon."

Edward Murrow, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent in London, later broadcast to this country that Mr. Churchill and President Truman had been prepared to issue the official news at noon Monday but that this was delayed because Premier Stalin was not ready.

Fifty-eight minutes before Mr. Kennedy's dispatch was carried, the Germans—bound by no such blackout as was enforced among the Allies—broadcast that they had surrendered unconditionally.

The German broadcast was carried on the wavelength of Flensburg, a station which actually is in British-occupied Schleswig-Holstein, but on whose wavelength all recent official German statements have been carried from an undisclosed site.

The German announcement was made by Count Ludwig Schwerin von Krosigk, newly appointed Foreign Minister in the regime of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, the man who succeeded Hitler as Fuehrer.

MAY 9 1945

Suspension Ordered.

Mr. Kennedy's suspension was announced in the following order to Mr. Kennedy as chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Paris:

"The Associated Press is suspended from filing copy by any means in this theater (European theater of operations) effective 1640 hours (10:40 a.m., EWT.) this date until charges are investigated in connection with the filing of a story under Rheims dateline that SHAEF had officially announced the unconditional surrender of all German forces as of 0241 hours this date. "(Signed) FRANK ALLEN, JR.,

Brigadier General, U. S. A., Director Public Relations Division."

In fairness to Mr. Kennedy it must be stated that nowhere in his dispatch as received via London and issued by the Associated Press in the United States did he say the surrender was officially announced.

A flash which moved just before Mr. Kennedy's bylined dispatch said: "Rheims, France—Allies officially announced Germany surrendered unconditionally."

Kent Cooper Protests.

This was based on an assumption that since the story came from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters at Rheims it was official.

The word "official" did not appear in the printable story under Mr. Kennedy's byline which followed the flash.

Protests from Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, were made to Secretary of War Stimson and to Gen. Eisenhower. Word that the protests had been made was passed along to the White House, along with a request from Mr. Cooper that President Truman issue to the press in confidence the text of any proclamation he might contemplate, so that it could be published on an even basis with his radio announcement, when it came.

These messages went unanswered, but within seven hours supreme Allied headquarters in Paris lifted the Associated Press suspension for all except Mr. Kennedy.

Army of 500,000 Is Peacetime Plan Of War Department

By the Associated Press.

Members of Congress today disclosed War Department plans for a peacetime standing Army of about 500,000 men, backed up by an active Reserve of 4,000,000.

Outlined behind closed doors to the House Military Affairs Committee, the program contemplates, the committee members said, that Congress will enact a compulsory peacetime draft to provide the reserve strength.

A standing, or professional, postwar Army of 500,000 men would compare with an estimated 325,000 in 1940.

The 4,000,000 reserves, committee members said, would include an estimated 400,000 to 500,000 National Guardsmen and Officers' Reserve Corps members and 3,500,000 youths trained for one year in the Regular Army and assigned to active reserve status.

Train 500,000 Each Year.

Committeemen estimated that about 500,000 would be trained each year and the reserve built up to its peak strength over a period of years.

They emphasized that the program is tentative and contingent on enactment of compulsory peacetime military training.

Whether Congress will enact such a law may be determined within a few months. The House Postwar Military Policy Committee, which strongly favors the proposal, will open hearings on it June 4.

The War Department long has favored a relatively small standing peacetime Army backed by a big reserve. In a memorandum last year, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, referred to the large standing army system as having "no place among the institutions of a modern democratic state based upon the conception of government by the people."

Meanwhile, Representative Andrews of New York, ranking Republican on the House Military Affairs Committee, took responsibility for disclosure of military information which drew War Department objections over the week end.

Mr. Andrews told the House late yesterday that he had prepared a statement for use on V-E day and discussed its contents with a reporter before going to last Friday's meeting at which Army officers disclosed demobilization plans.

"It is my firm belief that almost every word in the statement of mine was known generally to the public," he added. "It is unfortunate that I made that statement before the War Department official statement."

"I accept on my own responsibility the full blame for it," he added.

Mr. Andrews explained to reporters later that the figures he gave to reporters were not based on information he received at a committee meeting.

Mr. Andrews' statement apparently cleared up ill-feeling that had existed in the committee's ranks since last Friday.

Chairman May, who earlier had told reporters he would ask those responsible for the leak to cease attending closed meetings, did not carry out his threat at yesterday's closed session.

War Bill of U.S. To May 5 Is Put At 275 Billion

World War I Cost 42 Billion, Including Pension to '34; Civil War Total 15 Billion

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP).—The government has spent $275,703,000,000 on this war, as of May 5, the Treasury reported today. This included both the German and Japanese wars.

The government has spent only $173,000,000,000 for all purposes throughout the first 151 years of its existence, from 1789 to 1940.

The Treasury says it is impossible to calculate how much was spent in beating Germany and how much has so far gone into the Pacific combat. Naturally the European war has taken more than half.

The Japanese war will gobble up many billions of dollars. War expenditures are expected to stay high for some time. After Japan collapses there will be war-caused expenses such as caring for veterans, paying pensions and other benefits, and payin interest on the public debt, which now is $236,000,000,000.

In addition to war spending the government (including government corporations) has spent about $30,000,000,000 for purposes not labeled "war" since July 1, 1940—bringing total Federal expenditures during that period of less than five years to more than $305,000,000,000.

The costs of other wars to the United States were given as follows:

Revolutionary—No dependable estimate available. About $70,000,000 paid in pensions.

War of 1812—No exact figures available. Unofficial estimate $133,700,000.

Mexican War—No exact figures available. Unofficial estimate $166,000,000.

Civil War—In excess of $15,000,000,000, including pensions.

War with Spain—In excess of $2,000,000,000, including pensions.

World War—To June 30, 1921, $25,729,000,000. Continuing costs such as pensions, interest, etc., from 1821 to June 30, 1934, have been $16,036,000,000. Total to June 30, 1934, was $41,765,000,000.

Hannegan Confirmed To Succeed Walker

MAY 9 1945

By the Associated Press.

Robert E. Hannegan had a favorable nod from the Senate today to take over as Postmaster General July 1.

President Truman set the mid-year date for the Democratic national chairman to relieve Frank Walker.

The fact it still is seven weeks off figured in an unsuccessful move by Senator Donnell, Republican, of Missouri yesterday to delay a Senate vote on confirmation to permit hearings meantime on Mr. Hannegan's qualifications.

On a straight division of Democrats and Republicans, Senator Donnell's motion lost, 35 to 28. Mr. Hannegan's nomination then was confirmed, 60 to 2. Senator Donnell and Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio cast the negative votes.

Reporter Leaving Truman Parley Injured in Fall

By the Associated Press.

Merriman Smith, White House reporter for the United Press, tripped and fell in the mad scramble of newsmen leaving President Truman's news conference today and required hospitalization.

Mr. Smith, former president of the White House Correspondents' Association, was taken to Emergency Hospital by Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, to determine the extent of painful injuries to his arm and shoulder.

The reporter tripped over a step-ladder which had been set up in the President's office by news photographers, falling as he ran full tilt from the office toward the White House press room.

There were 123 newsmen scampering to the two exits at the time.

Leahy Assures Japanese It Won't Take 100 Years

But He Calls Enemy, Though Cut Down, Still Powerful

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP).—Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy recalled today the Japanese boast of being ready to fight on for 100 years and assured the enemy "It will not take that long."

The President's personal chief of staff, in a message to the Commander in Chief, led off a series of assurances from the Navy that the sea force is ready for the bigger job at hand.

"Now with the hosts of evil and barbarism vanquished in Europe," Admiral Leahy said, "we must turn our full attention to the Far East." He called the enemy in the Orient "still powerful" and said that although "the vast circumference of his empire has been shrunk by our assaults, his naval power destroyed and his air forces crippled, we have a long road to travel before victory."

Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, revealed that in the Atlantic "upward of 500" German U-boats have been destroyed. He said his force had "given vital protection through U-boat-infested waters to the millions of soldiers whom we salute today.

Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander of the western sea frontier, said his organization was "ready to assume the greater load that will have to be carried by the Pacific Coast when the forces released in Europe begin to move into the Pacific for the kill of our last enemy—the Jap."

Loan Emphasis Put On Japan

Washington, May 8 (AP)—The Seventh War Loan drive will begin next Monday on schedule with all its emphasis on crushing the Japanese.

"Victory over Germany has not lessened the Government's need for this loan," Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, said today.

Morgenthau said in a statement that:

1. Every American can help celebrate V-E day by buying more war bonds.

2. Every bond bought during the Seventh War Loan will bring V-J day nearer.

MAY 9 1945

Salesmen Are Ready

Ted R. Gamble, war finance director, said the collapse of Germany should "give us renewed courage and determination. . . . The battle of Japan has just begun . . . buying and holding all the war bonds we possibly can is the least that we at home can continue to do."

The fact is, the Treasury and its army of 6,000,000 volunteer bond salesmen have long been ready for the situation that developed today.

It was recognized that victory over Germany might come on the eve of the drive. It was recognized, too, that V-E day would not decrease the need of achieving the unprecedented $7,000,000,000 quota for individual bond buyers and an additional $7,000,000,000 from corporations (total quota $14,000,000,000).

Instructions went out months ago to concentrate on the Pacific war in all preparations for the drive. The Pacific theater provided the official poster, based on the Associated Press photo of the Marines raising the flag on Mount Suribachi.

Volunteer salesmen were asked to be ready to work harder than ever—in the event of a European victory—in order to conquer any possible tendency to relax in bond buying.

Secretary Morgenthau said today: "War expenditures during March were the greatest for any month of this war. That is every indication that there will be a high level of expenditure for many months.

Men Must Be Transferred

"Millions of men must be transferred to the Pacific theater. New equipment and increased quantities of supplies must be shipped across the world's widest ocean. And our national obligation to the men wounded in battle or otherwise disabled, and to those die-charged when their services are no longer required, is constantly mounting.

"I feel confident that the American people, inspired by victory over the Nazis, and recognizing the seriousness of the struggle still ahead in the Pacific, will make the Seventh War Loan an outstanding success.

"That success will say 'Well done' to our men in Europe. It will give our men in the Pacific the tools of victory. It will serve new notice upon the Japanese warlords that their days are numbered. It will provide the best possible anti-inflation insurance."

TO USE PRISONERS

Washington, May 8 (A. P.).—German war prisoners still are slated for a key role in helping solve this country's food production problems.

Representative Anderson (D.-N. M.), chairman of the House Food Investigating Committee, said Army officials told the group the War Department plans:

1. To retain German prisoners here for use as farm laborers through the fall harvesting season.

2. To use a good share of prisoners now en route form Europe for similar work, particularly in sugar bee tareas.

3. To move prisoners from place to place to meet man power requirements certified by the War Food Administration and War Manpower Commission.

"Farmers everywhere have been worried tha tthe war's end would mean the end of their prisonerhelp," Anderson told a reporter.

"Well, this is not true. The Army men assured us that it would be several months before the prisoners could be returned and that they would be used to the best advantage meanwhile.

"They will be a key unit in our farm labor force."

Private Transport Plane Manufacture Okayed

Washington, May 8 (AP)—The aviation industry was authorized today to resume the manufacture of transport planes for American Airlines.

The War Production Board stipulated however that production of civilian transport must not be allowed to interfere with military schedules.

This means, in effect that an aircraft company which can fulfill its military commitments and still make transport planes now is authorized to do so.

"Military requirements for ma ment must come first," Chairman J. A. Krug said.

The action probably will result in airlines obtaining their first new planes late in the year or early in 1946.

Top Heroes Free to Retire

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP) — Soldiers who have received the Congressional Medal of Honor, with the exception of regular Army officers, will be discharged from service on request, the War Department announced today. NEW PEARL HARBOR PROBE IS PLANNED

WASHINGTON, May 8. — (AP) Admiral Henry K. Hewitt has been assigned by Secretary Forrestal to conduct the secretary's continuing investigation of the Pearl Harbar catastrophe, it was learned today.

Hewitt, whose home is in Hackensack, N. Y., until recently was commander of the Eighth Fleet and U. S. Naval forces in northwest African waters. He has been relieved to take his new post.

Forrestal announced last Dec. 1, that the Navy's formal court of inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster had developed no evidence to warrant trial by general court martial of "any person or persons in the naval service."

The secretary said, however, he was not satisfied that the investigation had gone "to the point of exhaustion of all possible evidence."

BLACK MARKETS FACE U. S. TAX CLUB

MAY 9 1945

Washington, May 8 (A. P.).—Secretary Morgenthau today called black marketeers enemies of society and pledged the Treasury Department to do its utmost to uncover them.

In a letter to Attorney General Biddle, Morgenthau praised the Justice Department's conduct of the case against Robert Gould, Cincinnati, convicted last week in Covington, Ky., of violating liquor price ceilings. Treasury agents initiated the case.

Morgenthau said that the Treasury is still deeply interested in Gould's income tax. Gould, who owns distilleries in Kentucky, was sentenced in a Federal court to serve six years and pay a $240,000 fine.

"A considerable number of the black market operators attempt to evade income and other taxes," Morgenthau wrote to Biddle. "We in the Treasury are determined to do our utmost to identify these enemies of society and perfect cases against them."

CONTINUED EFFORT PLEDGED BY LABOR

Washington, May 8 (A. P.).—Labor hailed today's V-E proclamation but noted that the job ahead is tough.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L.: "V-E day is cause for deep rejoicing, but the workers of America cannot relax their efforts yet. Half the job of winning the war—the most important half—is now over, but a great deal of hard fighting and hard work still lies ahead before Japan is conquered and world peace restored. American soldiers of production cannot afford to pause or falter until the entire job is completed and final victory achieved."

Philip Murray, C. I. O. president: "The world is at last saved from the Nazi menace. Japan is not yet conquered. The courage, patience and superb fighting qualities of our sons and brothers in the fighting forces must still be backed up on the home front. This is no time to quit buying War Bonds. For many months yet ahead of us, we must help to meet the pay rolls and to pay the food and supply bills of those great fighters of whom we are so justly proud."

The A. F. of L. executive council: "Labor will not pause or relax until the entire job is completed and final worldwide victory is won."

Flags at Half-Staff Until Next Monday

MAY 9 1945

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP).—The American flag, lowered to half-staff last month in memory of President Roosevelt, should continue to be displayed, notwithstanding victory in Europe

Jonathan Daniels, White House press secretary clarified the point in response to questions whether the flag could not now be raised to full staff in view of the V-E proclamation.

He called attention to the thirty-day mourning period proclaimed by President Truman on Mr. Roosevelt's death and said that proclamation had a double maening now in view of Mr. Truman's statement today memorializing the thousands of Americans who died to make victory possible.

Mourning will end May 14.

WAR CRIMES POLICY

Washington, May 8 (A. P.).—The House unanimously approved yesterday legislation laying down a firm policy for dealing with war criminals.

The language was sufficiently broad to cover the use of force to obtain custody from neutrals.

The resolution, adopted by voice vote and sent to the Senate, gives notice to enemy Powers and neutral nations:

"It is the sense of the Congress that it should be the policy of the Government and its agencies and Representatives" to co-operate with other nations in punishing criminals and in using "such means as may be neceessary to secure the person or property" of criminals "who have already fled or who may hereafter flee to any neutral nation."

Pulitzer Prizes Won By Boyle, Rosenthal, Hersey and 'Harvey'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Two Associated Press staff members on war assignments have been awarded 1944 Pulitzer Prize awards.

Harold V. (Hal) Boyle, AP war correspondent, won the distinguished correspondence award of $500 for his day-by-day story during 1944 of the American foot soldier in the battle for Europe.

Joe Rosenthal, AP photographer, native of Washington, was honored for his inspiring picture of Marines raising the Stars and Stripes on Iwo Jima. The historic picture, taken for the wartime still picture pool, was made in 1945—technically too late for a 1944 prize—but exception was made for "this distinguished example," the announcement said.

The prize for the most distinguished novel of 1944 went to John Hersey for "A Bell for Adano," and Mary Chase's "Harvey" was cited as the best original American play.

Potter Gets Editorial Prize.

George W. Potter, chief editorial writer for the Providence Journal-Bulletin, received a prize for his editorials published during 1944, especially those dealing with freedom of the press.

In awarding the $500 prize to Mr. Potter the announcement said his editorials "expressed accurately and pertinently the American view of freedom of the press."

Established under the will of Joseph Pulitzer, the awards have been made annually since 1917 by Columbia University trustees on the recommendations of the Graduate School of Journalism's Advisory Board.

Mr. Boyle's award was based on "clearness and terseness of style, preference being given to fair, judicious, well-balanced and well-informed interpretative writing, which shall make clear the significance of the subject covered in the correspondence or which shall promote international understanding and appreciation."

Joined A. P. as Office Boy.

The 34-year-old Missourian, who joined the Associated Press as office boy, went ashore with the invasion force at North Africa and followed through at Sicily and Italy and Normandy, into the heart of Germany.

Frequently he has turned out five to a dozen spot stories daily, in addition to his column, "Leaves From a War Correspondent's Notebook."

Mr. Rosenthal, whose picture was made the official emblem of the Seventh War Loan, had been rejected by the Army, Navy and as a Marine Corps photographer because of bad eyes—but went through the bloody fighting of Iwo Jima as an Associated Press cameraman.

No picture that has come out of the war has stirred the American public as much as his dramatic shot of the flag raising on Mount Suribachi.

Other journalism prizes:

Detroit Free Press for "the most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper," a $500 gold medal. The award was based on the newspaper's investigation of "legislative graft and corruption at Lansing, Mich."

Sergt. Mauldin Honored.

Sergt. Bill Mauldin, United Feature Syndicate cartoonist, for "a distinguished example of a cartoonist's work," $500. Sergt. Mauldin caricatures the battle-worn GI in "Up Front With Mauldin."

James B. Reston of the New York Times for "a distinguished example of the telegraphic reporting on national affairs," $500. The award was for his articles on the Dumbarton Oaks Security Conference.

Mark S. Watson, military correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, for his stories on international affairs from Washington, London and the fronts in Sicily, Italy and France.

Jack S. McDowell of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, for "a distinguished example of a reporter's work," $500, based on his campaign to encourage blood donations. In the course of the campaign he gave a blood donation, flew to the Southwest Pacific to see it used and returned to write a series of articles.

In a special citation, the Advisory Board commended the work of American newspaper mapmakers.

Bonsal Receives Award.

Stephen Bonsal, author of "Unfinished Business," in the United States history division.

Russell Blaine Nye, author of George Brancroft, Brahmin Rebel," for American biography.

Karl Shapiro, author of "V-Letter and Other Poems."

The Pulitzer Prize in music was awarded to Aaron Copland for his ballet "Appalachian Spring."

The music and literary awards each were $500.

Vincent De Gregorio of New York City won a $1,500 scholarship awarded annually to a promising art student. The board deferred the announcement of the winners of three traveling scholarships to Columbia School of Journalism graduates.

Mrs. Roosevelt Expresses Husband's Sentiments

New York, May 8 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, speaking to the soldier, workers and civilians of the country in a V-E day broadcast today, declared, "I know that my husband would want me to say to you . . . that he is grateful to each and every one of you.

"I think also that he would want to say that we must go on with every power that we have until the war is fully won and that after that we must give all the backing we can to our own President and to the heads of the Allied nations and win through to a permanent peace," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "That was the main object that my husband fought for. That is the goal which we must never lose sight of.

"There will be difficulties," she continued. "There will be times when it will be hard to understand other nations and their leaders, but the goal is there and in one way or another our leaders and our people must fight through to a permanent peace. That is the only way that we as a nation can feel compensation for the sacrifice of thousands of young lives in our country and in other countries."

She closed by saying that it was a wonderful thing to be a private citizen and "stand side by side with all the other citizens of this great country."

China Plans Modern Physiology Institute

NEW YORK—(AP) Dr. S. C. Shen, representative of the Chinese ministry of education, is here buying equipment to set up a national institute of physiology in China.

The institute, built on the concept of preventing disease before it strikes, will direct its principal attention to the nutritions of Chinese children.

Under Dr. Shen's plan China will get its first ultracentrifuge—a centrifugal device which gives small particles great weight and is used to separate otherwise inseparable compounds for study.

New York, May 8 (AP)—The Aircraft War Production Council, East Coast, Inc., today pledged to President Truman its "continued cooperation in producing airplanes on schedule to meet the requirements of the armed forces" in hastening the victory over Japan.

DEWEY URGES HARDER WORK

Governor Calls for Quick Defeat of Japanese.

MAY 9 1945

Albany, May 8 (A. P.).—Gov. Dewey today called the surrender of Germany "the second step in the complete crushing by the United Nations of the enemies of mankind" and urged all on the home front to "work harder each day so that our fighting men in the Pacific theater will win victory at the earliest possible moment." He issued this statement following President Truman's victory proclamation:

"The surrender of Nazi Germany represents the second step in the complete crushing by the United Nations of the enemies of mankind who sought to enslave the freedom-loving people of the world.

"Europe is now cleansed of the brutal, swaggering, brown-shirt legions of Adolf Hitler and the Black Shirts of Benito Mussolini.

"Throughout the world all men of good will are giving thanks to Almighty God for the triumph in Europe of Allied arms. But they know in their hearts that now is the time to strengthen all effort for final victory over the last remaining aggressor—the Japanese.

Let all of us here on the home front vow to work harder each day so that our fighting men in the Pacific theater will win victory at the earliest possible moment. Victory—complete victory—can never be won and a just and lasting peace can never be established until the Japanese Empire is beaten to its knees and surrenders unconditionally to the fighting forces of the United Nations."

Last week, Gov. Dewey asked New York State residents to observe V-E day with prayers. State employees were given time off today to attend church.

BISHOP O'HARA TAKES OFFICE

Is Installed at Buffalo in Colorful Ceremony.

MAY 9 1945

Buffalo, May 8 (AP)—The Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., was installed today as eighth Bishop of Buffalo in colorful, centuries-old rites in St. Joseph's Cathedral before the largest gathering of the Catholic hierarchy ever assembled in this city.

Bishop O'Hara, a former president of Notre Dame University, had served as Military Delegate of the armed forces and as an auxiliary to Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York, who officiated as the installing prelate.

Pontificating at the mass of installation was the Most Rev. Joseph A. Burke, administrator of the diocese since the death last September of Bishop O'Hara's predecessor, the Most Rev. John A. Duffy.

Speaks of Task Ahead.

"Today, by the grace of God and the favor of the Apostolic See," Bishop O'Hara said at the mass, "I am called upon to take up a task laid down by your beloved Bishop Duffy when God called him to his reward.

"Your demonstration of loyalty and zeal moves me deeply. It would be hard to approach this task without a sense of unworthiness. We cannot meditate long on the greatness of God without experiencing a sense of devastation, yet meditation on God's greatness leads quickly to an appreciation of His goodness, His Mercy and His love.

"The task before us then is to do what in us lies to save the souls of one another. If we regard the complexity of modern life, if we fix our attention on the evil in the world and the countless ways that lead to destruction, the task may appear baffling. But we must not make the mistake of looking at God's work with only human eyes. If we adopt God's point of view the task becomes simple. The lessons for this were taught in ancient times by the prophets, lessons which were renewed and brought to full perfection by the Son of God, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ."

Procession Precedes Mass.

Preceding the Mass a procession of eight archbishops, twenty-eight bishops, diocesan clergy, religious groups and various diocesan organizations treaded its way to the cathedral along a route bedecked with yellow and white Papal banners and American flags.

Among the archbishops were: Archbishop Spellman; the Most Rev. James C. McGuigan, Toronto, Ont.; the Most Rev. Thomas J. Walsh, Newark, N. J.; the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, Detroit; the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Boston; the Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P., Cincinnati, Ohio; the Most Rev. Alexander Vachon, Ottawa, and the Most Rev. Joseph E. Ritter, Indianapolis.

The visiting members of the hierarchy ranged themselves in a semi-circle around the altar as the ritual began with the mass. After the Apostolic letter of appointment was read and Bishop O'Hara had donned the robes of his new office, he imparted his first Pontifical blessing to his new flock.

The most dramatic moment of the ceremony occurred when Archbishop Spellman conducted Bishop O'Hara to the permanent throne, symbolic of his actual installation.

The ritual concluded as priests of the eight western New York counties which comprise the diocese made the traditional promise of obedience, kissed their new Bishop's ring, and filed past into the outgoing procession.

WREATH ON FDR'S GRAVE

After announcing the European victory to the nation from Washington this morning, expressing the wish that "Franklin D. Roosevelt had lived to witness this day," the President ordered flowers placed at the grave on the Roosevelt estate.

Paper Defies Army Censor, Prints Full Prison Camp Story

MAY 9 1945

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, Ohio, May 8.—The Newark Advocate today challenged the War Department's Bureau of Public Relations' deletions in a story which the daily newspaper published about a prisoner of war camp for Germans at Cambridge, Ohio.

The story, written by Staff Writer William W. Diehl, was submitted to the Army for review. The Army made deletions.

The Advocate, disregarding the deletions, printed the original story under a note which said in part:

"The changes and deletions made by the Army censor, in the opinion of this newspaper, are not justified. Since the information contained in the story in no way involves military security, we believe it should be printed as originally written."

The deletions were made at headquarters of the 5th Service Command in Columbus.

Col. Luther L. Hill, acting director of the War Department Bureau of Public Relations in Washington, requested that the newspaper explain why a signed agreement, to abide by the decision of the authority reviewing the story, "was violated."

Mr. Diehl replied that when he signed a form before entering the prisoner of war camp he was not aware it was an agreement to print only what the Army approved.

The story compared the food served to the Germans with food reported to have been served Americans in German camps, and also reported on certain camp conditions against the Army's wishes.

Mr. Diehl said when he signed the agreement, "I was under the impression it was a guest list, or some kind of pass."

Col. Hill wrote:

"With regard to the general prisoners of war, there are circumstances when stories gathered within prisoner-of-war camps may seem to have no direct military security and yet could affect vitally the safety of our men held prisoner by the Germans. I do not know that your story will do so, but it cannot be left to the individual judgment of each vistor to an Army post to determine the boundary lines of security and safety for our men."

Mr. Diehl replied:

"You state that publication of my story might reflect on the treatment of our boys in Germans camps. By letting the Germans know we are treating their men so splendidly, how, in Heaven's name, could that make them angry and cause them to be more bitter? If I had related that we were mistreating their men, that certainly would be a horse of another color."

The 5th Service Command public relations office had no comment.

Mexican Notables Help Launch Victory Ship

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Calif., May 8.—High Mexican notables participated in the launching of the 705th ship, the Northeastern Victory, named for Northeastern University in Boston, from the ways of the Kaiser yards here last night.

Sponsor of the new Victory ship was Mrs. Maria Guadalupe C. Padilla, wife of the Mexican secretary of foreign affairs. "Triggerman" operating the launching mechanism was Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, Ambassador to the United States. Married to Two Servicemen, Wife Would Stay Wed to First LONG BEACH, Calif., May 8. — To Army Lt. Harold W. Goad in a Calcutta hospital: Your wife says she wants you as her husband and not the man she married after you were officially reported dead.

Mrs. Helen MacDowell, 23, made up her mind today, and of husband No. 2, Ens. Robert A. MacDowell, now on Pacific duty, she told reporters:

"Somebody's got to be hurt in a thing like this. For that I am sorry."

Goad's bomber exploded Oct. 14, 1943, over Japanese-held Burma. The 27-year-old pilot was blown through the roof and with two other crewmen, survived. The War department reported him dead a year later, but after 18 months in Japanese captivity Goad and his companions were liberated with the British capture of Rangoon.

"If I had known he was alive this never would have happened," petite, blonde Mrs. MacDowell said today of her marriage last December to Ens. MacDowell.

"I hope he (Lt. Goad) feels the same way about me. I don't think he believed my cable. Maybe he thinks it was sympathy because he was in a hospital. But it wasn't. I meant it with all my heart."

Her cablegram had said: "Darling, am so glad to hear you are alive. Will see you soon. I love you with all my heart."

Today she said she hadn't yet made plans for the legal mechanics of obtaining an annulment of her second marriage. She said she was leaving for the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Zuhras, Portsmouth, Ohio, to await a telephone call from Lt. Goad.

MOLOTOV LEAVING FOR RUSSIA TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8 — (AP) Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov will leave San Francisco tomorrow for Moscow, it was learned today, leaving the Big 3 deadlock over Poland unbroken.

Molotov is turning the chairmanship of the Soviet delegation at the United Nations conference over to Ambassador Andrei Gromyko. Several days ago it was disclosed that Molotov planned to leave shortly. Gromyko was the previous Russian choice for the delegation chairmanship, before President Truman suggested to Marshal Stalin that he send his top foreign affairs man here.

The United States and British ambassadors to Moscow, W. Averell Harriman and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, members of the three-power commission with Molotov for reorganization of the Polish provisional government also will leave San Francisco tomorrow.

The Soviet Union has not replied to the American and British request for an explanation of the arrest of 16 Polish underground leaders, it was learned. Nor is a reply, which was made the American and British condition for resumption of negotiations on Poland, yet in sight.

Molotov was host tonight at a mammoth cocktail party in honor of the newly arrived delegations to the United Nations conference of the Ukrainian and White Russian Soviet Republics.

High diplomatic sources said there was no immediate prospect of resuming negotiations for a new Polish government. These were broken off after Molotov informed Stettinius and Eden of the arrest of sixteen Polish leaders, some of whom had been suggested by the Americans and British as possible members of a broadened Warsaw regime.

The return of Harriman and Clark-Kerr to Moscow with Molotov, however, made it possible that negotiations would be resumed on the basis of the Big Three agreements at Yalta, if the Russians did provide a satisfactory explanation of the Polish arrests.

Big Three Chiefs Expected to Call Meeting Soon

MAY 9 1945

Nazis' Defeat Raises Urgent Problems For Allied Leaders

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—A meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin is expected by United Nations diplomats to be arranged soon.

These authorities believe that only a gathering of the Big Three—probably somewhere in the European area—can solve some of the urgent problems now arising from the total defeat of Germany and lay the basic plans for restoring civil order and real peace to Europe.

These are regarded as problems linked closely to the job, being rushed forward by the United Nations Conference, of creating a permanent organization to maintain peace and security throughout the world.

Speed Demands Reinforced.

The immediate impact of the ending of the European war is to reinforce demands of Secretary of State Stettinius, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Russian Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov and other leaders that the conference lose no time in finishing its task, now considered a little less than half done.

Meanwhile, V-E day found ranking diplomats of the big powers agreed on another major matter in addition to the general security system. This is that the powers should take separate but parallel measures to make sure that for the next half century or so Germany will be denied the resources and industrial development necessary to plunge the world into another war.

One possible step understood to have received some consideration from high officials is a treaty among the victor nations specifically pledging them to stand ready to take up arms against Germany.

In Line With Vandenberg Plan.

The United States may lead in working out such a pact, which is regarded in American quarters as being in line with a plan put forward by Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan several months ago for a long-time alliance against Germany.

The proposed United Nations charter as the Big Four powers have agreed to change it would permit such a treaty to work independently of the inner Security Council of the world organization. An amendment sponsored by the United States delegation and finally accepted by Russia specifically exempts from the council's authority those pacts made against the enemy nations of this war.

Whether there will be a general peace conference within the next two or three years is an open question among American and other diplomats here at the moment. Such a conference would deal with territorial settlements in Europe and elsewhere in the world if it is held after the Pacific war has ended.

The same decisions might be made, however, by a series of lesser meetings. One of the problems seen as confronting the Big Three leaders is a decision on which of these methods they think would be most effective in producing fair and lasting settlements.

Reparations Problem Urgent.

One problem even more urgent is that of German reparations. The late President Roosevelt agreed with Stalin and Churchill at the Yalta Conference in February that reparations should be made in machinery and goods. A reparations commission was set up to work at Moscow but so far has reported accomplishing nothing.

Yet the process of completely wrecking Germany's war-making industries, which was also agreed on at Yalta and which is expected to be undertaken without delay by Allied occupation armies, will release a considerable amount of machinery which may be taken by the European Allies as reparations. Russian and French demands for German labor to rebuild devastated cities also are yet to be worked into formal agreements. The subject was brought up but not settled at Yalta.

Despite these open questions, American authorities consider that the job of restoring peace is far ahead of what it was at the close of the last war.

Ahead of World War Schedule.

The Versailles Conference was held months after the 1918 armistice. This time the enemy's unconditional surrender means there is no armistice period, and the fact that the San Francisco Conference is already under way means that a world league can start functioning in about a year. Thus the problem of organizing for peace has been separated from the tasks of liquidating the war and rushed a full year ahead of the World War schedule.

There is also some hope among Americans, British and other officials here that a Big Three meeting could speed a final settlement of the Polish situation to remove the most disruptive single element in Anglo-American-Russian relations. All hope of ironing out this difficulty in foreign minister meetings at San Francisco appears to have vanished.

Action Demanded To Improve World's Standard of Living

MAY 9 1945

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—France, Australia and Canada are taking the lead here in the demand that an economic council of the United Nations have definite power to raise the world's living standard and improve labor conditions.

The original provisions for an economic council, written at Dumbarton Oaks in Washington by the United States, United Kingdom, Russia and China, have been dubbed "too vague" by several delegates.

There was little change in the Big Four ideas about the council when they announced the charter amendments for which they would stand.

As the Big Four originally wrote [illegible]lan, 18 nations would be elected [illegible]e economic council by the full assembly of nations. They would have the right to make recommendations (the provisions do not say to whom) on economic, social and humanitarian matters. They would do studies for the security council (the central agency of the world organization) but only on request.

Now the French are asking a provision that would empower the economic council to press for action in the security council whenever the economic specialists feel that some condition of world trade, or exploited labor, or difficulty over buying raw materials, such as oil, rubber and tin, threaten the peace.

France is the sole nation demanding that the United Nations set up a special commission under the economic council with the power to allocate raw materials when any United Nation protests that it cannot get its fair share.

Foreign Minister Herbert Evatt of Australia is asking that the economic council receive annual reports from all United Nations on what they have done to improve the condition of working people. That provision is understood to have strong opposition from Russia, which has battled at all United Nations meetings against detailing its domestic actions.

Relief Agencies Would Sit In

San Francisco, May 8 (A. P.).—Canadians at the United Nations conference said today they want representatives of existing economic and social agencies to sit in on conference committee deliberations.

Organizations involved include the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, the International Labor Organization, Food and Agriculture Organizations and the Economic and Financial Committee of the League of Nations. The purpose, the Canadians say, is to strengthen the economic and social side of the functioning of the proposed world peacekeeping organization.

Asserts Dead 'Have Given Us One More Chance'

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8 (AP).—Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr., said today the end of the war in Europe "has given new urgency to the work of the conference of United Nations."

In an address prepared for radio delivery, Mr. Stettinius said that American dead and wounded in the war "have given us one more chance to build a world order free from war," he added:

"We remember also that Germany has been defeated only because the United Nations joined their strength in the common cause, and that lasting peace will be possible only if they unite their strength."

In a radio talk to Canada, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said that "the end of warfare in Europe is not the end of the war. There is still another enemy. The United Nations have still to bring about the unconditional surrender of Japan."

LONDON MAY 8-(AP)-THE TRIUMPHANT THUNDER OF V-E DAY ECHOED THROUGHOUT THE CIVILIZED WORLD TODAY.

SIMULTANEOUS ANNOUNCEMENTS IN LONDON, WASHINGTON AND MOSCOW WERE EXPECTED TO MAKE THE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OF GERMANY OFFICIAL AFTER FIVE YEARS, EIGHT MONTHS AND SEVEN DAYS OF THE BLOODIEST AND MOST DESTRUCTIVE WAR THE WORLD HAS EVER KNOWN. THE GERMAN NATION, WHICH TWICE IN TWO TUMULTUOUS DECADES HAD PLUNGED THE WORLD INTO CONFLICT, LAY SHATTERED IN DECISIVE DEFEAT.

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, WHO IN BRITAIN'S DARKEST HOUR PROMISED HER BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS, BUT ALSO PLEDGED HER ULTIMATE VICTORY, WAS READY TO ANNOUNCE THE FULFILLMENT OF THAT PLEDGE. HE PREPARED TO STEP TO THE MICROPHONE AT 3 P.M.(9 A.M., EASTERN WAR TIME) AND PROCLAIM THE VICTORY SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN AND PREMIER MARSHAL STALIN.

KING GEORGE WILL SPEAK TO THE BRITISH PEOPLE AT 9 P.M.(3 P.M., EASTERN WAR TIME). GEN.EISENHOWER, ARCHITECT OF VICTORY IN THE WEST; FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY, WHO CHASED THE NAZIS ACROSS AFRICA, FRANCE AND THE FATHERLAND, AND FIELD MARSHAL SIR HAROLD ALEXANDER, WHO CARVED OUT VICTORY IN THE SOUTH, ALSO WILL BE HEARD.

THE PRIME MINISTER'S BROADCAST WAS SCHEDULED FOR HISTORIC TEN DOWNING STREET.

CHURCHILL PLANNED TO MAKE A STATEMENT IN COMMONS, AFTER WHICH THE MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT WERE TO ADJOURN TO WESTMINSTER ABBEY FOR SERVICES OF THANKSGIVING. THE PRIME MINISTER WAS SAID TO BE PLANNING A BROADCAST THURSDAY NIGHT--THE FIFTH AND HAPPIEST ANNIVERSARY OF HIS ASSUMPTION OF THE WARTIME LEADERSHIP OF BRITAIN.

JOY WAS UNRESTRAINED IN BRITAIN AFTER A NIGHT OF WILD CELEBRATION. THIS DAY AND TOMORROW WILL BE HOLIDAYS FOR BRITONS--EARNED BY THE TORTURE OF ALMOST SIX YEARS OF WAR AGAINST AN ENEMY WHO MADE NO DISTINCTION BETWEEN CIVILIANS AND SOLDIERS. THEN THEY WILL ROLL UP THEIR SLEEVES AND LOOK IN THE DIRECTION OF JAPAN.

THE WEHRMACHT, FOR LONG YEARS THE DREAD OF EUROPE, THRASHED ABOUT IN ITS DEATH AGONIES. EVEN THE BITTEREST DIE-HARD NAZIS, WHO FOUGHT ON ARROGANTLY IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, HAD GIVEN UP THE GHOST. THE PARTISAN-CONTROLLED CZECH RADIO SAID THE GERMANS IN PRAGUE AND BOHEMIA HAD ACCEPTED UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

NORWEGIANS, ENSLAVED FOR FIVE YEARS, SAW ALLIED SHIPS ENTER THEIR HARBORS AS NAZI TROOPS WAITED SULLENLY BUT PEACEFULLY IN BARRACKS.

THE LAST FEW HISTORY-PACKED WEEKS IN WHICH THE ALLIES AND THE RUSSIANS ADMINISTERED AN UNMERCIFUL DRUBBING TO GERMAN ARMS WERE BROUGHT TO A CRASHING CLIMAX YESTERDAY. A DRAMATIC DISPATCH FROM EDWARD KENNEDY, CHIEF OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WESTERN FRONT STAFF, TOLD THE WORLD THAT THE GERMANS HAD SURRENDERED UNCONDITIONALLY.

FOR THE SOLDIERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS--AND FOR THE CIVILIANS--IT WAS A TIME FOR REJOICING.

WHILE THOUSANDS OF SERVICEMEN FROM BRITAIN, AMERICA, CANADA AND THE REST OF THE ALLIED NATIONS JOIN WITH THE CITIZENS OF BRITAIN TONIGHT IN THE CELEBRATION, THE SKIES OVER THIS STAUNCH CAPITAL WILL BE BATHED BY SEARCHLIGHTS. THE CITY THAT WAS DARKENED FOR ALMOST SIX YEARS WILL BLAZE WITH BRILLIANCE.

BEFORE AND AFTER THE KING'S SPEECH TONIGHT, A GREAT SALVO OF VICTORY GUNFIRE IS PLANNED.

ALLIED FIGHTING MEN, THE MAJORITY OF THEM AMERICAN, JAMMED THE STREETS OF LONDON. PROMISED AN ADDITIONAL 48-HOUR LEAVE ON V-E DAY, THEY WERE IMPATIENT FOR THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TO COME. BUT THE CELEBRATION WAS WELL AHEAD OF TIME. AS SOON AS THE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OF THE NAZIS WAS A CERTAINTY, IT BEGAN IN EARNEST.

THE EXCLUSIVE ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS--FIRST WORD THE WORLD HEARD OF GERMANY'S FORMAL CAPITULATION--SENT BOTH CIVILIANS AND SERVICEMEN INTO WILD DEMONSTRATIONS OF JOY.

LONDON MAY 8-(AP)-THE END OF THE WAR IN EUROPE CARRIED MILLIONS OF BRITISH WOMEN TODAY CLOSER TO THEIR OWN SPECIAL VICTORY, THE "H DAY" OF HOME LIFE AND FULL DEMOBILIZATION AFTER NEARLY SIX YEARS OF SERVICE.

MAY 9 1945

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY, THIS WAR SAW CONSCRIPTION OF WOMEN IN BRITAIN. MARSHALING OF WOMANPOWER FOR NATIONAL SERVICE WAS COMPLETE AND EFFICIENT.

SIX MONTHS BEFORE THE DECLARATION OF WAR ABOUT 155,000 WOMEN ALREADY HAD ENROLLED VOLUNTARILY FOR NATIONAL SERVICE.

A RECENT GOVERNMENT WHITE PAPER DISCLOSED THAT BY THE MIDDLE OF 1944, OUT OF 16,000,000 BRITISH GIRLS AND WOMEN BETWEEN THE AGES OF 14 AND 59, SOME 7,100,000 WERE IN AUXILIARY SERVICES, FULL-TIME CIVIL DEFENSE OR INDUSTRY, 900,000 WERE DOING PART-TIME WORK IN INDUSTRY AND 350,000 WERE ENGAGED IN PART-TIME CIVIL DEFENSE--MAKING A TOTAL OF MORE THAN HALF OF BRITAIN'S WOMANKIND ENLISTED IN THE WAR EFFORT.

THOUSANDS OF THEM TACKLED JOBS NO WOMAN EVER HAD DONE BEFORE, SUCH AS SERVING IN ANTIAIRCRAFT FREWS AND AT BARRAGE BALLOON SITES, AS FIREFIGHTERS DURING THE AIR BATTLE OF BRITAIN AND THE BUZZ AND ROCKET BOMB ORDEALS, AS MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL OBSERVER CORPS AND AS AIRPLANE FERRY PILOTS.

MANY WOMEN IN THE AUXILIARY SERVICES AND WITH THE ENSA (BRITISH USO SERVED CLOSE TO THE FRONT LINES IN AFRICA, ASIA AND EUROPE. WAAF (WOMEN'S AUXILIARY ARMY FORCE) NURSING ORDERLIES LANDED ON THE NORMANDY INVASION COAST AND BROUGHT BACK THE FIRST BRITISH WOUNDED BY AIR, AND WRENS TOILED AROUND THE CLOCK HELPING MAINTAIN A 24-HOUR SCHEDULE OF CROSS-CHANNEL FERRY BOATS BEARING FOOD, AMMUNITION AND EQUIPMENT. THEN THE ATS (AUXILIARY TERRITORIAL SERVICE) WENT TO FRANCE AND TOOK OVER MANY JOBS PREVIOUSLY PERFORMED BY MEN BEHIND THE LINES, WHILE GIRLS OF THE NAAFI, BRITAIN'S CANTEEN SERVICE, SET UP SHOP, FOLLOWED BY ENSA'S TROUPES.

JAPAN NOT ONLY MUST FACE THE VICTORIOUS WESTERN ALLIES, BUT PERHAPS RUSSIA AS WELL.

BECAUSE OF JAPAN, SURRENDER IN EUROPE CANNOT HAVE THE MEANING IT MIGHT HAVE FOR THE 4,000,000 U.S.SOLDIERS IN EUROPE WHO HELPED TO WIN THE GREAT VICTORY.

FOR MOST OF THEM THE WAR WILL ONLY CHANGE SCENERY. FOR OTHERS VICTORY IN EUROPE MEANS A JOB OF OCCUPYING THE TORN AND HUMBLED REICH, SHOT WITH HATE, HUNGER AND DISEASE.

EVEN FOR THE SOLDIERS WHO MAY GO HOME THERE WILL BE WEEKS, EVEN MONTHS OF WAITING BECAUSE OF THE DRAIN OF TRANSPORT TO FEED MEN, GUNS, TANKS AND SUPPLIES INTO THE INTENSIFIED WAR ON JAPAN.

PARIS, MAY 8-(AP)-FIELD MARSHALL MONTGOMERY'S STATEMENT:

ON THIS DAY OF VICTORY IN EUROPE, I FEEL I WOULD LIKE TO SPEAK TO ALL WHO HAVE SERVED AND FOUGHT WITH ME DURING THE LAST FEW YEARS. WHAT I HAVE TO SAY IS VERY SIMPLE AND QUITE SHORT. I WOULD ASK YOU ALL TO REMEMBER THOSE OF OUR COMRADES WHO FELL IN THE STRUGGLE. THEY GAVE THEIR LIVES THAT OTHERS MIGHT HAVE FREEDOM, AND NO MAN CAN DO MORE THAN THAT. I BELIEVE THAT HE WOULD SAY TO EACH ONE OF THEM, "WELL DONE, THOU GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANT."

WE WHO REMAIN HAVE SEEN THE THING THROUGH TO THE END. WE ALL HAVE A FEELING OF GREAT JOY AND THAMKFULNESS THAT WE HAVE BEEN PRESERVED TO SEE THIS DAY. WE MUST REMEMBER TO GIVE THE PRAISE AND THANKFULNESS WHERE IT IS DUE. THIS IS THE LORD'S WORK, AND IT IS MARVELOUS IN OUR EYES.

IN THE EARLY DAYS OF THIS WAR, THE BRITISH EMPIRE STOOD ALONE AGAINST THE COMBINED MIGHT OF THE AXIS POWERS, AND DURING THOSE DAYS WE SUFFERED FROM GREAT DISASTERS, BUT WE STOOD FIRM ON THE DEFENSIVE, BUT STRIKING BLOWS WHERE WE COULD. LATER, WE WERE JOINED BY RUSSIA AND AMERICA--AND, FORM THEN ONWARD, THE END WAS IN NO DOUBT. LET US NEVER FORGET WHAT WE OWE TO OUR RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN ALLIES. THIS GREAT ALLIED TEAM HAS ACHIEVED MUCH IN WAR. MAY IT ACHIEVE EVEN MORE IN PEACE.

MAY 9 1945

WITHOUT DOUBT, GREAT PROBLEMS LIE AHEAD. THE WORLD WILL NOT RECOVER QUICKLY FROM THE UPHEAVAL THAT HAS TAKEN PLACE. THERE IS MUCH WORK FOR EACH OF US. I WOULD SAY THAT WE MUST FACE UP TO THAT WORK WITH THE SAME FORTITUDE WITH WHICH WE FACED UP TO THE WORST DAYS OF THIS WAR. IT MAY BE THAT SOME DIFFICULT TIMES LIE AHEAD FOR OUR COUNTRY--AND FOR EACH ONE OF US, CERTAINLY. IF IT HAPPENS THUS, THEN OUR DISCIPLINE WILL PULL US THROUGH, BUT WE MUST REMEMBER THAT THE BEST DISCIPLINE IMPLIES THE SUBORDINATION OF SELF FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE COMMUNITY.

IT HAS BEEN A PRIVILEGE AND AN HONOR TO COMMAND THIS GREAT BRITISH EMPIRE TEAM IN WESTERN EUROPE. FEW COMMANDERS CAN HAVE HAD SUCH LOYAL SERVICE AS YOU HAVE GIVEN ME. I THANK EACH ONE OF YOU FROM THE BOTTOM OF MY HEART.

AND SO, LET US EMBARK ON WHAT LIES AHEAD, FULL OF JOY AND OPTIMISM. WE HAVE WON THE GERMAN WAR. LET US NOW WIN THE PEACE. GOOD LUCK TO YOU ALL, WHEREVER YOU MAY BE.

REIMS, FRENCE, MAY 8-(AP)-THE BUSIEST MAN AT THE CONFERENCE THAT BROUGHT THE GERMANS' UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WAS MAJ.GEN.KENNETH WILLIAM DOBSON STRONG, A HANDSOME OFFICER ON GEN.EISENHOWER'S STAFF WHO DID NOT SIT DOWN ONCE DURING THE ENTIRE PROCEEDINGS.

STRONG WALKED ABOUT HANDLING ALL THE IMPORTANT PAPERS, SEEING THAT THEY WERE PROPERLY SIGNED AND EMPLOYING HIS REMARKABLE ABILITY TO SPEAK BOTH FRENCH AND GERMAN TO SEE THAT EVERYONE PRESENT UNDERSTOOD WHAT WAS GOING ON AT ALL TIMES.

AN ASSISTANT MILITARY ATTACHE FOR THE BRITISH EMBASSY IN BERLIN FROM JANUARY, 1938, UNTIL THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR, STRONG HAS BEEN INVALUABLE TO EISENHOWER SINCE THE DAYS OF THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN AND HELPED NEGOTIATE THE SURRENDER OF GERMAN FORCES IN ITALY.

PARIS, WEDNESDAY, MAY 9-(AP)-SOURCES AT SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS BELIEVE GRAND ADMIRAL KARL DOENITZ TOOK OVER THE GOVERNMENT OF GERMANY FOR THE EXPRESS PURPOSE OF MAKING THE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER AND THAT HE WAS IN AGREEMENT WITH HEINRICH HIMMLER AT THE TIME THAT DEFEAT WAS INEVITABLE.

THESE INFORMANTS SAID HIMMLER, GESTAPO CHIEF AND COMMANDER OF THE GERMAN HOME ARMY, AND REICHSMARSHAL HERMANN GOERING WERE WITH DOENITZ AT FLENSBURG, IN GERMANY NEAR THE DANISH FRONTIER. PROPAGANDA MINISTER PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS, THEY SAID, IS DEAD.

PARIS, MAY 8-(AP)-MILITARY AUTHORITIES, ALLIED AND RUSSIAN, BECOME THE SUPREME LAW AND GOVERNMENT IN DEFEATED GERMANY UNTIL A CIVIL ADMINISTRATION CAN BE SET UP, AND THE TASK THAT LIES AHEAD IS GARGANTUAN.

ONE THING SEEMED CERTAIN: THAT BOTH THE ALLIES AND RUSSIANS WOULD INSIST ON SEEING THE BODY OF HITLER AND ESTABLISHING BEYOND ALL DOUBT THAT THE MAN WHO STARTED THE WAR IS REALLY DEAD.

THE AMERICAN 15TH ARMY, WHICH FIGURED LITTLE IN ACTUAL ASSAULT OPERATIONS, BECOMES THE ARMY OF OCCUPATION FOR THE UNITED STATES. BUT FOR THE NEXT FEW MONTHS, AT LEAST, DOZENS OF ADDITIONAL DIVISIONS, WILL BE NEEDED FOR POLICING AND BRINGING ORDER OUT OF CHAOS.

THUS, THOUGH THE EUROPEAN PEACE WOULD SEEM TO RELEASE SOME 70 DIVISIONS OF BATTLE-TESTED AMERICAN TROOPS, IT DOES NOT MEAN THAT THEY WILL ALL BE AVAILABLE FOR DUTY IN THE PACIFIC.

A183

EVEN THOSE TROOPS WHO WILL NEITHER REMAIN HERE NOR GO TO THE PACIFIC WILL NOT GET BACK HOME SOON. IT IS ESTIMATED THAT IT WILL TAKE AS LONG AS 12 MONTHS TO GET THEM ALL BACK TO AMERICA WITHOUT A COMPLETE UPSET OF ESSENTIAL OCEAN TRANSPORT.

THE WESTERN ALLIES GO INTO THE PEACE IN A YET UNCLARIFIED PARTNERSHIP WITH SOVIET RUSSIA. TOGETHER THEY WHIPPED GERMANY AND GEN. EISENHOWER HAS SAID SEVERAL TIMES THAT THE RUSSIANS HAD GIVEN HIM EVERY COOPERATION THAT WAS NECESSARY.

BUT NEITHER SIDE WENT MUCH BEYOND THAT AS FAR AS IT HAS EVER BEEN DISCLOSED, AND WHAT RELATIONS WILL BE IN THE PEACETIME WORLD REMAIN YET TO BE WORKED OUT AND TESTED.

GERMANY, DIVIDED BETWEEN CONTROL OF THE TWO, LIKELY WILL BE ONE OF THE FOREMOST PROVING GROUNDS OF THAT CORRELATION.

PARIS, MAY 8-(AP)-THE WAR IN EUROPE IS OVER. THE VICTORY IS COMPLETE.

IN THE BOMB-BURNED, SHELL-GUTTED RUINS OF THE HOMELAND SHE FOULED WITH HORROR CAMPS, GERMANY HAS SUFFERED THE MOST DEVASTATING DEFEAT OF ANY POWER SINCE ANCIENT HISTORY, WHEN CONQUERORS PLOUGHED UNDER THE CITIES OF THE VANQUISHED AND SOWED THE SOIL WITH SALT.

THE HARD, UNCOMPROMISING DICTATE LAID DOWN AT CASABLANCA BY PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, WHO LIVED TO SEE THE END, AND PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, WHO DID NOT, WAS FOLLOWED TO THE END.

THESE WERE THE TERMS THE GERMANS SIGNED TO THE UNITED NATIONS BATTLE ALLIANCE, WHICH CAME BACK TO VICTORY FROM SO NEAR THE BLACK SHADOWS OF DEFEAT.

"SURRENDER UNCONDITIONALLY TO THE SUPREME COMMANDER, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, AND SIMULTANEOUSLY TO THE SOVIET HIGH COMMAND, ALL FORCES ON LAND, SEA AND IN THE AIR WHO ARE AT THIS DATE UNDER GERMAN CONTROL."

MAY 9 1945

THE GERMANS AGREED TO:

ORDER ALL RESISTANCE HALTED.

YIELD ALL SHIPS AND AIRCRAFT UNSCUTTLED AND UNDAMAGED.

ENSURE COMPLIACE WITH ALL FURTHER ORDERS FROM THE ALLIED SUPREME COMMANDER AND THE SOVIET HIGH COMMAND.

THE SURRENDER INSTRUMENT SPECIFIED THAT NOTHING IT CONTAINED WOULD LIMIT OR RESTRICT ANY TERMS WHICH WOULD LATER BE IMPOSED ON GERMANY. AND IT ENDED WITH THE WARNING:

"IN THE EVENT OF THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND OR ANY OF THE FORCES UNDER THEIR CONTROL FAILING TO ACT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THIS ACT OF SURRENDER, THE SUPREME COMMANDER X X X AND THE SOVIET HIGH COMMAND WILL TAKE SUCH PUNITIVE OR OTHER ACTION AS THEY DEEM APPROPRIATE."

THE HOUR FIXED OFFICIALLY FOR THE END OF HOSTILITIES WAS 12:01--ONE MINUTE AFTER MIDNIGHT--ON WEDNESDAY, MAY 9. (THIS IS 6:01 P.M. TODAY, E.W.T.) HISTORY WILL KNOW THAT AS THE DAY THE WAR ENDED.

A19 MAY 9 1945

ONLY ONE PLEA WAS MADE FOR THE GERMANY WHICH SOUGHT WORLD CONQUEST, TRAMPLED EUROPE AND SHOCKED HUMANITY WITH ATROCITIES.

COL.GEN.GUSTAF JODL, CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE WEHRMACHT AND THE ONLY KNOWN MEMBER OF THE NAZI PARTY IN THE SURRENDER DELEGATION, MADE THAT PLEA FOR THE GERMAN PEOPLE AND GERMAN ARMED FORCES, SAYING:

"I CAN ONLY EXPRESS THE HOPE THAT THE VICTOR WILL TREAT THEM WITH GENEROSITY."

THERE WAS NO RESPONSE.

NIGHT LEAD SURRENDER
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS MAY 9 1945

REIMS, FRANCE, MAY 7 (DELAYED)-(AP)-THE DEATH SENTENCE OF GERMANY'S THIRD REICH AND EUROPE'S CHARTER FOR A NEW ERA OF PEACE WERE SIGNED IN THE PROSAIC BRICK SCHOOL HOUSE OF REIMS BEFORE DAWN TODAY BY THE ENEMY HIGH COMMAND.

IN A DOCUMENT OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER FOREORDAINED BY THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN 28 MONTHS AGO GEN.GUSTAV JODL, CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE WEHRMACHT AND SHAGGY BROWED GEN.ADMIRAL HANS GEORG VON FRIEDEBURG, CHIEF OF THE GERMAN NAVY, ENDED THE MOST HORRIBLE WAR IN THE HISTORY OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION.

SILENTLY WITH TAUT FACES THE TWO WARRIOR SERVANTS OF THE BEATEN AZI EMPIRE PUT THEIR NAMES TO THE CAPITULATION TO THE ARMED FORCES OF ALLIED SUPREME COMMANDER EISENHOWER IN THE WEST AND MARSHAL STALIN IN THE EAST.

THEN, WITH HIS VOICE AND BEARING AS STEADY AS THE PRUSSIAN MILITARY TRADITION DEMANDS, JODL ASKED LEAVE TO SPEAK. ADMITTING NO GUILT OF WAR NOR CONSCIOUSNESS OF THE SUFFERING INFLICTED ON THE REST OF THE WORLD HE APPEALED TO THE VICTORS FOR A "GENEROUS TREATMENT" OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE.

ON THE WALL BEHIND HIS BACK WAS A HUGE CHART TABULATING ALLIED CASUALTIES.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE IN REIMS, WAS GEN.EISENH[illegible] ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS. ON A BIG WOODEN TABLE IN FRONT [illegible] JODL LAY FOUR IDENTICAL DOCUMENTS TO WHICH HE HAD JUST AFFIXED HIS SIGNATURE. THERE WAS ONE EACH FOR THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN, FRANCE AND RUSSIA. EACH BORE THE WORDS FIRST WRITTEN BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AT CASABLANCA: "UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER."

SEVENTEEN CORRESPONDENTS INCLUDING EDWARD KENNEDY OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WERE PRESENT AT THE SIGNING AND HEARD JODL'S PLEA.

AFTER HE HAD SIGNED THE FOUR INSTRUMENTS OF SURRENDER AND AFTER THE MILITARY REPRESENTATIVES OF THE FOUR POWERS HAD SIGNED THEM, JODL ASKED FOR PERMISSION TO SPEAK.

HE WAS TOLD HE MIGHT. HIS VOICE WAS LOW AND SOFT AND HE SAID:

"WITH THIS SIGNATURE, THE GERMAN PEOPLE AND ARMED FORCES ARE, FOR BETTER OR WORSE, DELIVERED INTO THE VICTORS' HANDS.

"IN THIS WAR WHICH HAS LASTED MORE THAN FIVE YEARS, BOTH HAVE ACHIEVED AND SUFFERED MORE THAN PERHAPS ANY OTHER PEOPLE IN THE WORLD. IN THIS HOUR, I CAN ONLY EXPRESS THE HOPE THAT THE VICTOR WILL TREAT GENEROUSLY WITH THEM."

HIS FACE WAS EXPRESSIONLESS AND SO WERE THE FACES OF THE AMERICAN, BRITISH, RUSSIAN AND FRENCH GENERALS WHO REPRESENTED THE ALLIES.

ALL HAD SEEN GERMAN MURDER CAMPS AND ALL KNEW THE FURIOUS CRUELTY OF GERMAN OCCUPYING FORCES.

JODL FINISHED SPEAKING AND SAT DOWN. THE SOUND OF HIS VOICE WAS QUICKLY ABSORBED BY THE BEAVERBOARD COVERING THE ROOM'S WALLS.

A MOMENT PASSED IN DEAD SILENCE AND THEN THE GERMAN REPRESENTATIVES [illegible]

WERE TAKEN DOWN THE HALL TO MEET GEN.EISENHOWER.

EISENHOWER AND HIS DEPUTY, AIR CHIEF MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR TEDDER, WERE WAITING. THEY STOOD BEHIND EISENHOWER'S SMALL DESK.

JODL ENTERED FIRST, FOLLOWED BY FRIEDEBURG AND THEN BY COL. POLECK, A GERMAN SUPPLY EXPERT.

A13

POLECK GLANCED ONCE AT THE ALLIED OFFICERS. FRIEDEBURG LOOKED OUT THE WINDOW. ONLY JODL, HIS BALD HEAD GLEAMING BENEATH NAKED ELECTRIC LIGHT BULBS, LOOKED THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH COMMANDERS IN THE FACE.

AGAIN THERE WAS A MOMENT OF HEAVY SILENCE.

THEN EISENHOWER SPOKE. HE WAS BRIEF AND TERSE AS ALWAYS. HIS VOICE WAS COLD AND STERN. HIS STEEL BLUE EYES WERE HARD.

IN A FEW CLIPPED SENTENCES, HE MADE IT PLAIN THAT GERMANY WAS A DEFEATED NATION AND THAT HENCEFORTH ORDERS TO THE GERMAN PEOPLE WOULD COME FROM THE ALLIES. HE SAID THEY WOULD BE OBEYED.

THEN THE GERMANS FILED OUT. IT WAS OVER.

NAZI GERMANY HAS CEASED TO EXIST.

THE WAR HAD ENDED. MAY 9 1945

THE SIGNATURES ON THE DOCUMENT OF SURRENDER CLIMAXED TWO DAYS OF NEGOTIATIONS IN THE CATHEDRAL CITY, SCENE OF MANY DRAMATIC EVENTS IN EUROPEAN HISTORY. POSSIBLY WHAT WAS BORN HERE TODAY WILL BE KNOWN AS THE "PEACE OF REIMS."

THE DOOM OF THE THIRD REICH WAS SEALED IN THE WAR ROOM OF THE ALLIED SUPREME COMMAND'S ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS IN THE BIG BRICK ECOLE PROFESSIONELLE WHICH IN PEACETIME WAS A CO-EDUCATIONAL INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

THE SIGNATORIES SAT AT A WOODEN TABLE 20 FEET LONG, AND 10 FEET WIDE, WITH ITS TOP PAINTED BLACK. THE WAR ROOM ITSELF IS L-SHAPED, ABOUT 30 FEET LONG AND 30 WIDE ON THE OUTER SIDES OF THE "L."

ITS WALLS ARE NILE GREEN BEAVERBOARD COVERED WITH BATTLE MAPS, THEIR RED LINES MARKING WHAT WERE THE FRONTS, AND ETCHING THE PLIGHT OF THE WEHRMACHT WHICH ONCE HAD ALMOST THE ENTIRE CONTINENT UNDER ITS HEEL.

THE ALLIED REPRESENTATIVES SAT ALONG THE SIDE OF THE TABLE NEAREST THE WALL AND ALONG ITS RIGHT END. FACING THEM ACROSS THE BLACK TABLE WERE JODL AND FRIEDEBURG AND MAJ.WILLIAM OXENIUS, JODL'S AIDE. BEHIND THE GERMANS STOOD MAJ.GEN.K.W.D.STRONG, CHIEF OF SHAEF INTELLIGENCE, WHO ACTED AS INTERPRETER.

CORRESPONDENTS WERE USHERED INTO THE WAR ROOM UPON RECEIVING WORD OF THE AGREEMENT UPON FINAL TERMS.

A19

MOST OF THE ALLIED OFFICERS ENTERED THE ROOM AT 2:29 A.M. LT.GEN.WALTER BEDELL SMITH FOLLOWED FIVE MINUTES LATER. THE STRAIN OF THE CLIMACTIC MONTHS OF THE WAR WAS EVIDENT IN HIS SERIOUS COUNTENANCE.

THERE WAS ANOTHER WAIT OF FIVE MINUTES. THEN JODL IN A GREY-GREEN UNIFORM AND SILVER TRIM OF A WEHRMACHT OFFICER STRODE IN WITH THE BLUE-CLAD FRIEDEBURG.

JODL WORE HIS KNIGHT OF THE IRON CROSS DECORATION. FREIDEBURG'S HIGHEST MILITARY DECORATIONS WERE LIKEWISE ON DISPLAY.

NEITHER SEEMED CRESTFALLEN. THEY MOVED SLOWLY BUT RESOLUTELY TO THE TABLE, THERE STANDING AT ATTENTION. THE ALLIED OFFICERS BOWED STIFFLY.

EVERYONE'S VISAGE--ALLY OR ENEMY--WAS RIGID. NOT A TRACE OF A SMILE APPEARED ON ANY FACE.

"THERE ARE FOUR COPIES," GEN.SMITH REMARKED DRILY, "TO BE SIGNED."

GEN.JODL WAS THE FIRST TO PUT HIS NAME ON THE [illegible]QUADRUPLICATE DOCUMENT AT 2:41 A.M. CO

ES WERE PASSED ACROSS TO BE SIGNED BY GENERALS IVAN SUSLOPAROV OF THE RED ARMY, SMITH OF SHAEF AND FRANCOIS SEVEZ OF FRANCE IN THAT ORDER.

THE TERMS OF THE NAVAL AGREEMENT WHICH WERE SIGNED BY ADMIRAL BURROUGHS AND THE TERMS OF THE LAND AND AIR DISARMAMENT WERE SIGNED BY SMITH AND PRESENTED TO THE GERMANS TO BE CARRIED OUT.

IT WAS 2:45 A.M. THE INK OF THE SIGNATURES STILL WAS DAMP. THEN JODL SPOKE, BESEECHING "GENEROSITY" OF THE ALLIED CONQUERORS.

CHAIRS SCRAPED AND THE GERMANS ROSE STIFFLY TO STAND AT ATTENTION. THE ALLIES GOT TO THEIR FEET AND BOWED FORMALLY AND THE GERMANS WALKED OUT OF THE ROOM AT 2:47 A.M.

JODL, HIS GREYING BLOND HAIR ALMOST BALD AT THE TOP, LOOKED GLUMMER THAN EVER AND SEEMED A LITTLE UNSTEADY. FRIEDEBURG WAS SOLEMN, AND BEHIND HIS BUSHY EYEBROWS HE APPEARED NOT AT ALL HAPPY.

THEY WERE ESCORTED DOWN THE HALL TO MEET GEN.EISENHOWER FOR THE FIRST TIME. UNTIL NOW, THE SUPREME COMMANDER HAD SPOKEN TO THEM ONLY THROUGH MESSAGES RELAYED BY HIS CHIEF OF STAFF.

A20

ON THEIR DEPARTURE, EISENHOWER SUMMONED ALL ALLIED OFFICERS WHO HAD PARTICIPATED IN THE CEREMONY OF SURRENDER.

HIS MOUTH BROKE INTO A BIG VICTORY SMILE. HIS EYES, A MOMENT BEFORE STERN AND COLD, SPARKLED WITH JOY.

SIR ARTHUR CLASPED HIS HAND. THEN EISENHOWER GREETED SMITH WARMLY, THANKING HIM FOR HIS SPECTACULAR WORK OF THE PAST TWO DAYS. HE THANKED ALL OF THOSE PRESENT AND HELD UP THE FOUNTAIN PENS WITH WHICH THE SURRENDER WAS SIGNED--MAKING A V-SIGN WITH THEM FOR CAMERAMEN.

HE LEFT HIS OFFICE AT 3:39 A.M. FOR THE WAR ROOM, WHERE HE MADE A BRIEF VICTORY SPEECH INTO NEWSREEL MICROPHONES.

"JUST A FEW MINUTES AGO, GERMANY SURRENDERED ALL HER REMAINING FORCES ON LAND AND SEA," HE SAID. "THEY HAVE BEEN THOROUGHLY WHIPPED AND THE SURRENDER IS UNCONDITIONAL.

"IN JANUARY, 1943, THE LATE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL MET IN CASABLANCA. THERE THEY PRONOUNCED A FORMULA OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER FOR THE AXIS POWERS. IN EUROPE, THAT HAS BEEN FULFILLED. THE ALLIED FORCES WHICH LANDED ON THE CONTINENT ON JUNE 6, 1944, HAVE UTTERLY DEFEATED THE GERMANS ON LAND, SEA AND IN THE AIR."

EISENHOWER REMARKED THAT IT WAS "PARTICULARLY FITTING" THAT THE SURRENDER WAS SIGNED "IN THE HEART OF FRANCE," A COUNTRY WHICH HAD CONTRIBUTED IN LARGE MEASURE TO THE COMMON VICTORY.

"THIS UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WAS ACHIEVED BY TEAMWORK, NOT ONLY AMONG THE ALLIES BUT BY ALL THE SERVICES OF THE LAND, SEA AND AIR," HE SAID.

EISENHOWER'S VOICE WAS FILLED WITH EMOTION. HE SAID HE OWED " A DEBT OF GRATITUDE THAT CAN NEVER BE REPAID" TO ALL HIS AIDES AND ALL THE MEN WHO H

" A DEBT OF GRATITUDE THAT CAN NEVER BE REPAID" TO ALL HIS AIDES AND ALL THE MEN WHO HAD FOUGHT UNDER HIS COMMAND.

"THE ONLY PAYMENT IS THE LASTING GRATITUDE OF ALL FREE CITIZENS OF ALL THE UNITED NATIONS," THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF ADDED.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE FULL SURRENDER GREW OUT OF THE CONFERENCE BETWEEN FRIEDEBURG AND FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY LAST THURSDAY. AFTER AGREEING TO SURRENDER GERMAN FORCES IN HOLLAND, DENMARK, NORTHWEST GERMANY, THE FRISIAN ISLANDS AND HELGOLAND AT THAT MEETING, THE GERMAN DELEGATES INDICATED THAT THE REICH LEADERSHIP WISHED TO DISCUSS THE LARGER QUESTION OF COMPLETE SURRENDER OF ALL ARMED FORCES.

EISENHOWER ACCORDINGLY APPROVED A CONFERENCE AT REIMS FOR SATURDAY AND TRANSPORTATION WAS FURNISHED FOR BRINGING FRIEDEBURG AND POLECK.

A21

THE ENEMY EMISSARIES REACHED ADVANCED SHAEF HEADQUARTERS LATE SATURDAY AFTERNOON JUST AS THE NEWS OF THE SURRENDER OF GERMAN ARMY GROUP G IN AUSTRIA TO GEN.JACOB L.DEVERS WAS FLASHED.

ALL OF THE CIVILIANS OF REIMS AND THE MILITARY PERSONNEL THERE WERE ON EDGE SUNDAY.

FINAL DISCUSSIONS HINGED LARGELY ON DETAILS OF THE DISARMAMENT OF GERMAN FORCES. THE LAST CONFERENCE OPENED LATE IN THE EVENING.

"THE ONLY THING THAT PEPS ME UP A LITTLE IS THE HOPE THAT MAYBE--MAYBE, I SAID--THIS MEANS WE CAN GET HOME A LITTLE SOONER," HARRY SAID.

EVEN THE MILITARY POLICE WERE PUZZLED BY IT ALL. PFC HAROLD ROBERTS, A 30TH DIVISION M.P., FROM FT.THOMAS, KY., SCRATCHED HIS HEAD AND SLOWLY PONDERED THE UTTER LACK OF HILARITY.

"WE DIDN'T FEEL MUCH LIKE CELEBRATING, OURSELVES," HE SAID. "BUT WE WERE ALL SET TO LOOK THE OTHER WAY AND GIVE THE GUYS ALL THE LEEWAY IN THE WORLD. BUT WE DIDN'T HAVE TO. EVEN THE GUYS WHO WEREN'T WORKING AND WHO HAD PLENTY OF COGNAC TO DRINK DIDN'T TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT."

HE THOUGHT A MOMENT LONGER THEN ADDED:

"AS A MATTER OF FACT, IT SEEMS LIKE EVERYBODY'S JUST A LITTLE MORE SOBER THAN USUAL TODAY. MAYBE THEY'RE LIKE US--JUST GLAD IT'S OVER AND TRYING TO FIGURE OUT WHAT IT MEANS."

WAR CORRESPONDENT OF THE ST.LOUIS POST-DISPATCH MAY 9 1945
BERLIN,APRIL 27-(DELAYED)-(AP)-(COPYRIGHTED)-I AM ONE OF THE FIRST THREE AMERICANS TO ENTER BERLIN. AFTER WE CROSSED THE ELBE RIVER WHERE THE RUSSIANS AND AMERICANS MADE CONTACT THIS AFTERNOON, I ARRIVED AT BERLIN AT DARK TONIGHT WITH ANDREW TULLY, CORRESPONDENT FOR THE BOSTON TRAVELER, AND JEEP-DRIVER SGT.JOHN WILSON OF ROXBURY,MASS.
TWO AIR IS HEAVY WITH SMOKE. EVERYWHERE AROUND US IS THE CLATTER OF SMALL ARMS FIRE. RUSSIAN ARTILLERY IS POURING AN ALMOST CONSTANT BARRAGE INTO THE HEART OF THE CITY. BUT IN THIS RUSSIAN COMMAND POST WHERE WE ARE GUESTS OF GUARDS-MAJOR NIKOLAI KOVALESKI, THERE IS A TERRIFIC CELEBRATION GOING ON. THE ARRIVAL OF THREE AMERICANS IN BERLIN WAS THE SIGNAL FOR THE RUSSIANS TO BREAK OUT THEIR BEST VODKA AND TOSS A TERRIFIC BANQUET IN OUR HONOR.
WE ARRIVED IN BERLIN A FEW MINUTES BEFORE 8 P.M. AFTER THE STRANGEST JOURNEY I HAVE EVER UNDERTAKEN. WE "RAN OFF" THE MAP AND HAD TO NAVIGATE BY GUESS. NONE OF US UNDERSTOOD RUSSIAN. GERMAN ROAD SIGNS HAD BEEN REMOVED AND REPLACED WITH THEIR RUSSIAN EQUIVALENT.
WE GOT TO BERLIN ON THE STRENGTH OF A CRUDE HAND-MADE AMERICAN FLAG FLYING FROM OUR JEEP, SEVERAL HUNDRED HANDSHAKES AND REPEATED ASSURANCES TO FIERCE RUSSIANS WHO REPEATEDLY STOPPED US THAT WE WERE "AMERIKANSKI." AND EVERYWHERE, AS SOON AS WE HAD CONVINCED THE RUSSIANS OF OUR IDENTITY, WE WERE MOBBED. RUSSIAN INFANTRY PILED OUT OF THEIR HORSE-DRAWN WAGONS AND CROWDED ROUND. REFUGEES OF ALL NATIONALITIES CLOSED IN AROUND US AND TIME AFTER TIME THE ROAD HAD TO BE CLEARED ALMOST BY FORCE BEFORE WE COULD PROCEED.

A242ST MAY 9 1945
SHORTLY AFTER NOON TODAY AT TORGAU, EAST OF THE ELBE, WE DINED WITH MAJ.GEN.EMIL REINHART, COMMANDER OF THE 69TH AMERICAN DIVISION; MAJ.GEN.CLARENCE R.HUEBNER, COMMANDER OF THE AMERICAN FIFTH CORPS; MAJ.GEN.GLEB ZLABIMIROVITSCH BAKLANOFF, COMMANDER OF THE 34TH RUSSIAN CORPS; AND GEN.VLADIMIR RUSAKOV, COMMANDER OF THE 58TH GUARDS INFANTRY DIVISION. THE DINNER WAS THE OFFICIAL CELEBRATION OF THE MEETING OF THE AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN TROOPS AT THE ELBE RIVER.
FROM TORGAU WE STARTED NORTH, BEHIND THE RUSSIAN LINES, TRAVELING SOMETIMES OVER DESERTED ROADS THROUGH DARK FORESTS. AT OTHER TIMES WE HIT HIGHWAYS CLOGGED WITH THE GREAT BODY OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY, BEATING ALONG IN ITS MOTLEY ARRAY OF HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES OF ALL SORTS. THERE WERE RUSSIAN TROOPS RIDING IN AMERICAN 2 1/2-TON TRUCKS. THERE WERE RUSSIAN TROOPS RIDING IN TWO-WHEELED CARTS, PHAETONS, IN OLD-FASHIONED PONY CARTS, IN GIPSY WAGONS, AND SURREYS WITH FRINGED TOPS.
THE WAGONS WERE FILLED WITH HAY AND THE SOLDIERS LAY ON TOP OF THE HAY LIKE AN ARMY TAKING A HOLIDAY AND GOING ON A GREAT MASS HAYRIDE. THE FIERCE FIGHTING MEN OF THE RED ARMY IN THEIR TUNICS AND GREAT BOOTS, SHABBY AND RAGGED AFTER THEIR LONG WAR, RIDING TOWARDS BERLIN IN THEIR STRANGE ASSORTMENT OF VEHICLES, SINGING THEIR FIGHTING SONGS, DRINKING VODKA, WERE LIKE SO MANY HOLIDAY-MAKERS GOING ON A GREAT PARADE.
BEFORE 8 O'CLOCK WE WERE WELL INTO BERLIN WITH THE FORWARD ELEMENTS OF THE RUSSIAN TROOPS IN THE GERMAN CAPITAL. GERMAN DEAD LAY ON THE SIDEWALKS, IN THE FRONT YARDS OF THE BOMB-SHATTERED HOMES OF THE BERLIN SUBURBS. ALL STREETS WERE CLOGGED WITH RUSSIAN TANKS, GUNS, INFANTRY IN THEIR SHAGGY FUR HATS AND EVERYWHERE THE HORSES OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY RAN LOOSE ABOUT THE STREETS.
BUT THE RUSSIANS WERE HAPPY--WITH ALMOST INDESCRIBABLE WILD JOY. THEY WERE IN BERLIN. IN THIS GERMAN CAPITAL LIES THEIR TRUE REVENGE FOR LENINGRAD AND STALINGRAD, FOR SEVASTOPOL AND MOSCOW.
AND THE RUSSIANS ARE HAVING THEIR REVENGE. ALL ALONG THE ROAD INTO BERLIN, THE FIELDS ALONG THE ROADWAYS ARE LITTERED WITH THE CARTS AND BELONGINGS OF THE GERMANS WHO TRIED TO ESCAPE FROM THE CAPITAL. FOR THE RUSSIANS ARE NOT POLITE AS THE AMERICANS ARE TO GERMANS WHO CLOG THE ROADS IN THE PATHS OF AMERICAN TRAFFIC. AMERICANS WAIT FOR THE GERMANS TO PULL OFF THE ROAD TO LET TRAFFIC PASS, BUT THE RUSSIANS DRIVE OVER THE GERMAN CARTS, PUSH THEM OFF THE ROAD AND UPSET THEM.

A143ST
THIS COMMAND POST IS IN WHAT IS LEFT OF A GERMAN HOME IN THE BATTERED CITY OF BERLIN, ALMOST LEVELED BY AMERICAN BOMBERS. THERE ARE NO ELECTRIC LIGHTS AND NO RUNNING WATER. BUT THE GUARDS-MAJOR IS A KIND OF HOST WHO CAN RISE ABOVE SUCH DIFFICULTIES. THE MINUTE I ARRIVED HE HAD HIS COSSACK ORDERLY, A FIERCE MONGOLIAN WITH A GREAT SCAR ON HIS LEFT CHEEK, READY WITH A DISHPAN OF WATER. AFTER I HAD WASHED MY FACE THE GUARDS-MAJOR PRODUCED SOME GERMAN FACE POWDER, A QUARTER-FULL BOTTLE OF GERMAN PERFUME AND A CRACKED MIRROR.
I SAT DOWN TO A CANDLE-LIT AND FLOWER-BEDECKED DINNER TABLE. THE CANDELABRA WAS UPTURNED MILK BOTTLES AND THE FLOWER VASE WAS AN OLD PICKLE JAR. BUT THE DINNER WAS SERVED WITH ALL THE FORMALITY

OF A STATE FUNCTION IN WASHINGTON.

THE "APPETISER" WAS HUGE PLATEFULS OF SOMETHING THAT TASTED LIKE SPICED SALMON. THEN CAME HUGE PLATEFULS OF A STRANGE DISH THAT TASTED LIKE MUTTON COOKED OVER CHARCOAL, HUGE MASSES OF MASHED POTATOES WITH MEAT OIL POURED OVER THEM, A HUGE RUSSIAN CHEESE, AND FOR DESSERT, PLATEFULS OF RUSSIAN-MADE PASTRIES. AFTER EACH COURSE THERE WERE TOASTS TO "THE LATE AND GREAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT," TO STALIN, TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN, TO CHURCHILL, TO "CAPT.ANDRE TOOLEY," TO "CAPT.VEERGEENEE ERWEEN," TO THE "RED ARMY," TO "THE AMERICAN ARMY," TO "SARJAUNT WILSON," AND "TO THE AMERICAN JEEP."

AS WE DRANK OUR TOASTS THE BATTLE OF BERLIN RAGED ONLY A FEW BLOCKS AWAY. AS THE ARTILLERY ROARED, THE HOUSE SHOOK AND THE CANDLES FLUTTERED. THE CANDLES ARE STILL FLUTTERING AS I WRITE THIS STORY. THE THOUGHT KEEPS COMING INTO MY MIND THAT HERE IS THE GREATEST CITY-DUMP IN THE WORLD, WITH THE REMAINS OF BOMBED BUILDINGS ALL DUMPED IN THE SAME PLACE WITH THE DEAD.

THE MESSAGE FROM KENT COOPER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, CAME WHILE BOYLE WAS IN THE FIELD GETTING STORIES ON THE DYING GASP OF THE GERMAN ARMY AND WHAT V-E DAY MEANS TO THE DOUGHBOYS HE HAS FOLLOWED SO LONG.

MAY 9 1945

THE AWARD CLIMAXES A 10-YEAR CAREER WITH THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FOR THE 34-YEAR-OLD COLUMNIST, WHO LOOKS LIKE A TOUGH PRIZEFIGHTER BUT WHO HAS THE SOUL OF A POET AND WIT THAT HAS ~~GIVEN HIM THE REPUTATION OF A MALE DOROTHY PARKER~~, AND MADE HIM ONE OF THE BEST-KNOWN AND BEST-LIKED CORRESPONDENTS IN EUROPE.

BOYLE WAS ONE OF ERNIE PYLE'S CLOSEST FRIENDS, AND THE FACT THAT THEY WROTE ~~COMPETITIVE~~ COLUMNS NEVER COUNTED IN THEIR RELATIONSHIP THROUGH NORTH AFRICA, SICILY, ITALY, AND FRANCE. ~~DESPITE THE FACT THEY WERE EXTREME OPPOSITES IN~~ APPEARANCE, THERE WAS A CURIOUS SIMILARITY IN THEIR COLUMNS

BASED ON WARM SYMPATHY AND UNDERSTANDING FOR THE DOUGHBOYS AND THE HARDSHIPS THEY ENDURED.

"I'M JUST A POOR MAN'S ERNIE PYLE," BOYLE ONCE QUIPPED. "I WROTE A COLUMN FOR PEOPLE WHO LOOK OVER THE SHOULDER OF PEOPLE READING ERNIE PYLE."

PROBABLY
BOYLE HAS CHRONICLED THE INDIVIDUAL EXPLOITS OF MORE SOLDIERS THAN ANY OTHER CORRESPONDENT IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER BECAUSE HE TOLD THE STORY OF THE WAR IN TERMS OF "THE LITTLE FELLOWS." HIS COLUMNS HAVE BEEN A COLORFUL, PERSONALIZED HISTORY OF WORLD WAR II FILLED WITH NAMES OF HOMETOWN ADDRESSES OF DOUGHBOYS--- AND MANY TIMES HE WENT UNDER FIRE TO BRING BACK THOSE STORIES.

MAY 9 1945

BOYLE FELL IN LOVE WITH THE AMERICAN INFANTRY BACK IN NORTH AFRICA WHERE HE ALMOST DROWNED AS HE WADED ASHORE WITH TROOPS ON THAT INVASION. HE DID STORIES ON TANKMEN, PILOTS, ARTILLERYMEN AND ALL OTHER BRANCHES OF THE ARMY, BUT HE HAS HAD A CLOSE FEELING FOR THE DOUGHBOY BECAUSE OF THE HARDSHIPS HE ENDURED. AND HE ALWAYS BELIEVED IT WAS THE INFANTRYMAN WHO WOULD WIN THE WAR.

"THE AMERICAN INFANTRYMAN IS THE GREATER FIGHTER IN THE WORLD," BOYLE OFTEN PROCLAIMS. IF ANYBODY DISPUTES THE POINT, HE IS READY TO ARGUE FOR HOURS TO PROVE HIS STATEMENT. AND HE USUALLY DOES.

MAY 9 1945

IRREPRESSIBLE IS THE BEST DESCRIPTIVE FOR THE NEW PULITZER PRIZE WINNER--- FOR HIS HUMOR AND WIT BUBBLES IN AN UNINTERRUPTED FLOW THAT HAS MADE HIM THE MOST QUOTED CORRESPONDENT IN EUROPE. WHEREVER NEWSPAPERMEN GATHER, BOYLE USUALLY BECOMES THE SUBJECT OF CONVERSATION SOONER OR LATER. MOST OFTEN TOLD IS THE STORY OF THE DAY HE ENTERED A TUNISIAN TOWN AHEAD OF THE TROOPS. WHILE ARABS GAPED, HE LEAPED UP IN HIS JEEP AND SHOUTED: "VOTE FOR BOYLE. SON OF THE SOIL--- HONEST HAL THE ARAB'S PAL."

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN (250)

HAMBURG, MAY 8-(AP)-TENS OF THOUSANDS OF GERMAN TROOPS ARE LIVING LIKE ANIMALS IN SCATTERED GROUPS ALONG THE BASE OF THE DANISH PENINSULA.

I MOTORED THROUGH THIS SECTION TODAY AND FOUND FIVE BIG CONCENTRATIONS OF PRISONERS. I ALSO FLEW OVER THE TERRITORY IN A CUB PLANE WITH MAJ. HENRY BURMANN OF DELANSON, N.Y., COMMANDING OFFICER OF AN ARTILLERY SPOTTING UNIT AT WISMAR, AND COUNTED SEVEN OTHER CAMPS OF THESE GERMANS, MOST OF WHOM WERE WITHDRAWN FROM DENMARK TO FORM A BOTTLENECK OF "DISPLACED HUMANITY".

THEY HAVE ABANDONED TRUCKS, HORSE DRAWN CARTS, ARMORED VEHICLES AND OTHER TRANSPORT ALONG COUNTRY LANES.

MANY HAVE DUG HOLES TO LIVE IN OR BUILD CRUDE HUTS OF STRAW AND MUD. AT SEVERAL CAMPS I SAW ONCE-PROUD SOLDIERS WASHING AT A WATERING-HOLE, AND GAUNT, DISEASED CATTLE DRINKING AT THE OTHER END.

TRUDGING ALONG THE NARROW ROADS ARE THOUSANDS OF LIBERATED WAR PRISONERS OF ALL NATIONALITIES, AND GERMAN CIVILIANS WHO WERE BLASTED OUT OF THEIR HOMES. MANY OF THESE MEN IN CIVILIAN CLOTHES ARE GERMAN SOLDIERS WHO DECIDED THEY MIGHT GET BETTER TREATMENT OUT OF UNIFORM.

THE GERMAN ARMY MUST FEED ITS SOLDIERS UNTIL THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT CAN WORK OUT A FEASIBLE PLAN FOR TAKING CARE OF THESE

MILLIONS. IN THIS WAR-RAVAGED COUNTRY THE CHANGEOVER IS BOUND TO BE GRADUAL, AND HAS RESOLVED ITSELF INTO A RACE AGAINST FAMINE AND PLAGUE.

CONDITIONS IN THE CITIES ARE ALMOST CHAOTIC. IN HAMBURG, GERMANY'S SECOND CITY WITH A NORMAL POPULATION OF 1,500,000, A THIRD OF A BRITISH DIVISION OCCUPYING THE BIG PORT HAD TO BE ON "SHOOTING DUTY" TODAY EVEN WHILE PRIME MINISTER WINSTON CHURCHILL WAS ANNOUNCING V-E DAY. FOOD IS SCARCE AND RIOTS ARE BREEDING. THE DESTRUCTION IN HAMBURG IS INCREDIBLY COMPLETE. INCESSANT OBLITERATION BOMBING ATTACKS HAVE MADE IT ONE OF THE WORLD'S BIGGEST RUBBLE PILES.

MANILA, MAY 8-(AP)-WAR HAS GIVEN WAY TO SPORTS ON THE ZAMBOANGA PENINSULA OF SOUTHEAST MINDINAO--CLEANSED OF JAPANESE BY THE VETERAN 41ST DIVISION--AND THE FILIPINOS LIKE IT.

THE REASON: THEY CAN MIX IF WITH YANK SOLDIERS AND WHEN THEY WIN, YANK REFEREES GIVE THEM THE CREDIT.

IT WASN'T LIKE THAT WHEN JAPANESE OCCUPIED THE ISLAND. AT FIRST THERE WAS SPORTS COMPETITION BETWEEN THE TWO NATIONALITIES--IN BOXING AND WRESTLING--BUT FILIPINOS NEVER WON. THAT WAS BECAUSE THE JAPANESE COULDN'T ACKNOWLEDGE INFERIORITY IN ANY ACTIVITY.

JAPANESE REFEREES ALWAYS GAVE THE NOD TO THEIR COUNTRYMEN BUT THEY COULDN'T EXPLAIN AWAY BLACK EYES AND MAULED TORSOS, SO THE COMPETITION WAS DROPPED.

AGAINST 41ST DIVISION MEN, THE FILIPINO SLUGGERS TAKE NEARLY HALF THE DECISIONS IN WEEKLY BOUTS. KID LEYTE, SULU ARCHIPELAGO AND SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES WELTERWEIGHT CHAMP BEFORE THE WAR, HAS WON ALL BOUTS AGAINST YANK BOXERS.

THE FILIPINOS STILL ARE WEAK ON BASEBALL AND BASKETBALL, BUT THEY'RE LEARNING. PFC.FRED SANFORD, FORMER ST.LOUIS BROWN PITCHER, CONDUCTS A SUNDAY MORNING BASEBALL SCHOOL FOR YOUNGSTERS.

THERE'S A TENNIS TOURNEY UNDERWAY, TOO, AND ONE BRACKET ALWAYS PLAYS TO A PACKED GALLERY. THAT'S THE MIXED DOUBLES.

(NY)...THE NATION CELEBRATED THE FALL OF GERMANY ANEW YESTERDAY (TUESDAY) EMBARKING ON A REASONABLE FACSIMILE OF MONDAY'S SPONTANEOUS DEMONSTRATIONS.
FOR MORE THAN HOUR AFTER PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S PROCLAMATION, NEW YORK CITY'S MILLIONS CHEERED, SHOUTED, SANG AND DANCED IN THE STREETS.
SOME 200,000 PERSONS CROWDED TIMES SQUARE AS PAPER AND TICKER TAPE AGAIN SHOWERED TO THE SIDEWALKS. RAIN, BEGINNING AT NOON, PUT A DAMPER ON THE FESTIVITIES, HOWEVER, SENDING THE CROWDS INTO RESTAURANTS, THEATERS OR HOME.
BROADWAY WAS ITS OLD GAY SELF LAST NIGHT. FLASHING ELECTRIC SIGNS, WINDOW LIGHTS AND THEATER MARQUEES PIERCED THE NIGHT AS THE BROWNOUT BECAME A THING OF THE PAST.
AND, REFLECTING THE UPLIFTED SPIRIT ARISING FROM THE VICTORY ANNOUNCEMENT, THE STATUE OF LIBERTY WAS FULLY LIGHTED FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH POLITICAL AND MILITARY LEADERS IN THEIR V-E STATEMENTS YESTERDAY (TUES.) GRIMLY WARNED THAT JAPAN CAN EXPECT INCREASED ATTACKS AS A RESULT OF THE CONQUEST OF GERMANY.

THE JAPANESE APPARENTLY WERE WELL AWARE OF THEIR PERILOUS SITUATION. FOREIGN MINISTER SHIGENORI TOGO CALLED AT THE IMPERIAL PALACE IN TOKYO TO MAKE A PERSONAL REPORT TO EMPEROR HIROHITO AFTER A FOUR-HOUR CABINET MEETING "ON THE LATEST EUROPEAN SITUATION."

"OUR VICTORY IS BUT HALF WON," DECLARED PRESIDENT TRUMAN AT WASHINGTON. IN A PRESS CONFERENCE STATEMENT HE ELABORATED: "THE LONGER THE WAR LASTS, THE GREATER WILL BE THE SUFFERINGS WHICH THE PEOPLE OF JAPAN WILL UNDERGO--ALL IN VAIN."

KING GEORGE VI, IN A MESSAGE TO GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK GAVE HIS PROMISE THAT "ALL AVAILABLE RESOURCES OF MY EMPIRE WILL BE CONCENTRATED ON THE COMPLETE DEFEAT OF JAPAN WHICH MUST PRECEDE THE PEACE, ONE AND INDIVISABLE, WHICH IS THE GOAL OF THE UNITED NATIONS. LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON, COMMANDER OF THE U.S.NINTH ARMY, SAID "WE WILL NOT REST UNTIL JAPAN HAS BEEN DEFEATED, AND SHOULD THE NINTH ARMY BE ORDERED INTO ACTION IN THE PACIFIC, WE ARE READY TO CARRY ON AND HELP BRING A FINAL AND LASTING PEACE TO THE WORLD."

GEN.HODGES OF THE U.S.FIRST SAID "WE STILL HAVE ONE MORE OF THE AGGRESSOR NATIONS TO DEFEAT X X X HARD WORK, HARD FIGHTING AND GREAT SACRIFICES ARE STILL AHEAD ON THE HOME AND FIGHTING FRONTS AND NOT UNTIL VICTORY DAY IN THE PACIFIC CAN WE LAY ASIDE OUR WEAPONS AND RESUME LIFE IN A FREE WORLD."

LT.GEN.LEONARD T.GEROW, COMMANDER OF THE 15TH ARMY, DECLARED "JAPAN, ARCH CRIMINAL OF THE EAST, IS STILL OPPRESSING AND ENSLAVING PEACE LOVING PEOPLE, STILL TORTURING OUR PRISONERS AND STILL ATTEMPTING TO DESTROY THE FREEDOM FOR WHICH WE STAND. AHEAD OF US LIES THE GRIM NECESSITY OF COMPLETING THE OVERTHROW OF THIS ENEMY X X X ."

LT.GEN.LEWIS H.BRERETON, COMMANDER OF THE ALLIED FIRST AIRBORNE ARMY, ADDED THAT "THE SAME INVINCIBLE FIGHTING SPIRIT DISPLAYED IN EUROPE WILL BE CARRIED TO THE PACIFIC AND WILL HASTEN THE DAY OF VICTORY."

IN WASHINGTON, GEN.MARSHALL SAID GERMANY'S DEFEAT WOULD MAKE IT POSSIBLE "TO SEND MIGHTY FORCES TO THE PACIFIC TO CRUSH THE ENEMY WITHOUT FAIL AND WE HOPE WITH LITTLE OF DELAY." NAVY SECRETARY FORRESTAL COMMENTED: "LET US NOW GO FORWARD TO SPEEDY AND COMPLETE VICTORY IN THE PACIFIC."

SEVENTEEN PRESS AND RADIO CORRESPONDENTS, INCLUDING ONE WOMAN, CROWDED INTO THE SCHOOL ROOM AT REIMS AND WATCHED ALMOST INCREDULOUSLY AS THE GERMANS SILENTLY SIGNED THE DOCUMENTS OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER EARLY MONDAY.

MARGARET ECKER OF VANCOUVER, WAR CORRESPONDENT FOR THE CANADIAN PRESS, THE ONLY WOMAN IN THE PARTY FLOWN FROM PARIS TO WITNESS THE CEREMONY, SAID IN A BROADCAST FROM PARIS TUESDAY THAT GEN.EISENHOWER

MISS ECKER ADDED, IN A CLASSIC UNDERSTATEMENT, THAT THE SIGNING WAS "PROBABLY THE MOST IMPRESSIVE THING I HAVE EVER SEEN, OR PERHAPS EVER WILL SEE."
"WE FOUND IT AWFULLY HARD TO BELIEVE THAT THOSE ORDINARY SHEETS OF PAPER PASSING FROM HAND TO HAND WERE REALLY THE SURRENDER AND THE END OF THE WAR WHICH HAS DEVASTATED THE LIVES OF OUR GENERATION," SHE SAID.
W.W.CHAPLIN, DESCRIBING THE HISTORIC SCENE IN AN NBC BROADCAST FROM PARIS, SAID:
"GEN.JODL SIGNED THE PAPERS OF SURRENDER WITH A QUIVERING HAND. THEN I HEARD HIM MAKE ONE OF THE STRANGEST LITTLE SPEECHES IN HISTORY BESEECHING OUR GENEROSITY TOWARD GERMANY BECAUSE, HE SAID, GERMANY HAS SUFFERED SO.
"I WAS SO CLOSE THAT I COULD SEE A DOT OF PERSPIRATION RUNNING SLOWLY DOWN HIS FAT, FLAT FACE, ONTO HIS JUTTING CHIN; HIS SIGNATURE WRITING FINIS TO THE NIGHTMARISH HISTORY OF NAZISM.
"STANDING CLOSE BEHIND HIM, I NOTICED, THERE WAS A CHART SHOWING ALLIED CASUALTIES IN DEAD, WOUNDED AND MISSING, WITH A TOTAL IN SEVEN FIGURES. BESIDE THAT CHART HE STOOD AND BEGGED FOR GENEROSITY."
MISS ECKER SAID THE GERMAN OFFICERS APPEARED ARROGANT WHEN THEY BEGAN THE NEGOTIATIONS, BUT WERE "VERY SUBDUED" WHEN THE CEREMONIES ENDED.

BRITISH CABINET MET SUNDAY BECAUSE OF TOGO'S DENUNCIATION OF GERMANY, DOMEI SAYS

MAY 9 1945

THE JAPANESE DOMEI AGENCY SAID TODAY THAT THE "UNCUSTOMARY SUMMONING" OF THE BRITISH CABINET LAST SUNDAY, WHICH WAS PRESUMABLY CALLED INTO EMERGENCY SESSION BECAUSE OF THE IMMINENCE OF GERMANY'S SURRENDER, HAD BEEN ATTRIBUTED BY JAPANESE "OBSERVERS" TO JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER SHIGENORI TOGO'S "DENUNCIATION OF THE GERMAN VIOLATION OF THE TRI-PARTITE PACT," NEWS OF WHICH, IT SAID, HAD "EXPLODED LIKE A BOMBSHELL IN LONDON."

APPARENTLY ATTEMPTING TO FOLLOW THE NAZI PROPAGANDISTS' UNSUCCESSFUL EFFORT TO CREATE A SPLIT AMONG THE ALLIED NATIONS, DOMEI SAID THAT THE "OBSERVERS" HAD PAID ESPECIAL ATTENTION TO TOGO'S STATEMENT BECAUSE IT "COINCIDED WITH THE CRISIS BETWEEN THE ANGLO-SAXONS AND SOVIETS OVER THE POLISH QUESTION."

"THIS DEVELOPMENT IS PARTICULARLY TROUBLING, AS THE RENNER GOVERNMENT'S CREATION IN AUSTRIA INCREASED ANGLO-AMERICAN DISSATISFACTION WITH THE SITUATION IN RUSSIAN-OCCUPIED EUROPE, WHICH LONDON AND WASHINGTON CONTEND RUNS COUNTER TO THE YALTA AGREEMENT," SAID THE DOMEI WIRELESS DISPATCH, AS TRANSMITTED IN ENGLISH TO THE UNITED STATES AND RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

IN HIS STATEMENT, MADE LAST SUNDAY AT A TOKYO PRESS CONFERENCE, TOGO ACCUSED THE GERMANS OF A "FLAGRANT VIOLATION" OF THE TRI-PARTITE AGREEMENT FOR MAKING PEACE OFFERS TO THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN FORCES WITHOUT FIRST CONSULTING JAPAN. HE COMPLAINED, MOREOVER, ABOUT THE FACT THAT THE OFFERS WERE MADE ONLY TO THE ANGLO-AMERICANS, WITH WHOM JAPAN IS AT WAR, AND NOT TO RUSSIA, WITH WHOM, TOGO SAID, "JAPAN IS STRIVING TO MAINTAIN NEUTRALITY."

DOMEI CLAIMED THAT SUNDAY EDITIONS OF THE LONDON NEWSPAPERS HAD "DEVOTED MORE ATTENTION" TO TOGO'S STATEMENT THAN TO THE "WESTERN FRONT VICTIM REPORTS."

MAY 9 1945

THE STOCKHOLM EXPRESSEN, MEANWHILE, SAID THAT TOGO'S REMARKS, IN WHICH HE "SO ENERGETICALLY EMPHASIZED NEUTRAL RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA," HAD BEEN INTERPRETED AS AN "ATTEMPT TO SPLIT THE RUSSO-ANGLO-SAXON FRONT" AND DECLARED THAT THE JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER'S "PROTEXT CONSTITUTES THE FIRST CAREFUL PEACE FEELER TO THE ANGLO-SAXONS VIA MOSCOW."

"THIS INTERPRETATION IS QUITE REASONABLE, ALTHOUGH IT IS STRANGE THAT TOKYO DOESN'T SEEM TO REALIZE YET THAT THE SAME FATE AWAITS JAPAN AS HAS NOW BEFALLEN GERMANY -- UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER," SAID THE EXPRESSEN ARTICLE, AS REPORTED TO THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION.

THE ARTICLE TERMED THE TGO STATEMENT THE "COMIC SIDE" OF THE "LAST ACT OF THE HISTORIC DRAMA" AND NOTED THAT OF THE THREE SIGNATORIES TO THE TRI-PARTITE PACT, WHICH IT SAID HAD BEEN CONCLUDED IN BERLIN WITH A "GREAT FLOURISH," ITALIAN COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO, [illegible] FASCIST ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER, HAS BEEN "SHOT ON THE [illegible] OF HIS FATHER-IN-LAW, MUSSOLINI;" FORMER NAZI FOREIGN [illegible]CHIM VON RIBBENTROP IS "BELIEVED TO BE IN THE HANDS OF [illegible]S," AND SABURO KURUSU, JAPANESE AMBASSADOR TO [illegible]IME OF THE SIGNING OF THE PACT, HAS "LONG AGO RETURNED TO THE LAND OF HIS FATHERS."

THE TOKYO RADIO, GIVING ADDITIONAL EVIDENCE OF JAPAN'S INTEREST IN RUSSIA'S INTENTIONS, SAID THAT SOVIET FOREIGN COMMISSAR VYACHESLAV M. MOLOTOV YESTERDAY HAD "CLARIFIED THE SOVIET POLICY TOWARD JAPAN" IN A STATEMENT TO REPORTERS IN SAN FRANCISCO, WHERE, ACCORDING TO THE BROADCAST, HE SAID THAT THE "SOVIET GOVERNMENT'S POLICY WAS ALREADY MANIFESTED IN THE STATEMENT ISSUED AT THE BEGINNING OF APRIL."

MAY 9 1945

THE TOKYO BROADCAST, BEAMED IN ENGLISH TO THE UNITED STATES AND ALSO RECORDED BY THE FCC, DID NOT ATTEMPT TO INTERPRET MOLOTOV'S STATEMENT, BUT AMERICAN PRESS REPORTS FROM SAN FRANCISCO SAID THAT THE SOVIET FOREIGN COMMISSAR WAS EVIDENTLY REFERRING TO THE NOTIFICATION GIVEN JAPAN BY RUSSIA ON APRIL 15, DENOUNCING THE RUSSO-JAPANESE NEUTRALITY PACT.

Vinson Ends Curfew And Lifts Ban On Horse Racing

MAY 10 1945

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Immediate lifting of the midnight entertainment curfew and the ban on horse and dog racing was announced today.

MAY 10 1945

Fred M. Vinson, director of war mobilization and reconversion, said that the action was effective as of today and quipped:

"The curfew shall not ring tonight."

ODT Rules Stand

He told a news conference that the lifting of the ban on race meets did not affect restrictions of the Office of Defense Transportation on the shipment of race horses, and referred inquiries respecting these restrictions to ODT officials.

At ODT, it was stated that the lifting of the racing ban will be followed up by an order from ODT permitting the shipment of horses, but it was emphasized that travel restrictions in effect prior to the ban will continue.

"The setup will be just the same as before the ban," an ODT official said.

On "Trolley-Car Basis"

This means that tracks will be expected to co-operate in keeping such major events as the Kentucky Derby on a "trolley-car" basis, with no special trains or extra equipment authorized.

The agency said special trains could not be authorized because of the general transportation situation. Because of the redeployment of troops from Europe to Asia, ODT predicts that the travel situation in the next twelve to fifteen months will be the most critical so far.

Today's action means that racing's "Triple Crown"—the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes—will be run this spring and summer.

Tracks Prepared

The Derby probably will be held June 2 or 9, with the Preakness the next Saturday and the Belmont Stakes two weeks later.

Racing people were prepared for Vinson's action. One problem remained. Racing officials said that easing of the War Manpower Commission's ceiling on employment will be needed in order to operate the tracks properly.

The War Manpower Commission said later the "zero" employment ceiling for race tracks would be removed.

May Hire Workers

This will not automatically authorize race tracks to hire workers, but will permit local WMC officials to establish above-zero ceilings for the tracks.

These ceilings will be established, the WMC said, "in the light of the needs of war industries" in the area in question.

Vinson's announcement restored to a nearly normal position the one sport that had been completely shut down in wartime.

Nation Is Warned to Expect No Early Relief From Shortages

Army's Plans to Discharge Men Who Have Most Credits Disclosed; Goods Production Limited Until Pacific Task Is Over

MAY 10 1945

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP).—Following is the complete text of a report, "The War: Phase Two," transmitted to President Truman today by Fred M. Vinson, Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion:

Letter of Transmittal

OFFICE OF WAR MOBILIZATION AND RECONVERSION
Washington, D. C.

The President,
The White House, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President: I submit herewith a report entitled "The War: Phase Two." This report has been prepared at my request by the Office of War Information in collaboration with other government departments and agencies. It is designed to answer specific questions which will be uppermost in the mind of the public after the defeat of Germany.

The report attempts to outline, in simple terms, the military and industrial effort which will be required to defeat Japan; the amount and rate of reconversion; our foreign commitments for relief and rehabilitation; the Army's plans for redeployment of troops and partial demobilization. In sum, it attempts to give a picture of the conditions under which the American people will live during the second phase of the war against the forces of evil.

Any report which undertakes to forecast events is subject to error, and this report is no exception. Nevertheless, it is based on the best judgment in government of the demands upon the nation for the war against Japan.

Sincerely yours,
FRED M. VINSON,
Director.

The War: Phase Two

Just how big is the job of crushing Japan? What changes and adjustments must be made in America to accomplish that defeat? How many men must remain in our Army and Navy? How many men will be drafted? What will civilian life be like in this second phase of the world's greatest war? How many jobs will there be? What quantity of consumer goods? How soon can men be released from the armed forces? How many? On what basis?

These are questions which must be answered if the people are to know the size of their task. To the extent that such questions can be answered without giving the enemy valuable information, and always stressing that changes in military and other conditions may abruptly modify any forecast, this statement outlines the situation for America.

TEN BASIC POINTS

Governing the answers to all these questions are these ten controlling statements of principles and facts:

1. War against Japan probably will grow in severity over a prolonged period. Unconditional surrender of Japan, as of Germany, is our goal, and it is hardly likely that Japan will yield her home islands to occupation by our forces short of successful and complete invasion. Experience has shown that any effort to predict definitely the duration of war usually fails. All our effort toward war, and toward production, will be needed up to the last instant.

2. Demobilization of such men as the Army can spare will begin promptly. Because of shipping limitations, it will take about a year to complete the release of men eligible for discharge. The Navy does not plan to demobilize until Japan has been defeated.

3. As a result of lessening pressure on the European war front, cuts in war production began some time ago. During the next six months, war production cuts will be of the order of 10 to 15 per cent of the current rate.

The Navy's small production cuts have been already scheduled. Greater cuts may be expected during the first six months of 1946, after the long pipe lines to supply the war in the Far East have been filled. Even then, munitions production in the first six months of 1946 will maintain a level not far from two-thirds of that previously required by the two-front war. In addition to our own needs, we must continue to send lend-lease war essentials to our Allies who are fighting with us against Japan.

4. High production still required for the Japanese war will require that a great part of those now employed in war production stay on the job. The total number of persons unemployed, many of whom will be only temporarily out of work between jobs, probably should not exceed more than 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 persons at the end of the next twelve months, as compared with a present total of about 1,000,000. There will be several local unemployment problems, side by side with actual man-power shortages in areas where war production remains at a high peak. Strict man-power controls will continue to be necessary, especially in such areas. Nationally, the situation should not be acute.

5. Subject to the over-riding priority of war production, some reconversion will take place immediately. The pace will be accelerated as the requirements of war permit. Reconversion planning must proceed vigorously, but we cannot have complete reconversion until final victory.

6. Military requirements for food will not decrease, and relief needs will be greater. Domestic demand for food will continue at high levels. As a result, no early general improvement in the civilian food supply situation can be expected. Food production must be continued at record levels.

7. The structure of many government controls over industry must be maintained to insure war and essential civilian production. Within this structure, restrictions will be relaxed gradually wherever it is possible to do this without damage to the war effort. Transportation restrictions, for example, must continue in full force, but generally speaking, materials and man power no longer pre-empted for war will be freed for civilian production.

8. One major home-front battle that will continue to demand strongest public support is that against inflation and rising prices. Restraint in buying, observance of price control and rationing regulations remain near the top of the list of civilian responsibilities. A wage stabilization policy must be maintained during the reconversion period to prevent inflationary price increases and to avoid a post-war deflationary trend which might destroy wage standards.

9. The necessity for raising vast sums of money through the sale of war bonds and by taxation for financing the war with Japan will remain undiminished for a considerable time. Taxes and war bonds also are essential factors in price control.

10. The paramount command is: Win the war! Victory over Japan comes ahead of every other consideration. The war will be shortened and peace speeded, lives will be saved, our men will come home sooner, if every one dedicates himself to this main objective.

THE JOB OF CRUSHING JAPAN

Q.—Can Japan be expected to surrender unconditionally?

A.—Unconditional surrender and occupation of Japan are primary war aims. But the Japanese "will fight to the bitter end," says Under Secretary of State Joseph Grew, for ten years Ambassador to Japan. Iwo-Jima's toll of 20,000 American casualties for 23,000 Japanese dead is an example of the to-the-death tenacity which may be expected in key positions.

It is difficult to estimate how long it will take the Allies to defeat Japan. No prediction can possibly take into account the accidents and fortunes of war. The only certain forecast is that the harder we and our allies hit Japan, the more quickly we apply our maximum pressure, the sooner the war will end and the smaller the cost will be in American and Allied lives.

Japan has two great strengths: (1) One willingness of her soldiers to die to the last man rather than to surrender; (2) Her geographical positions: She is hard to get at. Our nearest large harbor is in the Philippine Islands, 1,700 miles from Tokyo. (Okinawa, only 325 miles south of Kyushu, has anchorages but no harbor facilities of importance.) Tokyo is 1,500 miles from Guam and Saipan, which are 5,000 miles from Hawaii, and Hawaii is as far from San Francisco as London is from New York.

JAPAN'S STRENGTH

Q.—What is Japan's armed strength?

A.—Japan has an army of 4,000,000 men, less than a fourth of them south of Formosa and China. She has several million fit for military service not yet called up. So far, we have not come up against the main strength of the Japanese Army.

Although the Japanese fleet has been crippled, it can still strike damaging blows in waters protected by land-based aviation. Her air force is still a powerful defensive factor. Until our recent bombings of Japan became frequent, Japan was producing planes faster than we could destroy them. In one recent raid over Tokyo the Japanese were able to put 650 fighter planes in the air against our Superfortresses.

Q.—How strong is Japan's industrial position?

A.—Government experts have estimated that Japan is capable of maintaining a large production in almost every category of war equipment and military supplies. Although Japan has suffered spectacular military reverses, a large portion of the war machine with which Japan began the war remains intact. The reduction fo Japan's industrial potential will require a great intensification of our heavy air attacks.

Japan has many critical war materials on the home islands. In Korea and especially in Manchuria, an important and integral part of Japan's inner zone, Japan has a large industrial plant and important raw materials. She also has stock-piled lrge quantities of key materials, enough for at least a year of full-scale war.

ALLIED ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Q.—How has Allied warfare weakened Japan?

A.—We have crippled her navy, reduced the size of her air force, and destroyed the perimeter defense of the empire. Our present positions in the Philippines and Okinawa blockade her supplies from the south. Our bombers are increasing the force of their assault on her heavy industry. Since Pearl Harbor we have sunk or damaged more than two-thirds of Japan's merchant fleet, and have severed her outer lines of communication. However, as we get closer to the homeland the remaining merchant fleet may be adequate for the shorter lines of communication.

Even blockading Japan from the mainland, a difficult task, would not starve out the Japanese. These people thrive on less and poorer food than Americans.

ALLIED REQUIREMENTS

Q.—What forces will the Allies require to compel Japan's unconditional surrender?

A.—Our experience in Europe has generally demonstrated the need for joint operations of land, air and sea power. Only such coordinated action can compass the defeat of a strong and determined enemy. Germany was subject to years of the most intensive bombing ever known, but it was certainly necessary for our ground forces to battle it out with the enemy yard by yard and mile by mile to win our victory. This experience has been duplicated in the Pacific.

To mount the climactic phases of the war against Japan and to occupy conquered territories, the Army plans to maintain total forces of 6,968,000 men for a year after the European victory. This requirement, as well as that of the Navy, has been calculated by the joint chiefs of staff, using the same precise methods that were used to calculate the requirement for our successful campaigns in Europe, Africa, and our advances in the Pacific. The Army's present strength is about 8,300,000 men.

The Navy will reach its currently authorized strength of 3,389,000 by June 30, 1945. The Marine Corps has reached its authorized strength of 478,000 and the Coast Guard is virtually up to its authorized total of 173,000. Almost our entire Navy will be sent to augment the forces already operating against Japan. The British have thrown forces into Burma and a portion of their fleet is fighting beside that of the United States. Great Britain, France, the Netherlands and China, among others, have pledged their full assistance in combat and in all forms of co-operative efforts in the war against Japan.

It will take time to bring our own maximum forces to bear. The task of transporting them will be tremendous. The maximum use of both ships and planes will be made to bring this force to bear against Japan with all possible speed.

Some of our forces will be started on the way almost at once, but regrouping, re-equipping, retraining and redeploying our armies will require many months, since men and material must be transported to the far Pacific.

Transportation is a key problem in the Pacific. It is doubtful whether much of the merchant shipping now operating in the Atlantic can be shifted to the Pacific because of the millions of men and large quantities of equipment which will have to be moved out of Europe. It is anticipated that the shipping situation will be tighter than ever for many months, because of military requirements in the Pacific, redeployment of troops, return of men for demobilization and shipment of supplies to liberated areas.

DEMOBILIZATION-DRAFT-RECRUITMENT

Q.—What are the plans of the armed forces for demobilization?

A.—Prosecution of the war against Japan must take precedence over all other considerations, but men and women who can be spared from the Army will be demobilized. The Navy does not plan to demobilize until Japan has been defeated. The Army expects to reduce its strength by 130,000 in the first year after the defeat of Germany, but this will have to be done slowly at first because first priority on shipping must be assigned to the men and material going to the Pacific.

The soldiers to be released through the cut in the size of the Army will be selected from among fathers and those who have had the most extended and arduous service. It is the Army's intention to release additional men by holding selective service calls at a level above that necessary to replace men lost through battle and normal attribution.

The Army will at the same time continue to release men because of sickness, wounds, age and other factors which prevent their effective use in service. It is expected that discharges of this kind, plus those made through the cut in the strength of the Army, and the excess of draft calls over replacement needs, will result in release from the Army during the next year of about two million officers and men.

Nearly all soldiers will be demobilized from the service through the Army's separation centers and Army hospitals, in this country, and as close to their homes as possible.

HOW DEMOBILIZATION WORKS

Q. How will the Army select those men and women in its service who will be demobilized?

A. The selection will be made through the application of fair and impartial standards based on the views of the enlisted personnel themselves. These standards provide consideration for each enlisted man or woman as an individual. The adjusted service rating score will be computed with an allowance of the following credits:

Service credit—Based upon the total number of months of Army service since September 16, 1940.

Overseas credit—An additional credit based on the number of months served overseas.

Combat credit—Based upon each battle participation star, and each award of the following decorations: Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldier's Medal, Bronze Star Medal, Purple Heart and Air Medal.

Parenthood credit—Credits for each dependent child under eighteen years up to a limit of three children.

The Army has a somewhat similar system for officers. However, because of the character of their duties, the element of military essentiality will play a larger part in the decision.

After the scores of all enlisted personnel are known, the War Department will determine a "critical score." The "critical score" is that score at or above which an individual will be considered for demobilization.

Three factors may delay the separation of an individual who is a member of an organization which is being retained in service: (1) the lack of a qualified available replacement with a score below the critical score, (2) the operation of military necessity, (3) the possession of a special skill needed in the Japanese war. In all cases, however, enlisted personnel with scores equal to or above the critical score who are held in service will be released as rapidly as circumstances permit.

Separate critical scores will be computed for enlisted personnel in the Army Air Forces, the Women's Army Corps, the remainder of the Army. These separate scores are intended to insure equality of treatment for personnel in all branches of the service. Since the critical scores will be applicable throughout the world, it should be recognized that it will be manifestly impossible to separate individuals in the sequence of their scores. To appreciate this fact, one need only to consider the difference in the time required to move personnel between Europe and the United States, or the Pacific and the United States.

In addition, married members of the W. A. C. will be released, upon application, if their husbands have been demobilized or discharged from the armed services. Also enlisted men over forty-two, who apply, are being released by the Army.

SERVICE MAN-POWER NEEDS

Q.—Why not meet our immediate Army needs in the Pacific with men in the United States who have not yet seen overseas service? A.—Almost every soldier in this country, except those who have already been overseas or who are physically disqualified, already is embarked for foreign service. At the present time about 1,400,000 are in training to go overseas. Most others capable of serving overseas are engaged in essential jobs and will go overseas as soon as they can be replaced by overseas returnees or limited-service men. However, only part of the needs of the Japanese war can be met from the ranks of men now in the United States.

Q.—How will troops be redeployed to the Pacific?

A.—Because of the urgency of the military task, large numbers of troops will go direct from the European theater to the Pacific. This number will include many service units needed to prepare the harbors, bases and airfields essential to sharply expanded combat operations. Other troops will go to the Pacific by way of the United States and will have an opportunity for furloughs before proceeding to their new destination. More than half, including the great bulk of the combat units, will go by way of the United States.

Q.—Will the draft continue?

A.—Yes. Selective service calls will continue to be large. Deferments for men under thirty will continue to be relatively few and will become fewer as more veterans return to industry and the farms. The exact size of the calls that will be required to meet the needs of the Army and Navy cannot be calculated at this time. Release of men with long and hard service will require a higher level of calls than would be necessary if no effort were made to spread the burden of military service among as large a proportion of the population as possible.

OTHER UNIFORMED SERVICES

Q.—Will recruiting for the women's services be continued?

A.—Yes. The W. A. C. is below authorized strength, and recruitment must continue. Likewise enlistment of Waves must continue in order to meet the Navy's need for hospital corpsmen and for replacements. The other services—the Marine Corps Women's Reserve and Spars—will require replacements. The Army will continue to recruit nurses. The Navy will also continue to recruit nurses, but only to meet a small monthly quota for replacement purposes. Veterans' Administration, which now has 4,150 nurses, needs 3,000 more before July 31, 1945.

Q.—Has victory in Europe decreased the need for merchant seamen and officers? A.—No. The need for seamen and officers will continue until at least six months after the end of the war in the Pacific. Repatriation of American troops, movements of supplies and equipment and transport of rehabilitation supplies will continue to engage most of the United States Merchant Marine for perhaps as long as three years after the end of hostilities with Japan.

The United States will need 115,600 additional seamen and officers by Jan. 1, 1946. These men are expected to be obtained as follows: Men to be recruited by War Shipping Administration, through seamen's unions, and ship lines—36,200; new men to be recruited and trained—79,000, almost all of whom are to come from W. S. A. training schools.

PRODUCTION AND JOBS

Q.—What effect does the end of the war in Europe have on production? A.—War production must continue at a very high rate. Even six months from now, war production will almost equal the rate of 1943. It is not simple to shift from a two-front to a one-front war. To date our fighting in the Pacific has constituted only the preliminary battles to the main attack upon Japan. The main battles lie ahead. Warfare in the Pacific will accelerate and production must keep pace.

Actually, some categories of production will increase, some new items will be added and the emphasis will be shifted in other programs. Some items will be cut back. V-E Day production cutbacks have already largely been authorized or have been taken in anticipation of the final collapse of Germany. In the next three months there will be a net total decline in war production which will run between 10 and 15 per cent, as compared with current levels. From that point, larger cuts cannot take place until the long pipe lines to the Pacific have been filled. Thereafter, the needs for the Japanese war will continue so great as to necessitate the maintenance of production at not far from two-thirds of the schedules of the first half of 1945.

Q.—How will production cutbacks be distributed? A.—Cutbacks will be spread as evenly as possible. However, the changed nature of the Pacific war will affect differently the output of different industries, different areas and different plants. In general, it is planned to cut back production first in tight labor areas, so that work opportunities may be equalized. This will not always be possible, because cutback placements may be decided for other than man-power reasons, such as, when a particular plant is able to produce only a particular item, it might not be cut back no matter where located.

Q.—How are plants and workers notified about cutbacks? A.—The procurement agency which issued the original contract will notify the production readjustment committee of the War Production Board, which includes representatives of all interested government agencies, that cutbacks of a certain amount are necessary and will recommend the plants to be cut back.

All agencies concerned review the cutback plan, after which the local representative of the procurement agency, in co-operation with the local termination committee, gives notice to the manufacturer. Simultaneously labor is notified. The termination committee is made up of local W. P. B. and W. M. C. representatives and those of the procurement agencies.

Before notifying management and labor, the local termination committee determines whether there are other war requirements for the facilities and man power being released by the cutback in production.

CHANGES IN PRODUCTION

Q.—What additional civilian production will be permitted immediately?

A.—Essential civilian items needed in larger quantities, including such items as oil drilling equipment, locomotives and freight cars, trucks, utilities and farm machinery. In addition, certain consumer items such as refrigerators and washing machines, will be started immediately in moderate quantities. Many minor electrical appliances and other durable and semi-durable goods will start, or expand production.

Not all factories now producing for war will have to make extensive changes in machinery or methods to produce for civilian consumption. Actually, a very large majority of all so-called war production plants can continue to work with the same, or similar machines, and in similar ways. In some cases where specialized equipment is used, physical reconversion will be necessary.

MAY 10 1945

RELAXING CONTROLS

Q.—How will production of civilian goods get started?

A.—The W. P. B. will release its controls as quickly as possible. Some can be removed entirely, others may be released on a local basis in the light of local needs for war production. Among the steps which W. P. B. has already taken, or will take in the near future, are:

1. Restoration of the complete operation of the spot authorization plan for approving civilian production through district and regional offices of W. P. B.

2. Revocation of a number of orders which at present restrict or prohibit the manufacture of certain minor durable and semi-durable consumer goods, or that limit the use in such articles of materials which now are no longer critical. Gradual revocation of these orders has already begun.

3. "Open ending" the controlled materials plan (C. M. P.) so that copper, steel and aluminum, now channeled entirely by allotments to war production, may be released also to civilian manufacturers for purchase in the free market in such quantities as are no longer needed for war or essential civilian purposes.

4. Removing or "rating floors" from a number of items now under W. P. B. orders to permit delivery or production of these items without a special W. P. B. priority.

5. Positive priority assistance for smaller manufacturers and veterans in obtaining needed materials and components so that each will have a fair chance to get his share.

The war-time economy has closed many businesses. Wherever possible small business will be given the first chance to reconvert.

It is expected that two to three million tons of steel will be released during the first quarter after V-E Day, about 500,000,000 pounds of copper and brass, and around 150,000,000 pounds of aluminum probably will be available for civilian production during the same period.

READYING FOR RECONVERSION

Q.—How quickly will it be possible to start civilian production in those plants where war orders have been canceled and which must be reconvreted?

A.—The length of necessary time will vary with each individual plant according to the amount of change-over needed for its new products, and its ability to get delivery of materials and components. Government agencies already have in operation procedures for prompt settlement of canceled contracts, and for clearing government-owned equipment and surplus inventories out of facilities no longer needed for war production. Both are geared to give manufacturers full and rapid freedom of action in converting to civilian production, within the limitations of supplies of material and man power.

In general, a war producer whose contracts have been canceled will receive reimbursement for all costs incurred by him, which were necessary for the performance of the war contracts, plus a reasonable allowance for profit. Expenses of reconversion, however, may not be charged to the government as part of the liquidation costs.

Basic plans for handling all such matters have been worked out and information on them is available to all war plants from their contracting agencies. Funds for settlement of all contracts have been set aside from the sums originally earmarked for the whole contract.

Q.—How much is reconversion expected to cost?

A.—Total reconversion of all plants now producing for war is expected to cost not more than $3,000,000,000. Manufacturers and other businesses of the nation are estimated to have reserves of more than $20,000,000,000. Smaller manufacturers, who may not have their proportionate share of this big reserve, have access to special financing. The government is prepared to supply them from funds owed them under their contracts in anticipation of full settlement, and also has set up procedures to provide guaranteed interim financing loans on request.

THE MAN-POWER SITUATION

Q.—What effect will shifts in war production have upon national man power and employment?

A.—The vast majority of the 52,000,000 civilian workers are in jobs which will continue during the first six months after V-E Day regardless of cuts in war production. Of these, nearly 43,000,000 are in agriculture, trades and services, transportation, plants manufacturing civilian goods, in government service or in business for themselves. About 9,000,000 are in munitions plants, a large proportion of which must continue munitions production for the war against Japan.

During the next six months, probably about one and a half million workers will lose their jobs. A larger number than this will be out of war work, but they will continue in the same jobs, producing for civilian consumption—for example, steel workers now producing steel for tanks will continue producing steel for items such as refrigerators. Also, in the next year, about two million men are expected to be demobilized from the Army. During the following six months, perhaps another three million workers will lose their jobs.

But reconversion, expansion and the needs of many industries, such as transportation, retail trades and services, textiles, agriculture, lumber and public utilities, which are now short of workers, should provide jobs for most of those who will lose them through cutbacks. The tremendous backlog of civilian needs and purchasing power will stimulate both old and new enterprises.

Unemployment, therefore, much of which will be temporary, is not expected to total more than two and a half million at the end of the next twelve months, as compared with the present total of about one million.

Shutdowns probably will cause some serious local unemployment, chiefly in one-industry towns where everybody works at the war plant. Where necessary, the United States Employment Service of the W. M. C. will supply information as to where workers are needed and will assist the worker in obtaining employment.

Women may be affected more seriously by cutbacks than men, especially in those plants which rely now largely on woman power. But re-employment records show that many women who are released when contracts are canceled have not tried to get new jobs.

HELP BETWEEN JOBS

Q.—What help is available for displaced workers?

A.—For one thing, unemployment compensation is available to released workers in all states. The maximum payments vary from $15 to $22 a week; the number of weekly payments from about ten to twenty. Workers may obtain unemployment compensation by reporting to the local United States employment service immediately. If users cannot refer them to new jobs, it will set the wheels in motion for the payment of unemployment compensation.

Q.—What does a veteran do to get his old job back?

A.—If he held a position other than temporary, usually he need only to apply to his old employer, who in accordance with the selective training and service act will re-employ him in his old job, or in a position of like seniority, status and pay. If any questions arise his local selective service board will advise him of his rights and assist him in establishing them.

Up to the end of the war in Europe, more than 2,000,000 men had been discharged from the armed services. Of these, something more than a third had asked for their old jobs back. Most of them found their own jobs. A veteran seeking a new job may go to the United States Employment Service local office and ask to see the veterans' employment representative.

If a veteran is out of work and the U. S. E. S. is unable to find him a job, he can obtain an unemployment allowance. Under certain conditions he may be eligible for a readjustment allowance of $20 a week, for from four weeks to a total limit of fifty-two weeks, depending on his length of service.

If a veteran wishes to obtain specific detailed information about his government insurance, medical benefits, educational allowances, and other aids provided by veterans legislation, he should apply to the nearest field office of the veterans administration.

CIVILIAN LIFE

Q.—Will the war-time restrictions on civilians—rationing, lack of household appliances, price control and wage control—continue?

A.—These are war measures, and they must be continued as long as the war-created needs exist. They will be relaxed just as soon as materials, facilities and man power can be released from war production.

The irksome controls are designed not only to direct our resources to war, but to protect consumers against a rising cost of living and to make sure that every one gets a fair share of scarce goods.

Q.—Is it necessary to continue food rationing?

A.—Yes. For three reasons: (1) Total food supplies available for civilians, the military and other uses, this year are expected to be 5 to 10 per cent less than last year. At the same time, total requirements are 5 to 10 per cent greater, and will remain high. (2) We have just as many soldiers to feed as before V-E Day. They must be fed, whether they remain in Europe, or return to the United States, or are transferred to the Pacific. Moreover, we are helping to feed millions of persons other than our own soldiers in Europe. (3) Supply lines to the Pacific are longer than to Europe. More food will have to go into these supply lines. We will be feeding more men in the Pacific.

Point values of rationed food, as in the past, will be raised or lowered according to the supplies of rationed food available. The established system of making red and blue points good on the first of each month will continue, as will the plan of expiration dates for ration stamps.

OUR FOOD SUPPLY

Q.—What foods will be scarce?

A.—Meat is the most serious shortage; sugar is next. But butter and other fats and oils also will be scarce. Supplies of meat are expected to be 26 per cent less than the estimated requirements for the third quarter. Supplies will provide military requirements plus quantities for home consumption at a level for the quarter equal to an annual rate of 115 pounds per capita. This is at an annual rate of about 35 pounds less than the average which Americans ate last year and 10 pounds less than was consumed in the average pre-war year. There will be a little more meat in the last quarter due to the seasonal increase in livestock marketing. But there will be a corresponding increase in requirements.

Sugar requirements are much greater than the available supply. There is no prospect that the victory won in Europe will reduce the sugar demand—rather the need of liberated countries will increase it—and there is no immediate way of increasing the supply significantly. The present sugar ration totals 17.1 pounds per person this year for home use—the rate now has been cut to 15 pounds per year — excluding ration board allowances for home canning which are 70 per cent of 1944 totals.

Butter production will be about 600,000,000 pounds short of requirements. This will be almost seven fewer pounds of butter this year than in pre-war years for every man, woman and child in the country.

There is a wide world shortage of other fats and oils. The smaller quantity available in this country is due largely to the decline in lard production. The quantity of all edible fats and oils available this year is 1,800,000,000 pounds less than the estimated American requirements.

Supplies of cereals, except rice, are adequate. Supplies of fresh and frozen fish are large. Domestic supplies of fresh vegetables are entirely adequate and prospects, based on commercial and Victory-garden production, are that this situation will continue. The outlook for fresh fruit is that supplies will be almost as large as last year. Civilian supplies of eggs will be about the same as the record totals of last year. Supplies of fluid milk are of record size, and are more than a fourth larger than before the war.

Q.—Will we continue to feed liberated people n Europe? A.—Yes. We are sending somewhat more food to Europe this year, including relief distributed through military channels.

Fats and oils are the most important group of foods we are sending abroad, because fat is both indispensable and a cheap supplement to the large amounts of cereals which will be sent because they are relatively abundant. Supplies of meats; cheese; condensed, evaporated and dried milk; sugar; rice, and desirable types of beans are so short that they can be supplied to meet only the most urgent needs.

GOODS FOR CIVILIANS

Q. Will supplies of clothing begin to increase soon?

A. The joint O. P. A.-W. P. B. clothing program should increase production of low-cost items of clothing to meet at least minimum demands. However, certain textiles still needed by the military will not be released in any large amounts until after Japan is defeated, and military needs for some textiles suitable for the Pacific theater will be even higher.

The new O. P. A.-W. P. B. program is designed to channel most of the available materials of all kinds—cotton, wool, rayon—into lower priced clothing items sorely needed at present. What is left can be made into any material a manufacturer may wish to produce. But supplies of luxury materials—heavy rayon-satin, upholstering, brocades and similar textiles—will be strictly limited, probably until after the defeat of Japan.

Nylon and silk stockings are made of war materials and cannot be expected in any large uantities until well after final victory.

Shoes must continue to be rationed, for lack of leather, but shoe needs of the nation will be met by the production of non-rationed shoes made from fabric and with nonleather soles.

Q.—When will it be possible to buy new equipment for the home—radios, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, furniture?

A.—Some of the appliances should be available in limited numbers within a year. Washing machines, refrigerators and other body needed items will undoubtedly go into production first. Some household needs, such as electric irons and stoves, have been produced in limited quantities during the last two or three years and production probably will be stepped up in three to six months—as skilled man power and materials permit.

Provision must be made to see that the most essential civilian needs, such as those of hospitals, are filled first. If there are any appliances left over they will probably be sold without rationing. Some civilian radios should be available within the year, but present plans indicate a tight situation.

Some items of furniture will continue to be available, but shortages of lumber and heavy textiles may limit production. Generally, as soon as materials are available for civilian production, furniture again will have metal fittings and hardware as on pre-war models.

NEW AUTOMOBILES

Q.—When will it be possible to get a new automobile?

A.—A few cars may be coming off the assembly lines in six to nine months, but it will be a long time before they are produced in really large quantities, and there cannot be enough to meet pent-up civilian demand in less than three years. O. P. A. will see that the most essential users get the first available cars under the present rationing program.

Spare parts to keep present cars rolling will continue to be produced at a very high rate. Last year the W. P. B. programmed the manufacture of $750,000,000 worth of auto and truck parts. Cars at present average nearly eight years of age, trucks nine years, and many will have to last three to four years longer. Greatest parts shortage is in batteries and tires. Need for care of cars was never greater than today.

Q.—Wil there be more gasoline for civilians?

A.—Best estimate is that there will be from 100,000 to 200,000 more barrels of gasoline daily for civilian use, an increase of 8 to 16 per cent. Any such increase, however, may be temporary. Added gasoline supplies will be divided among "A" and commercial card holders. It may be possible to increase the mileage allowed to some "B" card holders who can show need. But, in view of the military demand in the Pacific, the best estimate is that gasoline rationing must be continued for some time.

Q. Will there be more coal, home heating oil and kerosene?

A. Coal mines now have the smallest labor force in forty years and it will become smaller. Despite the overtime that the miners are now working, they cannot produce enough coal to meet fully our tremendous war and civilian requirements. There will be even less coal than there was last winter. As for home heating oil and kerosene, the best we can hope for is that civilians will have as much as last year. This hope hinges upon the continued breaking of production records.

NEW HOMES

Q. Will it be possible to build new homes soon?

A. Home building already is under way on a limited scale where necessary to relieve congestion, but only where man power and materials can be spared. Many kinds of building materials will probably remain in short supply for some time. However, returning veterans are given priorities for home building; priorities also are granted in cases of hardship. Restrictions on home building will not end until man power and materials are generally available. At least 250,000 homes and apartments are expected to be built during the next twelve months, although the figure might be as high as 400,000. Essential repairs can be made now.

Q.—Will surpluses of war goods be available to civilians, thereby helping to supply the demand for new civilian goods?

A.—Surpluses will be sold mainly through dealers and distributors, not to individual consumers. An exception to that rule is provision for direct sales to veterans who wish to buy surpluses to establish themselves in business, the professions or agriculture. While total surpluses are expected to run into many billions, surplus consumer goods are not likely to amount to enough to compete seriously with new production. Instead, they should serve a useful purpose in filling civilian needs for many items that will be difficult to obtain before manufacturing gets into full production.

Q.—When will it be possible to get better home services?

A.—Delivery service on groceries and other items, and department-store deliveries of packages below present weight and size limits may show some improvement near the end of the first year after V-E Day. Shortage of trucks, parts, tires, gasoline and especially of man power will continue to limit delivery service. Where man power is locally available, some limitations may be relaxed.

Repair service on refrigerators, stoves, etc., should be improved as repair parts and skilled mechanics become more plentiful.

Some improvement can be expected in laundry and cleaning services in localities where labor is freshly available. These facilities, too, will depend upon new equipment to reach their pre-war standards.

TRANSPORTATION BURDEN

Q.—Will the load on transportation facilities be lightened now?

A.—No. The transportation requirements of the shift to the Pacific war will add to the problems of the already overburdened railroads. Large quantities of supplies must be carried to the Eastern ports for the liberated countries and American occupation forces. At the same time, the Japanese war will call for increased rail shipments of men and materials to the West, a long haul over the few Western railways at a time when grain shipments may be reaching their peak volume.

Present government controls on civilian freight traffic must continue. The total freight tonnage will decrease slightly, but the shift of the main current of traffic to the West may add as much as 10 per cent to the present heavy load in that area. It will be necessary to make greater use of water carriers to shorten railhauls. Lack of pipe lines and waterways to the West Coast will require maximum use of railroads to haul petroleum products for the Japanese war.

Q. Will passenger travel become easier?

A. No. Trains will be crowded because of the heavy movement of troops. Pullman space will be difficult to obtain. The ban on conventions will continue and promoters of amateur and professional sports will be expected to continue their pledges of minimizing travel. Further curtailment of passenger service may be necessary. Present priorities on airplane travel will have to be continued.

All efforts for most efficient use of trucks and buses must continue. The shortage of tires, batteries and gasoline will not allow the unrestricted use of private motor cars.

HOLDING DOWN INFLATION

Q. Will wartime inflationary pressures continue after V-E Day?

A. Yes. They will be serious. Purchasing power will continue to exceed supply. Total income will continue to be high.

Price and rationing controls, wage controls, high taxes, and continued war bonds sales will be essential in keeping consumer buying within bounds. People will be encouraged to buy only what they need and to keep up their war bond purchases.

O. P. A. will continue price ceilings on items now available and will establish prices on newly manufactured goods. These will be continued to prevent inflationary tendencies. Production of more civilian goods will not, for a while, make price control easier.

Q. Will wage controls be lifted?

A. Removal of wage controls at this time would be certain to increase the cost of producing goods. Producers would have to charge higher prices to cover their costs of production. This would cause the cost of living to go up. As the cost of living rose, wages would have to be raised again. Such a merry-go-round of wage and price increases not only would fail to help workers, but would be a sure way to bring on a collapse after the war. Both prices and wages must be stabilized as long as this danger exists. Stabilization does not mean that wages will be frozen. Unfair wage rates will be adjusted; substandard wages will be raised.

The War Labor Board has the power to set floors under wages as well as ceilings over them. This power can be used when it appears that wages are likely to be forced downward rather than upward, and every attempt will be made to prevent drastic and unwarranted wage cuts.

Q. Will wages be lowered for displaced war workers who take new jobs in plants producing civilian goods?

A. While a given plant cannot reduce wage rates for a particular type of work without War Labor Board approval, some workers will move to other factories at a rate lower than their war plant job paid. Some increases in wage rates can be adjusted for a shorter work week, but it will not be possible to assure every worker that his take-home pay will remain unchanged as war production declines.

Q. Will the forty-eight-hour work week continue after V-E Day?

A. In many industries and communities, yes. As victory over Japan draws near, workers in consumer goods industries may return gradually to the forty-hour week. War industries will, however, remain on the forty-eight-hour schedule, except possibly in construction of merchant ships in which the emergency program runs out Dec. 31, 1945, or in those war industries which have taken a heavy cutback and where pay rates are high.

OTHER CIVILIAN RESPONSIBILITIES

Q. Will there be an early reduction of taxes

A. This matter will be decided by the Congress, but it has been recommended that no general reduction in taxes be made until after Japan is defeated. New tax programs are being planned for the post-V-J Day period to stimulate reconversion and new enterprises.

Q. Is it necessary for censorship to continue?

A. Yes. Censorship must remain until all danger to our security has passed, and this will not be until American lives no longer are in peril. However, with the combat zone narrowed to the Pacific-Asiatic area, some censorship modifications are in order. International mails and cables may be expected to move more freely outside the battle area.

Q. Will it be necessary to continue saving used fats, paper and tin cans?

A.—Yes, all these materials will be needed for the victory over Japan. There is a world-wide shortage of fats that must be partially made up by kitchen fats collections. Paper will be even more necessary in the packaging of material for use in the Pacific, where the climate is hard on food, clothing, munitions and other war equipment. As for tin, our former major supply source is still in the hands of the enemy, Japan.

A. Yes. The seventh loan will go on, and there will need to be, at least, an eighth loan. We must put into the war with Japan every man and every piece of equipment which can be effectively utilized. There will continue also to be a great need to divert cash purchasing power from the retail market in order to keep the maximum curb on inflation.

Q.—Will normal foreign trade become possible now?

A.—Not generally for all areas of the world. War-time restrictions on commercial export-import business, necessary to control the flow of essential supplies, so that they could be used with maximum efficiency, will be removed gradually, but normal export and import trades will not be possible before the end of the war with Japan. In accordance with the London agreement of principles, of August, 1944, enunciated by the State Department and the British Foreign Office, the United Nations' control of merchant shipping for military purposes will continue until cessation of hostilities or six months after the defeat of Japan. This is a continuation of the combined Shipping Adjustment Board's work, expanded as necessary to control merchant ship tonnage of the world up to V-J Day and for six months thereafter.

We will continue to send lend-lease goods to our Allies, but in reduced amounts. All lend-lease is limited strictly to aid in prosecution of the war. Allied nations will be able to get from us some supplies and machinery for rehabilitation of their industries, within the limit of available supplies, in the light of demands of the armed forces and our domestic civilian economy, and subject to the working out of mechanisms for financing the purchase of such supplies.

VINSON ASSERTS WAGE FORMULA WILL CONTINUE

Also Declares Other War Pay Policies Will Go On Indefinitely.

SEES STABILIZATION NEEDED

Mobilizer Says That the Elements for Creating an Inflationary Spiral Remain.

Washington, May 9 (A. P.).—The "Little Steel" wage formula and all other wartime pay stabilization policies will be continued indefinitely, Fred M. Vinson, Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, said today. He told a news conference that there would be the "same emphasis on the wage front as on the price front"—that stabilization still is necessary despite the arrival of V-E Day. How long this will be necessary is contingent upon the speed of return to peacetime conditions, he indicated.

The specific wage control program will be announced by George W. Taylor, chairman of the War Labor Board, and William H. Davis, Director of Economic Stabilization. Mr. Davis already has outlined his views to newsmen and Taylor will hold a news conference tomorrow.

"The idea is to permit the employer and employee to reach agreement in regard to wages, in accordance with the stabilization policies now in effect," said Mr. Vinson. "Every element is still present and will continue to be present which creates an inflationary spiral.

Calls Economic Level Higher.

"Today every major group is on a higher plateau economically than ever before in history. . . . I feel we have got to have higher prices for raw materials, higher wages and higher profits than in the pre-war period."

This is necessary because the nation will be saddled with a $300,000,000,000 debt, he said. To meet this, people have to be employed, producing more goods and increasing the national income above pre-war levels.

"As I see it, higher wages do not necessarily mean higher prices," Vinson said, referring to increased production and smaller unit costs.

While asserting that war plants will continue to work forty-eight hours a week, he did not commit himself to that schedule in civilian plants. He said his post-war goal was not specifically 60,000,000 jobs but "full employment."

He said, in his formal published program, that:

"Stabilization does not mean that wages will be frozen. Unfair wage rates will be adjusted; substandard wages will be raised.

"The War Labor Board has the power to set floors under wages as well as ceilings over them. This power can be used when it appears that wages are likely to be forced downward rather than upward, and every attempt will be made to prevent drastic and unwarranted wage cuts."

Part Of Controls Still Needed, Vinson Says

Washington, May 9 (AP) — Wartime controls over production, rationing and pricing will be continued until Japan is defeated, the Administration said today, but "some reconversion will start immediately."

Highlights of the program, as outlined at a White House news conference by War Mobilizer Fred M. Vinson were:

1. Release of enough materials and manpower, no longer needed for the Pacific war, to produce a few new automobiles within six to nine months.

2. Some prospect of an early increase in gasoline allowances for civilian motorists.

No Food Supply Change

3. Vinson said he saw no indications of any early general improvement in the civilian food supply situation.

4. No general reduction in taxes until final victory is won.

On the civilian production front, Vinson said that, generally speaking, "materials and manpower no longer pre-empted for war will be freed for civilian production."

As to the armed forces, he said: "Prosecution of the war against Japan must take precedence over all considerations, but men and women who can be spared from the Army will be demobilized." The Navy does not plan to demobilize until Japan has been defeated, he added.

He said the Army expects to reduce its strength by 1,300,000 in the next twelve months, but this will have to be done slowly at first because "first priority on shipping must be assigned to the men and material going to the Pacific."

Praising the American people for not going "haywire" over Germany's surrender, Vinson said he was confident they would "stand on their feet" until Japan is beaten. He would not predict how long the war in the Pacific will last.

"So far," he remarked, "we have not come up against the main strength of the Japanese Army."

All Efforts Toward War

In a report entitled "The War Phase 2," released at the news conference, Vinson declared:

"All our effort toward war, and toward production, will be needed up to the last instant."

This report said the major home-front battle will continue to demand strongest public support against inflation and rising prices and added that a wage-stabilization policy must be maintained during the reconversion period "to avoid a postwar deflationary trend which might destroy wage standards."

Gasoline Prediction

As to gasoline, Vinson said his best estimate is that there will be from 100,000 to 200,000 more barrels available daily for civilian use—an increase of eight to sixteen per cent—as a result of the European victory. He said even this increase may be only temporary, however.

Added gasoline supplies will be divided among A and commercial card holders, and it may be possible to increase the mileage of B-card holders who can show need.

Vinson's figures contrasted sharply with those of Interior Secretary Ickes and other Petroleum Administration officials who have estimated the increases would range as high as 50 per cent after Germany's defeat.

Car Scarcity For Three Years

Vinson said a few new cars may be coming off the assembly lines in six to nine months, but it will be a long time before they are produced in large quantities "and there cannot be enough to meet pent-up civilian demand in less than three years."

He predicted the total number of persons thrown out of employment by Germany's surrender probably will not exceed more than two to two and a half millions at the end of the next twelve months, as compared with a present total of about 1,000,000.

"There will be severe local unemployment problems, side by side with actual manpower shortages, in areas where war production remains at a high peak," he said. "Strict manpower controls will continue to be necessary, especially in such areas."

Transportation Bans Stay

Vinson emphasized that transportation restrictions must continue in full force indefinitely and that there can be no lifting of the requirement that conventions be cleared through the ODT.

"Military requirements for food will not decrease, and relief needs will be greater," he continued. "Domestic demand for food will continue at high levels. As a result, no general improvement in the civilian food-supply situation can be expected. Food production must be continued at record levels."

He said the Administration has recommended that no general reduction in taxes be made until after Japan is defeated and that "new tax programs are being planned for the post-V-J-day period to stimulate reconversion and new enterprises."

Hesitancy Apparent

Vinson called the news conference as the Government began showing signs of hesitancy at plunging into the reconversion swim.

Paul V. McNutt notified the War Manpower Commission's Labor Management Committee he might have to ask its support for a revival of manpower legislation.

WPB began to back water on its program for relaxing controls over the war metals, aluminum, copper and steel.

Conditions on the Home Front In Second Phase of World War

Saved from Execution by His Air Troops, Goering Says After Capture by Yanks

By A. I. GOLDBERG

KUTZBUEHEL, Austria, May 9.—(AP) Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, whose Nazi air force once frightened the world, and Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, German commander-in-chief on the Western front, have surrendered to Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's American Seventh Army.

Goering, a self-professed fugitive from the wrath of Hitler, surrendered near here last night with his wife and six-year-old daughter and was flown today to Gen. Patch's headquarters. Details of Kesselring's capture were not immediately given.

The first of the top Nazis to fall into American hands, Goering said he was sentenced to execution by Hitler on April 24 when he suggested that he, Goering, take over the crumbling Reich.

He declared that his air force followers shot their way through SS troops who were guarding him at Berchtesgaden and spirited him away to a hideout in this area. It was with relief, apparently, that the Nazi leaders surrendered last night, to Brig. Gen. Robert Stack, assistant commander of the U. S. 36th division.

Another of the original Nazis to fall into the 36th division's hands in the mop-up of this area of Austria was Gen. Ritter Von Epp, who commanded a brief defense of Munich but fled before American forces broke into the city.

Goering readily posed for photographers and talked freely of his final clash with Hitler, whom he described in a speech as late as 1943 as the "greatest German in history." He wore several medals, including the Grand Cross of the Knights Cross, Germany's highest decoration, but complained that he lost more than half his medals when Allied planes bombed the house where he was held prisoner at Berchtesgaden.

Both Goering and his wife, the former actress Emmy Sonnemann, appeared to be in good health, though Germany's former No. 1 hostess wept frequently. There were some moments of doubt and conjecture before it finally was decided that a small artillery spotting plane was capable of carrying both its pilot and the corpulent captive to Gen. Patch's headquarters. Goering appeared anxious to get started.

The former air marshal, who several times in recent weeks had been reported dead from various causes and who was succeeded in command of the Luftwaffe last month by Gen. Ritter Von Grein, said he was in Berchtesgaden April 24 when Allied armies were threatening to cut Germany in half.

Called Hitler By 'Phone

He said he called Hitler by telephone and reminded him of his statement that if anything happened Goering was to take command. Hitler, he said, flew into one of his characteristic rages and screamed that Goering had signed his own death warrant. Three days later, on April 27, Goering said he was seized by SS troops and notified that he had been ordered executed. Only his subsequent rescue by loyal members of the Luftwaffe saved his life, Goering declared.

He said he last saw Hitler in Berlin on April 22, when Russian forces were hammering at the outskirts of the capital, thus bearing out at least in part German broadcast announcements that the Fuehrer was directing the city's defense. He said he believed Hitler died on April 27 or 28.

Arrangements for Goering's surrender began three days ago, when Col. Berndt Von Brauchitsch, a son of the German general, passed through American lines and took his mission to Gen. Stack and Maj. John E. Dahlquist, commander of the 36th division. Stack then accompanied Von Brauchitsch's driver and met Goering on a road near Radstadt, about 35 miles southeast of Salzburg.

Shortly after noon today Goering's big car, driven by his own chauffeur, swung into a driveway of a hotel here and the pudgy, immaculately-dressed marshal of the vanished Luftwaffe stepped out. Stack emerged from another car and they went up to the second floor to await the arrival of Gen. Dahlquist.

Voice Falters

Goering chatted for a time with Stack and me and a British correspondent, employing an interpreter. The color of his face was slightly weatherbeaten, but he did not appear ill, as had often been reported. He spoke quietly and steadily, especially when he launched into his story of being held prisoner at Berchtesgaden. His voice faltered when he told how near the end was at one point.

He said the material superiority of the United States and Germany's delay in getting jet-plane production started contributing heavily to the United Nations' victory.

Then Gen. Dahlquist entered, and, after a handshake and a brief greeting, dismissed the interpreter and talked with Goering in German. Goering immediately remarked to Dahlquist that "your name indicates you are Swedish."

Dahlquist said yes, that his father and mother both were born in that country, and remarked "your first wife was Swedish, wasn't she?" the Nazi leader nodded assent.

After lunch, when it became time for the party to fly to Gen. Patch's headquarters, Dahlquist asked Goering if he could fit into a Cub plane. Goering asked how many passengers it could carry, and Dahlquist answered: "only one, but I have plenty of them—I even have a German plane." Goering made a slight grimace.

In describing his telephone conversation with Hitler, Goering said "Der Fuehrer accused me of breaking faith and demanded that I relinquish all my powers, titles and decorations." The next day, he said, came the order for his execution.

Von Brauchitsch said that the order directed to the major in command of the SS troops guarding Goering was not signed by Hitler but "by Reichsleiter Bormann (Martin Bormann, one of Hitler's oldest counselers) with the notation that it was signed in Der Fuehrer's name."

"Thus the major guarding the SS troops did not regard it as an authentic order from Der Fuehrer," Von Brauchitsch said. "Furthermore the troops did not want to execute the Reichsmarshal because he was a soldier and a commander and they were soldiers."

After a whispered conference with Goering, von Brauchitsch declined to give the SS major's name because he might be subjected to some form of retribution for not carrying out Bormann's order.

Never Past Channel

Von Brauchitsch said Goering had not piloted his own plane for some time. The aide said during the time he was on Goering's staff he took part in some air operations over France but, he added hastily, "I never went past the Channel."

Goering said that while he was under arrest he heard the German radio announce that he was ill of heart trouble.

"That wasn't true," he said, "I am in perfect health."

Lieut. Harold Bond, 22, Newtonville, Mass., who acted as Stark's aide on the trip to meet Goering, said a German colonel major came through the lines with a note from Goering to Eisenhower saying he (Goering) would like to meet him.

"General Stack and I went with the major to a castle near Bruck accompanied by a reconnaissance platoon from the 636th Reconnaissance Group," Bond said. "That was around 12.30 P.M. yesterday. Goering was not there. The major phoned several places to the east and learned the Goering party was on the way. He waited two hours and then went out to meet him."

Owned By Peruvian

American soldiers stood guard over Goering and his entourage last night at Fischhorn Castle, which is owned by a wealthy Peruvian.

At Goering's own door through the night was Lieut. Jerome Schapiro, of New York city. Others of the guard detail included seven veterans of Salerno and Cassino and Italy. They were Sergt. Richard Snell, Houston, Texas; Sergt. Lester Leggett, Fort Worth, Texas; Corporal Robert Neal, Luskin, Tevas; Private Filomena Penna, Taft, Texas; Private Everett Coody, Center, Texas; Private James Farmer, Fort Worth, Texas, and Private Don Parsons, Hillsboro, Texas. Commander of the detail was Lieut. Golden Sill, Salt Lake City.

During the years of Nazi affluence, Goering perhaps held at one time or another more titles and offices than any man in history. Here is a listing of the official titles held by the man who surrendered in terror of his life to a young American officer:

Marshal of Greater Germany, Supreme War-Economic Authority, President of the Reichstag, chairman of the Council for Defense of the Reich, Commissioner in Control of Transportation, chairman of the Wartime Ministerial Council, Chief Hunter, Governor of Prussia, Chief of Prussian Secret Police, Infantry

General of the Reichswehr, Minister of Forests, Minister of Aviation, Premier of Prussia, Nazi Minister without portfolio, member of the Secret Cabinet Council, director of state theaters and operas and field marshal general.

Hitler Had Ordered Marshal's Death For Suggesting That End Had Come

He Escaped—Surrendered to Texas Troops of Seventh Army.

MAY 10 1945

HIS FLYERS TOOK HIM FROM SS

Kesselring and Von Epp Are Also Yank Captives—Mrs. Goering Also Taken.

GOERING

Sixth Army Group Headquarters, May 9 (A. P.).—Hermann Goering, once the second ranking Nazi, surrendered last night to the American Seventh Army and declared today that he had been arrested by the Germans on orders of Hitler because he wanted to conclude a surrender of the Reich.

The fat Reichsmarshal said he was seized by the Germans on April 27, held at Berchtesgaden and ordered executed. He last saw Hitler on April 22 in Berlin, he asserted. He said he believed Hitler died on April 27 or 28.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, German commander on the western front until March, also fell into American hands.

Gen. Ritter von Epp, erstwhile defender of Munich and governor of Bavaria, also was captured by the Thirty-sixth Division. He was one of the original Nazis. The 101st Airborne Division captured Lieut.-Gen. Berger in a mass surrender of Waffen SS troops near Reifing.

Goering surrendered personally to Brig.-Gen. Robert Stack, assistant commander of the Texas (Thirty-sixth) Division, which also captured Field Marshal von Rundstedt on May 1. The surrender occurred on a road east of Kitzbuhel last night. Mrs. Goering and their child also were taken. All three appeared to be in good health. Mrs. Goering, who is the former actress Emmy Sonnemann, cried frequently.

Besides Goering and Rundsteut, the Texas Division in the past fortnight has captured such luminaries as Admiral Nicholas Horthy, former Regent of Hungary, and Field Marshals List and von Leeb.

Goering Arrives at Hotel.

Shortly after noon today, Goering's Mercedes Benz automobile, driven by his own chauffeur, a Lieut. Schultz, swung into a hotel driveway as one unit of a motor procession and the pudgy and immaculately dressed marshal of Germany's vanished Luftwaffe stepped out. From a United States car at the head of the procession, Gen. Stack emerged. He and Goering went to the second floor of the building to await the arrival of Major-Gen. John E. Dahlquist, divisional commander.

Goering was accompanied by his aid, Col. Berndt Brauchitsch, son of a German general. The Colonel had come from Goering's hideaway three days ago with a message for Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Sixth Army Group commander, in which the Marshal offered to surrender.

Goering chatted a few minutes with Gen. Stack, speaking through an interpreter. Although he understands English, he does not speak the language well. Then Gen. Dahlquist arrived. After brief greetings and a hand shake, Dahlquist dismissed the interpreter and talked with Goering in German.

Make Small Talk First.

Goering immediately remarked to Gen. Dahlquist: "Your name indicates you are Swedish.

"Yes," replied the commander. His father and mother both were born in Sweden. Goering spoke briefly of his visits in that country.

"Your first wife was Swedish, wasn't she?" Dahlquist remarked.

Goering nodded.

The general invited Goering to sit in an overstuffed chair in a small hotel suite the general had for the occasion, and both relaxed and continued talking.

The former air marshal was dressed in a green hued coat of his Hermann Goering Panzer Regiment, light riding breeches and brown boots. He wore two rings on the third finger of his right hand. A single emerald ring was on the third finger of the left hand. A small first aid bandage was on the thumb of the right hand. On his left arm he wore a white armband surrender symbol.

Still Wearing Medals.

From his neck was suspended the Grand Cross of the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross with diamonds and brilliants. The decoration was the only one of its kind in Germany. He also wore the Order of Pour Le Merite. From his left breast dangled a chain of Luftwaffe cross decorations. Goering complained that he had lost more than half of his decorations in the bombing of Berchtesgaden, where he said he was held prisoner on orders from Hitler.

His weeping wife had been left behind at Fischhorn Castle near Bruck, along with Gen. Ritter von Epp, erstwhile defender of Munich. Von Epp, Governor of Bavaria, joined Goering on the road last week.

After lunch with Gen. Dahlquist, Gen. Stack, Goering and Col. Brauchitsch were flown in Cub planes to Seventh Army headquarters so Lieut.-Gen. Alexander M. Patch might see the marshal. There was some discussion about whether Goering could be fitted into the little plane because of his girth.

"How many people can it (the Cub plane) carry?" Goering asked.

"Only one," Dahlquist answered, and then added with a smile, "but I have plenty of them. I even have a German plane.'

Goering grimaced slightly. The General finally convinced the Marshal he could be fitted into a Cub plane and then seemed anxious to start.

Dahlquist asked Goering if he wanted to wash, and the Marshal said yes, his automobile ride had been dusty. Then the photographers came and Dahlquist asked Goering if he wanted to be photographed. The Marshal said it made no difference. He posed with Dahlquist and Stack.

He was flown to Seventh Army headquarters soon after a lunch of chicken and peas.

Goering said he was in Berchtesgaden on April 24 and talked to Hitler by telephone, recalling Hitler's previous assertions that Goering was to be his successor. The marshal said he suggested to Hitler that perhaps that time had arrived, as "it looks like the end."

Hitler Was Enraged.

Goering said Hitler was enraged and accused him of losing faith. Goering added that Hitler told him he had signed his death warrant.

"But if you renounce all of your titles and high honors, you will be forgiven," Hitler added.

The marshal said he complied, but that Hitler let the order stand and ordered SS troops to place him under arrest. His air force followers shot their way through the SS men and took him to a mountain hideaway, Goering said.

The Marshal indicated he did not know what was in store for him. His spirit seemed high, and he told his captors to "guard me well."

One of his first requests was for food "because I am hungry and want to eat." Some one in the room suggested "to eat and drink?"

"No, no. The drinking is for you," he quipped.

KESSELRING WAITS IN TRAIN

Still 'Unsurrendered'; Two Divisions Vie For His Custody

COWAN

Aboard the Kesselring Train at Saalfelden, Austria, May 9 (AP)—Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, after sitting in a nine-car headquarters train in the railroad yards for three days waiting for someone to come and get him, was still "unsurrendered" tonight while the red tape unraveled.

The successor to Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt as commander in chief of the German army in the west was bearing up under the farcical situation good-naturedly. He even broke precedent and received war correspondents in his superdeluxe quarters aboard the special train for an hour-long interview.

Redoubt Was Planned

He gave them a hint that the Nazi leaders, including Hitler, actually did plan to hold out in heavily fortified underground tunnels of the Salzburg-Berchtesgaden area after all else was lost.

"I was most surprised at the decision of der Führer at the last moment to fight with his soldiers in Berlin," he told the reporters.

He said he had "the absolute conviction that der Führer was unwilling to fall into Russian hands alive," but that he did not know which version of stories of Hitler's reported death was true.

The way things look now, Kesselring will surrender officially to Maj. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, of the 101st Airborne Division, sometime tomorrow.

3d Division Moves In

A lieutenant from the 3d Division, which has been dog-logging Kesselring since Maj. Gen. W. O. (Iron Mike) O'Daniels's outfit took Salzburg and Berchtesgaden, tried to take him away from the 101st this morning.

Kesselring's aides, annoyed by the procedure, firmly informed them all that the field marshal would stay put until the Americans get together. In the meantime, Kesselring phrased a message to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower informing him of the train's exact location and assuring the Allied commander of his desire to co-operate. He said to awaited the General's pleasure.

A Mad Dash

That didn't stop the Yanks though. A courier made a mad dash around hairpin curves in the Tyrolean Alps back to headquarters of the 506th Regiment outside Berchtesgaden and reported the 3d Division was trying to kidnap their field marshal.

Col. Rinaldo Vanbrunt, of San Antonio, Texas, chief of staff of the 21st Corps, went back with him to try to straighten things out.

While all this was going on a platoon from the 116th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron — they saw him first—was relegated to the role of referee. They were just supposed to see that the field marshal didn't get away until it was decided who was going to capture him formally and for the record.

Germans Direct Traffic

It seemed like half the German Army—and everyone carrying a pistol or a rifle—was gathered into Saalfelden to see that the field marshal did not get hurt in the scuffle.

German military police with some trepidation were trying to direct the swirl of jeep traffic screeching in and out of town at high speed. Two helmeted Germans stood guard at the door of Kesselring's car and with some effort kept straight faces while they went through their rigamarole with loaded rifles every time a Heil Hitler salute was thrown in their direction.

Quisling Surrenders, Locked in Jail at Oslo

MAY 10 1945

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OSLO, Norway, May 9—(AP) Nazi puppet Premier Vidkin Quisling of Norway, the man whose name has become a synonym for traitor, was locked in the Oslo jail today and two high German officers were reported to have taken their own lives as a result of Norway's liberation.

Quisling and six of his cabinet members surrendered themselves to Oslo police while members of the Norwegian home forces rounded up 400 of his followers throughout the city.

Josef Terboven, Nazi civil governor for Norway, and SS Lt. Gen. Rediess, chief of the German police in Oslo, were said to have killed themselves by shooting.

Quick Trial Ordered

The 57-year-old Quisling was ordered arraigned immediately under Norwegian law. The puppet premier objected vigorously when he was locked in a cell, asserting "Statesmen like me should not have an ordinary cell."

He also objected when the police took away a satchel he brought to the jail. It contained chocolate and a bottle of cognac. For some time after the cell door clanged shut, it was reported, the prisoner made speeches about "All the good things I did for Norway."

Quisling, who five years ago was plucked from obscurity by the conquering Germans to head a government that never was able to command the respect of the Norwegians, drove up to the Olso police station with his six associates in a luxurious bullet-proof limousine.

(The Norwegian radio in a broadcast reported in New York by OWI said the six who surrendered with Quisling were Axel Stang, minister of physical education; Johan Lippestad, minister of social welfare; Rolf Fugelsang, minister of propaganda; Ragnar E. Schanke, minister of church and education; Anders Vasbotten, minister of the interior, and a former minister named Von Kirsch, not further identified.

(Earlier, the broadcast said, Dr. Alf L. Whist, minister without portfolio, and Hans Skarphagen, minister of transportation, had also surrendered. Four members of the Quisling Supreme court, an ex-public prosecutor and a Nazi district leader were reported to have given themselves up yesterday.)

Quisling's minister of police, Jonas Lie, who fought for the Germans on the Russian front, was still at liberty. There were reports he had barricaded himself in a suburban Oslo mansion under protection of several hundred Norwegian Nazis.

Plan Removal of Troops

Meanwhile, plans for the removal of German troops from principal Norwegian cities to a central point for formal surrender were discussed by Brig. R. Hilton, chief of the Allied Control commission, and Maj. Gen. Holte, German chief of staff in Norway.

The general Norwegian situation was relatively peaceful after scattered disturbances yesterday and last night. In one skirmish in Oslo a German sailor was killed. Authorities said a civilian and an Oslo policeman were killed when a drunken German sailor tossed a hand grenade at a group of home front soldiers.

There were no details of the reported suicides of Terboven, who ruled Norway with an iron hand, and his SS police chief.

The exact charge to be placed against Quisling was not announced. Under Norwegian law, a prisoner must be arraigned within 24 hours after his arrest and there were indications Quisling would be brought before a court tomorrow morning.

Born in Norway

Quisling was born in the Norwegian Telemark province July 18, 1887, of peasant stock. He was a brilliant student and entered the army where he gained rapid advancement. He served as military attache at Petrograd and Helsinki during 1918-20 and in 1922-23 represented the International Russian Relief organization in the Ukraine and Crimea. He also worked on relief problems in Russia and Armenia for the League of Nations in 1924-26 and stayed in Russia until 1930. He had retired from the Norwegian army in 1928 after a quarrel with the general staff and on returning to Norway found himself forgotten.

Taking up politics, he was named minister of defense by the Farmers' party government of 1931 and helped carry out Norway's disarmament program. He became involved in several obscure political battles and in 1933 launched his own party, the "Nasjonal Samling." This party failed completely in the 1936 elections and Quisling dropped back into political oblivion from which he was lifted by the Germans in 1940 to be proclaimed their puppet prime minister.

He was unable to form a responsive government and the Nazis moved in with force to support his regime. His name became known around the world and was adopted by many lexicographers as a synonym for "traitor," one of the war's first vocabulary additions.

Quisling Won Victims' Cell

Norse Traitor Drives to Police Station in His Bullet-proof Car and Gives Up.

Oslo, Norway, May 9 (A. P.).—Vidkun Quisling, whose name became a synonym for treachery in this war, was taken to the Oslo jail today from his estate outside Oslo. He will be arraigned publicly in court some time this afternoon under Norwegian law.

The Norwegian Nazi chief, broken by the swift events which toppled his five-year grip on Norway, drove up to the Oslo police station in a bullet-proof car with six of his Cabinet members. While immediate arraignment is scheduled by law, some police officials said that he might not be arriagned until tomorrow morning.

[Dispatches from Oslo yesterday said that Quisling had been in his lavish suburban home "Gimle," guarded by home-front men.]

German reports today said that Josef Terboven, German Commissioner in Norway, and SS Gen. Rediess committed suicide by shooting themselves.

The Norwegian home forces rounded up 400 other Quislings throughout the capital. Meanwhile plans to remove German troops from the principal cities to central assembly points for moral surrender went forward in conferences between Brigadier R. Hilton, chief of the Allied Control Commission, and Major-Gen. Holte, chief of staff to the German commander in Norway.

Quisling was assigned to a cell in the famed Moellegatan 19 Prison, from which hundreds of his own political prisoners have been released since Germany's capitulation.

The first outbreak of violence occurred in Oslo during the night when two Norwegians and a German sailor were killed in a skirmish outside the office of the Aftenposten. The authorities said that a drunken Nazi sailor tossed a hand grenade at home-front soldiers, killing a civilian and an Oslo policeman.

The German was killed in the resulting exchange of shots. There were unconfirmed reports of minor shootings elsewhere in the country, but, on the whole, the situation seemed relatively peaceful.

In addition to Quisling, Propaganda Minister Fogelsang, and the Minister for Sports and Forced Labor, Axel Stand, are held at Oslo prison, the official Swedish Telegraph Agency said.

[A Norwegian news agency broadcast heard in London said that Charles Hoff, Quisling sports leader and former Olympic pole vaulter who once toured the United States, was arrested last night in Oslo.]

GERMAN TROOPS STILL BATTLE IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Nazis Retreating Hastily to the West and Southwest, Moscow Says.

PORT GARRISONS QUIT

German SS Troops Battling Soldiers in Woods North of Hamburg.

LONDON, Thursday, May 10.—(AP) Marshal Stalin announced the liberation of Prague yesterday and said that while a small group of die-hard Germans still was resisting in Czecho-Slovakia," we must believe that the Red army will succeed in bringing it to its senses."

Just after midnight the Moscow radio broadcast a Soviet communique which stated that the capitulation of the Germans was proceeding on all fronts except in Czecho-Slovakia, where a group of German troops, "avoiding capitulation to Soviet forces, is retreating hastily to the west and southwest."

The Moscow communique said Soviet troops had linked up with Americans in Austria in the area of Anstetten.

Shortly before Stalin announced that Prague had been freed the Prague patriot radio broadcast an invitation to President Eduard Benes and the National government to return to Prague from Kosice.

The German high command in what the announcer on the Flensburg radio said was the "last communique" announced tonight that all German arms had ceased firing on order of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz.

"We have achieved great victories but also heavy defeats—we succumbed with honor," said the announcer.

German Troops Battle

An Associated Press dispatch from the British Second army said a fierce battle was being waged at Segeberg, 25 miles north of Hamburg, in a woods where 30 lanatic German SS troopers and marines were battling German soldiers.

The dispatch said the territory had been made out of bounds for British troops and no British troops had been molested. German troops were sent into the area by their commander with orders to clear it out.

Prague was occupied by the Germans March 14, 1939, in one of the Hitler strokes that culminated in history's most devastating war.

The Czecho-Slovak news bureau in London said some die-hard German soldiers still were fighting in Moravia and claimed the Germans were "ravaging all the country."

"They have not given up," the announcement said, "and are shooting every citizen who appears on the streets of the towns and villages" still held by them.

The French Defense ministry in Paris announced that German Atlantic port garrisons at La Rochelle, St. Nazaire and Lorient had surrendered, leaving only the Germans still holed up in Dunkerque to be accounted for in France.

Violate Surrender Terms

The fighting in Prague and in the neighboring territory was in violation of the surrender terms and the soldiers participating are regarded as guerrillas unprotected by international law. Stalin said Prague was freed at 4 a.m.—hours after the midnight deadline of the surrender terms.

During the day the Prague radio said German dive-bombers had attacked the city three times before its final liberation was announced by Marshal Stalin.

Stalin's order of the day, was addressed to Marshal Ivan S. Konev and generals of the First Ukrainian army. In Moscow the victory was saluted by 24 salvoes from 324 guns—the salute given for the liberation of a national capital.

Stalin's order of the day was the 368th of war, in a series which began on Aug. 5, 1943, with the proclamation announcing the liberation of Orel and Belgorod.

Like every Soviet order with the exception of that announcing the historic linkup of Soviet and American forces, it ended with the exclamation "death to the German invaders."

Soviets Capture Prague, Czech Capital

London, May 9 (AP) — Russian troops and tanks, striking swiftly by night from the north, liberated Prague at 4 A.M. today—four hours after the official deadline for all Germans to lay down their arms—Premier-Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

Warfare between Germans and Russians apparently continued beyond the time set for complete cessation of hostilities. Earlier today, a station calling itself the Prague Radio said German planes bombed the Czechoslovak capital and three other points in the republic shortly after Russian troops had entered Prague.

Salute Ordered

Stalin declared "troops of the 1st Ukrainian front, as a result of a swift night maneuver by tank formations and infantry, having smashed enemy resistance, today, May 9, at 4 A.M., liberated from the German invaders the capital of our ally, Czechoslovakia, the city of Prague."

He ordered a salute in Moscow of 24 salvoes from 324 guns.

Hostilities in Europe officially ended at 12.01 A.M. battlefront time. At about the same time the Germans surrendered the three French Atlantic ports and U-boat bases of Lorient, St. Nazaire and La Rochelle. A French communiqué said they had been occupied. The only Germans remaining unsurrendered on French soil were some 12,000 at Dunkerque, the Channel port through which the British Expeditionary Force escaped in 1940.

79,000 Taken In Ports

About 79,000 Germans were believed to have yielded in the three surrendered ports.

Russia joyously proclaimed the unconditional surrender of Germany before dawn, ten hours after President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill proclaimed V-E day following Germany's capitulation at General Eisenhower's advanced headquarters at Reims in France early Monday. A formal ratification of the surrender took place in Berlin yesterday.

Actions such as the last gasps at Prague are outlawed under surrender edicts, and German participants may be treated as francs-tireurs—subject to summary execution.

Camps Reported Hit

The unconfirmed Czechoslovak broadcast said Prague, Melnik, Kralupy and a Jewish concentration camp at Terezin, 40 miles north of Prague, had been bombed.

The possibility was not overlooked that the entire suitation might be a German trick in an attempt to get the western Allies to attack the Russian.

The Patriot radio earlier had said Nazi SS fanatics reopened fire at 1.50 A.M. (7.50 P.M., E.W.T., Tuesday), almost two hours after the deadline for cessation of hostilities.

Benes Asked To Return

Later, the Prague radio station broadcast a message to Czech President Edouard Benes saying "the city of Prague and surrounding country has been cleared of German occupants and we will rejoice at your return to the capital." Benes's government presently is at Kosice (Kassa) in Slovakia.

"All the German forces have capitulated," the same station said.

The Czech Government monitor in London heard the station assert that Melnik had been bombed three times. German tanks were said to have moved through Prague shooting at civilians.

"Death" To The Nazis

[The Czech radio, in announcing that the Red Army had entered Prague, said:

["We shall give the Red Army liberators of our country a great welcome," said the broadcast, which instructed the citizens how to greet the Russians. "People of Prague, clear the barricades and open the way for the glorious Red Army.

["Death to the German occupants! Long live the famous Red Army!]

The final humiliation was delivered yesterday to the Nazi regime. No more striking evidence of the totality of German defeat could have been conceived than the ceremony amid the wreckage of Berlin, where the surrender was ratified.

Under the terms of surrender, remnants of the German Luftwaffe, all arms and ammunition, all armor and self-propelled guns, all artillery and other weapons, all trucks and military equipment, must be accounted for and surrendered to local Allied commanders, or designated military representatives of the victorious powers.

On the high seas Germany's U-boat fleet, with which Hitler once hoped to win the war, was ordered to surface and wait orders to proceed individually to port.

One far-flung point of German resistance evaporated yesterday. The German commander of the Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean Sea, General Wagener, surrendered with 10,000 troops. There was no word early today from Crete.

many's unconditional surrender.

As one of the first two American newspaper men officially permitted to go to Berlin since the Russian occupation, I witnessed the signature in the large white-washed hall of a German Army technical school in the eastern residential suburb of Karlshorst, used by Marshal Zhukov as his headquarters. The document was more or less identical in terms to that signed at Reims on Monday morning, with certain additions requested by the Germans defining more clearly the details of the surrender of German troops and equipment.

Arrogant to the Last.

On the Allied side, it was signed by Marshal Zhukov for the Russians and by Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder on behalf of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and was witnessed by Gen. Carl Spaatz and Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny. On the German side, Marshal Keitel, as Oberkommando der Wehrmacht, signed together with Admiral von Friedeburg, commander-in-chief of the German Navy, and Col.Gen. Paul Stumpff, commander-in-chief of the Luftwaffe.

Keitel Is Arrogant to Last In Surrendering to Zhukov

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
For The Combined Allied Press

Berlin, May 9 (A. P.).—The final seal was set on the Wehrmacht's defeat and humiliation before the world early this morning by Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel of the once-proud German High Command. Brought to Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's headquarters in the devastated German capital, he signed the formal ratification of heads of all the German armed forces appended, this historic document forestalls forever any future German claim that the German army ended the war unbeaten.

Marshal Keitel, a tall, haughty and gray-haired figure, wearing the full dress uniform with red-striped trousers of a German field-marshal, maintained his Prussian arrogance to the very end.

MAY 10 1945

Playing for Time.

After his signature already had been appended to the document, and while the Allied chiefs were signing, Marshal Keitel made a last-minute attempt to play for time. He beckoned the Russian interpreter to him and began haranguing him, bitterly protesting that there was insufficient time to notify the forces under his command of minor modifications in the capitulation text and asking for another twenty-four hours' grace before it became effective.

"I insist you go to the Colonel-General—I mean Marshal Zhukov—and tell him I must demand another twenty-four hours' respite," he said. The interpreter hesitated, appeared uncertain what to do, and finally went and consulted members of Marshal Zhukov's staff. Since no reply was conveyed back to Marshal Keitel it appeared that the Russians ignored the request.

For Marshal Zhukov, the ceremony was the triumphant climax to a bitter 1,000-mile battle from the ruins of Stalingrad into the heart of devastated Berlin. Marshal Zhukov's headquarters were established at Karlshorst because there is not a single building in devastated central Berlin which could house even a company headquarters.

Supreme Humiliation.

Marshal Keitel, too, had the final supreme humiliation of being driven in a Russian staff car to meet Marshal Zhukov through the blasted shambles of central Berlin, which had witnessed the greatest triumph of his and Adolf Hitler's armed forces a bare three and a half years ago.

Marshal Tedder, Gen. Spaatz and other members of the Allied delegation left Reims yesterday morning and touched down on the airstrip at Stendal, near the Elbe at 11 A. M., where a rendezvous had been made with a Russian fighter escort and a plane bringing Marshal Keitel and Admiral von Friedeburg from Flensburg. Gen. Stumpff, who once commanded the German Air Force in Norway and Finland and Gen. Stumpff had an important western front command, rode with Marshal Tedder from Reims. A party of eight American, British and French newspaper men and broadcasters flew with Marshal Tedder.

Marshal Keitel's plane was late for the rendezvous, and it was not until 12:20 P. M. that all five planes took off again. Almost immediately they were joined by an escort of six Russian Yaks, which flew circles around the slow transports all the way in to Berlin's Tempelhof Airport.

Death and Destruction.

As the planes circled slowly over Berlin, preparing to land, the city underneath looked like an incredible Wellsian setting. Mile after mile of gaunt, roofless, gutter shells of houses stood silent and skeleton-like. There was no traffic in the streets except Russian military vehicles. Over the whole dead capital there was a thick haze and columns of smoke from burning buildings could be seen curling lazily into the still air over the city.

The Allied delegation was met at the airfield by a guard of honor of a Russian guards regiment with flags of the Soviet Union, United States and Britain. The day was warm and sunny. The band played the three national anthems and a guard of honor in bettle-browed Russian helmets and carrying long-bayonets fixed on their rifles gave three hurrahs and staged a formal parade.

The planes landed at 2 P. M. At 4:30 P. M., Marshal Tedder, Gen. Spaatz and their staff paid a formal call on Marshal Zhukov in his office, a small, simply furnished room with a red flag and maps as the only decorations on the wall.

Speaks Only Russian.

In a brief, informal ceremony, Marshal Tedder presented Marshal Zhukov with a silken SHAEF banner, sent as a personal gift by Gen. Eisenhower, and Marshal Zhukov replied with a brief speech of thanks. The Russian strategist, medium-sized and stocky, with his hair closely cropped and thinning on top, wore a marshal's full dress uniform and was a dignified, soldierly figure throughout. He spoke only Russian and all conversation between him and the Allied personnel had to be interpreted.

Meanwhile Marshal Keitel and the Germans had been escorted to a nearby villa to await the capitulation document. Marshal Zhukov asked Marshal Tedder to stay behind and confer alone with him a few minutes. The two remained closeted about half an hour while Marshal Tedder gave Marshal Zhukov the draft of the capitulation terms embodying certain changes which the Russians desired. At 5:30 P. M. they came out and Marshal Zhukov asked Marshal Tedder to give him until 8 P. M. to consider the exact wording.

A long wait then began. At 8 P. M. Marshal Zhukov and the Allied experts had not yet agreed on the final text. At one point Marshal Tedder was called away to confer again personally with Marshal Zhukov.

MAY 10 1945

Midnight Call.

It was not until shortly before midnight that the document finally completed, typed and presented to the Germans. At midnight Marshal Zhukov notified the delegates to enter the hall for the signing.

The hall was brilliantly lit with kleig lights, spotlighting the Russian, American, British and French flags immediately behind the chief Allied delegates. The long tables were arranged like a letter "E."

Marshal Zhukov, stern-faced, took the middle seat, with Marshal Tedder and Andrei Vyshinsky, Assistant Foreign Commissar, and Admiral Sir Harold Burrough, the Allied supreme naval commander, on his right, and Gen. Spaatz, followed by Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny, who had arrived independently, from the French First Army.

Other Allied Members.

Other members of the Allied delegation included Major-Gen. H. R. Bull, American head of the SHAEF G-3, and Major-Gen. K. W. D. Strong, British head of SHAEF G-2. The newspaper men were escorted by Capt. Harry Butcher, U. S. N. R., Brig. W. A. S. Turner and Col. Ernest R. Dupuy, of SHAEF public relations.

At 12:07, Marshal Zhukov rose and read the text of the capitulation document, then ordered the German delegation to be brought in. Marshal Keitel walked in, followed by Admiral von Friedeburg and Gen. Stumpff.

Marshal Keitel, haughty and self-possessed, his face slightly flushed, slammed his marshal's baton down on the table and took a seat, looking straight ahead, ignoring the photographers who swarmed around him. Once or twice he fingered his collar and nervously wet his lips.

Old Potsdam Arrogance.

He was determined however, to carry his old school Potsdam arrogance through to the bitter end. The Germans sat at a separate table, near the door, with four uniformed aids and two Allied interpreters standing behind.

When he was seated, Marshal Tedder rose and asked in a cold voice, in English, "I ask you: Have you read this document of unconditional surrender? Are you prepared to sign it?" After the translation, Marshal Keitel picked a copy of the document off the table and replied in a harsh Prussian accent, in German, "Yes, I am ready."

Marshal Zhukov then motioned him to come over to the table. Marshal Keitel picked up his cap, his marshal's baton, and his gloves, then slowly and carefully inserted his monocle in his right eye, walked over, and sat down, to sign in a long scrawling hand the single word "Keitel." The first signature was appended at exactly 12:15 A. M., Central European time.

25 Toasts Drunk.

There was a total of nine copies to sign—three each in Russian, English and German, of which the Russian and English texts were official, for the record. After signing, Marshal Keitel returned to his seat and Admiral Von Friedeburg and Gen. Stumpff followed immediately afterward.

Marshal Zhukov then signed for the Russians, Marshal Tedder for Gen. Eisenhower, and Gens. Spaatz and Tassigny signed as witnesses. It was while this was proceeding that the incident of Marshal Keitel demanding an extra twenty-four hours' grace occurred.

As the signing was completed, Marshal Zhukov rose and said coldly in Russian, "I now request the German delegation to leave the room." Keitel rose, snapped together the folder in which he was carrying his copy, and marched out haughtily, followed by the other Germans.

The Allied leaders then shook hands all around. Later Marshal Zhukov gave a banquet to the Allied delegation which lasted until 6 A. M., during which no less than twenty-five toasts were drunk. In one toast, to Gen. Eisenhower, Marshal Zhukov described him as "one of the greatest generals of present times," and adding, "I want him to know how much the Soviet Army and people appreciate his tremendous achievements."

Marshal Keitel returned to Flensburg this morning, and Marshal Tedder and Gen. Spaatz to SHAEF.

Ruins Of Berlin, In Last Days' Fight, Described

John Groth, 37-year-old artist and war correspondent, wrote this story after a visit to Berlin the day it fell. He had last visited Berlin in 1934, when Hitler staged his Nazi blood purge.

MAY 10 1945

By John Groth

Berlin, Thursday, May 3. [AP—Delayed] — Hitler's legacy — the broken, smoking chaos of Berlin—sprawls under the vivid banners of the Red Army today. German tears and hunger mark the end of the Nazi empire.

We entered the once-arrogant capital of the European new order at 1.30 P.M. in a dusty jeep mixed in with trucks of a Russian convoy returning from the west.

Russian Storm Troops were crushing the SS remnants in the last hour of battle in the shell-torn waste of the Tiergarten.

Mounds Of Debris

For miles around that tiny pocket of resistance stretched lifeless mounds of debris of what had been a city of 4,000,000.

Templehof airdrome, once the hub of a continent's airways, was a skeleton of hangars and terminal buildings with the gray-winged planes of the Luftwaffe scattered beyond in drooping postures like wounded birds.

Slowly plodding past up on the Berliner Strasse came long lines of Soviet horse-drawn transports. The drivers looked like nomads from the steppes of central Asia. There was a dreary rain falling from an overcast sky—appropriate for this Teutonic Gotterdamerung.

Barricades Conquered

Smashed, overturned streetcars showed where enemy barricades had been conquered in turn by the Russian assault that days earlier had moved from the Berliner Strasse, north of Belle Alliance Strasse. It was the only clear way into the city from the south.

A demolished bridge at Bleucher Platz forced our jeep to make a detour. But a block away we found a temporary wooden span over which a great stream of sedans flowed, each carrying Red officers intent on a sightseeing tour through the heart of Berlin just as Americans had toured Paris.

I had to inquire of a German civilian in order to identify Belle Alliance Platz, which I once knew well, with the streets radiating from it unrecognized as streets. They were heaps of almost mountainous rubble.

Germans Clear Paths

German women, children and old men were clearing paths under the guard of Russian tommygunners and riflemen. There are no young German men left. Civilians moved abjectly, picking up bricks by hand.

We threaded a narrow lane between walls of debris, going several blocks before we saw a sign we were on the Wilhelmstrasse. Some hulks of buildings still were afire.

One building collapsed just as we crossed the Leipziger Strasse. Kaiserhof Hotel, the former palatial home of Nazi mouthpiece Paul Joseph Goebbels, still stood.

Chancellery Smells Of Battle

The scarred walls and a hillock of muddy masonry of the Reichschancellery on the left side of Wilhelm Platz still smelled of battle. Empty windows gaped in the fire-scorched facade. Part of the roof had fallen in.

Three Red flags flew over this seat of government for the Reich that Hitler predicted would last 1,000 years. A mammoth black-and-white photograph of Premier Marshal Stalin had been hung by his proud troops on one of the Chancellery's walls. A defaced picture of Hitler could still be seen.

We asked some Russian officers whether their search yet had produced Hitler's body. They said they only knew what the Moscow radio had reported about his alleged death.

Bombing Results Elate Reds

Our Soviet allies seemed very elated about the fact that American and British bombers had wrecked such great destruction upon Berlin before the Red Army's assault.

They threw their arms around us and welcomed us as "comrades." Many others, however, exhausted by long hours of battle, dozed in their vehicles parked along the street.

They had foraged bottles with which to celebrate the victory.

There were fourteen dead horses and eight knocked-out vehicles from Wilhelm Platz to Unter den Linden. Rubble heaps seemed higher as we approached that once stately boulevard.

You could smell death. There were bodies under the wreckage.

Brandenburg Gate In Ruins

Turning left into Unter den Linden I looked first for the horses drawing a chariot atop the Brandenburg Gate. All but one of the horses were flat, as though a shell had hit them. To the left of the gate the Hotel Adlon was full of holes, like a Swiss cheese.

Unter der Linden, where Hitler held his victory parades, was a mass of twisted vehicles. Up the street came a bedraggled group of prisoners and Germans carrying stretchers with bodies on them. Everywhere German men and women were sweeping and cleaning under the eyes of the Russians. The street itself was strewn with land mines dug up by the victorious army's sappers.

Russian officers and Russian marines were photographing each other in groups beside the Brandenburg Gate, which had a long anti-tank block built into it. Beyond were the sound of machine-gun and rifle fire and occasional grenade explosions.

Red Flags Over Reichstag

I climbed over the block and went into Hindenburg Platz, and there were Russian tanks and infantry moving west toward the Tiergarent area north of Charlottenburger Chausse where the firing was going on. On my right the old Reichstag had three large red banners flying above it.

The Reichstag itself was a complete wreck.

I asked who was doing the fighting, and the Russians said SS members were making a last stand. This was about 2.30 P.M.

Back of the Unter den Linden, I stood and made sketches of the German civilians cleaning up the rocks.

Some guards were Russian WACs. All traffic corners had smartly dressed WACs with flags directing traffic. They were dressed in boots, blouse, skirts very smartly fitted and wore berets. They carried guns. It seemed out of place for them to be with guns. They were not at all friendly toward German women.

We went up Unter den Linden. Every building was ruined, testifying to the fury of the air force. I went to the Lustgarten, passing many 88's, some of which were intact, and several burned-out Russian and German tanks. I was not able to recognize any of the buildings aside from the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and that only because of the columns in front.

It was the worst destruction I have seen since St. Lo.

State Theater Unrecognizable

I did not recognize the State Theater. It was a shell and the huge canopy was broken. On the Lustgarten the Cathedral top had been sheared off, like the top of a hard-boiled egg.

The old museum facing it was on fire.

In front of the Schloss Museum statues were lying around like dead Germans.

An impassable road block forced me back, winding among butterfly mines, rocks, fire and bricks to the Friedrickstrasse and north of it past buildings still on fire which heated the street like an oven.

30.24-25625

Ashes were falling on the jeep.

Only One Bridge Intact

I stopped at the Friedrickstrasse Station, a frequent bombing target. The huge ceiling of the station was broken. From there I went up across the Spree River where the bridge was intact. But other bridges up and down the river were smashed.

The only people standing in the streets were Russian soldiers. The only civilians I saw were walking quickly or working. Coming across Germany with the American and British armies, I saw many Germans smiling, but I saw only tears in Berlin.

Berlin Is A Modern Carthage; It No Longer Exists As A City

MAY 10 1945

By HAROLD KING
[For the Combined Allied Press]

Berlin, May 9 (AP)—This town is a city of the dead. As a metropolis it has simply ceased to exist. Every house within miles of the center seems to have had its own bomb.

I toured the Nazi capital from the east to the center and back to the south this morning in company with Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder and the Russian military commander of Berlin, General Berzarin.

NIGHT

The scene beggars description. I have seen Stalingrad; I lived through the entire London Blitz; I have seen a dozen badly damaged major Russian towns, but the scene of utter destruction, desolation and death which meets the eye in Berlin as far as the eye can rove in all directions is something that almost baffles description.

Blitz A Bank Holiday

"The blitz on London was a bank holiday compared with this," one of my colleagues remarked.

Dozens of well-known throughfares, including the entire Unter den Linden from one end to the other, are wrecked beyond repair. The town is literally unrecognizable.

The Alexander Platz, in the east end, where the Gestapo headquarters were, is a weird desert of rubble and gaping, smoke-blackened walls. From the Brandenburg Gate, everything within a radius of from 2 to 5 miles is destroyed. There does not appear to be one house in a hundred which is even useful as shelter.

Kaiser's Palace Gone

Among hundreds of well-known landmarks which have disappeared or been irreparably damaged are the former Kaiser's palace, the opera house, the French, British, American and Japanese embassies, Goering's Air Ministry, Goebbel's Propaganda Ministry, the Bristol and Adlon hotels.

Hitler's chancellery in the Wilhelmstrasse is like some vast abandoned ancient tomb of the dead. It has had several direct hits, and it is impossible yet to tell who lies buried beneath the rubble, perhaps Hitler himself.

The only people who look like human beings in the street of what was Berlin are the Russian soldiers. There are 2,000,000 inhabitants in the town, the Russian authorities told me, but they are mostly in the outer suburbs. In the central part of the town you only see a few ghostlike figure of women and children—few men—queueing up to pump water.

Vengeance Had

If Stalingrad, London, Guernica, Rotterdam, Coventry wanted avenging, they have had it, and no mistake about it.

The Red flag, or rather several Red flags, fly on top of the Reichstag which is burned hollow. The Tiergarten opposite the Reichstag looks like a forest after a big fire. There was heavy street fighting here.

I motored from the Tempelhof airport in a fast car and during 30 minutes' unhampered driving, I spotted only six houses which you were not able to see straight through and in which there were signs of habitation.

The population and Red Army soldiers are attempting to clear some of the main streets.

Complete Silence

The Russian command has already erected at all main squares and crossings huge sketch maps, without which it would be impossible to find one's way about.

Except for an occasional Russian army car or horses drawing Russian army carts, there is a complete silence over the city, and the air filled with rubble dust.

One sign of life, however, are the interminable columns of displaced persons of all European nationalities who seem to be marching through Berlin in various directions, carried forward by a homing instinct more than by any clear idea of where they are going. These columns of freed slaves are sometimes a mile long.

They trudge along slowly, one or two abreast, drawing tiny carts, or six or eight of them at a time dragging with ropes wagons which need a lusty horse. In these columns there are many little groups, carrying the flag of their nationality—Italians, French, Belgians, mostly. Many are in soldier's uniform and appear to be escaped or freed prisoners of war.

Modern Carthage

The Russian military command of this modern Carthage is already feeding hundreds of thousands of Berliners. The Red Army has seized what food stocks the town had, and has added from its own supplies.

Berliners get 500 grams of bread a day (more than many got in Moscow in the winter of 1942), a little meat, sugar, coffee, potatoes. Attempts are being made to get the water supply working. The Russians are obviously not wreaking any vengeance on the population.

I asked one well-known Russian writer, who was attending the surrender ceremonial, why the Russians bothered about the population.

"We must look after the people," he said with a note of surprise at the question. "We cannot let 2,000,000 people die."

Many wounded German soldiers lying in underground hospitals have been sent to Russian-organized hospitals, and are looked after by German doctors and German nurses.

STALIN CALLS TRIUMPH OVER FOE COMPLETE

Dates Victory as of Signing of Surrender Paper in Berlin.

1000 GUNS HAIL EVENT

Moscow Goes Wild Over End of War—Crowds Cheer U. S. in Demonstration.

London, May 9 (A. P.).—Premier Marshal Stalin tonight issued his final order of the day to the Red Army and Navy, announcing the unconditional surrender of Germany, and ordered a triumph salute of thirty salvos from 1,000 Moscow guns.

The order followed shortly after Stalin himself broadcast to the Russian people, and declared Germany's final act of surrender in Berlin "is not only a piece of paper" but a "true capitulation of Germany" forced "to her knees by the Red Army and by the troops of our Allies."

His final order of the day to Soviet fighting men declared:

"I congratulate you on the victorious conclusion of the war. Eternal glory to the heroes who fell in fighting for the freedom and independence of our motherland. Long live the Red Army and Red Navy."

Long Peace Predicted.

In his broadcast speech, Stalin said, "True, one group of German forces in Czecho-Slovakia still is trying to avoid capitulation, but we must believe that the Red Army will succeed in bringing it to its senses."

FCC monitors in New York said Stalin declared the end of the war would bring a long period of peace for Europe.

"Now we can say with full foundation that this is the day of complete victory," he declared over the Moscow radio. "All the suffering of the trials of our people in the defense of our motherland were not in vain.

"Hitler declared three years ago, 'we shall destroy Russia.'

"Now, three years later, Germany has been completely destroyed."

Stalin's speech, lasting five and a half minutes, made no reference to Germany's only remaining ally, Japan, or to the conflict engaging the United States and Great Britain in the Pacific.

"On May 7 in Reims the provisional protocol of capitulation was signed," Stalin said, in the first mention to the Russian public of the surrender ceremonies there. Through the day Soviet announcements had told only of the signing in Berlin.

"On May 8 representatives of the German High Command, in the presence of representatives of the Supreme Command of the Allied troops and of the Supreme Command of the Soviet troops, signed in Berlin the final act of capitulation, the execution of which commenced at 2400 hours (midnight), May 8."

"Fascist Germany has been forced to her knees by the Red Army and by the troops of our Allies," Stalin said at the opening of his speech.

Reich Totally Destroyed, Stalin Tells His People

MAY 10 1945

London, May 9 (AP)—Premier-Marshal Stalin tonight issued his final order of the day to the Red Army and Navy, announcing the unconditional surrender of Germany, and ordered a triumph salute of 30 salvos from 1,000 Moscow guns.

London, May 9 (AP)—Marshal Stalin in a personal broadcast to the Russian people tonight said Germany's final act of surrender in Berlin "is not only a piece of paper," but a "true capitulation of Germany."

DAY NIGHT

"Now we can say with full foundation that this is the day of complete victory," he declared over the Moscow radio.

"All the suffering of the trials of our people in the defense of our motherland were not in vain.

Repeats Hitler Statement

"Hitler declared three years ago, 'We shall destroy Russia.'

"Now, three years later, Germany has been completely destroyed."

"Comrades, the great patriotic war has ended in the complete victory of our great Red Army, which defended the independence of our motherland," Stalin concluded.

"Glory to our great people, eternal glory to the heroes who gave their lives for the freedom and independence of our motherland."

Stalin's speech, lasting 5½ minutes, made no reference to Germany's only remaining ally, Japan, or to the conflict engaging the United States and Great Britain in the Pacific.

Stalin's Victory Address

LONDON, May 9 (AP).—The text of Premier Stalin's speech, broadcast today from Moscow:

Comrades, fellow countrymen and women, the great day of victory over Germany has come.

Fascist Germany has been forced to her knees by the Red Army and by the troops of our allies. She has admitted herself defeated and has declared unconditional capitulation.

On May 7, in Reims, the provisional protocol of capitulation was signed. On May 8, representatives of the German high command in the presence of representatives of the supreme command of the Allied troops and of the supreme command of he Soviet troops signed in Berlin the final act of capitulation, the execution of which started at midnight, May 8.

Being well aware of the subterfuges of the German leaders, who consider their treaties as mere scraps of paper, we have no reason to accept their word. Nevertheless, this morning the German troops, in the execution of the act of capitulation, have begun to surrender their arms en masse to the Soviet troops. This is no longer a mere scrap of paper. It is actual capitulation of the armed forces of Germany.

True, one group of German troops in Czechoslovakia is still trying to avoid capitulation. But we must believe that the Red Army will succeed in bringing it to its senses.

Now we have every ground for declaring that the historic time has come of the final defeat, the day of the great victory of our people over German imperialism.

The great sacrifices suffered by us for the freedom and independence of our motherland, the immeasurable privation and suffering which our people had experienced in the course of the war, the intense work in the rear and at the front done by us for the motherland were not in vain. They were crowned with full victory over the enemy.

Hitler's Eagle Nest Dazzles U. S. Troops and Reporters

MAY 10 1945

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

In Hitler's Hide-out Atop Kehlstein Mountain, May 7 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The palatial dimensions of Hitler's aerie here atop 7,500-foot Kehlstein Mountain expose the myth of the Fuehrer's simplicity. The hide-out is completely undamaged by Allied bombing, and all of its appointments are intact.

The altitude of Kehlstein Mountain is such that snow still covers the highest part of the motor road leading to a point about 800 feet from the top, where cars are stopped before two huge bronze doors.

Formerly, after these swung open the cars proceeded some twenty-five feet into a tunnel, where a second set of doors opened. Guests alighted here and stepped into a rotunda serving as a waiting room. Thence they entered an elevator which carried them to the top, a six-minute ride.

Very Expensive Tea.

It took two years to build all this. As we were about to set out afoot for the top we encountered Fritz Bloss, Berchtesgaden electrical engineer, and an American officer coming down the mountain side. Bloss said the elevator had been knocked out when the electric cable connecting the mountain retreat with the power station in Berchtesgaden was cut.

"Every cup of tea drunk atop Kehlstein Mountain cost 10,000 marks," Bloss observed," if you consider what it cost to build this road, with its six tunnels, and the tea house atop."

Bloss said Hitler had not been there recently.

We climbed along narrow ledges with deep ravines yawning below us. When we reached the chalet we first entered a circular living room 50 feet in diameter with walls as thick as those of a medieval fortress. It was constructed of mauve colored sandstone and had a circular oak table in the center 12 feet in diameter. Around the table were comfortable club chairs. Five huge windows and one smaller window afforded superb views in every direction. The ceiling, about 14 feet high, had white oak beams.

The Lap of Luxury.

There was a huge fireplace of chocolate marble streaked with white, on the inside were figures of medieval knights on horseback and the inscription: "Built in 1938." Eight candelabra, each holding six big candles, lighted the room we entered a 16-foot coffee room with comfortable lounging chairs for six persons. Ascending again from the coffee lounge, we reentered the living room and then climbed six steps into the dining room, which was done in white oak paneling with walnut table and 30 chairs. Directly behind the dining salon was the smoking room, with red leather chairs and walnut-paneled walls and ceiling.

Behind the smoking room was the kitchen. It had the latest culinary gadgets with electric stoves, meat slicers, coffee makers, refrigerators and countless gadgets. To the left of the kitchen was the servants' combined lounge and dining room.

Chinaware and Linen.

The chinaware for the main dining room consisted of costly Meissen fabric manufactured near Dresden with a Chinese dragon motif. The linens and wine glasses all bore the monogram "A. H."

Running parallel with the three-story building, one of whose stories was underground, was a veranda 8 feet wide and 64 feet long with five arches where Hitler's guests could drink with the most picturesque scenery in all Bavaria before them. Along the western ledge were powder rooms and wardrobe closets.

There were immense wine and liquor cellars stocked with the finest of beverages, including cognacs dating back to 1832 and the rarest of French champagnes. There were also vast stocks of food.

a traffic jam.

The Germans apparently expected to keep their automobiles. G. I. guards searching for a German car for their own use found that the keys were gone from every last one of them.

But that was not all. The Germans also brought out truckloads of liquor, cigars and cigarettes, and arrogantly posted guards over their treasures. To the curious doughfeet who came poking knowing noses into the cache, English-speaking German guards warned: "You must not touch this. It is for the officers and men."

G. I.'s Grab for Souvenirs.

A German first lieutenant in charge of an SS military police outfit was unloading baggage. Out spilled a brand new swastika flag. It was rather obvious they would have no more need for such an item, and a G. I. reached for it.

"You Americans," said the German officer irritably, "after the war you'll need a ship apiece to take souvenirs home."

"Well," retorted the bristling doughboy, flicking the moth balls from the Nazi banner, "we've got the ships for it."

Another soldier tapped a German for his portable typewriter.

"Of course not," was the haughty reply. "I will need it in camp."

One officer came up to our jeep driver, Woody Woodall of Livingston, Ky., and asked him to swap

That's the way things are going on here. The G. I.'s who are trying to bring about this capitulation peacefully are getting madder and madder, and there's likely to be a new outbreak of war before this one is formally concluded.

OLD AUSTRIAN FLAG FLYING OVER LINZ

Linz, Austria, May 9 (A. P.).—The red and white flag of the old Austrian Republic flew from many buildings in this American-occupied city today, symbolizing the hope of many Austrians for the restoration of their independence as a nation. The flags, taken from the hiding places in which they had been during the years of Nazi occupation, appeared within a few hours after the cessation of hostilities.

Actually, V-E day obviously was regarded by Austrians with mixed emotions. All seemed aware that, with the Germans, they had suffered a complete military defeat, but many apparently felt that they also had gained something — liberation from German control. It is lilac-time in the beautiful, sunny Danubian valley and the many American troops rolling over Austrian highways were [illegible]

Two Yanks Down Last Nazi Planes

U.S. 9th Air Force Headquarters Germany, May 9 (AP)—Lieuts. Manuel W. Geiger, Clarkston, Mich. and Stanley S. Newman, Chicago won the honors of shooting down the last two German planes before the war ended, so far as known here.

They each downed a Focke-Wulf 190 yesterday morning while on reconnaissance patrol duty 15 miles south of Pilsen. They said the Germans fired first.

At least twenty German planes flew from Czechoslovak bases yesterday to land and surrender at various American bases. One Luftwaffe group commander brought his entire family in an old Junkers-

EISENHOWER LAUDED BY MARSHAL ZHUKOV

BERLIN, May 9.—(AP) Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, deputy commander-in-chief of Russian forces, lauded Gen. Eisenhower today as "one of the greatest generals of all time, [illegible] of America's outstanding sons."

Zhukov, who turned back the Germans at Moscow and led troops capturing Berlin, spoke of Eisenhower during a banquet in the same room where the surrendered documents had been signed a while earlier.

Von Epp Is Captured

KUTZBUHEL, Austria, May 9 (AP).—In addition to Reich Marshal Goering and Field Marshal Kesselring, the American 7th Army also has captured General Franz Ritter von Epp, Governor of Bavaria, who commanded a brief defense of Munich but fled before American forces broke into the city.

Germans Fight Germans Who Resist Surrender

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, May 9—Germans fought Germans in the small battle of Segeberg, twenty-five miles north of Hamburg today.

More than 300 fanatic SS marines turned the forest there into a little redoubt, declaring themselves against German civilians who surrendered.

The territory was declared out of bounds for British troops, and German soldiers were sent into the redoubt by their commander to clear it out.

U. S. DIVISIONS AT END OF WAR

112 Were Identified as Facing Nazis.

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, May 9 (A. P.).—Victory in Europe found 112 known Allied divisions arrayed against the German enemy, plus an undisclosed number of others which must remain on the secret list for a variety of reasons.

Ninety of those divisions which can designated by number are under Gen. Eisenhower — fifty-nine of them American divisions in armies other than the new Fifteenth, whose present make-up cannot be disclosed. The Fifteenth, which will remain to participate in the occupation of Germany, will be strengthened by additional divisions transferred from other American armies.

The situation on Eisenhower's front was so fluid in the final weeks of the war that the divisions were shifted rapidly from army to army, depending upon where they were most needed. As a result, the American Third Army, the last to meet any organized resistance, drove through Czecho-Slovakia and Austria with eighteen divisions under Gen. Patton's command as the end drew near.

With Patton at End.

Patton's divisions at the end of the war included thirteen infantry outfits: The First, Second, Fifth, Twenty-sixth, Sixty-fifth, Seventy-first, Seventy-sixth, Eightieth, Eighty-seventh, Eighty-ninth, Ninetieth, Ninety-fourth and Ninety-ninth, and five armored divisions: Fourth, Sixth, Eleventh, Thirteenth and Fourteenth.

On Patton's right flank the American Seventh Army of Lieut.-Gen. Alexander M. Patch finished the war in Europe with fourteen divisions — the Third, Fourth, Thirty-sixth, Forty-second, Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Sixty-third, Seventieth, Eighty-sixth, 100th and 103d Infantry, and the Tenth, Twelfth and Twentieth Armored.

At last reports the American First Army of Gen. Hodges, first on the Normandy beaches, first through the Siegfried Line, first across the Rhine and first to link with the Russians, had nine divisions deployed along the Elbe and Mulde rivers on the Third Army's left. These were the Third, Seventh and Ninth Armored.

Ninth Army Had 13 Divisions.

Between Hodges's forces and Field Marshal Montgomery's Twenty-first Army group, Lieut.-Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth Army had thirteen announced divisions up to or across the Elbe. These were the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-fifth, Seventy-fifth, Seventy-ninth, Eighty-third, Eighty-fourth, Ninety-fifth, 102d, Infantry; the Second, Fifth and Eighth Armored and the Seventeenth Airborne.

The American Eighth Infantry and Eighty-second Airborne divisions finished up with the British Second Army on the Baltic. Other divisions on the Twenty-first Army group included:

The American divisions under Eisenhower's command which can be designated, but not located, include the Sixty-sixth Infantry, Seventh Armored and 101st Airborne. (A field dispatch put the 101st at Berchtesgaden.) Others which still are on the secret list were in the line or in rest areas when victory came.

So far as is known here, twenty-two divisions were in on the Allied victory on the Italian front. These included the American Thirty-fourth, Eighty-fifth, Eighty-eighth, Ninety-first and Ninety-second Infantry, an armored division and the Tenth Mountain.

IN THE PHILIPPINES.

24th Infantry—Pushed back by enemy counter-attack near Davao, Mindanao.

25th Infantry—Aided in flanking Balete Pass, northern Luzon

31st Infantry—Forces retreating enemy into mountains of central Luzon.

32d Infantry—In flanking movement on Balete Pass.

1st Marine—Static on Okinawa line.

7th and 77th Infantry—Hold flanks of Okinawa line; weather bad.

CHURCHILL SENDS REPLY TO TRUMAN

Hails U.S. War Role In Answer To V-E Day Message

London, May 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said in a message to President Truman tonight that "the valian and magnanimous deeds of the USA" during the European war will forever stir the hearts of Britons and predicted they will "lead to even closer affections and ties" between Britain and America.

"At no time has the principle of alliance between noble races been carried and maintained at so high a pitch," the Prime Minister said in replying to the President's V-E day message.

Churchill heaped high praise on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who he said "set the unity of the Allied armies above all nationalistic thoughts."

Text Of Message

The text of Churchill's mesage:

"Your message is cherished by the British nation and will be regarded as if it were a battle honor by all his Majesty's armed forces of all the races in all the lands.

"Particularly will this be true throughout the great armies which have fought together in France and Germany under General of the Army Eisenhower and in Italy under Feld Marshal Alexander.

"In all theaters men of our two countries were brothers in arms and this was also true in the air, on oceans and in narrow seas.

"In all our victorious armies in Europe we have fought as one. Looking at the staffs of General Eisenhower and Field Marshal Alexander anyone would suppose that they were the organization of one country and certainly a band of men with one high purpose.

Together, Heart And Soul

Fantastic Surrender of Nazi Corps

Germans Give Up With All the Comforts of Home—G. I.'s Irk Haughty Enemies.

Berchtesgaden, May 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The German Army's Eighty-second Corps surrendered to the American 101st Airborne Division in a field out here at the edge of town—and the proceedings were hard to believe.

A German general in an army vehicle led the parade. Behind him were thirty other vehicles, each packed with staff officers and personnel attached to the general's headquarters.

The camp where these prisoners will live is about a quarter of a mile down the road. The Germans were ordered to park their trucks, swanky touring cars and Kraut jeeps in this field to avoid his .45 for a German pistol.

Even Had Girls With Them.

A fresh load of Germans came in. They had women with them. They seemed astonished when informed the girls couldn't join them in captivity.

"How long before we will go home?" asked another prisoner. "Do you have much work for us to do?"

The talk veered around to Hitler.

"He died in the War Ministry in Berlin," said an SS captain. "Dynamite—tons of it—blown up by the Germans at Der Fuehrer's order."

by bouquets tossed into their jeeps and the cabs of their lumbering trucks.

The doughboys were aware that they were among people different than those they had conquered in Germany.

44,500 Liberated in Linz

LINZ, Austria, May 9 (AP).—Major N. P. Gatling, of Scarsdale, N. Y., was trying as military governor of Linz today to unscramble the tangled affairs of the Linz district. The Americans found 30,000 "displaced persons" here. Linz's ten hospitals are crowded with German wounded. In addition, the Allies liberated 10,000 prisoners of war and 4,500 Russians held in concentration camps.

Ex-Serb Chief Set To Fight Tito Anew

Kitzbuehel, Austria, May 9 (AP)—Field Marshal Milan Nedic, former pro-Axis Premier of Serbia, said today he and his followers would continue their nationalist policies and their war on Mashal Tito.

The former Premier and his brother, Col. Gen. Milutin Nedic, former Yugoslav Minister of War, chorused that they were "opposed to communism."

Staying in a hotel room here, their status is still in process of determination, as is that of 33 others found in this health resort after they had fled from the Balkans, in some cases just ahead of the Partisan elements of their own people.

"Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group, with its gallant army, has played its part both in our glorious landing last June and in all the battles which it has fought, either as the hinge on which supreme operations turned, or in guarding the northern flank, or advancing northward at the climax. All were together heart and soul.

"You sent a few days ago your message to Field Marshal Alexander, under whom, in command of the army front in Italy, is serving your doughty general, Mark Clark.

Mixed In Battle

"Let me tell you what General Eisenhower has meant to us. In him we have had a man who set the unity of the Allied armies above all nationalistic thoughts. In his headquarters unity and strategy were the only reigning spirits, the unity reached such a point that British and American troops could be mixed in the line of battle and that large masses could be transferred from one command to the other without the slightest difficulty.

"At no time has the principle of alliance between noble races been carried and maintained at so high a pitch. In the name of the British Empire and Commonwealth, I express to you our admiration of the firm, farsighted and illuminating character and qualities of General of the Army Eisenhower.

Valiant, Magnanimous

"I must also give expression to our British sentiments about all the valiant and magnanimous deeds of the United States of America under the leadership of President Roosevelt, so steadfastly carried forth by you, Mr. President, since his death in action.

"They will forever stir the hearts of Britons in all quarters of the world in which they dwell, and will, I am certain, lead to even closer affections and ties than those that have been fanned into flame by the two world wars through which we have passed with harmony and elevation of mind."

EUROPE FROL... FOR SECOND DA...

Joy Unrestrained in Citie... Everywhere But Reich.

London, May 9 (A.P.).—Merrymakers in this British capital embarked today on their second V-E day celebration. There was also frolicking in the streets of Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, Copenhagen and other cities.

In Oslo, capital of Norway, armed German soldiers strolled about the streets, watching the Norwegian celebrants. That curious V-E day situation, duplicated in other Norwegian towns, was due to the fact that Allied authorities had not yet been able to collect enemy arms.

Street fighting between Danish troops and former Nazi collaborators as well as Germans marred the celebration in Copenhagen. The unrestrained marathon celebration that started in Paris Monday continued. Paris and London's non-stop observances set the pace for other European cities.

Churchill Speaks Again.

Despite three earlier talks, Prime Minister Churchill appeared on the balcony of the Ministry of Health at Whitehall last night and exchanged repartee with thousands jammed into that section. He reminded the British that "one deadly foe has been cast on the ground and awaits our judgment and our mercy. But there is another foe who occupies large portions of the British Empire—a foe stained with cruelty and greed—the Japanese."

Cheering crowds at Buckingham Palace brought King George and Queen Elizabeth out to greet them at midnight for a seventh time. The Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret slipped out of the palace, and accompanied by guards and officers, mingled with the throng.

The mysterious wartime buildings on Hampstead Heath went up in flames, making the biggest V day bonfire of them all. They were largely a collection of imitation bungalows forming a fake village, built in 1941 and intended apparently as a decoy for German raiders.

They Didn't Even Go Home.

Thousands of Londoners never got home last night. With the holiday-curtailed transportation jammed hopelessly with skylarking humanity, many bedded down uncomplainingly on benches, open places in Leicester Square and the doorways of Piccadilly. Hundreds spent the night in Hyde Park.

The victory of the United Nations also was observed in some of Europe's neutral capitals. In Lisbon Portuguese Premier Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar led the celebration with a toast. "Let's welcome victory." The Swiss were happy over the advent of peace, but President Edward de Steiger cautioned his people, "we cannot figure on normal times yet."

Allied flags—with the exception of Soviet Russia's—fluttered from buildings in Madrid, but there were no public demonstrations in the Spanish capital.

British War Damage 4 Billions

LONDON, May 9 (AP).—Sir John Anderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told Commons today that a "safe" estimate of the war damage to Britain would be well over $4,000,000,000.

Law Reviews Poles' Arrest

London, May 9 (AP)—Minister of State Richard Law told Commons today that the British Government did not agree with the Russian version that the sixteen Polish leaders under arrest by the Russians were all saboteurs.

A Soviet broadcast had accused the Polish group, led by Gen. Leopold Okulicki, of sabotage behind the lines of the Red Army. Questioned whether the "introduction of the name of this officer appears to constitute quite a different element," Law replied.

"I have seen the report of the Tass agency and can only say that the information at the disposal of the Government certainly does not conform with what is contained in that report."

British Seek Confirmation

Law said the British Ambassador in Moscow had been ordered to ask the Soviet Government "for confirmation of the report that Mr. (Wincenty) Witos, former Polish Prime Minister, is now at liberty" and for confirmation of reports of the arrests of other Polish leaders.

Witos disappeared a few days after the Polish Government in London reported that the first group of Poles dropped from sight after answering the call of the Russion secret police, ostensibly to arrange their transportation to London.

"No Further Information"

Asked whether the British Government had any "sound reasons" for believing the sixteen Polish leaders still were alive, Law said that he regretted that "we have no further information than that with which the House is already familiar."

The British Minister was referring to a British statement that discussions with Moscow on the creation of a broader Polish Government in line with the Yalta agreement had broken down as a result of the arrest of the Poles, some of whom, Moscow said, would be tried on charges of sabotage.

British Realize Significance

In response to a question whether he realized the Poles invited to Russian headquarters were "promised absolute immunity for their personal safety," Law replied: "I can assure you that the British Government realizes the full significance of the facts in so far as it knows them."

Law was asked whether "it was not a fact that almost all these missing persons were members of the Polish trade union movement or Socialist movement" in Poland, and whether it was true that Britain "had no protest from parties of the Left in this country as to their detention."

"When these matters have been discussed here," Law said, "I have been conscious of no particular protest."

Nazis Had 200 To 300 Submarines At End

London, May 9 (AP)—The Germans had between 200 and 300 submarines to surrender to the Allies, according to the best estimates here, and some of them likely will be in used against Japan before long.

The Admiralty has given no hint of the actual number of U-boats surrendered as yet.

So far there have been no reports of "incidents" at sea or in harbors.

Captive Nazis To Work In Britain

London, May 9 (AP)—Great Britain has decided to use German prisoners "in considerable numbers" to help the Government housing program, Duncan Sandys, Minister of Works, announced today.

DOENITZ HELD WAR CRIMINAL

Persistent Rumors Say Himmler Is In Sweden

London, May 9 (AP)—The British Press Association said today that although Admiral Karl Doenitz, successor to Hitler, implied that he might have a finger in the future government of Germany, "he is not likely to be recognized by us as anything better than one of the war criminals."

"There is a conviction that the root of German militarism which has been responsible for recurring wars is the long-established general staff, but through the years it has done more damage to civilization than the upstart Nazi party, and that the general staff is to be placed beyond further mischief," the agency said.

Himmler In Sweden

While the British Government accepts the report that Hitler is dead, the British agency's parliamentary lobby correspondent said that there is a possibility that Heinrich Himmler, notorious Gestapo chief, is in Sweden.

"People coming from there are saying so in sufficient numbers to give a certain credence to the story," he said. "Without any question Himmler is a war criminal. . . . But I can now state that for four or five months Himmler has been trying to perform a 'quick change' act in hope of convincing the world that after all he is a humanitarian and a decent fellow.

Countermanded Hitler

"It seems that he countermanded an order by Hitler for the shooting of a big contingent of British and American prisoners of war after we bombed Dresden. His intervention saved them. He also allowed a number of Jews to escape into Sweden."

The agency said that the British Government "adheres to the opinion . . . that Himmler superseded Hitler last February in authority in Germany," and that "since then Hitler had been a waning star while Goering has been completely out of the picture."

KENNEDY DEFENDS SURRENDER STORY

PARIS, May 9—(AP) Associated Press Correspondent Edward Kennedy disagreed strongly tonight with Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen, Jr., director of the public relations divisions of Supreme headquarters, on whether the jeopardizing of Allied lives and possible prolongation of the war was involved in Kennedy's story on the German surrender at Reims Monday.

Allen, in an 800-word public statement dealing with Kennedy's Reims dispatch reporting the German surrender a day before its official announcement, asserted that "To save Allied lives on both fronts" General Eisenhower obtained authority from the Russians to negotate for a German capitulation on the understanding that the greatest secrecy would be maintained" until the Russian high command could be satisfied through later and more formal contact with the surrender was genuine on all fronts."

Tells of Pledge

Allen stated that these considerations "clearly involved security and the saving of American lives," but that Eisenhower permitted a selected group of correspondents to witness the surrender signatures after they had been pledged to secrecy.

Replying to this statement, Kennedy, who still is under suspension by Supreme headquarters, said tonight:

"General Allen and other responsible officers of SHAEF public relations made it clear to me at Reims that no question of military security was involved in release of this news.

"Allen told me, in fact, that General Eisenhower was desirous of having the news published as soon as possible so that the fighting might halt and lives possibly be saved.

"General Allen told me that General Eisenhower's hands were tied by a decision coming from 'high political levels.'"

Kennedy said further that Allen's statement about the need of waiting "until the Russians were satisfied that the surrender was genuine" was astonishing in view of the fact that Soviet Russia was a signatory of the Reims agreement.

Allen's statement said that the story was "not one obtained by press representatives in the ordinary course of their activities with this theater," but "by the courtesy of SHAEF" and through Allen's promise of secrecy.

Kennedy replied that "certainly General Allen must know that the purpose of correspondents in this theater is to report news, and certainly as head of public relations he should realize that the signing of the end of the war was news and, since he himself conceded there was no question of military security involved, it was legitimate news."

As for the secrecy pledge, Kennedy declared, "It is true that General Allen at one point during the visit to Reims (by 17 selected correspondents) said that the story would not be published until the respective heads of the Allied governments announced it.

Says Plans Changed

"It also is true that at another point he said the announcement was expected to be made at SHAEF even before we could reach Paris. The plans were changed a number of times, and General Allen made a great many conflicting statements concerning how the news would be released.

"After my return to Paris, the German government announced officially that it had surrendered, and I was informed that the BBC likewise had announced the capitulation.

"I thereupon went to Lt. Col. Richard Merrick, chief American press censor, and told him that since it was conceded that no military security was involved and that I regarded the suppression as purely political censorship, I therefore could not be bound by it. I intended to send the news.

"I based this statement on assurances given by the late President Roosevelt and other responsible American officials that the sole purpose of censorship was military security and that the surrender of Germany ended the need for military security in Europe except in so far as it might affect the war in the Pacific.

"I also telephoned to General Allen to tell him of my intentions of passing this dispatch, but was told by his secretary that he was too busy to speak to me."

Once aPssed By Censor

Kennedy also disclosed that the censors had read his dispatch, marked it "passed," and signed it, but that later, when it was decided that the respective governments would make the first announcements, he was informed orally that the passing of the dispatch was rescinded. Kennedy said they made it clear that this decision was not due to any matter of military security.

Answering Allen's statement that General Eisenhower had feared "the entire chain of negotiations" might break down, Kennedy said that if this were true then it must be conceded that the Reims agreement was an empty gesture, although signed by the Russians and agreed to by the Germans, and that the only signing which counted was the later Russian-managed one in Berlin.

"The contention that negotiations might break down is not borne out by the supreme command's action," said Kennedy, "in that, hours before my story was sent out, General Eisenhower officially notified all troops that the surrender was signed and the war was over effective at 12.10 A.M., May 9. This showed that he had no doubts that the Reims agreement officially ended the war."

Points To Experience

"I have been reporting this war since its start," Kennedy said in conclusion, "and I have found that despite assurances given that the sole purpose of censorship was military security, in many instances censorship has gone beyond this point.

"I have always made it perfectly clear to General Allen and to public relations officials generally, both here and in the Mediterranean theaters, that I took the guarantee that censorship was confined to military security very seriously and at its face value and would not voluntarily submit to political censorship, as this would mean the end of the free press and of all freedom in the world."

Kennedy Denies Breaking Trust

MAY 10 1945

New York, May 9 (AP)—Edward Kennedy, whose Reims dispatch to the Associated Press Monday gave the first eyewitness account of the German surrender, today made his first direct statement concerning the story and denied in a separate message that he had "admitted any breach of confidence."

Kennedy, chief of the AP's Western-front staff, has been under suspension since Monday, and General Eisenhower, in a telegram to Kent Cooper, executive director of the AP, said this was "due to self-admitted deliberate violation of SHAEF regulations and breach of confidence."

Kennedy distributed his statement to correspondents accredited to SHAEF and the Paris press. It was the first time Kennedy, speaking directly for himself, had presented his case. Previous efforts of the AP made in direct messages to its Paris bureau and also to General Eisenhower, had failed to obtain a statement from Kennedy, who, under the suspension, was not permitted to communicate directly with his home office.

Not Military Security

His statement said:

"I saw the representative of the existing German Government sign the agreement of unconditional surrender.

"I was informed by a representative of SHAEF (supreme headquarters) public relations that, although no issue of military security was involved, SHAEF public relations intended to suppress this news from the public until a later time.

"I informed a representative of SHAEF public relations that I could not accept this view, since it had been conceded that no military security was involved, and that I intended to send this story.

"I sent the story."

Denies Breach Of Trust

A telegram from Relman Morin to Cooper conveyed this message from Kennedy:

"He says it is completely incorrect to say that he has admitted any breach of confidence. He says he did what he considered was his duty and is still of that opinion."

Supreme headquarters in Paris announced that two other AP men had been suspended, Morton Gudebrod and Robert Bunnelle, executive director for the AP in the United Kingdom.

KENNEDY DENIES BREAKING FAITH

A. P. Reporter Claims He Merely Did His Duty

By Associated Press

MAY 10 1945

A message from the Paris bureau of the Associated Press today quoted Edward Kennedy, whose Reims dispatch Monday gave the first eyewitness account of the German surrender, as saying that "It is completely incorrect to say that he has admitted any breach of confidence."

The message, from Relman Morin of the Paris staff to Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, continued: "He (Kennedy) says he did what he considered was his duty and is still of that opinion."

Kennedy, chief of the A. P.'s western-front staff, under suspension by Supreme Headquarters as a result of his story, filed nearly twenty-four hours before the official announcement, still was unable to give his account of the affair directly. Morin's message quoted Kennedy as saying that a statement sent at 8 P. M. yesterday "contains all facts of the case and states his position." No such statement filed at that time has yet reached the A. P. in New York.

Two Others Suspended.

Supreme Headquarters in Paris announced that two other A. P. men besides Kennedy had been suspended. It said: "War correspondents Edward Kennedy, Morton Gudebrod and Robert Bunnelle of the Associated Press have been suspended pending an investigation of alleged violations of SHAEF regulations."

Bunnelle, executive director of the A. P. in the United Kingdom, was notified by the rear echelon of SHAEF in London that he was suspended as a war correspondent in the European theater of operations.

In a message to Cooper, Bunnelle said, however, that this did not restrict his activities except that he becomes unable to use Army facilities and military communications channels or to eat at Army messes.

Urged End of Censorship.

Capt. Harry Clark, SHAEF public relations officer in London, who telephoned Bunnelle's notification, said that he acted on instructions of Supreme Headquarters in Paris, which, he added, gave no reason for the move. Bunnelle asked a written statement of specific charges and Capt. Clark said that he would forward the request to Paris.

Cooper last night urged on Gen. Eisenhower abolition of military censorship in Europe now that the war there has ended.

In a radiogram to the Supreme Commander of the Western Allies, Cooper also requested that Edward Kennedy, chief of the Associated Press Paris bureau, be permitted to state his own case concerning how he broke the story of Germany's surrender a full day ahead of the official announcement, and asked Gen. Eisenhower to state the Supreme Headquarters position respecting the elements of security involved in the surrender story.

KENNEDY ACCUSED OF PACT VIOLATION

Allen Tells Of Eisenhower's Agreement With Russians

Censorship Stands

Paris, May 9 (AP)—The war in Europe has ended, but censorship will continue at least as long as the military is here.

Supreme headquarters censors, just before the German surrender, received the first copy of their new series of modified instructions and these now are in force.

Paris, May 9 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen, Jr., director of supreme headquarters public relations division, issued a lengthy statement today dealing with Edward Kennedy's Reims dispatch to the Associated Press reporting the German surrender a day before its official announcement.

Allen said publication of the story had placed General Eisenhower "in the position of having broken an understanding with our Russian allies" concerning announcement of the surrender. He said Eisenhower had "feared that the entire chain of negotiations involving a later meeting between German, Russian and Allied high commands might break down and therefore prolong the war."

London Chief Suspended

Robert Bunnelle, managing executive for the Associated Press in the United Kingdom, was notified in London today that he had been suspended by supreme headquarters in Paris as a war correspondent in the European theater of operations. Capt. Harry Clark, a SHAEF public relations officer stationed in London, telephoned the notification.

[In a message from another member of the AP Paris staff to New York, Kennedy was quoted as saying that "it is completely incorrect" to say that he had "admitted any breach of confidence" in sending his dispatch.]

Gen. Allen's Statement on AP 'Beat'

MAY 10 1945

PARIS, May 9 (AP)—The text of the statement issued today by Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen Jr., director of the public relations division of Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force, on Edward Kennedy's surrender story follows:

The following facts are pertinent to the widely publicized incident in which The Associated Press is alleged to have obtained a "scoop."

1. In anticipation of some offer by the German High Command to surrender its forces I applied to the Supreme Commander for authority to have any meeting between representatives of the German High Command and our own forces covered by accredited representatives of the press.

2. The Supreme Commander informed me that negotiations initiated by the Germans were of the utmost secrecy, particularly because of the great difficulty, due to distance, of exactly coordinating an action of this kind with the Russian Army so that any unconditional surrender could be made simultaneously on both the Western and Eastern fronts. The need for secrecy was intensified by the fact that the Germans were then desperately trying through propaganda and false statements to create misunderstandings between the Russian forces and the Allies on the Western Front and even broadcast as late as noon May 6 that they intended to begin negotiations with the Allies so as to gain time and strength for the battle with Russian forces.

Due to the desire of the Supreme Commander to obtain a surrender at the earliest possible moment so as to save Allied lives on both fronts, he requested authority from the Russian High Command to act initially in accepting an unconditional surrender on all fronts so as to bring the whole matter speedily to a head. The understanding was that he would observe the greatest secrecy in any negotiations with the German High Command to accept nothing less than simultaneous unconditional surrender on both fronts and particularly to make no announcement of any kind until the Russian High Command could be satisfied through later and more formal contact that the surrender was genuine on all fronts and did not represent merely an additional attempt by the Germans to gain advantages at the expense of the Russians.

Allen Got Press Into Meeting

Because of these considerations, which clearly involved security and the saving of American lives, the Supreme Commander was doubtful of the propriety of permitting the presence of any individual at the meeting except those who had official duties in connection therewith.

On the earnest representations of this division that no newspaper men would release any information concerning the proceedings until authorized to do so by me, he allowed me to invite a pool of seventeen press men to witness the proceedings.

3. The story therefore was not one obtained by press representatives in the ordinary course of their activities with this theatre; it was obtained by the courtesy of SHAEF headquarters and through my promise, which was based upon past relationships with the press in this theatre of war.

4. To assure that all invited representatives of the press would understand these conditions, I personally briefed the correspondents of the impending ceremonies incident to the signing of the unconditional surrender pact and stated to them:

"This story is off the record until the respective heads of the Allied Governments announce the fact to the world.

"I therefore pledge each and every one of you, on your honor, not to communicate the result of this conference or the fact of its existence until it is released by SHAEF."

These words, and the fact that Mr. Kennedy heard them, have been confirmed by all the others in the same group. Moreover, all observed this pledge except Mr. Kennedy of The Associated Press, who used unauthorized channels of communication in order to commit his deliberate violation.

5. I was compelled immediately to report this incident to the Supreme Commander, who was in turn placed in the position of having broken an understanding with our Russian allies and because of which he feared that the entire chain of negotiations involving an agreed upon later meeting between German, Russian and Allied High Commands might break down and therefore prolong the war. Had this occurred, the results would have been deplorable.

Effect on Chiefs Unknown

6. What effect, if any, this incident may have upon the future relationships between the several high commands is unknown. In any event, the instrument of unconditional surrender of Germany has now been formally signed.

7. In proceeding against violations of this kind, the regulations and arrangements by which representatives of the press are admitted into a theatre of war, limit the authority of the theatre commander to appropriate action against guilty individuals within his own theatre. The War Department states that a theatre commander is not authorized to take action against an organization.

8. However, there is raised by this incident a question of the most serious import to all representatives of the press in this theatre. This question is the extent to which the Allied Command can, in any future case, permit pressmen advance access to news of the most secret character on the same basis that has always applied in the past. To my knowledge, this is the first time that any representative of the press, either here or in General Eisenhower's former theatre, has been guilty of such an offense, and I have recommended to him that he continue to pursue his former practice in spite of this deliberate violation against good faith, against the reputation of the press for reliability, in spite of a solemn promise, and against security definitely involving possible loss of American and Allied lives. In making this recommendation, which has been approved, I have engaged to be personally responsible for the good faith of each press representative who is permitted future access to such stories.

The Supreme Commander has asked me to express to all the other newsmen in the theatre his great gratification that with this single exception his confidence in the press has never once been violated in his experience of almost three years as a theatre commander. He regrets that because of their observance of his confidence in this instance they and their organizations have suffered professionally.

N.Y. Times Writer Describes Press 'War' At SHAEF

MAY 10

[The following dispatch by Raymond Daniell, of the New York Times, was made available to the Associated Press by the Times because of widespread interest in the controversy over the news policies of supreme headquarters, American Expeditionary Force. The Times published the article today under the heading, "Fiasco by SHAEF at Reims is Bared."]

Paris, May 8 (AP)—The dawn of peace in Europe found SHAEF press-relations officers in a state of open war with newspaper correspondents. For the manner in which the last big story of this war was covered for the American people under the direction of Brig. Gen. Frank Allen can only be described as one of the greatest fiascos yet in the long history of blundering bureaucracy.

And so, while mobs outside the Hotel Scribe, which is SHAEF press headquarters, shouted themselves hoarse in the streets, correspondents were losing their voices too in angry meetings trying to "whereas" General Allen into limbo and squabbling among themselves over what punishment should be meted out to those among them who had violated the rules and regulations prescribed for their behavior by the Army.

On Again, Off Again

Resolutions of protest were a dime a dozen in the lobby all day yesterday and today and credentials were being lifted and restored at such a pace that when one newspaper man met another, instead of commenting on the weather, they were more likely to ask:

"Are you still accredited?"

The Associated Press was very much in the doghouse for spilling the beans prematurely in alleged violation of censorship and the most solemn agreements. For most of the day its whole staff was "suspended" and forbidden to attend any briefings or to send even messages to the New York office explaining this sudden and unaccustomed silence.

The Associated Press correspondents were reinstated, however, before the official announcement that the war was over—all of them, that is, except Edward Kennedy, their bureau manager, who made no bones about the fact that it was he who evolved the method which

Army Intelligence is still investigating for beating the gun on the surrender story.

The Associated Press staff was not alone in the doghouse. There were other correspondents there, too, for having visited Berlin and writing about what they saw in the Russian zone of occupation without official SHAEF chaperonage.

The correspondents themselves were building their own doghouse to house only General Allen, who so arranged things that out of fifteen places for correspondents at the signing of the surrender, only three went to American newspaper agencies, and not one individual newspaper was represented legally, although space was found for four American broadcasters.

No-Confidence Resolution

As the aftermath of that, the correspondents held an indignation meeting this morning at the Scribe and Charles Wertenbaker, of Time introduced a resolution which was seconded by Drew Middleton of the New York Times declaring that reporters at SHAEF no longer had the slightest degree of confidence in the public relations division of SHAEF or in its director, General Allen. However, action on this resolution was finally deferred.

General Allen defended himself on the ground that the Anglo-American press committee had approved the list of correspondents who were admitted to the room where the surrender took place. There were two things wrong about that, however. The first was that the American correspondents upon whom the list had been imposed by the Army last December had made reservations in writing.

Things Were Different Then

And another was that the plan that was used for the surrender story had been drawn up originally for an entry into Berlin, which was quite a different matter, because that was a story that could be covered in phases. In other words, if only a few correspondents could have been landed in Berlin the first day others could have been sent in overland soon afterward.

The correspondents never liked the Army's plan, but they accepted it with reservations. What made them especially angry, however, was the fact that when the time came for surrender, it was the Army's plan for coverage in Berlin that was adopted instead of an order of precedence drawn up at Dieppe by the newspaper representatives and followed ever since until last Sunday night by the Army where space was limited.

At Reims last Sunday night when the Germans signed on the dotted line, the only American newspaper witnesses present were representatives of International News Service, the United Press and the Associated Press, except for Price Day of the Baltimore Sun, who won his place by the flip of a coin after the British Exchange Telegraph Agency representative decided that he had a prior engagement.

To even things up, after it was pointed out to him that Day's presence put other representatives of newspapers behind the eight ball, General Allen ruled that Day could write his report for Exchange Telegraph in London but not for his own American newspaper. Later, this edict, like most of the others that have been issued by the SHAEF public relations office, was retracted and Day was able to file his own story to his own paper and pay the cable tolls. Otherwise Exchange Telegraph in London would have had to do this for him and bill his office.

Hand-Picked Observers

These are just a few examples of the conditions that have prevailed at SHEAF public relations division since the Germans first made gestures of surrender last Friday. First, it was decided that two public relations officers, one British and the other American, would serve as observers for the entire world press. That was given up as a bad idea and a hand-picked group of the Army's choosing was selected to witness and report the historic event.

This consisted of four American radio broadcasters and three wire service representatives from the United States. All the rest were British, French or Australians. The last named were included on express orders from London, a SHAEF spokesman said.

When the allocations were criticized, Capt. Harry Butcher, General Eisenhower's sea-going aide who used to be an executive of the Columbia Broadcasting System, said he had no intention of debating decisions already made. Then when Lieut. Gen. Frederick E Morgan came along and found representatives of most of America's great newspapers standing on the sidewalk, he said it was a disgrace and he would see to it that something was done.

Ordered Away

The British general was a man of his word. In a few minutes MP's came out of the schoolhouse where the surrender was signed and ordered all except five of the correspondents to get into jeeps and "get the hell out of there." Later it was learned that General Morgan went to General Allen and said it was disgraceful to keep the cream of British and American journalism outside, and General Allen interpreted that to mean that he wanted them chased away instead of admitted to the proceedings.

And that's not all. The five who were spared and permitted to hold their vigil on the sidewalk were five, including this correspondent, whom General Allen had named arbitrarily as those with whom he would treat on the whole question of coverage.

But this committee never did see the chief of the SHAEF's press section until it was all over, and then he apologized, saying there was nothing "personal" about the obvious bungle. Then he admitted that his governing thought on coverage was to restrict the number of correspondents present to a minimum.

Space was limited in the room where the surrender occurred, he said, but he conceded that even at that, with all the twenty-odd girls and other friends who were admitted, there was still room for another half-dozen correspondents, but, unfortunately, he had completely forgotten the deputation waiting outside. Anyway, he said, to admit five more would have been merely to decrease the number of those who were sore, although there were only nine men and women left outside in Reims.

Then came the aftermath. One of those privileged princes of the press who had been taken to the scene of the surrender strayed off the reservation. This was Kennedy, of the Associated Press, who says he thought the American people had such a right to know what was going on that he was willing to risk SHAEF disciplinary action for the sake of being first to tell them.

And so tonight he is discredited and the story that he got out before the release time is being held up here, although it has been printed in every language, including the Scandinavian, already.

Row Over Ethics

Meanwhile there is a spirited row going on between the correspondents and their army shepherds and among the correspondents themselves over such issues as freedom of the press and the ethics of journalism. Kennedy says he never promised to keep his mouth shut until it was opened officially and that instead of being ashamed for violating a fundamental tenet in journalism's code of ethics he is proud of what he did.

His fellow correspondents, however, take a different view. With two exceptions, they voted today to send a letter to General Eisenhower denouncing his behavior and that of his organization.

As for the ethics of what has happened, there is the testimony of Boyd Lewis of the United Press, a competing organization, it is true, but whose story is confirmed by others in the official party to witness the surrender.

Lewis says that in the plane on the way to Reims, General Allen briefed all correspondents, and that Kennedy took notes. He quoted General Allen as follows:

"This group represents the press of the world—this story is entirely off the record until the heads of the governments have announced it.

"I therefore pledge each of you on your honor not to communicate the results of the conference or the fact of its existence—until it is released on the order of the Public Relations Division, SHAEF."

Stalin Sought To Have V-E Day Report Delayed

Said to Have Wanted Berlin Surrender Made Public Along With Reims Pact

PARIS, May 9 (AP).—At the end of this war in which Germany surrendered to the Allies twice—once at Reims and again two days later at Berlin—it has been disclosed at Supreme Headquarters here that Premier Stalin sought at the last minute to have the victory announcement delayed.

The request came from Moscow at a time when Prime Minister Churchill already had arranged his victory broadcast. The time of the broadcast (9 a. m., Eastern War Time, Tuesday) already had been announced, and there was no postponement.

The German signing of the second surrender this morning in the Russian-held ruin of Berlin is being treated here officially as "ratification" of the Reims surrender, which was signed Monday morning.

As far as correspondents here could tel, however, the Russians regard the Berlin signing as the surrender.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower had made it clear at Reims that he would accept nothing but unconditional surrender to the Russians and the western Allies equally, and he made the Germans go through with it in the presence of Soviet military representatives, one of whom signed the document.

It seemed probable that if Stalin wanted the announcement delayed beyond Tuesday, it was so that the Berlin surrender could be reported simultaneously with the one at Reims.

So far as is known here, the Russians are completely satisfied with the Reims terms. In the instrument signed at Berlin, the text of the Reims capitulation was followed except for the addition of slightly more detail on the surrender of military and technical equipment without damage.

Paris, May 9 (AP) — The whole question of co-ordination between the Russian and Western Allied commands in the final phase of crushing the Reich has been of high interest to correspondents here. Censorship has prevented until today much that might have been written about it.

It should be emphasized, however, that there never has been any indication here of disagreement between Eisenhower and the Russian command on the job of smashing the German armed force.

General's Own Words

In Eisenhower's own words, there never has been any co-operation essential to the victory that the Russians have not given, and freely.

But the co-ordination between the two commands, up to the very last minute, when they had exchanged, military liaison representatives, was clearly limited to essentials.

Probably the nearest approach to a dovetailed strategy known here came after the Germans' Ardennes breakthrough had been beaten back and Eisenhower was gathering power for the blow to smash the Roer River line and wipe out the Germans west of the Rhine. There were weeks of tension then, admitted frankly at this headquarters.

Thaws Involved Risk

Spring thaws were approaching rapidly on the Polish plain. If the Red Army had not struck before the thaws, the Germans might have been able to risk large-scale troop transfers to hold on in the west.

Russia not only promised to strike in time, and did strike in time, to prevent any such troop shifting, but correspondents here were told at the time, off the record, that Stalin had advanced the scheduled time of his Eastern front offensive at a special request from Eisenhower's headquarters.

Zones Prearranged

There is no longer any military security in the fact that the American race across Germany was stopped along the Elbe River and at the borders of Czechoslovakia, not by the Germans, but by the prearranged zones of what the Red Army was to occupy.

The United States 9th Army, which wedged its way across the Elbe, was called off, although it was convinced that it could have taken Berlin without great loss. Berlin was preassigned as a Russian victory.

Actually, the American forces reached the finish line ahead of time. They were stopped there, and on the 1st and 3d Army fronts east of Leipzig, so that the Russians could come up and break the tape.

That is why General Patton's 3d Army was stopped at Pilsen when the road to Prague was clear. Prague was in the Russian zone.

CENSORSHIP TO GO ON

But Security Rules Went Off With Germans' Surrender

PARIS, May 9 (AP)—The war in Europe has ended, but censorship will continue at least as long as the military is here.

Supreme Headquarters censors, just before the German surrender, received the first copy of their new series of modified instructions and these now are in force. Details will be made available soon.

Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen Jr., in charge of headquarters' public relations division, told correspondents who went to Reims that their copy on the German surrender would be the first uncensored stories of the war.

His office explained today that this did not mean censorship had ended, but that "as soon as the surrender had been signed, military security censorship on stories referring to this event did in fact go off."

It was added in explanation that "this, however, does not affect the fact that, by instructions from the heads of state, an embargo was placed upon this story and that all correspondents present had agreed to observe this embargo as a condition to their presence at the ceremony."

REPORT HIMMLER BACKED DOENITZ

Paris, May 9 (A. P.).—Sources at Supreme Allied Headquarters believe that Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz took over the Government of Germany for the express purpose of making the unconditional surrender and that he was in agreement with Heinrich Himmler at the time that defeat was inevitable. These informants said that Himmler, Gestapo chief and commander of the German home army, was with Admiral Doenitz at Flensburg, in Germany, near the Danish frontier. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, they said, is dead.

Danish Parliament Opened.

Copenhagen, May 9 (A. P.).—Danish collaborationists will be punished and war incomes confiscated, Premier Wilhelm Buhl told the new Parliament today. He said that Denmark's adherence to the anti-Comintern pact was invalid because the country was forced into it during German occupation. King Christian made his first public appearance in two years, and was cheered wildly along the route from the palace to Parliament which he opened in the traditional fashion.

Ceremoniously the King was carried on a chair into the chamber. He then mounted the gilded throne and made a brief speech.

In the galleries were British Major-Gen. R. M. Dewing and his next in command, American Col. Ford Trimble.

Danish Collaborators Promised Just Trials

Copenhagen, May 9 (AP)—Pledging "hard but just punishment" of Danes who collaborated with the German invaders, Premier Vilhelm Buhl told Denmark's Parliament today that all would receive prompt fair trials.

It was the first parliamentary session in eighteen months, and was attended by King Christian, who was rolled in on his royal throne for his first public appearance in two years. He was barred in because of his ill health.

"Those now interned on the advice of the freedom fighters will immediately have their cases handled juridically," an dunder criminal law, Buhl said at the Diet's opening session.

Denmark, he said, will sign a new treaty with the United States for defense of Greenland. He said the country wants preservation of the present border with Germany because it desires only Danish citizens on its soil.

Belgians Contact King

Brussels, May 9 (AP)—A Belgian Cabinet communiqué announced today that official contact had been established with King Leopold III, recently rescued by the American 7th Army in Austria, but said nothing about his return.

SOME TROOPS ON WAY TO PACIFIC FROM ITALY

ROME, May 9—(AP) Some American combat troops already have been transferred direct from Italy to the Pacific war zone, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of U. S. forces in the Mediterranean area, disclosed today.

Only a relatively small number of the troops in this area will be demobilized. And these probably won't leave Italy for several months, McNarney said in a V-E Day broadcast.

Most of the soldiers in Italy, the commander said, would be needed for European occupation assignments or for more campaigning in the Far East.

The movement to the Pacific theater, he said, would be via the United States.

"For most of you," McNarney told the troops under his command, "your return to civilian life will come only when Japan has been uterly and finally defeated."

U. S. Troops From Italy On Their Way to Pacific

McNarney Says Some Will Move Via United States

ROME, May 9 (AP).—General Joseph T. McNarney, commanding general of United States troops in the Mediterranean Theater, said, in a V-E Day broadcast published today that some American combat troops had already been transferred directly from Italy to participate in the war against Japan.

He said that only a relatively small number of troops here would be demobilized, and that even those demobilized would probably not leave Italy for several months.

Some would be transferred to the Pacific Theater via the United States, he added.

"For most of you," he said to the troops, "your return to civilian life will come only when Japan has been utterly and finally defeated."

POPE PIUS CALLS FOR JUST PEACE

VATICAN CITY, May 9 — (AP) Pope Pius XII in a broadcast of "humble and ardent gratitude" on the end of the war in Europe said today: "But our canticle of thanksgiving is accompanied with the suppliant prayer to implore also of divine omnipotence the termination, in accord with justice, of the sanguinary warfare in the Far East."

The Pontiff, who spoke from his private library said: "The war has created on all sides chaotic ruin both material and moral such as mankind has never before known in the entire course of human history. The task of this hour is to rebuild the world."

The Pope called on enlightened Allied leaders to bring about a peace founded on the equality of all nations weak or strong.

He said the dead were urging the survivors that there arise from their graves "a new and better Europe, a new and better universe founded on filial fear of God, fidelity to His Holy Commandments, respect for human dignity and the sacred principle of equality of rights of all peoples ar l all states, large and small, weak and strong."

"The war," the Pontiff said, "has aroused everywhere discord, suspicion and hatred. If therefore the world wishes to regain peace it is necessary that falsehood and rancour should vanish and in their stead sovereign truth and charity should reign.

The Pontiff said "peace x x x cannot flower and prospect except in an atmosphere of secure justice and of perfect fidelity joined with reciprocal trust mutual understanding and benevolence."

The Pope listed the "decay of public order, misery and hunger, the relaxing and brutalizing of customs and usages, the lack of discipline among youths" as the immediate and disastrous consequences of the war.

He urged the speedy return home of war prisoners and interned civilians as the "first element" in European reconstruction.

To the prisoners of war and refugees the Pope said:

"To all them we say: let not your energy flag nor your courage fail: dedicate yourselves ardently to the work of reconstruction, sustained by a strong faith in divine Providence. Apply yourselves to labor. Each one at his post. Resolute and determined. With a heart animated by a generous, indestructible love of one's fellow man."

The Pope ended the broadcast by imparting the apostolic benediction to the listening world.

Text of Pope's Radio Message

VATICAN CITY, May 9 (AP).—Following is the complete text of Pope Pius XII's radio address today:

Here at last we behold the end of this war which, during almost six years, has held Europe in the grip of the most atrocious suffering and most bitter sorrow.

A cry of humble and ardent gratitude arises from the very depths of our heart to "the Father of Mercies and the God of all consolation (II Cor., xiii).

But our canticle of thanksgiving is accompanied with the suppliant prayer to implore also of Divine omnipotence and goodness the termination, in accord with justice, of the sanguinary warfare in the Far East.

On our knees in spirit before tombs, before the ravines disturbed and reddened by blood, where repose the innumerable corpses of those who have fallen, victims of the ghting or of inhuman massacres, of hunger or of misery, we recommend them all in our prayers and especially in the celebration of the Holy Sacrifice, to the merciful love of Jesus Christ, their savior and their judge.

And it seems to us that they, the fallen, are giving warning to the survivors of this cruel scourge and are saying to them: Let there arise from the earth, wherein we have been placed as grains of wheat, the moulders and builders of a new and better Europe, of a new and better universe, founded on the filial fear of God, on fidelity to His Holy Commandments, on respect for human dignity, on the sacred principle of equality, on the rights of all peoples and all states, large and small, weak and strong.

The war has created on all sides chaotic ruin, both material and moral, such as mankind has never known in the entire course of human history. The task of this hour is to rebuild the world.

As the first element of this restoration, we long to see, after so long a period of waiting, the prompt and speedy return, in so far as circumstances permit, of the prisoners, of the interned, combatants and civilians, to their homes and to their wives, children and the noble works of peace.

To all of them we say: Let not your energy flag nor your courage fail; dedicate yourselves ardently to the work of reconstruction, sustained by a strong faith in Divine Providence. Apply yourselves to labor, each one at his post, resolute and determined, with a heart animated by a generous, indestructible love of one's fellow man.

It is difficult, certainly, but it is also a holy undertaking that awaits you in repairing the immediate and disastrous consequences of war: We refer to the decay of public order, misery and hunger, the relaxing and brutalizing of customs and usages, the lack of discipline among the youth.

By so doing, little by little, you will prepare for your cities and your villages, for your provinces and your fatherlands, a lot more acceptable and renewed vigor to your blood.

With the threat of death lying-in-wait driven from the earth, from the sea and from the sky, the lives of men, creatures of God, and that which remains to them of their private and common possession henceforth assured by the laying down of arms, men can now set free their minds and spirits to the building of the peace.

If we limit ourselves to consideration of Europe, we find ourselves face to face now with gigantic problems and difficulties which we must overcome if we wish to plan the way to a true peace, the only one that can be lasting.

Peace, indeed, cannot flower and prosper except in an atmosphere of secure justice and of perfect fidelity joined with reciprocal trust, mutual understanding and benevolence.

The war has aroused everywhere discord, suspicion and hatred. If, therefore, the world wishes to regain peace it is necessary that falsehood and rancor should vanish and in their stead that sovereign truth and charity should reign.

Above all, however, in our daily prayers we should beseech God constantly to fulfill his promise made by the mouth of the prophet Ezekiel: "And I will give them one heart and will put a new spirit in their bowels: and I will take away the stony heart out of their flesh: that they may walk in My Commandants, and keep My judgments, and do them: and that they may be My people, and I may be their God."

May the Lord God deign to create this new spirit, His spirit, in peoples, and particularly in the hearts of those to whom he has entrusted the responsibility of establishing the future peace.

Then, and only then, will the reborn world avoid the return of the tremendous scourge of war, and there will reign a true, stable and universal brotherhood, and that peace guaranteed by Christ even on earth to those who are willing to believe and trust in His law of love.

V-E CELEBRATED BY SOVIET UNION

Russia Will Not Destroy Germany Or Its People, Stalin Declares.

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, May 9.—(AP) The Soviet Union will not "destroy Germany or its people," Marshal Stalin declared tonight in a blunt, matter-of-fact six-minute victory broadcast.

Speaking from his study in the Kremlin, around which a million or more Russians crowded in a noisy happy holiday mood, the Soviet leader climaxed his nation's greatest celebration.

Fifty-four minutes after he finished speaking, 1,000 Moscow guns fired 30 volleys into the cold, clear spring sky, fingered by thousands of searchlights and arching rockets.

"The Soviet army and the army of the Allied command have forced Germany to fall," Stalin said, explaining the Reims and Berlin double surrender ceremonies.

"Being acquainted with the wolfish habits of the Fascists who regard every document as a blank piece of paper, we did not have grounds to believe in the act. However, this morning when the German army put down her arms and began to surrender this was not a simple piece of paper but a real capitulation. x x x The Soviet Union is rejoicing in victories although it does not intend either to destroy Germany or its people."

The Soviet leader, paying tribute to his people's war efforts, said "great sacrifices in the name of liberty and fatherland were not in vain."

After the tremendous artillery salute and pyrotechnic display, Red airforce planes swooped and circled over the gay scene, their roaring motors adding to the din of victory. From the planes showered multicolored flares.

More than 100 bands and orchestras played in the squares and parks for the thousands who rollicked through the night.

In a great spontaneous tribute to the United States thousands assembled in front of the American embassy during the afternoon shouting: "Long Live America. Long live the American people."

Officers and GI's and staid members of the State department joined in the wild tribute, and were hugged and kissed by the Russians. The demonstration was touched off anew when George Kennan, U.S. minister hung out the Soviet flag beside the United States flag which was at half staff for the late president.

Throughout the early morning and all day the center of the celebration was the vast Kremlin square where the people shuffled over the old cobblestones shouting "Long live Stalin. Long live victory." American GI's danced over the ancient stone, with pretty Russian factory girls released from their duties to celebrate the victory over Germany.

One American corporal, after about an hour's celebrating, gasped:

"Boy, oh boy. If I'd played post-office every day until I got into the army, I wouldn't have been kissed as many times as I've been kissed today."

The first word the Russians had of the end of the conflict with Germany was at 1:10 a. m. this morning when URI Levitan, Star announcer for the Moscow radio, came on the air with the glad tidings.

Although most of Moscow's residents were asleep the news quickly spread. Lights snapped on in residences and people—many in night clothes—tumbled out into the streets shouting and dancing. Some knelt on the pavement and prayed.

The Moscow press praised the great Soviet victory over the foe and "Red Star" said, "in this victorious war of the United Nations over German imperialism the most important and decisive role belongs to our native land, to the Red Army."

Huge celebrations were reported from Stalingrad—where the powerful Germany Army was stopped—Leningrad, which withstood the Nazi siege for so many long bitter months, Kiev, Odessa, and throughout Siberia.

"The population of Stalingrad," said Chairman of the City Soviet Pigalev, "heard with rapture that Hitlerite Germany had laid down her arms, and capitulated before the Red Army, before our country."

Moscow Celebrates

Moscow, May 9 (AP)—Thousands of Russians swarmed through Red Square shouting "Long live Stalin" and "Hurrah for victory" as the Soviet capital turned out to the last man, woman and child today to celebrate the end of the European war.

In the center of the cheering, singing throng a group of American GI's attached to the United States military mission in Moscow danced across the cobblestones with girls from the factories, which had shut down for the celebration.

"Further Victories"

A worker at a big dynamo plant meeting declared "Stalin led us to a great victory. He will lead us into further victories."

The radio kept repeating the news first given early this morning—that the war ended with German capitulation to the Red Army in Berlin. Every half hour commentators read the text of the capitulation. Nothing was mentioned about an earlier surrender at General Eisenhower's headquarters.

Uri Levitan, a small dark man with a big voice, gave to 190,000,000 Russians the momentous news that the war against Germany has ended in a crushing victory for the Soviet Union and her Allies.

Reaction Typically Slavic

The immediate reaction to the stirring event was typically Slavic.

It was 1.10 A. M. when Levitan—star announcer for the Moscow radio and the man who has broadcast all of Premier Marshal Stalin's orders of the day—came on the air with the glad tidings.

Most of Moscow's residents were asleep, but the announcement acted like an alarm clock. Thousands poured into the streets—some still clad in pajamas and nightgowns. Many wept openly, some fell on their knees in prayer. Everywhere people were shaking hands, embracing and kissing one another on tear-wet cheeks.

"It's over, thank God, it's over," was a cry so recurrent among the women that it sounded like a choral chant.

Dawn Of Peace

For Russia—the only one of the three great powers not at war with Japan—the news really meant the dawn of peace.

Up to the moment of Levitan's broadcast announcement the Russian people had no word—not even an official hint—that Germany had surrendered. No dispatches on the earlier surrender celebrations in Britain and the United States had been published.

Levitan followed his announcement with a special order from President Michael Kalinin decreeing a public holiday.

It did not take long for the word to spread. Children in stocking feet dashed through apartment houses and up and down the streets, beating on doors and crying:

"Wake up, wake up! Victory! Victory!"

Curfew Forgotten

The curfew was forgotten as Muscovites crowded the streets and marched arm in arm in happy confusion, singing and shouting.

Officers and soldiers in uniform were besieged by deliriously joyful women, who threw their arms about the men and smothered them with kisses. A regular lineup queued in front of a handsome young captain who happened to be caught downtown in the crowd about 2.45 A.M.

As dawn began to break a large group of planes appeared over the Capital and began "buzzing" the city streets, in which red flags were appearing everywhere.

The strains of the Soviet national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King" mingled as the celebrants gave vent to their feelings in song.

FLIERS AID CHINESE IN CHIHKIANG GAINS

Japanese Line Is Broken 70 Miles East of Air Base—Foe Hunted in Burma

CHUNGKING, China, May 9 (AP)—Chinese troops, aided by their airmen, have broken through enemy lines and reached a point near Tungkow, seventy miles east of the threatened American air base at Chihkiang, the High Command announced tonight.

The fliers wiped out more than 2,000 Japanese fifty-five miles east of Chihkiang, which is 250 miles southeast of Chungking, and ground forces on the left wing of the counter-offensive reached a point twenty-five miles east of Paoking, main springboard of the enemy's drive. Another column was reported six miles northwest of Paoking.

The communications center of Wuyang, eighty miles southeast of Chihkiang, also was cleared in this fighting in western Hunan Province.

In Honan Province fighting continued west of Hsihsiakow where the High Command last night reported the Chinese killed more than 3,000 of 4,000 surrounded Japanese.

Chinese Break Jap Lines In Hunan

Chungking, May 9 (AP)—The Chinese high command announced today that Chinese forces in Hunan province launched a fresh general counteroffensive yesterday and broke through Japanese lines at several points.

The Chinese right wing reached positions south of the main highway to the American airbase city of Chihkiang near Tungkow, 70 miles away, the war bulletin said.

British Meet Stiff Fighting Near Pegu

Calcutta, May 9 (AP)—British 14th Army troops pursuing the Japanese east of Pegu toward the Thailand border scored advances yesterday against stiff enemy opposition, a Southeast Asia Command communiqué said today.

Other forces clearing up enemy remnants in an advance south from Prome have reached a point on the Prome-Rangoon Railway 96 miles from Rangoon, the communiqué added.

Boats loaded with Japanese attempting to escape eastward over the Irrawaddy River were reported ambushed and sunk 22 miles southsoutheast of Thayetmyo, which is 40 miles above Prome.

CALCUTTA, India, May 9 (AP)—Japanese opposition has become almost negligible everywhere in Burma, with Allied activity largely confined to hunting down enemy stragglers in bands of 25 to 200 as they drift eastward from the area of captured Rangoon.

British troops who seized the big Japanese supply base of Prome, 150 miles north-northwest of Rangoon, have in two days pushed southward to a point on the railway ninety-six miles from Rangoon.

Above Prome British forces ambushed and sank seven large boats filled with Japanese troops trying to escape down the Irrawaddy River.

East of Pegu, fifty miles northeast of Rangoon, Allied forces made further light advances "against stiff opposition" toward the border of Thailand, a communiqué said.

Allied bombers and fighters made widespread attacks on the disorganized enemy forces. Two planes were missing.

Briton Warns Against Postwar Air Spheres

Cairo, May 9 (AP)—Lord Swinton, British Minister of Civil Aviation, says there must be no national spheres of air influence after the war and that small nations as well as large must have a fair share of civil air traffic.

Lord Swinton told a press conference that "wrongfully handled aviation means subsidy as well as wasteful competition and ill will." He is en route to England from the South Africa Air Transport Conference.

YANK CASUALTIES TOTAL 16,425 IN OKINAWA BATTLE

Japanese Losses in Same Period Set at 36,535 by Nimitz.

U. S. TROOPS ADVANCE

Two Units of British Fleet Damaged by Enemy Air Raiders.

ERICKSON

GUAM, Thursday, May 10—(AP) American casualties on Okinawa total 16,425 through Monday, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said today.

Japanese casualties for the same period—beginning with D-day April 1 on Okinawa and a week earlier in the Kerama island group nearby—were 36,535, Nimitz announced earlier.

American casualties were 2,107 soldiers and 577 Marines killed; 10,402 soldiers and 2,800 Marines wounded, and 501 soldiers and 38 Marines missing.

Nimitz's last figure on American casualties, as of May 3, was 2,337 killed, 11,432 wounded and 514 missing—a total of 14,383. That figure was not broken down into Army and Marine casualties.

British Fleet Attacked

Two unidentified units of the British Pacific fleet suffered "minor damage" yesterday in a Japanese retaliatory air attack after the British sent carrier planes to assault Miyako and Ishigaki islands in the Sakishima group, of the southern Ryukyu chain. British pilots destroyed two planes in the air and one on the ground as they attacked airfield installations.

Supported by heavy naval and aerial bombardment, doughboys on Okinawa "continued to move south" yesterday, Nimitz said without any details, after having been held to no gains Tuesday because of adverse weather. Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported from Okinawa that heavy rains had bogged down vehicles.

Carrier aircraft, Marine Corsairs flying from Okinawa fields and ships' guns continued to pour their bombs, rockets and heavy shells into Japanese fortifications along the Naha-Yonabaru secondary defense line Tuesday. It was the fourth straight day battleships and cruisers had bombarded Nipponese strongpoints.

As previously reported by Haugland from Okinawa, Nimitz said "every gun ashore and every gun afloat which bore on the enemy on Okinawa fired one round simultaneously in recognition" of V-E day.

Strafe Airfield

Army Mustang fighters, presumably from Iwo Jima, in "substantial force," destroyed two Japanese planes and probably destroyed five more in low level strafing attacks on Kisarazu airfield and Tateyama Naval Air station southeast of Tokyo Tuesday. That was poor hunting, so next day they returned and destroyed a small cargo vessel and a locomotive and damaged a train and a number of small craft.

Army Liberators bombed airfields on Marcus and Truk islands yesterday. Liberators and Navy search privateers destroyed five planes on the ground and damaged three in low level attacks on Marcus. This attack ran into intense antiaircraft fire and two American planes were lost. Survivors of one were rescued. Liberators also bombed Truk the same day and Marine Corsairs and Hellcats attacked installations in the Palaus.

U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters yesterday reported the third straight day of heavy naval shelling of the Japanese pillbox and cave line on the southern Okinawa front.

Presence of the Third Marine amphibious corps on the Okinawa line, along with the 24th Army corps which has borne the brunt of the fighting there, also was disclosed in the communique, indicating a strengthening of the American position for greater offensive weight.

Giles Predicts Greater Blows

Lieut. Gen. Barney Giles, new commander of the Army Air Forces in the Pacific, predicted steadily increasing American air assaults on Japan.

Giles, former deputy commander of United States Army Air Forces under Gen. H. H. Arnold, said the famous B-17 Flying Fortresses, which figured so prominently in destroying German opposition, would supplement the B-29 Superfortresses in pounding Japan.

Many air wings will be transferred from Europe to the Pacific as complete units, but some of them will be re-equipped with the longer-ranged Superfortresses, Giles said.

Giles Succeeds Hale

The General promised an "elimination program" of bombing which will further reduce Nippon's aircraft production, already lowered through air attacks from an estimated 2,500 monthly production to 1,200 or 1,300.

High-explosive and incendiary bombing, such as has wrought heavy destruction on Japanese industrial centers in the last few months, will be continued in the stepped-up attack, Giles said.

U. S. Ship Losses Put at 26

GUAM, May 9 (AP).—Twenty-six minor United States Fleet units, ranging from ammunition ships to landing craft, have been sunk by Japanese aerial attacks during the Okinawa operation, "but these losses have not slowed up the Pacific campaign," Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said today.

"I don't think the results they (the Japanese) are achieving compensate for the losses they are taking," the admiral told correspondents at a press conference.

Some 3,000 enemy aircraft have been destroyed since the start of the Ryukyus campaign March 18.

Nimitz described Okinawa as the largest and closest "rung in the island ladder approach to Japan."

Japan's expenditure of its remaining air forces in persistent suicide attacks on American shipping off Okinawa is proof the Japanese regard Okinawa as highly important and are "making sacrifices to defeat us there," Nimitz said, adding, "I hope they are shooting the works and we find fewer planes at other places."

Guam, May 9 (AP)—Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported in today's communique that navy planes sank or damaged eighteen Japanese ships and smaller craft off Korea and Honshu and that Army Mitchells damaged another off Honshu.

For a third straight day, battleships and cruisers heavily bombarded Japanese fortifications in the southern Okinawa line Tuesday and fired hundreds of illuminating shells by night to "effectively reduce the enemy's attempts at infiltration."

Adverse weather held American ground forces to no substantial gains.

Vessels Listed

Japanese vessels sunk off Formosa by Navy search planes were a small freighter-transport and a large fleet oiler, totaling 14,000 tons. Three ships, totaling 3,500 tons, were damaged: one trawler, set afire, one small freighter-transport, fired and left listing, and one small freighter, left listing and dead in the water.

Off Honshu, the newly announced Fleet Air Wing 18 sank two small cargo ships, one large fishing craft and one coastal cargo vessel. It damaged four small cargo ships, four large fishing vessels and one coastal cargo vessel. It also shot down a four-engine flying boat.

Navy search bombers have bagged a large oiler or tanker every day of the last week in aerial blockade operations in Korean-Japanese waters.

Marine Units On Okinawa

Nimitz's communiqué disclosed that the 3d Marine Amphibious Corps is on the southern Okinawa line along with the 24th Army Corps. Today's disclosure indicates that the 6th Marine Division also has gone into the southern line.

Nimitz further reported the 2d Marine Aircraft Wing, using Okinawa airfields, destroyed 209 enemy aircraft through Monday. Leatherneck pilots began using the fields about a month ago.

Nimitz said there wasn't enough of the Japanese fleet left to oppose either the American or British Pacific fleets in a major action. He also said the British had been invaluable in protecting the southern Okinawa flank from sea or air attack from Formosa.

Okinawa Day Shelled.

Guam, Thursday, May 10 (A. P.).—Battlefield signs today pointed to the approach of a powerful American offensive to wind up the campaign on Japan's doorstep island of Okinawa. United States Pacific Fleet Headquarters yesterday reported the third straight day of heavy naval shelling of the Japanese pillbox and cave line on the southern Okinawa front. Presence of the Third Marine Amphibious Corps on the Okinawa line, along with the Twenty-fourth Army Corps which has borne the brunt of the fighting there, also was disclosed in the communique, indicating a strengthening of the American position for greater offensive weight.

United States battleships and cruisers laid heavy fire on Japanese strongpoints, destroying enemy artillery and mortar emplacements. Bad weather has checked ground operations thus week.

OKINAWA G. I. HOPES WE SOBER UP QUICKLY

Okinawa, May 9 (A. P.).—A driving rain made conditions muddy and miserable on this Japanese island yesterday when Pfc. Sam Helman of Jersey City, N. J., got the news that Germany had surrendered.

But Helman, who has been overseas fourteen months, grinned a little as he commented:

"I wouldn't blame folks at home if they got drunk today. But I hope they sober up tomorrow, as there's a lot of work still to be done."

400 SUPERFORTS HAMMER JAPAN

Bombers Blast Oil Storage Areas, Airfields on Honshu, Kyushu.

GUAM, Thursday, May 10—(AP) More than 400 Superfortresses—the largest B-29 fleet ever to attack Japan—bombed important naval oil storage areas on southeastern Honshu and airfields on Kyushu today.

Honshu is the main Japanese homeland island. Kyushu is the southern most of the home chain.

The daylight strike on Honshu hit the Tokuyama and Otake [illegible] storage and manufacturing areas on the inland sea with the objective of destroying a major source of Japan's vital supply of aviation fuel.

Four separate targets were bombed in this first raid on oil supply areas of Honshu. Three were near the town of Tokuyama, 48 miles [illegible]thwest of Kure on the inland sea. The other was the big Toku[illegible]ma naval fueling station.

Also hit was the Tokuyama synthetic fuel factory, near the naval fueling station. This is considered the Japanese army's leading army fueling center. The two were regarded as a single target.

The Otaka oil refinery—one of the largest in Japan—was hit. Otake is 27 miles northeast of Tokuyama.

B-29's Bag Over 300 Jap Planes

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Superfortresses have destroyed more than 300 Japanese planes during the last three weeks in raids upon seventeen enemy airfields within range of American forces on Okinawa, the War Department reported today.

Striking at the rate of once every 36 hours, the Marianas-based B-29's have also wrecked or seriously damaged repair and supply facilities at the fields on Kyushu and Shikoku islands.

Photographs show, the Army said, that hangars, repair shops, supply and storage buildings and barracks have been destroyed. Large holes also have been blown in runways, making them temporarily useless.

U. S. TROOPS LAND ON SAMAL ISLAND

Jap Troops Fight Fiercely Near Davao City on Mindanao.

MANILA, Thursday, May 10.—(AP) Samal island in Davao Gulf was invaded and virtually cleared by the 24th Infantry division Tuesday while on the Mindanao mainland the Japanese near Davao City fought bitterly, apparently intent on a bloody stand.

The invasion of Tarakan island, off Borneo, neared completion as Australian and Dutch troops seized Api hill and closed in an the Djoeata oil field.

Tarakan City, in the middle of the rich Pamoesian oil field was totally in Allied hands. Derricks had been destroyed but the wells appeared salvagable.

Elements of Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's 26th division occupied Samal island to protect the flank during the drive up the Western coast of Davao gulf. The landing was unopposed and few, if any, Japanese, were believed on the island.

Samal, about 22 miles long and 10 wide, is the main island inside spacious Davao gulf.

This was announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who reported that on the Mindanao mainland a bridgehead had been established across the Talomo river north of Mintal in a drive against firm enemy positions.

One American battalion has been virtually isolated by Japanese penetration of Yank lines in this sector.

"Strong pressure is being exerted on enemy positions in the Talomo river area," MacArthur reported.

Inland on Mindanao, one column of the 31st division advanced seven miles eastward from Kibawe while another, progressing northward, engaged an enemy force near the southern Maramag airstrip.

Bombers and fighters hit Judat airdrome and important installations at Brunei bay, Miri and Bandjermason on the Borneo mainland. Three coastal ships were sunk and there was widespread destruction to shipyards and runways.

The entire waterfront at Labaun island, offshore, was left ablaze. Labaun is off the northwest coast of Borneo.

A Japanese destroyer, a subchaser and two freighters were sunk as heavy bombers ranged from Sumatra to Shanghai and into the north China sea. Fortifications and communications on Hainan island were severely pounded.

In the northern Luzon ground fighting, four infantry divisions carried on mopping-up operations in the Benguet and Caraballo mountains. Three of the divisions are menacing the bitterly-defended Balete Pass.

Japanese forces on Mindanao have changed from a strategy of general retreat and turned to fight in the Davao sector.

In the first strong opposition offered since General Woodruff's 24th Division landed on the Moro Gulf east coast eighteen days ago and pushed 140 miles eastward to Davao City, the Japanese punched through thin Yank lines, establishing defense positions and opened up with artillery.

One American battalion was almost isolated near Mintal town, in the hills just west of Davao. A few reinforcements reached the battalion via an isolated trail.

31st Division Advances

The Japanese defense line ran from near the Libby airdrome northeastward across the Talomo River. The airfield is about 12 miles southwest and the river 9 miles southwest of Davao. The Yank hold on the airdrome was tenuous under Japanese shelling.

Mindanao Japs Nearly Cut Off Yank Unit

Manila, May 9 (AP)—Japanese troops, in their first show of strength on Mindanao since the invasion April 17, penetrated American lines near captured Davao City and virtually isolated one Yank battalion, field dispatches reported today.

This battalion, which had seized the village of Mintal, two miles west of Davao City, was being reached by a few American reinforcements sent over a little-used trail, wrote Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz.

Japanese artillery shelled American positions at Libby airfield about 1 mile south of Mintal. The Yank hold on the airdrome was tenuous.

First Sign Of Fight

This was the first indication of a fight on Mindanao since Maj. Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff's 24th Division landed on Moro Gulf and raced 140 miles overland to Davao City in 17 days. The original Mindanao garrison was an estimated 50,000 Japanese troops.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué today said the Americans on Mindanao, second largest island in the Philippines, "continue to crowd the enemy into difficult hill country largely cut off from bases of supply."

Maj. Gen. Clarence Martin's 31st Division was moving up central Mindanao, headed for the enemy's air center at Valencia.

On Tarakan Island, off Borneo, Australian and Dutch troops expanded their holdings north and east of Tarakan City and captured a hurriedly evacuated Japanese headquarters.

Near Big Oil Field

They were within 2 miles of the Djoeata oil field, second largest on the island. Medium bombers and fighters, flying from the captured Tarakan airfield, gave close support.

Japan's Domei news agency broadcast a communiqué from Japanese Army headquarters in Borneo, dated May 7, saying that Tarakan's invaders had suffered "at least 1,050 casualties in ground fighting alone" since their landing May 1. The broadcast indicated pre-invasion casualties at sea in addition. There was no confirmation of these claims.

[In a propaganda dispatch beamed to America, Domei claimed that Japanese Marines defending United States-captured Davao, had inflicted 1,750 casualties since May 1.

[Also claimed in the broadcast, recorded in San Francisco, was destruction of 60 American tanks, vehicles and artillery pieces.]

37th At Balete Pass

Fast-moving 37th Infantry Division was now fighting alongside the 32d and 25th Divisions at Balete Pass, stubbornly-contested sector on northern Luzon. The 37th and 25th have flanked the important pass which leads into the extensive Cagayan Valley.

Formosa took a 300-ton pounding from 170 heavy, medium and fighter bombers which concentrated on air bases, factories, rail installations and warehouses from Keelung in the north to Koshun in the south. Smoke rose 7,000 feet from the vast area of devastation.

Bilibid Cleaned Up For Jap Inmates

Manila, May 9 (AP)—In Manila's old Bilibid Penitentiary, where the brutal Japanese military police tortured imprisoned Americans, the ancient cells are now occupied by Japanese, Formosans, collaborationists, Germans and other enemy aliens.

But the cells have been scrubbed and disinfected—it smells like a hospital—in sharp contrast to the filthy, vermin-ridden holes they were when the Japanese threw American prisoners into them.

Where once twenty Americans were forced to crouch for hours in a cell, each now houses two or three Japanese, Formosans and other prisoners taken in by American military authorities. There are several hundreds of these prisoners.

Germans occupy one section of the old prison which dates back to Spanish sovereignty. Just before the war the penitentiary was such an ancient, filthy hole that the Commonwealth Government abandoned it and opened a new prison farm. The Japanese, however, reopened it soon after the occupation of Manila and threw in several thousand American military prisoners and civilians.

The cell house where the Japanese tied the thumbs of prisoners together, then attached the ropes to iron rings so that a man could barely touch the floor with his toes, is now a storage house. But the rings still are there.

Outside in the prison yard is another bitter memory — crosses marking row on row of Americans who died in cells and where human filth was left unswept by the foe.

88 Lost With Belgian Ship

Port Elizabeth, Cape of Good Hope, May 9 (AP) — The Belgian steamer Astrida sank in a gale 75 miles off Port Elizabeth March 19 with the loss of 88 lives, it was disclosed today. Harbor tugs and British warship rescued 29 persons who clung to wreckage.

Arnold Thinks Japs Will Be Softer

San Juan, May 9 (A. P.).—Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Forces, passing through Puerto Rico early this week en route to the United States from Europe, declared: "We do not expect Japan to stand up under the weight of our air forces as well as Germany.

"We don't believe the Japanese have the ingenuity to put their industries underground or decentralize them as the Germans did," he added.

"The sooner we get them (United States [illegible] Forces) out to the Pacific, t[illegible]oner the war will be over." G[illegible]rnold said.

New York Flyer In R. C. A. F. Is Safe

Ottawa, May 9 (A. P.).—The Royal Canadian Air Force announced today that among previously reported prisoners of war now safe in Allied hands, is: Warrant Officer Melvin Howard Treanor; Mother, Mrs. F. Treanor, Knickerbocker Hospital, New York city. The R. C. A. F. also announced that Flying Officer Pierre Leopold Soesman, whose father lives at 160 Central Park South, New York city, is presumed dead. He previously was reported missing.

RIOTS IN HALIFAX BRING OUT TROOPS

Ottawa, Ont., May 9 (A. P.).—The military authorities have moved 1,000 troops to a point near Halifax to take care of any further contingencies arising from peace riots which have caused widespread damage in the Nova Scotian capital, it was learned here today.

A sudden outburst of "victory riots" in Halifax and in two other Nova Scotia towns last night caused damage of more than $1,000,000 unofficial sources estimated today.

Two buildings were set afire and gutted in Halifax, the entire business section was smashed and looted, and dozens of persons were injured.

Scarcely a window was intact in the city's business section. Thousands of dollars worth of goods and an uncounted amount of liquor and beer were looted from shattered stores.

In Kentville, a mob of 1,000 soldiers and civilians raided the liquor store. Troops from nearby Aldershot Camp dispersed them.

In Sydney, sailors and civilians raided a branch of the Nova Scotia Liquor Commission.

Victory Riots Caused Halifax $5,000,000 Loss, Two Lives

Halifax, May 9 (AP)—Halifax was under heavy military and civilian police guard tonight as authorities expressed apprehension of a new outbreak of victory riots that cost two lives and damage unofficially estimated at more than $5,000,000.

The military command reported to defense headquarters that it fears a renewal of the disturbances because vast quantities of liquor, looted from smashed stores Monday night and Tuesday, were still in the hands of the lawless elements.

Service police patrols were increased by the hundreds. Armed civilian police were at vantage points and 1,000 picked troops were brought into the city. The 8 P.M. curfew imposed last night remained in force and Mayor Alan Butler said "the danger is not yet past."

Several thousand naval personnel, accused of starting the rioting and looting, were confined to their barracks, as were army and air force personnel.

Dead were an unidentified sailor, whose demise was attributed to acute alcoholism, and an unidentified naval officer whose body was found on the Dalhousie University campus. The cause of the officer's death had not been determined. Nine persons received hospital treatment for injuries suffered in the street demonstrations and another dozen received emergency treatment.

MOLOTOV GOES TO MOSCOW FOR POLISH TALKS

Soviet Commissar Leaves San Francisco for Home by Plane.

SEIZED LANDS STILL ISSUE

U. S. Seeks Accord on Control of Bases at Any Point Vital to American Security.

San Francisco, May 9 (A. P.).—Soviet Commissar V. M. Molotov left the United Nations conference today for Moscow, where negotiations for a broadened Warsaw Government may be resumed.

The plane of the Russian Foreign Commissar took off from Hamilton Field, an Army airfield north of San Francisco, a few minutes after 10 A. M. Pacific war time.

Before the day is over, the British and United States members of the three-power commission on Poland also are departing for the Soviet capital.

Accord Sought on Lands.

The United States is seeking an agreement at the conference on control of lands seized in both world wars which will allow the Army and Navy to set up bases at any point in the world considered vital to American security.

The question involved—labeled here one of trusteeship of territory seized from the enemy, mandated after the first world war, or incapable of self-government—is still a point of controversy between the Big Five Powers. It is one of the two most critical issues remaining before the United Nations' conference.

The other issue is how to dovetail the Pan-American security system, recently worked out at Mexico City, into the security council of the proposed world organization.

U. S. Delegation Split.

The American delegation is sharply divided on this question at the moment. Some members favor giving the Pan-American set-up no special treatment, but strong opinion appears to be developing for a proposal that the council be given supreme authority over the Pan-American system, but be instructed to delegate to it the power to enforce peace in strictly regional disputes in this hemisphere.

President Truman may have to make the final decision.

Suspension Interpreted

The suspension of negotiations, which the United States and Britain announced after the Russians arrested sixteen leaders of the Polish underground, was interpreted in some diplomatic quarters to apply only to San Francisco, making possible reopening of the talks in the Soviet capital.

The fundamental obstacle to establishment of a new Polish Government was understood to be a difference between Russian and Anglo-American interpretation of the Roosevelt - Churchill - Stalin agreement reached at Yalta for broadening the Warsaw provisional government.

Russians' Demand

The Russians insisted that the three-power commission should meet first with the Soviet-recognized Polish Government and build a new regime around that group, while the Americans and British held that they should start anew, meeting with representatives of all Polish factions.

After the Yalta conference, it was learned, the United States and Britain drew up three lists of possible Polish governments, lettered A, B and C, in order of preference.

Jurists Propose World Court Sit At the Hague

Tribunal of 15 Members Serving for Nine Years Urged at San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (AP).—The United Nations Conference committee on a world court recommended today that the new tribunal sit at The Hague, Holland, and that there be fifteen members on the bench.

The chairman, Foreign Minister Manuel Gallagher of Peru, made the announcement, and told a news conference it was not determined whether there should be continuation of the old world court or creation of an entirely new one. In the latter case, only United Nations would be original members, and provision would be made for the eventual admission of neutrals.

Recommendations of the committee are subject to approval of one of the conference's four commissions, and eventually by the full conference.

Among the recommendations:

That provision be made for meetings elsewhere than at The Hague when deemed advisable.

That justices be chosen for nine-year terms, one-third of the bench being renewed every three years; that nine of the fifteen members should constitute a quorum.

Mr. Gallagher told reporters that the committee postponed consideration of the question whether the court should have compulsory jurisdiction.

He expressed the personal feeling that the court's findings should be enforceable "in the same manner as a person's property may be attached in order to enforce payment of debt."

A reporter asked whether an individual could bring action before the court, in case a national abrogated human rights guaranteed under the charter of the proposed world organization. Mr. Gallagher replied he believed not, because it would not be within the competence of the international tribune to set aside or require the modification of domestic laws.

'FORUM' PROPOSED TO RETAIN PEACE

United Nations Committee Approves Vandenberg Plan, 23 to 3.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9—(AP) A United Nations conference committee voted tonight to let an international assembly recommend measures for "peaceful adjustment of any situation" likely to impair the welfare of friendly relations among nations.

This was the first major action of any conference working group. It still must be ratified by a Conference commission and the full Conference itself.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), American delegate and author of the proposal, said the vote was 23 to 3 with 2 nations present not balloting.

Action came when knotty issues over international trusteeships and regional security systems were in the forefront of conference problems. The Polish issue, long troublesome to delegates trying to draw up a world charter, shifted toward London, Washington and Moscow.

The power to review and make recommendations on any questions which might disturb international amity, regardless of origin, would be given to an all-nation general assembly in the proposed world organization under the plan sponsored by Vandenberg.

'Town Meeting of World'

"It makes the assembly the town meeting of the world of tomorrow," Vandenberg told reporters. "It creates a forum in which any problem involving general welfare and friendly relations among nations can be explored and recommendations made.

"Without it there would have been no provision for review of all the tremendous problems growing out of this war."

Highly elated, Vandenberg said: "In my mind this is the most important thing in the whole world charter."

His proposition previously had been approved by the four nations sponsoring the conference—China, Britain, Russia and the United States. He said he did not recall what nations voted against it in committee.

But Vandenberg said no one was against the general principles, only against some of the details of procedure.

Controversy Remains

A British-American-Russian controversy over revamping Poland's government still is going full-tilt. But it faded from the San Francisco scene with the departure for Moscow of Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov.

Here at the Golden Gate, British and American delegations at a conference trying to draft a charter for keeping the world at peace are having their differences over international guardianships for areas seized from the enemy in this war and the last one.

But dozens of nations are jumping into an even broader dispute over whether a world organization should have complete power to settle localized threats to peace or whether regional groups of nations should handle them.

On that, the American delegation may have to seek guidance from President Truman. What worries the Americans is that the United States is committed to the act of Chapultepec, under which the American Republics say they will take care of any threats to peace in this hemisphere — with armed force, if necessary.

Yet they are reluctant to see a whole series of such regional peace-enforcement agencies set up on a basis that would weaken the effectiveness of a world agency in dealing with conditions jeopardizing peace.

American delegates were toying tentatively tonight with compromise. One of them was along lines of an Australian proposal to cancel the power of a single big nation to block regional efforts to adjust international disputes.

Delegates Get Stamps as Gift

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (AP)—Secretary Stettinius has given stamp collectors among the conference delegates a jump on competitors. He sent to each delegate a bound book containing all recent United States stamps, including the $5 stamp which bears the likeness of Calvin Coolidge.

Parley Gets Jewish Appeal

Labor Committee Asks for Aid for War Victims in Europe

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (AP).—The Jewish Labor Committee, stating that it spoke for 50,000 men and women in the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, asked the United Nations conference today to strive for rapid reconstruction of Jewish life in devastated Europe. It asked, too, that anti-racial and anti-religious propaganda be classified as criminal.

The request was in the form of a memorandum to Alger Hiss, secretary general of the conference. It was presented by Adolf Held, chairman of the Jewish Labor Committee. David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, is treasurer.

Vandenberg Will Back World Charter in Senate

He and Connally Express Hopes It Will Be Ratified

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (AP).—Senators Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, and Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, both delegates to the United Nations conference, expressed hopes tonight that th Senate can accept readily the world charter being drafted at the conference.

Senator Vandenberg told reporters he hopes not only to support the "net result" of the San Francisco meeting but to assist "in the creation of the necessary two-thirds Senate vote to ratify it."

As chairman of the Republican Senatorial conference, Senator Vandenberg is influential among his minority colleagues on international proposals.

Senator Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, later told a radio audience that the United States delegation to the conference is "exerting every effort to reach agreement on a world organization which will meet with Senate approval."

Saar Valley Coal For France?

San Francisco, May 9 (AP)—The major Allies were reported in French circles tonight to have agreed that the future use of the Saar Valley coal mines shall be entirely in French hands.

This rich region was under a League of Nations mandate until a plebiscite gave it to the Nazis. Its mines once furnished one third of France's coal supply.

The Saar matter is not one officially for the United Nations conference, but Rene Pleven, French minister of finance, was said to have talked it over with other Allied leaders in unofficial meetings here.

Frenchmen expect to get 15,000,000 tons of coal yearly from the Saar, thus helping to prevent future suffering such as millions in France underwent last winter.

3,100,000 MEN TO MOVE OUT OF EUROPE THIS YEAR

Majority of Soldiers to Be Brought to U.S. for Redeployment.

MANY GO TO PACIFIC

45,000 Who Had Been Prisoners of Nazis Come Home This Month.

WASHINGTON, May 9 — (AP) Approximately 2,837,000 troops will be moved out of Europe within nine months, the Army disclosed today.

Within 12 months, the Army expects to have out of Europe 3,100,000 troops, leaving only an occupation force estimated at 400,000.

Many to Go to Pacific

The majority of these soldiers will come to the United States for redeployment to the Pacific area or for discharge from the Army. The others will be routed direct to the Pacific.

About 45,000 soldiers, including many who have been prisoners of the Germans, will be returned to this country by air and surface ships during this month.

Outlines Schedule

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Gross, chief of the Army Transporation corps, outlined at a news conference this schedule for the movement of troops from the European and Mediterranean theaters:

Approximately 845,000 men or an average of slightly more than 280,000 a month, will be withdrawn during the first three months following V-E day.

Approximately 1,185,000, or an average of 395,000 a month, will be moved out during the second three months.

About 807,000, or 269,000 a month, will be shifted during the third three months.

After that, the redeployment will be carried on until only the occupation force of some 400,000 is left. Gross said that all of those troops who are destined to be brought out under the redeployment program should leave Europe within a year.

After the last World war it required 10 months to evacuate 2,000,000 troops.

U. S. troops ships not required in the Pacific, many British troops ships, more than 400 converted cargo ships and 800 transport planes will be used to transport the troops. Gross said that by using captured enemy passenger ships the movement of troops may be speeded up by as much as 60,000 men during the second three months of the redeployment and by 117,000 men during the third quarter.

Gen Brehon Somervell, chief of Army Service forces, told the news conference that once the troops arrive in this country they will be sent to 22 Army personnel centers distributed throughout the United States. Wherever possible, the soldiers will be sent to the personnel center closest to their home.

Within a week after arriving in this country, Somervell estimated, the soldiers should reach home for furlough, or permanent release, as the case may be. Furloughed men, on completion of their leaves, will go back to the personnel centers, will be formed into groups and sent to assembly points for reassignments and special training.

Harsh Peace for Germany Urged by Congressmen

Group Back From Europe Also Recommends Death to Gestapo Agents.

WASHINGTON, May 9 — (AP) A harsh peace for Germany and death to Gestapo agents and Storm troopers are recommendations of congressmen just returned from viewing German concentration camps and devastated battle areas.

The 12-man delegation, which made the tour at the invitation of General Eisenhower, told War Secretary Stimson and General Marshall what they had seen in an hour and a half conference today.

Senator Barkley (D.-Ky.) told reporters the group had nothing to say about the War department conversation in advance of a report to Congress, but several made known their personal feelings.

Rep. Isac (D-Calif.), a prisoner of Germany and a winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor in the First World war, told reporters he is convinced that the German people must be subjected to harsh terms or they may decide "war is a good thing after all."

Would Take Properties

The Californian advocated taking away goods and properties of the Germans and distributing them to the peoples whose own farms and homes were stripped by the Nazi armies.

"When they conquered they just told these peoples 'you'll have to get along on what we left you.' That's what we should tell them now."

Izac said his own experience prepared him for some instances of brutality in the prison camps, but what the party found defied description.

Americans must look on German prison camps as evidence of how ruthless their enemy in the next war may be, declared Rep. Mott (R.-Ore.).

"The prison camp system unquestionably was a carefully organized scheme to exterminate all enemies of Nazism," he told a reporter.

"If England or America had been overrun, our fate also would have been just what Germany wanted it to be."

Mott said the German people understand the war is lost but show no humiliation, no remorse.

"Worse of all," he said, "are the youngsters of 10, 12 or 14 years. They are arrogant, supercilious. They stand alongside the road spitting at their conquerors, at the cars as they pass. It is this generation upon which Germany must build for the future and it is a foundation which must, itself, be entirely rebuilt, mentally."

Allied nations should permit the German people to "suffer just a little" and the German Gestapo and Storm troopers should be executed for indescribable atrocities, said Rep. Short (R-Mo.).

30 Million Homeless

"Germany's misery has just begun," Short told a reporter. "She has been living off the loot of other nations up to now. Some 30,000,000 Germans have been blasted out of their homes and are wandering Nomads.

"But after you see all of the suffering and misery you don't waste any sympathy on them. I'm in favor of letting them suffer just a little."

He added belief that the Gestapo, which he estimated at 400,000 men and the Storm troopers, which had a strength of 4,000,000, should be held guilty automatically.

"But we cannot lose our heads," Short cautioned. "We must be sure we get the guilty ones. And it is going to be hard because they have new clothes and new names."

The horror in three concentration camps visited, the Missourian declared, can not be described in words.

"You have to smell it," he said.

The very membership of a German in either the Gestapo or Storm troops organizations, in the opinion of Rep. Thomason (D-Tex.), should be sufficient evidence of his guilt on charges of murder.

Jap Peace Bid Seen Invited

Washington, May 9 (AP)—President Truman's statement on unconditional surrender for Japan was widely viewed in Congress today as easing the way for the Japanese to end their struggle. Some legislators interpreted it, too, as lending credence to rumors of peace overtures from Tokyo.

Senator Johnson (D., Col.), said he regarded it as "confirmation" of peace feeler reports. "But you can expect peace overtures at all times in war," he commented to reporters. "They are a part of psychological warfare."

O'Mahoney Statement

Similarly, Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said he would "not be surprised" if there have been peace feelers, adding:

"I think there is a distinct possibility the Japanese will not insist upon destruction of Japan to the extent Hitler insisted upon the destruction of Germany."

The President's statement issued along with his V-E proclamation yesterday reiterated this country's insistence of unconditional surrender by the Japanese military and naval forces. But Mr. Truman then asked what unconditional surrender means for the Japanese people and supplied this answer:

"It means the end of the war.

Other Factors

"It means the termination of the influence of the military leaders who have brought Japan to the present brink of disaster.

"It means provision for the return of soldiers and sailors to their families, their farms, their jobs.

"It means not prolonging the present agony and suffering of the Japanese in the vain hope of victory.

"Unconditional surrender does not mean the extermination or enslavement of the Japanese people."

Important, Says Taft

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) called this a "tremendously important addition to the unconditional surrender formula."

He viewed it as meaning "we will insist upon complete victory," but as stating "the conditions of unconditional surrender, namely that the farms and jobs of the Japanese will not be destroyed and that their soldiers and sailors will be allowed to return thereto."

Senator Hart (R., Conn.), a former admiral who has fought the Japanese, commented:

"I am delighted that the President issued that statement. I have nothing to add to it and I would not change it."

TRUMAN SIGNS BILL EXTENDING DRAFT ONE YEAR

MAY 10 1945

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP) President Truman today signed into law the bill extending the Selective Service act one year, and it was officially announced that draft calls "will continue to be large."

The latter announcement came from the Office of War Mobilization, which said:

Few Under 30 to be Deferred

"Deferments for men under 30 will continue to be relatively few and will become fewer as more veterans return to industry and the farms."

President Truman, in signing the draft law extension, made plain he would have vetoed, if he could, a section forbidding the use of 18-year-olds in combat without six months training. He objected that this "places added restrictions on the War and Navy departments in their management of the fighting forces."

"I signed the legislation only because the immediate extension of the Selective Service act is of compelling necessity in the continuance of military operations against Japan," he said in a statement.

The bill extends the draft act for 12 months beyond May 15, 1945, or until the end of the Pacific war, whichever comes sooner.

In a report on "phase two" of the war, Fred M. Vinson, head of the Office of War Mobilization, said the exact size of the induction calls ahead cannot be calculated at this time.

Release of men with long and hard service, will require a higher level of calls because of the desire to spread the burden of military service among the largest possible proportion of the population.

He said that almost every soldier in this country, except those who have already been overseas or who are physically disqualified, already is earmarked for foreign service.

At the present time, Vinson's report continued, about 1,400,000 are in training to go overseas. However, "only part of the needs can be met from the ranks now in the United States."

This means, he said, large numbers of troops will go direct from the European theater to the Pacific.

To Have Furloughs

Other troops will go to the Pacific by way of United States and have opportunities for furloughs before proceeding to their new destination. More than half of those to be transferred, including the great bulk of the combat units, will be allowed to come home first Demobilibation of the 1,300,000 men the Army expects to release during the coming year, he said "will begin promptly," but the Navy does not plan to demobilize until Japan has been defeated.

"The soldiers to be released through the cut in the size of the Army will be selected from among fathers and those who have had the most extended and arduous service," Vinson said. "It is the Army's intention to release additional men by holding Selective Service calls at a level above that necessary to replace men lost through battle and normal attrition."

Vinson said that the release of men because of sickness, wounds, age and other factors, plus those made through the cut in the strength of the Army and the excess of draft calls over replacement needs, "will result in release from the Army during the next year of about 2,000,000 officers and men."

He said that adjusted service rating scores, based on time in the Army, time overseas, combat credit and parenthood would form the basis upon which demobilization will proceed.

To mount the final phases of the war against Japan and occupy conquered territories, the Army plans to maintain the total force of 6,968,000 for a year and the Navy to maintain a authorized strength of 3,389,000, beginning June 30.

House Votes Bill Seeking To Share in Treaty-Making

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP) The House made an apparently futile gesture today to share with the Senate in treaty-making powers.

It passed and sent to the Senate —now the exclusive treaty body and not included to yield any of that exclusivity—a resolution to submit to the states a constitutional amendment requiring ratification by a majority of both the Senate and the House before any treaty can become operative.

At present, a two thirds vote of the Senate is required.

The proposed amendment, to become effective, must be approved by a two-thirds Senate vote and by the Legislatures of 36 states.

Even ardent backers of the resolution acknowledged privately the outlook for such action before treaties growing out of the war are acted on is not bright.

The Senate Judiciary committee already has announced it will consider no constitutional amendment until after the war.

The vote by which the House expressed its hopes after four days of debate was 288 to 88, all but three of the opponents being Republicans. Voting for the resolution were 196 Democrats, 90 Republicans, one Progressive and one American-Labor member.

Backers of the proposal contended the framers of the constitution inserted the Senate exclusivity and two-thirds requirements because of jealousies between the original states. These jealousies, they argued, no longer exist.

They assailed the two-thirds Senate rule as undemocratic, declaring that in matters involving international affairs, the representatives of the people should have an equal voice with the Senate, which they contended was a body representing the states rather than the people.

"The record of the Senate in handling treaties of peace is long and it is disturbingly bad," the House Judiciary committee said in approving the resolution.

U. S. Chamber Backs Proposal To Cut Tariffs

House Hearing Is Told Low Trade Barriers Are Vital for Nation's Prosperity

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP). — The United States Chamber of Commerce gave Congress its views today on pending international legislation, indorsing the Administration's proposal for additional tariff-cutting power but approving only a part of the Bretton Woods agreements.

Representatives of the chamber appeared simultaneously before the House Ways and Means Committee, on tariffs, and the Banking Committee, on Bretton Woods.

Clark H. Minor, of New York, speaking for Eric Johnston, chamber president, who is ill, said the business organization's directors had approved unanimously the bill extending the reciprocal trade act for three years with an amendment giving the President broad new authority to cut duties in trade agreements with other nations.

A representative of the Congress of Industrial Organizations followed Mr. Minor before the committee, also indorsing the proposal.

John J. Rowe, Cincinnati, banker, told the Banking Committee the chamber approves the Bretton Woods proposal for a $10,000,000,000 world bank for reconstruction and development loans, but recommends deferment of action on a separate international currency stabilization fund.

Administration men conceded they were doubtful about their prospects of winning the tariff and Bretton Woods battles. It appeared a majority of the Ways and Means group might reject the proposal to give the President additional tariff-cutting powers, and the Banking Committee may rewrite the Bretton Woods documents.

Mr. Minor, in submitting the chamber's plea for the tariff bill, said, "I am a Republican who has learned through bitter experience that if we want prosperity and full employment with a rising standard of living we have to co-operate with other nations in promoting the exchange of goods and services."

PACIFIC IS JOB FOR DOUGHBOYS

MAY 10 1945

Tank Warfare Unlikely in Jap Islands.

Washington, May 9 (A. P.).—The tank carried the load in the European war; in the Pacific, it will be the doughboy and his bayonet. That is the Army's view of the task ahead.

War Department authorities turning immediately from the jubilance of V-E day to the grim business of eliminating the Japanese, informally sized up the problem this way:

Europe was tank country, for such end-run generals as Patton, Hodges and Simpson, with wide flanking movements, big pincers operations and lightning stabs.

The Pacific is totally different. The home islands of Japan do not lend themselves to tank warfare. It is questionable whether even the broad plains of China, do.

The principal tank weapon against the Japanese will be—in fact, already is—the deadly flame-thrower on wheels. It has turned out to be the best disintegrator of pill boxes after anti-tank guns are knocked out.

Generals Out of Work.

But in a campaign where the terrain is overcome by the yard instead of by the mile, it is the foot-slogging doughboy with his rifle and bayonet who must carry the burden.

The wide difference in the type of warfare ahead also brings up the question of what jobs await those tank generals who fought themselves out of a job in Europe. There has been no sign yet of future assignments for supreme Allied Commander Eisenhower, Gen. Bradley or the Patton-Hodges-Simpson trio.

There has been speculation that the Pacific team would be a three-way affair at the top with Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell—now Army Ground Forces Commander—driving into China; Gen. MacArthur into Japan, and Admiral Nimitz providing the Navy transport and air cover. There may be places directly beneath them for the successful European generals, including perhaps Britain's Field Marshal Montgomery.

CENSOR'S CODE RELAXED A BIT

Price Will Issue New Press Instructions.

Washington, May 9 (A. P.).—News censorship will continue under relaxed restrictions resulting from the end of the European war.

Censorship Director Byron Price last night announced elimination or modification of several sections of the voluntary code that has governed publication of war news in the United States since January 15, 1942. The code soon will be rewritten in shorter form.

Basic military information still is subject to authorization by competent authorities. Price said: "The end of German resistance alters security requirements materially although it by no means erases the need for, or importance of, voluntary censorship."

Provisions dealing with information on attacks by air, weather reports and sabotage were eliminated. Rules on publication of information about war prisoners, internees and civilian prisoners were relaxed to a prohibition against "information as to arrival, movements, confinement or identity of military prisoners from war zones" unless given out by competent authority.

Some Weapons on List.

The regulation on damage caused in the United States by enemy action was revised but still prohibits use of "information about actual or impending enemy attacks on the continental United States."

Prohibitions against publication of information on war material production were relaxed to cover only secret or new weapons, designs, formulas, processes or experiments, to material used for "specialized military operations" and to actual movement or transportation of war material.

The identification and location of all American military units in Europe now may be published up to and including May 8. Later movements require appropriate authority.

sioner of internal revenue for the past several months, will replace McReynolds when the latter retires June 1, after nearly 40 years in Government service, climaxed by his work as one of the late President Roosevelt's administrative assistants.

It's O.K. To Tell Where Truman Is

MAY 10 1945

Washington, May 9 (AP)—Wartime censorship restrictions on the whereabouts of the President were removed tonight by Byron Price, censorship director, as a consequence of victory in Europe.

Editors and broadcasters were notified that the only remaining restrictions will be on advance information on routes, times and methods of travel used by the President. Similar restrictions were requested in prewar times by the Secret Service, charged with guarding the Chief Executive's safety.

Since the war began, secrecy has been imposed as to the President's whereabouts, except when specifically authorized. News of the late President Roosevelt's travels was often withheld until he reached his destinations, and in some cases until he returned home, although he frequently was seen by thousands of persons while en route.

Truman Appoints Schoeneman As Administrative Assistant

Washington, May 9 (AP)—President Truman today appointed George Jeremiah Schoeneman, of Rhode Island, as one of his six $10,000-a-year administrative assistants.

The White House announced Schoeneman will succeed William H. McReynolds as assistant in the post of liaison officer for personnel management.

WIDOW BACKS WILSON CREDO

MAY 10 1945

Notes Mrs. McAdoo's Version Of Deathbed Statement

Washington, May 9 (AP) — Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, in a rare public statement, today said her husband fervently desired the American people to join the League of Nations "from their own convictions"—and not just because he recommended such membership.

The widow of the World War I President personally telephoned the Associated Press to dictate the following statement:

I have just read in the Times Herald, Washington, D.C., May 9, 1945, the following statement given the United Press:

"San Francisco, May 8 (UP)—Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, daughter of former President Woodrow Wilson, revealed a 21-year-old family secret today. She disclosed that her father on his deathbed said: 'It was right that the United States did not join the League of Nations.'

What Wilson Did Say

"Woodrow Wilson would never have made such a statement, for it would have reversed everything in his nature, and contradicted his life's struggle for the betterment of all peoples and all nations of the world.

"What he did say to me, and to many of his friends who have often spoken of it since was—perhaps it was better that the American people did not join the League of Nations just to follow him, but that they join from their own convictions that they could not stay out; and that conviction would come through tragic loss of young lives, for in another generation the World War would be followed by another war much more terrible.

Prophecy Comes True

"This prophecy has been startlingly realized, which the conference in San Francisco now confirms.

"What the deliberations may evolve in a world organization for peace may not be called the League of Nations, but it will be based on the same principles for which Woodrow Wilson gave his life.

"Edith Bolling Wilson
"(Mrs. Woodrow Wilson)."

Eleanor Wilson McAdoo is a daughter of President Wilson by his first marriage. Mrs. Edith Bolling Wilson was the late President's second wife.

Mrs. McAdoo Clarifies Statement

San Francisco, May 9 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, daughter of the World War I President, said today she and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the President's second wife, were in agreement on Mr. Wilson's last opinions on the League of Nations.

She asserted that "Mrs. Wilson's statement says the same thing I did. Since it is obvious that she and I are both telling the same story, I wonder whether she had the opportunity to read the whole story I put out."

Mrs. McAdoo's statement ascribed these remarks to her father, made to her sister Margaret:

"If we had joined the League when I asked for it, it would have been a great personal victory. But it would not have worked because deep down in their hearts the American people didn't really believe in it.

"The time will come when this country will join such a league because it will know it has to be, and then, and then only, will it work."

Suribachi Flag-Raising Photo Wanted For Navy

Washington, May 9 (AP) — The House passed and sent to the Senate today a bill directing the Navy Department to acquire exclusive use to and ownership of the photograph showing the raising of the American flag atop Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima.

The measure was adopted by a voice vote, with no objection raised, after the author, Representative Cole (R., N. Y.), obtained unanimous consent for its consideration.

Mt. Suribachi Flag Is Raised Over Capitol

Washington, May 9 (AP)—The tattered American flag once planted on the summit of Mount Suribachi, Iwo Jima, fluttered today from the flagstaff of the Capitol.

With full military ceremonies, it was hoisted by the three survivors of the little group of fighting men who carried it to the peak of the volcanic mountain. They were Pfc. Rene A. Gagnon, Manchester, N.H.; Pfc. Ira H. Hayes, Bapchule, Ariz., and Pharmacist's Mate 2/c John H. Bradley, Appleton, Wis.

An honor guard of Marines stood at attention as the flag was raised. As the wind unfurled it, the Marine Corps Band played the National Anthem.

Notables aplenty were on hand for the ceremony, including Navy Secretary Forrestal, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, House Speaker Rayburn, Senate President Pro Tempore McKellar and Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, Marine Corps commandant.

'Farm Week' Observance Proclaimed by Truman

Celebration Starts July 22 to Honor Farmers for War Work

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP).—President Truman today proclaimed the week beginning July 22 as "National Farm Safety Week" in recognition of the part the farmers have played in the winning of the war.

The proclamation asserted the inevitable decrease in available farm labor this year "creates an especially urgent need for conserving the farm man power to meet production goals in 1945."

It added that accidents which cause some 1,400 farm residents to lose their lives each month and 125,000 others to suffer injuries "constitute an unnecessary waste of human life as well as of time and material."

The President called upon farm organizations and other groups to join in the education of farm people to the proper precautions for eliminating farm hazards and "to stimulate a nation-wide determination to stop the needless waste of irreplaceable farm man power and property."

Ban Remains on Relatives Joining Soldiers Overseas

Shipping, Food and Housing Shortages Cited

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP).—The War Department said today there is no plan to change restrictions against dependents of Army personnel joining their husbands and relatives overseas. The department cited the shortages of transportation, and of food and housing facilities in occupied areas as reasons.

However, some exceptions may be made in a few cases. Dependents who are members of the Women's Army Corps, Army Nurse Corps, Red Cross and United Service Organizations may be ordered to the same theaters where their husbands or relatives are stationed. This will be done, the department added, only on the basis of military necessity and without regard for personal relationships.

Dependents of military attaches or members of military commissions in Latin America may join their relatives there providing the War Department authorizes the travel. Dependents of Army personnel and War Department civilian employees on duty in the Bahamas, the Caribbean Defense Command and Brazil will be authorized to go there for the purpose of establishing a residence but not for visiting, if there is available transportation, satisfactory housing, food and medical supplies in the area.

U. S. Seeking to Return Axis Captives to Europe

Army Wants to Move Them Out as Fast as Possible

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP).—The shipment of German prisoners of war from Europe to the United States stopped on Monday.

In reporting this today, General Brehon Somervell, chief of Army Service Forces, also said that the War Department had asked General Dwight D. Eisenhower to make arrangements for returning Axis prisoners to Europe.

He said the Army desired to move them out as fast as possible, although he noted that a number of them were employed on farms and that some arrangement would have to be made in this connection. He added, however, that "we don't want to keep any Germans on any jobs that American workmen want."

Italian service units, composed of former Italian prisoners of war who volunteered for non-combat work to aid the Allied war effort, will receive priority in the transfer of prisoners, General Somervell said.

All Official Property Of Germany To Be Taken

Washington, May 9 (AP) — Germany's defeat was so complete that in an unprecedented diplomatic step the United States today served notice it would take over official German property in this country.

Joseph C. Grew, Acting Secretary of State, disclosed that the State Department had requested the Swiss legation to turn over all German premises, archives and property now under Swiss protection in this country.

This would include the German Embassy here, consulates throughout the country together with furniture, pictures and personal effects in storage, it was understood.

As far as is known here, there is no precedent for this action, just as there is no precedent in modern history for the completeness of Germany's military defeat.

Victory Belongs to All, Eisenhower Declares

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP).—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower said today the victory in Europe belongs to every citizen of the United Nations "who has done his or her duty whether in unifor mor in civilian life."

The Allied supreme commander made the statement in acknowledging a message of congratulations and praise from Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. His message stated:

"To have my own performance of duty so shignally approved by the head of the War Department and by one whose wisdom, courage and determination I hold in such unbounded respect will be to me for the rest of my life a source of deepest satisfaction."

Ruml Declares 'Crisis' May Follow Big Boom

Author of Tax Plan Advocates Planned Construction

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP).—Beardsley Ruml declared today that too big a post-war construction boom aimed at maintaining full employment may rebound in a "crisis" causing loss of jobs.

Chairman of the National Association's business committee, the New Yorker advocated a planned construction program withholding "postponable public works" for later slack periods.

"Reasonable stability of the industry at high levels of activity would be a bulwark of national prosperity and a great tool of fiscal policy," the author of the pay-as-you-go wart-time tax idea, told the Senate small business committee.

U.S. Mail To Prisoners In Germany Suspended

Washington, May 9 (AP)—The War Department today announced that all mail from the United States to American and Allied prisoners of war in Germany has been halted in transit.

The action was taken, the department said, because of the breakdown of the German Government's mail-distribution system and the rapid evacuation of the liberated prisoners.

The department said the army postal service has been instructed to return all letters and parcels, so far as possible, to the senders.

In announcing this today, White House Press Secretary Jonathan Daniels said the Prince will remain several days as the President's guest and later visit other sections of the United States 'to acquaint himself with various aspects of American cultural, scientific and economic life."

Daniels said the visit had been contemplated for some time, but that it previously had not been possible to make the arrangements.

Osmena on Way Home

President Is Expected to Arrive in Philippines Next Week

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP).—President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines and ten American government officials are expected to arrive in the Philippines late next week, it was learned today. One of their first tasks on arriving will be to confer with General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, area commander, to arrange for a smooth return of jurisdiction to civil authority when the military situation permits, so as to speed rehabilitation work.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, special envoy of President Truman on the mission, and his nine aids intend to see as much of the islands as possible in order to gather adequate information for their report to the President.

German Prisoners Hope Japs Will Be Beaten Soon

Fort Devens, Mass., May 9 (AP). German prisoners of war, informed officially of the defeat of their fatherland, today voluntarily issued a statement asserting that they see:

"The end of the national socialistic regime which brought death, want and tyranny to the German people and the world. . . ."

In it they also expressed the "hope that the United Nations will win victory ove rthe Japanese military dictatorship very soon."

After being informed of the surrender, they drew up the statement and submitted it to Col. Harold Storke, POW base commander.

Tokyo Reveals New Invasion Preparation

San Francisco, May 9 (AP)—Ranking Japanese Government officials today attended formal memorial services for Adolf Hitler at the German Embassy in Tokyo, the Japanese Domei news agency reported in a broadcast recorded here.

San Francisco, May 9 (AP)—The Japanese Government announced today the collapse of Germany "will not bring the slightest change" in Japan's determination to fight to the finish.

This was reported by Tokyo radio, which simultaneously announced new preparations to meet an invasion of the home islands.

Broadcasts recorded here said the Army simplified its "air-defense conscription in order to prepare for the possibility of our mainland becoming a battlefield."

Would Build Barricades

Another said barricades would be constructed throughout the nation "in the event of an enemy landing on Japan proper."

The "official statement" on Japan's war policy was adopted at a special meeting of the full Cabinet, called by Premier Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki and approved by Emperor Hirohito. It followed the tenor of reported Tokyo newspaper editorials saying Japan's determination was "absolutely unaffected" by Germany's surrender.

Expresses Deep Regret

The "official statement" said:

"The Imperial Government of Japan expresses its deep regret on the surrender of Germany, which shared the common objective with the Imperial Government of Japan.

"The objective of the war of the Imperial Government of Japan, and course, lies in the interest of her self-existence and self-defense. This is the unwavering confidence of the Imperial Government of Japan and the sudden change of the war situation in Europe will not bring the slightest change in the war objective of the Imperial Government of Japan.

U.S. Ambition "Unjust"

". . . Japan will devote her total effort toward the complete destruction of the unjust ambition of the United States and Britain. . . ."

The Japanese Domei News Agency, in a broadcast recorded here, quoted Nipponese press comment.

"The course of developments leading up to Germany's collapse should be fully taken advantage of by our government leaders in intensifying our war efforts and to prepare for the bad times that lie ahead," Domei interpreted the tenor of the press.

Yomiuri Hochi, a Tokyo morning publication, concluded that the United States is "scheming to transfer all available German warships from Europe to the Pacific theater."

JAPS UNMOVED BY REICH FALL

Nation Will Be Transformed Into 'One Big War Camp'

San Francisco, May 9 (AP)—Japan announced today that Germany's surrender would not bring the "slightest change" to the nation's war objective and simultaneously the Government was urged to seek imperial authority to transform the country into "one big war camp."

These and other indications of rising concern over the collapse of Japan's last Axis partner, came from Tokyo radio broadcasts recorded by the FCC.

A full session of the Cabinet, convoked by Premier Kantaro Suzuki, concluded that there would be no change in the war objective and Emperor Hirohito sanctioned the decision.

A Critical Situation

From Iichiro (Soho) Tokutomi, one of Japan's most prominent journalists, came the appeal that the Suzuki Government seeks authority to "proclaim a state of emergency" that would transform the nation "into one big war camp and all the population of 100,000,000 into an armed force."

Handling the "new situation" with utter frankness, Tokutomi wrote that Germany's collapse "has begun to exert heavier pressure on Japan." Domei quoted him further as saying:

"Japan . . . indeed is faced with a critical situation, unprecedented since its founding" and "is now fighting against the most powerful of world powers."

Surrender News Published

The enemy radio also told of preparations to combat an invasion of the homeland islands, said "air-defense conscription" measures of the army had been simplified, and reported ranking officials of the Government and armed forces attended formal memorial services for Adolf Hitler.

Morning newspapers throughout Nippon carried the news of Germany's surrender. Most of them claimed the development "had not been entirely unanticipated."

The Domei news agency voiced the nation's expectation that war production in Manchuria would be "greatly stimultaed and increased" under Ginjiro Fujiwara, former munitions minister who recently was appointed a special "fighting strength inspector" there. At the same time, Domei predicted he would run into "difficulties," recalling that in the past development of heavy industry in Manchuria had been "unbalanced."

JAPAN REGRETS NAZI SURRENDER

Capitulation Will Not Change Nippon's War Aims, Says Tokyo.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9—(AP) Surrender of Nazi Germany, the Japanese cabinet announced today, will not make the "slightest change" in Nippon's war objective, which "lies in the interest of h[er] ("apan's) self-existence and self-defense."

The cabinet reached this conclusion at a special meeting convoked by Premier Kantaro Suzuki, the Tokyo radio said. The broadcast was intercepted by the FCC.

The official statement expressed regret at Germany's surrender, said the change in the European war situation would not alter Japan's objective and concluded:

"Together with our Allied nations in GEA (greater East Asia), the imperial government of Japan will devote her total effort toward the complete destruction of the unjust ambition of the United States and Britain, which are attempting to trample down the GEA on behalf of their own principles and exploitations, and thereby it expects to firmly maintain the security of the GEA."

The enemy radio also told of preparations to combat an invasion of the homeland islands, said "air defense conscription" measures of the army had been simplified and reported ranking officials of the government and armed forces attended formal memorial services for Adolf Hitler.

Morning newspapers throughout Nippon carried the news of Germany's surrender. Most of them claimed the development "had not been entirely unanticipated."

The Domei news agency voiced the nation's expectation that war production in Manchuria would be "greatly stimulated and increased" under Ginjiro Fujiwara, former Munitions Minister who recently was appointed a special "fighting-strength inspector" there. At the same time, Domei predicted he would run into "difficulties," recalling that in the past development of heavy industry in Manchuria had been "unbalanced."

Tarakan Oil Equipment Held To Be Repairable

San Francisco, May 9 (AP)—Aneta, the Dutch news agency, in a dispatch today from Manila quoed Maj. Gen. Hugh Casey chief of the United States Army Engineers in the Southwest Pacific, as saying that oil equipment on Tarakan Island probably was not permanently damaged.

"No matter how much destruction the Japanese committed on the shafts, it should be fairly easy to sink new wells on sites of the old, since Tarakan wells are shallog with the oil deposits only a few feet below sea level," Casey said.

Dutch engineers who landed on the island off Netherlands Borneo shortly after the Australian invasion May 1, will restore the wells with American leand-lease equipment, the general said..

Two Ships Sunk By Submarines Off East Coast

Tanker and Collier Sent to Bottom in Closing Days of War by Doenitz Fleet

By The Associated Press

Submarines sank at least two ships off the Atlantic Coast in the closing weeks of the war, it became known yesterday. A third vessel went down off Cape Elizabeth, Me., after a mysterious explosion.

The disasters added sixty-two victims to the roll of dead and missing merchant seamen. One life wast lost when a German U-boat sank the merchant marine tanker Swiftscout 150 miles off the Maryland coast April 18.

A Navy court of inquiry was investigating the loss of forty-nine lives in New England's worst naval disaster of the war, resulting from a mysterious explosion which shattered the navy patrol ship PE-56 off Cape Elizabeth, Me. April 23. Some of the thirteen survivors told of a sudden blast which came during a lull in target practice maneuvers.

Twelve crewmen were missing as a consequence of a U-boat attack that sank the 5,353-ton American collier Black Point off Point Judith, R. I., at dusk on May 5. An official of the Sprague Steamship Company, owners of the ship, said one of the attacking underseas marauders was sunk in subsequent naval action.

No casualties were listed, however, aboard the Atlantic Refining Company tanker Atlantic States, which made port in tow of a naval patrol boat despite an "underwater explosion."

The blast, which the Navy said could have been a last-minute evidence that some of Grand Admiral Doenitz's once-powerful U-boat fleet still lurked off the coast, took place off Provincetown, Mass., April 5.

"The Lucky 13," only members of the crew of the patrol ship PE-56 to escape, told vivid stories of the sudden blast. Some were trapped below decks. Others struggled through debris-cluttered passageways and plunged overside into the frigid waters of the Atlantic before the 430-ton vessel sank.

The few survivors were picked up seventeen minutes later. Naval authorities said that of the forty-nine men lost only two bodies were recovered. The other forty-seven were listed on Navy records as "missing" and presumed to be dead.

The list of missing men from the PE-56, with their next of kin, included:

JOHN JOSEPH ALEXANDER, fireman 2c, USN; mother, Mrs. Rose Alexander, Verplanck, N.Y.

ROBERT GURNETT COLEMAN, ship's cook 3c, USNR; father, J. DeWitt Coleman, Rochester, N. Y.

EDWIN FREDERICK MATHYS, Ch MM, USN; wife, Mrs. Sara Davenport Mathys, 210 Clinton av., Brooklyn.

ARCHIBALD RONALD, seaman 2c, USNR; father, William K. Ronald, 626 W. 169th st., New York.

GEORGE SABATINO, seaman 2c, USNR; mother, Mrs. Mary Sabatino, 2036 W. 5th st., Brooklyn.

EDWIN JOSEPH SCHNEIDER, radioman 3c, USNR; wife, Mrs. Carol Schneider, 1701 Quentin rd., Brooklyn.

NATHAN CHENEY STAFFORD, fireman 1c, USNR; wife, Mrs. Leola Lawrence Stafford, Whallonsburgh, N. Y.

LEONARD JOZEF SUROWIEC, fireman 1c, USNR; father, George Surowiec, 21 Chapel st., Auburn, N. Y.

JAMES FRANCIS TALLEY, seaman 2c, USNR; father, Peter Talley, 18 Russell st., Howard Beach, N. Y.

HENRY LOUIS WENGERT, seaman 2c, USNR; mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wengert, 401 East 154th st., the Bronx.

HAROLD RODMAN, yeoman 1c, USNR; mother, Mrs. Winifred Rodman, Delanco, N.J.

Survivors of the Black Point told a dramatic story of what was to be an uneventful voyage from Norfolk, Va., to Boston, when observers on the collier saw the wake of the torpedo. The master, Captain Charles E. Prior, of Belfast, Me., said the collier was "proceeding on our usual route when the explosion aft on the starboard side took the entire poop off the vessel. The gun platform simply disintegrated." Two lifeboats and one raft were launched, Captain Prior said. The survivors watched the ship go down in six minutes.

RAIDER GETS SHIP IN WAR'S CLOSING HOURS

12 Of The Crew Of The 5,553-Ton Black Point Missing In Attack

Boston, May 9 (AP)—A German U-boat attack in the closing hours of the European war sank the 5,553-ton American collier Black Point off Point Judith, R.I., Saturday night, May 5. Twelve crew members were reported missing.

An official of the firm owning the collier said one submarine was reported destroyed by naval action shortly afterward.

Survivors told a dramatic story of what was to be an uneventful voyage from Norfolk, Va., to Boston, when observers on the collier saw the wake of the torpedo. The attack occurred at dusk.

Sank In Six Minutes

The master, Capt. Charles E. Prior, 38, of Belfast, Maine, said the collier was "proceeding on our usual route when the explosion aft on the starboard side took the entire poop off the vessel. The gun platform simply disintegrated."

The crew's quarters were crushed.

The captain was on the bridge at the time and when the ship began to sink rapidly, ordered all to abandon the vessel.

Two lifeboats and one raft were launched, he continued. The survivors watched the ship go down in six minutes. The lifesaving craft were picked up within 45 minutes by three other Allied vessels in the vicinity.

Survivors Partly Listed

The vessel, owned by the Sprague Steamship Company of Boston, is a bulk cargo collier, 396 feet long. It carried 7,759 tons of soft coal.

The survivors included: James Davis, James Fowler, firemen, Newport News, Va.; Howard Locke, fireman, Reynolds, Ga.; Johnny Smith, able-bodied seaman, Messick, Va., and Rufus K. Nash, able-bodied seaman, Newport News, Va.

The vessel had sailed from Norfolk, Va.

Tanker Swiftscout Sunk By U-Boat April 19

Norfolk, Va., April 19 [AP—Delayed]—The United States tanker Swiftscout was sunk by a submarine which pumped two torpedoes into her off the East Coast the morning of April 19. One crewman perished.

The 36 other crew members and the 10-man navy gun crew escaped in lifeboats and were rescued five hours later by the merchant ship Chancellorsville.

The survivors said on arrival here the chief engineer, Alfred Brennan, Westfield, N. J., was lost in the sinking. They last saw him clinging to a ladder on the port side of the tanker, bleeding from the mouth and nose. Several shipmates tried unsuccessfully to force Brennan to jump into the water, but he appeared dazed, said he had no lifebelt and could not swim.

Aimed By Sight

After the attack, which occurred at 9.30 A.M., the submarine surfaced. The armed guard manning the forward gun fired eight rounds at the raider, about 500 yards from the ship, but said they did not know whether they scored any hits. Richard E. Ward, Charleston, S.C., and Frank E. Neill, Birmingham, Ala., both seamen first class, said the gun crew had to direct the gun by hand because the training gear had been damaged by the explosion of the first torpedo.

Tankers Sunk Off South America

Miami, Fla., May 8 [AP—Delayed]—The sinking of a large United States tanker, presumably by a torpedo with the probable loss of 50 lives 600 miles off the northern coast of South America late in March, was revealed today.

There are 22 known survivors.

The tanker, loaded with high octane gasoline and kerosene, turned into an inferno following an explosion. Although no submarine was sighted, crewmen said they were "positive" they were hit by a torpedo.

The last tanker reported sunk was the Esso Harrisburg, reported torpedoed off the Columbian coast July 10, 1944, and announced at Bogota. The last officially reported by the Navy at Washington was the Dowell, sunk in the Caribbean December 30, 1943.

Harrisburg Sent Down

Six of the 22 survivors related here how they spent eighteen days in a lifeboat before an Army transport plane finally sighted them.

All of the known survivors were either asleep or at work on the bridge when the explosion came about 1.45 A.M.

The crew consisted of 46 merchant seamen, of which ten are known to have been saved, and a Navy gun crew of 26, with twelve survivors.

Sinking Off Maryland

PHILADELPHIA, May 9 (AP)—The sinking of the American tanker Swiftscout by a German U-boat about 150 miles off the Maryland coast, April 18, with the loss of one man, was disclosed here today after announcement by the War Shipping Administration's recruiting and manning organization of the arrival here of two Philadelphia members of the crew.

Ensign William Deatcher, 21, and Antonio di Bona, 32, crew members, said that two torpedoes ripped into the hull of the ship, which was to have brought a cargo of oil to this country from South America.

Of the thirty-seven men and officers and Navy gun crew of ten, Ensign Deatcher said, all were rescued except the chief engineer, although three were injured. Just before the ship went down the Navy crew made an attempt to sink the U-boat, which surfaced after the first of two torpedoes struck, the ensign stated.

The two survivors here said that Peter Katsaras, the skipper, was the last man to leave the ship.

Thirty-six crew members and the ten-man Navy gun crew escaped in lifeboats and were rescued five hours later by the merchant ship Chancellorsville.

The tanker, loaded with high octane gasoline and kerosene, burst into flames. The crew consisted of forty-six merchant seamen, of whom ten are known to have been saved, and a Navy gun crew of twenty-six, with twelve survivors.

Six of the survivors told here today how they spent eighteen days in a lifeboat before an Army transport plane sighted them and sent a ship to the rescue. Among them were Steward George Nicholos of 24-08 Thirty-third Street, Astoria, N. Y., and Radioman Davis Rubin of 57 Bristol Street, Brooklyn.

Kent Cooper, executive director of the A.P., in anouncing Gallagher's appointment, said:

"This action was taken entirely without prejudice to Kennedy, pending full determination of matters."

Gallagher has covered war fronts through nearly a score of European countries in the past five years, and since D-Day has been in charge of AP's field staff on the Western Front. He was born in San Francisco 34 years ago, educated at Louisiana State University, and joined the A.P. staff in Buffalo in 1937.

Broadway Swings Into Stride Again As Curfew Is Lifted

MAY 10 1945

New York, May 9 (AP)—It was like old times along Broadway and the swing streets tonight as the lights came on and the curfew went off.

Some entertainers, left jobless by the WMC midnight closing order last February, were back at work; so were more bartenders, waiters and others as the night hawks flocked into the clubs after their theater parties.

It looked like the $100,000,000 a year entertainment business in New York city was rolling along at a brisk pace.

For a time it looked as though the GI's were going to be out of luck, for the 2d Service Command said all soldiers would have to leave places of fun by midnight unless it received official word from Washington of the lifting of the curfew. The word came in time.

Navy officials said this afternoon the bars were down—or, rather, open—to their personnel until the precurfew closing hours of 4 A.M. weekdays and 3 A.M. Sundays.

Earlier today, Mayor LaGuardia gave his blessing to the order rescinding the curfew, but said the removal of the ban on horse racing "just adds to our troubles."

Saturday Midnight Show Slated

A spokesman for the Consolidated Edison Company said the curfew had had "a very slight effect in the use of coal for power" and that its revocation would cause "only a minute change in our load."

Major radio networks and movie theaters announced that they would resume their former post-midnight schedules as soon as possible. Radio City Music Hall scheduled a midnight show for Saturday.

James A. McCarthy, executive secretary of the Hotel Association of New York, said he assumed hotel managers would revert to previous closing hours immediately.

LONDON, MAY 9-(AP)-MARSHAL STALIN CLIMAXED RUSSIA'S JUBILANT V-E DAY CELEBRATION TONIGHT BY PERSONALLY ANNOUNCING GERMANY'S UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER AND MOSCOW'S VICTORY GUNS ROARED OUT THEIR GREATEST SALUTE --30 SALVOES FROM 1,000 GUNS.

STALIN, DECLARING THAT THE FINAL ACT OF CAPITULATION WAS SIGNED YESTERDAY IN BERLIN AFTER A "PRELIMINARY ACT" AT REIMS, MADE NO REFERENCE TO JAPAN OR THE FAR EASTERN CONFLICT, AND HE REITERATED THAT RUSSIA "DOES NOT INTEND TO DESTROY GERMANY."

THE SOVIET VICTORYENDED A SOVIET-GERMAN CONFLICT OF THREE YEARS AND 10 1/2 MONTHS, ONE OF THE MOST GRUELLING STRUGGLES IN HISTORY. BOTH SIDES SUFFERED MILLIONS OF CASUALTIES, AND IN A TWO-YEAR MARCH FROM STALINGRAD TO BERLIN THE RED ARMY FOUGHT ITS WAY BACK 1,360 MILES--THE AIRLINE EQUIVALENT FROM NEW YORK TO OKLAHOMA CITY.

"THIS IS NO LONGER A MERE SCRAP OF PAPER," STALIN SAID OF THE SURRENDER. "IT IS THE ACTUAL CAPITULATION OF THE ARMED FORCES OF GERMANY....ALL THE SUFFERING.....OF OUR PEOPLE IN DEFENSE OF OUR MOTHERLAND WAS NOT IN VAIN.

STALIN MADE HIS ANNOUNCEMENT AS THOUSANDS OF RUSSIANS JAMMED THE STREETS IN FRONT OF THE AMERICAN EMBASSY IN MOSCOW, TOASTING THE UNITED STATES, PRESIDENT TRUMAN, AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

"HITLER DECLARED THREE YEARS AGO 'WE SHALL DESTROY RUSSIA,'" STALIN SAID. "BUT HITLER'S INSANE IDEAS WERE NOT DESTINED TO COME TRUE. IN ACTUAL FACT THE EXACT OPPOSITE HAPPENED...GERMANY IS UTTERLY DESTROYED. THE SOVIET UNION IS REJOICING IN VICTORIES ALTHOUGH IT DOES NOT INTEND TO DESTROY GERMANY.

(600) LONDON MAY 9-(AP)-A STERN AND COLDLY FORMAL CEREMONY IN BERLIN, OFFICIALLY RATIFYING GERMANY'S UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER, WAS DESCRIBED TODAY BY THE MOSCOW RADIO.

THE MOMENTOUS DOCUMENT, THE BROADCAST SAID, WAS SIGNED IN A GRAY HOUSE ON THE CORNER OF WILSENERSTRASSE AND RHEINSTEINSTRASSE BY THREE TOP-RANKING OFFICERS OF THE BEATEN ENEMY'S LAND, SEA AND AIR FORCES.

RUSSIAN AND ALLIED MILITARY CHIEFS WATCHED AS THE PAPERS WERE SIGNED BY FIELD MARSHAL WILHELM KEITEL AS COMMANDER OF THE GERMAN ARMY; ADMIRAL GEN.VON FRIEDEBURG, NAVY COMMANDER, AND COL.GEN.STUMPF, A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE AIR FORCE.

MARSHAL GREGORY K.ZHUKOV, COMMANDER OF THE VICTORIOUS FIRST WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY, PRESIDED OVER THE CEREMONY FOR THE SOVIET UNION. THE ALLIED SUPREME COMMAND WAS REPRESENTED BY A DELEGATION HEADED BY AIR CHIEF MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR TEDDER, DEPUTY TO GEN.EISENHOWER. IT INCLUDED GEN.CARL SPAATZ, COMMANDER OF THE U.S.STRATEGIC AIR FORCES IN EUROPE, AND ADMIRAL HAROLD BURROUGH, COMMANDER OF THE ALLIED NAVAL FORCES IN EUROPE, THE BROADCAST SAID. THE FRENCH DELEGATION WAS HEADED BY GEN.DE LATTRE DE TASSIGNY, COMMANDER OF THE FRENCH FIRST ARMY.

THE MOSCOW RADIO GAVE THIS STEP-BY-STEP ACCOUNT:

"IN A LARGE, PLAINLY FURNISHED HALL, WITH WINDOWS ON TWO SIDES, LONG TABLES WERE PREPARED AND THE HALL WAS DECORATED WITH THE NATIONAL FLAGS OF THE SOVIET UNION, THE UNITED STATES, GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

"AT MIDNIGHT EXACTLY, MARSHAL ZHUKOV AND ARE CHIEF MARSHAL TEDDER ENTERED THE HALL. THE CHAIRS UNDER THEIR NATIONAL FLAGS WERE OCCUPIED BY ZHUKOV, TEDDER, SPAATZ, VISHINSKY, BURROUGH AND DE TASSIGNY.

"THE CENTRAL TABLE WAS OCCUPIED BY THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE ALLIED POWERS AND GENERALS OF RED ARMY UNITS WHICH CAPTURED BERLIN. AT THE PRESS TABLE SAT SOVIET AND FOREIGN JOURNALISTS. ONLY ONE TABLE STILL REMAINED EMPTY.

"ZHUKOV ADDRESSED THE GATHERING.

"'GENTLEMEN,' HE SAID, 'WE HAVE GATHERED HERE XXX TO ACCEPT THE TERMS OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER FROM THE COMMAND OF THE GERMAN ARMED FORCES. I PROPOSE WE SET TO WORK AND INVITE THE PLENIPOTENTIARIES OF THE GERMAN COMMAND.

"THEREUPON, ON ORDERS OF MARSHAL ZHUKOV, THE GERMANS WERE LED INTO THE HALL AT 12:10, IN ABSOLUTE SILENCE.

"MARSHAL ZHUKOV SAID:

"'GENTLEMEN, THE SIGNING OF THE ACT OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WILL NOW TAKE PLACE. I ADDRESS MYSELF TO THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE GERMAN COMMAND, WITH THE QUESTION: HAVE THEY THE ACT AT HAND; HAVE THEY ACQUAINTED THEMSELVES WITH IT AND ARE THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE GERMAN SUPREME COMMAND PREPARED TO SIGN THIS ACT?'

"TEDDER ADDRESSED THE SAME QUESTION TO THE GERMANS.

"'YES, I AGREE,' SAID KEITEL QUIETLY, AND HE HANDED MARSHAL ZHUKOV THE DOCUMENT OF SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, SIGNED BY GRAND ADMIRAL (KARL) DOENITZ, AUTHORIZING (THE GERMANS) TO SIGN THE ACT OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER."

"THE NECESSARY FORMALITIES HAVING BEEN OBSERVED, MARSHAL ZHUKOV ASKED THE GERMAN PLENIPOTENTIARIES TO SIGN, WHICH THEY DID.

"AT THIS MOMENT CAMERAS AND MOVIE APPARATUS SHOT THE SCENE.

"AT 12:43 THE ACT WAS SIGNED. ONE COPY OF IT WAS HANDED TO FIELD MARSHAL KEITEL. THEN MARSHAL ZHUKOV DECLARED:

"'THE GERMAN DELEGATION MAY NOW RETIRE.'"

THE MOSCOW RADIO SAID THE BRITISH-AMERICAN DELEGATION WAS MET AT THE TEMPELHOF AIRFIELD BENEATH A BRIGHT SUN TUESDAY AFTERNOON BY GEN. VASILIEV AND A GUARD OF HONOR CARRYING AMERICAN, BRITISH AND RUSSIAN FLAGS, AND WITH A BAND PLAYING IN TURN THE THREE NATIONAL ANTHEMS.

THE SOVIET RADIO REPORTED THAT TROOPS CHEERED AS TEDDER DECLARED:

"THIS PARADE IS A GREAT HONOR FOR US."

A75 MAY 10 1945

TEDDER THEN STEPPED TO A MICROPHONE AND EXPRESSED HIS HAPPINESS AT GREETING THE SOVIET COMMANDERS AND TROOPS. HE SAID HE WAS ESPECIALLY GLAD BECAUSE HE WAS GREETING THEM IN BERLIN.

"THE ALLIES IN THE EAST AND THE WEST, AS THE RESULT OF COLLABORATION HAVE ACCOMPLISHED AN IMMENSE TASK," HE SAID.

TEDDER THEN VISITED ZHUKOV, CONGRATULATED THE MARSHAL ON HIS VICTORY AND PRESENTED HIM WITH A WHITE SILK BANNER EMBROIDERED WITH THE EMBLEMS OF THE UNITED FORCES.

DE TASSIGNY, WHO ARRIVED TEO MINUTES AFTER THE BRITISH-AMERICAN GROUP, ALSO VISITED ZHUKOV. HE GREETED THE RED ARMY ON BEHALF OF PRESIDENT DE GAULLE AND THE FRENCH PEOPLE.

MOSCOW QUOTED THE FRENCH GENERAL AS SAYING THAT THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE "HAVE ASSISTED CONSIDERABLY IN THE LIBERATION OF FRANCE BY THEIR INDOMITABLE STRUGGLE."

THE DISPUTE OVER PRISONERS WAS BROUGHT INTO THE OPEN BY MOSCOW PROTESTS AGAINST THE TREATMENT OF RUSSIAN PRISONERS FREED BY THE BRITISH. THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT HAD CONTENDED SOME OF THESE PRISONERS WERE IN GERMAN MILITARY UNIFORMS.

LAW WAS ASKED WHETHER FACILITIES HAD BEEN GRANTED MEMBERS OF THE BRITISH EMBASSY AND BRITISH MISSION IN MOSCOW TO TRAVEL TO AND FRO IN POLAND, SILESIA, AND THE PARTS OF GERMANY OCCUPIED BY THE RUSSIANS IN ORDER TO MAKE CONTACT WITH LIBERATED BRITONS. HE ALSO WAS ASKED FOR "DETAILS OF THE REPRESENTATIONS WHICH HAD BEEN MADE IN RESPECT TO VIOLATION OF THE AGREEMENT" WITH RUSSIA.

"WE ARE CONTINUOUSLY PRESSING THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT ON THESE POINTS," LAW REPLIED, "AND NOW THAT THERE IS ACTUAL CONTACT BETWEEN THE SOVIET FORCES AND WESTERN ALLIES, IT OUGHT TO BE MUCH EASIER TO GET A SATISFACTORY SETTLEMENT OF THEM."

BRITAIN'S "MAIN GROUND OF COMPLAINT," HE CONTINUED, HAS BEEN THE ABSENCE OF ADEQUATE FACILITIES FOR VISITS "BY BRITISH OFFICERS TO THE FIRST COLLECTION POINTS, HOSPITALS, AND FORWARD AREAS, AND ON THE WAY IN WHICH MEN HAD BEEN COLLECTED.

"THERE IS ALSO A QUESTION OF THEIR TREATMENT, INCLUDING ROBBERY OF PERSONAL POSSESSIONS. IT WAS THOSE MATTERS WHICH FORMED THE SUBJECT OF REPRESENTATIONS TO THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT." MAY 10 1945

"IMMINENT DOOM," WAS PREDICTED FOR JAPAN BY GEN.EISENHOWER, WHO HAS 90 DIVISIONS TO SEND INTO THE PACIFIC WAR IF THE ALLIES DECIDE TO HIT JAPAN WITH EVERYTHING IN THE BOOK.

THE TWO QUESTIONS BEING ASKED ON ALL SIDES ARE:

(1) "WILL RUSSIA DECLARE WAR ON JAPAN?"

(2) "WHAT WILL BE EISENHOWER'S ROLE IN THE PACIFIC?"

ACCORDING TO DISPATCHES FROM THE PACIFIC, THE BELIEF HAS LONG BEEN PREVALENT AROUND GEN.MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS THAT THE ENTRY OF RUSSIA WOULD ENABLE THE ALLIES TO SMASH JAPAN WITHIN TWO MONTHS.

AS FOR EISENHOWER, HIS KNOWN ABILITY AS A COMMANDER OF MASSIVE TROOP MOVEMENTS LEADS MANY TO WONDER WHETHER HE MAY BE ASSIGNED AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN.

THERE ALSO HAS BEEN CONSIDERABLE SPECULATION HERE AS TO THE ROLE THAT MAY BE ASSIGNED FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY.

KUTZBUEHEL, AUSTRIA, MAY 9-(AP)-THE QUESTION THAT HAS BEEN WORRYING THE FOLKS AT ABILENE, TEX., FOR THE PAST TWO WEEKS WAS ANSWERED PRETTY THOROUGHLY TODAY.

RECENTLY ABILENE ASKED THE ASSOCIATED PRESS TO FIND OUT WHERE THE 36TH INFANTRY WAS. THE MESSAGE WAS RELAYED TO THE PRESS CAMP AT SIXTH ARMY GROUP'S FORWARD HEADQUARTERS.

AT THE TIME, THE FAMOUS TEXAS DIVISION WAS ON ITS WAY OUT OF A SO-CALLED REST PERIOD DURING WHICH IT HAD BEEN POLICING INSIDE GERMANY. SECURITY RULES ARE THAT AN OUTFIT CANNOT BE MENTIONED UNTIL ITS FULL STRENGTH HAS BEEN COMMITTED TO ACTION FOR 48 HOURS.

BUT NAMES LIKE ADMIRAL NICHOLAS HORTHY, FIELD MARSHALS VON RUNDSTEDT, LIST AND VON LEEB, AND A HOST OF OTHER MILITARY AND POLITICAL FIGURES BEGAN TO STUD THE NEWS HEADLINES. THEN TODAY IT WAS DISCLOSED THE 36TH ALSO HAD CAPTURED REICHSMARSHAL HERMANN GOERING.

THE BOYS FROM TEXAS HAVE BEEN BUSY.

WITH THE U.S.SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, MAY 8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN TANKMEN AND DOUGHBOYS RANGED ALONG THE LAST FIGHTING FRONT OF THE EUROPEAN WAR THOUGHT FIRST OF THEIR GOD, THEIR KIN AT HOME AND THEN OF CELEBRATING WHEN THEY HEARD OF THE GERMAN ARMY'S SURRENDER.

AT COMMAND POSTS ALL ALONG THE FRONT AND BY TANKS STILL IN BATTLE POSITION ALONG THE CZECHOSLOVAK HILLS THEY CLUSTERED BY THE SCORES AND HUNDREDS TO HEAR PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL FORMALLY ANNOUNCE THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES.

GERMAN SOLDIERS BY THE THOUSANDS, STILL FULLY ARMED, WERE PASSING THROUGH THE FRONT LINES INTO PRISON CAGES.

AS THE NEWS SPREAD THROUGH THE RANKS THERE WAS A GREAT SURGE OF RELIEF AND HOMESICKNESS--THE WISH TO BE BACK IN AMERICA WITH WIVES, CHILDREN, SWEETHEARTS AND PARENTS.

YET MOST OF THE SOLDIERS SOBERLY ACKNOWLEDGED THAT THE JOB WAS ONLY HALF DONE; THAT FOR MOST OF THEM THERE WOULD BE NO REAL REST UNTIL JAPAN WAS DEFEATED.

CZECHOSLOVAK CIVILIANS HELD HYSTERICAL CELEBRATIONS THROUGH THE TOWNS AND COUNTRYSIDE, BUT IN MOST CEREMONIES MUSIC WAS BANNED AND THE OCCASION WAS SADDENED BY PRAGUE RADIO BROADCASTS THAT DIE-HARD GERMAN SS TROOPS STILL WERE SLAYING THE INHABITANTS IN STREET FIGHTING IN THE CAPITAL. (PREMIER MARSHAL STALIN ANNOUNCED WEDNESDAY NIGHT, AFTER THIS DISPATCH WAS FILED, THAT RUSSIAN TROOPS HAD LIBERATED PRAGUE).

BERLIN, THURSDAY, MAY 3-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SHOUTING ALMOST LIKE WILD INDIANS, A GROUP OF RED ARMY INFANTRYMEN CHARGED TODAY INTO THE LAST KNOT OF GERMAN RESISTANCE IN THE CENTER OF BERLIN'S FAMOUS TIERGARTEN.

FROM BEHIND A SMALL PIECE OF WALL I WATCHED THESE RUSSIAN FOOT SOLDIERS FIRE THE LAST SHOTS IN THE BATTLE FOR BERLIN.

BACK OF ME IN THE HINDENBURG PLATZ WERE A HALF DOZEN SOVIET TANKS. THEY HAD POUNDED WITH THEIR LONG BARRELED GUNS THIS PATCH OF ENEMY RESISTANCE, HIDDEN AMONG THE FALLEN TREES AND MUDDY TRENCHES AND RAW CRATERS IN THE CENTER OF BERLIN'S FAMOUS PARK.

SOME OF THE NAZIS HAD TAKEN COVER BEHIND BARRICADES OF STONE AND TIMBER, OTHERS LURKED IN STEEL AND CONCRETE AIR RAID SHELTERS. THERE ARE TWO OR THREE HUNDRED FASCISTS IN THERE," SAID A NIMBLE, SMILING RUSSIAN CAPTAIN WHO HAD TAKEN ME FORWARD ACROSS THE TORN GROUND, SCATTERED WITH THE MOULDY GREEN CLAD SHAPES OF WHAT ONCE WAS GERMAN MANHOOD.

WE WAITED TINSELY AS RAIN DRIPPED FROM THE GRAY SKY.

THE GERMAN SMALL ARMS FIRE DIED DOWN. IT WAS AS THOUGH THE ENEMY KNEW THE END WAS NEAR AND WAS STEELING HIMSELF FOR THE SHOCK.

THEN FROM THE DANK EARTH IN FRONT OF US, FROM SCORES OF POINTS OF COVER, ROSE THE VETERAN RUSSIAN FOOT SOLDIERS IN A KHAKI MASS. IT, WAS THE RUSSIAN CHARGE.

THROUGH CLEARINGS AND HURDLING BROKEN TREE TRUNKS THE RED ARMY MEN DASHED FORWARD, SHOUTING ALMOST LIKE WILD INDIANS.

THEIR FORMATION WAS TIGHTER KNIT THAN ANY I HAD SEEN AMERICAN SOLDIERS PRESENT IN HURTGEN FOREST LAST OCTOBER.

IT WAS LIKE A FLYING WEDGE.

A46

THEY DISAPPEARED INTO THE TANGLED SILHOUETTE OF THE WOODS IN WHICH THE GERMANS HID. THERE WAS THE SHARP CRACK OF RIFLES, THE STACATTO BURPING OF TOMMYGUNS AND CAPTURED MACHINE PISTOLS AND THE BILLOWING SOUND OF EXPLODING GRENADES.

THEN QUIET AGAIN SETTLED DOWN.

MY NEWFOUND FRIEND, THE CAPTAIN, TURNED TO ME, HIS WET, GRIMY FACE SMILING.

"DEATH TO THE GERMAN INVADERS!" HE SAID IN RUSSIA, AS IF ECHOING THE KREMLIN'S ORDERS OF THE DAY. "BERLIN IS KAPUT."

IT WAS AT 3108 P.M. THAT FIGHTING CEASED IN THE TIERGARTEN, THE LAST FOOTHOLD OF THE DEAD CAPITAL. I HAD JEEPED TO BERLIN FROM THE ELBE WITH SEYMOUR FREIDIN OF THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE.

ANOTHER MACHINE CARRIED THREE ARMY PHOTOGRAPHERS, SGTS. BOB BOYLE, LOS ANGELES, CALIF., JAMES KILIAN, HYLAND PARK, ILL., AND FRANK R. POCIADO, SAN DIEGO, CALIF.

WE HAD LEFT WITTENBURG YESTERDAY AFTERNOON, GATE-CRASHING INTO A RUSSIAN CONVOY HEADED TOWARD BERLIN. THE RED ARMY MEN AND WOMEN WERE RIDING IN ALL SORTS OF VEHICLES IN THREE LANES OF TRAFFIC, ON A TWO-LANE ROAD. THEY WERE PLAYING ACCORDIONS AND SHOUTED "AMERIKANSKI" IN GREETING.

IN THE DISTANCE WE SAW THE ORANGE GLOW OF BURNING VILLAGES. ONCE THE CONVOY HALTED. AND ONE OF MY FRIEND'S KNOWLEDGE OF YIDDISH

GOT US A TICKET TO BERLIN.

A RUSSIAN OFFICER APPROACHED TO QUESTION US. HE WAS JEWISH, AND WAS ELATED THAT ONE OF THE FIRST AMERICANS HE MET EN ROUTE TO BERLIN WAS JEWISH, TOO.

"JUST KEEP YOUR PLACE AMONG MY TRUCKS," HE SAID, "I'LL GET YOU WITHIN 10 MILES OF THE REICHSCHANCELLERY, IF NOT LESS."

AT NIGHT THERE WAS AN INTERNATIONAL PARTY AT A ROADSIDE CAMP, WHERE WE MET LEATHER-JACKETED PVT. ANTON SAMBERSKY, A RED ARMY AUTO MECHANIC FROM KRASNOGRAD WHO SAID HE HAD LIVED IN MILWAUKEE FROM 1928 UNTIL 1931 AND THAT HIS FATHER WAS STILL THERE.

BERLIN IS A SICKENING SIGHT...THE LUSTGARTEN COVERED WITH EXCAVATED BUTTERFLY MINES...THE ALTES MUSEUM CLOAKED IN BLACK SMOKE...UNTER-DEN-LINDEN AND THE WILHELMSTRASSE SMOTHERED IN DEBRIS...FURTIVE EYED GERMAN WOMEN AND CHILDREN...BLOOD-SOAKED STRETCHER CASES BEING CARRIED INTO A RUSSIAN RED CROSS HOSPITAL IN THE HOTEL ADLON.

THE DESTRUCTION SEEMS ENDLESS. THE INNER CITY HAS ALMOST BEEN BLOTTED OUT.

ON THE FRAGMENTS OF THE WALLS REMAIN THE CRUDELY WHITEWASHED SLOGANS OF THE LAST FRENZY OF THE NAZIS. "HEIL WEREWOLF," AND "MIT UNSER FUEHRER ZUM SIEG," WERE SOME.

IT WAS ENEMY CRAZINESS THAT THE RUSSIANS HAD NOT BOTHERED AS YET TO HAVE THE GERMANS REMOVE.

BERLIN,APRIL 28-(DELAYED)-(AP)-(COPYRIGHTED)-I ALMOST HAD A JEEP RIDE DOWN THE UNTER DEN LINDEN TODAY. AFTER REPEATED ATTEMPTS TO REACH THE CENTER OF THE CITY I FINALLY STOPPED AT A RUSSIAN INFANTRY COMMAND POST ABOUT 200 YARDS NORTH OF THE INTERSECTION OF THE TEMPELHOFSTRASSE AND EBERSTRASSE.

TO HAVE COME FARTHER WOULD HAVE BEEN SUICIDE. RUSSIAN ARTILLERY WAS LAYING DOWN A MERCILESS BARRAGE ON THE HEART OF BERLIN. SNIPERS WERE EVERYWHERE ON ROOFTOPS, IN SEWERS, AND BEHIND ROAD BLOCKS THAT HAD BEEN THROWN UP AT ALL MAIN INTERSECTIONS.

THE LAST 16 BLOCKS THAT STAND BETWEEN ME AND THE UNTER DEN LINDEN ARE TOO HOT TO NAVIGATE.

MAY 10 1945

WITH ME HERE ARE ANDY TULLY, REPORTER FOR THE BOSTON TRAVELLER, AND JEEP DRIVER SGT.JOHNNY WILSON OF ROXBURY,MASS. WE ARE THE ONLY THREE AMERICANS HERE, AND EVEN THE RUSSIANS THINK WE ARE SLIGHTLY MAD TO HAVE DARED THE TRIP FROM TORGAU ON THE ELBE THROUGH THE RUSSIAN LINES.

WE HAVE SPENT THE DAY PROVING THE MAIN HIGHWAYS THAT LEAD INTO THE HEART OF THE CITY. ON OUR FIRST THREE TRIES WE WERE TURNED BACK AFTER RUNNING INTO PITCHED BATTLES.

ON THE FOURTH TRY WE PENETRATED TO WITHIN 10 BLOCKS OF THE WILHELMSTRASSE. WE EDGED OUR WAY ABOUT 200 YARDS DOWN THE EBERSTRASSE TO THE RUSSIAN COMMAND POST.

THE RUSSIANS ARE FIGHTING MADLY AND DOGGEDLY BEYOND THIS POINT.

AS EACH BLOCK IS CLEARED OF ORGANIZED RESISTANCE THERE STILL REMAINS THE JOB OF FINE-COMBING THE BUILDINGS FOR SNIPERS. THE CRACK OF SMALL-ARMS FIRE IS EVERYWHERE. GERMAN DEAD STILL LIE IN THE STREETS.

THE SIGHT OF OUR CRUDE RUSSIAN-MADE AMERICAN FLAG FROM OUR JEEP BRINGS ALL GERMAN CIVILIANS RUNNING.

"WHEN WILL THE AMERICANS BE HERE?" IS THEIR ONE QUESTION.

SEVERAL GERMANS WHO SPEAK ENGLISH BEG FOR THE ANSWER AND IT HAS GIVEN ME CONSIDERABLE PLEASURE TO REPLY: "THE AMERICANS WILL NOT BE HERE. BERLIN BELONGS TO THE RUSSIANS."

WE WERE TOLD THAT SOMEWHERE IN THE SECTION WERE TWO AMERICAN FLYERS WHO HAD ESCAPED FROM A PRISON CAMP AND WERE FIGHTING WITH THE RUSSIANS. WE SPENT ABOUT AN HOUR TRYING TO FIND THEM BUT IT WAS NO USE--HUNTING ANYBODY IN BERLIN IS LIKE LOOKING FOR A DIME ON THE BOTTOM OF THE ATLANTIC OCEAN.

A GERMAN WOMAN TRIED TO TELL US HOW THE RUSSIANS WERE TREATING THE 30.24 - 25647.

CIVILIANS IN BERLIN BUT WE PAUSED ONLY LONG ENOUGH TO GET THE INFORMATION ABOUT THE AMERICAN FLYERS. FOR US TO BE SEEN TALKING TO A GERMAN BEHIND THE RUSSIAN LINES MIGHT EASILY HAVE MEANT DEATH FOR US.

THE RUSSIANS HAVE SHOWN NO MERCY. THEY HAVE PLAYED THE PERFECT GAME OF TIT-FOR-TAT. THEY HAVE DONE TO BERLIN WHAT THE REICHAN ARMY DID TO LENINGRAD AND STALINGRAD.

LAST NIGHT WAS A FANTASTIC NIGHT. THE ARTILLERY BARRAGE WENT ON ALMOST ALL NIGHT LONG. BETWEEN ROUNDS THERE WERE UNEARTHLY SOUNDS. THE CRACKING OF MACHINE GUN FIRE TEARING THE NIGHT, THE RUMBLING OF GREAT BUILDINGS COLLAPSING UNDER THE BATTERING OF THE ARTILLERY BARRAGE

BUT IN THE COMMAND POST THERE WAS A GREAT CELEBRATION. BY THE TIME WE HAD ESTABLISHED BEYOND DOUBT THAT WE WERE NOT SPIES BUT ONLY THREE FOOLHARDY YANKS WHO HAD TAKEN OUR LIVES IN OUR HANDS TO GET TO BERLIN, THERE WAS AN AIR OF CAMARADERIE DIFFICULT TO DESCRIBE.

AFTER A FEAST WE DANCED TO A BATTERED PHONOGRAPH. PLAYING THE PERFECT HOST, THE GUARD-MAJOR GAVE UP HIS BED TO OUR SERGEANT. WHILE JOHNNY SLEPT IN STYLE THE MAJOR DISPOSED HIMSELF ON A DIVAN.

ROME MAY 9-(AP)-POPE PIUS XII, EXPRESSING THANKFULNESS AT THE TERMINATION OF THE WAR IN EUROPE, DECLARED TODAY HIS CONVICTION THAT "IF WE WANT TO BUILD A LASTING AND A SAFE PEACE, IT MUST BE BUILT ON JUSTICE, COMPREHENSION AND CONFIDENCE."

VOICING GRATITUDE TO GOD FOR THE ARRIVAL OF PEACE IN EUROPE, HE PRAYED, ALSO, FOR THE END OF THE WAR IN THE FAR EAST "ACCODING TO JUSTICE."

THE PONTIFF STRESSED THE NEED FOR SPEEDING THE WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION, ASSERTING THAT GIGANTIC PROBLEMS AND DIFFICULTIES BESET EUROPE WHICH MUST BE SOLVED IF PEACE IS TO ENDURE.

HE ADVOCATED THE RELEASE AND RETURN TO THEIR HOMES AS "SOON AS POSSIBLE" OF ALL PRISONERS OF WAR AND INTERNEES, WHO COULD AID IN THE VAST TASK OF REBUILDING WRECKED EUROPE, AND COULD HELP PREVENT CONTINUED "MISERY AND HUNGER."

SPEAKING OVER THE VATICAN RADIO FROM HIS PRIVATE LIBRARY, THE POPE SAID "AT LAST THE PRESENT WAR HAS ENDED AFTER MORE THAN SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING. A CRY OF GRATEFULNESS GOES UP FROM OUR HEARTS TO OUR BELOVED GOD."

"WE REMEMBER ALL THOSE WHO HAVE FALLEN IN THIS WAR," HE ADDED, "AND WE FEEL THAT THE FALLEN ARE WARNING THE SURVIVORS AND EXPRESSING THEIR HOPE THAT JUSTICE AND EQUALITY OF RIGHT AMONG ALL STATES, BIG AND SMALL, STRONG AND POWERLESS, MAY BE BROUGHT ABOUT AFTER THIS WAR."

THE POPE SAID THERE WAS HOPE FOR THE RETURN AS SOON AS POSSIBLE AND THE REPATRIATION OF PRISONERS OF WAR AND REFUGEES.

"TO ALL OF THEM WE SAY; DO NOT FALTER; GO BACK TO WORK AND PARTICIPATE IN THE NECESSARY WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION. THE TASK AHEAD IS A BIG ONE. MISERY AND HUNGER, INDISCIPLINE AND DISORDERS MUST BE BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL."

HE DECLARED THAT THE BITTERNESS AND LIES SOWN BY THE WAR MUST DISAPPEAR IF PEACEFUL WORK IS TO BEGIN AGAIN, AND HE CONCLUDED HIS BROADCAST BY CONFERRING THE APOSTOLIC BENEDICTION UPON THE LISTENING WORLD.

VANDENBERG'S STATEMENT OF HIS VIEWS CAME AT AN OFF-THE-RECORD MEETING WITH REPORTERS WHEN HE WAS TOLD THAT GERALD L.K.SMITH OF THE "AMERICA FIRST" PARTY HAD PREDICTED THE MICHIGAN SENATOR EVENTUALLY WOULD BE FOUND OPPOSING THE CHARTER TO BE DRAFTED HERE.

VANDENBERG PUT THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT ON THE RECORD:

"I AM RESERVING MY JUDGMENT ON THIS CHARTER UNTIL IT IS CONCLUDED. I AM WHOLEHEARTEDLY IN FAVOR OF ITS OBJECTIVES.

"I THINK THE SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION OF OUR EFFORTS HERE IS UTTERLY INDISPENSABLE TO CIVILIZATION AND THE WORLD AND I HOPE THE ULTIMATE RESULT WILL PERMIT ME TO PLAY MY FULL PART NOT ONLY IN SUPPORTING THE NET RESULT ON THE FLOOR OF THE SENATE BUT IN ASSISTING IN THE CREATION OF THE NECESSARY TWO-THIRDS VOTE TO RATIFY IT."

SUMMING UP THE WORK OF THE CONFERENCE THUS FAR, CONNALLY SAID A "SPLENDID BEGINNING" HAS BEEN MADE BUT HE ADDED THAT DELEGATES FACE A TREMENDOUS TASK IN CONSIDERING HUNDREDS OF AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY SMALLER NATIONS.

HE EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT THE UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT OF THE FOUR SPONSORING POWERS UPON A SERIES OF VITAL AMENDMENTS TO THE DUMBARTON OAKS PROPOSALS IS "INFINITELY MORE IMPORTANT THAN ALL OF THE MINOR DISAGREEMENTS" ENCOUNTERED AT THE CONFERENCE. CONNALLY ADDED:

"THESE AMENDMENTS GO TO THE HEART OF A SUCCESSFUL WORLD ORGANIZATION AND THE FACT THAT WE COULD REACH AGREEMENT UPON THEM IN THE SHORT SPACE OF TWO AND A HALF DAYS OF INTENSIVE DISCUSSION OFFERS GREAT PROMISE FOR THE SUCCESS OF THE CONFERENCE."

NOTING THAT FUTURE SENATE RATIFICATION "IS ONE OF THE CHIEF CONCERNS OF THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION," CONNALLY SAID THAT IF AMERICAN TRUSTEESHIP PROPOSALS ARE ACCEPTED AT THE CONFERENCE THEY WOULD "AFFORD FULL PROTECTION FOR AMERICAN RIGHTS AND MAKE ADEQUATE PROVISION FOR AMERICAN SECURITY."

SAN FRANCISCO MAY 9-(AP)-LITTLE NATION DEMANDS FOR REVISION OF THE BIG THREE'S SECURITY COUNCIL VOTING PROPOSALS AND EXPANSION OF ITS MEMBERSHIP TODAY MET STIFF RUSSIAN RESISTANCE.

WITH THE AMERICAN DELEGATION AT THE UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE KEEPING HANDS OFF, THE RUSSIANS WERE REPORTED DETERMINED TO KEEP UNALTERED THE FORMULA AGREED UPON BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND PREMIER STALIN IN THEIR CRIMEAN CONFERENCE.

UNDER THIS VOTING PROCEDURE ANY OF THE BIG FIVE MEMBERS OF THE PROPOSED INTERNATIONAL PEACE-KEEPING ORGANIZATION COULD VETO THE USE OF FORCE TO SUPPRESS AGGRESSION.

WHILE MANY SMALLER NATIONS HAVE INDICATED RELUCTANT ACCEPTANCE OF THIS FORMULA, OTHERS ARE FIGHTING IT ON THE GROUNDS THAT IT GIVES THE MAJOR POWERS DISPROPORTIONATE AUTHORITY OVER THE FUTURE CONDUCT OF THE WORLD.

ALONG WITH THIS, ALMOST ALL OF THE SMALLER NATIONS HAVE BEEN URGING THAT THE NUMBER OF NON-PERMANENT MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL BE INCREASED OVER THE SIX PROPOSED AT DUMBARTON OAKS.

BOTH OF THESE DEMANDS HAVE FOUND THE RUSSIANS APPARENTLY STANDING MUCH MORE FIRMLY THAN THE AMERICANS OR THE BRITISH.

BUT THIS QUESTION HAS NOW ARISEN: HOW STAUNCHLY WILL THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH STAND AGAINST THE DEMANDS OF THEIR SMALLER NEIGHBORS FOR A GREATER VOICE IN THE COUNCIL, IF NOT FOR A CHANGE IN THE VOTING PROCEDURE?

THE AMERICANS FEEL BOUND BY THE YALTA AGREEMENT ON BIG-FIVE UNANIMITY, WHICH IS ALREADY A PART OF THE DUMBARTON OAKS CHARTER, BUT THEY ARE AS MORE OR LESS OPEN-MINDED ON THE SCOPE OF THE COUNCIL MEMBERSHIP.

SAN FRANCISCO, MAY 9-(AP)-SOVIET COMMISSAR V.M.MOLOTOV, WITH AMERICAN AND BRITISH MEMBERS OF THE THREE-POWER COMMISSION ON POLAND, TURNED TODAY BACK TO MOSCOW WHERE NEGOTIATIONS FOR A BROADENED WARSAW GOVERNMENT MAY BE RESUMED.

THE SUSPENSION OF NEGOTIATIONS, WHICH THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN ANNOUNCED AFTER THE RUSSIANS ARRESTED SIXTEEN LEADERS OF THE POLISH UNDERGROUND, WAS INTERPRETED IN SOME DIPLOMATIC SOURCES TO APPLY ONLY TO SAN FRANCISCO, MAKING POSSIBLE RE-OPENING OF THE TALKS IN THE SOVIET CAPITAL.

THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH MEMBERS OF THE POLISH COMMISSION, W.AVERELL HARRIMAN AND SIR ARCHIBALD CLARK KERR, AMBASSADORS TO MOSCOW, TIMED THEIR DEPARTURES FROM SAN FRANCISCO TO COINCIDE WITH MOLOTOV'S, ALTHOUGH THEY DID NOT TRAVEL WITH HIM.

THE TWO AMBASSADORS, FLYING IN HARRIMAN'S PLANE, MAY STOP IN LONDON TO CONSULT STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZK, FORMER PREMIER OF THE POLISH GOVERNMENT IN EXILE, WHO IS ACCEPTABLE TO THE RUSSIANS AS A MEMBER OF A REORGANIZED WARSAW REGIME. MOLOTOV'S ROUTE BACK TO RUSSIA WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

THE FUNDAMENTAL OBSTACLE TO ESTABLISHMENT OF A NEW POLISH GOVERNMENT WAS UNDERSTOOD TO BE A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN RUSSIAN AND ANGLO-AMERICAN INTERPRETATION OF THE ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL-STALIN AGREEMENT REACHED AT YALTA FOR BROADENING THE WARSAW PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT.

THE RUSSIANS INSISTED THE THREE-POWER COMMISSION SHOULD MEET FIRST WITH THE SOVIET-RECOGNIZED POLISH GOVERNMENT, AND BUILD A NEW REGIME AROUND THAT GROUP, WHILE THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH HELD THAT THEY SHOULD START ANEW, MEETING WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF ALL POLISH FACTIONS.

AFTER THE YALTA CONFERENCE, IT WAS LEARNED, THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN DREW UP THREE LISTS OF POSSIBLE POLISH GOVERNMENTS, LETTERED A, B AND C, IN ORDER OF PREFERENCE.

THREE OF THE UNDERGROUND LEADERS ARRESTED BY THE RUSSIANS WERE UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE BEEN NAMED ON THE LISTS, BUT THEY CAME OUT OF HIDING AT THEIR OWN INITIATIVE--NOT AT AMERICAN AND BRITISH SUGGESTION.

MOLOTOV'S ANNOUNCEMENT TO SECRETARY OF STATE STETTINIUS AND FOREIGN SECRETARY EDEN THAT THEY HAD BEEN ARRESTED CAUSED THE BREAK IN POLISH NEGOTIATIONS SATURDAY, BUT IT WAS LEARNED THAT THE ARRESTS WOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO INTERFERE WITH CONTINUANCE OF THE TALKS IN MOSCOW.

IF NEGOTIATIONS WERE BROKEN OFF INDEFINITELY, A DIPLOMATIC SOURCE SUGGESTED, THE PRESENT DEADLOCK MIGHT DRAG ON FOR A YEAR OR MORE, PERMITTING THE SOVIET-SPONSORED REGIME TO ENTRENCH ITSELF.

REPORTS FROM INSIDE POLAND REACHING BRITISH-AMERICANS HERE SAID THE RUSSIANS WERE "UNOBTRUSIVE," BUT THAT THE GOVERNMENT SET UP AT LUBLIN, SO FAR, IS "NOT POPULAR."

MOLOTOV'S LAST PUBLIC APPEARANCE IN SAN FRANCISCO WAS AT A COCKTAIL PARTY HE GAVE IN THE SAINT FRANCIS HOTEL LAST NIGHT FOR THE UKRAINIAN AND WHITE RUSSIAN DELEGATIONS. IT WAS ATTENDED BY STETTINIUS, EDEN AND OTHER CHAIRMEN OF DELEGATIONS. THE FOOD AND DRINK WERE ENTIRELY AMERICAN.

IT WAS PRESENTED TO THE RUSSIAN COMMISSAR LAST NIGHT IN THE LOBBY OF THE VETERANS MEMORIAL BUILDING AFTER MOLOTOV MADE A BRIEF ADDRESS HAILING V-E DAY. AS MOLOTOV WAS LEAVING, LT.COL.A.E. HOLLAND OF THE OFFICE OF INTER-AMERICAN AFFAIRS, WASHINGTON, D.C., HANDED HIM A BULKY PACKAGE.

PULLING OFF THE WRAPPING, MOLOTOV FOUND HIMSELF HOLDING A WHITE HELMET. HE EXAMINED IT CAREFULLY, SMILED AND SPEAKING IN RUSSIAN, THANKED THE COLONEL VERY MUCH FOR THE GIFT.

"YOU SEE," HOLLAND EXPLAINED, "MY WIFE IS A RUSSIAN GIRL. I LIKE THE RUSSIANS VERY MUCH--I WANTED TO EXPRESS MY ADMIRATION FOR MR.MOLOTOV."

SAN FRANCISCO, MAY 9-(AP)-WITH THE PROBLEM ASSUMING WORLD-WIDE IMPORTANCE, AMERICAN DELEGATES TODAY WERE STUDYING THREE METHODS OF FITTING REGIONAL SECURITY AGREEMENTS INTO THE PROPOSED INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION.

MAY 10 1945

DETERMINED NOT TO DESTROY THE BASIC DUMBARTON OAKS PLAN, THE AMERICANS AT THE UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE SOUGHT A WAY TO KEEP THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE MUTUAL DEFENSE PACT INTACT WITHOUT SHEARING THE PROPOSED WORLD SECURITY COUNCIL OF CONTEMPLATED POWER TO ORDER OR VETO FORCEFUL ACTION AGAINST AN AGGRESSOR.

AS TENTATIVE COMPROMISES, THESE SUGGESTIONS WERE PUT FORWARD IN CONVERSATIONS WITH OTHER POWERS:

1. PERMIT PURELY REGIONAL ACTION WITHOUT UNANIMOUS VOTE OF THE BIG-FIVE PERMANENT MEMBERS OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL.

2. PROVIDE THAT THE ACT OF CAPULTEPEC, PLEDGING AMERICAN REPUBLICS TO MUTUAL WARTIME DEFENSE, BE EXEMPTED SPECIFICALLY FROM SECURITY COUNCIL CONTROL.

3. ARRIVE AT AN UNDERSTANDING BY ALL CONCERNED THAT THE SECURITY COUNCIL RETAINS THE POWER TO ORDER OR VETO FORCEFUL ACTION BUT SHALL DELEGATE IT TO THE REGIONAL SETUP IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

IT WAS EMPHASIZED THAT THESE MERELY WERE TENTATIVE SUGGESTIONS WHICH MUST GO THROUGH THE PROCESS OF BEING REVAMPED IN LINE WITH THE IDEAS OF OTHER COUNTRIES.

FROM THEORIGINAL CONCEPTION OF THE REGIONAL CONTROVERSY AS

30.24 - 25651

PRIMARILY A WESTERN HEMISPHERE PROBLEM, THE QUESTION HAS DEVELOPED TO WORLDWIDE PROPORTIONS.

FOR INSTANCE, THE AUSTRALIANS CAME UP TODAY WITH PROPOSALS SAID TO INCLUDE ONE THAT REGIONAL ORGANIZATIONS BE PERMITTED TO TAKE THE INITIATIVE IF THE SECURITY COUNCIL FAILED TO ACT.

ANOTHER AUSTRALIAN SUGGESTION WAS THAT THE SECURITY COUNCIL COULD ACT IN REGIONAL CASES BY A SEVEN MEMBER SECURITY COUNCIL VOTE INCLUDING ONLY THREE OF THE BIG FIVE MEMBERS INSTEAD OF ALL FIVE.

THIS WOULD DIFFER FROM BIG POWER PLANS UNDER WHICH A PROPOSED SECURITY COUNCIL WOULD HAVE 11 MEMBERS, OF WHOM SEVEN, INCLUDING ALL THE BIG-FIVE, WOULD HAVE TO APPROVE BEFORE A REGIONAL SYSTEM COULD TRY TO SETTLE A REGIONAL THREAT TO PEACE.

THUS UNDER THE AUSTRALIAN SUGGESTION, THREE OF THE BIG FIVE--CHINA, FRANCE, RUSSIA, BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES--WOULD HAVE TO VOTE DISAPPROVAL IN ORDER TO PREVENT ACTION.

A73

THE AUSTRALIANS WERE SAID TO HAVE MADE IT CLEAR THAT THEY DISLIKE THE IDEA OF BEING LEFT ALONE IN THEIR PART OF THE WORLD TO DEPEND ENTIRELY ON THE SECURITY COUNCIL'S WILLINGNESS TO ACT WHEN THEY ARE THREATENED BY AN AGGRESSOR.

RECOGNIZING THE BREADTH OF THE PROBLEM, THE CONFERENCE COMMISSION DEALING WITH THIS QUESTION APPOINTED A SUBCOMMITTEE FOR INTENSIVE STUDY. ITS MEMBERS INCLUDE REPRESENTATIVES OF COLUMBIA, CHINA, AUSTRALIA, FRANCE, CHILE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA, EGYPT, RUSSIA, MEXICO, NORWAY, GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

THE AMERICAN ATTITUDE TOWARD THE REGIONAL ARRANGEMENTS PROBLEM HAS BEEN BASED PRIMARILY ON A CLEAR INTENTION TO FIND A SOLUTION WHICH WOULD NOT DESTROY THE AMERICAN SYSTEM AS EXEMPLIFIED BY THE MONROE DOCTRINE AND PAN AMERICAN AGREEMENTS--AND STILL WOULD NOT MAKE THE DUMBARTON OAKS PLAN IMPOTENT.

THE U.S. DELEGATES WERE REPRESENTED AS FLATLY OPPOSED TO BUILDING UP A WHOLE SERIES OF REGIONAL SETUPS ALL OVER THE WORLD THAT WOULD SUPERSEDE THE INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION ITSELF.

THE WHOLE QUESTION WAS PITCHED INTO THE CONFERENCE LAP BY FOUR-POWER SPONSORSHIP OF AN AMENDMENT WHICH WOULD EXEMPT FROM SECURITY COUNCIL AUTHORITY THE MUTUAL DEFENSE TREATIES SIGNED BY RUSSIA WITH FRANCE, YUGOSLAVIA AND THE WARSAW POLISH GOVERNMENT. THIS EXEMPTION, HOWEVER, WOULD EXTEND ONLY TO FORCEFUL ACTION AGAINST GERMANY AND HER AXIS PARTNERS OF THIS WAR.

IT WAS SAID FLATLY THERE WAS NO THOUGHT WITHIN THE AMERICAN DELEGATION OF CANCELLING THAT EXEMPTION FOR THE RUSSIANS.

SAN FRANCISCO, MAY 9-(AP)-RUSSIAN PROPOSALS THAT THE NEW WORLD TRADE UNION ~~CONG~~RESS BE PERMITTED TO PLAY A ROLE IN THE UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE TODAY WON A PARTIAL VICTORY.

THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE DISCUSSING CREATION OF A WORLD ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL VOTED, 25 TO 3, TO ADMIT WTUC REPRESENTATIVES AS CONSULTANTS, ON A MOTION PLACED BY A.A.ARUTINIAN, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF ECONOMICS IN RUSSIA'S FOREIGN OFFICE.

THE ADMISSION OF THE WTUC CONSULTANTS TO THIS PARTICULAR COMMITTEE FOLLOWED A MOVE LAST WEEK, MADE BY RUSSIA'S FOREIGN COMMISSAR V.M.MOLOTOV, TO HAVE WTUC REPRESENTATIVES ACCREDITED TO THE CONFERENCE. MOLOTOV DID NOT MAKE IT CLEAR AT THE TIME HOW THEY WOULD PARTICIPATE.

THE COMMITTEE VOTED TO ADMIT CONSULTANTS FROM THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR OFFICE AS WELL, AND FROM THREE OTHER INTERNATIONAL GROUPS: THE UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION ORGANIZATION, THE UNITED NATIONS FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION, AND THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

THERE IS A MAJOR DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE ILO AND THE NEW WTUC. THE ILO IS A TRI-PARTITE ORGANIZATION WHICH INCLUDES, AT ITS ANNUAL CONFERENCES, REPRESENTATIVES FROM THREE NATIONAL GROUPS: LABOR, GOVERNMENT AND EMPLOYERS. THE WTUC WILL HAVE LABOR REPRESENTATIVES ALONE.

RUSSIA'S INTEREST IS PROMOTING A WORLD LABOR PROGRAM, SOLELY SPONSORED BY LABOR, WAS REVEALED AT MEETINGS TO WRITE THE WTUC CONSTITUTION. RUSSIAN DELEGATES PROPOSED, BUT LOST, A MOTION TO PERMIT THE GOVERNING BODY OF THE WTUC TO DICTATE A WORLD POLICY TO MEMBER NATIONAL FEDERATIONS. BRITISH, BELGIAN AND AMERICAN DELEGATES PROTESTED THAT THEIR NATIONAL FEDERATIONS WOULD NEVER ACCEPT DICTATION FROM A WORLD BODY.

THE WORLD TRADE UNION CONGRESS IS STILL IN THE PROCESS OF FORMATION. ITS EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE HAS JUST WRITTEN A CONSTITUTION WHICH IS BEING CIRCULATED AMONG THE NATIONAL LABOR FEDERATIONS OF 35 NATIONS.

RUSSIA HAS PLAYED A LEADING ROLE IN FORMING THE NEW ORGANIZATION ON WHICH THE CIO IS REPRESENTED BY SIDNEY HILLMAN. PRESIDENT WILLIAM GREEN HAS SAID THE AF OF L WILL NEVER JOIN THE WTUC BECAUSE IT PROMISES TO "ENSLAVE AND ENCHAIN THE WORKERS OF THE WORLD TO THE STATE."

SMITH SAID KEITEL WAS THE PERSONIFICATION OF PRUSSIAN AND NAZI ARROGANCE. KEITEL CARRIED THE BATON PRESENTED TO HIM BY HITLER AND ALONE OF ALL THE GERMAN OFFICERS IN THE ROOM WORE THE GOLD BADGE OF HONORABLE NAZI SERVICE TO HITLER, SMITH SAID.

FOLLOWING IS SMITH'S BROADCAST:

"THE GREATEST V-E DAY OF ALL HAPPENED YESTERDAY IN, OF ALL PLACES, BERLIN.

"THE RUSSIANS DEMANDED THAT, IN ADDITION TO THE ARTICLES OF SURRENDER SIGNED THREE DAYS AGO IN GEN.EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS,

THE COMMANDERS OF ALL THREE GERMAN ARMED FORCES MEET THEM FOR RATIFICATION OF THAT SURRENDER IN THE CAPITAL OF GERMANY. THIS MORNING I HAVE JUST COME BACK FROM BERLIN AFTER WATCHING THE NEW SIGNATURE LAST NIGHT IN MARSHAL ZHUKOV'S HEADQUARTERS IN A SIGNATURE LAST NIGHT IN MARSHAL ZHUKOV'S HEADQUARTERS IN A SUBURB IN EASTERN BERLIN.

"THE EVENT WAS DOMINATED BY THE TANGIBLE PRESENCE OF TWO MEN--GREGORY ZHUKOF, RUSSIA'S GREATEST, AND PERHAPS ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST, MILITARY COMMANDERS, AND HITLER'S FIELD MARSHAL, WILHELM KEITEL, THE PERSONIFICATION AND, IF HUMANITY IS LUCKY, THE LAST GASP OF PRUSSIAN MILITARISM. IT WAS HUMILIATION FOR FIELD MARSHAL KEITEL TO STAND BEFORE, AS THE PRUSSIANS CALL THEM, "A PROLETARIAN FROM RED RUSSIA", AND BEG SURRENDER. HE FOUGHT BACK WITH ALL THE ARROGANCE HE WAS CAPABLE OF.

"HE ENTERED THE DINING HALL OF THE GERMAN ARMY ENGINEERING SCHOOL, WHERE THE CEREMONY TOOK PLACE, AND SALUTED STIFFLY WITH THE FIELD MARSHAL'S BATON GIVEN HIM BY HITLER AND BEARING THE ENGRAVED SWASTIKA OF HITLER. OF ALL THE GERMAN DELEGATION, KEITEL ALONE WORE, IN ADDITION TO HIS MILITARY DECORATIONS, THE NAZI PARTY GOLDEN BADGE OF SERVICE TO HITLER.

"KEITEL WAS NERVOUS AND IRRITATED. HE KEPT BOBBING HIS MONOCLE INTO HIS EYE AND OUT AGAIN. HE SIGNED THE DOCUMENTS OF CAPITULATION BUT AS SOON AS HE HAD DONE SO AND RESUMED HIS CHAIR HE BEGAN GESTICULATING AND ARGUING WITH THE INTERPRETERS.

"QUICKLY THE RUMOR CIRCULATED ABOUT THE ROOM THAT KEITEL WANTED TO WITHDRAW HIS SIGNATURE. I EDGED AROUND THE ROOM UNTIL I STOOD DIRECTLY BEHIND HIM AND THE INTERPRETER. KEITEL WAS REQUESTING 24 HOURS MORE BEFORE THE SURRENDER WENT INTO EFFECT. HE CLAIMED HE DID NOT HAVE TIME TO INFORM HIS TROOPS OF THE TERMS OF CAPITULATION.

"FINALLY, THE INTERPRETER WENT OVER TO MARSHAL ZHUKOV AND STATED KEITEL'S CASE. BUT THERE WERE THREE MEN LISTENING, THE THREE MEN WHO MORE THAN ANY OTHER, HAVE CRUSHED BERLIN. GEN.CARL SPAATZ, COMMANDER OF THE AMERICAN STRATEGIC BOMBERS WAS ONE, CHIEF AIR MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR TEDDER OF THE RAF WAS ANOTHER AND ZHUKOV, WHO TOOK BERLIN, WAS THE THIRD. NOT ONE OF THEM GAVE ANY SIGN OF WISHING TO ANSWER.

"WHEN KEITEL SAW THAT HE SLAMMED SHUT HIS PORTFOLIO, CONTAINING THE SIGNED COPIES OF THE SURRENDER, HE STOOD STIFFLY, SALUTED BRUSKLY WITH HIS BATON, AND MARCHED OUT OF THE ROOM. IT WAS THE LAST WORD IN HUMILIATION FOR A JUNKER AND A NAZI.

"TO WATCH THE CEREMONY, EIGHT CORRESPONDENTS FROM SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ARRIVED IN BERLIN BY AIRPLANE YESTERDAY AT NOON. A HAZE COVERED THE CITY. THE HAZE CAME FROM SMOKE STILL SMOLDERING FROM FIRES, BUT THROUGH IT YOU COULD EASILY SEE MILE AFTER MILE OF ROOFLESS, JAGGED HOLES OF HOUSES. WE LANDED AT TEMPELHOF AIRFIELD. TWO HOURS AFTER WE LANDED THE CHARRED ADMINISTRATION BUILDINGS OF TEMPELHOF BURST OUT INTO FLAMES. THEY TOLD US THAT A TIME BOMB LEFT BY THE NAZIS HAD EXPLODED.

"SEEING BERLIN ON THE GROUND WAS ONE OF THE MOST AMAZING EXPERIENCES OF MY LIFE. I LEFT BERLIN THE DAY OF PEARL HARBOR. I KNOW THE CENTER OF THE CITY AS WELL AS I KNOW THE CORNERS OF MY BEDROOM, BUT IF I HAD BEEN DROPPED IN BERLIN WITHOUT ANY PREVIOUS DIRECTIONS I WOULD HAVE BEEN LOST. IT BEARS NOT THE SLIGHTEST RESEMBLANCE TO THE BERLIN I KNEW. IT'S THE MOST ENORMOUS, ALMOST TERRIFYING WRECK OF CONCENTRATED DESTRUCTION IN HISTORY. THE FAMOUS ADLON HOTEL, WHERE HITLER LODGED VISITING DIPLOMATS AND WHERE I HAD HOPED TO FIND A HOME SHOULD I RETURN TO BERLIN, IS A HEAP OF DUST.

"JUST A FEW HOURS AGO I WAS DRIVING DOWN THE VALLEY OF RUBBLE WHICH USED TO BE THE WILHELMSTRASSE, THE GOVERNMENT STREET. A COLLEAGUE ASKED ME TO POINT OUT GOEBBELS' PROPAGANDA MINISTRY. I POINTED AUTOMATICALLY AS THE CAR DROVE SWIFTLY BY. BUT ALL I SAW WAS SKY. THE PROPAGANDA MILL OF GOEBBELS HAD BEEN LITERALLY WIPED OUT."

NEW YORK, MAY 9-(AP)-REDUCTION IN MILITARY MEASURES FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE EASTERN SEABOARD, GULF COAST AND MEXICAN BORDER IN THE EASTERN DEFENSE COMMAND WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY BY LT.GEN.GEORGE GRUNERT, COMMANDING GENERAL, EASTERN DEFENSE COMMAND.

GEN.GRUNERT, WHOSE COMMAND INCLUDES ALL OF THE CONTINENTAL UNITED STATES EXCEPT THE EIGHT PACIFIC STATES OF THE WESTERN DEFENSE COMMAND, EMPHASIZED THAT CERTAIN MINIMUM PASSIVE PROTECTIVE MEASURES WOULD CONTINUE DURING THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN.

IN THE REDUCTION, ORDERS HAVE BEEN ISSUED ABOLISHING COASTAL RESTRICTED ZONES COVERING THE SHORELINE OF THE ATLANTIC COAST, THUS ELIMINATING ALL MILITARY RESTRICTION RELATING TO THE CONDUCT OF PERSONS ON BEACHES.

ORDERS HAVE ALSO BEEN ISSUED RESCINDING DIMOUT REGULATIONS, WHICH WERE SUSPENDED NOV 1,1943, AND AIR RAID PROTECTION REGULATIONS, THUS TERMINATING MILITARY ENFORCEMENT OF SUCH MEASURES INCLUDING BLACKOUT.

MEASURES RELATING TO DIMOUT AND AIR RAID PROTECTIVE OBSCUREMENT WILL NO LONGER BE REQUIRED OF THE PUBLIC, BUT IF REMOVAL OF STRUCTURES ERECTED FOR THESE PURPOSES IS A WAR DEPARTMENT RESPONSIBILITY, ARRANGEMENTS FOR THEIR REMOVAL MUST BE MADE THROUGH THE RESPECTIVE SERVICE COMMANDERS.

IN ORDER TO PROTECT VITAL WAR PLANTS AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS, THE ZONING SYSTEM, EXCEPT FOR THE COASTAL RESTRICTED ZONES, WILL BE CONTINUED UNTIL THE DEFEAT OF THE JAPANESE, ALTHOUGH AFTER FURTHER STUDY, MANY EXISTING PROHIBITED ZONES AND NON-COASTAL RESTRICTED ZONES WILL BE ABOLISHED.

SIMILARLY, MEASURES FOR THE CONTROL OF AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY AND FOR THE CONTROL OF FLYING IN THE EASTERN VITAL AIR DEFENSE ZONE MUST BE CONTINUED IN SOME DEGREE DURING THE WAR WITH JAPAN. THE EXACT DEGREE OF MODIFICATION IS NOW BEING DETERMINED.

NEW YORK, MAY 9-(AP)-THE ARREST OF 16 POLISH UNDERGROUND LEADERS BY THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT WAS CALLED "BUT A SYMBOL OF THE GENERAL METHOD OF RED TERROR IN POLAND" IN A TELEGRAM SENT TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN BY THE COORDINATING COMMITTEE OF AMERICAN POLISH ASSOCIATIONS IN THE EAST, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT.

MAY 10 1945

THE COMMITTEE CLAIMED TO REPRESENT 117 COUNCILS, ARISHES, PARISH SOCIETIES, AND LOCAL BRANCHES OF FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS OF AMERICANS OF POLISH DESCENT IN EIGHT EASTERN STATES.

DECLARING THAT THE ARREST OF THE 16 MEN WAS "AN OUTRAGEOUS VIOLATION OF ALL PRINCIPLES OF INTERNATIONAL CONDUCT ACCEPTED BY EVERY CIVILIZED NATION FOR CENTURIES" AND PART OF A SOVIET CAMPAIGN "OF VIOLENCE AND GRADUAL SOVIETIZATION IMPOSED ON THE POLISH PEOPLE," THE MESSAGE DEMANDED:

THAT THE PRESIDENT TAKE IMMEDIATE MEASURES TO PREVENT THE MOCK TRIAL OF THE 16 PLENIPOTENTIARIES AND TO OBTAIN THEIR IMMEDIATE RELEASE;

THAT "THE BLACKOUT OVER POLAND BE PIERCED BY SENDING INTERALLIED MILITARY MISSIONS AND REPRESENTATIVES OF THE FREE PRESS TO END PERSECUTION IN POLAND";

THAT "THE RUSSIAN ACT BE PRESENTED TO THE ASSEMBLED DELEGATES AT SAN FRANCISCO FOR THEIR JOINT DISCUSSION AND APPRAISAL"; AND THAT THE POLISH GOVERNMENT IN LONDON BE IMMEDIATELY INVITED TO REPRESENT POLAND AT SAN FRANCISCO AND ALL DELEGATES AT THE CONFERENCE BE ASKED TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION.

THE STATES REPRESENTED WERE ANNOUNCED AS CONNECTICUT, DELAWARE, MARYLAND, MASSACHUSETTS, NEW JERSEY, NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA AND RHODE ISLAND.

(NY) BOTH PRAISE AND CENSURE WERE HEAPED ON EDWARD KENNEDY YESTERDAY (WEDNESDAY) FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS PARIS BUREAU CHIEF'S ACTION IN SENDING NEWS OF THE GERMAN SURRENDER 24 HOURS BEFORE IT WAS OFFICIALLY RELEASED.

IN EDITORIALS WRITTEN AFTER RELEASE OF NEWS THAT MANY OF KENNEDY'S RIVAL WAR CORRESPONDENTS HAD ACCUSED HIM OF "A MOST DISGRACEFUL, DELIBERATE AND UNETHICAL DOUBLE-CROSS," THE REACTION WAS VARIED TO THE EXTENT THAT ONE WRITER REFERRED TO "AN ACT OF BLATANT IRRESPONSIBILITY" WHILE ANOTHER OFFERED "PROFOUND CONGRATULATIONS."

MAY 10 1945

"FINAL JUDGMENT SHOULD BE WITHHELD," SAID THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE. "BUT ASIDE FROM MR.KENNEDY'S RESPONSIBILITY TO HIS COLLEAGUES AND TO THE SANCTITY OF THE 'RELEASE'--WITHOUT WHICH MUCH MODERN NEWS REPORTING WOULD BE ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE--THERE IS A GRAVER QUESTION: THE REPORTER OFTEN FINDS HIMSELF IN A DILEMMA BETWEEN HIS PUBLIC DUTY TO CONVEY THE NEWS AND HIS EQUALLY SERIOUS PUBLIC DUTY TO AVOID IRRESPONSIBLE OR DAMAGING DISCLOSURES. WITH A WAR ONLY HALF WON AND AT A MOMENT WHEN SERIOUS ISSUES OF POLICY MIGHT HAVE BEEN AFFECTED BY HIS PERSONAL DECISION ONE CANNOT FEEL THAT MR.KENNEDY SOLVED THAT DILEMMA WISELY."

"THE ASSOCIATED PRESS DESERVES PROFOUND CONGRATULATIONS FOR ITS COVERAGE OF THE SURRENDER OF GERMANY," SAID THE LEXINGTON (KY.) LEADER. "ALL PRESS ASSOCIATIONS, NEWSPAPERS HAVE BEEN CHAFING FOR SOME TIME UNDER THE YOKE OF CENSORSHIP BUT HAVE RAISED NO SERIOUS OBJECTION BECAUSE THEY FELT CENSORSHIP, FOR SECURITY REASONS, PROBABLY JUSTIFIED.

"BUT THERE WAS NO SECURITY FACTOR TO DICTATE WITHHOLDING OF GERMAN CAPITULATION. RATHER, THERE WAS INTIMATION THAT NEWS COULD BE RELEASED ONLY BY GOVERNMENTAL CHIEFS, WHO ACTED IN THEIR OWN GOOD TIME AND EVENTUALLY MADE THE ANNOUNCEMENT LONG HOURS AFTER THE FEARS AND ANXIETY OF MOTHERS, AND FATHERS OF SERVICE MEN SHOULD HAVE BEEN OFFICIALLY ALLAYED."

OTHER EDITORIAL COMMENT:

CHICAGO SUN: THE ONLY RELEVANT POINT IS THAT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, HANDLING A MATTER OF UTMOST DELICACY AS REGARDS THE RELATIONS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND THE WESTERN ALLIES, APPARENTLY PERMITTED NEWSMEN TO WITNESS THE SURRENDER ONLY ON CONDITION THAT THE STORIES BE HELD UNTIL SIVULTANEOUS ANNOUNCEMENT BY MESSRS. TRUMAN, CHURCHILL AND STALIN. IF THESE ARE THE FACTS, THE VIOLATION OF THIS AGREEMENT WAS AN ACT OF BLATANT IRRESPONSIBILITY NOT TO BE EXCUSED BY INVOKING THE 'RIGHTS' OF A FREE PRESS."

MAY 10 1945

JOHN P. LEWIS, EDITOR, WRITING IN PM: "I AGREE WITH THE CORRESPONDENTS THAT HIS ACTION WAS DISGRACEFUL AND UNETHICAL X X X THE AP AND MEMBER PAPERS IN THIS KIND OF A CASE ARE HURT BY SUCH A BAN, BUT THAT IS SMALL COMPARED WITH THE DAMAGE DONE WHEN THE MOST IMPORTANT SINGLE FREEDOM IS UNDERMINED. THAT IS THE ROAD TO PERMANENT MILITARY CONTROL OF THE PRESS, AND TO FASCISM.

"I AM SHOCKED THAT THE CORRESPONDENTS AT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS ARE SO UNMINDFUL OF THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS THAT THEY WOULD BACK AN ARMY IN WEAKENING THE PEOPLE'S STRUCTURE OF FREEDOM TO PUNISH AN ERRING MEMBER OF THEIR CRAFT."

THE BANGOR, ME., DAILY NEWS, WHOSE CORRESPONDENT, JOHN M. O'CONNELL, JR., WAS ONE OF TWO NEWSMEN WHO VOTED AGAINST DISCIPLINARY ACTION FOR KENNEDY, SAID:

MAY 10 1945

"IT IS TO THE HONOR OF THE AMERICAN PRESS THAT A PAIR OF AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS COURAGEOUSLY REFUSED TO CROOK THEIR KNEES AT SUCH AN OUTRAGE. AND THE BANGOR DAILY NEWS IS PROUDER THAN EVER OF ITS OWN JOHN M. O'CONNELL, JR., BECAUSE HE WAS ONE OF THE PAIR.

"IN THE AUTUMN OF 1918 AN AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT SENT A FALSE ARMISTICE FLASH AND NOTHING HAPPENED TO HIM. IN THE SPRING OF 1945 AN AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT SENDS AITRUE SURRENDER STORY--AND PUNISHMENT IS SWIFT AND SAVAGE.

"WE'RE CERTAINLY GETTING SOMEWHERE FAST. WE'RE GETTING RIGHT BACK TO THE DARK AGES."

LEWISTON, ME., JOURNAL:

MAY 10 1945

"IT WAS FITTING THAT THE PEOPLES OF THE UNITED NATIONS SHOULD LEARN OF THE VICTORY AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE MOMENT. NO MILITARY AUTHORITY SHOULD BE PUNISHING A PRESS ASSOCIATION FOR PROMPTLY GIVING THE NEWS OF THE GERMAN SURRENDER."

THE NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM, A SCRIPPS-HOWARD NEWSPAPER:

"THE ONLY PRINTED EXPLANATION SO FAR CREDITED TO MR. KENNEDY IS THAT HE DID NOT THINK SHAEF HAD ANY RIGHT TO IMPOSE A PLEDGE TO WITHHOLD THE STORY UNTIL OFFICIALLY RELEASED. THAT EXCUSE WILL NOT STAND UP. TO BECOME AN ACCREDITED CORRESPONDENT MR. KENNEDY WAS OBLIGED TO PLEDGE HIMSELF TO ABIDE BY JUST SUCH RULES AS COVERED THIS CASE. TO PROTEST THE RULES AFTER ACCEPTING THE RESTRICTED INFORMATION WAS TOO LATE. THE OTHER CORRESPONDENTS KEPT THEIR WORD."

THE NASHVILLE TENNESSEAN:

"WHATEVER REGRETTABLE CIRCUMSTANCES SURROUNDING THE BREAKING OF THE STORY BY KENNEDY, GENERAL EISENHOWER IS TO BE COMMENDED IN ORDERING AN END TO THE SUSPENSION OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS' FILING PRIVILEGES. - THE SUSPENSION IS TO BE DEPLORED TOTALLY APART FROM THE QUESTION OF THE INNOCENCE OR GUILT OF KENNEDY. IT WAS A PENALTY WHICH FELL ON HUNDREDS OF NEWSPAPERS, PARTICULARLY SMALL NEWSPAPERS, THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY WHICH DEPEND ENTIRELY ON THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FOR NEWS OF THE EUROPEAN AREA."

CHICAGO TRIBUNE:

"THE RIDICULOUS SUSPENSION OF THE RIGHTS OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS TO FILE NEWS FROM EUROPE FOR SOME HOURS MONDAY EMPHASIZES THAT THE TIME HAS ARRIVED TO WIND UP THE MILITARY CENSORSHIP EVERYWHERE IN EUROPE, EXCEPT AS TO THE FEW DETAILS GOVERNING LEGITIMATE MATTERS OF SECURITY AFFECTING THE WAR WITH JAPAN. THE OFFENSE OF THE AP WAS TO TELL THE AMERICAN PUBLIC WHAT IT WAS ENTITLED TO KNOW--THAT ALL GERMAN RESISTANCE HAD ENDED WITH UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER."

THE PORTLAND, ME., PRESS:

MAY 10 1945

"IT MAY BE SAID THAT SHAEF HAD NOT 'OFFICIALLY' RELEASED THE STORY FOR PUBLICATION BUT THE AP CORRESPONDENT, EDWARD KENNEDY, REFUSED TO CONSIDER HIMSELF BOUND BY THIS BLACKOUT UPON NOT MILITARY BUT POLITICAL NEWS. IF HE HAD NOT ACTED UPON THIS BELIEF, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN TUESDAY AFTERNOON BEFORE A SPECIAL SHAEF COMMUNIQUE NO. 6 ANNOUNCED TO THE WORLD THE SURRENDER AT 2:41 A.M. MONDAY. THE ABSURDITY OF THIS ARTIFICIAL RETICENCE IS THAT THE GERMAN RADIO ALMOST AT ONCE GAVE OUT THE NEWS. THE GERMANS, THE VANQUISHED, COULD KNOW

LUZ, HAVANA, IN AN EDITORIAL WRITTEN BY ITS EDITOR, MANUEL BRANA:

"WHAT DID KENNEDY DO? HE SIMPLY SENT FROM REIMS THE NEWS THAT HAS OCCURRED THERE. IT WAS SENSATIONAL NEWS. IT WAS NEWS THAT THE WORLD HAD BEEN WAITING WITH UNCONTAINABLE ANXIETY. IT CANNOT BE ARGUED THAT HIS INFORMATIVE ZEAL IN GETTING OUT THE STORY HAS OFFERED ANY INFORMATION TO ANY ENEMY WHICH HAD ALREADY SURRENDERED IN DEFEAT. KENNEDY WAS THE CHIEF CORRESPONDENT OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, THE GREATEST NEWU GATHERING AGENCY IN THE WORLD, A VERITABLE CORNERSTONE OF FREE AND RESPONSIBLE JOURNALISM. MR. KENNEDY HAD A TRUST THAT TRANSCENDED HIS OWN INTEGRITY, FOR HE REPRESENTED TWELVE HUNDRED-ODD NEWSPAPERS IN THIS COUNTRY WHICH COMPOSE THE ASSOCIATED PRESS MEMBERSHIP. IT IS THEY WHO MUST NOW MAKE CLEAR, SO THAT IT IS UNDERSTOOD FOR ALL TIME, THAT THEY WOULD PREFER NOT TO RECEIVE A STORY THAN HAVE A 'NEWS BEAT' EVEN OF SUCH TRANSCENDING IMPORTANCE SECURED IN SUCH A MANNER.

OBVIOUSLY THERE WAS NO SUCH UNDERSTANDING, AND, ON THE BASIS OF THE INFORMATION NOW AVAILABLE, MR. KENNEDY TOOK ADVANTAGE OF HIS ASSOCIATES AND GRAVELY MISSERVED HIS EMPLOYERS.

"THIS NEWSPAPER VALUES ITS MEMBERSHIP IN THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, AND FOR THAT REASON REGRETS THE DESIGNATION BY THE A.P. MANAGEMENT OF MR. KENNEDY'S STORY AS A 'NEWS BEAT ACCLAIMED BY EDITORS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AS ONE OF THE GREATEST IN NEWUPAPER HISTORY.' THAT MAY BE A FACTUAL STATEMENT. CERTAINLY IT WAS MADEWENTES MANAGEMENT WAS IN THE DARK AS TO THE FACTS AND WAS FIGHTING TO OBTAIN NEWS FOR THOSE IT SERVES, IN THE FACE OF A SWEEPING AND ILL-CONSIDERED BAN IMPOSED FOR SOME HOURS BY SHAEF ON ALL ASSOCIATED PRESS COMMUNICATIONS. BUT IF IT WAS A "BEAT", IT WAS ONE ONLY BECAUSE MR. KENNEDY'S FIFTEEN COLLEAGUES CHOSE TO STAND BY THEIR COMMITMENTS. WE CAN SEE NO CAUSE FOR BOASTING HERE. A PARTNER IN SUPPRESSING NEWS IT HAD EVERY REASON TO BELIEVE WAS AUTHENTIC. IF MR. KENNEDY ACCEPTED AIPLACE IN THE ARMY'S OFFICIAL PLANE UNDER STIPULATED CONDITIONS, WE BELIEVE HE SHOULD HAVE ABIDED BY THEM--BUT THAT IS THE LESSER OF THE ISSUES INVOLVED.

ADD UNDAGI CENSORSHIP KXX STORY

KENNEDY HAS BEEN UNDER SUSPENSION BY SUPREME HEADQUARTERS IN PARIS SINCE SHORTLY AFTER HE TELEPHONED HIS STORY TO LONDON ON MONDAY. HE HAS NOT BEEN ALLOWED TO SEND MESSAGES OF ANY DESCRIPTION, AND THEREFORE HAS BEEN UNABLE TO SUPPLY HIS OWN ACCOUNT OF THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE NEWS STORY THAT WON ENTHUSIASTIC PRAISE FROM MANY AMERICAN EDITORS OR TO REPLY TO PUBLISHED CRITICISM OF HIS ACTIONS BY RIVAL CORRESPONDENTS.

FOR SIX HOURS AND TWENTY MINUTES MONDAY THE ENTIRE ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER WAS UNDER SIMILAR SUSPENSION, BUT THIS WAS LIFTED FOR ALL EXCEPT KENNEDY.

SUBSEQUENTLY, YESTERDAY AFTERNOON, MORTON GUDEBROD OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS PARIS STAFF ALSO WAS SUSPENDED. HE HAD HANDLED THE SURRENDER STORY ON MONDAY FOR FRENCH NEWSPAPERS, WITH THE APPROVAL OF FRENCH CENSORSHIP.

LIFTING OF THE GENERAL SUSPENSION ORDER AGAINST THE AP FOLLOWED A REQUEST BY MR. COOPER TO SECRETARY OF WAR STIMSON AND A MESSAGE FROMT COOPER TO EISENHOWER INQUIRING AS TO THE CIRCUMSTANCES.

GEN. EISENHOWER REPLIED THROUGH WAR DEPARTMENT CHANNELS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON TO MR. COOPER'S ORIGINAL MESSAGE AS FOLLOWS:

"ASSOCIATED PRESS SUSPENDED DURING INVESTIGATION OF METHOD TRANSMISSION OF RELEASE UNAUTHORIZED STORY THIS DATE UNSUBMITTED SHAEF CENSORSHIP CHANNELS, REFERENCE YOUR MESSAGE TO GENERAL EISENHOWER DATED 7TH MAY.

"SUSPENSION FILING PRIVILEGES ASSOCIATED PRESS REVOKED AND AUTHORITY NOW GRANTED CORRESPONDENTS OTHER THAN ED KENNEDY TO SUBMIT MATERIAL FOR TRANSMISSION.

"KENNEDY SUSPENDED DUE SELF-ADMITTED DELIBERATE VIOLATION SHAEF REGULATIONS AND BREACH CONFIDENCE. INVESTIGATION FILING STORY BY KENNEDY CONTINUES AND REPORT RESULTS OF FINDINGS WILL BE COMMUNICATED YOU AS SOON AS PRACTICABLE."

MR. COOPER RELAYED THIS MESSAGE BACK TO KENNEDY IN PARIS FOR HIS INFORMATION, SINCE IT HAD NOT BEEN MADE PUBLIC THERE, AND ALSO SENT THE FOLLOWING REPLY TO GEN. EISENHOWER:

"THIS IS ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF YOUR REPLY TO MY MESSAGE MAY 7 WITH APPRECIATION FOR YOUR EXPLANATION OF THE DECISION REVOKING SUSPENSION OF ASSOCIATED PRESS PRIVILEGES. I RSPECTFULLY AND URGENTLY REQUEST YOUR CONSIDERATION OF THE FOLLOWING:

"FIRST, THAT EVERY FACILITY BE AFFORDED EDWARD KENNEDY TO STATE HIS CASE PERSONALLY AND TO TRANSMIT THE FULLEST REPORT THEREOF TO ME AS REQUESTED IN MY MESSAGE TO YOU YESTERDAY SO THAT THE AMERICAN PEOPL AS WELL AS MEMBERS OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS MAY BE APPRISED COMPLETELY OF THE FACTS CONNECTED WITH KENNEDY'S TRANSMISSION OF THE GERMAN SURRENDER STORY INSTEAD OF BEING LIMITED TO THE BRIEF UNILATERAL AND UNDOCUMENTED STATEMENT CONTAINED IN YOUR REPLY;

"SECONDLY, THAT THE POSITION OF SUPREME HEADQUARTERS BE STATED AS RESPECTING THE ELEMENTS OF MILITARY SECURITY INVOLVED IN CONNECTION WITH THIS STORY, PARTICULARLY IN THE LIGHT OF GERMAN BROADCASTS PROCLAIMING THE SURRENDER WHICH WERE PUBLISHED GENERALLY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD APPROXIMATELY ONE HOUR BEFORE THE ASSOCIATED PRESS RECEIVED KENNEDY'S FIRST DISPATCH;

"THIRDLY, THAT YOU MAKE EQUALLY AVAILABLE TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AND REPRESENTATIVES OF ALL OTHER NEWS AND RADIO ORGANIZATIONS A PRECISE STATEMENT SETTING FORTH CATEGORICALLY REASONS FOR MAINTAINING WHAT CAN NOW BE ONLY MILITARY CENSORSHIP OVER CIVIL AFFAIRS SINCE THERE IS NO LONGER ANY EUROPEAN ENEMY. I SUGGEST THIS BECAUSE THERE IS GENERAL CONCERN OVER POSSIBILITY OF CONTINUANCE OF CENSORSHIP OVER POLITICAL MATTERS IN A EUROPE AT PEACE, AND ANYTHING YOU CAN DO WHICH WILL GIVE IMMEDIATE EFFECT TO REMOVAL OF SUCH CENSORSHIP WILL BE HAILED BY THE AMERICAN PUBLIC, WHICH, FROM EXPRESSIONS RECEIVED HERE, CONSIDERS OF TRANSCENDENT IMPORTANCE THE REMOVAL OF ANY OBSTACLE TO COVERAGE OF NEWS OF THE EUROPEAN RECONSTRUCTION."

MAY 10 1945

ALTHOUGH KENNEDY STILL WAS UNABLE TO FILE EITHER STORIES OR MESSAGES OF ANY NATURE, OTHER MEMBERS OF THE AP PARIS STAFF WERE PERMITTED TO SEND TO NEW YORK YESTERDAY THE REMAINDER OF KENNEDY'S REIMS DISPATCH OF MONDAY, BUT WERE NOT PERMITTED TO ATTRIBUTE IT TO HIM.

KENNEDY HAD WRITTEN 1,500 WORDS OF THIS DISPATCH IN REIMS AFTER WITNESSING THE SURRENDER SIGNATURES AND HAD IT APPROVED BY A FIELD CENSOR.

THE FIRST 300 WORDS OF THIS DISPATCH WAS TELEPHONED FROM PARIS TO LONDON BY KENNEDY ON MONDAY BEFORE THE CONNECTION WAS BROKEN.

RELMAN MORIN OF THE AP PARIS STAFF REPORTED THAT KENNEDY DID SO AFTER HEARING THE GERMAN RADIO ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE SURRENDER AN HOUR PREVIOUSLY AND AFTER NOTIFYING THE SHAEF CENSOR THAT HE INTENDED TO FILE HIS STORY.

"HE SAID HE CONSIDERED THE FUNCTION OF HIS STAFF AND HIS OWN FUNCTION WAS TO REPORT NEWS, AND THAT HE DID NOT FEEL BOUND BY ANY CONSIDERATIONS OF 'POLITICAL CENSORSHIP,'" MORIN WROTE. HE SAID THAT IN VIEW OF THE GERMAN AND OTHER BROADCASTS CONCERNING A SURRENDER, KENNEDY FELT THERE WAS NO QUESTION OF MILITARY SECURITY INVOLVED.

LARRY RUE, CHICAGO TRIBUNE WAR CORRESPONDENT AT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, SENT A DISPATCH TO HIS PAPER QUOTING KENNEDY AS SAYING:

"WE ARE INTERESTED IN GIVING THE PUBLIC THE NEWS AND NOT IN PLEASING SHAEF PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICERS. WE TRIED TO PLAY OUR PART AND SEND THE STORY, BUT WERE PREVENTED FROM DOING SO BY THE PUBLIC RELATIONS DIVISION, WHICH HAS FORBIDDEN US EVEN TO SEND SERVICE MESSAGES NOT INTENDED FOR PUBLICATION.

"SINCE WE HAVE BEEN ASSURED THE PURPOSE OF MILITARY CENSORSHIP IS FOR SECURITY, AND WE NOW KNOW THERE NO LONGER IS ANY MILITARY SECURITY INVOLVED, I WONDER WHY SHAEF CENSORSHIP SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO EXIST. I, FOR ONE, AM IN FAVOR OF ITS IMMEDIATE ABOLITION."

BRIG.GEN.FRANK ALLEN, DIRECTOR OF THE SHAEF PUBLIC RELATIONS DIVISION, EMPHASIZED IN PARIS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON THAT THE SUSPENSION OF KENNEDY AND GUDEBROD WAS NOT DISCIPLINARY BUT WAS PENDING COMPLETION OF AN INVESTIGATION WHICH WAS STILL IN PROGRESS.

IN WASHINGTON, COL.LUTHER L.HILL, ACTING DIRECTOR OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT BUREAU OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, SAID THE DEPARTMEUVPHDBLNOT CONTEM

MENT BUREAU OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, SAID THE DEPARTMENT WAS NOT CONTEMPLATING TAKING ANY ACTION IN THE MATTER, ADDING: "IT IS BEING HANDLED

BY GEN.EISENHOWER'S HEADQUARTERS. GEN.EISENHOWER HAS PUBLICLY STATED THAT NO ACTION WILL BE TAKEN WHICH WILL AFFECT THE LEGITIMATE TRANSMISSION OF ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES TO ITS MEMBER PAPERS."
KENNEDY, UNABLE TO FILE A WORD, WAS STILL TO BE HEARD FROM.

WASHINGTON,MAY 8-(AP)-THE 7TH WAR LOAN DRIVE WILL BEGIN NEXT MONDAY ON SCHEDULE WITH ALL ITS EMPHASIS ON CRUSHING THE JAPANESE.

"VICTORY OVER GERMANY HAS NOT LESSENED THE GOVERNMENT'S NEED FOR THIS LOAN," SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY HENRY MORGENTHAU, JR., SAID TODAY.

MAY 10 1945

MORGENTHAU SAID IN A STATEMENT THAT:

1. EVERY AMERICAN CAN HELP CELEBRATE V-E DAY BY BUYING MORE WAR BONDS.

2. EVERY BOND BOUGHT DURING THE 7TH WAR LOAN WILL BRING V-J DAY NEARER.

TED R.GAMBLE, WAR FINANCE DIRECTOR, SAID THE COLLAPSE OF GERMANY SHOULD "GIVE US RENEWED COURAGE AND DETERMINATION X X X X. THE BATTLE OF JAPAN HAS JUST BEGUN X X X BUYING AND HOLDING ALL THE WAR BONDS WE POSSIBLY CAN IS THE LEAST THAT WE AT HOME CAN CONTINUE TO DO."

THE FACT IS, THE TREASURY AND ITS ARMY OF 6,000,000 VOLUNTEER BOND SALESMEN HAVE LONG BEEN READY FOR THE SITUATION THAT DEVELOPED TODAY.

IT WAS RECOGNIZED THAT VICTORY OVER GERMANY MIGHT COME ON THE EVE OF THE DRIVE. IT WAS RECOGNIZED, TOO, THAT V-E DAY WOULD NOT DECREASE THE NEED OF ACHIEVING THE UNPRECEDENTED $7,000,000,000 QUOTA FOR INDIVIDUAL BOND BUYERS AND AN ADDITIONAL $7,000,000,000 FROM CORPORATIONS (TOTAL QUOTA $14,000,000,000).

PREPARATIONS FOR THE DRIVE. THE PACIFIC THEATER PROVIDED THE OFFICIAL POSTER, BASED ON THE ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTO OF THE MARINES RAISING THE FLAG ON MT.SURIBACHI.

VOLUNTEER SALESMEN WERE ASKED TO BE READY TO WORK HARDER THAN EVER--IN THE EVENT OF A EUROPEAN VICTORY--IN ORDER TO CONQUER ANY POSSIBLE TENDENCY TO RELAX IN BOND BUYING.

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU SAID TODAY: "WAR EXPENDITURES DURING MARCH WERE THE GREATEST FOR ANY MONTH OF THIS WAR. THAT IS EVERY INDICATION THAT THERE WILL BE A HIGH LEVEL OF EXPENDITURE FOR MANY MONTHS.

"MILLIONS OF MEN MUST BE TRANSFERRED TO THE PACIFIC THEATER. NEW EQUIPMENT AND INCREASED QUANTITIES OF SUPPLIES MUST BE SHIPPED ACROSS THE WORLD'S WIDEST OCEAN. AND OUR NATIONAL OBLIGATION TO THE MEN WOUNDED IN BATTLE OR OTHERWISE DISABLED, AND TO THOSE DISCHARGED WHEN THEIR SERVICES ARE NO LONGER REQUIRED, IT IS CONSTANTLY MOUNTING.

"I FEEL CONFIDENT THAT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, INSPIRED BY VICTORY OVER THE NAZIS, AND RECOGNIZING THE SERIOUSNESS OF THE STRUGGLE STILL AHEAD IN THE PACIFIC, WILL MAKE THE 7TH WAR LOAN AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS.

"THAT SUCCESS WILL SAY 'WELL DONE' TO OUR MEN IN EUROPE. IT WILL GIVE OUR MEN IN THE PACIFIC THE TOOLS OF VICTORY. IT WILL SERVE NEW NOTICE UPON THE JAPANESE WAR LORDS THAT THEIR DAYS ARE NUMBERED. IT WILL PROVIDE THE BEST POSSIBLE ANTI-INFLATION INSURANCE."

(ADVANCE)..WASHINGTON,MAY 8-(AP)-A A CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE BLUE-PRINTED TODAY A POSTWAR ECONOMIC PROGRAM KEYSTONED ON AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE TO CONSIDER REDUCTION OR ELIMINATION OF TRADE RESTRICTIONS.

THE COMMITTEE, CREATED BY THE HOUSE TO STUDY ECONOMIC POLICY AND PLANNING, SAID THE PROGRAM IS INTENDED TO ESTABLISH AND MAINTAIN PEACEFUL CONDITIONS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD AND PROVIDE "A HIGH AND EXPANDING LEVEL OF INCOME AND EMPLOYMENT BOTH AT HOME AND ABROAD." IT IS THE PRODUCT OF SIX MONTHS OF STUDY UNDER THE DIRECTION OF CHAIRMAN COLMER (D-MISS).

IT MADE THESE SPECIFIC RECOMMENDATIONS, UPON WHICH IT ELABORATED IN A 23,000-WORD REPORT:

1. THE INTERNATIONAL BANK FOR RECONSTRUCTION AND DEVELOPMENT, A PART OF THE BRETTON WOODS INTERNATIONAL MONETARY AGREEMENTS, "SHOULD BE ESTABLISHED AS AN OPERATING AGENCY AS SOON AS PRACTICABLE."

2. RESOURCES OF THE EXPORT-IMPORT BANK SHOULD BE INCREASED SO IT CAN MAKE "DEVELOPMENTAL LOANS WHICH WOULD BE BENEFICIAL TO OUR INTERNATIONAL POSITION X X."

3. THE JOHNSON ACT, RESTRICTING LOANS TO FOREIGN NATIONS IN DEFAULT ON DEBTS TO THIS COUNTRY, SHOULD BE REPEALED.

4. "A CLEAR UNDERSTANDING CONCERNING LEND-LEASE OBLIGATIONS SHOULD BE REACHED PROMPTLY AFTER THE WAR."

5. EXCHANGE RATES BETWEEN NATIONS SHOULD BE STABILIZED TO CREATE A BALANCED CONDITION IN EACH COUNTRY'S FOREIGN EXCHANGE MARKET.

6. AN INTERNATIONAL RESERVE OF FOREIGN CURRENCIES SHOULD BE ESTABLISHED TO MAINTAIN EXCHANGE RATES. (THIS PROPOSAL PARALLELS THE INTERNATIONAL FUND PROPOSED IN THE BRETTON WOODS AGREEMENTS.)

7. IN CASES WHERE CHANGES IN THE PAR VALUES OF CURRENCIES BECOME NECESSARY, THEY SHOULD BE MADE THROUGH AN INTERNATIONAL AGENCY RATHER THAN "BY ARBITRARY UNILATERAL ACTION."

8. CERTAIN BUSINESS PRACTICES, SUCH AS THE FIXING OF PRICES IN WORLD MARKETS, DIVISION OF MARKETS, AND ALLOCATION OF EXPORT QUOTAS, "SHOULD BE FORBIDDEN BY INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION."

9. NONRESTRICTIVE PRIVATE AGREEMENTS FOR DISSEMINATING TECHNICAL INFORMATION, ESTABLISHING QUALITY STANDARDS, AND SIMILAR PURPOSES, SHOULD BE REGISTERED WITH AN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION.

10. AN ENLARGED MERCHANT MARINE SHOULD BE MAINTAINED UNDER THE AMERICAN FLAG AS "ESSENTIAL FOR OUR NATIONAL SECURITY."

1. OPERATING AND CONSTRUCTION SUBSIDIES SHOULD BE PAID FOR MERCHANT VESSELS WHOSE OPERATION IS ESSENTIAL FOR NATIONAL SECURITY, THE COST TO BE CONSIDERED AS PART OF THE COST OF NATIONAL DEFENSE.

12. FOR SHIPPING NOT CONSIDERED ESSENTIAL FOR SECURITY, THE COMPARATIVE COST OF RENDERING TRANSPORTATION SERVICE SHOULD BE THE DETERMINING FACTOR AND NO SUBSIDIES SHOULD BE PAID FOR SUCH SHIPPING.

13. EXCEPT FOR A STRATEGIC RESERVE FOR DEFENSE PURPOSES, VESSELS WHICH CANNOT BE SOLD EITHER TO AMERICAN OR FOREIGN OPERATORS

SHOULD BE SCRAPPED.

14. AN ADEQUATE SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY SHOULD BE MAINTAINED IN TIMES OF PEACE FOR THE CONTINUED TECHNICAL DEVELOPMENT OF OUR MERCHANT MARINE, WITH SUBSIDIES TO BE PAID WHEN NECESSARY TO MAINTAIN THE NUCLEUS OF SKILL AND CAPACITY.

15. THE REABSORPTION INTO OTHER INDUSTRIES OF WORKERS NOW ENGAGED IN SHIPBUILDING "MUST BE AN IMPORTANT AIM OF DOMESTIC EMPLOYMENT POLICIES." THE DEVELOPMENT OF PRIVATE SHIP-SCRAPPING ENTERPRISE SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED.

AS A MEANS OF RELAXING RESTRICTIONS ON TRADE THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, THE COMMITTEE URGED THAT AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE BE CALLED AS SOON AS POSSIBLE "TO ESTABLISH A GENERAL POLICY OF REDUCED BARRIERS."

EXTENSION OF THE RECIPROCAL TRADE ACT, EXPIRING ON JUNE 12, WOULD PROMOTE RELAXATION OF TRADE BARRIERS, IT SAID, AND "AT THE SAME TIME CONSIDERATION SHOULD BE GIVEN TO PROPOSALS TO INCREASE THE AUTHORITY OF OUR NEGOTIATIONS TO REDUCE TARIFF RATES ON PARTICULAR COMMODITIES."

THE REPORT EMPHASIZED THE NECESSITY OF "PRESERVING THE PRINCIPLES OF INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM AND PRIVATE INITIATIVE WHICH HAVE CONTRIBUTED SO MUCH TO OUR WELFARE IN THE PAST."

WASHINGTON,MAY 9-(AP)-PORTUGUESE AMBASSADOR DR. JOAO ANTONIO DE BINCI TODAY CALLED ON ACTING SECRETARY OF STATE GREW TO EXTEND PORTUGAL'S CONGRATULATIONS ON THE VICTORY IN EUROPE.

DE BINCI TOLD REPORTERS: "NOW WE ARE NOT SO TONGUE TIED. I WAS INSTRUCTED BY MY GOVERNMENT TO EXPRESS TO THE ACTING SECRETARY OF STATE THE GREAT SATISFACTION TO THE PEOPLE OF PORTUGAL THAT THE WAR IS ENDED IN EUROPE AND THEIR GREAT ADMIRATION FOR THE EFFORT AND SACRIFICE WHICH THE AMERICAN PEOPLE HAVE MADE TO END THE WAR."

DE BINCI SAID THAT THE TWO-DAY PERIOD OF MOURNING DECLARED IN LISBON BY THE PORTUGUESE GOVERNMENT UPON THE REPORTED DEATH OF HITLER WAS THE "MOST UNFORTUNATE THING THAT COULD HAVE HAPPENED." HE SAID HIS GOVERNMENT HAD DECIDED TO DO THE LEAST POSSIBLE IT COULD TOWARD A GOVERNMENT WITH WHICH IT STILL MAINTAINED DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS.

HE RECALLED THAT WHEN PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DIED PORTUGAL DECREED A FULL WEEK OF MOURNING AND PORTUGESE BATTLESHIPS FIRED SALVOS EVERY HALF HOUR.

HE SAID THE PORTUGUESE CUSTOM OF GOING INTO MOURNING FOR THE DEATH OF A FOREIGN CHIEF OF STATE DATED FROM THE 13TH CENTURY AND HE WAS CONVINCED HIS GOVERNMENT DID NOT REALIZE THE WAY THE OUTSIDE WORLD WOULD REACT TO THE PROCLAMATION OF MOURNING FOR HITLER.

DEMOBILIZATION PLAN ANNOUNCED; THREE RED ARMIES STILL FIGHTING; JAPAN GETS WORST AIR POUNDING

Soldiers with Point Score of 85 Eligible for Release from Army

MAY 11 1945

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP) Soldiers who have rolled up a point score of 85—based on length and toughness of service and fatherhood—are eligible for release, the War department disclosed today.

One child, one year in the Army, one year overseas count 12 points each under the system for cutting the fighting force. Each combat decoration adds five points.

Approximately 1,300,000 men, including 650,000 in Europe and 433,000 in the Pacific area, will be released during the next 12 months under the plan.

This number may be stepped higher by maintaining draft calls above actual replacement needs.

Another 700,000 men also are scheduled to be released from service because of physical disability, age, or other factors.

"Critical" scores for the various forces—air, ground, service and WACS—have not yet been set but to avoid any delay in demobilization, the Army has fixed the interim score of 85 (44 for WACS) as the minimum for discharge. These minima may be lowered later.

Those who have built up the required score are eligible for release now and some of them will move to separation centers within a week. However, some men with the required score may be retained because the Army needs their special skills and no replacement is immediately availa Officials said every possible step would be taken to obtain replacements for such men.

The score card for computing eligibility for discharge, was released simultaneously at the War department and to soldiers around the world. Here is the weight given to each factor:

One point will be credited for each month of Army service since Sept. 16, 1940. (The time of service is computed from the date the soldier reached the reception center. Any 15-days or more will count as a month).

One point will be given for each month served overseas since Sept. 16, 1940.

Five points will be given for each Army award for combat, such as the Distinguished Service Cross, Purple Heart and battle participation stars; for each similar award made by the Navy and for each award or decoration granted by a foreign country and recognized by the War department.

Twelve points will be allowed for each child under 18 years, up to a maximum of three children.

In the case of enlisted men who are retained because they are deemed necessary it was emphasized that "military necessity" does not mean "military convenience." The decision of a company or unit commander to retain a man will be subject to higher review. However, in the case of officers, the rating score will be secondary to needs of the Army and even those officers declared surplus overseas may still be kept on duty by commanders of the Army Ground, Air or Service forces.

Secretary of War Stimson, in announcing the plan, said that it probably would not please everyone, but that the Army considered it to be the fairest and best system that could be devised to meet the views of soldiers themselves.

The plan was adopted only after a poll showed that 90 per cent of the men interviewed favored such a plan, the Army reported.

Ninety-eight per cent of those eligible for release will be men who have served overseas. The remaining two per cent will be fathers who have been in the Army a long time.

Within about six weeks, the Army expects to establish a critical score for the Army Ground and Service Forces; another for the Air Force and a third for the WACS. These probably will be lower than the interim score, according to Maj. Gen. William F. Tompkins, director of the Special Planning Division of the War Department General Staff.

The critical scores will be adjusted downward periodically as the war against Japan progresses and the Army gets in a position to release more men.

Because the air and service forces will be kept at relatively greater strength than the ground forces for the war against Japan, the initial rate of release will be larger for ground troops than for men of the other two services. However, Tompkins said transfer of some low-score men from the ground forces and the addition of new trainees will eventually bring about a proportionate release from all three forces.

In determining scores only those points accumulated through May 12 will be credited. Additional credit, however, will be given for children born on or before May 12 but whose birth was not known to the soldier-father at the time he added up the score. Credit also will be given for medals and battle participation stars prior to May 12 but awarded later.

Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) announced meanwhile he had sent the War department copies of his resolution providing a first-in-first out ("Fifi") discharge system for the mass demobilization problem faced by the Army.

He told a reporter he thought the Army's point system would be severely critized in some quarters especially because of a lack of uniformity among the various commands in awarding battle stars and decorations.

Johnson's resolution is in the military affairs committee, with no indication it will be voted upon in the immediate future.

POINTS SYSTEM FOR RELEASING SOLDIERS FIXED

MAY 11 1945

Score Card of 85 Minimum Needed for Ground, Air and Service Units.

PROCESS BEGINS NEXT WEEK

Overseas Duty, Parenthood and Combat Included Among Scheduled Ratings.

Washington, May 10 (A. P.).—The Army set up its point system for the release of enlisted personnel today in the wake of victory in Europe, temporarily fixing a minimum score of 85 points as the requisite for such discharges.

The points are to be figured on the basis of service credit, overseas duty, participation in combat and parenthood. The eighty-five minimum points will be required for the discharge of ground, air and service forces enlisted personnel.

Men with this total will be considered eligible for release and will start moving next week for separation centers. Separate critical scores for each branch of the services will be established in about six weeks.

About 1,300,000 men are to be released in the next twelve months under the point system.

The points for each of four factors for discharge are as follows:

Service Credit—One point for each month of Army service since September 16, 1940. This is the same as twelve points a year. More than fifteen days will be counted as a full month.

Overseas Credit—One point for each month served overseas since September 16, 1940.

Combat Credit—Five points for each award of combat decorations since September 16, 1940.

Parenthood Credit — Twelve points for each child under 18 years up to a limit of three children.

Those who attain the required score will be released unless military necessity dictates their retention until replacements can be obtained. A temporary score of 44 points has been set for members of the Women's Army Corps.

The combat credits are based upon awards of the Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldiers Medal, Bronze Star, Air Medal, Purple Heart and Bronze Service Stars (battle participation stars).

Credit also will be given for the following naval decorations to Army personnel: Navy Cross, Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Navy and Marine Corps Medal, Bronze Star, Air Medal and Purple Heart.

Holders of the Medal of Honor may be released on their own request. Married Wacs will be released at their own request if their husbands have been returned from the Army to civil life.

Foreign Decorations.

In addition, credit will be given for awards and decorations of a foreign country which may be accepted and worn under War Department regulations in effect when this program went into operation. The department said that the method for releasing officers will be "tougher than the plan for enlisted personnel, primarily because officers have received additional training, have heavier responsibilities and have developed specialized skills and leadership capacity."

Therefore, the department said, "although officers will have an adjusted service ratings score based on the same multiples as for enlisted personnel, this factor will be secondary to the prime requirement of military necessity." The department said that enlisted men with the highest point totals will become eligible for release from the Army "except where considerations of military necessity make it impossible to let them go until qualified replacements can be obtained. This exception applies particularly to men possessing special skills required in the war against Japan and to men in units that will have to move into the Pacific so swiftly that no opportunity is provided for replacing men with high scores until they reach the new theater."

Plan Is Explained.

Major-Gen. William J. Tompkins, director of the special planning division of the War Department's special staff, led a group of high ranking officials in explaining the demobilization plan to a news conference. He said that there are a number of soldiers already in the country who returned for rest and who have high scores. They will be eligible for discharge right away, he said.

The Army previously had explained that in addition to the 1,300,000 men expected to be eligible for discharge under the demobilization program, the normal attrition rate (discharge for physical reasons and other factors) will bring the total for the next twelve months up to approximately 2,000,000. The department said that it plans to increase the 1,300,000 figure by keeping Selective Service calls at the present level, which was fixed on a replacement basis.

Gen. Tompkins said that the Army is "still going to call on the 18-year-old group to the maximum that can be furnished," and he added he was certain that draft boards would continue to take some men over 30. He explained that the 18-29-year age group never has been large enough to supply sufficient man power in itself.

In answer to a question Gen. Tompkins said that he did not think it possible at present to make any change in the policy of drafting fathers. All troops have been notified of the point system.

Army Plan Telling Just How a Soldier Will Be Demobilized

MAY 11 1945

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The text of the statement today by Maj. Gen. William F. Tompkins, director of the special planning division of the War Department General Staff, outlining the Army's demobilization plan under the point rating system was as follows:

The standards that will control priority of separation from the Army will apply equally to soldiers all over the world and they embody the desires of the soldiers themselves, as expressed in polls taken by the War Department among thousands of enlisted men in this country and overseas. More than 90 per cent of the men interviewed said they believed the men to be released first should be those who have been overseas and in combat longest and those with children.

Accordingly, the program to be followed provides for the issuance to each enlisted man and woman of an adjusted service rating card. Separate point totals will be entered on this card covering each of the following four factors:

1. Service Credit—One point for each month of Army service since Sept. 16, 1940. This is the same as twelve points per year.

2. Overseas Credit—One point for each month served overseas since Sept. 16, 1940. This, too, is the same as twelve points per year.

Rules on Combat Credit

3. Combat Credit—Five points for the first and each additional award of the following for service performed since Sept. 16, 1940:

A. Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldiers Medal, Bronze Star Medal, Air Metal, Purple Heart, and Bronze Service Stars (battle participation stars).

B. Credit will also be given for the following decorations awarded by the Navy Department: Navy Cross, Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Silver Star Medal, Distinguished Flying Cross, Navy and Marine Corps Medal, Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal and Purple Heart Medal.

C. Credit will be given for those awards and decorations of a foreign country which may be accepted and won under the War Department regulations in effect

Soldiers with Point Score of 85 Eligible for Release from Army

MAY 11 1945

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP) Soldiers who have rolled up a point score of 85—based on length and toughness of service and fatherhood—are eligible for release, the War department disclosed today.

One child, one year in the Army, one year overseas count 12 points each under the system for cutting the fighting force. Each combat decoration adds five points.

Approximately 1,300,000 men, including 650,000 in Europe and 433,000 in the Pacific area, will be released during the next 12 months under the plan.

This number may be stepped higher by maintaining draft calls above actual replacement needs.

Another 700,000 men also are scheduled to be released from service because of physical disability, age, or other factors.

"Critical" scores for the various forces—air, ground, service and WACS—have not yet been set but to avoid any delay in demobilization, the Army has fixed the interim score of 85 (44 for WACS) as the minimum for discharge. These minima may be lowered later.

Those who have built up the required score are eligible for release now and some of them will move to separation centers within a week. However, some men with the required score may be retained because the Army needs their special skills and no replacement is immediately availa" Officials said every possible step would be taken to obtain replacements for such men.

The score card for computing eligibility for discharge, was released simultaneously at the War department and to soldiers around the world. Here is the weight given to each factor:

One point will be credited for each month of Army service since Sept. 16, 1940. (The time of service is computed from the date the soldier reached the reception center. Any 15-days or more will count as a month).

One point will be given for each month served overseas since Sept. 16, 1940.

Five points will be given for each Army award for combat, such as the Distinguished Service Cross, Purple Heart and battle participation stars; for each similar award made by the Navy and for each award or decoration granted by a foreign country and recognized by the War department.

Twelve points will be allowed for each child under 18 years, up to a maximum of three children.

In the case of enlisted men who are retained because they are deemed necessary it was emphasized that "military necessity" does not mean "military convenience." The decision of a company or unit commander to retain a man will be subject to higher review. However, in the case of officers, the rating score will be secondary to needs of the Army and even those officers declared surplus overseas may still be kept on duty by commanders of the Army Ground, Air or Service forces.

Secretary of War Stimson, in announcing the plan, said that it probably would not please everyone, but that the Army considered it to be the fairest and best system that could be devised to meet the views of soldiers themselves.

The plan was adopted only after a poll showed that 90 per cent of the men interviewed favored such a plan, the Army reported.

Ninety-eight per cent of those eligible for release will be men who have served overseas. The remaining two per cent will be fathers who have been in the Army a long time.

Within about six weeks, the Army expects to establish a critical score for the Army Ground and Service Forces; another for the Air Force and a third for the WACS. These probably will be lower than the interim score, according to Maj. Gen. William F. Tompkins, director of the Special Planning Division of the War Department General Staff.

The critical scores will be adjusted downward periodically as the war against Japan progresses and the Army gets in a position to release more men.

Because the air and service forces will be kept at relatively greater strength than the ground forces for the war against Japan, the initial rate of release will be larger for ground troops than for men of the other two services. However, Tompkins said transfer of some low-score men from the ground forces and the addition of new trainees will eventually bring about a proportionate release from all three forces.

In determining scores only those points accumulated through May 12 will be credited. Additional credit, however, will be given for children born on or before May 12 but whose birth was not known to the soldier-father at the time he added up the score. Credit also will be given for medals and battle participation stars prior to May 12 but awarded later.

Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) announced meanwhile he had sent the War department copies of his resolution providing a first-in-first out ("Fifi") discharge system for the mass demobilization problem faced by the Army.

He told a reporter he thought the Army's point system would be severely critized in some quarters especially because of a lack of uniformity among the various commands in awarding battle stars and decorations.

Johnson's resolution is in the military affairs committee, with no indication it will be voted upon in the immediate future.

POINTS SYSTEM FOR RELEASING SOLDIERS FIXED

MAY 11 1945

Score Card of 85 Minimum Needed for Ground, Air and Service Units.

PROCESS BEGINS NEXT WEEK

Overseas Duty, Parenthood and Combat Included Among Scheduled Ratings.

Washington, May 10 (A. P.).—The Army set up its point system for the release of enlisted personnel today in the wake of victory in Europe, temporarily fixing a minimum score of 85 points as the requisite for such discharges.

The points are to be figured on the basis of service credit, overseas duty, participation in combat and parenthood. The eighty-five minimum points will be required for the discharge of ground, air and service forces enlisted personnel.

Men with this total will be considered eligible for release and will start moving next week for separation centers. Separate critical scores for each branch of the services will be established in about six weeks.

About 1,300,000 men are to be released in the next twelve months under the point system. The points for each of four factors for discharge are as follows:

Service Credit—One point for each month of Army service since September 16, 1940. This is the same as twelve points a year. More than fifteen days will be counted as a full month.

Overseas Credit—One point for each month served overseas since September 16, 1940.

Combat Credit—Five points for each award of combat decorations since September 16, 1940.

Parenthood Credit — Twelve points for each child under 18 years up to a limit of three children.

Those who attain the required score will be released unless military necessity dictates their retention until replacements can be obtained. A temporary score of 44 points has been set for members of the Women's Army Corps.

The combat credits are based upon awards of the Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldiers Medal, Bronze Star, Air Medal, Purple Heart and Bronze Service Stars (battle participation stars).

Credit also will be given for the following naval decorations to Army personnel: Navy Cross, Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Navy and Marine Corps Medal, Bronze Star, Air Medal and Purple Heart.

Holders of the Medal of Honor may be released on their own request. Married Wacs will be released at their own request if their husbands have been returned from the Army to civil life.

How Point System Works

To illustrate how the point system works, let us suppose that a soldier has been in the Army thirty-six months, has served overseas for eighteen months, has won the Silver Star and Purple Heart and participated in three major campaigns and is the father of a child under 18. He would receive thirty-six points in service credit, eighteen points in overseas credit, twenty-five points in combat credit and twelve points in parenthood credit. His total score would be ninety-one points.

The men with the highest point totals will become eligible for release from the Army, except where considerations of military necessity make it impossible to let them go until qualified replacements can be obtained. This exception applies particularly to men possessing special skills required in the war against Japan and to men in units that will have to move into the Pacific so swiftly that no opportunity is provided for replacing men with high scores until they reach the new theatre.

The Army wants to be absolutely certain, however, that any such cases which arise represent true military necessity and not military convenience. Therefore, the theatre have been instructed to establish a reviewing authority at an appropriate level to consist of selected mature officers who will pass on every case where an individual with a score equal to or above the critical score is to be retained by reason of military necessity.

System Will Help Fathers

I know many of you are wondering how we know whether the point credits we intend to use will actually achieve the desired effect of permitting those soldiers who have seen the longest and most arduous service away from home and those with children to leave the Army first

A preliminary survey made by the War Department on the basis of a one-sixth demobilization of the Army indicates that all but 2 per cent of the men to be released will be men who have served overseas and that these 2 per cent will be fathers who have been in the Army a long time.

The significance of this fig becomes clear when you consider that sixty-eight men out of every 100 now serving in the Army have served overseas, whereas ninety-eight out of every 100 to be returned to civilian life will be overseas veterans.

How well will the system succeed in providing preferential treatment for men with combat experience? Men who have been in combat constitute 25 per cent of the Army, but 73 per cent of the men who will get out are men from this group. Put another way, men with combat experience make up a little over one-third of the Army, but constitute nearly three-quarters of the number to be released.

Fathers represent 19 per cent of the Army and 26 per cent of the group returning to civilian life. In other words, one soldier out of five is a father, but one man in every four to be sent home will be a father. Since we did not begin drafting fathers until the war was well advanced, it is apparent that our system is operating heavily in their favor.

Most Deserving to Be First

I think these statistics make it clear that the point system carries out the desire expressed by our soldiers in the polls and gives first consideration to those most entitled to receive it.

After the adjusted service rating cards have been filled out, the number of soldiers with each point total in every theatre will be reported to the adjutant general's office here in Washington and a certain point total will be established as the critical score. This critical score will represent the minimum number of points with which an enlisted man or woman can be released from the Army. There will be one critical score for all enlisted men in the Army ground forces and the Army service forces and another for all men in the Army Air Forces. A third critical score will be calculated for members of the Women's Army Corps. The three critical scores are designed to effect equality of treatment for enlisted personnel in all branches of the service.

It will take about six weeks before these critical scores can be computed and announced. However, the War Department has no intention of delaying releases until this computation is finished. An interim score of eighty-five points has been established for Army ground, air and service forces enlisted personnel. All soldiers who have this many points or more will be considered as eligible for release in accordance with the plan, and men will start moving to separation centers for discharge early next week. For members of the WAC, an interim score of forty-four points has been set up.

Men Allowed to Stay in Army

Only points scored as of Saturday, May 12, 1945, will be taken into consideration in determining eligibility for release. The only credits which will be given after that date will be for decorations and battle participation stars earned prior thereto. Likewise additional credit will be given for children born on or before May 12, but whose birth was not known to the father at the time the scores were prepared.

Enlisted personnel who desire to remain in the service and have a satisfactory record will be retained.

Because of the requirements of the war against Japan, the strength of the Army service forces and the Army Air Forces will be reduced much less than the strength of the Army ground forces. As a result, the initial rate of release will be more rapid among ground troops than among those assigned to air forces or service forces. However, through transfers of some low-score men from the ground forces and new trainees, a proportionate share of men will be released from all three forces as rapidly as practicable.

MAY 1 1945

Arms to Avoid "Unfairness"

In this whole program the Army has put the emphasis on the individual because we felt that was the only fair way in which to carry out demobilization. From the operating viewpoint it would have been much simpler to bring surplus units home for demobilization and release their personnel intact without worrying about whether all the men in them were entitled to priority of separation from the Army.

Such a method, however, would operate with great unfairness to many individuals who have had long and arduous service but are not assigned to one of the units declared surplus. If only units in Europe were considered, this method would work unfairly to units long in the Pacific or at outpost bases in the American theatre. It would operate unfairly to men who have seen extended combat service both in Europe and the Pacific and have been returned to this country for reassignment. It would release men only recently assigned as replacements to units long in combat and would discriminate against veterans of many campaigns in units not selected for return.

Consequently, it was determined that the fairest method to effect partial demobilization would be through the selection of men as individuals, rather than by units, with the selection governed by thoroughly impartial standards.

The carrying out of this program will not affect the continued release of enlisted men over 42 years of age, which was started recently. Discharge of these men, upon application, will continue without regard to other factors.

Holders of the Medal of Honor will also be eligible for release upon their own request.

In addition, married members of the Wac will be released, at their own request, if their husbands have been separated from the armed forces and returned to civilian life.

Stricter Plan for Officers

Now I would like to explain the method we will use in releasing officers. It is tougher than the plan for enlisted personnel primarily because officers have received additional training, have heavier responsibilities, and have developed specialized skills and leadership capacity. They must be handled more on an individual than a group basis. Therefore, although officers will have an adjusted service rating score based on the same multiples as for enlisted personnel, this factor will be secondary to the prime requirement of military necessity.

The expression "military necessity" as applied to officers means consideration must be given on an individual basis to the relative utility of an officer, need for his specialty, and the availability of assignments which will make the best use of his capabilities. Officers with lengthy overseas service and long and hazardous service in combat will receive special consideration for release. An officer's desire to remain in the service at this time will be another factor to get consideration.

The return of officers to the United States will be controlled by theatre commanders, who will use the foregoing principles in making their decisions. However, I wish to emphasize that the determination of whether or not an officer is to be released from the Army, as opposed to simply being returned to the United States, will be made by the commanding generals of the Army ground, air and service forces acting under the general supervision of the War Department.

System Is Set for Centers

In other words, if an officer is declared surplus by his theatre commander, he may still be retained if he is needed by any unit of the AAF, AGF or ASF.

When individuals who are surplus to overseas theatres arrive in this country they will proceed from ports to a reception station close to their home area. Twenty-two of these reception stations will be placed about the country in order that the Army may bring individuals as close to their homes as possible. Seventeen of them are already in operation and the remainder will begin operations during June. Here in the reception station those individuals with scores equal to or above the critical score will be screened once more to determine whether they are essential to the Army as a whole or are non-essential and can therefore be returned to civilian life.

Again let me emphasize that an enlisted man whose score entitles him to release will be held in the Army as essential only if his skill is so important to the Army and so scarce that he cannot be spared. Individuals of this type who do have to be held will be replaced as rapidly as the Army can train and make available replacements with the proper skills.

An individual who is found non-essential at the reception station is immediately transferred to a separation center, located at the same post, for processing for release from the Army. The complete process in a separation center will take about forty-eight hours, after which the individual is on his way to his home as a civilian. As you know, at the separation center, every possible assistance is given to prepare the soldier for his return to civilian life. We want those who are separated from the Army to know that their services are deeply appreciated.

Hard Task Is Seen Ahead

We are certain, too, that they will prove themselves to be as good citizens as they have been soldiers, and as soldiers they have shown themselves to be unexcelled. The many citizen soldiers who must remain in the service have a tough job ahead. Their accomplishments so far indicate that they will more than measure up to that task. They may be assured that when the job is done procedures will be ready to insure their prompt return to civilian life.

Through the same reception stations, which I have just mentioned, pass the individuals returned to this country in units which will be required for continued service against the Japanese. These individuals will have in almost every case scores below the critical score. They will be brought from the ports to these reception stations in order to get them close to their home areas. Here they receive travel time to and from their homes, plus up to thirty days' furlough for rest and recuperation. After that they report to the designated point where their unit is to be reformed for continued active service.

American Soldiers In Europe Divided Into Four Categories

MAY 1 1945 EUNSON

Paris, May 10 (AP)—About 2,000,000 men will be released from the Army in the next year but 7,000,000 will be retained to fight Japan and occupy Germany, the intelligence and education division in the European theater of operations, United States Army, said today.

The shipment of soldiers home for release will begin soon, the announcement said, but "it will only be on a small scale because of limited transportation facilities available."

The division announcement said efforts were being made to transfer such soldiers from "units now being alerted for shipment to the Pacific."

Within two months, all battle casualties whose stay in hospitals is expected to exceed 60 days will be evacuated to medical establishments in the United States, the chief surgeon's office announced.

Casualties Coming Home First

Priority on shipping space will go first to sick and wounded, second to liberated prisoners of war, third to units to be redeployed in other active theaters, and, finally, to personnel to be returned for discharge, Maj. Gen. Frank S. Ross, transportation chief, said.

From here the troops will pass into a training stage, next an assembly area, then a staging area and go from here either straight into the Pacific or to the Pacific by way of America and a short trip home.

Troops going home in the fourth category will have a low priority for shipping space and while waiting for rides will be employed in such tasks as packing and loading supplies for the Pacific forces.

After they arrive home, they will go through a final screening and then will be discharged or assigned to other duties.

Smashing The Japs No. 1 Job

"Smash the Japs as fast as possible and end this war," the Army announcement listed as the No. 1 job.

"Occupy Germany until the danger of renewed militarism and aggression is extinguished," was listed as the No. 2 job.

Troops who are chosen for the latter task will be enrolled in education programs, the instructions say.

"Short passes will be issued for use inside Germany as soon as recreational facilities there become available," said the pamphlet. "Because of the nonfraternization policy, furloughs normally will be taken outside Germany.

Furloughs At European Resorts

"Ultimately, each man in category one probably will get a total of 30 days of furlough, plus traveling time, in the course of a year.

"Plans call for furlough facilities at famous European resorts."

Occupation troops will be sent direct to a headquarters post in Bremerhaven or Berlin, or direct to the United States military zone in southwestern Germany.

The exact zones of occupation by the victorious powers remain to be announced.

As To Discharge Of Officers

Officers will be discharged according to military necessity, efficiency, expressed desire and point score, with the latter acting as a guide especially in the case of officers with long overseas combat records.

"Excluding men assigned to the army of occupation in Germany," Ross said, "there are about 3,000,000 men in the European theater of operations who have a boat to catch.

"Many, of course, must remain to handle embarkation and the travel of these men. The sooner men and supplies are transferred to other theaters, the sooner we all will return home."

Depends On Dispensability

Here's How G. I. Joe Can Figure His Point Score for Discharge

MAY 1 1945

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP) Here's how a G.I. Joe can figure his eligibility for discharge under the Army's point system.

Suppose he's been in the Army 36 months. He gets 36 points under service credit.

For 18 months he's been overseas and that adds another 18 points to his score.

He's won the Silver Star and the Purple Heart and has taken part in three major campaigns recognized officially with battle stars. Each of those awards is worth five points, so he gets another 25 points.

Back home he has a five year old daughter. She's worth 12 points, since she's under 18.

So, striking a balance, the soldier gets a total score of 91 points. It takes only 85 points to qualify for release, so he can count on going home unless he's an exceptionally skilled man for whom no replacement can be found immediately. But he has the Army's assurance that every effort will be made to obtain a replacement for him.

Men whose scores are high enough to permit their return home will not be automatically discharged upon their arrival in the United States.

"It will first be necessary to pass on their dispensability to military requirements," Ross's statement said. "Some specialists may have to serve in the United States until replacements are available."

REDEPLOYMENT PLAN IS SET UP

MAY 11 1945

All U. S. Units in Europe Will Be Classified.

LONG

Paris, May 10 (A. P.).—Supreme Headquarters announced today that machinery had been set up to classify all American units for redeployment in Europe, to the Pacific war zone, or home. Affecting almost 4,000,000 soldiers in this theater, it provides for classifications as follows:

1. Units to remain in Europe.
2. Units to be redeployed in active theaters directly from here, or indirectly through the United States.

[A majority of the American combat troops sent to the Pacific will be routed through the United States while the greater part of the supply forces will be sent "directly from this theater."]

3. Units to be broken up, partly to remain here and partly to be redeployed.
4. Units to be returned to the United States for inactivation.

Point-system cards have been distributed to unit commanders.

At least to some extent, the redeployment will be based on a scoring involving the length of Army service, overseas service, combat awards and decorations and parenthood. But, in general, it will not, at least in the initial phase of the classification, be a matter of decision individual by individual.

"It will be based, instead, on unit scores. Units with the least number of men over the critical score will be placed in category No. 2. Units with the greatest number of men over a critical score will be placed in category No. 4.

In special cases, men whose individual rating definitely differs from that of their unit's average will be transferred to other detachments.

Victorious Russian Troops Parade In Czech Capital

MAY 11 1945

By Harold V. Boyle

Reds Parade in Prague.

Prague, May 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Russian troops paraded through the streets of shattered Prague amid wild acclaim today as German troops fled westward toward the American lines after a three days' battle that cost the lives, Czech Patriots said, of at least 5,000 of their countrymen.

"The dead and wounded are so many they are still uncounted," said Vaclav Capek, spokesman for the Czech National Committee, in describing the last major battle of the European war, which ended at 9 A. M. today when the Czech flag was hoisted over the last German strongpoint. The refugee-crowded city—last European capital to be liberated—erupted in a mad outburst of relief and joy after the first reconnaissance elements of the Soviet Army had raced into Prague from the northwest at 5 A. M., after a thirty-five-mile sprint overnight.

Fur-capped Russians, looking like so many Daniel Boones on motorcycles, were almost mobbed by the exultant throngs. Every Red Army vehicle was soon overflowing with pretty Czech girls—whom the G. I.'s have voted the best looking in Europe.

Colonels and Carpet-baggers.

Westward from Prague to the American lines at Pilsen stretched a forty-five-mile column of broken German troops fleeing toward the Yank positions to escape being taken prisoner by the Russians. Among them were thousands of SS troops, whom the Czechs accuse of slaughtering thousands of unarmed boys and men in the last three days, and of herding women and children before their tanks to protect their vehicles from the Patriots' fire.

Among them, too, were scores of colonels and other officers—many of them hoofing it with barefooted privates—and hundreds of wives and children of German occupation troops, trying to ride on dilapidated cars and carts. And in this long column of woe and red-faced distress were thousands of German carpet-baggers and farmers with their families. Every German in Czecho-Slovakia east of Pilsen appeared to be headed for the Reich or for the American lines.

Keep Arms Till Last

The worried Germans held on to their arms until they reached Yank outposts 5 miles from Pilsen.

Under orders from the dough-[illegible] of the 2d Infantry Division and tank men of the 16th Armored Division, they then began throwing away their equipment—pistols, machineguns, rifles, helmets, gas masks, binoculars and cameras along the roadside, until it looked like a Nazi armory. Civilian men and boys pawed over this loot.

Slow Ride To Prague

I rode to Prague this morning. It took hours to push through the fully armed German convoys from Pilsen to Prague, and hundreds of German soldiers who had celebrated the collapse of Germany's world empire dreams in an alcoholic debauch were sleeping off their last debacle in the meadows along the way.

But their columns on the road were orderly and surly as ever. At least every other vehicle contained a German woman soldier or nurse or sweetheart.

Men, Women Separated

Women and men were separated at Pilsen.

As we drove in, Czech civilians attacked one group of men and women accused of sniping. Before guards could halt them they smashed one German girl in the face with a pocketbook and cracked a Nazi youth over the head with a tire wrench.

Inside Prague's police headquarters we found the chief Czech commanders directing cleanup operations. Under their orders, thousands of Czech men and boys, women and girls sweated under the hot May sun, removing street barriers they had built two days before.

Yanks Get Henlein.

Prague, May 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Konrad Henlein, the traitorous Gauleiter of the Sudetenland, and Karl Frank, the Nazi Military Governor of Czecho-Slovakia, were taken into custody by American troops today.

Henlein is the Sudetan organizer who paved the way for Hitler's march into Czecho-Slovakia. He was caught by the First Division.

SS Brutality Has Last Fling In Prague Before Knock-Out

APR 1945

BOYLE

PRAGUE, May 9—(Delayed)—(AP) A spokesman for the Czech National committee told today of the last ordeal of Prague, of patriots who bare-handed fought the Nazis in the capital and hastened the hour of liberation.

It was a story of one last orgy of SS brutality, of civilians dragged from their homes and shot in the streets, of women and children made to run before German tanks to force Patriots to hold their fire.

But, added the spokesman, Vaclav Capek, "we ourselves were able to seize a number of prominent Gestapo leaders and they will be tried."

This is the story as Capek told it through interpreter Zdeneck Eller, a former civil service worker in the Czech foreign office.

"Rioting began spontaneously in Prague about mid-day Saturday. Our men tore down German inscriptions in all offices and streets. The rioting was premature, but it grew rapidly and some prominent Czech leaders assumed leadership.

Arms Biggest Question

"The biggest question was arms. We didn't have any weapons and we had to get them by disarming Germans. Czech police joined us, and with our pistols and rifles we attacked and captured some German tanks, but were unable to use them."

From noon to 5 p.m. the Patriots battled for the Prague radio station, fighting from room to room against 40 SS men who finally were driven into the cellar where the last 10 alive surrendered. It cost the Czechs 50 to 60 men killed.

"At 5 o'clock the Czechs began broadcasting from the station and calling for American help. There were 90,000 Germans in the city at the time, including many thousand wounded. The Germans retired to buildings and for the rest of the day put up a passive defense.

"The next morning, Sunday, SS tanks suddenly appeared in our streets and began firing," Capek said. "There were tanks from three divisions. The Germans were concentrating all their tanks in Bohemia in our streets. Our Patriots answered them behind buildings, barriers, everywhere.

"SS tank men pulled our civilians from the houses and shot them in the strets. As they took a block of houses they went through and murdered boys and men. At Masaryck railroad station they lined up 60 men in groups of 20 and shot them through the back of the head."

Fighting spread throughout the city. SS troops used the Prague University for headquarters.

"Monday morning the Germans attacked again, and tanks shot up our city hall, one of the oldest buildings in Prague, and it burned to the ground. They also burned the largest hospital in Prague.

That morning Russian General Vlassov, who had been commanding forces fighting with the German army, decided to aid the Patriots "although we hadn't asked him" and sent 4,000 men in from the south.

"His men had tanks and guns but no ammunition," Capek said. "He demanded that the Czechs protect all bridges leading across the river into the old quarter of the city, where German tanks were running loose.

Russian Force Leaves

"We weren't in a position to give him this guarantee and his help was more moral than effective. His men did little fighting and then retired in an unknown direction with Vlassov leading his column.

"SS men dragged our women and children from their homes and made them ride outside on Tiger tanks or walk ahead of them so the Patriots couldn't fire from the barriers. One German soldier even tied two Czech children to his side to keep us from shooting."

The last German strongpoint was Hradcany castle, in the northwest part of Prague. In this former home of Czech royalty, Kral Frank, Nazi military governor of Czecho-slovakia who later was captured by the Americans directed the fighting. He held several Czech ministers as hostages.

"At 6 o'clock last night (Tuesday) the Germans came to our headquarters and signed an agreement with Czech leaders to cease firing and withdraw their troops west toward the American lines.

"But even after they signed the agreement they continued firing for several hours. During the night the German troops withdrew. Many of them were drunk and they kept firing as they left the city."

"At 9 o'clock this morning, the Czech flag was raised over Hradcany castle, four hours after the Russian vanguard began entering the city from the north."

As Russian troops paraded through the city, the Czechs broke loose with the most frenzied celebration since the liberation of Paris.

In the final struggle, the Germans killed more than 5,000 Czechs, Capek estimated. He said the National committee would rule until the arrival of the legal government led by Dr. Eduard Benes.

(Benes has since arrived).

Girl Reporter Describes Russian Army In Action In Fight For Berlin

By Virginia Irwin

Virginia Irwin, war correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Andrew Tully, of the Boston Traveler, and their jeep driver were the first Americans to reach the Nazi capital. Miss Irwin and Tully have been disaccredited as correspondents, apparently for being "off limits" and are returning to the United States.

Berlin, April 28 (AP—Delayed—Copyrighted]—The Russian Army in action is terrific. On the move it looks like a mixture of scenes from a De Mille movie of the Crusades and newsreels spots of American motorized supply columns.

American trucks rub axles with antiquated farm carts loaded down with Russian infantry. Great herds of sheep and cows are mixed in with armored cars and halftracks, with household belongings lashed to their sides.

Horses Turned Loose

To an American observer, used to the ordered precision of an American army on the move, the scene is unbelievable. But behind this seeming confusion, there is an order of purpose that has already carried the Russian Army into Berlin.

As I write this, Russian artillery is pounding the heart of the city with a barrage I have never heard equaled in an American battle. The earth shakes. The air stinks of cordite and death. All Berlin seems confusion.

Fierce Russian infantry are pushing forward. Wild horses turned loose after pulling supply carts roam the streets. German dead lie everywhere, and here and there, a horse caught by some sniper's bullet, lies sprawled amidst the wreckage of buildings.

The Russians have shown no mercy. They have played the perfect game of tit-for-tat. They have done to Berlin what the German Army did to Leningrad and Stalingrad.

MAY 11

Given "Keys To City"

We three Yanks—Andy Tully, of the Boston Traveler; Jeep Driver Johnny Wilson, of the 26th Division, and I—are the first Americans to see the Russian Army in action. They have practically given us the keys to the city and we have spent the day trying to keep the Russian infantry from sweeping us before them on their way down Unter den Linden.

We managed to make ourselves understood to a Russian infantryman who acted as a sort of guide around the city. He perched on the hood of our jeep and motioned directions with his riot gun.

Work And Play

Finally, when we'd had all we could take, we made him understand that we were going back toward the "rear" where things were a little quieter.

The Russian Army does a fantastic job of mixing work and play. They fight like mad and play with a sort of barbaric abandon. This morning, after eating a heavy breakfast of charred veal and potatoes swimming in fat, we three Yanks set off alone to try to see something of Berlin.

We made a wrong turn some place off the Berliner Strasse and at a road block that had not been cleared got scared out of our field boots by a terrific burst of machine-gun fire off to our right. Retracing our way, we went back to the command post of our friend and when we returned there was a midmorning dance in full swing.

Russian officers, their medals clanking on their chests, were dancing with a young Russian "WAC" lieutenant. And there practically in the middle of Berlin and in the middle of one of the bloodiest battles in history I danced for an hour.

Get Battle Orders

In between times, Russian noncoms would come in, click their heels smartly, salute and receive their orders for fighting.

The whole day was like being transported to another and strange world. I felt as though I had been caught in a giant whirlpool of destruction.

And over all, there has been the almost hysterical shouting of our driver, Sergeant Wilson, of Roxbury, Mass., yelling "Amerikanski" and acting like the Grover Whalen of World War II. Johnny is the greatest ambassador of good will a nation ever had. He looks like the sad sack, but he's a personality kid with the Russians. And he shows me off like Evelyn McLean sporting the Hope diamond.

If the Russians don't notice me at every hand, Johnny yells "American woman," and right now he's telling a bunch of Russian officers that Tully should be a battalion commander in the Red Army. It's been a mad day, but a wonderful one. If the pay was in something besides rubles, I'd join the Russian Army and try to help take Berlin.

Hitler Narrow, Ignorant Man Goering Tells Yank Captors

By A. I. GOLDBERG

KITZBUHEL, Austria, May 10. — (AP) Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering today told Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, commanding the U. S. 36th division, that Adolf Hitler was narrow and ignorant, that former Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop was a scoundrel and that Rudolf Hess was eccentric but had tremendous energy.

After these assertions, Goering fell with gusto upon a luncheon plate of chicken, potatoes and peas, Dahlquist said.

Goering, who surrendered to Maj. Gen. Robert Stack night before last, wobbled this meal and talked even more freely than he had in the presence of this correspondent yesterday.

Goering said nothing about Heinrich Himmler during the conversation with Gen. Dahlquist, whose division has been getting more than its ordinary share of Axis notables.

He said that Hitler had never been outside of Germany except for trips to Italy and therefore did not know people of other countries the way Goering knew them.

Ribbentrop Scoundrel

"Ribbentrop was a scoundrel. Four months before the war started I told him that Winston Churchill said to someone in our government in London 'why do you always send Ribbentrop to deal with me? Why don't you send a good fellow like Goering'. Rudolf Hess was eccentric but was undoubtedly a man of tremendous energy."

Dahlquist asked Goering if he had ever read Sir Neville Henderson's book on his Berlin mission. "I only read what he said about me," Goering replied.

During the luncheon he kept dwelling on the terrific American capacity for production.

Through all of Goering's talk, Dahlquist said that he noted a fear of the Russians.

Outside of the Grand hotel the object of curiosity to the division officers and men was Goering's armored car, a 16 cylinder Maibach with steel plate two inches thick and safety glass four inches thick.

Marshal Ritter von Grein, Goering's successor as commander of the Luftwaffe, languished a prisoner in Kitzbuhel. He was found wounded in a hospital last night. He had been wounded in the foot by flak. As he identified himself he said, "I am head of the Luftwaffe, but have no Luftwaffe."

Goering himself was still in the custody of Seventh army officers today and was reported fretting at the casual treatment he received at headquarters. He thought he should have been sent to meet Gen. Eisenhower. His wife and child still are under guard in Zeller Zee castle.

1 Of 4 Bodies Located May Be Hitler's

By Joseph W. Grigg, Jr.

Berlin, May 10 (AP)—No fewer than four bodies, any one of which may be Adolf Hitler's, have been found by the Russians in Berlin. None of them has been identified as being definitely that of the Nazi Führer.

The bodies of Propaganda Ministerf Paul Joseph Goebbels and his family; of Martin Bormann, successor to Rudolf Hess as Hitler's deputy, and a number of other top Nazis have been found and identified with fair certainty.

Corpses Charred

For a week the Russians have searched through the ruins of the underground fortress where Hitler and his gang of last-ditch Nazi fanatics held out until the destruction of Berlin was complete. Four bodies, blackened and charred, that seem to answer to Hitler's general appearance have been dragged out of the ruins. They have been measured and photographed for examination by experts. But the Russians are beginning to believe that no body that can be identified without any shadow of doubt as that of Hitler ever will be found now.

The underground fortress which Hitler made his headquarters in the final mighty battle of Berlin was the huge, supposedly bomb-proof air raid shelter underneath the new Reichschancellery.

Linked By Tunnels

It had been linked by deep underground passes with shelters under the near-by Wilhelmsplatz, the great Air Ministry Building 500 yards away in the Leipzigerstrasse, and the High Command Building in the Bendlerstrasse on the Leutzow Ufer, about a mile distant. There were other big underground shelters under the Tiergarten Park. The whole was linked together by communicating passages to form a great subteranean fortress.

It was not until the whole of Berlin had been brought crashing in a mass ruins and until the underground fortress had been burned out yard by yard by Soviet flamethrowers that the last great stronghold of Nazidom fell.

May Have Been Killed Before

Somewhere amid this underground labyrinth of ruins, his body charred beyond real recognition by flamethrowers, Adolf Hitler probably met his death. The Russians believe he might have been killed beforehand by the people around him. But the flames that finally swept through the subterranean passages probably destroyed forever any definite evidence of how the Nazi leader was wiped out.

Today, more than a week after the capitulation of Berlin, I was able to see something of the horror of the greatest street-to-street and house-to-house battle since Stalingrad.

The Tiergarten—Berlin's Central Park—was held through days of desperate fighting by SS troops. Before 1941, I often used to stroll through it on summer evenings. It was probably one of the most beautiful parks in any capital city in the world. Today it looks like the Argonne or Belleau Wood or Paschendaele. Its fine trees have been swept bare of leaves by the days of shellfire, and broken branches litter the ground everywhere. The ground is smoke-blackened and torn by deep trenches and anti-tank ditches.

Flak Towers Battered

At the western end of the Tiergarten, near the wrecked zoo station, still stand the badly battered large flak towers built by the Nazis in 1940 and used also as air-raid shelters. They originally were white, but since I left Berlin in 1941 they have been covered with camouflage paint. Apparently the Nazis used these also as part of the defenses of their central Berlin fortress.

The towers, whose concrete walls are fifteen feet thick, are battered and blasted by bombing and shellfire, but are still standing. One of the heavy 135-millimeter flak guns which the Luftwaffe mounted on top of the towers in 1941 is still there, a torn and twisted tangle of metal.

Seen From Surface

The great air-raid shelter under the Chancellery, where Hitler made his last headquarters, can be seen from above through an immense cavity torn in it by a blockbuster from an American bomber early this year. It was considered so safe at the time it was built that during the early RAF Berlin raids in 1940-41 it was used as a refuge for mothers and young children. Any children born there automatically had Hitler as a godfather.

The "bombproof" shelter and the Reichschancellery above it and the whole of the heart of Berlin are irrevocably destroyed today. With them went the last of Hitler's dreams of a "Thousand Years Reich."

Ribbentrop Lived As Lavishly As Der Fuehrer

By Louis P. Lochner

Fuschl, Austria, May 10 (AP)—Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop left Berlin early in April for an unannounced destination, his privy counsellor, Werner von Schmieden said today at Ribbentrop's palatial summer home on Fuschil Lake.

Schmieden, now under "protective custody" by the American Seventh Army, gave the impression he knew where his chief had gone and would not tell.

He guided us through the house, only 18 miles from Salzburg and an hour's drive from Hitler's Obersalzburg haus Wachenfeld.

Simple Life Not For Him

Ribbentrop, former champagne salesman, was no more a devotee of the simple life than Hitler, judging by his homes. Ribbentrop's Fuschl tower has a beautiful mountain lake view, with Alpine scenery.

This correspondent already had observed in Berlin how Ribbentrop had reconstructed his suburban villa in Dahlem. Although telephones were scarce in Germany, he had one installed for each of his children in his bombproof shelters.

When he moved into the Wilhelmstrasse as Foreign Minister the villa of his predecessor was not good enough for him and he discarded it.

Renovated Palace

He even renovated the Reich presidential palace, where former government heads had received their guests, to convert it into his swank residence. His summer home here was in keeping with his tastes.

A member of the infantry detachment now guarding the premises said "we hit upon all sort of swords and daggers thrown in the larek," and he gave me one for a souvenir.

When I pulled the blade out of the scabbard I found the following engraved on it: "To my dear Joachim von Ribbentrop for April 30, 1939—H. Himmler, Reichsführer SS." The date was Ribbentrop's forty-sixth birthday.

Officials Quit Berlin

Schmieden said the whole foreign ministry staff had moved from Berlin to western Germany, especially Thuringia, in March after the Russians approached.

The privy counsellor seemed astonished when we told him Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt had frankly discussed military aspects of the German failure.

"You know, of course, that the field marshal's plans collided with the Führer's," he said.

Hitler's Injuries

He tried at first to minimize the extent to which Hitler was hurt by the bomb explosion in the assassination attempt of July 20, 1944, but he said the Führer's hearing was badly impaired.

When he noted that we knew more about the case than he anticipated, he modified his story to add that Hitler also suffered arm and leg injuries.

Kesselring 'Surprised' By Hitler's Berlin Stand

Saalfelden, Austria, May 10 (AP). Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, the last commander of the German armies in the West, is "most surprised" that Hitler did not lead his Nazis into a planned holdout in the fortified underground tunnels of the Salzburg-Berchtesgaden area.

Kesselring, found by United States troops aboard his special train in the Tyrolean Alps and awaiting completion of arrangements for his formal surrender, said he is "absolutely certain" Hitler is dead.

"I was most surprised," he told American war correspondents last night "at the decision of der Führer at the last moment to fight with his soldiers in Berlin."

Kesselring At Ease

It had been known Kesselring was in this area where his predecessor, Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, and Reichmarshal Goering and other prominent Germans were taken prisoner. He was at ease during the press conference, in contrast to the taut, severe manner of Rundstedt, who faced newsmen a week ago.

Kesselring said he last saw Hitler about the middle of April in Berlin.

Death Cause Not Known

"I had an opportunity to speak with the chief of staff of the 6th Air Army today, and he was at the Chancellery until two days before Berlin fell," the field marshal said. "He said Hitler was dead."

Kesselring declared he did not know how Hitler had died, but said he had "the absolute conviction der Führer was unwilling to fall into Russian hands alive."

"Out of a profound knowledge of Adolf Hitler," he volunteered, I'm sure he would have welcomed an opportunity to conclude peace with Great Britain and America at any time. We are similar races—the Nordic type—and it is senseless to beat one another to death."

Kesselring was asked if he thought the German Army could have fought better without Hitler's "intuitive" leadership.

No Criticism For Hitler

"To give justice to der Führer," he said, "I must say he was a genius in operations sense and conception. Sometimes, however, the ideas of genius are misunderstood.

"I only regret that der Führer had to direct Germany's military, political and economic life. He was overtaxed by the weight of his burdens."

Discussing the war in general Kesselring declined to offer any specific criticism of Allied strategy.

He singled out Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Gen. George S. Patton and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder among the Allied commanders who had won his respect and admiration.

Agrees On Airpower

Kesserling recalled a statement by Montgomery that whoever had the superior air force would win the war.

"As an old Luftwaffe soldier I cannot deny the truth of those words," he said.

He asserted the Germans "never did entertain the idea of using gas."

"We are not as bad as you believe us to be," the marshal added.

Cites Allies' Ability

He followed up with these assertions:

"It is impossible that the Germans dressed in American uniforms in the Ardennes offensive. There are unwritten laws we all observe."

"I have seen an extreme increase in the ability of American and English soldiers in combat. We have always spoken of our aggressors with the greatest esteem. We are not content with the customs of New Zealanders, but every people have their customs."

"With enough German soldiers in it—yes, we could have held the Siegfried Line. But in six years their quality and number declined."

Wanted To Invade England

"I don't know why we didn't invade England after Dunkerque. Personally, I was for it. We should have done it."

Kesselring told newsmen he had broken a long precedent by talking to them.

"I had always escaped them before this—this armistice," he said. "Please, in your stories to the Americans, don't misquote me."

HENLEIN PUTS BLAME ON HIMMLER AND SS

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION in Czechoslovakia, May 10 (AP)—Konrad Henlein, who precipitated the Munich crisis in 1938, does not see why he should be regarded by anyone as a war criminal.

"I've always been a man of high honor," said the gauleiter of the Sudetenland and the Reichsstadthalter of Prague, where he was the chief German officer.

In a new tailored overcoat, well pressed suit, and shined shoes, the plump, 47-year-old former gymnastics teacher surrendered himself and his secretary yesterday.

Henlein, who stirred up dissident German elements in the Sudetenland before the German Army moved into Czechoslovakia, was reluctant to discuss his activities as the party's No. 1 man here. He blamed the SS for excesses and insisted was completely divorced from his own.

Henlein said he was constantly at cross purposes with Heinrich Himler, head of the S S and the Gestapo.

Henlein completely disowned any connection with "Heydrich, the hangman," the German S S boss in Czechoslovakia, for whose assassination the Germans conducted a blood purge in Prague and destroyed Lidice.

He dodged answering embarrassing questions on his conduct of Nazi affairs in Czechoslovakia and repeatedly observed—as have most captured German officials—that he was "only a little man," bound to carry out his orders without question."

Boyle Surpri... At Winning Prize

U.S. 1st Army, Germany, May 10 (AP)—Harold V. Boyle of the Associated Press learned with utter disbelief today that he had won the Pulitzer prize for distinguished correspondence, and at first accused his friends of playing a joke on him.

Returning from Prague with Cy

Peterman, of the Philadelphia Inquirer, Boyle stopped by the 1st Division's command post. Capt. Maxie Zera, of the Bronx, a public relations officer and long-time friend, shouted: "Congratulations on winning the Pulitzer prize."

That stopped Boyle in his tracks and he replied: "Aw, horsefeathers."

"No, it's true," Zera said and produced a copy of Stars and Stripes which had the story.

"They must have made a mistake," Boyle said.

Diesel Aids U. S. Attack

Captured Son of Inventor Tells of Hideouts in Bavarian Alps

WITH THE 12TH ARMORED DIVISION, UNITED STATES 7TH ARMY, May 9 (Delayed) (AP).—Dr. Eugen Diesel, son of the Diesel engine inventor, appeared six days ago at an artillery command post and told of a big V-3 factory and experimental station hidden high in the Bavarian Alps, and also of a new superhighway and tunnel to Nazi hideouts.

The artillery took him at his word when he gave exact information of target areas within range of the American guns, and soon shells began popping into them, American authorities disclosed today. Diesel surrendered himself to Captain W. A. Draheim, of Arlington, Mass.

Reich Control Progress Rapid

With the British 2d Army May 10 (AP)—The changeover from military to administrative operations in Germany is making rapid progress despite the tedious job of weeding out Nazis and appointing nonparty members to control the civilian population.

One of the main tasks is to evacuate displaced persons. More than 61,000 refugees, liberated war prisoners and slave laborers have been sent back to Belgium, France and Holland from the 2d Army front, 10,000 of them by air.

Evacuation is progressing at a rate of 4,500 a day. Approximately 95,000 remain in 2d Army controlled camps, exclusive of Bremen and Hamburg, where they are being sorted.

Camps For Evacuees

Eastbound evacuees, the Russians, Poles and others, are being kept in camps or self-organized communities pending their return home.

The basic unit of local government is the Kreis. This may be a Landkreis, a rural district smaller than a county and subdivided into Gemeindens. Or it may be a Standkreis, a large town with a population roughly more than 30,000.

In greater Germany there are 894 Landkreis, 58,000 Gemeinden and 238 Standkreis.

Nonparty German officials are selected by the Military Government to head each of these branches.

The Government is divided into these sections: Executive, administrative, public safety, finance, economic control, supplies and displaced persons.

Maintenance Of Order

The public safety branch is responsible for the restoration and maintenance of law and order, which presented one of the most serious problems.

Enough German currency to meet the requirements of the population has been found. Bank accounts have been blocked and withdrawals are limited to a maximum of 600 marks a month (about $50).

This, an official said, is a safeguard because "it takes money to start subversive activities."

He added that a survey showed German food stocks were fairly adequate for the population. A ration system is being established.

2 Large Jap Plane Plants Heavily Damaged by B-29s

Record Fleet of Superforts Batters Enemy's Homeland Oil Supplies.

GUAM, Friday, May 11—(AP) Two important Japanese aircraft works—Hiro naval aircraft factory and Tachikawa engine plant—were damaged heavily by recent B-29 raids, reconnaissance photographs disclosed today.

The pictures show the Hiro factory, five miles east of Kure on Honshu island, was damaged 75 per cent in one attack, that of May 5. On the same day, other Superfortresses caused 80 per cent roof area damage to nearby Hiro naval engine and turbine factory.

Badly Burned Out

The Tachikawa engine plant of the Hitachi aircraft company in the Tokyo area was 80 per cent burned out April 24.

All major buildings of the Hiro naval aircraft factory were severely or completely damaged with the single exception of one multi-colored building which appeared to have suffered three hits. Twenty-eight buildings sustained a total of 700,000 square feet of roof damage.

In the same attack, 870,000 square feet of the roof area of the Hiro naval engine and turbine factory was damaged. Several buildings of the nearby Hiro arsenal were destroyed or damaged.

More than 400 giant Superforts packing an explosive wallop equal to the bomb tonnage of 1,000 Liberators spread wide destruction yesterday in the first heavy aerial attack on fuel, oil storage and manufacturing centers of Japan.

The record-breaking assault left smoke columns billowing more than 15,000 feet above ruins of fuel tanks and plants at Tokuyama and Otake, on southwestern Honshu island, main unit of the Nipponese homeland chain.

Flying through flak fields but meeting little fighter opposition, the B-29s also hit airfields on Shikoku and Kyushu islands, and Japan's biggest homeland oil storage center on Oshima island, off the northwest tip of Kyushu.

All the targets were in the western areas around the Japan inland sea, requiring a round trip flight of more than 3,000 miles for the Superforts.

Returning fliers said the Superforts in heading for one of the targets roared over a Japanese naval force which filled the sky with black ackack bursts, but none of the B-29s was seen to fall.

The raid was the first blast of the hurricane of bombing promised Japan by American war leaders, at the end of the German war.

The blow at Tokuyama took in the naval fueling station and a neighboring synthetic fuel factory.

In blasting Nippon's fuel storage and manufacturing facilities, the Superforts additionally damaged the efficiency of the Japanese war machine, already feeling the throttling effects of the Allied China sea blockade.

Fuel Situation Grave

Recent Tokyo broadcasts have admitted that Nippon no longer can depend on the petroleum resources of the Dutch East Indies and other southern conquered areas, and reported efforts to extract fuel oil from homeland pine tree roots.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, estimated that yesterday's raid was made by approximately 300 Superforts, but the enemy propagandists have consistently minimized the striking forces in the American raids. It made no claims of planes shot down.

The bomb bursts sent flames leaping 2,000 to 3,000 feet high through towering smoke pillars, said Lt. Col. Loran D. Briggs of Bountiful, Utah, who declared the strike the most successful of all his attacks on Japan.

Other fliers noted the timidity of Japanese fighter pilots, who made feeble passes at the B-29 squadrons but never pressed their attacks.

JAP OIL PLANTS ARE SET ABLAZE BY SUPERFORTS

Huge Petroleum Stores Go Up in Smoke in Foe's Home Islands.

Guam, May 10 (A. P.).—Japan's dwindling homeland oil supplies were blasted for the first time today by a record fleet of more than 400 B-29s. Smoke columns rose 15,000 feet from wreckage of oil storage and fuel manufacturing centers on Honshu, main Jap island, and returning Superfortress fliewmen reported results "excellent."

The big bombers also struck at airfields on Shikoku and Kyushu Islands, from where Japan sends suicide planes into the battle for Okinawa.

Fulfilling Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's promise of greater and greater air attacks on Japan, today's formation carried a total bomb tonnage equivalent to the maximum loads of more than 1,000 Liberator bombers. And the Superforts winged more than 3,000 miles to do it.

Disdain Jap Naval Forces.

First on the list of oil areas to be struck were the Tokuyama and Otake fuel storage and manufacturing centers on the Inland Sea, a major source of supply for the enemy. Bombs were dropped at the Tokuyama naval fueling station and a nearby synthetic fuel factory.

Japan's biggest homeland oil storage center on tiny Oshima Island, just off the northwest tip of Kyushu, was another top target. Bombs were dropped visually and accurately in daylight with but little fighter opposition.

A Highly Successful Strike.

It was a different story when the Superforts roared over a Jap naval force. There, said Second Lieut. Joseph E. Rogers of Wharton, N. J., the sky "turned black with flak." The big planes disdained the naval force to carry out the devastating blow at the enemy's valued oil centers.

No announcement was made of American losses, but returned flyers reported they saw no B-29s go down.

Lieut.-Col. Loran D. Briggs of Bountiful, Utah, termed the strike one of the most successful in which he has participated. Eighty Superforts were over a target ahead of him, "and when we arrived there was a column of smoke more than 15,000 feet high with scarlet bursts of flames through it," he said.

Crewmen of another plane said billows of smoke towered more than 20,000 feet from the Tokuyama fueling station, and Lieut. James Pratt of Wesleyville, Pa., reported flames leaped upward 2,000 to 3,000 feet. Although crewmen of Pratt's plane found the smoke a minor nuisance in sighting the target, Flight Officer Wayne Story of Rifle, Colo., said bomb's from the plane added new flames to the holocaust.

Even the usually reluctant Jap Domei news agency admitted the fleet, of attacking planes was huge, and reported by broadcast that "approximately 300" Superfortresses had participated. And contrary to its time-worn theme of minimizing attacks, the enemy news agency made no comment on damage nor of planes shot down.

Jap fighter pilots were timid, and in one instance, seven buzzed near a formation but never attacked.

At the Otake target more than 100 planes had showered their bombs before Lieut. Nelson McDowell of Philadelphia, and his Superfort arrived. By that time thick clouds of oil smoke had risen 20,000 feet.

How Lone Nazi Slowed Isle Fall Told

Off the Channel Islands, May 9 [AP—Delayed]—A skinny Nazi with his pants seat wet from the sea put in a last fling of German bullheadedness and delayed the surrender of the Channel Islands until 7.14 A.M. today.

He was German Navy Lieut. Arnim Zimmerman and his stiff way of doing things, along with that of his officers, spoiled the perfectly good British plan to rush things for the only bits of British territory ever occupied by the Germans.

Yesterday British forces, led by Brigadier A. E. Snow, steamed from Plymouth to call on the Germans and take their unconditional surrender. They knew the official end of hostilities was not until 12.01 A.M. today.

Message From Commander

They already had a message from the German commander saying he would be glad to arrange a rendezvous and receive the terms.

Aboard the British destroyer Bulldag at the rendezvous spot we waited for Zimmerman, who was the envoy sent by the German commander. And he came out in probably the world's dingiest, rustiest and dirtiest mine sweeper.

The British added to his undignified appearance by sending over a rubber boat to fetch him across one hundred yards of sea to the destroyer.

He was perched on the edge of the two-by-four rubber dinghy and his seat dragged in the water. But once he was aboard, with trousers dripping, a guar dof honor standing by and the bas'un sounding pipes, he stiffly hoisted the straight-armed Hitler salute.

Another Stiff-Arm

The British officers escorted him below to the conference table. As he entered the destroyer's wardroom he stiffarmed another salute. Some British replied with perfunctory gestures.

The German got it full in the face. The brigadier asked him if he understood this was no armistice but unconditional surrender and if he could sign such an instrument.

The Nazi was shocked. Finally he agreed to take the unconditional surrender notice back to his commander, an Admiral Huffmeier, but he put out a lot of talk about how the actual surrender negotiated by the German high command was still hours off.

Mind you, this was yesterday evening (Tuesday) when, according to our radios, London was celebrating V-E day.

"Ships Must Move"

And then the young Nazi, Adam's apple working and his forehead wet with sweat, said, "But I am instructed to inform you that your ships must move from these shores (we weren't far from the German guns and we could see the islands) or the Admiral will regard their presence as a breach of faith and a provocative act."

The British commander got that from the interpreter and he barked back that any action taken by the German commander would subsequently be treated as "outlaw." Zimmerman was advised to withdraw. He did, to his dinghy from which he nearly fell several times while flinging the Nazi salute around.

Another Rendezvous

But before he left, arrangements were made for another rendezvous at midnight. This task force had to steam out of sight of the islanders who for five years had been watching those Nazis strut.

A German Major General Heine came aboard at midnight from an eight-oared cutter after we steamed back. When we asked about whether the unconditional surrender was okay he said without hesitating, "Ja."

Formalities took the rest of the night and at 7.45 A.M. today names went down on the document, and the Channel Islands were back home again.

More Gas Promised Britons, Conscription Will Continue

LONDON, May 10—(AP) Prime Minister Churchill on his fifth anniversary in office told Britons today they would have more gasoline but no letup in conscription at home, that peace had not ended diplomatic "difficulties" among the big three powers and that "statements will have to be made later" on Germany's future regime.

The 70-year-old prime minister, unwearied by his strenuous participation in V-E day celebrations in London, made the statements in Commons. He postponed until Sunday night at 9 p. m. (3 p. m. E.W.T) the victory broadcast to the nation marking today's multiple war anniversaries, while his secretarial staff battled with anniversary congratulations from the earth's four corners.

Succeeded Chamberlain

Churchill succeeded the late Neville Chamberlain on the night of May 10, 1940, after the Germans opened their invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg. Exactly one year later London was suffering its heaviest air attack of the war and the Nazi Leader Rudolf Hess landed by parachute in Scotland on a reported peace mission.

Churchill said he considered the European victory different from that of World War One because "Germany was not occupied in 1918 but it is now entirely overrun by troops of Allies" while the scenes of "frightful destruction of towns and cities and so on should be in themselves considerable arguments to German people in favor of the fact they have suffered some military reverse.

"As to the future regime, that is a matter on which statements will have to be made later," he said. Meanwhile, "the military authorities must be left for a while in full control."

Germany was one reason why Britain must continue compulsory male recruitment for "some years," he said.

"We have got to settle this matter with due consideration of our difficulties and dangers which are by no means entirely at an end. And also we have to consider the very important point of young men going out to relieve their fathers and elder brothers in the duty of garrisoning Germany and in regard to the war in Japan."

Asked if the conscripts were needed only as relief manpower he replied, "the future is inscrutable."

Apparently referring to the question of Poland, Churchill said:

Care, Judgment Needed

"Difficulties which were noticed before the end of the German war are in no way relieved and it therefore becomes a matter on which care and judgment must be used as to when and how the matters should be treated in the house

"I am hoping that next week the foreign secretary (Anthony Eden, now at the San Francisco conference) will be back. I shall have the advantage then of talking the whole matter over with him, he no doubt being fully informed of the views of the United States and having had the advantages of discussions with Mr. Molotov."

Churchill said he recognized the need for a delegate on foreign affairs but that he did not want to promise a date at this moment. He promised a debate on the question of what to do with Germany once the four-power Allied control commission was fully installed in Berlin.

The prime minister's best news of the day to Britons was that private motorists would be placed within 30 days on substantially the same basic gasoline ration as that in the United States.

Churchill appeared in buoyant spirits but was slightly hoarse after a number of speeches during Britain's just completed two-day V-E holiday. It was said his heavy schedule had given him little time to prepare his major victory address, which was postponed "owing to his many engagements at this time."

The broadcast is expected to review the war and his five years' stewardship.

Goering May Be First Big Nazi To Face International Justice

SINGLETON

LONDON, May 1 — (AP) Hermann Goering, whose air force once terrorized Europe, may be the first big Nazi to face the international bar of justice, a responsible source close to the War Crimes Commission said today.

His statement that Goering might be tried soon came as a vast manhunt was pressed for other top-flight members of the Nazi gang and a pooled dispatch from Berlin said the Russians held at least four charred bodies, one of which might be that of Adolf Hitler, war criminal No. 1.

Body Believed Goebbels

This dispatch said that the Russians had established to a fair degree of certainty that two other bodies found were those of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy and that a number of other Nazi big-wigs' bodies had been identified.

There remains the question of the whereabouts of Heinrich Himmler, infamous boss of the Gestapo, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, whose ruthless policy as foreign minister set the stage for war in Europe.

The Swedish foreign office denied rumors that Himmler had arrived in Sweden. There also have been unsubstantiated reports that he took refuge in Norway after his peace overtures to the Western powers failed.

Associated Press Correspondent Louis P. Lochner in a dispatch from Fuschl, Austria, said he had been informed by Von Ribbentrop's privy counsellor that the ousted foreign minister had left Berlin in April for an unannounced destination.

The privy counsellor, Werner von Schmieden, was under "protective custody" of the U. S. Seventh army.

(At San Francisco, the United States prposed to security conference representatives of Great Britain, Russia and France that organizations such as the Nazi party be tried for war crimes, which would subject all members to punishment upon conviction of the group. Thus many individuals who did not rank as major war criminals could be tried.)

Konrad Henlein, the gauleiter of the Sudetenland who plotted against Czechoslovakia and smoothed the way for Hitler's march into that country, was taken yesterday by the Seventh army along with Karl Frank, notorious Nazi military governor.

Many smaller fry also were being flushed as the armies of the victors began occupying the land once under Nazi rule.

Allied troops have captured Milan Nedic, former puppet premier of Serbia; his brother, Milutin Nedic, Serbian war minister; Bela Tuka, former premier of Slovakia's puppet government and a number of ministers in the Greek puppet government.

Mussert Is Jailed

Anton Mussert, leader of Holland's Nazis, was jailed at the Hague on treason charges for trial before Dutch jurists, and prisoner-of-war camps were being searched for other Dutch war criminals.

Armed patriots stalked the streets of Oslo, rounding up Norwegian Nazis and hauling them off to jail to join Vidkun Quisling, the puppet premier.

Representatives of the United Nations War Crimes commission have refused to comment on plans and procedure for trying the men accused as war criminals.

The source close to the commission said that Goering would be classed among those whom more than one nation wants to try.

It was been proposed that a high tribunal be formed to try such cases, and a decision was postponed until the next meeting of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and Russia.

They since have come together at the San Francisco conference, but whether a decision was reached is not known here.

The status of Rudolf Hess, Hitler's old deputy who flew to Scotland four years ago today, remains in doubt. The War Office said only that he was a prisoner of war.

RUSSIANS FORCE ENEMY SOLDIERS INTO BIG POCKET

MAY 1 1945

Three Soviet Armies Launch Attack after Nazis Disregard Orders to Quit.

U-BOATS SURRENDER

British Navy Liberates Dunkerque, Small Channel Islands.

WHEELER

LONDON, Friday, May 11—(AP) Three Russian army groups launched powerful offensives in Czechoslovakia yesterday after fanatical Nazi troops refused to accept Germany's unconditional surrender. The Russians slashed out 57-mile gains and threatened to trap thousands of enemy soldiers in a giant pocket.

More than 48 hours after the official end of all hostilities in Europe, the Soviet high command announced that the First, Second and Fourth Ukrainian armies had "gone over to the attack" after German forces under Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner and Col. Gen. Woehler disregarded the surrender terms and fought on.

Ships Surrender

But elsewhere in Europe, the Germans were giving up to the Anglo-Americans. The miserable remnants of Germany's once-proud surface and underwater fleets surrendered while the British Navy liberated England's own tiny channel islands and Dunkerque—scene of the war's greatest Allied defeat—also was freed.

In most former battle areas of the Eastern front, the Germans appeared to be surrendering quietly to the Red army and the Soviet high command announced the capture of 209,060 German officers and men in preliminary checkups. The bag on all fronts facing the Russians included 26 generals, Moscow said.

In Czechoslovakia, the Red army was making Schoerner's group "come to its senses," as Marshal Stalin promised in his victory address. One German group threatened with encirclement by Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army had begun to surrender. Another force had taken to its heels and was fleeing southwest through a 42-mile escape gap—presumably in hopes of surrendering to the American Third army.

But the Russians rapidly were closing this gap between Prague and Caslav, 42 miles to the East, and many thousand enemy troops faced entrapment in a 4,056-square mile pocket north, northeast and east of Prague, while south of the city the Germans kept open a corridor to American lines.

Under the onslaught of the three Soviet armies, the resisting Germans faced being slashed to pieces by the vengeful Russians who were forced to fight on long after their Allies in the west had ceased fire. Schoerner himself, wanted by the Russians as a war criminal, appeared to be personally responsible for the continued resistance.

Refuse to Lay Down Arms

Announcing the Russian offensives, the Soviet command said that "German troops commanded by Field Marshal Schoerner, infringing the act of capitulation, refused to remain on the spot and lay down their arms.

"Consequently," the Russian war bulletin added, "our troops have gone over to the attack."

The three armies were pressing into Bohemia from the northwest, east and southeast.

On the northwest, Konev's First Ukrainians, completely hurdling the mountains marking the German-Czechoslovak frontier, advanced up to 47 miles along a 155-mile front, extending from Dobris, 22 miles southwest of liberated Prague to Ceska Skalice, 70 miles northeast of the Czechoslovak capital. They seized 15 major towns.

It was in this area that one of Schoerner's groups, faced with the threat of encirclement in one of the Red army's feared "cauldrons" began to surrender in disorder and 35,000 enemy troops were taken prisoner Wednesday and Thursday.

Plunge Into Bohemia

At the same time, Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's Fourth Ukrainian army, plunging into Bohemia from the east, advanced up to 57 miles in pursuit of retreating enemy troops, swept through 14 towns and captured Caslav. More than 20,000 enemy troops surrendered to Yeremenko. It was Yeremenko's powerful sweep to Caslav that threatened to trap enemy troops north and northeast of Prague.

The developing pocket was 52 miles deep north of Caslav and was 78 miles long from Hradec Kralove, 58 miles east of Prague, to Litomerice, 31 miles northwest of the capital.

Below Yeremenko's army, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian group attacked troops under German Gen. Woehler who Moscow said "also violated the terms of capitulation and refused to lay down arms."

Woehler's group apparently was attempting to keep open a corridor south of Prague for the escape of German troops to American lines. Compared with the big hauls taken by Konev and Yeremenko Malinovsky's troops took only 8,000 enemy troops.

Malinovsky's men, however, swept forward on an eight-mile front in a drive that carried them into Ceske-Budojovice, 74 miles south of Prague and 47 miles north of Linz.

In Austria, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army mop-up squads occupied the towns of Waidhofen, Loeben and St. Michael and linked up with British Eighth army troops west of Graz. More than 23,000 German troops of Woehler's army group surrendered, Moscow said.

Meanwhile, Moscow said that the prisoner bag in Latvia had risen to 68,578 men, 1,982 officers and 13 generals and the Baltic port of Ventspils (Windau) had been occupied following the Nazi capitulation in the Courland peninsula.

Sandspit Taken

In the Danzig area, the 2d and 3d White Russian armies also took 55,500 Nazi troops prisoner, including the commander of the 2d German Army. The Hel peninsula and the Putziger Nehrung sandspit northwest of Danzig also were occupied.

The Czechoslovak president, Eduard Benes, had returned to the free capital of Prague tonight and the total liberation of all Czechoslovakia, early victim of Hitler's plans for world conquest, was near.

In Germany, the changeover from military to administrative problems began and the Allies set about weeding out the Nazis.

The last remnants of the German surface fleet, including the cruisers Prinz Eugen and Nuernberg, which had shelled the Danish capital of Copenhagen over the week end, came under the guns of the Royal Navy in Copenhagen harbor.

With the 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen and the 6,000-ton Nuernberg were two large destroyers, one small destroyer, two torpedo boats, ten mine sweepers, thirteen flak ships, nineteen armed trawlers and two armed merchant ships.

The German ships surrendered to two British cruisers and four destroyers which forced a passage through German mine fields in the Skagerrak and Kattegat to reach Copenhagen. "Not a Nazi flag was to be seen," a British naval reporter said. "The crews were leaning over the guard rails watching glumly. It was clear they were beaten as thoroughly as the rest of the Herrenvolk."

Guns In Wild Disorder

The Prinz Eugen's guns were in wild disorder—some pointed up, others down, some trained one way, the rest another.

Meanwhile, Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz' submarine fleet which had taken a ruthless toll of Allied shipping, was surrendering and putting into British ports. The first surrender in a British port occured in southern England at Weymouth, where the submersible U-249, which had been at sea 40 days, surfaced and was escorted into port.

The London Evening News reported that two more U-boats had surrendered in Loch Eriboll on the extreme northern coast of Scotland and said the 10-mile long fjord hed been selected as the rendezvous point for submarines coming in from the North sea. The paper said 14 other U-boats had signalled they were on their way in.

Up to dawn, the RAF coastal command had sighted six German submarines in the act of surrendering at sea. While the U-boats are proceeding to port, the British are maintaining constant air patrols.

The French press agency meanwhile reported that Franch sailors in the large port of La Rochelle, which surrendered Wednesday, had officially taken over possession of the German Atlantic fleet that had been anchored in the harbor.

These ships were said to have been placed at France's disposal, but it was not announced how many vessels had been seized.

Swedes To Sweep Mines

Following the surrender of the fleet in Copenhagen, the Swedes announced that the Swedish Navy would begin sweeping German mines from the Skagerrak and Kattegat to open Sweden's door to the North Sea. The task is expected to take 100 ships two weeks.

Off France's northwestern coast, a British task force liberated the Channel islands, including Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, Herm and Jethou.

These tiny islands, on France's doorstep, have belonged to England since 1066. They are the only part of the United Kingdom to have been occupied by the Nazis. The islands were liberated at 7.15 A.M. (London time) Wednesday when the Nazis signed unconditional surrender papers on the quarter-deck of the British destroyer Bulldog lying at anchor off St. Peter, the port of Guernsey.

Show Of Obstinacy

The Nazis put on a show of obstinacy—at first attempting to sign an "armistice" instead of complete surrender—but finally were convinced that they were in no position to bargain. After the surrender, 30 British artillerymen went ashore on Guernsey and took over the island which had a garrison of 10,000 troops. Other British Marines landed on the other islands, to be greeted by islanders "delirious with joy."

The islands were occupied by the Germans shortly after the fall of France. Britain had demilitarized them before this and made no attempt to defend them.

Dunkerque Liberated

The French port of Dunkerque, from which the battered British Army fell back to England after the fall of France in 1940, also was liberated, the French press agency reported.

Elsewhere in liberated Europe, there were these developments:

Germany—More than 10,000 liberated prisoners of war were flown back to England by 500 Allied bombers, making approximately 50,000 within the last week.

Some American divisions assigned as occupying forces in Germany were reported already on their way to their new jobs, while Allied authorities took on the task of evacuating displaced persons and appointing Nazi party members to control the civilian population.

And In Norway

Norway—The first Allied airborne troops arrived in Oslo, including Norwegians trained in Scotland. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower asked Norwegians to assist Allied forces "in speeding up the return to normal of conditions of order and decency."

Four divisions of a Norwegian police corps trained in Sweden also entered Norway.

Denmark—Some 1,500 Russian soldiers landed on the Danish island of Bornholm. It was announced that they would co-operate with Danish authorities. Approximately 20,000 Germans on the island will be removed to Germany.

The port of Copenhagen passed into Danish hands after five years of Nazi occupation. The last German left the administration building carrying an armchair and a lamp.

Holland—The disarming of some 120,000 Nazi troops began. In Amsterdam and other cities authorities began distributing extra food brought into Rotterdam by five mercy ships.

GOERING WILL BE PUT ON TRIAL SOON

London, May 10 (A. P.).—Marshal Herman Goering will be brought to trial soon, probably before a high tribunal made up of representaives of the western Allies and Russia, a responsible informant close to the United Nations War Crimes Commission said today. Goering's report of a split with Hitler would make no difference in his treatment, it was stated. His case would fall, it was added, into the category of those against whom more than one nation has a claim.

The final decision on the formation of a tribunal to try such cases as Goering's was laid aside before the San Francisco conference convened until the next meeting of the foreign ministers of Britain, the United States and Russia. Since then, however, Anthony Eden, Vyacheslav Molotov and Secretary of State Stettinius have had an opportunity to discuss the issue at San Francisco.

Meanwhile, it was learned here that the War Crimes Commission has been discussing the advisability of making public a list of those regarded as war criminals. No decision has been reached, and so far the commission has refused to say even how long the list is. The status of Rudolf Hess also remained uncertain. The War Office would say only that he was a prisoner of war.

CHURCHILL CALLS POLISH ISSUE TENSE

London, May 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill indicated today that there was still tenseness in diplomatic dealings among the "Big Three," but said he hoped to make a statement after Foreign Secretary Eden returns from the world security conference.

In an apparent reference to the Polish issue, Mr. Churchill told Commons:

"Difficulties which were noticed before the end of the German war are in no way relieved, and it therefore becomes a matter on which care and judgment must be used as to when and how the matter should be treated in the House.

"I am hoping that next week the Foreign Secretary will be back. I shall have the advantage then of talking the whole matter over with him, he no doubt being fully informed of the views of the United States and having had the advantages of discussions with Mr. Molotov."

LAST NAZI SURFACE SHIPS SURRENDER

London, May 10 (A. P.).—The last remnants of the German surface fleet came under the guns of the British Navy in final surrender yesterday morning—the cruisers Prinz Eugen and Nuernberg, which had been shelling Copenhagen over the week end; also two large destroyers, one small destroyer, two torpedo boats, ten minesweepers, thirteen flak ships, nineteen armed trawlers and two armed merchant ships.

Two British cruisers and four destroyers had been steaming for two days, forcing a passage through the German minefields in the Skagerrak and the Kattegat to reach Copenhagen after the German surrender.

On the other hand, the first post-war surrender of a German submarine in a British port occurred in Weymouth Bay today when U-249 was handed over to Commander N. J. Weir of the British Navy. Oberlieutenant Kock, commanding, surfaced his craft about fifty miles off the coast and two sloops were sent out to escort him to port. He had been at sea for about forty days when he received the surrender message.

Meanwhile today the Air Ministry announced that planes of the Coastal Command, Royal Air Force, had up to dawn today sighted six German submarines in the act of surrendering. Constant patrols are being maintained, the statement said, as the U-boats proceed to port in conformity with the German surrender.

NAZIS IN DUNKIRK FINALLY GIVE UP

London, May 10 (A. P.).—The Allied controlled Luxembourg radio declared today that the German holding garrison in the French channel port of Dunkirk has surrendered. Dunkirk was the last pocket of German resistance in France to surrender to the Allies.

Nazi forces at Lorient, La Rochelle and St. Nazaire had laid down their arms yesterday.

Allies Rounding Up Nazi Army Remnants

London, May 10 (AP)—The European war—most devastating in all history—bowed out last night to the deafening roar of 30 volleys from 1,000 Moscow guns, and all that was left of it today was a series of sporadic outbursts of fighting and the mopping up processing of endless streams of German prisoners.

Special Red Army mopup squads were rounding up thousands of Germans still hiding or wandering in areas from the Baltic Sea to the Tyrolean Alps.

The toll of 66,000 captured yesterday swelled the total to nearly 100,000 as the mopup operations moved into isolated spots.

The only fighting appeared in Bohemia, where some German units fleeing to the west and southwest offered occasional rear-guard resistance.

London, May 10 (A. P.).—In a blunt, six-minute victory broadcast from his study in the Kremlin, Marshal Stalin last night said that the Soviet Union would not destroy Germany or its people.

As a million happy Russians jammed the area around the Kremlin in a noisy holiday mood, their leader announced: "Hitler declared three years ago, 'we shall destroy Russia.' But Hitler's insane ideas were not destined to come true. . . . The Soviet Union is rejoicing in victories, although it does not intend to destroy Germany."

Declaring that the final German capitulation was signed in Berlin after a "preliminary act" at Reims, where the western Allies and a Russian representative accepted surrender, Stalin made no reference to Japan in his speech.

At Allied headquarters it was disclosed that Stalin had sought unsuccessfully to delay the victory announcement of Tuesday. Allied headquarters treated the Berlin signers as a ratification, but apparently Moscow regarded the Berlin act as the actual surrender. It ended for Soviet Russia nearly four years of unprecedented struggle and marked the climax of a two-year march from Stalingrad to Berlin—1,360 miles of fighting.

Czech President Back in Prague

Nazis Reported Bombing Concentration Camp for Jews Again Today.

London, May 10 (A. P.).—President Eduard Benes has returned to Prague, the Czecho-Slovak capital which he left in 1938 after Munich, the Prague radio announced today.

The Prague radio also said that German planes were again bombing the big concentration camp at Terezin (Theresienstadt), fifty-three miles northeast of Prague, where thousands of Jews were still held. The camp was among the places bombed yesterday, Czech broadcasts reported.

Ground Crewmen Get Ride Over Europe

London, May 10 (AP)—Ground crews of the United States 8th Air Force who stayed behind in British bases while their comrades flew big bombers over the Continent finally are getting a look at the devastation created by the planes they serviced.

More than 7,000 ground crewmen made an air tour of the Continent today, riding in more than 700 heavy bombers. When the bombers flew over Paris many people thought the aerial fleet was staging a victory parade.

Bracken Reduces His Staff

LONDON, May 10 (AP).—Brendan Bracken, British Minister of Information, told the House of Commons today his regional staff already had been reduced and that, with hostilities ended in Europe, he hoped to make "drastic reductions" in his department.

London, May 10 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said today that Premier Baron Kantaro Suzuki "had an audience with the Mikado and informed him of the decision of the Cabinet . . . to bring the war to a victorious conclusion."

Cargo War Risk Rates Plunge

LONDON, May 10 (AP).—Sharp reductions in war risk insurance rates for cargoes—in some instances to half of previous levels and in other cases only one-third and one-fifth of those prevailing before Germany's surrender—were announced today by the Institute of London Underwriters.

Anniversary Of 4 Notable War Events

London, May 10 (AP)—Today is the anniversary of four notable events in World War II.

Exactly five years ago Adolf Hitler's armies invaded the Lowlands and Winston Churchill took over as British Prime Minister, sueceeding Neville Chamberlain.

On May 10, 1941, Rudolf Hess parachuted into Scotland, and that night the German Air Force staged its heaviest raid on London, hitting the houses of Parliament and showering high explosives and incendiaries over wide sections of the British capital.

Britain To Train 40,000 Needed In Cotton Mills

London, May 10 (AP)—To aid in recruiting 40,000 workers estimated necessary to restaff 180 cotton mills closed by the war, operators plan a training program under which trainees will be paid $16 weekly while learning the trade, it was announced today.

The Government is expected to begin the training program in the near future in one or two mills with a basic wage of $16 weekly for men and $11 for women, and the Master Cotton Spinners Federation, representing employers, disclosed its intention to pay a similar amount where training arrangements are made by individual employers.

London Bureau Account

London, May 10 (AP)—The Associated Press London Bureau relayed Edward Kennedy's story of the German surrender Monday without alterations and with no prior knowledge that it was coming through here or how it was coming.

The news was received by telephone and handled through the censors just like any other copy. The censors raised no question.

Robert Bunnelle, managing executive, now under SHAEF suspension, was absent from the office when the story began coming in and it was as much news to him as to anyone else.

Stalin Congratulates Americans And British

London, Friday, May 11 (AP)—Marshal Stalin in messages to President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill, today congratulated the American and British peoples and their armed forces in connection with the defeat of Germany.

"I heartily thank you for your friendly congratulations on the occasion of the unconditional surrender of Hitlerite Germany," his message to President Truman said. "Peoples of the Soviet Union highly value the participation of the friendly American peoples in the present war of liberation.

"The joint struggle of the Soviet, American and British armies against the German invaders, which has ended in their complete rout and defeat, will go down in history as an example of the fighting collaboration of our peoples.

"In the name of the Soviet people and the Soviet Government I beg of you to convey to the American people and the gallant American army the hearty greetings and wishes (two words inaudible) victory."

Message To Churchill

The message to Churchill said:

"I greet personally through you the gallant British armed forces and the whole of the British people and congratulate them on the great victory over our common foe, the German imperialists.

"This historic victory has been achieved in a joint struggle of the Soviet, British and American armies for the liberation of Europe.

"I express confidence in the further successful and happy development of friendly relations in the postwar period which were created between our two countries during the war. I have authorized our Ambassador in London to convey to all my congratulations on the victory we have achieved and my best wishes."

8TH AIR FORCE LISTS DEEDS

Dropped 4,628,687 Tons of Bombs and Bagged 15,439 Planes

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—The United States Eighth Air Force dropped 4,628,687 bombs on the European Continent and destroyed 15,439 enemy aircraft in the air and on the ground in the great air war against Germany, a final tabulation showed today.

The final blow by the Eighth Air Force was struck April 25 in an attack on the Skoda munitions works at Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, with Lieut. Early Fisher Jr. of Seattle, Wash., a Fortress bombardier, touching off the last bomb blast at 11:16 A. M.

The last German plane shot down by the Eighth Air Force was a twin-engined jet-propelled fighter engaged near Munich the same day by Lieut. Hilton Thompson of Bernice, La., a P-51 pilot.

30.24 25667

DEFENSE REGULATIONS ARE EASED IN ENGLAND

LONDON, May 10.—(AP) Britain dropped 84 defense regulations today and suspended 25 others imposed at the start of the war.

Among things Britons now can do is go on camping trips, except in northern Scotland, signal with handkerchief to ship at sea or an airplane, keep homing and racing pigeons and send messages by them.

Revocation of other orders will permit week-night greyhound racing and more horse racing.

SAYS GERMAN RUIN BARS 1918 ERROR

London, May 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the frightful destruction in Germany should be clear enough evidence to the German people that they had been beaten on the battle field. He expressed doubt that any German propagandist of the future would be able to convince any one differently.

"Germany was not occupied in 1918, but it is now entirely overrun by troops of the Allies," he continued. "As for the future regime, that is a matter on which statements will have to be made later."

Asked what was going to happen to all the discarded German uniforms, he replied: "I believe a certain amount of adaption will make a pair of trousers act either in a civil or a military capacity."

Ship Hit on V-E Day Beached Safely

Deal, England, May 10 (A. P.).—The American Liberty ship Horace Binney, which struck a German mine on V-E day thirty-six miles from the Netherlands port of Flushing, was beached here today after being towed in by two tugs. Fifteen men, including the captain, were injured when the mine exploded amidships.

NAZI POWS TO CLEAR ENGLISH BLITZ DAMAGE

LONDON, May 10—(AP) German prisoners of war in Britain will begin next week to clear blitzed areas in preparation for housing sites. In a few months it is expected more than 500,000 prisoners will be employed in the task.

Unions have agreed on rates of pay and hours of work and the ministry of work has said that not one British workman will be out of a job because of the plan.

Since most of the work is classified as unskilled, the majority of the prisoners will earn three shillings a week, approximately 60 cents. They will dig trenches for sewers, lay roads and prepare sites for the house builders to take over.

Churchill On Conscription

London, May 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that conscription probably would have to remain in effect in Britain for "some years."

"We have got to settle this matter with due consideration of our difficulties and dangers which are by no means entirely at an end," he said. "And also we have to consider the very important point of young men going out to relieve their fathers and elder brothers in the duty of garrisoning Germany and in regard to the war in Japan."

Churchill said it also would be necessary "to continue compulsory recruitment of men for the forces as an essential part of the reallocation of manpower during the interim period in order to bring relief to men who have served for a long period, to enable some of them to return to their homes."

RED GUNS BOOMED 1,600,000 TIMES

London, May 10 (A. P.).—Moscow's victory guns have boomed more than 1,600,000 times.

Last night's 30,000 rounds proclaiming the unconditional surrender of Germany—thirty artillery salvos by 1,000 guns—marked the climax of the war. Salutes ranging from twenty salvos from 124 guns up to twenty-four salvos from 324 guns began on August 5, 1943, with the capture of Orel and Belgorod. Exceptional victories and the liberation of German-held capitals rated twenty-four salvos from 324 guns.

Last night's tremendous barrage sifnifying the end of the war, was preceded by the firing of 324 guns for the capture of Prague.

U.S. Soldier Hanged In England For Murder

London, May 10 (AP)—Private George E. Smith, Jr., 28, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was convicted by a court-martial on a charge of fatally shooting Sir Eric Teichman, was hanged Tuesday at a United States Army desciplinary training center.

The court-martial heard testimony that Smith shot Sir Eric, a former British diplomat, when the Briton questioned him and a companion about walking on his estate, Honingham Hall, Norfolk, last December 3.

Smith was sentenced in January, and it was announced in March that General Eisenhower had taken no action to reprieve him.

New Censorship Applied In Europe

Paris, May 10 (AP)—Postwar censorship under direction of supreme headquarters has begun in the Eureopean theater. Indications are it will continue as long as supreme headquarters (SHAEF) is here—perhaps as long as there are forces of occupation in Europe.

Some insight into the character of the new censorship was given today. Press censors' guidance No. 1 — a new series — headed "the Level of Security After V-E Day," has been in the hands of censors here since May 5 and it is now the basis of censorship.

Three Points In Summary

This passage gives a summary:

"In accordance with operations memorandum No. 27, supreme headquarters, AEF, in general press material falling into the following categories will not be released:

"1. Reports likely to supply military information of value to the Japanese enemy to the detriment of the Allied war effort.

"2. Unauthenticated, inaccurate or false reports, misleading statements and rumors.

"3. Reports likely to injure the morale of the Allied forces or the relations between Allied nations."

The first of these points applies clearly and solely to military security, which, during the latter years of the war, the press and public had been given to understand was the sole basis of censorship at military headquarters.

Second On Books All Along

The second point, which, if applied to the extreme, would give censorship the right to stop anything but an official communiqué or statement, actually has been on the books all along.

Col. George Warden, chief of the SHAEF press censorship, said that in fairness it should be pointed out that in actual practice this "accuracy" censorship seldom has been applied, and when applied it was intended in the main to cover the third point dealing with injury to the morale of the Allied forces or Allied peoples.

The first part of the third point was, during the war, clearly linked with military security. But the last part, dealing with relationships between Allied nations, comes into the twilight zone of political security.

It is hard to tell in stories about international relations just where censorship is purely political and where there is the faintest possibility of military security in its broadest sense, while the Allies still are at war any place on the earth.

As an example, almost anything relating to Russia might in the broad definition be regarded as involving security, not only because she is at least a potential ally in the Pacific but because of the divided military occupational control of Germany.

Another, more extreme, possibility is that a censor might refuse to pass any story, however accurate, disclosing, for instance, specific points of a treaty being negotiated, say, between France and the United States, and involving no military security. It might be stopped on the grounds of possibly prejudicing final accord on the treaty.

Where the line will be drawn is not yet clear.

Divided Into Classes

How censorship for the western Allies and Russian censorship will be coordinated is not yet determined. In areas where Russian and Allied forces are adjacent Allied officers have consulted the Russian commanders before releasing the names of Russian units.

Warden said that in the new European peace there will be three classes of censorship:

1. Censorship for correspondents accredited to SHAEF.

2. Censorship in an advisory capacity to the domestic press, that is, the press of liberated nations.

3. Censorship in Germany, which will not, probably for years, be allowed a wholly free press.

German censorship will be handled entirely by separate personnel and based on different directives than those for either of the other two categories, Warden said.

The postwar plan calls for almost as large a censorship personnel as in the peak days of the war. There have been about 250 SHAEF officer censors.

ARMY SENDS 2 HOME FOR TRIP TO BERLIN

2 of Its Own Correspondents and 4 Civilians Are Put on SHAEF'S Suspended List

1 FILED FROM WRONG ZONE

Kennedy of AP Denies Breaking Pledge as He Told Allen's Aide He Would Send Story

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, May 10 (AP)—Two American correspondents charged with making unauthorized trips to Berlin were disaccredited and ordered returned to the United States as the number of war reporters on SHAEF's suspension list grew to nine today.

Most of the nine still are under investigation for alleged violations of Army regulations.

Those whose credentials were revoked were Virginia Irwin of The St. Louis Post Dispatch and Andrew Tully of The Boston Traveller. They wrote eyewitness accounts of their entrance into Berlin soon after the Russians captured the capital.

SHAEF said no correspondent accredited to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's command was authorized to go to Berlin until Tuesday and then only a select group was taken to the fallen capital on a supervised tour.

The stories written by Mr. Tully and Miss Erwin and correspondents now under investigation were passed by censors, however.

SHAEF still had not announced any results of its investigation of The Associated Press men, Edward Kennedy, Morton Gudebrod and Robert Bunnelle, in connection with Mr. Kennedy's story of the surrender at Reims, sent twenty-four hours before the official announcement.

Mr. Bunnelle, managing executive for the United Kingdom for The Associated Press, was suspended after the investigation was under way because it was ascertained that the story in question was relayed to the United States through the London bureau, which he heads, it was learned.

Others Banned for Berlin Trip

Other correspondents suspended for what SHAEF called deliberate violation of instructions not to go to Berlin included Seymour Freidin of The New York Herald-Tribune, John Groth of the American Legion Magazine and Tom Downs of The London Evening News.

Mr. Downs said he never got to Berlin but merely flew over it with a British Mosquito pilot. He was suspended for one month. Mr. Freidin and Mr. Groth still were being investigated and are under indefinite suspension pending the outcome.

In addition, T/Sgt. Ernest Leiser of Stars and Stripes and Sgt. Mack Morris of Yank magazine are under investigation for trips to Berlin, but any action in their cases will be purely military, since they are in the Army.

Sam White of The Australian Consolidated Press has been placed under two months' suspension for writing a story in Seventh Army territory while accredited only to the Third Army.

The two disaccredited correspondents were bitter in their criticisms of SHAEF public relations officials.

"I think it has been the greatest exhibition of bungling I ever saw in my life," Miss Irwin declared. "They treat you as if you were a half-witted child."

Mr. Tully, who declared his newspaper was "very happy about this," said he was "going to raise hell when I get home."

SHAEF said both Mr. Tully and Miss Irwin were disaccredited partly at their own request since neither was willing to await completion of the investigation, but asked that they be either absolved or penalized immediately.

"The amazing thing about my case was that I received no notification of my suspension until after they had passed my story and it had been printed in New York and Paris," Mr. Freidin said.

WEYGAND SEIZED BY PARIS POLICE

PARIS, May 10. — (AP) Gen. Maxime Weygand, chief of staff to Marshal Foch in the First World War and last commander in chief in France before the republic's collapse in 1940, was arrested during the night on a warrant issued by the High Court of Justice, police disclosed today.

Jean Borotra, veteran tennis champion, also was taken into custody. The charges against the two have not been specified. Both recently were freed from German internment camps by American troops.

The 78-year-old Weygand, described as being in poor health, was being held in a military hospital. Borotra was placed under house arrest.

Weygand succeeded Gen. Maurice Gamelin in 1940 after the Nazi breakthrough, being summoned from his position as commander in the Levant. Later, during the Vichy regime, he commanded French troops in North Africa.

Borotra, one of the world's ten top ranking tennis players 15 years ago, was head of the department of sports under the Vichy government.

Allies Restore More Land to Italy

Rome, May 10 (A. P.).—The Allies today turned back a new slice of territory to the Italian Government—a transfer which brings three-fifths of the nation and 24,000,000 people under Italian rule.

The transfer, the fifth since the Allied invasion began, covered nine provinces in central Italy. Ancona, needed as a port for military supplies, will remain under the Allied Military Government.

Yugoslavs Arrest Bishop

Rome, May 10 (AP)—It was received here today by Allied authorities that Carlo Margotti, Archbishop of Gorizia, had been arrested by the Yugoslavs. No details were made known.

Duce's Widow Held.

Rome, May 10 (A. P.).—Mrs. Rachele Mussolini and her two younger children, Romano and Anna Maria, are being held at Montecantini near Florence, Fifteenth Army Group Headquarters said today.

The widow of the Italian dictator and the children were taken into custody five days ago by the American Fifth Army. The Swiss had previously forbidden them to cross the Swiss frontier.

Bomb Wrecks U.S. Post In Italy

Colle Isarco, Italy, May 8 [AP—Delayed]—An American command post in this Brenner Pass town was blown up last night by what appeared to be a German time-bomb. Twenty-three persons—including 21 Americans—were injured. No deaths were reported immediately.

The command post was located in the hotel which had been occupied by the German Gestapo and it appeared that the Nazi agents had left behind a time-bomb when they moved out after the surrender of the German armies in Italy.

Hotel Wrecked

The blast wrecked the hotel and the concussion damaged nearby buildings and shattered windows in practically every building in this highway town, 6 miles south of Brenner.

Investigating officers recommended that henceforth all buildings once occupied by the Germans should not be used by Allied troops for 21 days. They also suggested that several Germans be scattered around the premises as further insurance.

Commanded By Jersey Man

The Americans, under Lieut. Col. Ernest Quigley, of Nutley, N.J., moved into the building when the town was occupied on May 4, two days after the surrender became effective. At that time the last of the Gestapo and SS (Elite Guard) troops had just moved out.

The inference was that the Gestapo planted the explosive in what was the most logical place for Allied headquarters—and left it, despite the fact that hostilities were at an end.

Dutch Fuehrer Jailed.

The Hague, May 10 (A. P.).—Anton Mussert, leader of the Dutch Nazis, was locked up today on treason charges. He will be tried before Dutch jurists.

4 TOP QUISLINGS DEFY PATRIOTS IN OSLO SUBURB

OSLO, May 10.—(AP) Four top members of Vidkun Quisling's Norwegian Nazi party held out in a bunker redoubt in a suburb tonight while their jailed ex-leader tore up the furnishings of his Oslo cell in paroxysms of rage.

The forlorn figures holding out against patriots on the grounds of the mansion house at Stabekk were the puppet minister of police, Jonas Lie; Nazi Minister of Justice Sverre Riisnaese; K. Kannerud, justice of Quisling's high court, and the former chief of the Quisling state police, Henrik Rogstad.

Once a truce was called to milk some nearby cows.

Lie and the others were without hope of escape through a cordon of freedom fighters surrounding the redoubt and their capture was expected momentarily. The patriots, however, were just letting them starve. As one patriot put it: "We are not going to waste a single patriot's life on those rats."

Quisling himself was awaiting arraignment on treason charges—probably tomorrow. He was reported alternately weeping and tearing up his meager cell furnishings.

Authorities meanwhile arrested Olga Bjoner, leader of the women's division of Quisling's Nasjonal Samling party. German Consul General Hilditsch also was seized, together with several members of Quisling's clergy and his high court.

The siege of Lie and his fellow Quislings began Tuesday when the three barricaded themselves on the grounds of the suburban estate with a guard of 200 hired men armed with rifles and machine guns.

By last night all but 10 of the guards had faded away while the patriots calmly took up strategic positions around the fortress watching movements through binoculars.

The police and patriots have telephone communication with the bunker and from time to time they ring up to ask whether the three are ready to surrender. Early today, Lie replied they would give up only on "honorable terms," a phrase at which the patriots scoffed.

Late Wednesday the patriots spotted several cows on the ground in need of milking. A call was placed to the besieged trio and a truce was arranged while the cows were milked. This morning another truce was called while the patriots removed the cattle.

Meanwhile reports in informed quarters said that German Commissioner Josef Terboven had shot and killed himself in the residence of Crown Prince Olaf at Skaugum, 12 miles from Oslo.

3 Top Quisling Aides At Bay In Stabekk

Oslo, Norway, May 10 (AP)—Three top members of Vidkun Quisling's party held out today in a bunker redoubt on the grounds of the mansion house at Stabekk, a suburb of Oslo. A cordon of Patriots surrounded the grounds.

These men are Minister of Police Jonas Lie, Minister of Justice Sverre Rissnes and the former chief of the Quisling state police, Henrik Rogstad.

Police expected their capture momentarily, but as one Patriot explained, "We are not going to waste a single Patriot's life on those rats."

Copenhagen City Without Shortages

Copenhagen, May 10 (AP)—If you can't buy it in Copenhagen, it can't be bought in Eurpoe.

This liberated capital of Denmark has steaks and poultry, eggs and ice cream, strawberries and mouthwatering pastries.

Copenhagen has fashionable clothes aplenty and cosmetics. It has transportation. It has everything in fact, except tea, coffee, cigarettes and a black market.

No black market ever has existed because food reductions in this country were considerably lighter than in England or occupied Europe. Authorities here say this was because Germany expected some day to make this a final bastion of resistance and stored food here instead of removing it.

Rationing similar to the American system prevents hoarding, but does not seriously reduce the food allotment.

Schleswig Not Wanted

Copenhagen, May 10 (AP)—Denmark will not ask for the return of the Schleswig area ceded to Germany in 1920, Danish Foreign Minister J. Christmas Moeller said today.

Himmler Rumor Denied.

Stockholm, May 10 (A. P.).—The Swedish Foreign Office today denied rumors that the German Gestapo chief, Heinrich Himmler, had arrived in Sweden.

Reds Land on Danish Isle.

Copenhagen, May 10 (A. P.).—Fifteen hundred Russian soldiers have landed on the Danish Island of Bornholm, off the southern tip of Sweden.

The commander, Col. Ivan Krepov, is collaborating with the Danish authorities, and it is expected that Foreign Minister Christian Moeller and a high British officer will fly to Bornholm today.

The Foreign Office refused to say whether the Russians could be regarded as an occupation force. The Bornholm military headquarters of the Freedom Fighters, the Danish Resistance group, issued a statement saying that the Russians had arrived in order to disarm the German garrison of some 20,000 men.

RUSSIANS CREDIT VICTORY TO ALL

Soviet Press Displays Allies' Statements On Jap War

Moscow, May 10 (AP)—The final capitulation of the Nazis was presented in Russian newspapers today as a triumph of all Allied arms—not just one—and President Truman's and Prime Minister Churchill's sharp words directed against Japan were given front-page display.

Newspapers also carried an unprecedented layout of the portraits of President Truman, Marshal Stalin and Churchill across the tops of their front pages, together with their addresses on the German surrender.

First For Millions

It was the first time millions of Russian leaders had seen in their newspapers a picture of the new American President.

Churchill's reference to the "disgusting misdeeds" and the "treachery and greediness" of Japan were printed on Page 1, along with the Prime Minister's statement that the United States and Britain must fight on.

Thus, by tonight virtually every one of Russia's 190,000,000 population, including her armed forces, had a chance to read the stinging words of the British statesman.

Stalin Speech Sets Tone

The tone of the German surrender stories followed Marshal Stalin's speech last night, in which he said Germany had been beaten by Soviet armies and the Allied command. News of the original surrender document at Reims, disclosed to the Russians in Stalin's speech was printed for the first time.

Americans and Britons in Moscow who had been apprehensive that the Russian people would get the impression the Soviet Government did not place much emphasis on the Reims capitulation said their anxiety had been dispelled by today's press treatment of the victory.

Russians read for the first time President Truman's address saying: "Our victory is but half won. The West is free, but the East is still in bondage to the treacherous tyranny of the Japanese."

Allied Generals' Pictures

Red Star published pictures of General Eisenhower and Field Marshals Montgomery and Alexander along with principal marshals of the Soviet Union. Another picture showed Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, of the United States Strategic Air Forces, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, General Eisenhower's deputy, at the Berlin surrender ratification.

Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, published a full-length picture of Stalin on the front page, flanked by two-column portraits of Truman and Churchill and the addresses of all three. In the lower left corner of the page it republished the Tehran picture of Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill.

Attitude On Germans

Meanwhile, Ilya Ehrenburg, whose recent strong views on what he thought should be done to Germany brought a sharp reply and correction from Georgi Alexandrov, chief of the propaganda section of the Central Communist Committee, declared today:

"We don't want to enslave the Germans. We want, on the other hand, to burn the terrible ulcer to save children from the return of the brown plague."

He added that "all peoples will find a place under the sun" and "the German people will live after they are cleansed of their fascist filth."

Red Press Prints Pictures, Texts Of Big Three

Moscow, May 10 (AP)—Russian newspapers, in an unprecedented display, published the portraits of President Truman, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill across the top of their front pages today, together with their addresses on the German capitulation.

It was the first time the millions of Russian readers had seen in their newspapers a picture of the American President.

Americans, Britons Praised

American and British mission authorities were praised in a clear-cut way in the press treatment of the end of the war. Neswpapers presented the final capitulation of the Nazis as a triumph of all Allied arms, not just of one.

The cue definitely was taken after Marshal Stalin's speech last night in which he said Germany had been beaten by the Soviet armies and the Allied command.

Red Star, the Army newspaper, published without comment a picture of President Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin at Tehran.

The newspapers carried the Tuesday addresses of President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill for the first time. Americans and Britons in Moscow had some anxiety yesterday until the time Stalin spoke lest the people of Russia get the impression that the Soviets did not place much emphasis on the capitulation at Reims. These individuals said their anxiety had been dispelled by today's treatment of the victory.

Truman's Address Printed

Russians read for the first time President Truman's address saying:

"Our victory is but half won. The West is free, but the East is still in bondage to the treacherous tyranny of the Japanese. When the last Japanese division has surrendered unconditionally, then only will our fighting job be done."

For the first time also, readers of Russian front pages saw sharp words directed against Japan by Churchill. His reference to "disgusting misdeeds," to Japan's "treachery and greediness" and the statement that the United States and Britain must fight on were found in the Briton's text.

Words Available To All

Virtually every one of the 190,000,000 Russians including the armed forces had a chance to read and digest these stinging words from Allies of the Soviet Union in a war which has come to an end against Germany.

Red Star published pictures of General Eisenhower and Field Marshals Montgomery and Alexander along with principal marshals of the Soviet Union. These appeared on inside pages. Another picture showed Gen. Carl A. Spaatz of the United States Strategic Air Forces and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, General Eisenhower's deputy, at Berlin at the ratification of the German capitulation.

Not a single item appeared on the front page except the texts of the Big Three leaders' addresses, their portraits and a single quotation from Stalin, above the masthead.

The front page of Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, contained a full-length picture of Stalin and two-column portraits of Truman and Churchill and the addresses of all three. In the lower left corner, it republished the Tehran picture of Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill.

Reds Still Taking Prisoners.

Moscow, May 10 (A. P.).—Special Red Army mop-up squads today were rounding up thousands of Germans still hiding or wandering in areas from the Baltic Sea to the Tyrolean Alps. The toll of 66,000 captured yesterday swelled to nearly 100,000 as the mop-up operations moved into isolated spots in territory that was once behind the Russo-German front.

U.S. Service Troops Arrive in Kunming

A 6,000-Mile Trip From Persia; Supplies Will Be Landed on the Coast

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, May 11 (Friday).—Chinese troops, with powerful American air support, smashed a major Japanese drive on the American air base at Chihkiang Wednesday and drove on for a nine-and-one-half-mile gain, killing more than a thousand invaders, the Chinese high command announced last night.

The victory, possibly the turning point in the campaign to oust the enemy from the interior of China, led to the encirclement of enemy units at Tungkow, on a main highway seventy miles east of Chihkiang, and at Shanmen, seventy-five miles east of the air base, which is 250 miles southeast of the capital.

The Chinese said they had captured points twenty and twenty-five miles northwest of Shaoyang (Paoking), which is the main base for the enemy's now seemingly abortive drive on Chihkiang.

The high command said the entire Japanese line in western Hunan Province had crumpled at 4 a. m. Wednesday in the face of a general Chinese counter-offensive launched the day before with well equipped Chinese ground forces augmented by new air-borne units.

Battle for Chihkiang

Major General Claire Chennault, commander of the United States 14th Air Force, declared in Kunming that aerial warfare coupled with the action of a "determined and well equipped Chinese Army" could defeat the Japanese forces now in China's interior provinces.

The battle for Chihkiang, more than any other in almost eight years of the Sino-Japanese war, apart from the Salween River offensive into Burma, represented on the Allied side a great American-Chinese co-ordinated effort.

The Chinese ground forces first held a Japanese outflanking thrust at Sinning and Wukang, southwest of the American air base, and then smashed the whole enemy attack. It was too early to assess the full part played by the new Chinese air-borne units, but the lightning success of the counter-stroke spoke for itself.

2,600 Enemy Dead Counted

More than 2,600 Japanese dead were reported counted in the area fifty-five miles east of Chihkiang, from which the 14th Air Force has been playing havoc with Japanese communications along the China-Indo-China corridor.

A Japanese force surrounded at a point seventy miles east of Chihkiang was eliminated by the Chinese, who took 120 enemy prisoners, an unusually large number.

Pointing to the success of air co-operation in the battle for Chihkiang, as well as the containment of the enemy on the Honan Province front after the fall of Laohokow, Chennault said the air force was in better position now to collaborate with the better-spirited and better-supplied Chinese troops.

Chennault made it clear that the supply situation is still not ideal, but declined to comment on what was being contributed by the trans-Burma pipe line completed a month ago. It was learned authoritatively that the new Stilwell supply road from India to China still was falling short of most of the advance tonnage estimates.

"We didn't receive, in fact, enough tonnage to operate the planes we had," he said.

Pointing to the success of air cooperation in the battle for Chihkiang, as well as the containment of the enemy on the Honan front after the fall of Laohokow, General Chennault said the Air Force was in better position now to collaborate with the better spirited and more adequately supplied Chinese troops.

Chinese Crumple Japs' Line In Hunan Province

Chungking, May 10 (AP)—The entire Japanese line in western Hunan province, where the enemy has aimed an offensive at the United States airbase of Chihkiang, has been crumbled by a general Chinese counteroffensive, the high command announced today.

The enemy's lines fell apart at 4 A.M. Wednesday, following the launching of the Chinese counter-offensive Tuesday morning, the Chinese said. Chihkiang is 250 miles southeast of Chungking.

More than 2,600 Japanese dead were reported counted in an area 55 miles east of Chihkiang, from which Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's 14th Air Force has been playing havoc with Japanese communications along the China-Indo-China corridor.

A dozen places where the beaten enemy burned his dead in traditional Japanese fashion were discovered.

A Japanese force surrounded at a point 70 miles east of Chihkiang was wiped out. The Chinese took 120 prisoners—an unusual number in a war in which the Japanese prefer suicide to capture.

Pursuing the Japanese, the Chinese reached the vicinity of Shanmen, 75 miles east of the airbase and north of the main highway to Chihkiang.

Another Chinese column slashed southward in an attempt to cut the retreat line of the Japanese along the highway.

Chennault Stresses Needs

KUNMING, China, May 9 (Delayed) (AP)—Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the United States Fourteenth Air Force, declared today that aerial warfare coupled with the action of a "determined and well-equipped Chinese Army", could defeat the Japanese forces now in the interior of China.

Recalling his prediction last year that with sufficient reinforcements in aircraft and supplies the Japanese could be halted at Henyang, General Chennault declared that his prediction had miscarried because the air force didn't receive the necessary aircraft and tonnage allotments.

"We didn't receive, in fact, enough tonnage to operate the planes we had," he said.

Pointing to the success of air cooperation in the battle for Chihkiang, as well as the containment of the enemy on the Honan front after the fall of Laohokow, General Chennault said the Air Force was in better position now to collaborate with the better spirited and more adequately supplied Chinese troops.

General Chennault made it clear that the supply situation still was not ideal, but declined to comment on what was being contributed by the trans-Burma pipeline.

It has been reported that the pipeline, the completion of which was announced May 5, has failed thus far to carry any considerable quantity of fuel into China. The pipeline was completed about a month ago.

It was learned independently that the new Stilwell Road from India to China was still falling short of most advance tonnage estimates.

General Chennault announced that in April sixty Japanese planes, sixteen locomotives and 12,269 tons of enemy shipping, in addition to the large numbers of enemy troops on the Honan and Hunan fronts, had been destroyed by Fourteenth Air Force planes.

BRITISH IN BURMA ADVANCE STEADILY

CALCUTTA, May 10—(AP) British columns pushing down the Irrawaddy river from captured Prome in Burma continued their 20-mile-a-day pace and reached a point 75 miles north of Rangoon, where a pocket of cut-off Japanese was attempting to make a stand, Southeast Asia headquarters announced today.

Further progress in the Burma "house-cleaning" was reported with a link-up between the British 15th corps pushing east from Arakan on the west coast and Lushai scouts operating with the Irrawaddy column.

Japanese troops fleeing east of Thazi and Toungoo on the Rangoon-Mandalay railway have thrown up a rearguard screen and have planted thick minefields in the path of the pursuing British, considerably slowing the chase toward Thailand. These Japanese are remnants of the 31st and 33rd divisions.

Allied forces advancing along one of the enemy's main escape routes from the Irrawaddy river delta area near Pegu, northeast of Rangoon, captured an unnamed village against stiff resistance.

Japanese still in the area west of the Sittang river, which empties into the gulf of Martaban northeast of Rangoon, were showing an increased disposition to surrender, Allied advices said. A Japanese officer who gave himself up recently was reported to have expressed bitter dissatisfaction with conditions in Japan.

Use Of Captured Troops Revealed

Calcutta, May 10 (AP)—Indian Army authorities disclosed today that the Japanese and Germans had recruited surrendered Indian troops and used them against the Allies, usually without success. This had been an embarrassing official secret until now.

Some 3,000 or more Indian troops were captured in Burma and used by the Japanese against Empire troops. A large detachment surrendered in Italy recently.

UNITE IN BURMA

Calcutta, May 10 (A. P.).—Against stiff resistance Allied troops have captured a village on the main Japanese escape route from the Irrawaddy River delta area, twenty miles northeast of Pegu. Other British troops operating in the Arakan region of Burma have linked up with British forces west of the Irrawaddy. Troops advancing south down the railway from Prome have made contact with the enemy at a point seventy-five miles from Rangoon.

Eastern Air Command aircraft yesterday attacked Japanese positions on the escape road from Thazi to Siam.

Enemy Planes Attack American Shipping off Coast, Bomb Airfield.

ERICKSON

GUAM, Friday, May 11 — (AP) Troops of the Sixth Marine division bridged the mouth of the Asa river near Okinawa's capital city, Naha, yesterday and forced a crossing despite attempts of two Japanese human bombs to thwart them.

Bitter hand to hand fighting was reported all along the southern Okinawa front and U. S. warships for the fifth straight day were called upon for support. They broke up enemy troop concentrations in rear areas.

Attempt to Blow Up Span

The Asa flows into the sea on western Okinawa between Machinao airfield, captured last week, and Naha. The two Japanese who tied heavy explosive charges to themselves, then plunged onto the span in attempts to blow it up, succeeded only in damaging it and delaying the crossing by Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd's Sixth Marine division.

The Asa had formed a natural barrier to the Americans' southward push.

Japanese casualties in the Okinawa fighting total 38,857 through Wednesday, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' communique reported today.

This increased enemy casualties by 2,322 in two days. American 10th army casualties through Monday were 16,425, including 2,684 dead.

The Japanese made several attacks on American shipping off Okinawa Wednesday evening, damaging two fleet auxiliaries. They also bombed Yontan airfield, but "without success," Nimitz said.

Yesterday morning, the Japanese made a dawn attack on both shipping and ground installations but did "no damage," the communique reported.

These attacks cost the enemy six aircraft shot down.

Break Up Concentration

Supported by heavy naval bombardment and aerial bombing and strafing which broke up troop concentrations in rear areas and destroyed or damaged pillboxes, gun emplacements and motor transports, 10th Army troops made "limited gains" throughout the southern front yesterday.

The entire northern half of Okinawa, captured early in the campaign, has been so thoroughly cleared of Japanese that it was turned over to control of Maj. Gen. F. G. Wallace, as island commander, last Friday.

In that area, U. S. military government officials are caring for 135,000 civilians.

Navy search planes, continuing their almost daily sweeps into Korean waters, damaged two medium freighters and two small cargo ships Wednesday by bombing and strafing.

Army Liberators heavily bombed airfields on Truk and Marcus islands and Mustangs attacked radio installations on Chici Jima in the Bonins. Marine Helldivers and Corsairs continued neutralizing raids on the Marshalls, Yap and the Palaus.

a train wrecked and a number of small craft damaged.

Nimitz's communiqué today reported American 10th Army casualties through Monday totaled 16,425 in these categories: 2,16 soldiers and 577 Marines killed; 10,402 soldiers and 2,800 Marines wounded, and 501 soldiers and 38 Marines missing. This was an increase of 2,142 casualties, of whom 347 were killed in four days.

14 Japs To 1 Yank

The Yanks have killed 36,535 Japanese through Monday—a ratio of fourteen enemy lives for each American slain.

Carrier planes of the British Pacific Fleet attacked airfields on Miyaka and Ishigaki islands in the Sakishima group, southernmost of the Ryukyu chain—at a cost of two ships suffering minor damage from enemy airplanes. British pilots destroyed three enemy aircraft.

United States battleships and cruisers, for a fourth consecutive day, bombarded Japanese fortifications on Okinawa and both carrier and Okinawa-based Marine planes bombed and strafed in support of ground troops.

Elsewhere in the western Pacific, army and navy planes attacked Truk, Marcus and the Palaus. Two bombers were lost to intense anti-aircraft fire over Marcus. Survivors of one were rescued.

Rain And Mud Slow Progress On Okinawa

Guam, May 10 (AP)—Their ranks reduced by 16,425 casualties, doughboys and Marines of the United States 10th Army slogged through mud and rain today in their weary battle on the southern Okinawa front.

Rain filled even their foxholes as the troops fought over rugged terrain where the Japanese, holed up in tunnels and elaborate caves, are making a death stand. Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said the Yanks "continued to move south" but gave no details.

Their only respite was from Japanese aerial attack, enemy planes being grounded, presumably by bad weather, the past two days.

Mustangs Raid On Japan

Army Mustangs, however, made 1,500-mile round trips from Iwo Jima bases to attack Kisarazu airfield and Tateyama naval air station, southeast of Tokyo, Tuesday and Wednesday. They found hunting so poor—only two Japanese planes destroyed and five probably wrecked—that they turned to other targets. These netted a small cargo vessel sunk, a locomotive destroyed,

494 Natives of Marshalls Rescued Under Foe's Fire

By The Associated Press.

GUAM, Friday, May 11—An American naval force made a daring rescue of 494 Marshall Island natives from Jaluit Atoll on Sunday under a Japanese counter-attack, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz disclosed today.

This was the first reported evacuation from any of the Japanese-held Marshall group. The natives were evacuated from several islands of the atoll despite the resistance of Japanese garrison troops on those still enemy-held rocks. The Japanese resisted with light weapons, probably machine guns, rifles and grenades, on all islands. The American losses were one killed and one wounded.

MINDANAO BATTLE MOUNTS IN FURY

Battle-Tested Yank Infantry in Stiff Fight Northwest of Davao.

MANILA, May 11 — (AP) Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's battle-tested 24th infantry division was definitely at grips today with Japan's garrison on Mindanao island. A battle of fair proportions was mounting just northwest of captured Davao City, between the Talomo and Davao rivers.

Doughboys who established a bridgehead across the Talmo on Tuesday settled down to the tough job of rooting the Japanese out of their typical elaborate cave defenses. They were making steady gains against stiff resistance.

Dive Bombers Aid Troops

Eighty-five Marine dive bombers closely supported the ground operation.

There still was no word on the American infantry battalion which was reported virtually isolated Monday by a Japanese counter-attack.

A headquarters spokesman said the huge Japanese civilian population of Davao, an estimated 18,000 persons, apparently had evacuated inland and up the Kibawe-Talomo trail toward a high plateau in the Davao hinterland.

American and Allied fliers blockading all of Japan's shipping lanes to the south have sunk or severely damaged 1,892,082 tons of ships in the first four months of this year, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

He said the enemy's "organized commerce in these lanes has practically disappeared and only scattered and sporadic traffic is now attempted."

American doughboys, meantime, were reported making steady gains against stubborn resistance in the Davao sector of Mindanao islands in the Philippines.

Yanks of Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's 24th division was systematically reducing Japanese strongpoints and penetrating enemy positions in the Talomo river area. They established a bridgehead across the river Tuesday.

Inland on Mindanao Maj. Gen. Clarence Martin's division was reported "rapidly consolidating its advances."

On Tarakan island, off Borneo, Australian troops penetrated the southern edge of the big Djoeata oil field. Other elements with air support, were applying pressure from the south and west on the enemy defenses in the center of the island.

Targets on nearby Borneo were hit by medium bombers and fighters. These included Jesselton, Brunei bay, Kuching and Tawao. Shipyards were wrecked, warehouses set ablaze and shipping offshore harassed.

On Luzon island in the Philippines the 43rd infantry division east of Manila was rapidly closing in on Ipo dam from the north and south. The dam is the source of at least one-third of Manila's water.

MacArthur reported "remarkably few" American casualties were being suffered in the battle which he said "had seriously depleted the enemy's irreplaceable stocks of ammunition, food and medical supplies and cost him heavy losses in personnel."

Supported By Planes

Warplanes dropped 300 tons of bombs in support of Luzon ground operations. A number of grounded planes were destroyed in the Cagayan Valley, objective of the Yank campaign for the Balete Pass.

Formosa was bombed anew despite adverse flying weather. The French Indo-China coast was hit by 120 tons of bombs concentrated on railroad and highway bridges.

A patrol boat and two freighters were sunk in the China Sea. Direct hits were scored on five freighters in East Indies waters.

Landing Protects Flank.

Elements of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Dvision invaded Samal Island Tuesday to protect the American flank in the drive up the Davao Gulf coast. There were few, if any, Japs believed to be on the island, which is twenty-two miles long and ten wide.

Other units of the Twenty-fourth Division established a bridgehead across the Talomo River, west of Davao city, in a flanking move to liquidate the Jap force which, in a counter-attack Monday, almost ringed a United States battalion. There was no further word on how this battalion was faring.

The Thirty-first Division advanced seven miles eastward from Kibawe, in central Mindanao, while another column moved northward and engaged a Jap force near the southern airstrip of the Maramag airdrome.

Balete Pass Battle Fierce.

Elsewhere in the Philippines the Twenty-fifth and Thirty-seventh divisions on northern Luzon fought fiercely as they approached the important Balete Pass in an encircling move. The Thirty-second Division advanced 700 yards along the Villa Verde trail near by. East of Manila the Forty-third Division speared to within three miles of Ipo Dam, source of least one-third of the capital's water.

In the air war, Australian and American flyers pounded harbor targets on Borneo, including the old Jap fleet anchorage at Labuan Island.

Two Fifth Air Force Mitchells sank a destroyer off the mouth of the Yangtze River. A 500-ton subchaser was sent to the bottom by a Navy Liberator off Swatow, and two other subchasers were damaged. Two freighters were sunk and several others damaged.

Yanks Invade Isle Off Davao

Conquest of Tarakan Nears End—Fierce Battle Rages in Northern Luzon.

Manila, May 10 (A. P.).—Unopposed American invasion of Samal Island, just off captured Davao city, was announced today as bitter fighting raged on the Mindanao mainland, where doughboys sought to outflank a Jap force which has virtually isolated a Yank battalion.

Meanwhile, the Australian-Dutch campaign on Tarakan Island, off Borneo, neared completion. The Allies held all of Tarakan city, seized strategic [illegible] Hill, and closed in on the Djoeata oil field. They already have the big Pamoesian oil field.

Tokyo radio reported American Negro troops were fighting on Tarakan. There has been no indication from Allied sources that Americans are in the cam-

TINY SPOTTER PLANES PET HATE OF JAPS

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, May 8—(AP) (delayed) Tiny artillery spotter planes are high on the Japanese list of hates.

A Nipponese soldier demonstrated this near Davao, on Mindanao island. He strapped explosives to his body, penetrated the American lines and ignoring supply dumps, tanks and guns, kept going until he reached a spotter plane strip and ran into the nearest plane.

The enemy soldier and the plane blew up together.

Jap Plane Torn Apart In Air When Yank Rams It 3 Times

Okinawa, May 10 (AP)—United States Marine Lieutenant Robert R. Klingman, of Binger, Okla., deliberately rammed his Corsair fighting plane into the rear of a Japanese fighter three times today to send it spinning to destruction.

The daring action, at 45,000 feet altitude, was acclaimed by Brig. Gen. William Wallace, commander of the Okinawa-based fighter command, as "one of the most remarkable achievements of the war."

Klingman then glided back most of the way to Okinawa. He had dumped his reserve gasoline in order to reach the Japanese plane at the great altitude. His guns had jammed.

Another Corsair pilot, Capt. Kenneth L. Reusser, 25, of Portland, Ore., flew alongside the Japanese plane, his ammunition exhausted, and watched the kill.

Expressions Despairing

From a distance of only 25 feet, he saw the despairing expressions of the Japanese pilot and rear gunner as Klingman rammed their plane apart.

Reusser said: "Our formation of Corsairs was at 10,000 feet at 8.30 A.M. today when we saw vapor trails where a Jap reconnaissance plane was leisurely photographing Okinawa, probably in preparation for another big raid tonight.

"The Corsairs Klingman and I were flying proved unusually powerful and we were able to get up where he was but had to jettison our gas tanks to do it. We were almost at his level and a mile away when he, having completed two wide circles, saw us and streaked north.

Over 400 Miles An Hour

"It was a 'Nick'—their newest and swiftest two-engine fighter.

"We were making over 400 miles an hour at an altitude of about 45,000. We chased him 125 or 150 miles.

"I fired all my wing ammunition into space in order to gain speed and finally closed. I set his engine afire and shot up his wing with the rest of my ammunition. It was enough to slow him.

"Then Klingman, whose guns had frozen, closed and told me over the radio he didn't think he had gas enough to get back to Okinawa, anyway. He said: 'We can't let that —— get away after that long chase. I'm going to hit him with my plane.'

Rear Gunner Having Fit

"When Klingman made his first pass," Reusser said, "I held close in, almost against the Nick's wingtip—not more than 25 feet away.

"The rear gunner gesticulated wildly and hammered his guns with his fists. He was out of ammunition or they had jammed. I could see the horrified expressions of both Japs when Klingman came in.

"The gunner ducked down double.

"Klingman knocked a couple of feet off the Nick's tail.

"Bob made another pass, knocking the Jap rudder off. That rear gunner was having a fit.

"On the third pass, Bob chewed the rest of the tail off, chopping the horizontal stabilizer and elevator away completely. He chopped his propeller clear into the Jap cockpit.

"The Nick spun downward about 15,000 feet; then went straight down."

Klingman said there was considerable jar each time he rammed the Japanese plane.

And each time, he added, he had to run the gantlet of flying parts from both his and the enemy fighters.

"I knew I couldn't bail out at that altitude," he said, "without dying from lack of oxygen or freezing. I planned to ride my plane down to a crash landing in the sea, in the hope of being picked up.

"But, I managed to glide back, losing 700 feet a minute much of the way. I made a dead-stick landing. My engine was ruined. But with a new engine and other repairs my plane will fly again."

Klingman brought the victorious Corsair back to base—gasless, damaged and its guns jammed, but still intact.

V-E TO AFFECT OKINAWA PUSH

Buckner Says Service Units Will Arrive First.

Okinawa, May 10 (A. P.).—Germany's defeat will be felt first on Okinawa not in combat units, but in service troops and increased munitions, Lieut.-Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner Jr., Tenth Army commander, said today. He said American troops from the European theater would be welcome, but that it is expected reserves from the United States woud reach this area first.

Meanwhile, the Tenth Army will "push harder and the Japs are growing weaker," the Tenth Army chief said. "We believe our original estmate of 60,000 to 80,000 Japs on Okinawa was too low, and estimate there are 45,000 to 50,000 yet to be killed. But we also believe that we have knocked out slightly less than half of their artillery.

"We will begin to feel the effect of the European victory soon in service troops and munitions, held in the United States as reserves," he said. "As to combat troops, the effect won't be felt for quite awhile."

"We feel that Japanese strength has been reduced far beyond the strength indicated by the 36,000 we have killed, and their losses are greater than that would indicate both in numbers and quality of troops."

Buckner said the 10th Army has two important assets which the Japanese lack—tremendous fire power and enough troops to "run relays and keep their forces awake while ours can sleep."

He explained that the Japanese have committed so many units and suffered such losses they no longer are able to provide rest and replacements on their former scale.

"Don't look for anything spectacular here," he counseled. "We are progressing steadily and killing lots of Japs. A lot of the enemy's fight has been taken out of him by heavy casualties and by the realization their recent counter-attack didn't do them much good."

Buckner said Jap artillery fire had decreased greatly.

Suicide Pilot's Plane Misses Admiral's Ship

OKINAWA, May 10—(AP) A Japanese suicide pilot's plane missed Rear Adm. Lawrence F. Reifsnider's flagship by only a few feet in this morning's attack on American forces off Okinawa.

(The dispatch did not identify Reifsnider's flagship. His last command of public record was of transports.)

The suicide pilot's plane fell harmlessly into the water.

Another crashed close aboard another ship but caused no damage or casualties.

The planes were in one of a series of attacks which damaged two fleet auxiliaries. Six of the Japanese aircraft were shot down.

Molotov Takes Plane For Return Home

Edmonton, Alberta, May 10 (Canadian Press).—Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov of the Soviet Union left Edmonton today for Russia en route home from the San Francisco United Nations World Security Conference.

Mr. Molotov gave no statement and had no comment to make. He stayed at the United States air base last night.

The Russian Foreign Minister and his party left early this morning aboard a United States Army Air Forces plane manned by an American crew.

Canada Relaxes Some War Levies

Ottawa, May 10 (AP)—Reduction of some special war taxes and elimination of others were announced tonight in a statement issued on behalf of Acting Prime Minister Ilsley, outlining the general Canadian policy for the removal of controls and preparation for the conversion from a war to a peace economy.

One of the changes Ilsley announced included plans for relaxation of restrictions on travel by Canadians to the United States.

Excise Tax Removed

Other main points in Ilsley's statement:

Removal of the 25 per cent special excise tax on household electric and gas appliances.

Reduction of the special excise tax on radios, phonographs and cameras from 25 to 10 per cent.

Repeal of the eight per cent sales tax on building materials.

Changes in the special excise tax on passenger automobiles from a graduated scale running from three to 80 per cent to a flat ten per cent.

Rescinds Machinery Levy

Rescinding of the ten per cent war exchange tax for imported manufacturing and producing machinery and equipment and building materials.

Removal of controls prohibiting the manufacture of a number of household articles.

Ilsley warned against the dangers of inflation and said the tax changes would assist the prices board in achieving its objective of having consumer goods reappear on the market at 1941 prices.

5 VICTORY RIOTERS JAILED IN HALIFAX

Halifax, May 10 (A. P.).—Strong patrols of military and civilian police today guarded against further outbreaks of victory riots which flared in four Nova Scotia towns, causing two deaths and damage estimated at more than $5,000,000.

Five persons were sentenced to prison terms of up to two years, eight others were fined as high as $100 and several thousand service personnel were confined to barracks while military and civil authorities disagreed over where to place the blame for the disturbances.

Rear Admiral L. W. Murray, officer commanding the Canadian Northwest Atlantic area declared: "Civilians led the assault and encouraged service personnel to take part." Mayor Alan Butler of Halifax laid the blame at the door of the Royal Canadian Navy, saying the trouble arose because 8,000 sailors were given leave Monday and Tuesday and allowed to be at large on the streets.

Dead were Lieut.-Commander John George Smith of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, who was said to have suffered a skull fracture, and an unidentified sailor whose death was attributed to acute alcoholism.

Riots broke out in Halifax, Dartmouth, New Waterford and Whitney Pier, near Sydney. Numerous liquor stores were looted, along with other buildings, and the military command reported a vast amount of the liquor still was in the hands of lawless elements and further outbreaks might be expected.

Fines levied in Halifax were for vagrancy, assault and disorderly conduct. One civilian was convicted of possessing stolen jewelry.

EISENHOWER HAILS PATRIOT FORCES

By Associated Press.

Gen. Eisenhower thanked the resistance forces of France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark and Norway today for their "inestimable service to the Allied cause and to the future of all freedom loving people."

In a broadcast order of the day to these forces, reported by the Office of War Information, the Supreme Allied Commander said:

"Inadequately armed and in the midst of a savage and ruthless enemy, you have fought on, month after month, year afer year, regardless of the disappointments you suffered and of the danger you have undergone.

"For most of you, your sole reward has been the knowledge that you have, by your efforts, helped to rid your homeland of the hated enemy."

List Of Fascists Held By Allies Grows Daily

[By the Associated Press]

The list of Axis leaders in Allied hands grows daily, but many others still are at large and hunted by the victorious Allies. Death has ended the question of what shall be done with some, notably Benito Mussolini.

The fate of others still poses riddles, chief among these being Adolf Hitler, who the Germans say is dead.

Many of those taken or to be taken undoubtedly will be tried as war criminals, but just who must face Allied tribunals will not be known until official lists are published.

Others Known Dead

Mussolini heads the list of known dead, which includes the son-in-law he ordered shot, Count Galeazzo Ciano; Marshal de Bono and Marshal Italo Balbo. Others known to be dead are Reinhardt Heydrich the hangman, Himmler's executioner in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere; Marshal Erwin Rommel and Philippe Henriot, Vichy Propaganda Minister.

Admiral Jean Darlan and Pierre Pucheu, whom the de Gaullists declared collaborationists, are dead.

Those reported dead include Hitler, Goebbels, Martin Bormann, Joseph Terboven, Field Marshal von Model, Gen. Ernst Udet, General Beck and scores of Russian militarists executed by Hitler after the July 20 attempt on his life.

More Held By Allies

The list in Allied custody is growing. It includes Hermann Goering, Rudolf Hess, Hjalmar Schacht, Vidkun Quisling, Gen. Ritter von Epp, Dr. Hans Frank, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Col. Gen. Franz Halder, Field Marshals Kesselring, von Weichs, von Paulus, Rundstedt, Graziani, Leeb and Speerle; Lieut. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, Admiral Nicholas Horthy of Hungary, Puppet Premier Ferenc Szalasi of Hungary, August Thyssen, Milan Nedic of Serbia, Anton Mussert of Holland, Konrad Henlein and Karl Frank of Czechoslovakia, Gen. Kurt Manteuffel, Maj. Gen. Walther von Seydlitz, Konstantin von Neurtah, Franz von Papen, Prince August Wilhelm and Ezra Pound, the American poet.

Under arrest in France are Marshal Pétain, Gen. Maxime Weygand, Jean Borotra and hundreds of others.

Pierre Laval, of France, and Leon Degrelle, of Belgium, are in custody in Spain.

Many Still At Large

Many wanted for crimes and questioning still are at large. Himmler and Ribbentrop head this group.

Also hunted are Julius Streicher, Arthur Rosenburg, Dr. Robert Ley, Lord Haw Haw, Joseph Darnand of France, Gen. Roatta of Italy, Marcel Deat, Wilhelm Frick, Dr. Walther Funk, Anton Pavelic, Premier Tiso of Slovakia, Otto Abetz, plus scores of other Germans, collaborationists and Allied ex-patriots. Some may be under arrest already.

A number of prominent militarists cannot be fitted just now into the shadowy jigsaw. Among these, apparently most of them at large, are such men as Field Marshals Keitel, von Brauchitch, Busch and Blaskowitz; Grand Admirals Karl Doenitz and Erich Rader, and Generals Stumpf, Christiansen, Lindemann, Hauser, Guderian, Rendulic, Milch and von Blomberg, Hitler's first chief of staff. Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi radio voice, probably falls in this list. Most of them, including the marshals who signed capitulation agreements, apparently are under Allied control.

WHERE AMERICAN DIVISIONS OPERATE

The following summary of action covers only those Associated Press reports in which divisions were specifically mentioned:

PHILIPPINES.

24th Infantry—Invaded Samal Island, Davao Gulf; fights stubborn Jap units on Mindanao mainland.

25th Infantry—Made small advance along Villa Verde Trail, northern Luzon.

31st Infantry—Moved ahead seven miles on central Mindanao.

32d Infantry—Made small advance along Villa Verde Trail, Luzon.

43d Infantry—Opened drive to seize Ipo Dam east of Manila.

RYUKYUS.

7th and 77th Infantry—Gain slowly on east portion of Okinawa line in mud and rain.

1st and 6th Marines—Advance on west flank of Okinawa line.

BIG THREE HEADS SEEN SOLE HOPE IN POLISH TANGLE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10—(AP) British Foreign Secretary Eden revealed today that only the direct efforts of Truman, Churchill, and Stalin can break the Big Three deadlock resulting from Russia's arrest of 16 Polish underground leaders.

Emphasizing the seriousness with which Britain views the arrests for reasons which Russia has not yet explained, Eden declared the Poles included "the leading figures of the Polish underground," "officials of Poland's exile government at London and "many persons we thought should be included in a new government at Warsaw."

Progress Impossible

As the situation now stands, he told a news conference, the arrests have "made further progress impossible" in efforts to resolve the whole Polish situation. He added:

"It will now be for the governments themselves to take stock of the situation and to determine what the next step shall be."

With this statement Eden disclosed what had been apparent here for several days—that only intervention of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin offers a way out of the deadlock.

Eden discussed Poland with about 400 reporters jammed into an oak-paneled rrom of his hotel.

His conference covered the whole range of United Nations problems as they have developed in San Francisco. He made these main points:

1—Foresaw a possibility of settling basic problems such as regional arrangements and trusteeships in the next two or three days. Despite heavy pressure to return home, Eden is remaining a little longer in the hope of resolving these issues.

2—At the moment, no formula, is in sight on how to fit regional arrangements into the Dumbarton Oaks plan for a world organization. Eden advanced the principle that "regional pacts are extremely valuable in strengthening the world organization, but regional pacts cannot replace it."

Vital Step Forward

3—Described as "an important step forward" and agreement of the big powers that when the proposed world security council recommends settlements of international disputes, a great power which may be a party to a dispute cannot veto the recommendation.

4—The British government intends to let nothing stand in the way of immediately redeploying its military strength against Japan. This is true despite an enormous need for manpower at home.

5—In response to questions on Palestine, Eden said "we will go along and do the best we can" so long as Britain retains a mandate over that territory. He said it is Britain's policy to free India.

Eden's original comment on the Dumbarton Oaks amendment which would allow the security council to recommend settlement of a dispute, included the words: "No great power can by its veto prevent such a recommendation from being made."

This led to an impression among his hearers that he meant a change had been made in the Dumbarton Oaks plan. But the British Information Service issued a clarifying statement. It said that what he actually meant was that no great power which was party to a dispute could veto a recommendation for settling that dispute.

Small-Nation Vote On Voice Slated

San Francisco, May 10 (AP)—The United Nations Conference faced its first big test today on a small-nation bid for greater voice in the proposed peace-enforcing Security Council.

A Cuban proposal to enlarge the council from 11 to 14 or 15 nations was put forward in the conference committee charged with working out council membership, and some who attended last night's session said a vote probably would be taken today.

The committee spent most of its three-hour night session discussing the proposition. As the council plan now stands, it would include the Big Five, plus six smaller powers.

Five Representatives Apiece

A committee on structures and procedures of the general assembly decided last night to let each country have as many as five representatives in the assembly, but only one vote.

Representative Bloom (D., N.Y.), an American delegate, said there was discussion of having one, three and an unlimited number of representatives and that he proposed the figure finally approved.

"That would let various parties and factions within a nation be represented," he said.

Put over temporarily was the question of making countries other than the United Nations eligible for eventual membership in the assembly.

Top Developments

These other developments attracted top interest:

1. A Big Five committee on internationl trusteeships, of which Commander Harold Stassen is the American member, is reported to have reached agreement "in principle" on what sort of machinery to set up for governing the ex-enemy territories of this World War and the previous one. Chief differences had been between Britain and the United States over American insistence on special treatment for areas with strategic value, such as Pacific Island bases.

2. Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Connally (D., Texas) made clear in public statements that they and other American delegates are constantly concerned with what the United States Senate may or may not be willing to accept, by two thirds vote, in the way of a security league. Vandenberg emphasized to reporters that he is keeping his own position mobile but hopes that the charter will be one he can support and help get the Senate to ratify. Connally said in a broadcast that the American delegates are "exerting every effort" for an organization "which will meet with Senate approval."

Partial Russ Victory

3. The Russians finally won a partial victory in their fight to get a World Trade Union Congress spokesman to the conference, even thought Foreign Minister Molotov left yesterday. The conference committee on a World Economic and Social Council, accepted 25 to 3, a Russian proposal that such a representative be consulted by it. Molotov had failed in similar moves previously.

4. Secretary of State Stettinius continued his series of meetings with other Big Five power representatives, including Foreign Minister Eden, of Britain. They are trying to get together on amendments proposed by the smaller nations.

Russian Labor Proposal Rejected at Conference

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10—(AP) The United Nations conference turned down a Russian labor proposal today as it whisked through a round of decision-making committee meetings, then came to a dead stop on one big issue.

A committee considering the structure of a World Security council found a suggestion for enlarging the council's membership too hot to handle right now. It debated the question briskly, but put off a showdown vote.

The council is the core of proposed world mechanism for keeping peace, and small nations want to expand its membership from 11 to 14 or 15, so they will have a bigger hand in maintaining international security. Present plans are to have five big power members, six smaller ones.

The Russians lost out on their proposition when the Conference Steering committee rejected the idea of letting world trade union leaders into deliberations of a committee working on economic and social problems.

Moves were under way toward compromises on two major issues—trusteeships for strategic or dependent areas of the world and letting Pan-America solve its own peace-keeping problems without slicing a new world league into rival blocs.

An American delegate, Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), was reported to have promised a committee that the United States would bring forward as soon as possible a plan for solving the riddle of managing regional security systems. The American delegation will tackle the matter again tomorrow.

Russia and China produced proposals on international trusteeships today which were described as fairly close to an American plan. That put Britain in a somewhat isolated position among the big-four countries sponsoring the conference, with its proposals considerably different from the others.

The committee which failed to vote on expanding the security council did accept a big-four amendment under which the smaller nations would be picked for membership on it according to geographical position and their ability to contribute to a world police force.

The conference accomplishments so far brought from British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden a news conference declaration that he was "thoroughly convinced that we will leave here with a better charter than the one that was outlined at Dumbarton Oaks."

Eden laid particular emphasis on a change backed by the sponsoring powers—China, Russia, Britain and the United States—which he said would give a world security council authority to make definite recommendations for peaceful settlements of disputes without letting any of the Big Five powers veto such a recommendation against itself.

Eden used the meeting with reporters as a form to criticize sharply Russia's arrest of 16 Polish underground leaders. He said it was "unhappy news," that many of the men had excellent records, that many were the types Britain wanted in a broadened, Democratic government in Warsaw.

Now, Eden said, it is up to British, Russian and American chiefs of state to adjust the three-nation dispute over the make-up of a Polish government.

Britain and America lined up against Russia to overturn an earlier decision by the conference committee for social and economic cooperation to let representatives of a World Trade Union Congress sit in on its meetings as observers.

It was on Russia's motion, that this committee voted 25 to 3 yesterday to admit the WTUC leaders.

Action Is Blocked

The American and British delegations quickly went to work to block this action. While there are dozens of other organizations with consultants at San Francisco, they cannot attend committee meetings. Some delegates objected to showing favoritism to labor leaders.

The result was that the opposition demanded, and got, a special meeting of the conference's policy-shaping steering committee. Sessions of three working committees were cancelled to make way for it.

Then, by a vote of 33 to 10, the steering agency overrode the economic and social committee.

Secretary of State Stettinius, steering committee chairman, put it less bluntly. He announced merely there had been reaffirmation of a policy that the only organizations which could have unofficial observers at any committee sessions were those with governmental connections.

There are five of these: The League of Nations, the International Labor Office, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, a United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization and the World Court.

EDEN SAYS SOVIET SEIZED MOST ABLE POLISH STATESMEN

He Thinks Many Arrested Should Be Included in New Warsaw Regime.

MAY 11 1945

San Francisco, May 10 (A. P.).—Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, said today that the sixteen Polish leaders arrested by Russia included "nearly all the leading figures of the Polish underground movement." Many arrested, he said, were persons the British thought should be included in a new, democratic Warsaw government.

Speaking to a jam-packed news conference, Mr. Eden also reviewed the work of the United Nations toward creating a world security organization and predicted that the problem of fitting in regional arrangements would be worked out, though "I don't yet see a solution." He said that the solution should be built upon the principle that "regional pacts are extremely valuable in strengthening a world organization, but regional pacts cannot replace it."

Among the big-power amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan, on which conference committees are moving forward, Mr. Eden stressed especially one which he said would give the proposed world security council authority to "definitely recommend how a dispute threatening the peace can be settled and no great Power can by its veto prevent such a recommendation being made." Dapper and smiling, Mr. Eden opened the conference at noon here by saying that the British delegation sometimes had wished very much in the last day or two to be at home, especially in London, because of what that battered capital has experienced in the way of war destruction.

NAZI PARTY TRIAL ASKED

United States Proposal Held Means Of Catching Small Fry

MAY 11 1945

San Francisco, May 10 (AP)—The United States has proposed that organizations such as the Nazi party, as well as individuals, be tried for atrocities and war crimes.

In an official announcement, the State Department disclosed today that Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, personal representative of President Truman, has completed conferences here with representatives of Great Britain, Russia and France on the prosecution of war criminals.

The department said it was the purpose of proposals laid before the group by Rosenman "to organize machinery and set up a procedure which will assure a just and expeditious trial to the major individuals and to the organizations accused of atrocities and war crimes in Europe—but one which will permit no evasion, undue delay or dilatory tactics."

Mass Prosecution Seen

In connection with this, it was explained by a State Department official that if an enemy political organization is placed on trial and convicted of war crimes, all members of the organization would be subject to punishment.

This would make possible the mass prosecution of individuals who otherwise might escape being charged because they did not rank as major war criminals.

Rosenman sought in his conferences with the Secretary of State, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., the British Foreign Minister, Anthony Eden, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, Viachislaw Molotov, and the French Foreign Minister, Georges Bidault, to lay the groundwork for organization of an international military tribunal to try the European war criminals.

Procedure Discussed

The leaders also discussed procedure for such a trial.

The State Department said that formation of this tribunal "would not affect the principle stated in the Moscow declaration of November 1, 1943, that those criminals guilty of specific atrocities in any of the occupied countries would be returned to those countries for trial according to their own laws."

Rosenman has maintained close consultation in the negotiations with Justice Robert H. Jackson of the Supreme Court, designated by President Truman as chief American counsel in prosecuting war criminals. Jackson, however, did not come to San Francisco with Rosenman, who expects to return to Washington tomorrow.

There have yet been no official indications from the other governments as to possible acceptance of the American proposals.

Labor Representatives Barred

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10 (AP).—Britain and America lined up against Russia today to overturn an earlier decision by the conference committee for social and economic co-operation to let representatives of a world trade union congress sit in on its meetings as observers.

It was on Russia's motion that this committee voted 25 to 3 yesterday to admit the W. T. U. C. leaders.

The American and British delegations quickly went to work to block this action. While there are dozens of other organizations with consultants at San Francisco, they cannot attend committee meetings. Some delegates objected to showing favoritism to labor leaders.

The result was that the opposition demanded, and got, a special meeting of the conference's policy-shaping steering committee. Sessions of three working committees were canceled to make way for it.

Then, by a vote of 33 to 10, the steering agency overrode the economic and social committee.

Secretary of State Stettinius, steering committee chairman, put it less bluntly. He announced merely there had been reaffirmation of a policy that the only organizations which could have unofficial observers at any committee sessions were those with governmental connections.

There are five of these: the League of Nations, the International Labor Office, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, a United Nations food and agriculture organization and the World Court.

Some Latin-American delegates reported that Mexico and Guatemala supported Russia on the steering committee. They weren't altogether pleased that the Pan-American countries had failed to ballot solidly.

Conference Bartenders Are Pretty Busy

MAY 11 1945

San Francisco, May 10 (AP).—Bartenders along San Francisco's swanky bistro circuit, patronized by delegates to the United Nations conference, are emptying collectively approximately 1,000 bottles of spirits daily.

How much was consumed at private parties and in hotel rooms is something else. Liquor stores have reported a brisk trade. There have been some parties where as much as three cases of whisky and an equal amount of champagne have gone down the hatch.

For the most part, the bartenders are tight-lipped about how much they serve. Their bosses, they say, wouldn't like for them to give out that information. But they do admit there has been "a slight increase" since the conference started.

The delegates make no excuses for taking a nip now and then. Most of them come from countries where drink is considered a necessity.

But the thing that has thrown a damper on the spirit of San Francisco's cocktail hour is the scarcity of Scotch and bonded whisky, not to mention the absence of national drinks.

The bars have a quota of between seven and ten bottles of Scotch daily. It's a matter of being on hand early if you prefer Scotch, and most of the Europeans do. But they are beginning to acquire a taste for Bourbon and rye, although they prefer the mixed drinks, particularly Martinis.

When V-E day came, many of the European delegations wanted to celebrate with toasts in their national drink. But in all San Francisco there was no aquavit for the Norwegians, no slivovitch for the Yugoslavs, no real bols gin for the Dutch.

But there was champagne and a few bottles of imported French wines. The Europeans haven't acquired a taste yet for our domestic wines.

"In another ten years," said a Frenchman, "the taste will be better."

There's some vodka in the bars, but it isn't what the Russians drink.

E. J. Iversen, liquor controller of one of San Francisco's biggest hotels, said that his wine sales had more than tripled since the conference opened.

Delegates from Europe were surprised to find men in uniform, under military regulations, cannot be served any hard liquor until after 4 P. M.

A Dutchman who arrived at the conference in uniform was forced to drink beer while his companion, in civilian clothes, knocked back a couple of old-fashioneds.

Stettinius Buys First War Bond

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10 (AP).—Edward R. Stettinius, Secretary of State, bought today the first Eisenhower series bond to be sold in this country. He purchased the $500 bond, which is being sold in the Seventh War Loan drive opening Monday, from Miss Patricia Mulpeters, of San Francisco. The sale took place in the hallway of the Veterans Building as Mr. Stettinius was leaving a United

Russian Delegates' Ship Flies Her Victory Flags

Officers in Civilian Clothes So They Can Tipple

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10 (AP).—The M. S. Smolnie is all decked out in her signal flags today in celebration of Russia's two-day victory holiday. Most of her officers are in civilian clothes, because, they explained, they intend to pour on the vodka. They wouldn't think of getting tipsy in uniform, so, off with the uniform.

The Smolnie, a diesel-engined ship, is tied up at one of San Francisco's docks. She will carry back home, across the Pacific, part of the staff of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations Conference.

Neat and unpretentious, the Smolnie has been represented as a floating warehouse of vodka and caviar. But on board there are no signs of huge amounts of such delicacies, although the vodka flowed freely last night—from water pitchers.

The victory celebration was a jolly, although modest, affair.

Japan's Spirit Will Avenge German Defeat, Tokyo Says

San Francisco, May 10 (AP)—"To avenge fallen Germany and to smash the enemy," said Radio Tokyo, is the "true picture of the Japanese spirit today."

Paying tribute to the late Axis partner, Tokyo added: "The fight put up by the German people in defending their fatherland and, moreover, Führer Hitler's fighting to his death, have left a deep impression in the minds of the Japanese people.

"Now We Are Alone"

"Our feeling of sympathy and admiration toward the Germans is far stronger than that of contempt or scorn, and the determined feeling of 'now we are alone' arises in the mind of each and every Japanese."

Acknowledging that peace in Europe has made "our future tremendously difficult," Radio Tokyo declared that "when it comes to fighting alone, the Japanese are able to manifest a tenfold strength."

Began War On Own Accord

The broadcast recorded here, admitted that Japan "started the war on her own accord for her own reasons" and not with the "idea that Germany would take sides with us."

Observing that some Japanese statesmen had called Germany "unfaithful for negotiating a separate surrender in violations of the tripartite pact," the broadcast said that this is "not the feeling of the Japanese people."

Motoki Yamazaki, newly appointed president of the South Manchuria Railway Company, asserted that "greater efforts" would be made to establish "self-sufficiency" in Manchuria and to boost the production of all products that have a direct bearing on Japan's fighting strength.

Warns Of Propaganda

Apparently fearful of the effects of American propaganda, Radio Tokyo cautioned the Japanese people that "as long as we maintain our correct composure we have no cause to be frightened."

The American radio warned that Allied psychological warfare had been used successfully against Italy, "and even more successfully against Germany."

It is "an absolute certainty," the broadcast said, that America "will launch an even more persistent campaign of propaganda warfare," now that the European war is ended.

ASKS LIFTING OF CENSORSHIP OVER EUROPE

Arizona Senator Demands Speedy Removal of Controls.

MAY 11 1945

BACKS STAND OF A. P. HEAD

Assails V-E Day Confusion and Calls Free Flow of News Essential to Peace.

Washington, May 10 (A. P.).—Senator McFarland (D.-Ariz.) called today for the lifting of censorship controls in Europe as "quickly and completely as possible."

He expressed agreement in a statement with the stand taken by Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, against continued censorship, and criticized the military censors' handling of news of the German surrender.

"It seems to me that whether or not an Associated Press reporter violated an understanding with respect to the timing of his story is of relatively minor consequence in comparison with the larger aspects here involved of censorship and the freedom of news," Senator McFarland said.

"I am inclined to agree with Mr. Kent Cooper of the Associated Press that what we must be concerned with now is the lifting of rigid censorship controls as quickly and as completely as possible. I am well aware of the requirements of security but common sense and good judgment and not artificial censorship regulations should govern. The plain fact is that the war is over in Europe; the war was over when Allied and German representatives signed the unconditional surrender in Reims. The best proof that this most important story of the past decade was badly mishandled by censorship officials lies in the fact that the Germans themselves knew most of the facts long before we in America were permitted to know the official story.

'Confused Reports.'

"It must be perfectly obvious that the jubilation of V-E day in this country was dampened by a series of confused, indirect and belabored reports from Europe during the last week all hinting at the end of hostilities. The American people—and free peoples everywhere—are entitled to better treatment than that. One of the things that we fought this war for is freedom of speech and freedom of press.

"It is imperative to the better understanding of world affairs and the bringing about of friendly co-operation between and among the peoples of the world that in the days ahead there be no artificial restrictions upon any news from or to Europe. I hope that our military authorities will remember that the highest civilian authorities in this nation have gone on record and are even now ardently working for a free press throughout the world.

"President Truman is to be commended in withholding the official announcement of V-E day on account of the agreement which our Government had that it would be made simultaneously by the three Powers. But an official announcement is one thing and the free flow of news is another. It is my opinion that the free flow of news among nations where the security of a nation or nations is not involved is absolutely essential to the kind of understanding which will bring about peace for the world."

ALLIES TO BAR OUTSIDE PRESS FROM GERMANY

The OWI Will Supervise Publication of Its Own Newspapers.

FOREIGN BUSINESS IS BANNED

Non-German Enterprise Will Not Be Permitted for an Indefinite Period.

MAY 1 1945

Washington, May 10 (A. P.).—Elmer Davis, Director of the Office of War Information, said today that Allied newspapers and magazines will be barred from circulating in Germany for an indefinite period during military occupation and that a similar ban will be placed on all foreign business enterprise.

A few German newspapers will be published under Allied military control, the head of the Office of War Information told reporters.

"The reason is very simple—Germany is a sick man," he said. "He now can have only what the doctors prescribe. Later on, he will have a more ample diet."

Davis asserted that the policy he announced was necessary to insure maintenance of order in the potentially chaotic conditions attending restoration of German life. When a reporter asked "why are Allied officials afraid of giving entry to American newspapers?" he replied:

"I think the Germans would get too much impression of divided policies. For twelve years their papers have expressed one policy, and they are out of the habit of understanding what a free press means.

"Those who adopted this policy all believe in a free press and in democracy, but the Germans are a peculiar case—a type of case unknown in world history—and they have got to undergo peculiar treatment."

The policy, he said, was arranged by the psychological warfare division of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Allied headquarters, when the unified command dissolves and separate American, British, French and Russian zones are set up, the occupying nations will control information and propaganda matters. Their efforts are to be co-ordinated by the top control council to be set up in Berlin.

Allied Army officials are starting the German press to functioning, using OWI staffs for the most part.

Davis said soldiers of the American occupying forces may subscribe to American newspapers and periodicals, since they are United States citizens and "entitled to read the newspapers of their own country."

The ban on any foreign business enterprise in Germany for an indefinite period is a policy "agreed on by the governments involved," the OWI chief said. He did not amplify the statement.

ALLIES TO EDIT READING MATTER, FILMS FOR REICH

WASHINGTON May 10.—(AP) All publications, films and business enterprises from the United States and other countries will be barred from Germany indefinitely during military occupation, OWI Director Davis said today.

Allied armies of occupation will control all newspapers, other publications, films and radio enterprises which are permitted, he told a news conference.

Information sections of each occupying military government—U. S., British, Russian and French—will publish a few newspapers, perhaps magazines and books, and will operate what remains of the German radio system.

In reply to a question, Davis said he believed the Russians had concurred in this policy.

The restricted news media policy was decided by the Allied military governments, Davis said, with OWI concurring.

Better Diet Later

He explained that "Germany is a sick man. He now can have only what the doctors prescribe. Later on, he will have a more ample diet."

The policy is necessary, Davis asserted, to maintain order now and to bring the Germans back to "sanity and order."

The news the Germans get now will be the beginning of their re-education, Davis said.

In an earlier interview a reporter asked him why Allied officials were "afraid of giving entry to American newspapers."

"I think the Germans would get too much impression of divided policies," Davis replied. "For 12 years their papers have expressed one policy, and they are out of the habit of understanding what a free press means."

However members of the armies of occupation still may receive publications from their own countries to which they subscribe.

Davis disclosed in his news conference that the first booklet which OWI will distribute to the Germans will describe and picture the horrors of German concentration camps.

The booklet will be given a "test distribution," said Edward Barrett, OWI overseas director, to determine whether later it will be distributed free of charge or sold to the Germans.

RECONVERSION PLAN OUTLINED

73 Orders That Curbed Civilian Goods Are Revoked.

MAY 11 1945

Washington, May 10 (AP)—J. A. Krug today outlined his program for "orderly" removal of industrial controls and asked manufacturers not to "jump the gun" on the reconversion time table.

The War Production Board chairman announced that 73 orders prohibiting or limiting the manufacture of civilian products have been revoked, as of today. About half the 420 orders on WPB's books will have been removed "within the next few months," he said.

Those already dropped include most of the curbs on "hard goods" except for those using large quantities of metal, such as automobiles, furniture, refrigerators and stoves.

Break For Business July 1

Krug set July 1 as the date on which business will be given unrestricted access to such steel, copper and aluminum as is not taken up by priority orders for war and war-supporting activities.

Until that is done, the revocation of individual controls means little in terms of building up civilian supplies, for WPB's machinery for the allocation of metals will continue to channel them to war and essential uses only.

Ordinary manufacturers resuming or increasing civilian goods output will have to depend on idle, surplus or second-hand materials until this machinery—the familiar "controlled materials plan" is opened up to let them receive the three basic metals.

Wants Orders Followed

However, such nonpriority orders may be placed at once, Krug said, to become valid on the books of steel, aluminum and copper mills when the July 1 relaxation occurs. Thereafter mills will make deliveries, subject to the rule that they do not interfere with WPB-authorized orders.

Krug warned that industry "is expected to continue compliance with all WPB orders and regulations as long as they remain in effect."

"Industry has co-operated magnificently," he said. "I have complete confidence that industry will continue this co-operation and will not try to jump the gun on reconversion."

Two Additional Actions

Two additional actions preparatory to partial reconversion were announced by the production chief. They were:

1. The granting of an AA-4 priority rating—a rating lower than that accorded most essential civilian production, but sufficient to assure favored treatment—to all manufacturers who produce less than $50,000 worth of goods a quarter. This help will start July 1 and end December 31.

2. The removal of most "rating floors"—rules which prescribe that orders must carry a specified rating or be ignored—to permit the placing of nonpriority orders in cases where production and delivery will not interfere with rated orders.

Simplified System Planned

The WPB chairman said he would announce shortly a simplified priority system having only two ratings, "MM" for military goods and "CC" for needed civilian products. This will come into use gradually, it was indicated.

Strict controls over factories' inventory supplies of materials will be maintained, he added, until the danger of hoarding or pre-empting of supplies is past. The release of materials and manpower for civilian production will "not be sudden or drastic," Krug said; much of these resources in the next few months must be channeled into critically needed production for the war against Japan.

Krug said also that WPB's control system is flexible and if emergency shortages arise curbs will be tightened again.

Ban On Civilian Goods Metals To Come Off

MAY 11 1945

Washington, May 10 (AP)—War Production Board Chairman J. A. Krug, unveiling a pattern for reconversion, announced today that three essential metals will be released for consumer goods July 1.

Manufacturers of civilian products will be able to obtain steel, copper and aluminum after that date without allotment orders, where delivery does not interfere with war production or priority consumer requirements.

Krug also announced special provisions to aid small manufacturers in acquiring supplies of the three metals. Applicable to those who produce less than $50,000 in any quarter of the year, they also cover the needs of veterans and new enterprises in that category.

"Hard Goods" Outlook

Limitations on the production of a small number of "hard goods" using large quantities of materials, such as automobiles, furniture, books, refrigerators and stoves, "will have to be retained until supplies free up a great deal more," Krug said in a statement.

"These orders generally will be amended to permit some production," he added.

The WPB chief said that of 420 control orders in effect April 1, 73 already have been revoked, "and it is expected that about half will have been revoked within the next few months."

"Downward revisions of war production schedules cannot all be made instantly," Krug said. "Contract cutbacks and the resulting release of productive resources will be spread over a period of months."

Only If Materials Available

He emphasized that pentup demands for such programs as farm machinery, transportation and utilities will consume "a great deal of the material freed by cutbacks."

He stressed also that revocation of particular orders will not necessarily mean immediate resumption of the affected production, will, he said, clear the way for such manufacture as facilities, materials and manpower become available.

Krug authorized manufacturers to place orders now for steel, copper and aluminum for delivery after July 1.

He said the special aids for small manufacturers were designed to help them "get their fair share of production materials."

"WPB wants and encourages the small business man to get going as fast as he can," Krug said.

These manufacturers will get an AA-4 preference rating for materials, exclusive of textiles and related products. This lines them up for materials immediately after the priority civilian requirements have been met.

WAR MATERIEL TO BE STUDIED

Senate Committee Inquiry To Be Made On Battlefield

Washington, May 10 (AP)—The Senate's War Investigating Committee decided today to conduct its next big inquiry on the now silent battlefields of Europe.

A group of six was named to tour the continent with army help and determine:

1. What war materiel can be salvaged.

2. What should be junked there on the spot.

The trip may be undertaken in the next several weeks. The members have been processed through the War Department's channels for passports, inoculations and other preliminaries to the trip.

Those To Make Inquiry

Appointed to make the investigation were Senators Kilgore (D., W.Va.), Tunnell (D., Del.), Mitchell (D., Wash.), Brewster (R., Maine), Ball (R., Minn.) and Ferguson (R., Mich.).

They conferred today with Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, on the technical details of what the United States holds in Europe, and what was sent there on lend lease.

A survey of American funds abroad also will be made. Senators said they were interested primarily in the "quality, quantity and character" of the holdings and the inquiry would be extensive.

The task is part of the entire committee's plan to gather the information on United States holdings in all theaters to formulate policy for Congress. A subcommittee is working now on a report of a survey in the Caribbean which will be submitted when Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) recovers from his recent illness.

Plane Expansion In Reverse Due For Industry

Washington, May 10 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee said today the aircraft industry is in for "a spectacular expansion in reverse."

Civilian and commercial demand for planes after the war, the group declared, depends upon preparation and execution of a broad program for the development of aviation, including the building of landing fields and making aeronautical training and research readily available.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) of a Senate Military subcommittee working on the problem, added in a report that the Government's decision to halt operations at Henry Ford's Willow Run factory after July demonstrates "the staggering proportion of the problems" to be faced in using or disposing of the vast plane-building facilities developed during the war.

No Civilian Market

"In five years an industry which had been producing 3,000 planes annually was transformed into an industry producing more than 9,000 planes a month," the report said. "With less than 100,000 workers in 1939, it was employing more than 2,100,000 at the peak. . . .

"All this is now being thrown into reverse. There is no civilian market for this vast system.

"One month's current production of transport planes . . . would provide a whole year's replacements for the equipment operated by all of the airlines of the whole world before the war. . . .

"The Government which brought this mammoth industry into existence should not be satisfied with a narrow program of mere storage or scrapping.

Change In Planes Indicated

"We have not only the physical plants and equipment as well as the aircraft and aircraft parts, we have the managerial organization and the human skills that made the achievement possible.

"The commercial airplane of the postwar world must be a different instrument from that which we have used for war. If the army of workers who have built the air fleets that destroyed German industry and transport and are now performing the same service to Japan is demobilized with the coming cut-backs, we may have to start from scratch again."

TAX REDUCTION OPPOSED UNTIL JAP SURRENDER

Morgenthau, in Press Talk, Says Administration's Position Is Same.

MAY 1 1 1945

GEORGE DEMANDS REDUCTION

Senate Finance Committee Head Calls for Downward Revision as Aid to Business.

Washington, May 10 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau indicated today that the administration is opposed to any reduction of taxes until Japan is defeated.

"The administration position has not changed with regard to the need for all revenues we can get during the war," he said at a news conference when asked what he thought about the recommendation of Senator George (D.-Ga.) for reduction of taxes on 1946 incomes regardless of the status of the war.

Mr. Morgenthau would not elaborate his comment. Reporters noted that he carefully used the phrase "administration position" rather than "Treasury position."

Senator George, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he favors "substantial" reductions in both individual and corporation income taxes.

Such reductions should be made even if the war with Japan shows signs of continuing another year or two, Mr. George told a news conference yesterday, his first since his return from a European atrocity inspection tour.

"It is perfectly clear to me that we cannot hope for a restoration of peacetime business at high levels without a revision of the tax laws," he said. "That applies especially to individuals."

Mr. George did not go into details of the cuts he had in mind, but said that he hoped a proper bill could be worked out to take effect early next year.

He added that his conversations with servicemen abroad had about convinced him the Government should cancel all Federal tax obligations that have accumulated against them during the war. Some of the officers, he said, are going to face staggering tax bills when they come home.

Mr. George also asserted that two important provisions of the so-called G. I. Bill of Rights need immediate revision.

The business loan provision, he said, won't work because of the restriction that the Government can guarantee but 50 per cent of the loan and not to exceed $2,000. That's too small a sum on which to establish a business, Mr. George asserted.

BUSINESS TAXES REVISIONS URGED

Program to Aid Reconversion Recommended by Senate-House Group.

WASHINGTON, May 10 — (AP) Immediate sweeping revisions of business taxes, designed to aid in reconversion from war to peace production, was recommended jointly today by the Senate-House Postwar Tax committee and the Treasury department.

The program does not call for any reduction in tax rates, but includes other provisions easing the burden on many businesses.

Five specific recommendations for revisions were made as follows:

1—Increase the excess-profits-tax specific exemption from $10,000 to $25,000, effective beginning with the tax year 1946.

2—Provide that the postwar credit of 10 per cent of the excess-profits tax be taken currently with respect to tax liabilities of 1944 and subsequent years.

3—Advance to Jan. 1, 1946, the maturity date of outstanding excess profits tax postwar refund bonds.

4—Provide for speed-up of refunds resulting from carry-backs of net operating losses and of unused excess-profits credits.

5—Provide for speed-up of refunds resulting from the recomputation of deductions for amortization of emergency facilities.

GERMANS COST ARMY 800,000

American Casualties Include About 150,000 Dead

MAY 1 1 1945

Washington, May 10 (AP)—American Army casualties in the war against Germany total about 800,000, including about 150,000 dead, Secretary of War Stimson estimated today.

The figures are for all army forces, but do not include the 14,894 casualties, 8,887 of them dead, listed by the Navy, Marine Corus and Coast Guard for the European phase of the war.

None of those totals takes into account any losses in campaigns against Japan.

Nearing Million Mark

The over-all figures for all services and all theaters since Pearl Harbor, meanwhile, approached the million mark, with a total of 972,654 reported through April 30. That number, announced today, was up 22,182 in the last week. Army casualties have reached 867,709 and those of the Navy 104,945.

Secretary Stimson, in a breakdown of the figures, said fighting in Germany during April cost American ground forces 34,598 casualties, including 5,324 killed, 25,407 wounded and 3,867 missing.

He listed these ground forces losses on the Western front from D-day last June through April: Total 512,113, including 88,225 killed, 365,320 wounded and 58,568 missing and captured.

"Limited" Additions Seen

About half of the wounded in the campaigns against Germany have returned to duty, he said, and those taken prisoner are being returned rapidly. Between 70,000 and 80,000 captured Americans have been freed from prison camps, the Secretary said, and more than 8,000 have been brought back to the United States.

Stimson said it is "inevitable," in view of the magnitude of operations and the time involved in making careful investigations, that individual casualty notices from the war against Germany will continue to be received by next of kin for several weeks. But he said the additions "should be limited in number."

U. S. TROOPS MOVED FROM IRAN TO CHINA

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—Service troops already have been shifted to China from the Persian Gulf area where they helped supply the Soviet Army, the Army disclosed today.

A huge truck convoy, commanded by Col. Paul R. Guthrie of Denver, Col., made the 6,000-mile trek from the Iranian desert to the Kunming, China, supply center in what was described as "record time."

The convoy traveled by sea, rail and highway. The first leg of the journey from the Iranian desert to Calcutta, India, was made aboard ship. From Calcutta the convoy was carried on railroad cars to the Ledo terminus of the Stilwell highway. From there it rolled under its own power over the highway to Kunming. Every vehicle arrived intact.

The movement, it was revealed, was planned long in advance—even before the Japanese were driven from north Burma and before the Stilwell Road was opened.

The dates for the journey and the time it required were not given. The force already is at work transferring munitions and supplies to Chinese forces.

Among the officers who helped set up time table and work out details for the trip were Maj. M. R. Price of Los Angeles, Calif.; Capt. P. A. Vandenbosch of Fairlawn, N. J.; Maj. J. B. Lightburn of New York City, and Lieut. Col. C. E. Stilson of Detroit.

Service Troops Moved From Persia To China

Washington, May 10 (AP)—A big shift of American service troops and transports to China was disclosed today 24 hours after the Army revealed that it expects to unload supplies on the China coast.

The latest development was a War Department report that service troops, in a huge truck convoy, already have been moved to China from the Persian Gulf area where they helped supply the Soviet Army.

Gen. Brehon Somervell injected a reference to China into news-conference discussion yesterday of problems confronting the service forces, which he commands, in getting equipment into the Pacific theater.

Journey In 'Record Time'

Unlike the European theater when there were excellent docks and sufficient manpower in Britain to handle the supplies, he said facilities and qualified men are extremely limited in the Orient.

Significantly, Somervell also observed that more bases must be secured to carry the air war to Japan. They must be large enough, he emphasized, so that "our numerical strength can be deployed."

The convoy, commanded by Col. Paul R. Guthrie, of Denver, made the 6,000-mile journey from the Persian Desert to Kunming, China, in what was called "record time."

FRENCH OFFER TWO DIVISIONS FOR EAST

Washington, May 10 (A. P.).—Rene Pleven, French Minister of Finance, said at the White House today that France is ready to furnish two divisions, with more to follow, to fight Japan. He said that he gave President Truman this assurance during a conference at which he called to pay his respects and to thank the United States for all this country is doing to help rehabilitate the French railways.

To French divisions would be approximately 30,000 men, nearly the same size as two American divisions. These are ready now, M. Pleven said, and there will be others to follow.

U.S. To Land In China

Washington, May 10 (AP) — The Army intends to land on the China coast.

This was confirmed officially by Gen. Brehon Somervell at a news conference in discussing the scarcity of qualified civilians in the Pacific to unload supplies for the war against Japan. This is the way Somervell phrased it:

"Although some help is available in the Philippines and can be expected along the coast of China, soldiers will have to be used to handle the large proportion of the thousands of tons of cargo unloaded daily."

U.S. Keeping Convoy System On Supplies

New York, May 10 (AP)—Despite the end of the war in Europe there has been no change in the convoy system of sending supplies abroad, Navy and shipping officials said today.

Officials are working on the theory that some submarines may not have received the surrender order and that some U-boat officers who are fanatical Nazis might prey on Allied shipping until their torpedoes are exhausted.

War Shipping Administration officials said no tapering off of supplies from this harbor was expected in the near future. Lend-lease supplies, food and other cargoes are expected to keep the harbor as busy as ever.

Two Small Craft Lost In Philippines Action

Washington, May 10 (AP)—The Navy announced today the loss of a support landing craft and a motor mine sweeper in the Philippine area from enemy action.

The landing craft, LCS (L) (3) 26, was sunk in Mariveles Bay while participating in the recapture of Bataan and Corregidor, with 35 casualties, including killed, wounded and missing. The normal complement of such a ship is about 50. Her skipper, Lieut. Herbert Chernin, Brooklyn, N.Y., was wounded in the action.

The motor mine sweeper YMS 71 was lost in the recent Tawi Tawi action. Her skipper, Lieut. Ernest O. Saltmarsh, Pensacola, Fla., and five crew members were wounded. Two others were listed as missing. The normal complement of a vessel of that type is about 30 men.

BIG FIGHT LOOMS ON PRICE, WAGE CONTROL PLANS

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP) Administration plans for control of prices and wages during the reconversion period ran head-on into opposition from Senator Taft (R-Ohio) today with strong indications of a big fight brewing.

Simultaneous with release of the War Labor board's plan to hold wages stable as war industries turn to civilian consumption, Taft introduced legislation to lift wage controls Jan. 1 and to ease price controls after this year.

Would Release Luxuries

Specifically Taft wanted price curbs taken off "all luxury and other commodities the price of which in the opinion of" the price administrator "does not substantially affect the cost of living." He also proposed a requirement that any price ceilings after Jan. 1 allow "the same margin over cost" as was realized in the average of the years 1938 and 1940. He wanted no maximum rents fixed on any housing on which construction is begun after July 1, 1945.

Taft conceded that some price control—but less than exists now—may be needed for two more years.

The pricing aspects of the Taft proposal collided with control plans often urged by the Administration, and reemphasized yesterday by War Mobilization Director Fred M Vinson. Administrative agencies have urged close controls, on the ground they are necessary to prevent an inflationary boom followed by a disastrous collapse.

Vinson urged maintenance of both wage and price controls until Japan is beaten and others have said they will be needed still longer.

The WLB said today it will be just as alert against a general drop in pay levels as it has been against increases. The program was stated at a news conference by Chairman George W. Taylor, who said some basic pay changes may be approved for reconverting plants, but they will not be retroactive as in the past

Plants shifting from war to civilian production must submit their new pay schedulues to WLB for approval, Taylor said, but those continuing in war work without change in job classifications may continue as at present.

The no-strike pledge by labor and the no-lockout agreement by management will be continued, Taylor said, with assent from Van Bittner, C.I.O. member, and James Brownlow, A.F.L. member of the board.

Expect Same Compliance

Taylor said he expected the same compliance as in the past with WLB orders and emphasized that "as long as there is a no-strike pledge, there must be a War Labor board to decide finally any disputes not settled by the parties."

The pledge was for the duration, he said, "and of course that means at least until victory over Japan."

Taft's measure was introduced as an amendment to a pending resolution which would continue the price and stabilization act unchanged for a year from June 30, the present expiration date. This resolution is before a Senate Banking subcommittee of which Taft is a member. He urged in a Senate speech that hearings on it be reopened for consideration of his amendment

Taft told the Senate that Vinson had been quoted as saying that reconversion prices for such things as automobiles, refrigerators and other consumer durable goods will be based on pre-war prices.

"In my opinion, this policy proposed by Mr. Vinson will be destructive to reconversion and to employment," Taft said. "Costs have risen at least 30 per cent and it is idiotic to suppose that men will rush into production in large business or in small business, or expand their prewar activities, if the government is going to undertake to control profits."

Taft expressed the opinion that present price control policy "is far too strict, even for war time."

COAL CONFEREES LOOK TO ICKES TO END DISPUTE

MAY 1 1945

WASHINGTON, May 10 — (AP) John L. Lewis and anthracite operators, deadlocked today over underground traveltime for hard coal miners, looked to Solid Fuels Administrator Ickes for a solution.

A conference between the United Mine Workers and producer negotiating committees and Ickes and his staff broke up late today with no further meetings scheduled and without a word of comment from any of the parties.

One official close to the situation said the negotiators were "hopelessly deadlocked."

Ickes had called in Lewis and the operators, interrupting New York discussions for a new contract for the 72,000 anthracite miners in Pennsylvania, to replace the contract which expired April 30. Lewis has not complied with a War Labor board directive to extend the old agreement, and the mines are shut down.

Ickes met with the conferees this morning and again briefly this afternoon but retired leaving his staff of coal experts, together with Justice department lawyers and others, to collect as much information on the reasons underlying the deadlock as could be.

While no meeting is scheduled, the miners and operators planned to remain in Washington, apparently believing that Ickes will make some offer of a new contract over the week end.

Lewis has asked the operators for $1.50 a day as compensation for underground travel, which the bituminous miners already are receiving and which the Supreme court last week upheld as a proper wage item.

Treasury Open To Revision on Bretton Woods

Morgenthau Agrees to House Bill Changes if Original Intent Is Intact

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP).—Henry Morgenthau jr., Secretary of the Treasury, opened the door today for a possible change in the Bretton Woods agreement but only the kind that would not have to be submitted to other nations for approval.

Mr. Morgenthau refused to express an opinion on a widely discussed recommendation made by the Committee for Economic Development, a business group, but he did say at a news conference that the C. E. D. suggestion could be adopted without amending the basic monetary agreements signed by the representatives of forty-four countries last summer. He repeated the Treasury's opposition to any amendments in the agreements themselves.

However, he said the Treasury might be willing to approve some changes in the enabling legislation, the Bretton Woods bill which has been before the House Banking Committee for two months, provided the changes were not of the type that would have to be approved by the other forty-three countries.

The C. E. D. suggestion has been widely mentioned as a possible compromise between the Treasury and The American Bankers' Association, which has been critical of the Bretton Woods plan. Briefly, this suggestion is:

1. That the proposed international bank for reconstruction and development be specifically authorized to make long-term loans for currency stabilization purposes, as well as for reconstruction projects.

2. That the proposed international monetary fund, thus freed of long-term loans, make only short-term transfers of currency to governments which are in temporary emergencies in connection with foreign exchange.

The Tile Council of America today asked Congress to reject an Administration request for further authority to cut tariffs through operation of the reciprocal trade act.

Norris E. Phillips, council chairman, told the House Ways and Means Committee, studying extension of the act, that further reductions on the duty on foreign-made floor and wall tile would seriously injure the domestic industry and prevent it from providing post-war employment. He said the industry employs directly 30,000 persons.

The industry operates principally in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and California.

WLB WILL MOVE TO KEEP PAY UP

MAY 1 1945

During Conversion It Will Hold Present Levels.

Washington, May 10 (A. P.).—The War Labor Board today announced that it will follow a policy of keeping wage rates at present levels during the shift from war to peacetime production. The board said it will be just as alert to guard against a drop in general pay levels as it has been against increases.

George W. Taylor, the chairman, told a news conference that some changes in basic scales may be approved, but that they will not be retroactive, as at present. The board must approve the pay schedules of converting plants, but those continuing to produce for war against Japan without a turnover of job classifications need not apply for approval of their scales beyond the normal procedures which have been in effect in the past.

Plants making a shift over will be required to submit their new schedules to the board before or just as soon as they are put into effect.

Labor's no-strike pledge and management's pledge against lockouts will be continued, Taylor said. This sentiment was echoed by Van Bittner, C. I. O. member of the board, and James Brownlow, A. F. of L. member.

"As long as there is a no-strike pledge, there must be a war labor board to decide finally any disputes not settled by the parties," said Taylor. The no-strike pledge was given for the duration, he said, "and of course that means at least until victory over Japan."

Taylor said he expects the same compliance with War Labor Board orders as in the past.

STREAMLINED RFC IS AIM OF SNYDER

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP) John W. Snyder in his first news conference as Federal Loan administrator called today for streamlining of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to help speed conversion of industry.

He announced a program under which the RFC expects to help industry through financing, clearing of plants for a return to peacetime production, and disposal of surplus property.

He said he has asked Congress for permission to absorb five RFC subsidiary corporations into the RFC itself. They are: Rubber Reserve company, Metal Reserve company, Defense Plant corporation, Defense Supplies corporation, and Disaster Loan corporation.

"This action," he told reporters in a statement, "does not mean that their important war work is done, but it does mean that they are now so well established and organized that the whole structure can be simplified from an organizational point of view."

Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.), chairman of the Senate Banking committee, introduced a bill today to bring about the merger.

Snyder said it is hoped the change will result in considerable operating economies. He said substantially the same personnel now administering the subsidiary corporations will continue in that capasity.

COASTAL CITIES PETITION RETURN OF SHIP TRAFFIC

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP) Representatives of port cities throughout the country urged government authorities today to reestablish coastwise shipping halted since the beginning of the war.

A meeting of North Atlantic, South Atlantic and Florida, Gulf, Texas and Pacific coast port conferences also called upon the government to consider aiding coastwise shippers temporary in getting reestablished.

The resolution containing the recommendations was adopted as a substitute for one offered by the South Atlantic and Florida port conference asking that the government take over coastwise and intercoastal shipping for two years.

The South Atlantic-Florida group suggested yesterday that coastwise and intercoastal shipping be reestablished immediately and that the government turn over the services to steamship operators to act as agents for the government.

F. M. Darr, director of traffic for the War Shipping Administration, told the conferees that the date for the resumption of coastwise and intercoastal shipping is "very indefinite," much depending upon progress of the war with Japan.

Darr could not say how soon the government will be able to return to owners the ships which were taken over by the government for war purposes.

The conference, which concluded tonight, was presided over jointly by Charles R. Seals of Baltimore, chairman of the North Atlantic Port Conference; H. O. Shaw of Miami, president of the South Atlantic and Florida Port Conference, and E. O. Jewell of New Orleans, president of the Gulf Ports association.

Adverse Weather Lessens the Hope Of Food Production Equal to 1944.

Record Winter Wheat Crop Is Predicted, With Less Meat Scheduled—Rise in Milk Expected—Fewer Chickens Foreseen

By T. s Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 10—Unfavorable weather during April and early May, coupled with a prospective smaller production of livestock products, has toned down official hopes of a 1945 food output matching last year's record.

In its May crop report, the Agriculture Department said today that freezing temperatures, excessive rains and floods during the last five weeks had caused some deterioration in crop prospects. A record winter wheat crop was forecast, however.

The Department said that a prospective near record acreage of food, feed and fiber crops should provide the country with a total output which would compare "rather favorably with the excellent showings of the past three years," providing, of course, farmers get a reasonable break from now on in the weather.

MAY 1 1945

Meat Output 9 Per cent Less

In another report, the Department said that the meat output this year is expected to total 22,500,000,000 pounds, or 9 per cent less than last year's record production of 24,600,000,000 pounds. Egg and poultry production will be smaller. Milk is the only livestock product likely to equal or surpass last year's output.

The winter wheat crop was forecast at 835,186,000 bushels, compared with 764,073,000 produced last year and 858,994,000 for the ten-year (1934-43) average. The acreage remaining for harvest—46,768,000—is 15 per cent larger than last year and the largest since 1938.

No estimate was given on the spring wheat crop inasmuch as it has not all been planted yet.

Rye production was forecast at 28,872,000 bushels, which would be the smallest since 1936 with the exception of last year's very small crop of 25,872,000 bushels. The ten-year average is 41,434,000 bushels.

An acre yield of 17.9 bushels of winter wheat is indicated by the May canvass, compared with 17.4 bushels a month ago, 19.0 bushels for the record crop of 1931, 18.8 bushels last year and 15.3 bushels the 1934-43 ten-year average.

The area seeded to winter wheat last fall was 49,589,000 acres, compared with 46,349,000 acres a year ago, and 46,757,000 acres the 1934-43 average. Acreage for harvest is placed at 46,768,000, compared with 40,714,000 a year ago, and 38,526,000 the ten-year average.

The acreage of winter wheat not to be harvested for grain is estimated at 5.7 per cent, compared with 12.2 of the 1944 seeded acreage and 17.2 per cent of the average acreage in the ten years, 1934-43.

The area seeded to rye last fall was 4,726,000 acres, compared with 4,701,000 for the 1944 crop, and 6,291,000 acres, the 1934-43 ten-year average. The area for harvest is placed at 2,246,000 acres, compared with 2,254,000 acres a year ago, and 3,379,000 acres, the 1934-43 ten-year average.

Bright Side to Rainfall

There was one bright side to the heavy rainfall, the department said, and that was the accumulation of moisture reserves for the coming growing season. Rain was said to be badly needed in limited areas of the Southwest.

Fruit, early commercial vegetables, gardens, and some other early spring planting crops were said to have been dealt severe blows by the unseasonably cool weather.

Crop prospects would be much darker, the report said, except for the fact that an unseasonably warm March permitted farmers to make considerable progress on plowing. Even so, some intended acreage will not be planted, the report said, because of the lateness of the season and shortages of manpower and machinery.

The production of all fruits will probably be moderately less than last season's below normal crop, the report said, because of considerable damage caused by April frost.

Orange and Lemon Production

Orange production this season was estimated today at 108,380,000 boxes as against 103,056,000 last season.

Early and mid-season varieties are harvested, except for a few navel oranges in Southern California. Production by States this season and last, respectively, were: California 59,300,000 and 51,966,000; Florida, 43,500,000 and 46,200,000; Texas, 4,000,000 and 3,550,000; Arizona, 1,220,000 and 1,100,000; and Louisiana, 360,000 and 240,000.

Grapefruit production was estimated at 51,991,000 boxes as compared with 55,979,000 last season. Production by States this season and last were: Florida, 23,100,000 and 31,000,000; Texas, 21,800,000 and 17,710,000; Arizona, 3,800,000 and 4,080,000; and California, 3,291,000 and 3,189,000.

The California lemon crop was set at 13,321,000 boxes as compared with 11,038,000 last season.

UNRRA To Give No Aid To Germans

New York, May 10 (AP)—Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, says that the UNRRA is not authorized to assist Germans and is not planning to supply food to Germany.

Lehman sent a telegram clarifying the UNRRA's position in operations in enemy or former enemy areas as a result of publication of an Associated Press dispatch from Paris May 5 which he felt implied that it was planned to supply food to Germany.

This is not the case.

Would Have To Be Voted

"If and when the UNRRA feeds Germany it will do so only upon the decision of the majority of the members of its council, each of which has one unit of voting power," he said.

The UNRRA has approved no measures which would provide relief to other than United Nations nationals, stateless persons, or victims of political or racial persecution in Germany, Lehman said.

A dispatch from Paris to the Associated Press states also that the UNRRA is supplying no food to Germany and there are no known intentions to do so.

Listed Calories

The story of May 5 had said "the ratio planned by UNRRA is 1,150 calories for Germans and 2,000 for liberated countries."

Actually, Allied Military Government officials have charge of the rationing. The Germans must supply their own food, out of stocks on hand or from crops to be gathered.

In Paris, a spokesman for the AMG said that the 1,150 calories per person per day died for the Germans was only a maximum. Germany is being required to feed from 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 displaced persons plus hundreds of thousands of Allied prisoners of war, and the German died is coming out of what is left after these people are fed.

The UNRRA provides only the medium through which the supply of food can be arranged. It does not actually provide the food, nor is there any guarantee to what extent the food can be provided.

French Seen Repaying Debt To U.S. By Deeds

Washington, May 10 (AP)—France will repay her debt to America "not by words but by deeds," Rene Pleven, French Finance Minister, said today.

Stopping off in Washington on his way back to Paris from the San Francisco conference, he saw President Truman this morning.

Later he issued a public statement expressing the gratitude of the French people to America, saying:

"Our first service will be to replace as soon as possible and as many as possible of the men of your armed forces in Europe so that they may come home to you or accelerate the defeat of our enemy in the Pacific," declared Pleven.

He had said that two French divisions are available now for the Pacific war, with more to come. He said he had so advised the President.

WAR COSTS DROP EXPECTED IN FALL

WASHINGTON, May 10 — (AP) The Treasury predicted today that victory over Germany won't cause any cut in war expenditures before fall at the earliest.

Secretary Morgenthau at a news conference said he thought it would be at least four or five months before production cutbacks are reflected in expenditure figures.

Ted Gamble, director of the War Finance division, told State War Finance chairmen in a telegram, "despite all that has and probably will be said about expenditures there is no indication whatever that expenditures for war will fall below their present level for a period of at least 90 days following conclusion of the Seventh War Loan drive."

The drive opens Monday and ends June 30.

Gamble said "the task ahead of us in terms of financial needs remains gigantic."

Americans as individuals are being asked to invest seven billion dollars in the drive. This is the highest individual quota yet, and Treasury officials back the fixing of the record allotment with two principal arguments:

1—Cost of war will continue heavy.

2—The largest possible proportion of this money should come from individuals in order to combat inflation, since consumer goods are scarcer and cash more plentiful than ever.

HOUSE MEMBERS VOTE $2,500 EXPENSE FUND

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP) The House of Representatives voted itself a $2,500 annual tax-free expense allowance today.

The provision must be approved by the Senate to become effective. It was written by the House into a regular congressional appropriation bill approved 179 to 83 on a voice vote.

Before it completed action on the measure the House voted pay boost for some of its clerks and the pages. It turned down pay raises for the capitol police and some other employes.

FLOOD RELIEF BILL PASSED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 10 — (AP) A three-pronged, $27,000,000 program for relief and reconstruction in areas swept by floods during 1944 and 1945 passed the Senate today and went to the House.

The measure, by Senator Overton (D.-La.), was passed by voice vote after it was amended to include 1944 flood areas.

A $12,000,000 appropriation would be authorized for repair and restoration of levees and flood-control works, destroyed by flood waters; the Agriculture department could make loans and grants to farmers whose property suffered flood damage, using an unexpended balance of $15,000,000, apropriated for 1943 flood restoration loans; the War Production board would be directed to allocate farm machinery to flooded areas and grant priorities for its purchase to farmers.

The $12,000,000 authorization for levee repair would be subject to further approval by Congress in a separate, appropriation bill. The Overton bill provides, however, that Army engineers may begin repair work immediately, using existing flood-control appropriations until the new fund has final approval.

Army Plans PWs' Return To Europe

Washington, May 10 (AP)—No additional German war prisoners will be brought to the United States, and the War Department has asked General Eisenhower to arrange for the return of those now here.

Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of Army Service Forces, announced yesterday that the movement of German war prisoners to this country stopped Monday.

Somervell said the Army wanted to return Axis prisoners to Europe as quickly as possible. Italian service units, composed of former Italian war prisoners who volunteered for non-combat work to aid the Allied war effort, will be given priority in the transfer, he said.

Wants Americans First

Noting that a number of Axis prisoners are employed on farms, Somervell said some arrangement would have to be made in this connection. He added that "we don't want to keep any Germans on any jobs that American workmen want."

Chairman Anderson (D., N.M.) of the House Food Investigating Committee said earlier this week that the War Department plans to retain German prisoners here for use as farm laborers through the fall harvesting season.

Congress Out To Block Scuttling Of Navy Ships

Washington, May 10 (AP)—A bill designed to give Congress the right to reject any proposed disposal of Navy vessels and facilities in peacetime won unanimous approval today of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

The measure, authored by Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.), would require the Secretary of the Navy to report to Congress reasons why the ship or facility was not needed. Should the Congress deem otherwise it could block the proposed disposal by passing a concurrent resolution.

"In effect," one committee member said privately, "the measure would prevent peacetime scuttling of the Navy such as took place after World War I.

Urges U. S. to Keep Islands

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP).—A demand that such Japanese islands as Okinawa and Iwo Jima be recognized as American possessions after the war was made today by Senator Hugh Butler, Republican, of Nebraska. He suggested to the Senate that the United States delegation to the San Francisco conference advance this principle. "When victory over Japan comes, we want every island that is essential for our defense," he said.

V-E Hour: 12:01 A. M. West Front Time May 9

Stalin's Report Off 1 Minute From U. S. Records

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP).—Historians probably will fixe the time at which the European war ended at one minute after midnight, Western Front time, May 9, or 6:01 p. m., Eastern war time, May 8. That is the time used so far in War Department records and probably will be recorded for the department's historical files. It appears to be, except for one minute, the time used by the Russians.

The cease-fire order, stipulated in the articles of capitulation signed by Germany to the Allies, became effective at 6:01 p. m. Eastern war time.

While records here designate the precise time at one minute after midnight, Marshal Stalin, in his recent address announcing victory, referred to the order as being effective at "2400 hours." This would be precisely midnight, European time.

Truman At Luncheon In Wallgren's Honor

Washington, May 10 (AP)—President Truman went to the Capitol again today to have lunch with a group of Senators honoring Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington.

Wallgren, a former member of the Senate War Investigating Committee once headed by Mr. Truman, arrived here last night.

The luncheon was held in the office of Leslie Biffle, secretary of the Senate.

Guests at the luncheon included Edwin S. Pauley, American representative on the Allied reparations commission; Dr. Isador Lubin, Pauley's associate on the commission; James F. Byrnes, former war mobilizer; Robert E. Hannegan, Postmaster General-designate, and the following Senators: Barkley (D., Ky.), George (D., Ga.), Wagner (D., N.Y.), Green (D., R.I.), Guffey (D., Pa.), Tunnell (D., Del.), Hill (D., Ala.), Lucas (D., Ill.), Mitchell (D., Wash.), Capper (R., Kan.), White (R., Maine), Shipstead (R., Minn.), Wiley (R., Wis.), Austin (R., Vt.), Magnuson (D., Wash.) and La Follette (Prog., Wisconsin).

Army Ready to Sell Its Imitation Rifles

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP).—Those wooden training rifles used by the Army early in the war will be sold as surplus property.

The Office of Price Administration, announcing a retail price ceiling of $4.50 each, said today it expects a market will be found among state and home guard organizations and schools. None of the 15,000 will be sold to individuals.

Patton's Son-in-Law, Shot By Nazis, Is Recovering

Lt. Col. J. K. Waters, Wounded as Captive, Now in U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP).—Lieutenant John K. Waters, son-in-law of General George S. Patton jr., is being treated at Walter Reed Hospital for wounds suffered while a prisoner of the Germans.

Colonel Waters was captured at Faid Pass, in Tunisia, Feb. 14, 1943. From Oflag 64, in Poland, he was moved west into Germany when the Russians advanced. He was found desperately wounded in a prison camp southeast of Hammelburg when American infantry reached there April 6.

Ten days before the liberation, according to information received by the Waters family, he was directed by the Germans to proceed to the American lines and negotiate for surrender of the camp. The colonel and two companions, equipped with an American flag and a white flag, had proceeded only a short distance when they were fired upon by the Germans.

Colonel Waters's companions were killed and he was seriously wounded. The Americans later took him to a Paris hospital. He reached Walter Reed Hospital here Saturday, underwent an abdominal operation yesterday, and was reported in good condition today.

The Waters home is in Washington. The colonel is a Baltimore native.

Eisenhower Praises Resistance Forces

New York, May 10 (AP)—General Eisenhower thanked the resistance forces of France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark and Norway today for their "inestimable service to the Allied cause and to the future of all freedom-loving people."

In a broadcast order of the day to these forces, reported by the Office of War Information, the supreme Allied commander said:

"Inadequately armed and in the midst of a savage and ruthless enemy, you have fought on, month after month, year after year, regardless of the disappointments you suffered and of the danger you have undergone. . . .

"For most of you, your sole reward has been the knowledge that you have, by your efforts, helped to rid your homeland of the hated enemy."

Associated P... Regret Expre...

Philadelphia, May 10 (AP)—...ert McLean, president of the ...ociated Press, issued the following statement today:

"The Associated Press profoundly regrets the distribution on Monday of the report of the total surrender in Europe which investigation now clearly discloses was distributed in advance of authorization by supreme Allied headquarters.

"The whole, long, honorable record of the Associated Press is based on its high sense of responsibility as to the integrity and authenticity of the news and the observance of obligations voluntarily assumed, as appropriately reaffirmed by Executive Director Cooper in his statement of yesterday."

Kent Cooper's statement yesterday said, in part, "The observance of all obligations voluntarily assumed is, always has been, and will continue to be a cardinal principle of the Associated Press and its employés."

Tito's Congratulations

New York, May 10 (AP)—The Belgrade radio said today that Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia had sent congratulations to President Harry S. Truman, Premier Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill on the victory over Germany.

Welles Sees Prejudice on Reds

MILTON, Mass., May 10 (AP).—Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, said today that Americans should keep in mind that the fostering of suspicion against Russia would be the "German policy for years to come." Mr. Welles said in an interview that there is a "lot of blind, dark prejudice which is wholly unjustified" with regard to Russia, "and a lot of misunderstanding on both sides."

GUARD AGAINST INSECTS FOUND

Bugs Repelled Chemically By Suits Of Clothing

Chapel Hill, N.C., May 10 (AP)—A new kind of protection against insects, suits of clothing that repel the bugs chemically, was reported to the University of North Carolina sesquicentennial meeting here today by Brig. Gen. James S. Simmons, chief of preventive medicine in the United States Army.

The new clothing was made to protect troops in the Pacific theater against the tiny mites which give them scrub typhus fever, a disease whose mortality runs up to 30 per cent. The cloth is impregnated with dimethyl phthalate and the mites stay away.

The General said the Army has a dysentery vaccine which looks promising and is now under test among troops in the field.

Would Curb Defects

He proposed a plan for preventing in future the widespread physical defects which have caused the rejection of so many men in this war. Each state, he said, could largely do its own prevention by forming nonpolitical health and welfare councils, headed by laymen but with representation from all the organizations concerned with improved health.

Southern States, he added, are fitted to take a leading role because they have been among the most progressive in preventive medicine, and already some of them have lay health councils.

Dr. Russell M. Wilder, of the Mayo Clinic, told of many newly found signs of nutritional troubles, ranging from minor ill feelings to mysterious chronic diseases which disappear with adequate food.

Wounded B-29 Hero Returned To U.S.

Hamilton Field, Cal., May 10 (AP). Grinning bravely through a swath of bandages, S/Sgt. Henry Eugene Erwin, winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, was hoisted out of a Pacific hospital plane yesterday.

The Bessemer (Ala.) youth who was gravely burned while barehandedly tossing a burning incendiary from his B-29 over Koriyama, Japan, was given medical attention and transferred to another plane which will take him to Tuscaloosa (Ala.) army hospital.

Eisenhower Praises Resistance Forces

New York, May 10 (AP)—General Eisenhower thanked the resistance forces of France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark and Norway today for their "inestimable service to the Allied cause and to the future of all freedom-loving people."

In a broadcast order of the day to these forces, reported by the Office of War Information, the supreme Allied commander said:

"Inadequately armed and in the midst of a savage and ruthless enemy, you have fought on, month after month, year after year, regardless of the disappointments you suffered and of the danger you have undergone. . . .

"For most of you, your sole reward has been the knowledge that you have, by your efforts, helped to rid your homeland of the hated enemy."

Associated P... Regret Expre...

Philadelphia, May 10 (AP)—...ert McLean, president of the ...ociated Press, issued the following statement today:

"The Associated Press profoundly regrets the distribution on Monday of the report of the total surrender in Europe which investigation now clearly discloses was distributed in advance of authorization by supreme Allied headquarters.

"The whole, long, honorable record of the Associated Press is based on its high sense of responsibility as to the integrity and authenticity of the news and the observance of obligations voluntarily assumed, as appropriately reaffirmed by Executive Director Cooper in his statement of yesterday."

Kent Cooper's statement yesterday said, in part, "The observance of all obligations voluntarily assumed is, always has been, and will continue to be a cardinal principle of the Associated Press and its employés."

MILTON, Mass., May 10 (AP).—Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, said today that Americans should keep in mind that the fostering of suspicion against Russia would be the "German policy for years to come." Mr. Welles said in an interview that there is a "lot of blind, dark prejudice which is wholly unjustified" with regard to Russia, "and a lot of misunderstanding on both sides."

GUARD AGAINST INSECTS FOUND

Bugs Repelled Chemically By Suits Of Clothing

Chapel Hill, N.C., May 10 (AP)—A new kind of protection against insects, suits of clothing that repel the bugs chemically, was reported to the University of North Carolina sesquicentennial meeting here today by Brig. Gen. James S. Simmons, chief of preventive medicine in the United States Army.

The new clothing was made to protect troops in the Pacific theater against the tiny mites which give them scrub typhus fever, a disease whose mortality runs up to 30 per cent. The cloth is impregnated with dimethyl phthalate and the mites stay away.

The General said the Army has a dysentery vaccine which looks promising and is now under test among troops in the field.

Would Curb Defects

He proposed a plan for preventing in future the widespread physical defects which have caused the rejection of so many men in this war. Each state, he said, could largely do its own prevention by forming nonpolitical health and welfare councils, headed by laymen but with representation from all the organizations concerned with improved health.

Southern States, he added, are fitted to take a leading role because they have been among the most progressive in preventive medicine, and already some of them have lay health councils.

Dr. Russell M. Wilder, of the Mayo Clinic, told of many newly found signs of nutritional troubles, ranging from minor ill feelings to mysterious chronic diseases which disappear with adequate food.

Wounded B-29 Hero Returned To U.S.

Hamilton Field, Cal., May 10 (AP). Grinning bravely through a swath of bandages, S/Sgt. Henry Eugene Erwin, winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, was hoisted out of a Pacific hospital plane yesterday.

The Bessemer (Ala.) youth who was gravely burned while barehandedly tossing a burning incendiary from his B-29 over Koriyama, Japan, was given medical attention and transferred to another plane which will take him to Tuscaloosa (Ala.) army hospital.

ALONG WITH A THOROUGH EDUCATION PROGRAM, ATHLETICS WILL LARGELY REPLACE MILITARY TRAINING FOR TROOPS AWAITING SHIPMENT TO THE UNITED STATES FOR TRANSFER TO THE PACIFIC OR DEMOBILIZATION. AND FOR THOSE IN THE ARMY OF OCCUPATION ATHLETICS WILL BECOME PART OF A REGULATORY PHYSICAL TRAINING PROGRAM AND LEISURE TIME ACTIVITY.

THE PROGRAM, WHICH WAS PLANNED LONG BEFORE V-E DAY, CALLS FOR COMPETITION IN 22 DIFFERENT SPORTS. THERE WILL BE TOURS BY FAMOUS SOLDIER AND CIVILIAN ATHLETES, INTER-ALLIED CONTESTS AND PERHAPS A "VICTORY GAMES" COMPETITION IN SOME EUROPEAN CAPITAL.

LT.COL.F.G.MCCORMICK, FORMER DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA, WHO IS SUPERVISING THE PROGRAM, SAID HUNDREDS OF TONS OF EQUIPMENT NECESSARY FOR THE VARIOUS SPORTS ALREADY HAD ARRIVED FROM THE UNITED STATES AND MORE IS ON THE WAY.

SOFTBALL, VOLLEYBALL AND TOUCH FOOTBALL ARE EXPECTED TO BE THE MOST POPULAR SPORTS, WITH AN ESTIMATED 1,200,000 MEN PARTICIPATING IN EACH. VIRTUALLY THAT MANY ARE EXPECTED TO PLAY TABLE TENNIS AND SOME 600,000 ARE EXPECTED TO PARTICIPATE IN BASKETBALL, BASEBALL AND HORSESHOE PITCHING. THESE FIGURES, WHICH ARE ANNOUNCED AT HEADQUARTERS, OBVIOUSLY ARE BASED ON THE THEORY THAT EACH SOLDIER WILL PARTICIPATE IN SEVERAL SPORTS.

OTHER SPORTS FOR WHICH THE ARMY HAS GATHERED EQUIPMENT AND FACILITIES ARE FOOTBALL, SPEEDBALL, BOXING, TRACK, SOCCER, WRESTLING, SWIMMING, HANDBALL, BADMINTON, GOLF, FENCING, ARCHERY AND RIFLE MARKSMANSHIP.

PARIS, MAY 10-(AP)-MILITARY SOURCES HERE ARE INCLINED TO DISC UN REPORTS THAT HITLER TURNED OVER TO THE JAPANESE THE V-WEAPON SECRETS AFTER THE ALLIES HAD CROSSED THE RHINE.

MAY 11 1945

IT IS KNOWN THAT THE JAPANESE WERE GIVEN GERMAN PLANS FOR JET-PROPELLED PLANES AND PERHAPS FOR THE ORIGINAL V-1 FLYING BOMB, BUT LATER MODELS WERE AMONG THE MOST CLOSELY GUARDED GERMAN WAR SECRETS.

AFTER THE RHINE CROSSING ALMOST ALL OF GERMANY'S SECRET EXPERIMENTAL PLANTS WERE OVERRUN SO SWIFTLY THAT THE GERMANS HAD NO TIME TO DESTROY OR HIDE THEIR MODELS, LET ALONE FURNISH THEM TO THE JAPANESE.

IT ALSO IS KNOWN THAT ALMOST ALL OF THE JAPANESE EMBASSY'S MILITARY STAFF HAD ESCAPED TO SWEDEN AND SWITZERLAND SOME WEEKS BEFORE

PARIS, MAY 10-(AP)-ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT EDWARD KENNEDY MAINTAINED TODAY THAT OFFICIAL ATTEMPTS TO HOLD UP RELEASE OF THE REIMS SURRENDER STORY LAST MONDAY REPRESENTED "PURELY POLITICAL CENSORSHIP" AND THAT NO QUESTION OF MILITARY SECURITY WAS INVOLVED.

KENNEDY EMPHASIZED THAT HE HAD TRANSMITTED HIS STORY OF THE SURRENDER--WHICH PRECEDED THE OFFICIAL ALLIED ANNOUNCEMENT BY A DAY--ONLY AFTER THE FACTS HAD BEEN DISCLOSED BY THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT.

HE EXPLAINED HIS STAND IN A STATEMENT LAST NIGHT REPLYING TO BRIG. GEN. FRANK A. ALLEN, JR., DIRECTOR OF THE SHAEF PUBLIC RELATIONS DIVISION, WHO PREVIOUSLY HAD ISSUED AN 800-WORD STATEMENT DETAILING THE REASONS WHY KENNEDY'S ACCREDITATION AS A WAR CORRESPONDENT HAD BEEN SUSPENDED FOR FILING THE DISPATCH.

"GENERAL ALLEN AND OTHER RESPONSIBLE OFFICERS OF SHAEF PUBLIC RELATIONS MADE IT CLEAR TO ME AT REIMS," KENNEDY SAID, "THAT NO QUESTION OF MILITARY SECURITY WAS INVOLVED IN RELEASE OF THIS NEWS. GEN. ALLEN TOLD ME, IN FACT, THAT GEN. EISENHOWER WAS DESIROUS OF HAVING THE NEWS PUBLISHED AS SOON AS POSSIBLE SO THAT FIGHTING MIGHT HALT AND LIVES POSSIBLY BE SAVED. GEN. ALLEN TOLD ME THAT GEN. EISENHOWER'S HANDS WERE TIED BY A DECISION COMING FROM 'HIGH POLITICAL LEVELS.'"

MAY 11 1945

ALLEN, IN HIS PUBLIC STATEMENT, ASSERTED THAT "TO SAVE ALLIED LIVES ON BOTH FRONTS" GEN. EISENHOWER HAD OBTAINED AUTHORITY FROM THE RUSSIANS TO NEGOTIATE FOR A GERMAN CAPITULATION, ON THE UNDERSTANDING THAT THE GREATEST SECRECY WOULD BE MAINTAINED UNTIL LATER. MORE FORMAL CONTACT WITH THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND.

HIS STATEMENT CONTENDED THESE CONSIDERATIONS "CLEARLY INVOLVED SECURITY AND THE SAVING OF AMERICAN LIVES." HE SAID KENNEDY'S STORY WAS "NOT ONE OBTAINED BY PRESS REPRESENTATIVES IN THE ORDINARY COURSE OF THEIR ACTIVITIES WITH THIS THEATER," BUT BY THE COURTESY OF SHAEF AND THROUGH ALLEN'S PROMISE OF SECRECY.

ALLEN ADDED THAT AS A RESULT OF THE STORY, GEN. EISENHOWER HAD FEARED "THE ENTIRE CHAIN OF NEGOTIATIONS INVOLVING AN AGREED-UPON LATER MEETING BETWEEN THE GERMAN, RUSSIAN AND ALLIED HIGH COMMANDS MIGHT BREAK DOWN AND THEREFORE PROLONG THE WAR."

KENNEDY, COMMENTING UPON THIS LATTER STATEMENT, SAID:

"THE CONTENTION THAT NEGOTIATIONS MIGHT BREAK DOWN IS NOT BORNE OUT BY THE SUPREME COMMAND'S ACTIONS, IN THAT HOURS BEFORE MY STORY WAS SENT OUT GEN. EISENHOWER OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED ALL TROOPS THAT THE SURRENDER WAS SIGNED AND THAT THE WAR WAS OVER AT 12:01 A.M. MAY 9."

THE TEXT OF KENNEDY'S STATEMENT:

MAY 11 1945

"GEN. ALLEN AND OTHER RESPONSIBLE OFFICERS OF SHAEF PUBLIC RELATIONS MADE IT CLEAR TO ME AT REIMS THAT NO QUESTION OF MILITARY SECURITY WAS INVOLVED IN THE RELEASE OF THIS NEWS. GEN. ALLEN TOLD ME, IN FACT, THAT GEN. EISENHOWER WAS DESIROUS OF HAVING THE NEWS PUBLISHED AS SOON AS POSSIBLE SO THAT FIGHTING MIGHT HALT AND LIVES POSSIBLY BE SAVED. GEN. ALLEN TOLD ME THAT GEN. EISENHOWER'S HANDS WERE TIED BY A DECISION COMING FROM 'HIGH POLITICAL LEVELS.'

"GENERAL ALLEN'S STATEMENT NOW THAT IT WAS NECESSARY TO HOLD UP NEWS UNTIL RUSSIA WAS SATISFIED THAT THE SURRENDER WAS GENUINE IS ASTONISHING TO ME. AS THE SOVIET UNION WAS SIGNATORY TO THE REIMS AGREEMENT AND I ASSUME THE GENERAL REPRESENTING THE SOVIET UNION

ACCEPTED IT AS A SURRENDER OR ELSE HE WOULD NOT HAVE SIGNED RUSSIA'S ACCEPTANCE OF IT.

MAY 1 1 1945

"AS REGARDS GENERAL ALLEN'S STATEMENT THAT THE SURRENDER STORY WAS NOT OBTAINED BY THE PRESS IN THE 'ORDINARY COURSE' OF THEIR ACTIVITIES, CERTAINLY GENERAL ALLEN MUST KNOW THAT THE PURPOSE OF CORRESPONDENTS IN THIS THEATER IS TO REPORT NEWS AND CERTAINLY AS HEAD OF PUBLIC RELATIONS HE SHOULD REALIZE THAT THE SIGNING OF THE END OF THE WAR WAS NEWS AND, SINCE HE HIMSELF CONCEDED THERE WAS NO QUESTION OF MILITARY SECURITY INVOLVED, WAS LEGITIMATE NEWS.

"IT IS TRUE THAT GENERAL ALLEN AT ONE POINT DURING THE VISIT TO REIMS SAID THE STORY COULD NOT BE PUBLISHED UNTIL THE RESPECTIVE HEADS OF THE ALLIED GOVERNMENTS ANNOUNCED IT. IT IS ALSO TRUE THAT AT ANOTHER POINT HE SAID ANNOUNCEMENT WAS EXPECTED TO BE MADE AT SHAEF EVEN BEFORE WE COULD REACH PARIS. PLANS WERE CHANGED A NUMBER OF TIMES AND GENERAL ALLEN MADE MANY CONFLICTING STATEMENTS CONCERNING HOW THE NEWS WOULD BE RELEASED.

"CENSORS APPROVED MY DISPATCHES FROM REIMS AND MARKED THEM 'PASSED' AND SIGNED THEM, BUT LATER WHEN IT WAS DECIDED THAT THE RESPECTIVE GOVERNMENTS WOULD MAKE THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENTS THEY INFORMED ME VERBALLY THAT THEIR PASSING OF THE DISPATCH WAS RESCINDED. THEY MADE IT CLEAR THEIR DECISION WAS NOT DUE TO ANY MATTER OF MILITARY SECURITY BUT TO A DECISION AS TO WHAT CHANNELS THROUGH WHICH THE NEWS WOULD BE ANNOUNCED.

"I HAVE ENOUGH CONFIDENCE IN THE CENSORS TO BELIEVE THAT IF ANY MILITARY SECURITY HAD BEEN INVOLVED THEY WOULD NOT HAVE MARKED MY DISPATCH 'PASSED' AND AFFIXED THEIR SIGNATURES TO THAT STATEMENT."

"AFTER MY RETURN TO PARIS THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY THAT IT HAD SURRENDERED AND I WAS INFORMED THAT BBC LIKEWISE HAD ANNOUNCED THE CAPITULATION. I THEREFORE WENT TO LT. COL. RICHARD MERRICK, CHIEF AMERICAN PRESS CENSOR, AND TOLD HIM THAT SINCE IT WAS CONCEDED THAT NO MILITARY SECURITY WAS INVOLVED, AND THAT I REGARDED HE SUPPRESSION AS PURELY POLITICAL CENSORSHIP, THAT I COULD NOT BE BOUND BY IT, I INTENDED TO SEND THE NEWS. I BASED THIS STATEMENT ON ASSURANCES GIVEN BY THE LATE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND OTHER RESPONSIBLE AMERICAN OFFICIALS THAT THE SOLE PURPOSE OF CENSORSHIP WAS MILITARY SECURITY IN EUROPE, EXCEPT INSOFAR AS IT MIGHT AFFECT THE WAR IN THE PACIFIC. I ALSO TELEPHONED TO GENERAL ALLEN TO TELL HIM OF MY INTENTION OF PASSING THIS DISPATCH BUT WAS TOLD BY HIS SECRETARY THAT HE WAS TOO BUSY TO SPEAK TO ME.

MAY 1 1 1945

"GENERAL ALLEN'S NEXT POINT IS THAT BREAKING OF THE STORY BEFORE THE RUSSIANS HAD THEIR OWN FORMAL SIGNING MIGHT BREAK DOWN NEGOTIATIONS.

"IF THIS WERE TRUE THEN IT MUST BE ASSUMED THAT THE REIMS AGREEMENT AS AN EMPTY GESTURE, ALTHOUGH IT WAS SIGNED BY THE RUSSIANS AND AGREED TO BY THE GERMANS.

"THE CONTENTION THAT NEGOTIATIONS MIGHT BREAK DOWN IS NOT BORNE OUT BY THE SUPREME COMMAND'S ACTION IN THAT HOURS BEFORE MY STORY WAS SENT OUT GENERAL EISENHOWER OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED ALL TROOPS THAT THE SURRENDER WAS SIGNED AND THAT THE WAR WAS OVER AT 12:01 A.M. MAY 9. THIS SHOWED THAT HE HAD NO DOUBTS THAT THE REIMS AGREEMENT OFFICIALLY ENDED THE WAR.

"I HAVE BEEN REPORTING THIS WAR SINCE ITS START AND I HAVE FOUND THAT DESPITE ASSURANCES GIVEN THAT THE SOLE PURPOSE OF MILITARY CENSORSHIP WAS MILITARY SECURITY. IN MANY INSTANCES CENSORSHIP HAS GONE FAR BEYOND THIS POINT. I HAVE ALWAYS MADE IT PERFECTLY CLEAR TO GENERAL ALLEN AND TO PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICIALS GENERALLY BOTH HERE AND IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATERS THAT I TOOK THE GUARANTEE THAT CENSORSHIP WAS CONFINED TO MILITARY SECURITY VERY SERIOUSLY, AND AT ITS FACE VALUE, AND WOULD NOT VOLUNTARILY SUBMIT TO POLITICAL CENSORSHIP AS THIS WOULD MEAN THE END OF A FREE PRESS AND OF ALL FREEDOM IN THE WORLD."

DURING KENNEDY'S SUSPENSION, AND WITHOUT PREJUDICE TO HIM, WES GALLAGHER HAS BEEN APPOINTED ACTING CHIEF OF THE PARIS BUREAU OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, SO THAT THE NORMAL OPERATIONS OF THE BUREAU MAY BE MAINTAINED IN THE INTERIM. GALLAGHER HAS BEEN CHIEF OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FIELD CORRESPONDENTS ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

NAMUR, BELGIUMAN MAY 9 (DELAYED)-(AP)-SOME 2,300 AMERICAN SOLDIERS IN NAMUR COULD NOT CELEBRATE THE END OF EUROPE'S WAR HILARIOUSLY TODAY, ALTHOUGH THEY HAD DOUBLE CAUSE FOR REJOICING.

THEY WERE LIBERATED PRISONERS OF WAR. THEY ARRIVED LAST NIGHT BY TRUCKS AND ARE SCHEDULED TO BE SHIPPED OUT TO LE HAVRE AND OTHER PORTS AS SOON AS TRANSPORTATION CAN BE ARRANGED.

MALNUTRITION HAD PUT THEM ON A SPECIAL DIET WHICH OUTLAWED THE DUBIOUS COGNAC, CHAMPAGNE AND WATERY BEER FLOWING AROUND THEM. MALNUTRITION HAD MADE MOST OF THEM TOO WEAK FOR ANY SNAKE DANCING. MALNUTRITION CAUSED THEM TO BE QUARANTINED IN THE TRANSIT CENTER BECAUSE THEY WERE IN NO SHAPE TO STAND TYPHUS, TYPHOID AND SMALLPOX SHOTS AT THIS TIME.

THEY HAD THEIR NON-ALCOHOLIC BUT HEARTFELT V-E CELEBRATION BY THEMSELVES, BEFORE TABLES LOADED WITH PERMISSABLE FOODS.

"I WAS HELD FOR 10 MONTHS," SAID LT.EARL J.SANDERS OF TOCCOA, GA. "THE GOONS DIDN'T FEED US MUCH: NO BREAKFAST, A THIN SOUP AT NOON AND SOMETIMES POTATOES AND A HUNK OF BREAD LATER IN THE DAY. ALMOST ALL OF US WOULD BLACK OUT OCCASIONALLY THOSE LAST FEW MONTHS. WE WOULD JUST PASS OUT COMPLETELY FOR ABOUT FIVE SECONDS AND THEN BE ALL RIGHT."

SGT.HAROLD BAILEY OF CHURCH STREET, PORTLAND, CONN., SPORTING A RED BEARD, SAID V-E DAY CAME FOR HIM WHEN HIS CAMP IN POMERANIA WAS LIBERATED. "I SAT DOWN AND ATE 11 EGGS," HE SAID. "NOT THAT POWDERED BOY, LIBERATED.

"I SAT DOWN AND ATE 11 EGGS," HE SAID. "NOT THAT POWDERED STUFF. BOY, WAS I SICK. I COULDN'T TAKE IT. BUT AFTER EATING BROWN BREAD-- IT'S AWFUL, LIKE DEHYDRATED SAUERKRAUT-- IT WAS WONDERFUL."

SGT.CHARLES COLLAM, OF 5218 SKILLMAN AVE., WOODSIDE, N.Y., WAS LIKE ALL THE OTHERS. HE WANTED TO TALK ABOUT FOOD, NOT VICTORY.

B44

"THAT'S FUNNY, TOO," HE SAID, "BECAUSE THAT WAS ALL WE USED TO TALK ABOUT AT THE CAMP FROM MORNING TO NIGHT."

"FOOD, FOOD, FOOD," EXCLAIMED CAPT.OTTO S.DOWLEN, OF 2374 NORTH BAY RD., MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

THE MEDICAL OFFICER OF THE CENTER SAID HE FOUND MOST OF THE MEN IN BASICALLY GOOD CONDITION AND ESTIMATED THEY WOULD GET BACK THEIR WEIGHT AND GET OVER THE EFFECTS OF FOOD DEFICIENCY IN TWO OR THREE MONTHS.

BUT LT.NORMAN J.PETITTI, OF 281 PORTMAN AVE., CLEVELAND, OHIO, SUMMED UP THE MEN'S REACTION AS HE WATCHED A PLATOON OF GERMAN PRISONERS OF WAR, A WORK CREW, ASSEMBLE IN THE CENTER'S COURTYARD.

"I'M TIRED AND I FEEL DIZZY SOMETIMES," HE SAID, BUT "THERE'S NOTHING THE MATTER WITH ME THAT A LITTLE FOOD WON'T CURE. I THINK WATCHING THOSE SQUAREHEADS LINE UP UNDER AMERICAN GUNS MAKES ME FEEL BETTER THAN ANYTHING ELSE-- EXCEPT ROAST BEEF."

AMSTERDAM, MAY 10-(AP)-THE DUTCH CELEBRATED THIS FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE GERMAN INVASION BY PUTTING INTO FULL SWING A ROUNDUP OF THE TRAITORS AND COLLABORATORS WHO BETRAYED THEIR HOMELAND.

AS THE CANADIAN ARMY'S FIRST CORPS BEGAN DISARMING FIELD MARSHAL JOHANNES BLASKOWITZ'S ARMIES AT 15 ASSEMBLY AREAS, FIVE-MAN TEAMS OF DUTCH INTERIOR TROOPS WERE BRINGING IN MEN AND WOMEN ON THEIR BLACKLIST. ON THAT LIST ARE GERMAN OFFICIALS, AS WELL AS GERMAN SOLDIERS AND SAILORS, BUT 75 PER CENT ARE DUTCH, INCLUDING SOME JEWS.

THESE WERE BEING BROUGHT IN TO VARIOUS ASSEMBLY POINTS--AMSTERDAM ALONE HAS 35 SCHOOLS AND OTHER PUBLIC BUILDINGS SET ASIDE FOR THE PURPOSE--TO BE SORTED.

THE MAJOR CRIMINALS WILL BE TURNED OVER TO THE ALLIES. THE SMALLER FRY WILL BE DEALT WITH BY THE DUTCH THEMSELVES.

OFFICIALS ESTIMATED THE BLACKLIST CONTAINS PERHAPS 3,000 NAMES, ONE-HALF OF WHOM HAVE ALREADY BEEN ARRESTED.

ROTTERDAM, MAY 9-(DELAYED)-(AP)-HOLLAND'S NEWSPAPERS, PRIMARILY THOSE IN AMSTERDAM AND ROTTERDAM, FACE AN ACUTE PAPER SHORTAGE WHICH IS LIKELY TO BRING RATIONING QUICKLY, A SHORTAGE OF EXPERIENCED JOURNALISTS, TOTAL LACK OF ELECTRIC POWER AND A GENERAL CONFUSION GROWING OUT OF GERMAN OCCUPATION.

SEVERAL OF THE MOST INFLUENTIAL PAPERS OPERATED DURING THE OCCUPATION UNDER NAZI AUSPICES ARE NOW FORBIDDEN TO APPEAR, WHILE FORMER UNDERGROUND PAPERS--NOW LEGAL--ARE USING FACILITIES TO GET A HEAD START IN THE RACE FOR PEACETIME CIRCULATION.

THE ALGEMEEN HANDELSBLAD, WHICH PUBLISHES IN AMSTERDAM AS WELL AS ROTTERDAM, AND TWO OF THE LARGEST PAPERS--THE POLITICALLY INFLUENTIAL NIEWE ROTTERDAMSCHE COURANT AND THE POPULAIRE ROTTERDAMSCHE NEIWESBLAD --HAVE ALL BEEN SUSPENDED BECUASE THEY CONTINUED PUBLICATION WITH NAZI CONSENT DURING THE OCCUPATION AND FOLLOWED, TO SOME DEGREE, THE NAZI PARTY LINE IN NEWS AND PROPAGANDA.

LIKELY TO EMERGE AS THE STRONGEST OF THE NEW DAILIES IS HET PAROOL (THE WORD), WHICH PUBLISHED IN AMSTERDAM, THE HAGUE, ROTTERDAM AND THE PROVINCIAL CAPITALS. IN ROTTERDAM TODAY IT PRINTED 80,000 COPIES, THE MAJORITY OF WHICH WENT TO WARTIME PATRONS WHO WERE BESIEGING THE TEMPORARY OFFICE OPPOSITE CITY HALL.

THIS NEWSPAPER, LIKE THE MAJORITY OF UNDERGROUND JOURNALS, LEANS TO THE LEFT. THE AMSTERDAM EDITOR, F.J.GOEDHARDT, SAYS:

"WHAT WE WANT FOR A NEW HOLLAND IS SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC DEMOCRACY-- NOT MERELY A POLITICAL DEMOCRACY."

UTRECHT, THE NETHERLANDS, MAY 9-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SOME OF THE 120,000 SURRENDERED GERMANS IN HOLLAND WERE BEING DISARMED TODAY, BUT THE LIBERATED DUTCH ARE PUZZLED AND SOMEWHAT ANNOYED AT THE SIGHT OF ENEMY TROOPS STILL STRIDING THE COUNTRYSIDE WITH THEIR WEAPONS.

THEY WERE PROVOKED, MOREOVER, BY THE SIGHT OF GERMAN TROOPS RETAINING TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES INCLUDING BICYCLES AND HORSES "REQUISITIONED" DURING THE LAST FIVE YEARS FROM THE DUTCH.

TECHNICALLY, THE GERMANS ARE CAPITULATED TROOPS AND NOT PRISONERS OF WAR. THEY RETAIN THEIR OFFICERS, WHO PASS ON THE ORDERS ISSUED BY THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY AUTHORITIES. FOR MOVEMENT TO GERMANY, THEY MUST CONTINUE TO BE SELF-SUFFICIENT. THUS THEIR TRANSPORT, FOOD AND SUPPLIES NECESSARILY MUST BE KEPT INTACT AS FAR AS POSSIBLE.

WHILE THE GERMANS WERE BEING DISARMED FOLLOWING THEIR CAPITULATION MAY 4, DUTCH AUTHORITIES IN AMSTERDAM AND OTHER CITIES BEGAN THE FIRST DISTRIBUTION OF EXTRA FOOD WHICH HAS BEEN DROPPED BY ALLIED PLANES INTO ROTTERDAM. FIVE FOOD SHIPS HAVE DOCKED IN AMSTERDAM AND OTHER EDIBLES HAVE BEEN BROUGHT IN FROM EASTERN HOLLAND BY TRUCK.

FOOD SHOPS WERE ABSOLUTELY BARE. POTATOES WERE MISSING AND MANY OF THE PEOPLE HAVE BEEN EXISTING FOR A LONG TIME ON SUGAR BEETS MIXED WITH TWO POTATOES A WEEK--WHEN THEY COULD GET THEM.

THE FIRST ISSUE OF EMERGENCY RATIONS IS SMALL. NO ONE KNOWS HOW LONG THE SUPPLIES WILL HAVE TO LAST. THE RATION FOR AMSTERDAM RESIDEN CONSISTS OF 50 GRAMS (1.90TH OF A POUND) OF CHOCOLATE, 100 GRAMS OF BUTTER AND ONE OF THESE ITEMS: ONE TIN OF BACON, 225 GRAMS, FOR ONE COUPON, ONE TIN OF CHEESE, 400 GRAMS, FOR TWO COUPONS, ONE PACKAGE OF POWDERED EGGS WHICH IS THE EQUIVALENT OF A DOZEN EGGS, A TIN OF LUNCH-EON MEAT OR AN ARMY STYLE SINGLE MEAL RATION.

BERLIN, MAY 9-(DELAYED)-(AP)-I HEARD TODAY FROM A SOURCE WHO CERTAINLY SHOULD KNOW AN ESTIMATE OF WHAT IT COST THE RUSSIANS TO SAVE THEIR COUNTRY AND COME AT LAST TO THIS TRIUMPH IN BERLIN--BETWEEN 12,000,000 AND 15,000,000 DEAD, OF WHOM ABOUT HALF WERE SOLDIE AND HALF CIVILIANS.

"THERE WERE TIMES," SAID A RUSSIAN GENERAL, "WHEN WE HAD TO LOSE HALF A MILLION MEN AT A TIME TO SAVE THE ARMY ITSELF."

--DASH--

THESE FIGURES GREATLY EXCEED ANY PREVIOUS ESTIMATE OF RUSSIAN CASUALTIES. IN JUNE, 1944, THE RUSSIANS GAVE THEIR LAST OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT ON SOVIET CASUALTIES--5,300,000 KILLED, MISSING AND CAPTURED. NO FIGURES ON WOUNDED WERE GIVEN.

IN JUNE, 1943, DNB, OFFICIAL GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, DECLARED 20,000,000 CASUALTIES HAD BEEN INFLICTED ON THE RUSSIANS. THIS FIGURE PRESUMABLY INCLUDED DEAD, WOUNDED AND CAPTURED.

THE RUSSIANS HAVE GIVEN NO FIGURE ON CIVILIAN LOSSES.

MUNICH, MAY 10-(AP)-HANS RITTER VON SEISSER, CHIEF OF POLICE OF MUNICH FROM 1919 TO 1930, WHO PUT DOWN THE BUERGERBRAU REVOLT LED BY ADOLF HITLER IN 1923, WAS NAMED MUNICH'S COMMISSIONER OF POLICE TODAY BY THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT OF THAT CITY HEADED BY LT. COL. RALPH HUBBARD, JR., OF 1126 AVOCA ST., PASADENA, CALIF.

SAALFELDEN, AUSTRIA, MAY 10-(AP)-A STAUNCH AND UNREPENTANT NAZI TO THE END, FIELD MARSHAL ALBERT KESSELRING REFUSED TO ADMIT TODAY THAT ADOLF HITLER WAS ANYTHING LESS THAN AN ABSOLUTE GENIUS IN THE MILITARY ARTS.

THE LAST GERMAN COMMANDER ON THE WESTERN FRONT, A HEAVY-SET MAN OF 58, TALKED WITH APPARENT RELISH TO CORRESPONDENTS IN HIS SPECIAL TRAIN IN THE TYROLEAN ALPS, WHERE HE WAS CAPTURED BY AMERICAN TROOPS YESTERDAY.

KESSELRING, LIKE FORMER REICHSMARSHAL HERMANN GOERING WHOSE SURRENDER ALSO WAS ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY, EXPRESSED "ABSOLUTE CONVICTION" THAT HITLER WAS DEAD.

MAY 11 1945

"TO GIVE JUSTICE TO DER FUEHRER, I MUST SAY HE WAS A GENIUS IN OPERATIONS SENSE AND CONCEPTION," HE SAID STOUTLY WHEN HITLER'S "INTUITIVE" LEADERSHIP WAS QUESTIONED.

"SOMETIMES, HOWEVER, THE IDEAS OF GENIUS ARE MISUNDERSTOOD," HE ADDED. "I ONLY REGRET THAT DER FUEHRER HAD TO DIRECT GERMANY'S MILITARY, POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC LIFE. HE WAS OVERTAXED BY THE WEIGHT OF HIS BURDENS."

KESSELRING, WHO WON THE OUTSPOKEN RESPECT OF ALLIED OFFICERS FOR HIS TENACIOUS DEFENSE OF ITALY BEFORE HE WAS TRANSFERRED TO THE WESTERN FRONT LATE IN MARCH, SAID HE LAST SAW HITLER IN BERLIN IN MID-APRIL, SEVERAL DAYS BEFORE THE RUSSIANS ATTACKED THE CAPITAL, AND THAT THE FUEHRER "APPEARED IN EXCELLENT HEALTH."

"I HAD AN OPPORTUNITY TO SPEAK WITH THE CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE SIXTH (GERMAN) AIR ARMY TODAY, AND HE WAS AT THE CHANCELLERY UNTIL TWO DAYS BEFORE BERLIN FELL," KESSELRING ADDED. "HE SAID HITLER WAS DEAD."

THE FIELD MARSHAL SAID HE DID NOT KNOW HOW HITLER DIED, BUT DECLARED HE HAD AN "ABSOLUTE CONVICTION DER FUEHRER WAS UNWILLING TO FALL INTO RUSSIAN HANDS ALIVE."

HE ADMITTED HE WAS "MOST SURPRISED" THAT HITLER REMAINED IN BERLIN INSTEAD OF WITHDRAWING WITH PICKED FORCES INTO THE HEAVILY FORTIFIED SOUTHERN REDOUBT, WHERE KESSELRING MADE HIS FINAL STAND.

AS FORMER NO. 2 MAN OF THE NAZI AIR FORCES UNDER GOERING AND LATER THE LUFTWAFFE COMMANDER IN NORTH AFRICA AND ITALY BEFORE ASSUMING THE OVER-ALL GERMAN COMMAND IN ITALY, KESSELRING UNGRUDGINGLY CREDITED ALLIED AIR POWER WITH PLAYING A BIG PART IN THE GERMAN DEBACLE.

"DIVE-BOMBINGS AND TERROR ATTACKS ON CIVILIANS AND HEAVY BOMBARDMENT WERE OUR UNDOING," HE SAID.

THE NAZI COMMANDER WHO HAD THE HOPELESS TASK OF TRYING TO HALT THE FINAL GREAT ALLIED SURGE INTO GERMANY, CONCEDED HE HAD SEEN AN "EXTREME INCREASE" IN THE FIGHTING ABILITY OF AMERICAN AND BRITISH SOLDIERS IN THE LATTER STAGES OF THE WAR.

OF THE ALLIED COMMANDERS, HE SINGLED OUT GEN. GEORGE S.PATTON OF THE U.S. THIRD ARMY AND THE TWO BRITONS, FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY AND AIR CHIEF MARSHAL SIR ARTHUR TEDDER, AS HAVING WON HIS PARTICULAR RESPECT.

HE SAID THE NAZIS MADE A MISTAKE IN NOT INVADING ENGLAND AFTER DUNKERQUE AND DECLARED HE DID NOT UNDERSTAND WHY HITLER'S LEGIONS HAD NOT CROSSED THE CHANNEL. FIELD MARSHAL KARL VON RUNDSTEDT, HIS PREDECESSOR IN COMMAND ON THE WESTERN FRONT, TOLD CORRESPONDENTS LAST WEEK INVASION PLANS WERE ABANDONED BECAUSE IT WAS DISCOVERED GERMANY HAD NEITHER SUFFICIENT SHIPPING NOR PROTECTIVE WARSHIPS TO MAKE THE CROSSING PRACTICABLE.

DISCUSSING ALLIED CHARGES THAT SOME GERMAN SOLDIERS WEARING AMERICAN UNIFORMS PARTICIPATED IN VON RUNDSTEDT'S ARDENNES COUNTER-OFFENSIVE LAST DECEMBER, KESSELRING EXPOSTULATED THAT IT WAS "IMPOSSIBLE--THERE ARE UNWRITTEN LAWS WE ALL OBSERVE."

HE DECLARED GERMANY NEVER HAD THOUGHT OF USING POISON GAS, ADDING "WE ARE NOT AS BAD AS YOU BELIEVE US TO BE."

ASKED IF HE THOUGHT IT WOULD HAVE BEEN POSSIBLE UNDER ANY CONDITIONS TO HAVE HELD THE SIEGFRIED DEFENSE LINE AGAINST THE ALLIED ONSLAUGHT, KESSELRING REPLIED:

"WITH ENOUGH GERMAN SOLDIERS IN IT--YES, WE COULD HAVE HELD THE SIEGFRIED LINE. BUT IN SIX YEARS THEIR QUALITY AND NUMBER DECLINED."

IN SOUTHERN BAVARIA, MAY 10-(AP)-HEINRICH HIMMLER, WIDELY SOUGHT AS THE GESTAPO CHIEF OF NAZI GERMANY, MAY BE HIDING IN THE MOUNTAINS OF BAVARIA OR AUSTRIA'S TYROL, I WAS INFORMED TODAY.

MY INFORMANT TOLD ME THAT HIMMLER HELD WHAT APPARENTLY WAS THE LAST MEETING WITH HIS PRINCIPAL AIDES AT HIS HOME NEAR TEGERN SEE, SOUTH OF MUNICH, ON APRIL 27.

(THIS WOULD BE THREE DAYS AFTER HE TRIED TO ARRANGE A SEPARATE PEACE WITH THE WESTERN POWERS AT LUEBECK, IN NORTHERN GERMANY. HIMMLER, HOWEVER, WAS REPORTED IN DENMARK STILL TRYING TO SUE FOR PEACE AS LATE AS MAY 1, AND ALSO HAS BEEN RUMORED HIDING OUT IN NORWAY.)

AT THAT TIME AMERICANS WERE SPEARING SOUTHWARD AND FOUR DAYS LATE REACHED BAD TOLZ, NEAR THE ALMOST MIDDLE-CLASS BAVARIAN CHALET WHEREBY HIMMLER AND HIS WIFE LIVED.

MY INFORMANT SAID, HOWEVER, THAT HIMMLER WAS ABLE TO GET AWAY TOWARD THE SOUTHEAST AND MIGHT BE HIDDEN IN THOSE MOUNTAINS, WHERE SS TROOPS STILL HIDE IN THE HUTS AND CABINS OF THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS WITH NO SIGN THAT THEY INTEND TO COME DOWN AND SURRENDER.

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WEST OF GRAZ, AUSTRIA, MAY 10-(AP)-THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY LINKED UP WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF VOITSBURG TODAY AS THOUSANDS OF GERMAN TROOPS FROM THE SOUTHEAST EUROPE COMMAND STREAMED WESTWARD TO GIVE UP THEIR ARMS.

GERMAN COLUMNS, INCLUDING MANY SS TROOPS, CLEARLY SHOWED PANIC AS THEY SOUGHT TO REACH A POINT BEYOND THE RUSSIAN LINES.

MILE AFTER MILE ALONG THE TWISTING MOUNTAIN ROAD BETWEEN KLAGENFURTH AND VOITSBURG LIES THE WRECKAGE OF THE GERMAN ARMY CAUGHT IN THE ILL-FATED BALKAN CAMPAIGN.

ABANDONED TRUCKS LINE THE ROADS. SOME OF THE SOLDIERS ARE BAREFOOTED. MANY RIDE IN HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES.

THE RUSSIANS HAD BEEN IN TOWN ONLY A FEW HOURS WHEN THEY WERE INVITED BY MAJ. JOHN MEDDLICOTT OF THE LANCERS AND OTHER OFFICERS TO BREAKFAST, AT WHICH A RUSSIAN BAND PLAYED.

OUTSIDE THE INN, RUSSIAN SOLDIERS AND BRITISH TOMMIES GREETED ONE ANOTHER AND EXAMINED EQUIPMENT.

MAY 11 1945

THE RUSSIANS IMMEDIATELY PUT UP A POLE ACROSS THE ROAD, AND STOPPED EVERYONE, INCLUDING BRITISH, TRYING TO MOVE INTO THE RED ARMY LINES.

THE RUSSIANS WERE IN A HAPPY MOOD. ONE SOLDIER CONFIDED HE EXPECTED TO GO HOME SOON.

THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY HAD COME 120 MILES TO VOITSBURG WITHOUT A FIGHT FROM THE GERMANS.

THE EXACT BOUNDARY OF THE OCCUPATION BETWEEN THE TWO ARMIES IS NOT YET DEFINITELY SETTLED AND CONFERENCES CONTINUED THROUGHOUT THE DAY BETWEEN BRITISH AND RUSSIAN OFFICERS.

CORRESPONDENTS WHO ATTEMPTED TO GET THROUGH THE RUSSIAN LINES TO DRIVE TO VIENNA MADE LITTLE PROGRESS.

RUSSIAN OFFICIALS SAID THE MATTER WOULD HAVE TO BE TAKEN UP WITH HIGHER OFFICIALS. AFTER HOURS OF WAITING, APPROVAL HAD NOT COME THROUGH.

MOST OF THE DISPLACED MILLIONS ARE VOLUNTARY AND INVOLUNTARY FOREIGN WORKERS IN THE GERMAN WAR INDUSTRIES AND ON GERMAN FARMS, BUT THERE ALSO ARE TENS OF THOUSANDS OF REFUGEES.

MANY THOUSANDS OF THESE MEN AND WOMEN--HOW MANY, NOBODY KNOWS--LEAD A VAGABOND LIFE. THEIR CAMP FIRES GLEAM IN FIELDS. MANY TRUDGE ALONG CENTRAL EUROPE'S ROADS. THERE ARE INSTANCES OF VIOLENCE WITHIN GERMANY AS PERSONS WITH OLD GRIEVANCES ARE FREED.

MONDAY.
FLEET ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ ANNOUNCED IN HIS THURSDAY COMMUNIQUE HERE THAT TENTH ARMY CASUALTIES THROUGH MONDAY WERE: KILLED, 2,684; MISSING, 539; WOUNDED, 13,202--TOTAL 16,425.
BUCKNER SAID THE TENTH ARMY HAD THE GREAT ADVANTAGES OF SUPERIOR FIREPOWER AND SUFFICIENT TROOPS TO "RUN RELAYS AND KEEP THEIR FORCES AWAKE WHILE OURS CAN SLEEP."
BUT, HE ADDED, "DON'T LOOK FOR ANYTHING SPECTACULAR HERE. WE ARE PROGRESSING STEADILY AND KILLING LOTS OF JAPS."
THE TENTH ARMY COMMANDER SAID HE EXPECTED THE FIRST REINFORCEMENTS AT OKINAWA, AS A RESULT OF GERMANY'S DEFEAT, WOULD BE IN SUPPLY SERVICES AND MUNITIONS.
ADVERSE WEATHER CONDINTUED TO CURTAIL AIR ACTIVITY IN THE OKINAWA AREA THROUGH TUESDAY, NIMITZ' COMMUNIQUE SAID, BUT DIDN'T PREVENT MARINE LT.ROBERT R.KLINGMAN OF BINGER, OKLA., FROM RAMMING A JAPANESE RECONNAISSANCE PLANE WITH HIS CORSAIR FIGHTER AFTER THE GUNS HAD JAMMED. KLINGMAN GLIDED HIS DAMAGED FIGHTER BACK TO BASE WHILE HIS FOE FELL INTO THE SEA.

ARMY MUSTANG FIGHTERS FROM IWO JIMA ATTACKED KISARAZU AIRFIELD AND TATEYAMA NAVAL AIR STATION SOUTH OF TOKYO TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.
BUCKNER SAID MANY OF THE REMAINING JAPANESE ON OKINAWA WERE SERVICE TROOPS "WHO GET IN A FOXHOLE AND FIGHT," BUT NOT VERY WELL." HE ADDED THAT HE EXPECTED AN INCREASE IN JAPANESE SURRENDERING WHEN THEIR LINES ARE BROKEN. "IT TAKES CONSIDERABLE INGENUITY FOR A JAP TO SURRENDER NOW," HE REMARKED.
A GOOD MANY OF THE REMAINING ENEMY GARRISON, HE ASSERTED, ARE APPARENTLY OKINAWANS--"SOME WITHOUT MUCH TRAINING, ALTHOUGH HODGE (MAJ.GEN.JOHN R.HODGE, 24TH CORPS COMMANDER ON OKINAWA) FOUND ON GUADALCANAL AND BOUGAINVILLE THAT OKINAWANS COULD FIGHT AS WELL AND FANATICALLY AS JAPANESE."
BUCKNER SAID THE ILL-FATED JAPANESE OUNTERATTACK ON OKINAWA LAST WEEK WAS WELLMCOORDINATED "WITH WHAT THEY HAD--ARTILLERY, INFANTRY AND AIR--BUT THEY DIDN'T HAVE WHAT IT TOOK."

GUAM, FRIDAY, MAY 11-(AP)-A LARGE FORCE OF 100 TO 150 SUPERFORTRESSES TODAY BOMBED THE KAWANISHI AIRCRAFT PLANT AT FUKAE ON THE MAIN JAPANESE ISLAND OF HONSHU WHILE A SMALLER B-29 FLEET HIT TWO AIRFIELDS ON KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST IN THE MAINLAND CHAIN.
THE STRIKE, FOLLOWING YESTERDAY'S POWERFUL SMASH BY MORE THAN 400 SUPERFORTRESSES, STRONGLY INDICATED THAT THE ONLY REMAINING AXIS PARTNER IS IN FOR MORE FREQUENT AND MORE DESTRUCTIVE POUNDING OF HIS HOMELAND.
THE KAWANISHI PLANT, ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL SEAPLANE FACTORIES IN JAPAN, IS BETWEEN KOBE AND OSAKA ON SOUTH-CENTRAL HONSHU. BOMBING WAS VISUAL. RESULTS WERE NOT YET MADE KNOWN.

GUAM, MAY 10-(AP)-HINTING OF POWER BLOWS TO COME, THE LARGEST SUPERFORTRESS FLEET EVER TO ATTACK JAPAN BOMBED VITAL TARGETS TODAY ON THE MAINLAND ISLANDS OF HONSHU, KYUSHU AND SHIKOKU.
MORE THAN 400 OF THE HUGE B-29S POUNDED VITAL NAVAL OIL STORAGE AREAS ON HONSHU, THE MAIN HOME ISLAND, AND AIRFIELDS ON KYUSHU AND SHIKOKU. THESE ARE SOUTHERNMOST OF THE HOME CHAIN.
BOMBS WERE DROPPED VISUALLY AND ACCURATELY IN A DAYLIGHT STRIKE AT THE TOKUYAMA AND OTAKE FUEL STORAGE AND MANUFACTURING CENTERS ON THE INLAND SEA, A MAJOR SOURCE OF JAPAN'S AVIATION FUEL.
THIS LATEST STRIKE GAVE WEIGHT TO LT. GEN. BARNEY GILES' THREAT YESTERDAY OF A STEADILY-INCREASING AIR WAR AGAINST JAPAN.
GILES, NEW COMMANDER OF THE ARMY AIR FORCES IN THE PACIFIC, SAID THE TIME IS NOT TOO DISTANT WHEN MORE BOMBS WILL BE SHOWERED ON JAPAN THAN WERE USED IN ATTACKS WHICH DEVASTATED GERMAN CITIES. THUNDEROUS SOFTENING ATTACKS BY AIR BOMBARDMENT, HE PREDICTED, WOULD PRECEDE ANY INVASION OF JAPAN.
THE BIG TOKUYAMA NAVAL FUELING STATION AND A NEARBY SYNTHETIC FUEL FACTORY WHICH IS THE LEADING FUELING CENTER FOR THE JAPANESE ARMY WERE PLASTERED AS A SINGLE TARGET.
TOKUYAMA IS 48 MILES SOUTHWEST OF KURE ON THE INLAND SEA.
THE OTAKE OIL REFINERY--ONE OF JAPAN'S LARGEST--27 MILES NORTHEAST OF TOKUYAMA, WAS HIT. ANOTHER TARGET WAS THE OSHIMA OIL STORAGE AREA, LARGEST IN JAPAN PROPER.
OSHIMA IS A SMALL ISLAND JUST WEST OF THE NORTH TIP OF KYUSHU.
GOOD WEATHER PERMITTED VISUAL BOMBING FOR THE SUPERFORT CREWS IN A CONTINUATION OF THEIR STRATEGY TO NEUTRALIZE KYUSHU AND SHIKOKU BASES FROM WHICH THE JAPANESE HAVE ATTACKED AMERICAN FORCES ON OKINAWA, 325 MILES SOUTH.

OKINAWA--(BY MAIL)--(AP)-THE MEN OF E COMPANY, 381ST REGIMENT, HADN'T MUCH MORE THAN TAKEN THE HILLTOP WHEN THE ENEMY COUNTERATTACKED BEHIND KNEE-MORTAR FIRE FROM TWO JAPS DEEPLY DUG IN HOLES HALFWAY DOWN THE SLOPE.
THEY COULDN'T BE REACHED BY SMALL ARMS FIRE AND NOBODY COULD POSSIBLY THROW FAR ENOUGH TO BOUNCE THEM OUT OF THERE WITH HAND GRENADES.
NOBODY, THAT IS, EXCEPT MAYBE REEDER.
SO PFC.BILL REEDER OF SULPHUR SPRINGS, TEX., WHO WAS PITCHING FOR SHREVEPORT IN THE TAXES LEAGUE WHEN THE ARMY SUMMONED HIM AND HOPED SOME DAY TO COME UP TO THE CHICAGO WHITE SOX, WAS CONSULTED.
HE UNCOILED HIS SIX FOOT. FOUR INCH LENGTH AND STOOD UP IN HIS

MAY 11 1945

"GIMME A GRENADE," HE ORDERED.

REEDER WOUND UP AND LET'ER GO. HIS COMPANY COMMANDER, CAPT. GEORGE WILCOX, SAID THE TARGET WAS A GOOD 300 FEET AWAY, BUT THE GRENADE EXPLODED AT THE VERY EDGE OF THE FURTHEST HOLE.

THE BOYS LUGGED A BOX OF 50 GRENADES UP THE HILL AND PLACED THEM AT BILL REEDER'S FEET. THEN THEY BROUGHT ANOTHER BOX. AND THE LANKY TEXAN STOOD ON THE HILL AND PITCHED. BETWEEN INNINGS, AS YOU MIGHT SAY, HE WOULD FALL TO THE GROUND, GRAB HIS BROWNING AUTOMATIC RIFLE AND BLAZE AWAY AT THE ADVANCING JAP INFANTRYMEN. THEN HE WOULD JUMP UP AND GO TO WORK AGAIN ON THE KNEE-MORTAR BOYS.

HE HAD PITCHED ALL BUT ABOUT A DOZEN GRENADES IN THE SECOND BOX WHEN HE NOTICED THERE HADN'T BEEN ANY FIRE FROM THOSE TWO HOLES FOR QUITE A WHILE. RID OF THE MENACE OF THE MORTARS, THE DOUGH-FEET GOT UP AND BEAT OFF THE ATTACK, AND THEN THEY FOUND THE HOLES ON THE GREEN HILLSIDE CONTAINED TWO OF THE DEADEST JAPS IN HISTORY.

GUAM, FRIDAY, MAY 11-(AP)-JAPANESE STILL ARE BEING DUG OUT OF THEIR HIDEOUTS IN THE MARIANAS AND ON IOW JIMA.

DURING THE WEEK APRIL 29 TO MAY 5, INCLUSIVE, 69 ENEMY TROOPS WERE KILLED AND 57 CAPTURED ON IWO, INCREASING ENEMY CASUALTIES THERE FROM THE FEB.19 INVASION TO 23,244 KILLED AND 1,038 CAPTURED.

TWENTY-THREE NIPPONESE WERE KILLED AND 98 CAPTURED IN THE MARIANAS IN THE SAME WEEK.

MANILA, MAY 10-(AP)-BRIG.GEN.CARL E. NATHORST, RETIRED CHIEF OF THE PHILIPPINE CONSTABULARY, HIS WIFE LILLIAN AND HIS DAUGHTER CHARLOTTE WERE AMONG HUNDREDS KILLED IN THE GROUNDS OF THE GERMAN CLUB DURING THE BATTLE FOR MANILA.

MAY 11 1945

IT WAS BELIEVED THEY SOUGHT REFUGE THERE THINKING THE SWASTIKA FLAG MIGHT AFFORD PROTECTION.

NATHORST, SON OF A SWEDISH EDUCATOR, WAS NATURALIZED AT LIVINGSTON, MONT., IN 1892, AND SERVED WITH THE 13TH MINNESOTA VOLUNTEERS DURING THE SPANISH WAR. HIS DAUGHTER WAS A STUDENT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA, AND WAS ENGAGED TO A NAVAL OFFICER SHE WAS TO HAVE MARRIED IN DECEMBER, 1941. THE WEDDING, TO BE ONE OF MANILA'S BIGGEST, WAS PREVENTED BY THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR.

DETAILS OF THE NATHORST DEATHS WERE VAGUE, BUT IT WAS BELIEVED THEY WERE KILLED BY A GRENADE TOSSED INTO THE DUGOUT THEY HAD ENTERED FOR PROTECTION.

THE VERY REV. PATRICK KELLY, S.S.C., PRIEST AT MALATE, FASHIONABLE MANILA PARISH, WAS MISSING FOLLOWING THE FIGHT FOR MANILA, BUT HIS BODY WAS NEVER RECOVERED. FRIENDS WERE CERTAIN HE HAD BEEN KILLED, BUT THE ASSOCIATED PRESS COULD FIND NO BASIS FOR THE WIDELY CIRCULATED STORY THE JAPANESE HAD TIED HIM TO A CHURCH CRUCIFIX AND BAYONETED HIM.

MANILA, FRIDAY, MAY 11-(AP)-SIX AMERICAN DIVISIONS CHOPPED INTO THE ONLY REMAINING JAPANESE RESISTANCE CENTERS IN THE PHILIPPINES TODAY, ON LUZON AND MINDANAO ISLANDS, WHILE AUSTRALIAN AND DUTCH FORCES PRESSED THEIR CONQUEST OF TARAKAN ISLAND, OFF NETHERLANDS BORNEO.

THE 25TH AND 37TH DIVISIONS ON NORTHERN LUZON CLOSED ON BALETE PASS IN THE CARABALLO MOUNTAINS, WHILE TO THE WEST THE 32ND DIVISION PUSHED FORWARD ON THE VILLA VERDE TRAIL. THE NIPPONESE BITTERLY CONTESTED EVERY YARD OF THE JUNGLE BATTLEFIELD.

DOUGHBOYS OF THE 43RD DIVISION FIGHTING TO CLEAR THE JAPANESE FROM THE WATERSHED EAST OF MANILA WERE NEARING THE IPO DAM, WHICH SUPPLIES A THIRD OF THE WAR-DEVASTATED CAPITAL CITY'S WATER.

IN THE FIGHTING ON MINDANAO ISLAND ELEMENTS OF THE 24TH DIVISION PUT A BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE TALOMO RIVER, WEST OF CAPTURED DAVAO CITY, IN A THRUST TO RELIEVE A YANK BATTALION ISOLATED MONDAY IN A SURPRISE JAPANESE COUNTERATTACK.

OTHER UNITS OF THE 24TH DIVISION CONSOLIDATED THEIR EASILY WON HOLD ON SAMAL ISLAND, IN THE DAVAO GULF OFF DAVAO CITY. THE AMERICANS INVADED SAMAL TUESDAY TO PROTECT THE FLANK OF THEIR DRIVE ON MINDANAO.

INLAND ON MINDANAO THE 31ST DIVISION IN TWO-PRONGED THRUSTS MOVED NORTHWARD AND EASTWARD FROM KIBAWE, THE NORTHERN UNITS MEETING JAPANESE OPPOSITION NEAR THE SOUTHERN STRIP OF THE MARAMAG AIRDROME.

ON TARAKAN ISLAND THE AUSTRALIANS AND DUTCH CENTERED THEIR ATTACK ON JAPANESE DEFENDERS OF THE DJOETA OIL FIELD. THE NIPPONESE HAVE BEEN CLEANED OUT OF TARAKAN CITY BY THE ALLIED FORCE, WHICH ALSO HAS TAKEN THE PAMOESIAN OIL FIELD.

TOKYO RADIO SAID CASUALTIES ON TARKAN INCLUDED AMERICAN NEGRO TROOPS, BUT THERE HAS BEEN NO ANNOUNCEMENT FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS OF AMERICANS PARTICIPATING IN THE GROUND FIGHTING THERE.

AUSTRALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS AT MELBOURNE SAID THE AUSSIES HOLD ABOUT SIX SQUARE MILES OF TARAKAN, INCLUDING THE AIR FIELD AND A FIVE MILE LONG COASTAL STRIP.

WITH THE U.S. 38TH DIVISION ON THE SHIMBU LINE, PHILIPPINES, MAY 10-(AP)-THE JAPANESE WHO ARE BLOODILY RESISTING AMERICAN TROOPS ON THIS MOUNTAIN FRONT NORTHEAST OF MANILA HAVE ABANDONED BANZAI CHARGE TACTICS.

"WE HAVEN'T HAD A BANZAI ATTACK IN SEVERAL WEEKS," SAID BRIG.GEN. ROBERT H.SOULE, ASSISTANT COMMANDER OF MAJ.GEN.WILLIAM C.CHASE'S 38TH DIVISION.

MAY 11 1945

"THE NIPS MUST HAVE DECIDED THAT THE CHARGES WERE TOO COSTLY. WE WERE ALWAYS GLAD TO HAVE THEM BECAUSE IT WAS THE EASIEST WAY TO MOW THEM DOWN. NOW WE HAVE TO DIG THEM OUT OR BLAST THEM FROM THEIR HOLES."

SOULE'S HOME IS AT 1914 CONNECTICUT AVE., N.W., WASHINGTON, D.C.

DIGGING THE JAPANESE FROM THEIR CAVE DEFENSES IS A TOUGH JOB AND THIS DIVISION, WHICH DROVE THE NIPPONESE FROM HISTORIC BATAAN PENINSULA, IS PROGRESSING SLOWLY.

THE YANKS HAVE TAKEN AND THEN LOST ONE HILL EIGHT TIMES THIS WEEK. NEITHER THE JAPANESE NOR THE AMERICANS ARE ON IT NOW, BUT BOTH SIDES HAVE GUNS TRAINED ON THE HILL TO BLAST THE OTHER OFF IF EITHER TRIES TO TAKE THE HEIGHT.

A LARGE SCALE BATTLE IS BEING WAGED IN THE SCENIC MOUNTAINS WHERE THE SLOPES AFFORD NO PROTECTION FOR THE ADVANCING AMERICANS, WHILE THE NIPPONESE ARE DUG IN DEEPLY IN THE PROTECTION OF HEAVILY WOODED RAVINES.

CAPT.ORIAN J.HENDERSON, 122 SOUTH 3RD ST., LAFAYETTE, IND., MANS ONE FRESHLY DUG OBSERVATION POST OVERLOOKING THE AREA. HE SAID JAPANESE ARTILLERY BLASTED HIS PREVIOUS POSITION TWO DAYS AGO.

FORCING TO MOVE.

STAFF SGT.OWEN H.MCKINNEY. 145 SPRING ST., JEFFERSONVILLE, IND., SAID ONE OF THE ENEMY'S 150 MM. MORTAR SHELLS WHICH LANDED AMID A GROUP OF YANKS YESTERDAY, CONTAINED METAL BALLS RESEMBLING FISHLINE WEIGHTS.

AMERICAN TANKS ARE HANDICAPPED BY THE TERRAIN. LT.COL. [illegible] ARNDT, IRONWOOD, MICH., TANK BATTALION COMMANDER, WANTED BUT ONE GROUP OF HILLS WHICH HE HAS BEEN TRYING TO TAKE FOR FIVE WEEKS.

ARNDT SAID HE THOUGHT THE ATTRITION AGAINST THE JAPANESE IS SHOWING IN THE ENEMY'S TACTICS. THE NIPPONESE ARE FIRING THEIR ARTILLERY LESS FREQUENTLY THAN SIX WEEKS AGO, POSSIBLY BECAUSE THEY WANT TO CONSERVE THEIR AMMUNITION FOR EMERGENCIES.

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, MAY 10-(AP)-PREDICTING THAT THE JAPANESE WILL PUT OUT A STRONG PEACE FEELER IN THE NEAR FUTURE, ADM. WILLIAM F.HALSEY TODAY SAID: "IT WOULD BE CRIMINAL NOT TO FIGHT THIS WAR THROUGH TO A SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION."

IN A SPEECH BEFORE ARMY, NAVY AND MARINE CHAPLAINS OF THE PACIFIC OCEAN AREA, THE COLORFUL ADMIRAL SAID:

"THERE WILL BE PRESSURE BROUGHT TO BEAR TO ACCEPT THIS PEACE FROM PARENTS AT HOME WHO WANT TO SAVE THE LIVES OF THEIR SONS AND OTHER LOVED ONES, BUT WE MUST THINK ALSO OF OUR GRANDCHILDREN AS WELL AS OF OUR CHILDREN.

"IT WOULD BE CRIMINAL NOT TO FIGHT THIS WAR THROUGH TO A SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION THAT WILL LEAVE THE JAPANESE NATION TOO WEAK TO WAGE ANOTHER WAR."

HE TOLD THE CHAPLAINS THAT THE JOB OF COMBATING PACIFICISM, IN THE SENSE OF DISARMAMENT AFTER THE WAR, IS LARGELY UP TO THE CLERGY.

"THE PROFESSIONAL MILITARY MAN IS PERHAPS THE GREATEST OF ALL PACIFISTS IN THE SENSE OF NOT WANTING WAR. THE PROFESSIONAL KNOWS ALL OF THE HORRORS OF PAST WARS AND CAN FORESEE ONES TO COME. HOWEVER, HE ALSO KNOWS THE VALUE OF BEING FOREARMED."

CONTENDING THAT THE PACIFIST ATTITUDE WHICH CAUSED DISARMAMENT AFTER THE LAST WAR WAS PARTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE PRESENT CONFLICT, HE ASSERTED:

"THE JAPS WOULDN'T HAVE DARED ATTACK US IF WE'D BEEN AS STRONG THEN AS WE ARE NOW."

HE CONGRATULATED THE CHAPLAINS FOR THE WORK THEY HAVE DONE ON THE BATTLEFIELDS AND WARSHIPS OF THE PACIFIC AND FOR THEIR EFFORTS AT KEEPING THE MEN'S MORALE HIGH.

HE SAID MAC ARTHUR HAD REPLIED:

"AUSTRALIAN CASUALTIES TO THE MORNING OF MAY 8 WERE REPORTED AS 76 KILLED AND 271 WOUNDED IN ACTION--LIGHT FIGURES IN VIEW OF THE GREAT OBJECTIVES ATTAINED.

"IF THERE HAS BEEN ANY FINER OPERATION OF THIS SIZE IN THE WAR I DO NOT KNOW IT. THE AUSTRALIAN FORCES PERFORMED AS THEY ALWAYS HAVE UNDER MY COMMAND--WITH SPLENDID EFFICIENCY. I HAVE NOTHING BUT PRAISE FOR THEM AND FOR THE OPERATION."

SAN FRANCISCO, MAY 10-(AP)-THE UNITED NATIONS ARE "REPEATING THE MISTAKE" OF VERSAILLES, JAPAN'S DOMEI NEWS AGENCY SAID TODAY, IN IMPOSING A "HARSH PEACE" ON NAZI GERMANY.

DIVISION OF GERMANY INTO OCCUPATION ZONES, THE FCC RECORDED TOKYO BROADCAST SAID, IS PART OF THE PLAN TO SET UP SOVIET AND ANGLO-AMERICAN SPHERES OF INFLUENCE THROUGH EUROPE AND "IGNORES THE REALITY" THAT GERMANY WAS A "SINGLE RACIAL UNIT."

MEN OF AFRICA-EUROPE CAMPAIGN FREED FROM FURTHER FIGHTING;

Eisenhower to Rule U.S. German Zone, Rigorous Plan Aims at 'De-Nazification';

Afro-European Vets Not To Fight Japs

Eisenhower Issues Order—Will Keep Men On Continent As Occupation Army—Some Yanks Already Pacific Bound

By Austin Bealmear

PARIS, Saturday, May 12 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower has ordered that American combat soldiers who have fought in both Europe and North Africa are not to be sent to the Pacific war zone, Supreme Headquarters revealed last night.

States In

In a letter to generals of his command, Eisenhower said yesterday: "We must be sure that no soldier is sent to the Pacific who has fought in both North Africa and Europe. It may be that some soldiers in this category will not have sufficient points to be eligible for discharge.

"However, these men should be retained in the European theatre for occupation as they should not be required to fight another campaign."

Meanwhile, America's war effort in the European theatre slipped into reverse today when the Army put into effect its vast redeployment plan to switch the bulk of fighting men in this theatre to the Pacific.

Already some American service troops were moving toward French ports, beginning the long trip which will carry them to the Pacific. Combat troops will begin moving in about six months.

Doesn't Mean Demobilization

"For the first time in history," said a Supreme Headquarters statement, "victory does not mean demobilization of the temporary citizen army.

"With another war still to be ny units which saw action here are preparing to [illegible] again half way around the world."

"R" Day will make the beginning of tabulation of individual adjusted rating cards, which will determine who shall fight and who shall go home. Soldiers who have done enough toward conquering Germany to rate 85 points on their cards will just about have a ticket home, and units will immediately begin training men to replace them.

Gen. Eisenhower sent a letter today to all field commanders saying:

Apply Established Policies

"We must not follow blueprint designs rigidly, but must apply established policies with human understanding. This requires the personal attention of the commanders in all echelons. The pattern of redeployment must be followed with the utmost concern."

"When the bell rings," he said, "we must be prepared to release the high-point men in each combat division who are eligible for discharge even though it results in an immediate reduction of divisional strength below the authorized figures."

Bgi. Gen. G. S. Eyster, acting deputy chief of staff, said that in general troops going direct to the Pacific would sail from Marseille.

Combat troops, which are expected to begin moving off to another war in six months, will sail for the United States from the northern ports of Antwerp, Le Havre and Cherbourg.

But immediately ahead of them is an eight-week training campaign on Japanese tactics, euipment and uniforms.

Under Experienced General

Drilling in both France and Germany, these troops will be under a senior experienced battle general already in the theatre whose name cannot now be revealed.

He is expected to have the assistance of a number of Gen. MacArthur's junior officers brought in from the Pacific theatre. Japanese euipment also will be brought here.

"We've seen here what the application of overwhelming force did in defeating Germany in a short time," said Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy military governor of the U. S. Group Control Council.

"Now we face the problem of applying overwhelming force to bring war against Japan to a uick end."

That, he added, was the reason why in the whole vast redeployment program the war in the Pacific came first.

This program, which also must deal with redeployment for the occupation of Germany and the return home of troops released through the point system, will take probably the next 12 months.

210,000 Was Maximum

"The maximum troop lift coming over here was 210,000 by water to England in any one month," Eyster said, "and we expect to exceed that in shipments by water out of France."

But it was pointed out that it is 14,500 miles from here to Manila—two months by convoy—and there are the further delays for retraining, staging, furloughs and re-equipping.

Under present plans, the vicinity of Reims will be the main staging area for the flow of troops out of France.

Allied headquarters in Rome estimated that possibly 11,000 American soldiers would be returned from the Mediterranean theatre this month.

MAY 15

U. S. Units in France Heading for Pacific—Service Troops Are First to Leave for War Against Japanese.

Paris, May 11 (A. P.).—Some American troop units already are on their way to French ports and headed for the Pacific war under the redeployment program, it was disclosed at Supreme Allied Headquarters today.

The first combat troops from Europe, however, are not likely to reach the Pacific theater in much under six months. The first to go are service troops for they are needed to prepare the way for the flow of combat veterans who helped defeat Germany.

Beside the service units already on the move, others have been alerted, Brig.-Gen. G. S. Syster, acting deputy chief of staff, said.

Prepared for Long Time.

Preparations for the shift began last August, he said.

Service troops already are trained and mostly will go to the Pacific direct, but combat troops will need to be retrained and most will go through the United States.

A readaption training command, which will be in charge of a senior experienced battle general, already is in this theater. The name of the general cannot yet be disclosed. This readaption training will take eight weeks.

Some of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's junior officers are expected to come to Europe to help in the readaption work.

Japanese equipment will be brought here for the training program both in France and Germany and American soldiers who already know a lot about fighting will learn about Japanese uniforms, equipment and tactics.

In the meantime American troops in Paris—and probably all over Europe—were busy with pencils today, figuring out their individual standings in the new going-home point system announced yesterday by the War Department.

Under the system for troops in the European theater, men scheduled to go home first—unless special abilities prevent their being immediately replaced—are those who have amassed a total of 85 points based on length of service, months overseas, number of dependent children, battle stars and decorations.

Scorecards Distributed.

It will be up to forty-five days before the Army knows the names of all the men in the European theater of operations who are to be discharged and those who are to be retained for service in Europe or in the Pacific under the point system, it was disclosed here today. Brig.-Gen. R. B. Lovett, E. T. O. Adjutant-General, said that scorecards for each person in the theater would be delivered to machine records units assigned to each corps, air force and base section within ten days.

Communications zone headquarters said that the Army would be able to announce the final score necessary for discharge within forty-five days.

When the scores are tabulated, they will be sent to the War Department.

On the basis of these reports from all theaters, the War Department will be able to determine what score will be low enough to release more than 1,000,000 men while retaining the 6,968,000 necessary to occupy Germany and fight Japan. It will require 250 officers and 2,000 enlisted men of machine records units and approximately 17,000 machine-hours of work to handle the approximately 4,000,000 forms in this theater.

In a random survey on soldier opinion in Paris, two main objections to the system were encountered: That a man's age and the number of his dependents other than children do not count.

In most cases it will be the younger men who will go home first, because their combat ratings are generally higher than men who were kept in supply areas or headquarters jobs because of age.

When the bell rings we must be prepared to release the high-point men in each combat division who are eligible for discharge, even though it results in an immediate reduction of divisional strength below the authorized figures.

We must prepare now so that we can release these promptly when the time comes and all factors relating thereto have been announced. It is not a subject to gossip or talk about. It does require thinking ahead in determining how approved factors can be applied so that the release of those found eligible under the system can be effected with a minimum loss of efficiency to the command but with maximum dispatch.

We must not follow blueprint designs rigidly but must apply the established policies with human understanding. This requires the personal attention of the commander in all command echelons. The pattern of redeployment must be followed with utmost concern.

We must be sure that no combat soldier is sent to the Pacific who has fought in both North Africa and Europe. It may be that some soldiers in this category will not have sufficient points for discharge. However, these men should be retained in the European theatre for the Army of Occupation, as they should not be required to fight another campaign.

Eisenhower's Letter on Redeployment

MAY 12 1945

PARIS, Saturday, May 12 (AP)—Supreme Headquarters released last night the text of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's letter on the redeployment program for United States troops, sent to all senior commanders of ground and air forces and also to divisional commanders in the European Theatre of Operations. It said:

Dear General—:

I have received a personal letter from General Marshall [General of the Army George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff] pointing out his concern in the human problem which will arise in redeployment. I share his concern.

I have not discussed redeployment up to the present time as its open discussion might adversely affect operational efficiency. However, I believe that the time has arrived when our best thoughts must be given to the problems which are certain to arise.

I am forming a small control group in my headquarters to coordinate the efforts of all commands concerned with redeployment. Policies and procedures will be announced from time to time. Commanding officers must inform themselves of these policies and procedures. They must know that they are thoroughly understood throughout their command, not only by those responsible for their execution but at the appropriate time by the soldiers affected by the policies.

You will have no more difficult command task than you will face in the redeployment of your command. I expect you to give to it the same zealous personal attention which you have given to your combat assignments.

Sincerely,

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER,
General of the Army, U. S. A.

EISENHOWER GIVEN ROLE IN RULING REICH

To Head U.S. Part Of Military Government; Gen. Clay Chief Aide

MAY 12 1945

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay were named today to head the American part of a "stern" military government in Germany.

Eisenhower will be top man in the setup and Clay, officially described as "tough-minded," will be chief deputy handling actual operations. Among other things Clay will supervise "the entire de-Nazification program" and the "ruthless" suppression of underground activity.

In an outline of organizational plans for the occupation, the Army announced that Eisenhower will be American member of the over-all control council on which Russia, Britain and France will be represented. He will also be military commander of the American occupation zone, which is yet to be officially delineated. General Clay will be his deputy in both capacities.

Roosevelt Picked Clay

The army announcement said Clay was "hand-picked by President Roosevelt for the direction of the occupation of Germany." It described him as "a tough-minded soldier with thorough understanding and experience in the balance between military necessity and civilian requirements."

A former director of material for the Army Service Forces, Clay was director for war programs in the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion before he went to Europe in April. In Washington he was generally credited with sponsorship of several of the tougher civilian crack-down orders which emanated from the office of War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes during the period of heavy fighting in Europe.

Specifically assigned to Clay's direction are three administrative sections, separate from an even dozen regular Government divisions, which will supervise the direct purging of German life: A special intelligence agency, and sections controlling public relations and public information.

Nazis To Be Purged

"The all-important task of purging all public agencies and important German industries of Nazis will be shared by every division," the army announcement says, "each supervising this work in its own field.

"However, an over-all intelligence section, answerable directly to General Clay, will maintain general supervision over the entire de-Nazification program. This intelligence section will also maintain surveillance over all German agencies and provide assurance that activities by Nazi underground, 'Werewolves' and the like will be ruthlessly suppressed."

The public information section will control "all forms of public expression in Germany, including newspapers, radio, magazines and other publications and motion pictures. It will deal with the dissolution of the Propaganda Ministry of the notorious Goebbels and the establishment of an unbiased press and radio system."

To Handle Press Matters

Emphasizing that censorship in the American zone will be solely on the basis of military security," the Army said Clay's public relations section will handle all press matters including accreditation of correspondents.

It already has been announced that private American business and American publications will be barred from Germany for a time.

The Army said the setup was the product of many months of study and of work with the Allies on a co-ordinated program to carry out the policies agreed on at Yalta by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Armed Forces To Demobilize

The regular governing divisions in the American zone will parallel roughly the ministries of the German Government.

Actual demobilization of German armed forces will be handled by Army, Navy and Air divisions.

All traffic affairs will come under the transport division.

The political division will "deal with all foreign affairs, handle domestic political matters, protect American interests" and make reports on political intelligence and public relations.

"Tremendous tasks," the Army says, "lie ahead of the economic division . . . this division will see to it that the Germans are forced to exert all efforts to feed themselves and also to ensure that the liberated United Nations are given first consideration on essential commodities."

To End Secret Police

A special assignment of the Internal Affairs and Communications Division, which will govern such matters as public services, education and religious affairs, is "elimination of the dreaded secret police."

The manpower division, the announcement said, will have a particular duty to dissolve the Nazi labor front and lay groundwork for normal democratic labor development.

A special division will handle reparations along with restitution of seized properties.

Other divisions will deal with finances, legal matters and prisoners of war and displaced persons.

Plan For Reich's Control In U.S. Area Outlined

Washington, May 11 (AP)—A special intelligence section to detect and "ruthlessly" suppress any Nazi underground activities will be part of the United States Military Government in the American occupation zone of Germany.

This was disclosed today in a War Department announcement of plans for the United States group which will form part of the Allied four-power control council for Germany. The American unit will be divided into twelve major divisions, corresponding generally to the ministries of the German central government.

Clay Named Deputy

General Eisenhower will be the United States representative on the council as agreed upon at the Yalta Big Three meeting.

Lieut. Gen. Lucius Clay will serve as deputy to Eisenhower and also will be "deputy military governor for Germany," the department said, without amplifying this latter reference. Clay, a West Pointer, was attached to the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion until last month, when he was transferred to supreme Allied headquarters.

The announcement said that United States Army, Navy and Air Forces had perfected over a period of many months, and in co-ordination with the British, Russians and French, a "co-ordinated program to impose a stern military government over all of Germany and to carry out the policies agreed upon at Yalta." It did not, however, officially define the area of American occupation.

To Share Responsibility

The creation of the intelligence section was a sample of this decision for stern control.

Each of the twelve divisions will share responsibility in purging all public agencies and industries of Nazis, but the over-all intelligence section, "answerable directly to General Clay, will maintain general supervision over the entire de-Nazification program," the department said. Then it added:

"This intelligence section will also maintain surveillance over all German agencies and provide assurance that activities by Nazi underground, 'Werewolves' and the like will be ruthlessly suppressed."

Censorship Planned

Also directly under Clay will be two other sections, public information and public relations. The former section, said the department, "will control all forms of public expression in Germany, including newspapers, radio, magazines and other publications and motion pictures." It likewise "will deal with the dissolution of the Propaganda Ministry of the notorious Goebbels and the establishment of an unbiased and truthful press and radio system."

OWI Director Elmer Davis yesterday announced that all foreign publications, films and business enterprises will be banned from Germany.

Public relations will be concerned with issuing communiqués, accreditation of correspondents and press censorship.

Based On Security

Regarding the latter, the Department said:

"Censorship in the American zone will be solely on the basis of military security."

The demobilization of German armed forces and disarmament will be attended to by three military divisions—army, naval and air.

A reparations, deliveries and restitution division will supervise carrying out in the American zone policies agreed upon in the control council dealing with activities "suggested by its title," said the Department.

To Spur Food Production

"Tremendous tasks lie ahead of the economic division, which will deal with such problems as food, agriculture and forestry, fuel and mining, price control and rationing," the department declared.

"This division will see to it that the Germans are forced to exert all efforts to feed themselves and also to insure that the liberated United Nations are given first consideration on essential commodities."

Other Divisions Listed

An internal affairs and communications division will include among other duties supervision of public safety and control of civil police forces. This unit, said the announcement, "will concern itself with elimination of the dreaded secret police."

Other divisions will include:

POLITICAL—Dealing with foreign affairs, domestic political matters, protection of American interests in Germany and reporting political intelligence.

TRANSPORT—Regulation of traffic movements, supervision of rail, highway and inland water transportation and port and coastal operations.

PRISONERS OF WAR AND DISPLACED PERSONS—"Millions of citizens of the United Nations have been held prisoner in Germany" and these must all be cared for and repatriated speedily.

MANPOWER—Charged with dissolving the "notorious Nazi labor front and laying the groundwork for the normal growth of democratic labor organizations and practices."

LEGAL—Jurisdiction over prosecution of war criminals and the exercise of "proper control over Allied military courts, German ordinary and military courts and prisons."

Army's Plans for Germany

MAY 12 1945

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP).—The complete text of the War Department's announcement today of plans for the American occupation zone in Germany:

American organizational plans for the military government of Germany were disclosed today by the Hon. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War.

For many months the United States Army, Navy and Air Forces have been perfecting plans for the occupation of Germany and have been working with their British, Russian and French allies in putting together a co-ordinated program to impose a stern military government over all of Germany and to carry out the policies agreed upon at Yalta.

As was announced in the Yalta Declaration, Germany will be governed through a control council on which each of the four powers will be represented. General Eisenhower will be the representative of the United States on the control council for Germany. Each power will administer a zone of Germany under the control of a military commander. The United States zone will be controlled by General Eisenhower as commander in chief of the United States forces in Germany.

Lieutenant General Lucius Clay, United States Army, will serve at deputy to General Eisenhower, and as such will participate in the formulation of decisions affecting Germany as a whole. General Clay, as deputy military governor for Germany, will also act as General Eisenhower's deputy in carrying out the administration of military government in the United States zone.

General Clay, forty-eight-year-old West Point graduate, was deputy director for war programs of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion before he went to Europe in April to join General Eisenhower. Prior to joining War Mobilizer Byrnes, Clay was the director of material for Army Service Forces. He has been described as a tough-minded soldier with thorough understanding and experience in the balance between military necessity and civilian requirements. He was hand-picked by President Roosevelt for the direction of the occupation of Germany.

In planning its part of the control machinery for Germany, the United States has formed a group control council which will be fitted into the control council for Germany. The United States group has been divided into twelve major divisions, roughly corresponding to the ministries of the German central government.

The heads of these divisions, in addition to acting for the United States in control council matters affecting Germany as a whole, will also, under General Clay's supervision, carry out policies in the United States' zone.

Names of the twelve divisions in the United States group and a description of their functions follow:

Three military divisions — Army (ground), naval and air—will deal with the demobilization of the German armed forces, and the disarmament of Germany.

The transport division will regulate traffic movements, supervise railway, road and inland water transportation systems, and, with the naval division, handle port and coastal operations.

The political division will deal with all foreign affairs, handle domestic political matters, protect American interests in Germany, and advise other sections dealing with control of public information services in Germany, reporting of political intelligence, and public relations.

Tremendous tasks lie ahead of the economic division, which will deal with such problems as food, agriculture and forestry, fuel and mining, price control and rationing, public works and utilities, internal and foreign trade, industry, conversion and liquidation, and requirements and allocations. This division will see to it that the Germans are forced to exert all efforts to feed themselves, and also to insure that the liberated United Nations are given first consideration on essential commodities.

The finance division will control public finance and deal with financial institutions, foreign exchange, currency, and accounts and audits.

The Reparation, Deliveries and Restitution Division will supervise, so far as the American zone is concerned, the execution of the policies agreed upon in the control council, dealing with the vital activities suggested by its title, as well as handle property control and the supervision of monuments, fine arts and achives.

A most important division will be the Internal Affairs and Communications Division. This division will supervise public safety, including control of civil police forces, public health and welfare, post, telephone and telegraph, military communications, civil service and local government, education and religious affairs. The division will concern itself with elimination of the dreaded secret police.

The Legal Division will give legal advice to the commander and other divisions, will have jurisdiction over prosecution of war criminals, and exercise proper controls over Allied military courts, German ordinary and military courts, and prisons.

One of the most difficult tasks will be faced by the Prisoners of War and Displaced Persons Division. Millions of citizens of United Nations have been held prisoner in Germany, either as military hostages or as slave laborers, and these must all be cared for and repatriated as speedily as possible.

The Man-Power Division will deal with problems of labor relations and allocations, wages and labor policies, housing and labor information. This division will be charged with dissolving the notorious Nazi Labor Front and laying the groundwork for the normal growth of democratic labor organizations and practices.

The all-important task of purging all public agencies and important German industries of Nazis will be shared by every division, each supervising this work in its own field. However, an over-all Intelligence Section, answerable directly to General Clay, will maintain general supervision over the entire de-Nazification program. This Intelligence Section will also maintain surveillance over all German agencies and provide assurance that activities by Nazi underground, "Werewolves" and the like will be ruthlessly suppressed.

Also answerable directly to General Clay are the two sections dealing with control of public information and public relations. The former section will control all forms of public expression in Germany, including newspapers, radio, magazines and other publications and motion pictures. It will deal with the dissolution of the Propaganda Ministry of the notorious Goebbels and the establishment of an unbiased and truthful press and radio system.

The Public Relations Section will deal with the issuance of press communiques, general relations with the world press, including the accreditation of correspondents, press censorship and press communications. Censorship in the American zone will be solely on the basis of military security.

Ar... Will Denazify Nation and Ruthlessly Suppress the Underground.

STERN MILITARY CONTROL DUE

American Section of Governing Commission Will Comprise 12 Major Divisions.

Washington, May 11 (A. P.). — American organizational plans for the military government of Germany were disclosed today by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War.

A special intelligence section to detect and suppress "ruthlessly" any Nazi underground activities will be part of the United States setup in the American occupation zone.

DAY

The War Department's announcement of plans for the United States group, which will form ...rt of the Allied four-Power con... council for Germany, said ...t the American unit will be di...ed into twelve major divisions, ...responding generally to the ...inistries of the German central government.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be the United States representative on the council as agreed upon at the Yalta Big Three meeting. Lieut.-Gen. Lucius Clay will serve as deputy to Gen. Eisenhower and also will be "deputy military governor for Germany," the department said, without amplifying this latter reference. Gen. Clay, a West Pointer, was attached to the Office of War Mobilization and ...reconversion until last month, when he was transferred to Supreme Allied Headquarters.

Stern Military Rule Worked Out.

The announcement said that United States Army, Navy and Air Forces had perfected over a period of many months and in co-operation with the British, Russians and French a "co-ordinated program to impose a stern military government over all of Germany and to carry out the policies agreed upon at Yalta." It did not not, however, officially define the area of American occupation. The creation of the intelligence section was a sample of this decision for stern control.

Each of the twelve divisions will share responsibility in purging all public agencies and industries of Nazis, but the overall intelligence section, "answerable directly to Gen. Clay, will maintain general supervision over the entire de-Nazification program," the department said. Then it added:

"This intelligence section will also maintain surveilance over all German agencies and provide assurance that activities by Nazi underground, 'werewolves' and the like will be ruthlessly suppressed."

Also directly under Gen. Clay will be two other sections, public information and public relations. The former section, said the department, "will control all forms of public expression in Germany, including newspapers, radio, magazines and other publications and motion pictures." It likewise "will deal with the dissolution of the Propaganda Ministry of the notorious Goebbels and the establishment of an unbiased and truthful press and radio system."

Disarmament and Reparations.

Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, announced yesterday that all foreign publications, films and business enterprises will be barred from Germany. Public relations will be concerned with issuing communiques, accreditation of correspondents and press censorship. Regarding the latter, the department said:

"Censorship in the American zone will be solely on the basis of military security."

The demobilization of German armed forces and disarmament will be attended to by three military divisions—Army, naval and air.

A reparations, deliveries and restitution division will supervise carrying out in the American zone policies agreed upon in the Control Council dealing with activities "suggested by its title," said the department.

"Tremendous tasks lie ahead of the economic division, which will deal with such problems as food, agriculture and forestry, fuel and mining, price control and rationing," the department declared. "This division will see to it that the Germans are forced to exert all efforts to feed themselves and also to insure that the libearted United Nations are given first consideration on essential commodities."

To Wipe Out Secret Police.

An internal affairs and communications division will include among other duties supervision of public safety and control of civil police forces. This unit, said the announcement, "will concern itself with elimination of the dreaded secret police."

Other divisions will include:

Political—Dealing with foreign affairs, domestic political matters, protection of American interests in Germany and reporting political intelligence.

Transport—Regulation of traffice movements, supervision of rail, highway and inland water transportation and port and coastal operations.

Prisoners of war and displaced persons—"Millions of citizens of the United Nations have been held prisoner in Germany" and these must all be cared for and repatriated speedily.

Man power—charged with dissolving the "notorious Nazi Labor Front and laying the groundwork for the normal growth of democratic labor organizations and practices."

Legal—Jurisdiction over prosecution of war criminals and the exercise of "proper control over Allied military courts, German ordinary nad military courts, and prisons."

4 TO 6 MILLION TO BE PUNISHED

SINGLETON

Penalties May Be Imposed On Germans Personally.

MAY 12 1945

London, May 11 (AP)—Penalties for Germany's war atrocities—concentration camps, slave labor, enforced prostitution and planned starvation—may be imposed on 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 of the conquered Reich's population in the form of personal punishment, it was learned today.

This estimate came from a responsible source close to the War Crimes Commission.

He added that Rudolf Hess, one-time No. 2 Nazi who flew to England in 1941 on a reported peace mission, fugitive hangman Heinrich Himmler and Hermann Goering, captured Luftwaffe chief, all were definitely on the United Nations war criminals list.

Doenitz Chances Slim

The source said there was little chance that Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, who succeeded Adolf Hitler as German Führer, would escape a similar fate. He held the belief that Doenitz, chief of Nazi U-boat warfare, would be held accountable fo rthe machine-gunning of open, unarmed boats in violation of the international rules of war.

NIGHT

Meanwhile it was learned that the question of setting up a tribunal for the actual trial of war criminals and their organizations awaited the attention of the foreign ministers of Britain, France, Russia and the United States. The problem originally was referred to the Crimea conference, but was shunted aside in favor of other more immediate problems, such as Poland.

Trials To Be Public

Simultaneously, it was established that neutral countries would not be given the opportunity to sit in judgment upon those accused of war crimes and that the trials would be held in public to impress on the Germans the magnitude of their crimes.

Strong sentiment also exists for the trial of industrialists who used slave labor as well as those who formulated the policies which made it possible.

It was established that the War Crimes Commission, which has headquarters here, regards as war criminals all those who decreed, directed or participated in policies which resulted in planned undernourishment, slave labor, concentration camps and enforced prostitution.

Blanket Gestapo Trial

Out of this feeling, presumably was born the plan advanced at San Francisco by Samuel Rosenman, American presidential advisor, of the procedure which would permit the trial of organizations acused of atrocities as well as of major war criminals.

Adoption of this procedure would permit the blanket trial of the German Gestapo—a voluntary organization with a membership of approximately 200,000. If the organization itself was found guilty, then the next step, it was stated, would be to determine whether an individual was a member and subject to the blanket penalty—thus eliminating the tremendous task of trying each person separately.

2,000 Arrested So Far

Meanwhile, dispatches from the British 2d Army front said that the removal of active Nazis from the civil administration of Germany as expected to take about six months.

Military government officials announced that about 2,000 arrests had been made so far in the British 2d Army area, including Nazi political suspects, collaborationists and members of the German intelligence services.

A number of war criminals such as the commandant and 66 SS guards of Belsen concentration camp were in British hands, awaiting trial, by military government courts.

Doolittle Views Air And Land Teamwork Crushing Japan

Doolittle Honored

High Wycombe, Buckinghamshire, England, May 11 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle was invested by King George VI today with the insigne of an Honorary Knight Commander of the Bath.

The King and Queen called on Doolittle here at the headquarters of the 8th Air Force. The British monarch performed the ceremony in the Officers' Club in the presence of the Queen and a group of air force generals. Already a Commander of the Bath, the honor raised Doolittle, who led the first raid on Tokyo, a step in the order. If he were British he would have the title of sir.

London, May 11 (AP) — The same type of teamwork by Allied air and land forces that broke Germany's back will crush Japan, Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle declared today in predicting that the Nipponese Empire would blaze before long under 2,000-bomber attacks.

Great fleets of Superfortresses, Liberators and Flying Fortresses—the latter two types opertaing as "medium bombers"—will be thrown into the assault on the Japanese homeland as speedily as planes, crews and supplies can be made available, asserted the fiery little commander of the 8th Air Force who led the first spectacular jab at Tokyo in 1942.

"So far as Japan is concerned, our basic strategy will be weakening the enemy from the air to enable occupation of the land by ground forces," he said in his final press conference in the European theater.

NIGHT

Main Burden On B-29's

He disclosed that the present operational bomber strength of the 8th Air Force in Britain exceeds 2,400 Liberators and Fortresses, with a personnel of 200,000 men and women. He said part of the huge force would be moved directly to the Pacific to augment the ever-increasing fleet of Superfortresses.

Both Doolittle and Maj. Gen. Orville Anderson, chief of operations of the 8th Air Force, made it clear that Superfortresses would continue to carry the main burden in the Pacific. For several months there has been a steady flow of combat crews from Britain to the United States for retraining in handling the big ships.

The Flying Fortresses and Liberators which did such terrible destruction in Germany carry only three or four tons of bombs, whereas the Superfortresses can lug up to ten tons over much greater distances. That was why Doolittle said the workhorses of the European war would be used as "medium bombers" in the Pacific.

Goering Impressed

Replying to a question, Doolittle refused to concede that the European war had proved that country could not be brought to its knees by air power alone.

"Under plans adopted by the Allied high commands, the European war could not have been won by air power alone," he said, "but this war did not prove whether a war could be won by air power alone if all the energy were turned in that direction."

He added that if there was anyone who still did not realize the effect of bombing on Germany, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering apparently was not among them. He quoted the captured leader of the Nazi air force as having warned his pilots on November 1, 1944:

"Unless you bring down at least 500 Flying Fortresses on the next big raid you will go to the trenches."

Grave Crisis Recalled

"The next day," said Doolittle happily, "we attacked the Leuna synthetic oil plant and destroyed 180 German fighters for a loss of 40 bombers and 13 fighters."

He disclosed, however, that at one time American bomber losses in Europe approached a "prohibitive rate" and that only the introduction of long-range fighter escorts saved the day.

"In the Fall and Winter of 1943-44," Doolittle recalled, "improved German tactics and more lethal armament increased the Luftwaffe's toll of our bombers until we faced a very grave crisis.

"Then early in 1944 long-range fighters, which had been continuously in development, came into the air battle of Germany in sufficient numbers to win for us in this period of our greatest crisis. The effect of all this was manifest on D-day, when the Luftwaffe did not seriously contest the invasion."

21 Attacks On Leuna

One of the high lights of the bombardment of Germany, Doolittle said, was the continuing contest between Allied bombardiers and Nazi reconstruction battalions trying to keep Hitler's oil plants in operation.

"At Leuna, west of Leipzig, the enemy's largest synthetic oil plant had to be attacked eighteen times by the 8th and three times by the RAF," the commander said. "It was the most heavily defended single industrial target in all Germany. Each attacking bomber was the target of at least 437 88-mm. gnns and larger rapid-fire and heavy anti-aircraft and artillery cannon. A smoke screen 30 miles in perimeter covered the area."

All production was halted five times, Doolittle said, but each time a special repair crew of 4,000 men managed to put the plant back into partial production.

A final tabulation showed that the 8th Air Force dropped 701,300 tons of bombs over Europe and destroyed 18,512 enemy aircraft. Bombers and fighters divided honors almost evenly in destroying enemy planes, the fighters getting 9,438 and the bombers 9,047. In all, the 8th burned up 1,044,202,950 gallons of gas.

Russians Introduce New Tank Forces And Bicycle Corps In Round-up.

By Romney Wheeler

LONDON, Saturday, May 12 (AP)—Russian armies, slicing up Nazi troops resisting Germany's unconditional surrender in Czechoslovakia and northern Austria, made three junctions with American forces yesterday while the Red Army wrestled with Nazi sabotage in ruined Berlin.

NIGHT

Soviet forces in the German capital battled waves of fires set by Nazi "werewolves" and extricated the bodies of hundreds of German civilians from flooded subways where they were drowned in last-act Nazi terrorism.

560,000 Taken in Three Days

While fighting went on more than three days after Germany's official surrender, the Soviet high command announced that along the entire former eastern front 560,000 enemy prisoners had been seized Wednesday through Friday.

The nightly Soviet war bulletin revealed that the entire Courland peninsula of Latvia had been occupied following the total surrender of German forces in the Baltic states, while the Vistula river delta east of the port of Danzig also was freed of enemy forces.

Forty-five German generals were among the thousands of German prisoners captured o nall fronts in the past three days, Moscow said.

Reds and Yanks Link Again

In Czechoslovakia, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army ...st of liberated Prague linked ...th American troops near Rokycany, nine miles east of Pilsen, while Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army also made a linkup below Prague in the area northwest of Ceske Budejovice.

Malinovsky's troops also occupied Gmuend and Zwettl in Austria near the Austro-Bohemian frontier 45 miles northeast of Linz.

In this area, a third junction was effected with American forces, Moscow said.

The German resistance in Czechoslovakia was being offered by Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner's "middle army groups," but the Soviet command threw powerful armored and storm forces into the battle to wipe out the last Nazi pockets.

Battle to Close Corridor

East of Prague, Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's Fourth Ukrainian Army battled to close an escape corridor for thousands of still-fighting German forces north and northeast of the Czechoslovak capital. Yeremenko's forces narrowed the gap to 32 miles by capturing Kolin, Kutna-Hora and Tabor.

In northern Austria, Malinovsky's troops force dthe major part of Col. Gen. Woehler's German army group, fighting under Schoerner's overall command, to surrender.

All German troops and civilians precaution measures remained in force in teh city.

Bending all efforts to liquidate the last resisters in Bohemia, the Red army dispatched two of its toughest tank commanders, Col. Gen. Dmitry D. Leliushenko, a hero of Moscow, Stalingrad and Berlin, and Col. Gen. Pavel S. Abyalko, a hero of the Silesian breakthrough, to deal with the stiff but scattered enemy resistance.

With Generals Leliushenko and abyalko leading the front field, the First, Second and Fourth Ukrainian armies closed in rapidly on the Germans and early today were within a few miles of Shutting the corridor through which the Germans have been pouring toward American lines sotuh of Prague.

Enemy Has No Line Or Front

The Germans had no line or front—but they possessed several hundred tanks as well as veteran troops.

Moscow dispatches reported that the Russians were employing stern measures with the Germans who had surrendered after fighting beyond the official end of hostilities at 12:01 a.m., May 9 (London time).

Dispatches said that the Germans were being informed hourly by radio broadcasts and leaflets that the Americans were refusing to take them captaive as they retreated westward. The broadcasts urged them to throw down tehir arms immediately.

A Pravda correspondent reported that the Russians had entered Prague Wednesday in a lightning overnight dash from the Dresden area in order to forestall an attempt by Schoerner's forces to enter the city, "which would have resulted in the destruction of the capital."

Dispatches from Berlin reported that Red army authorities, saddled with the problem of saving the German capital's population from starvation, were grapplying with two new obstacles—flooded subways in which lay hundreds of bodies, and waves of fires started by Werewolves and diehard Nazis.

Flooding Of Subways

A dispatch to the newspaper Trud said that the Nazi SS troops—in a final orgy of terrorism—loosed tons of water into Berlyin's subways on May 2 after learning of the capital's capitulation to the Red army.

Hundreds of Berlin civilians, huddling beneath ground to escape the shelling of the city, were drowned along with many wounded German soldiers.

The message reported that many mysterious fires had been tsarted in the city by defeated Nazis driven to arson in the bitterness of their defeat. Maany of them have been caught, the dispatch said, but every night new fires break out.

In adidtion to hundreds of persons lying in flooded subways, there remain hundreds of unburied soldiers above ground, the dispatch said. More than 8,000 were buried in the last five days. Soviet-appointed burgomeisters were reported pressing special groups of gravediggers into the work, while other spade teams set to work clearing the city streets.

Long columns of German prisoners continued to move east through the city while authorities wrestled with the food problem, opening many new field kitchens and bakeries.

130 Taken By Units Of U.S. A.

200 German Ministerial Personnel And Top Nazis Also Captured.

WALTHER FUNK AMONG THEM

Japs Arrested Include Gen. Oshima And Staffs From France, Italy.

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY, May 11 (AP)—Japanese Ambassador to Germany Hiroshi Oshima and 130 Japanese diplomatic personnel have been arrested by Seventh Army troops.

With the Japanese at the time they were captured were nearly 200 German ministerial personnel, including top-ranking Nazis.

Dr. Funk Taken

In the latter group were Dr. Walther Funk, president of the Reichsbank and minister of economics; Dr. Hans Heinrich Lammers, chief of the Reichschancellery; and Dr. Wilhelm Ohnesorge, postmaster general.

The brief announcement did not say where the roundup took place.

The army's announcement said that besides Gen. Oshima, the Japanese arrested included members of the Berlin embassy staff, personnel detached from the staffs in France and Italy and the consulate general in Austria.

Gen. Oshima In Custody

With Gen. Oshima were his wife; Lt. Gen. Mitsuhiko Komatsu, military attache; Maj. Gen. Osamu Otani, member of the mixed commission under the Tri-Partite Pact; Rear Admiral Mideo Kojima, naval attache; Maj. Gen. Yoshisada Mishima, member of the foreign office staff; and four newspapermen representing the official news agency Domei and the newspaper Asahi Shimbun.

Unofficial sources in Washington said last night that the Japanese diplomats captured in Germany would be subject to interment.

It was indicated that the group would have special diplomatic status and would not be treated as ordinary prisoners of war.

These sources also explained that it might be possible later in the war to effect an exchange with Japan for Americans or other Allied prisoners held in that country.

Walther Funk, a dyed-in-the-wool Nazi economist, succeeded high-collared Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as minister of economics on Feb. 7, 1938, and took over the presidency of the Reichsbank Jan. 10, 1939.

Funk Close To Hitler

Funk, now 54, became closely associated with Adolf Hitler in 1931 when he was appointed head of the economic section of the Nazi party. Previously, as a writer on economics for German newspapers, he had been a bitter critic of reparations, foreign loans and subservience to foreign financial interests.

On the day Hitler assumed power—Jan. 30, 1933—Funk was appointed press chief of the German government. Soon after, Paul Joseph Goebbels took over and Funk became his state secretary.

Replaced Dr. Schacht

Funk replaced Dr. Schacht when the latter evidenced that he could not submerge himself sufficiently to Nazi economic doctrine to fit into Goering's four-year plan. After taking office in 1939, Funk urged closer trade relations between Germany and the United States, but when his efforts failed he embarked on a bold attempt to wean South America away from North America.

Funk was largely responsible for drawing the Balkans into the German economic sphere after Munich and through things went worse for the short, chubby bon vivant of the Nazi cabinet after the outbreak of war, he later drew Romania completely into Germany's orbit. Under his direction, all southeastern Europe came under Germany's sphere at the height of the Reich's successes in Europe.

HIGH NAZIS LISTED FOR TRIAL

Hess, Himmler and Goering Face Capital Charges—Doenitz Too May Be Brought Up.

High Nazis Accused.

London, May 11 (A. P.).—A highly reliable informant said today that Rudolf Hess, Heinrich Himmler and Hermann Goering have been listed by the United Nations as war criminals, and that there is a strong possibility that Grand Admiral Doenitz, the new German Fuehrer, will also have to face trial for his life.

Hess and Goering are both prisoners and both were Hitler deputies. Himmler, the hangman head of the Gestapo, is a fugitive.

The informant estimated that between 4,000,000 and 6,000,000 Germans may be forced to atone for their nation's atrocities if the proposed plan of pool punishment is adopted by the victorious Powers.

The machinery for trying the top-ranking Nazis awaits creation by the United States, Russia, Britain and France. The issue was referred to their foreign secretaries to work out details.

Present Plans Revealed.

However, these facts were learned here today: 1. Trials under present plans will be public, on the theory that these will prove that best lesson possible to convince the German people of their errors. 2. Neutral nations will be denied a place on the bench. 3. Strong sentiment exists for the trial of industrialists who used slave labor, as well as those who formulated the policies which made such conscription of foreigners possible.

The War Crimes Commission has headquarters here and has sixteen members. Russia is not one of them. The commission has power only to make recommendations which must be submitted to the governments of the members for approval.

It was established definitely that the commission regards as war criminals all those who decreed, directed or participated in the policies which resulted in planned under-nourishment, slave labor, concentration camps and organized prostitution. Out of this strong feeling presumably was born the plan advanced at San Francisco by Samuel Rosenman, presidential adviser, to permit the trial of organizations accused of atrocities, as well as the major war criminals.

The adoption of this procedure would, for example, permit the blanket trial of the Gestapo—a voluntary organization with a membership of about 200,000. If the organization itself were found guilty, then the next step would be to determine whether an individual was a member and subject to a blanket penalty—thus eliminating the tremendous task of trying each person separately.

WARNS MOSCOW ON ALLIED UNITY

London Spectator Criticizes Arrest of 16 Poles.

MAY 12 1945

London, May 11 (A. P.).—The Spectator, influential Conservative weekly, today sharply criticized Russia's arrest of sixteen Polish Underground leaders and said that Moscow's suspicions of Britain and the United States threatened the unity of the Big Three.

"If these leaders who in good faith visited the Russians to discuss Polish politics were chargeable, as Mr. Molotov says, with sabotage and wrecking, it seems inconceivable that the whole facts should not have been placed at once before the British and American ambassadors," the Spectator said.

DAY

Foreign Secretary Eden and Secretary of State Stettinius took the only possible course in breaking off discussions of the Polish issue, the Spectator said, and added that it was even more serious that at "the moment when the United Nations were building a security system based on co-operation of the great powers, the Soviet Government should abandon the co-operation agreed upon in the particular case of Poland."

Meanwhile today a spokesman at No. 10 Downing Street dismissed as "rumors and speculation" reports that a meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin was impending. The spokesman said that Churchill would remain in London at least over the week end in order to deliver a radio address on Sunday night. A Foreign Office spokesman said he had no knowledge of any preparations for a meeting.

The London newspapers had speculated earlier that the Big Three would discuss European problems. The Evening News asserted that Churchill "believes that an early meeting of the Big Three is urgently required to deal with (1) Final plans for the Allied occupation and government of Germany; and (2) To settle many differences about European problems which, it must be frankly admitted, have come about between the Western Allies and Soviet Russia since Yalta."

"Whitehall takes the view that the meeting should be held in London," the story added, "both because London has not yet been a meeting place of the Big Three and because Mr. Churchill has undertaken many long journeys and it is not considered fair that he should be expected to undergo the strain of another. This view is shared in official Washington and it is hoped that Moscow will take a similar view, especially now that Stalin's presence in or near Russia to direct the war effort no longer is needed."

officially had taken over the German Atlantic fleet units anchored there. The number of vessels was not announced.

Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz's submarine fleet—the wolf packs which for so long had preyed on Allied shipping—was surrendering and putting into British ports.

Dunkirk, scene of the British defeat in 1940, had surrendered. The Channel islands of Sark, Jersey and Guernsey, which had been taken by the Nazis shortly after the fall of France, capitulated to a British task force. They were the only part of the United Kingdom to have been occupied by the Germans.

The disarming of some 120,000 Germans in Holland was under way.

Premier Marshal Stalin, in messages to President Truman and narrowing escape gap between Prague and Caslav, forty-two miles to the east.

Fanatical German pilots in Czecho-Slovakia were reported to have used their last fuel to bomb a concentration camp where Jews were interned.

In Austria, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian mopup squads linked with the British Eighth Army west of Graz. More than 23,000 Germans from Woehler's army group surrendered to him, Moscow said.

In Latvia the prisoner bag by early today rose to 68,578 men, 1,982 officers and thirteen generals as the Courland Peninsula Nazis capitulated. In the Danzig area the Second and Third White Russian armies took 55,000 Nazi prisoners, including the commander of the German Second Army.

Stalin Protest Reported

It has been reported that the 9th Army in its eastward drive was to have stopped at the Weser River rather than the Elbe and that when it approached Magdeburg, Marshal Stalin sent a note of protest to the late President Roosevelt.

Observers say the Hannover-Hildesheim line will create "two Germanies."

The Russians east of the Elbe have already set up a barrier which American and British troops are not allowed to pass.

A four-power European advisory commission is working secretly on the final determination of zones of occupation and the terms under which the Germans will live. These are to be announced simultaneously in Washington, London, Moscow and Paris.

LONDON HAS FUN, BUT STAYS SOBER

London, May 11 (A. P.).—Three rollicking days of hilarity and hi-jinks marked London's victory celebration—but there were only ten arrests for intoxication on the books of Bow Street station, London's principal police court, yesterday.

Norway Princess In London

London, May 11 (AP)—Crown Princess Martha of Norway arrived in London today from the United States. She was accompanied by Norwegian Foreign Minister Trygve Lie and the president of the Norwegian Parliament, C. J. Hambro, both of whom had attended the San Francisco world security conference.

man announcements, said Busch had been appointed by Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz "with the agreement of British occupation authorities."

There was no immediate explanation as to why a German general should be named to command troops who are presumed to be prisoners of war, or why his authority would extend to the civilian population.

Die-hards in Czecho-Slovakia Strive to Escape Vast Russian Pincers

MAY 12 1945

London, May 11 (A. P.).—Die-hard Nazi fanatics were fought on in Czecho-Slovakia in defiance of German unconditional surrender were reported in headlong flight toward American lines today as a vast pincers by three Soviet armies threatened momentarily to envelop them.

The First, Second and Fourth Ukrainian armies opened the assault on broad fronts from the northwest, east and southeast when forces under Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner, himself wanted as a war criminal, and Col.-Gen. Woehler, ignored the surrender.

It was the only reported fighting by German troops in all Europe. Elsewhere the Germans were giving up docilely. The Soviet High Command announced capture of 209,060 German officers and men in preliminary checkups along the front. There were twenty-six Nazi generals in the bag.

British Take Ships.

Remnants of the beaten German surface and underwater fleet were in Allied hands, including the cruisers Prinz Eugen and Nuernberg, which had shelled Copenhagen over the week end. These were under the sentinel guns of the Royal Navy in Copenhagen harbor, along with three destroyers, two torpedo boats, ten minesweepers, thirteen flak ships, nineteen armed trawlers and two armed merchantmen.

A report from the French press agency said that French sailors in La Rochelle, Atlantic port which surrendered Wednesday,

Prime Minister Churchill, congratulated them on the unconditional surrender of Nazi Germany, declaring that "the joint struggle of Soviet, American and British armies against the German invader will go down in history as an example of fighting collaboration of our peoples."

The Germans in Czecho-Slovakia still fighting, milled about in a great 4,000 square mile pocket. One German group, threatened with encirclement by Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine Army, already had begun to surrender. Some 35,000 were taken Wednesday and Thursday.

Head for U. S. Lines.

Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's Fourth Ukrainians, driving into Bohemia from the east against the fleeing enemy, captured more than 20,000 in the early stages of the offensive, threatening to snap shut the trap, and Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainians attacked Woehler's troops, apparently trying to hold a corridor south of Prague for the escape of Germans toward American lines.

A large group of Germans was in flight, apparently trying to reach Third Army lines before giving up, scurrying through a

RUSS RULE IN MOST OF REICH IS SEEN

Yanks To Turn Over Vast Area To Soviets, Is Indication

Paris, May 11 (AP)—The next job facing the Western Allies and Russia is the division of conquered Germany for occupation and, although the boundaries as yet have not been set, the approximate lines give Russia the biggest share.

For theoretical borders, draw a north-south line through Hannover and Hersfeld. Then slice the western section of Germany with a line running from Hersfeld to near Aachen.

Everything, more or less, in the eastern sector will be under Russian control. Northwestern Germany will be occupied by Great Britain and the southwestern sector by the United States.

Turn Over To Russians

These approximate boundaries, if correct, would mean that American armies would have to withdraw from sectors they have conquered and turn over thousands of square miles to the Russians.

[A London dispatch said the French, according to unofficial speculation, would occupy the Saar and extreme southwestern Germany.

[Berlin is to be jointly occupied, and possibly Vienna as well, although a new Austrian Government has already been formed, this dispatch reported.]

The line separating the Russian zone from the western Allies' has been referred to for months on the front as the Hannover-Hildesheim line.

'Radio Atlantic' Station Was an Allied Trick

Broadcaster Supposedly in Germany Fooled His Hearers

LONDON, May 11 (AP).—Some of Germany's best pre-war actors entertained the enemy and chipped away at his morale over Radio Atlantic, one of the slickest Allied propaganda ruses of the war.

The Allied-operated transmitter was disguised as a clandestine station operating inside Germany, and sounded so genuine that frequently Allied and neutral monitors believed they were listening to genuine enemy broadcasts.

The mechanical technique still is a secret because "there's a war on the other side of the world," an Allied official said today.

Newscasters and entertainers frequently were refugees from Germany. These and the pre-war actors spoke fluently in all urban and provincial dialects and were masters of colloquialisms.

The German-language short-wave station was officially known as Deutsche Kurzwellensender Atlantik. Its companion medium wave transmitter was called Soldatensender West. There were at least two other such stations, but "Atlantic" became the most famous.

Atlantic told German civilians and soldiers of their country's military reverses and of trouble in the Nazi hierarchy. Soldatensender had special late news broadcasts and "announcements" for the German Army, Air Force and Fleet. Between news, the stations broadcast music designed to entertain troops, and skits and sketches in German.

CHURCHILL ASKS ELECTION OF TORY

London, May 11 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill has asked the voters at a Newport by-election for a vote of confidence by supporting a National Government candidate.

Indorsing Lieut.-Commander Ronald Bell, Conservative, Mr. Churchill wrote to him today: "I claim the right to ask the electors of Newport to register their confidence in me and in his Majesty's Government by returning you to Parliament." His National Government, the Prime Minister added, had "organized the victory" and had "given ample evidence of its zeal and ability to plan wisely for the future."

Bell is opposed by Robert Edwards, candidate of the International Labor party. Under a wartime agreement, all major parties are supporting Bell for a seat formerly held by a Conservative.

Air Wing Set 5-To-1 Record In Plane Kills

London, May 11 (AP)—P-51 Mustang pilots of the United States 8th Air Force, 86th Fighter Wing, destroyed five German planes for each American plane lost, it was disclosed today.

Final statistics showed the wing, commanded by Brig. Gen. Murray C. Woodbury, of Burlington, Vt., destroyed 3,363 enemy aircraft in the air and on the ground with a loss of 705 American fighters in twenty months' operations.

The wing includes the 55th, 78th, 339th, 257th and 353d fighter groups.

MAY 12 1945

YANKS ARE WARNED ON FRATERNIZING

London, May 11 (A. P.).—American troops in Germany were warned in an official broadcast over the Brussels radio today that the non-fraternization rules remain in effect.

"You were not invited into Germany," the broadcast said. "You came as conquerors. Stay faithful to the memory of your comrades fallen in the fight against Nazism. It is prohibited to go into German homes and to be friendly or to be on terms of intimacy with Germans."

German Occupation Terms To Be Revealed

London, May 11 (AP)—The four-power European Advisory Commission, which for months has been working secretly on occupation terms for Germany, will disclose within two or three days a number of its recommendations, it was learned today.

Plans will be released simultaneously in London, Moscow, Paris and Washington and are expected to give the first definite boundaries for the zones of occupation and the terms under which the Germans will be required to live. A number of points upon which there had been differences of opinion were resolved at the Big Three conference at Yalta.

Allies Give Busch Command, He Says

London, May 11 (AP)—Field Marshal Ernst Busch proclaimed over the Flensburg radio tonight that he had been placed in command of German forces in Schleswig-Holstein and northern Germany "to maintain order and discipline and assure supplies to the army and civilian population."

The broadcast by the Flensburg station, which presumably is under Allied control, although it has been used repeatedly for official Ger-

Speculation On Big 3

London, May 11 (AP)—London morning papers speculated today that Prime Minister Churchill, President Truman and Premier Marshal Stalin may meet soon to discuss European postwar problems. The papers disagreed, however, as to the place.

The Daily Herald said Churchill was taking the initiative in arranging the conference, which it said indicates that the meeting may possibly be held in London. The Daily Mail, on the other hand, said that if Stalin agreed to another Big Three meeting there was little likelihood it would be held in the British capital.

The Daily Mail said Churchill was personally trying to break the deadlock over the Polish Government, and added that there had been several exchanges between the Prime Minister and Stalin.

[In Washington, White House aides said they had no information today on any plans for a future meeting of the Big Three.]

King George Gets Laugh During Investiture

London, May 11 (AP)—King George VI had a laugh today during a solemn investiture in Buckingham Palace. A young RAF officer who approached the dais to receive the Distinguished Flying Cross had an arm in a plaster cast.

"Where were you wounded?" asked King George.

"In Trafalgar Square on V-E night," replied the officer, grinning.

8th Air Force Losses 43,742

LONDON, May 11 (AP).—The United States 8th Air Force today listed 43,742 fighter pilots and bomber crewmen as killed or missing in action in the war in Europe. Seriously injured were 1,923. Bombers lost in action 4,456.

DENY NAZI PLOT TO SEIZE LONDON

MAY 12 1945

London, May 11 (A. P.).—The British War Office stated today there was no truth in a United Press story of an alleged plot by German prisoners of war to stage a mass break and seize control of London last Christmas eve.

"The story, which had been held for some time, was finally passed by censorship because there no longer was any security involved, but a note was attached in censorship advising the editor there was no truth in it," a War Office spokesman said.

There was an epidemic of breaks from prisoner of war camps in England during the winter, but "thorough investigation" proved there was no connection between camps, the War Office declared.

"Neither was there any truth in the implication that they had a master plan to take London by storm, nor that leaders were receiving any orders from inside London," it said.

"The entire story was a pure fabrication beyond what might be called a normal attempt by a few prisoners to make their way to an airdrome for the purpose of stealing a plane in which to escape."

The United Press distributed the following note to editors:

"The censor in London has advised the United Press that British Army authorities consider considerable portions of the John B. McDermott dispatch from Belgium, detailing a plot on the part of German prisoners of war in England, untrue. They said ten prisoners escaped and were recaptured.

"The McDermott dispatch is based on information supplied to the United Press correspondent by two American Army officers who have been decorated for their work in discovering the plot."

Eire Turns Over German Legation

Dublin, May 11 (A. P.).—Keys to the former German legation here have been turned over to the American Minister by the Eire Government, the Eire Information Service said today. The property was intrusted to the United States Minister after Eire was notified that the United Nations had "assumed the powers and property of the Government of Germany."

British May Get Laval

PARIS, May 11 (AP).—Foreign Office circles predicted today that Spain would grant Pierre Laval over to British authorities rather than return the former Vichy chief of government directly to France. Sources said the French government probably would not object to this arrangement.

The French government will probably insist on trying him in France. His delivery presumably will be to British authorities at Gibraltar, whence he will be taken to France on a British ship.

[The French Press Agency said that Fernand de Brinon, former Vichy Ambassador to the Nazi occupation forces in Paris and later "chairman" of the French government committee in Germany under Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, had been arrested in the area of thte French 1st Army and "immediately imprisoned." The dispatch to the French press was reported by the Federal Communications Commission.]

ALLIED SOLDIERS TO MARCH IN BERLIN

Paris, May 11 (A. P.).—An Allied token force of British and Americans is being prepared to go to Berlin as soon as arrangements with the Russians have been completed, it was disclosed today.

There was no indication when the force would leave. A public relations officer at Allied Headquarters said that a considerable group of American and British correspondents would go along. Supreme Allied Headquarters will select the correspondents.

The Americans in the token force will go from the United States Ninth Army.

SHAEF Censorship Code

PARIS, May 11 (AP)—Following is the text of the new censorship guidance as amended, and made public by Supreme Headquarters. [SHAEF made most of the text of the new censorship guidance available for publication. To do this it had to "declassify" the document from the "confidential" list, and in the process make seven or eight minor deletions, since it was held that merely to list these points might give information to the enemy.]:

It summarizes in these words:

"In accordance with operations Memorandum No. 27 Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, in general press material falling into the following categories will not be released.

German Generals To Aid Surrender

MAY 12 1945

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, May 11 (A. P.).—Four German generals, ten other officers and forty-three soldiers reached SHAEF yesterday to serve as a liaison staff in handling the details of surrendering shipping and war materiels. Their names were not disclosed.

Yanks Had Open Road Ball

With the United States Third Army, May 10 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The road to Prague was wide open for the Americans, but they pulled up short and failed to go in—despite pleading appeals from the Prague radio reporting the sacking of the Czech capital by die-hard Nazi SS troops.

The Yanks were halted by a "restraining line," apparently previously agreed upon by the Russian and American commands. It failed to make sense to the doughboys and tankmen, for Brig.-Gen. John Pierce's Sixteenth Armored Division, which had raced 100 miles from Nuernberg to Pilsen in twenty-four hours, was raring to go on to Prague.

While Pilsen was being liberated by the Americans May 6, Patriots who seized the Prague radio kept sending out appeals to the Americans. Patriots who came eighty miles from Prague to Pilsen—without being shot at—confirmed reports of Nazi carnage in the capital.

But the Sixteenth stayed at Pilsen—because it was told to stay—not because it could not get to Prague. It could have gone on just as easily as it got to Pilsen from Nuernberg.

The Russians finally announced the liberation of Prague on May 9.

The doughboys, mulling it over recalled that the 9th Army had pulled up along the Elbe River before Berlin, and stayed there, idle while the Russians went on to Berlin. Another case was that of the 11th Armored Disivion, which had galloped April 27 up to within 5 miles of the Austrian border, where they reached the "no-fire line."

Lest there be Russians around, they were told, they were not to use indirect fire at all and to use direct fire only when fired upon by troops positively identified as Germans.

Armor Stalls Again

The 11th found neither Germans nor Russians. Then our armor sat down for several days. Finally another "restraining line" was drawn, and they were permitted to go on 30 miles beyond the border and take Linz.

When the German surrender came there still had been no physical contact between the Americans and the Russians in this sector. All the time the 11th was cooling its heels it had no idea where the Russians were, although from radio signals it was evident they were near.

American Token Force Will Occupy Berlin

With U.S. 9th Army in Germany, May 11 (AP)—At least one American division, probably accompanied by a selected squad of war correspondents, will participate in the token occupation of Berlin in the near future, it was indicated here tonight.

Although there was no official comment, there seemed to be reason to believe the outfit selected would be the 2d Armored ("Hell on Wheels") Division—veterans of Tunisia, Sicily and the campaign across the European Continent.

Commanded by Maj. Gen. I. D. White, of Des Moines, Iowa, the 2d Armored seemed the likeliest outfit if for no other reason than its long service.

The choice probably would prove popular with Gen. George S. Patton, who used to command it, and who recently sent a message attributing his successful "start in military life in this war" to the division itself.

At first there were reports that correspondents would not be permitted to accompany the token occupying division, but it was later indicated that a special group, selected from the ranks of pre-war foreign correspondents with Berlin backgrounds, would be taken along.

2,000 Nazis Seized.

British Second Army, Germany, May 11 (A. P.).—The British Second Army has arrested some 2,000 leading or active Nazis in its territory and the clean-up will probably require six months more, Military Government officials said today. Some are war criminals, such as the commandant of the Belsen concentration camp and sixty-six SS guards.

They await trial in Military Government courts of three kinds: Summary courts which may imprison criminals for one year and fine them $1,000; Intermediate courts dealing with any legal punishment except death, and General courts which may impose sentence of death.

The courts have jurisdiction over all civilians of any nationality, but not over armed forces or prisoners of war. Those arrested so far include Nazi politicians, suspects, collaborationists and members of the German Intelligence.

'No Third World War For Germany'—Goering

MAY 12 1945

By Howard Cowan

AUGSBURG, Germany, May 11 (AP)—Shifty-eyed and perspiring, Hermann Goering, who faces the prospect of answering war crimes charges, declared today that for the Germans "there will be no third war in this century—everyone wants peace."

Faces Correspondents

His puffy cheeks reddening under a hot sun, Goering uneasily faced a battery of war correspondents and gave his version, at least, of what had occurred in the Nazi heirarchy during the war years.

The Japanese attack on the American fleet at Pearl Harbor came as a complete surprise to the German high command, the captured reichsmarshal said.

Declaring that he was satisfied that Adolf Hitler was dead, Goering claimed that Martin Bormann, deputy Nazi party leader, named Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz as Hitler's successor and added: "Hitler did not leave a thing in writing saying that Doenitz was to take his place!"

The man who for years had been the No. 2 Nazi blamed all the dissension in the party on Bormann. With a note of jealousy, Goering said that Bormann had every chance to influence Hitler since "he was with him night and day."

Advised Against Russian War

Concerning the German attack on the Soviet Union, Goering said: "When Hitler decided to attack Russia, I myself referred him to his Mein Kampf, where he said that to fight a war on two fronts was dangerous. I was convinced that Russia was not going to attack—maybe Finland but not Germany."

Hitler ordered the attack on Russia, he said, because he thought he could knock her out quickly and leave only a small force to finish her off.

Goering answered with a powerful affirmative when asked if Hitler personally was responsible for the conduct of the SS and the Gestapo and the manner in which German concentration camps were run.

With a defiant "Yes" Goering admitted he had ordered the bombing of the English city of Coventry and defended the saturation raid as legitimate because of the concentration of aircraft and war industries there.

Revenge Bombing

"The order to bomb Canterbury," he said, "came from higher headquarters as revenge for the British bombing of a German cathedral city. "I don't remember which German city."

In his discussion of the war in the air Goering, former commander of the German air force, said he knew pretty well the capabilities of the Allied air forces with one great exception—the long range fighterbomber developed by the Americans.

"It was a complete surprise," the fat reichsmarshal said, "that you could develop a fighterbomber to fly from England to Berlin and return.

"The American air force made the Allied offensive successful," he volunteered.

Asserting that Hitler had tried his best to keep America out of the war, Goering said: "I myself pointed out to him after the Polish incident that never again must the United States enter the war. Hitler believed that the bad experiences of America after the last war—that that alone would keep America out of this war."

He continued: "Hitler tried to cooperate with England but took the wrong manner and the wrong means. If he had any regret over his actions in the light of the Munich pact with (prime minister) Chamberlain, I don't know about it."

Did Not Try Invasion

Goering denied that he gave the order "Up to England" in Paris in 1940, and declared that he would not have made such a statement because Germany did not have the planes nor the ships for such an adventure. The invasion of Britain was in preparation but the order never was given and no false starts were made, he added.

In explaining that the flight of Rudolf Hess to England was a complete surprise in Nazi circles Goering said: "Only three people know why he did it. They are close members of his family, and I cannot name them."

Goering repeated that Hitler was dead, but his ideas on the Fuehrer's end varied greatly from those expressed by fields marshal Von Rundstedt and Kesselring, also Allied captives.

"When I saw him (Hitler) last April 20 in Berlin, he was very sick—something wrong with his brain," Goering said, motioning with his hands and making an obvious effort to be convincing. "I've heard he killed himself."

The two marshals had asserted that Hitler died leading his troops.

Standing in the back yard of the two-story house where he was quartered, Goering's pale blue eyes swept over the crowd of newsmen as he said:

Dead Longer Than Believed

"Hitler has been dead longer than it is believed. The body has been disposed of so it wouldn't fall into the hands of the Russians." (Hitler's death was announced May 1 by Doenitz who said he died that afternoon.)

Goering said that on April 22 Hitler was convinced for the first time that the "war was lost and it was useless to continue the fight in the redoubt area." The reichsmarshal added that the pressure of Hitler's close friends in the army and the party made him realize that fact.

"When I heard this I wired Hitler from Berchtesgaden and told him as second in command I would take steps to go into consultation with enemy powers," Goering said. "I had my answer three hours later. The SS arrested me and my family at Berchtesgaden.

"The next day I was notified I had been condemned to die. It was only because of my earlier services that I was spared."

Switching to a discussion of the Nazi party's rise to power, Goering declared he thought Marinus Van Der Lubbe set the Reichstag on fire in 1933 and said the wholesale roundup of Communists that same night was only a coincidence as the Nazis had wind that the Communists were up to something.

"I Didn't Do It"

"I didn't do it," he said, laughing aloud and mopping his brow with a damp handkerchief.

Of Germany's future, Goering said: "If there are no ways and means given the German people to live then the future is black for them and the world."

He shrugged his shoulders when asked if the underground werewolf organization might become active and added: "There may be much hunger and much destitution. You cannot tell."

Goering Says Hitler Ordered Russian Attack

Declares Fuehrer Sentenced Him to Die Because He Wanted to Make Peace.

MAY 12 1945 COWAN

Augsburg, Germany, May 11 (A. P.).—Perspiring and uneasy, Hermann Goering spoke bitterly of Hitler today and asserted that he had advised his leader against attacking Russia.

He told war correspondents during an hour-long interview:

"When Hitler decided to attack Russia, I myself referred him to his "Mein Kampf," where he said that to fight a war on two fronts was dangerous. I was convinced that Russia was not going to attack—maybe Finland, but not Germany."

The shifty-eyed Reichsmarshal raised his voice as he spoke.

When he was captured he said that Hitler sentenced him to death for Goering's suggestion that he take over as Fuehrer. Today he asserted that he was doomed because he wanted "to go into consulation with enemy Powers."

The conferences took place in the backyard of a two-story house where he was quartered.

Asked if he had anything to say, other than in reply to questions, Goering asserted:

"Only this please remember that Germany can be helped. I am very thankful to the German people who have stood by their guns." His voice lowered and his eyes searched the ground as he added "even though it appears now that we've let them down."

Goering said that the flight of Rudolf Hess to England was a complete surprise in Nazi circles:

"Only three people know why he did it. They are close members of his family and I cannot name them."

Goering repeated that Hitler was dead, but his ideas on the Fuehrer's end varied greatly from those expressed by Field Marshals Rundstedt and Kesselring, also Allied captives.

"When I saw him last, on April 20 in Berlin, he was very sick—something wrong with his brain," Goering said, motioning with his hands and making an obvious effort to be convincing, "I've heard he killed himself." The marshals asserted that Hitler died leading his troops.

6,000 U.S. Flyers Are Freed From Nazi Camp By Russians

MAY 15

Luneburg, Germany, May 11 (AP). Six thousand American flyers have been liberated by the Russians at Barth on the Baltic, where the fleeing Germans left their prison camp in charge of the Missoula (Mont.) ace, Col. Hubert C. Zemke.

The flyers at Stalagluft 1 had awaited the arrival of the Russians. Their German guards had fled. Besides the Americans, 300 RAF flyers were liberated.

Zemke was commander of the top scoring 56th Thunderbolt group and had been missing since fall when his fighter plane was destroyed. Two weeks ago a German officer approached him and said:

"We are all leaving. The Russians are coming. The camp is in your hands."

Used Clubs As Weapons

Airmen, armed with clubs, were ordered by Zemke to guard the camp, which is directly north of Berlin. Another detachment went to a near-by airfield to dig out mines and prevent the Germans from wrecking it.

Guards were posted around the camp to keep panicked civilians from entering it in their flight from the Russians.

The story was pieced together today by Major W. P. Lightfoot, Des Moines, American contact officer for prisoners of war at this clearing center of Luneburg. Lightfoot questioned 200 American flyers who left Stalagluft 1 and made their way to Luneburg. They were flown from here to Le Havre for embarkation to the British Isles.

These 100 officers and 200 enlisted men left the camp by a "back door" although Zemke was trying to enforce order and have men remain for evacuation by Russians, according to a supreme headquarters directive.

The men who sneaked out said they took the chance of getting back to British territory, rather than awaiting evacuation by the Russians through Odessa, a process that probably would take several months.

Some left camp on small boats and crossed 60 miles of open water to Sweden, the escaped men said.

Lieut. Col. Frank Eresch, of Topeka, Kan., is here waiting permission to go to the camp and help arrange details of the evacuation.

Was Sentenced To Death

A group of 30 American airmen arrived at Luneburg from Barth Prison today and within two hours were en route by plane on the first leg of their trip to the United Kingdom. They said the airfield near the camp was being put in condition to permit evacuation by plane in the near future.

They told the story of Col. H. R. Piecer, of San Antonio, Texas, a Mustang pilot shot down last fall, who gave a rousing pep talk to the prisoners and then was seized by the SS, charged with attempting to start a revolt, and sentenced to death.

He was waiting for the firing squad when the camp was liberated and now is helping run the camp.

The men said they were fairly well treated under a German colonel until the SS kicked him out for "fraternizing" with the prisoners. Thereafter life in the camp was "rugged."

YANKS GUARDING LINER EUROPA

Bremerhaven, May 11 (A. P.).—Germany's luxurious 60,000-ton liner Europa, her decks warped and her fixtures dirty and grimy, has been moored in Kaiserhaven Slip here during the entire war, serving as billets for Nazi troops.

Nearby is the sunken, fire-charred bulk of the slightly larger Bremen, launched in 1929, a year earlier than the Europa. Germans who live here say the Bremen was set afire and destroyed by a saboteur when she was fully loaded.

Both the liners won blue ribbons for Atlantic crossings in record time and in the lush 1930's the Germans tried to corner trans-Atlantic travel with the two ships.

Germans say the ships were to have been used in the invasion of Great Britain, but the Europa's chief steward, Gustav Pflueger, who has been with the 1,000-foot liner since 1936, denied this.

The Europa is guarded by Sergt. Richard Ramer of Rockford, Ill., and Private Stanley Martin of Ironwood, Mich.

Empty wine bottles are scattered about the liner's luxurious staterooms, evidence of times when Nazis were gay. The huge ballroom floor has been pitted by thousands of hob nails. A marksmanship target is nailed to one wall. The swimming pool is full of sand.

Of a normal crew of 980, about 150 are still aboard, including engineers, who have kept the giant turbines in working order. Crew members said the liner could be made seaworthy in about six months.

Germany's End As Power Seen By Falkenhorst

GOLDBERG

General, Taken by the 42d, Says Nazis Forced Army Into 'Most Insane War'

WITH UNITED STATES 7TH ARMY, May 11 (AP).—General Nikolaus von Falkenhorst surrendered to the 42d (Rainbow) Division yesterday, declaring that Germany had "fought the most insane war in history" and was "through as a world power."

The general, who was commander of German forces in Norway until last December, adopted a line similar to that of other high-ranking German soldiers captured or surrendered, venting his wrath on Adolf Hitler and the Nazi party.

"Germany is through now as a world power, and you need never fear she will rise again to wage another war," he told Major General Harry Collins, division commander. "It would take 100 years to repair this country to the point where it was in 1940.

"Never at any time could Germany have beaten the United States. The Army knew it. Your country can produce more in one day than Germany can in one month.

"Every one should have known, when war was declared on America, that Hitler had complete control of the army, for army leaders never would have done that."

Falkenhorst told Collins that the German general staff always knew it couldn't win the war, and declared the Allied forces "liberated" the German army from the Nazis.

"Nazi party members were put in command positions in the army and knew nothing about warfare," he said. "We fought the most insane war in history and there never was a chance that military operations would be successful under such mad leadership."

Falkenhorst said Norwegians did not resist the German army in Norway.

[The general apparently forgot that his broadcasts from Norway, warning patriots that they faced death unless they desisted from sniping and sabotage, had been heard in Allied countries. He was reputed, however, to have reprieved some snipers sentenced to death.]

"Not one (German soldier) was killed by a Norwegian," he said. "And because Norweigian girls fraternized so much with German German soldiers, I had to issue a rule limiting the number of marriages, because German women were complaining."

The general said he left Norway Dec. 18 after Colonel General Lothar Rendulic, who he said was a Nazi party member, came to Norway after the capitulation of Finland.

Hitler Safe Held Only 'Mein Kampf' 1 2 1945

By Louis P. Lochner

Munich, May 11 (AP)—There were disappointed faces in the United States 179th Infantry when one of its mechanics opened Hitler's safe in his private home on Aussere Prinz Regenten Strasse today.

Instead of the expected documents—possibly even the Führer's will—they found only twelve copies of the first edition of "Mein Kampf," most of them autographed. Otherwise there was not a scrap of paper in the safe.

But under the residence was found one of the most modern and bombproof cellars in all Germany. The shelter, according to the caretaker, was constructed only after the war began. Seven-inch steel plates, embedded in four-feet-thick concrete, made up the ceiling. Every room was separated from the next by steel doors. There was a modern little electric kitchen, a small but comfortable bedroom and several small underground living rooms.

Simple-Life Myth

The more one studies Hitler's various hideouts the more one realizes how deceitfully official propaganda built him up as a simple man of the people, whose personal wants were the most modest and whose every hour was so concentrated upon Germany's welfare that he had no time for private life.

Unknown to most residents of Munich, he had maintained his sumptuous private residence here since 1929 while pretending to live either at the Reichschancellery in Berlin, the mountain retreat on Obersalzberg, above Berchtesgaden, or in the pretentious so-called Führerbau on Munich's Koenigsplatz.

An example of the ignorance concerning Hitler's private home was given me when I searched for this hideout. I mistakenly went to a street within the confines of the old part of the city known as Prinz Regenten Strasse instead of the street by the same name beyond the Isar River, prefixed by the word aussere, meaning outer.

Nobody Knew Of It

Nobody in the old section to whom I spoke had even heard of the private Hitler dwelling. Everybody referred me to the Führerbau.

Like everything affecting Hitler, the private dwelling had costly furnishings, large rooms, modern gadgets and expensive paintings. A Dusseldorf painter named Friedrich Schuez seems to have been the favorite artist, for numerous landscapes bearing this signature adorned the walls.

I discovered none signed "Adolf Hitler." If there was any such it must have been removed since the capture of Munich.

The contents of the spacious library, I was told, had been removed by intelligence officers for study.

In this house there were both a painting and bust of his niece, Geli Rabaul.

Strangling Story

She was reported to have committed suicide in her bedroom in this dwelling soon after Hitler's accession to power because she was jilted by her uncle. However, the story that Hitler strangled her in a fit of passion never died.

Her bedroom appeared still to have the original furnishings. Two American soldiers are now living in it.

Hitler's bedroom struck me as effeminate, except that the couch-like bed was exceptionally hard. The upholstery of the couch and chairs had delicate, light colors such as the average man would not choose. The dresser, night table, stove and tiling were all white. On the linens the initials "A. H." were embroidered.

Only a few minutes from Hitler's retreat is the home of the much-discussed Eva Braun, at Wasserburger Strasse 12. After an inspection and a talk with the caretaker there I must revise my previous opinion on one phase of Hitler's life, namely, his relationship to women.

Bond Between Them

At Eva Braun's house I felt convinced there was some sort of bond between the Führer and the former photographer's assistant. Hitler had a passion for art and architecture. Her library has many books on the subjects.

She appears to have entertained many of Hitler's personal friends, who then sent her books with inscriptions saying how much they enjoyed her hospitality.

But Hitler apparently sometimes gave her books intended for himself. I found a volume on the life of the composer Eugen D. Albert, by Wilhelm Raupp, with the author's dedication to Hitler.

An oil painting of Eva Braun showed a blue-eyed, blond, Gretchen-type of Teutonic maiden.

The appointments of the house, which the housekeeper said Hitler had given to Eva, were in good taste. Nobody seems to know her present whereabouts.

Hermann Meyer

Augsburg, Germany, May 11 (AP). One question stumped Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering today.

A correspondent asked:

"What about the Reichsmarshal's statement that if the Allies ever bombed Berlin 'my name is Meyer'?"

Hermann mopped his brow, reddened and waited for the next question.

MAY 1 2 1945

Eisenhower Meets With Top Aides

Bad Wildungen, Germany, May 11 (AP) — General Eisenhower conferred today with commanders of the 12th Army Group and of the Air Forces on immediate problems confronting them and on plans for the future. The conference last two and one half hours.

Eisenhower was presented with an automatic pistol on which his name and the 90th Infantry Division insigna were engraved. It was a gift of the division.

General Bradley showed the group, who totaled 39 stars, the bay stallion given him by Marshal Ivan Konev, of the 1st Ukrainian Army.

Yanks Round Up German Hordes

By Alvin Steinkopf

Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, May 11 (AP)—On the main highway between Pilsen and Prague a great vagabond army of German troops and civilians, including women and children, is gathering today.

On the fields around a half dozen Czech villages some miles east of Pilsen at least 50,000 persons were in dejected clusters. More were streaming in from the east.

They are the ragtag end of everything the Germans had in Czechoslovakia and the Balkans and they are no wtrying desperately to get home.

Herded Into Large Area

They were herded into several areas of some thousands of acres by road patrols of the United States 2d Division. A division headquarters spokesman said the problem of feeding, transporting and keeping order among them was almost as great a task as D-day.

The worst traffic jam appeared to be near Pilsen.

Within the camp area the Germans were subjected only to the loosest control by a few GI's, but there was a strong guard around the general area so the crowds could not get any farther without orderly supervision.

In fields of new wheat the Germans were sleeping, bathing their aching feet in the drainage ditches and wondering what they would eat.

All Types Of Vehicles

Other Germans moved down the Prague road in every conceivable type of conveyance—one truck frequently towing two or three others which were gasless, without tires or knocked out mechanically.

Even tanks and motorized artillery to which dozens were clinging rumbled into the pocket formed by the American forces.

Many of the crowd were armed—but no immediate effort was made to take away the weapons.

Lieut. Col. Tom C. Morris, of Waxahachie, Texas, who was directing the mighty effort to establish order, said: "They are in no mood to use them, and we have more urgent things to do."

Injured Leave Hospitals

Numerous Germans arose from the beds in hospital field tents—some with arms upraised in splints, some wearing pajamas—and hobbled down the road. All seemed terrified by the prospect of being overtaken by the Russians' motor patrols or Czech Partisans.

A number of American ambulances were ranging out this morning to pick up the most seriously wounded, injured and sick.

At the camps, Colonel Morris was beginning the segregation of soldiers, civilians, families and women.

German soldiers were being processed as prisoners—civilians as displaced persons.

To Czechs' Satisfaction

Thousands of Czechs sitting on village curbs an deven in rocking chairs on the street pavements watched the broken German retreat with grim satisfaction.

Only a few of the Germans were arrogant—most were bewildered and crushed.

Czech Quisling Henlein Kills Self

With United States 3d Army in Czechoslovakia, May 11 (AP)—Konrad Henlein, who before the war delivered the Sudetenland to Hitler, committed suicide yesterday in a war prison camp cage.

It was reported at an American corps headquarters that Henlein slashed his wrists with a razor blade concealed under adhesive tape in a cigarette case.

By taking his own life Henlein escaped execution by the Czechoslovak Government. He had been sentenced to death in absentia by a Czechoslovak court in 1938.

Gave Indirect Service

Allied military authorities said Henlein gave Hitler an indirect service which enabled the German army to turn and break the French Maginot Line speedily.

The Maginot Line was built along specifications used in the Czechoslovak fortifications in the Sudeten mountains.

After annexation of the Sudetenland, German artillerymen and experts in specialized weapons practiced many months developing a casement-smashing technique.

Given Authority

Henlein, after the Munich settlement through which Hitler won control of 3,000,000 Sudetens, exercised wide authority under the Nazis in Czechoslovakia.

As soon as the German Army had moved in Hitler named Henlein Statthalter, or governor, and Gauleiter, or district party leader, and topped these honors with the more weighty job of Reichscommissioner for integration of the Sudetenland into the Reich.

The 47-year-old Henlein, a native of Reichenau, joined the Austrian Army as a volunteer before he was 18, to fight the Italians in the first World War. He was wounded and captured. He returned to his birthplace in 1919 and threw himself into the business of teaching sports with the conviction that men of muscle would be needed by the Germany of the future. He also schooled his trainees in intense "Deutschland Ueber Alles" nationalism.

Enters Politics In 1933

He plunged into Nazi politics in the fall of 1933, six months after Hitler became Chancellor. He launched a public manifesto calling upon all Germans to unite in a "Sudeten German home front." Germans in Czechoslovakia flocked into the movement.

In the general election in 1935, these Henlein followers mustered 1,249,497 votes, which secured for them 44 seats in the House of Deputies and 23 in the Senate. Alarmed, the Czechoslovak Government did everything it could to suppress the movement short of disbanding it by force.

British Reroute Traffic To Get Past Roadblock

With British 8th Army in Austria, May 11 (AP)—Yugoslav Partisans moving into southern Carinthia and Styria in an apparent effort to claim parts of the two Austrian provinces for Marshal Tito, set up a block on a main road yesterday, forcing the 8th Army to reroute traffic temporarily as it sought speedy occupation of its zone.

Partisans, dressed mostly in civilian clothes, and wearing the Tito red star, cut the important highway between Klagenfurt and Graz just below Voelkermarkt by drawing up vehicles three abreast across the pavement.

30 Minutes To Leave

In Voelkermarkt itself the Partisians gave the town administration 30 minutes to leave, and announced they would administer the municipality.

At Klagenfurt, members of the new provisional government for Carinthia claimed that Partisans were attempting to participate in the occupation of the town. They said the Partisans had taken over control of the railroad station for a while, and later of the publishing house in which the official government organ is printed.

Eighth Army troops now are patrolling Klagenfurt, and an 11.30 P.M. curfew has been imposed.

Large Slovenian Groups

The areas into which the Partisans are moving have large Slovenian populations. In a plebiscite conducted by the Allies in 1920 the Carinthia Slovene population voted to remain in the Austrian Republic.

There is no way of judging their preference at present. Most of the flags displayed along the main road involved in the dispute showed the red, white and red of republican Austria and the red, white and gold of Carinthia.

The roads of lower Carinthia were filled with a hodge-podge of nationalities of armed and disarmed soldiers and refugees.

A whole division of Cossacks was camped with accompanying families in the Lienz area. A Ukrainian division which fought under German officers was moving to surrender points. Hungarian troops were moving slowly back in horse-drawn transport toward Hungary and passing through Russian lines.

Croats Disarmed

Croatian troops likewise are being disarmed there, and 20,000 Croatian refugees were reported drifting into the province to escape the Partisans.

In addition there are thousands of Allied prisoners still quartered in prison barracks in the province, anxiously awaiting transport to their home countries.

30.24-25701

To add to the confusion, a large German army of the southeast command was in dissolution throughout the southern part of Carinthia. The roads are lined with abandoned trucks, dead horses, rifles and all the impedimenta of war.

The Nazi Gauleiter of Carinthia, Friedrich Rainer, fled from his post as the 8th Army approached and a new provisional government was set up corresponding roughly to the provisional governments under the early republic after the last war.

10,000 Homeless

It is headed by Hans Piesch, a Social Democrat from Villach, and includes two other Social Democrats, two Christian Socialists (the party of former Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg), two Peasant party members, two Communists and an Independent.

Silvester Leer, councilor for hygiene of the new Government, said 10,000 persons were homeless in Klagenfurt because of air-raid destruction and that there was only a fourteen-day food supply on hand. It was claimed one freight car of supplies had been confiscated by the Yugoslav Partisans, the councilor of public safety said.

"Blood Tyranny"

The British troops were received variously with warm welcome or quiet reserve by part of the population and with obvious distaste by others, but Austrian and Carinthian flags, some of them remade from old Nazi flags, fluttered from many windows.

The Carpathian Press, official organ of the provisional government, said editorially, "we know that the foreign blood tyranny of Hitler, supported by Gestapo concentration camps and armed party hordes, can be beaten down only by the sound arms of a real democracy."

Leopold Prepares For Return Home

Strobl, Austria, May 11 (AP)—King Leopold III of Belgium packed his belongings today preparatory to returning to his homeland under conditions not yet disclosed.

It was certain, however, that Leopold had rejected any demands for immediate abdication that may have been presented.

He has held long conferences with Paul Henri Spaak, Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister, who flew here yesterday from Belgium to outline the Belgian political situation.

The British Government and the United States Army have joined in barring correspondents from talking to the King—unless he indicates a desire to meet them.

Danes Won't Press Schleswig Claim

Copenhagen, May 10 (A. P.).—Denmark will not ask for the return of the Schleswig area ceded to Germany in 1920, the Danish Foreign Minister, J. Christmas Moeller, said today.

Schleswig was ceded to Prussia as a result of the Danish war in 1864 and was not wholly restored to Denmark after the German defeat in 1918. An international commission conducted separate plebiscites in 1920, as a result of which only that part of Schleswig that lies north of the Flensburg Fjord was restored to Denmark and the rest was, in keeping with the wishes of the inhabitants, ceded to Germany.

11,000 Coming Home Soon.

Rome, May 11 (A. P.).—Possibly 11,000 American soldiers will be returned home from the Mediterranean theater during May, headquarters announced today, and 30,000 more will follow in June and July if shipping is available. Soldiers will be chosen for immediate transportation home on the basis of allotments to major commands and their records of service.

Allies Arrest Italian Left-Wing Editor

Rome, May 11 (AP)—The Allied arrest of Carlo Andreoni, editor of the extreme left wing weekly Partisan, provoked protests today in some Italian newspapers.

Partisan was suspended several weeks ago for breaching military censorship. Allied authorities declined to state charges against Andreoni, except to say that "military security" was involved and that no political consideration entered into the arrest.

More Germans Surrender.

Rome, May 11 (A. P.).—The Allied Naval Command announced today that all German garrisons in the Dodecanese Islands, totaling about 20,000 men, have surrendered.

Involved in the surrender were Nazi forces on Crete, Rhodes, Milos, Leros and other smaller islands. Crete previously had been partly occupied by Allied forces and landing parties were put ashore on the other islands May 9.

MAY 12 1945

Umberto Warned

MAY 12 1945

Rome, May 11 (AP)—Prince Umberto of Italy has been warned by a Socialist member of the Committee of National Liberation that he might be executed if he returns to Milan.

Addressing a Socialist mass meeting, Sandro Pertini declared: "Let all men responsible for our ruin know that there is a Piazza Loreto in Milan." Piazza Loreto is where the bodies of Benito Mussolini and other Fascists were displayed.

Pertini also referred to shots fired by Italian Partisans at a villa at Milan in which Umberto was supposed to stay during a recent visit.

The Royal House had no immediate comment on the threat. Marquis Lucifero, minister of the Royal House, said Umberto had returned to Rome and added that during the Milan tour the Prince had lived outside the city and that no shots were fired at the building in which he actually stayed.

Baron von Kremeny Seized

MERANO, Italy, May 10 (Delayed) (AP)—Baron von Kremeny, Foreign Minister in the Hungarian Government that overthrew the Horthy regime and handed Hungary over to the Germans last October, was among a group of German agents rounded up today.

Greece To Restore Property To Jews

Athens, May 11 (AP)—The Greek Government announced today that properties belonging to German and Italian Jews would be released from sequestration and restored to their owners.

The Government will set up a special organization to administer abandoned Jewish properties until they are restored to owners or legitimate heirs.

RUSSIA BEGINS RECONVERSION

Industry Swinging To Making Of Consumer Goods

Moscow, May 11 (AP)—Partial reconversion of Russia's vast industry went into effect today after wartime operation under Marshal Stalin's slogan of "everything for the front."

Clothing output for the second quarter of 1945 would be more than 60 per cent above the first quarter, the People's Commissariat of Light Industry announced, as other plans for the swing to production of consumer goods were disclosed.

The newspaper Vechernaya Moskva said local industry in the Moscow district in the second quarter would turn out 334,000,000 rubles worth of consumer goods—an increase of 13,000,000 over the last quarter.

Concentrate On Shoes

The factories in this district were concentrating on the production of shoes, hats and knitted goods, but fresh production of much-needed alarm and electric wall clocks also was begun.

The big Khimki factories near Moscow were undergoing restoration for the early production of chairs, tables and wardrobes.

The swing to consumer goods even reached factories which used to turn out geographic globes for schools. It was announced that 10,000 of these would be produced shortly.

The Commissariat of Trade said 250 snack shops would be opened this summer in Moscow's parks.

Egg Prices Drop

Cafeterias will be installed in 2,300 stores and more than 1,100 restaurants will be opened before September.

New farmers' markets are being established to handle produce in the Moscow district. Currently these markets are in direct competition with state commercial food stores and prices in both have been dropping consistently since Easter, 1944, when the commercial stores opened with unrationed food.

The biggest development in this sphere was the cut by almost twenty per cent in prices of top-grade fresh eggs in the commercial stores just before victory day.

New Roads Planned

The executive committee of the Moscow District of Laborers announced a doubling in production of buildings goods, with special priorities given schools and hospitals.

Plans were disclosed for hundreds of miles of new road construction.

Production of samovars was resumed at Tula, center of samovar production.

The Council of People's Commissars decided 176,000 students would be accepted in higher educational institutions during the 1945-46 academic year. Classes will open on October 1.

4,000 Fleeing Nazis Land In Sweden

Stockholm, May 11 (AP)—Sweden experienced a German "invasion" yesterday when more than 4,000 German soldiers and civilians, fleeing from Russian forces in their homeland, landed at various points in south Sweden, Swedish press reports said.

All the Germans were sent on their way by Swedish authorities. Most of them set out for Denmark, although some were quoted as saying "we are headed for a British or American-occupied port."

Between 1,500 and 1,600 German soldiers landed at Kalmar last night. Another 1,000 arrived at Gotland. Four ships with 400 German troops from Hela Peninsula at Danzig reached Ystad yesterday morning and more trickled in throughout the day until about 800 had arrived.

Three small steamers landed another 200 soldiers at Simrishamn and 175 at another point, press reports said.

Sweden Sends Relief Supplies Into Norway

Stockholm, May 11 (AP)—Sweden, by previous agreement with the Norwegian Government, already is moving relief supplies into hungry Norway, it was disclosed today.

The Swedes promised to deliver the following after Norway's liberation:

Fifty-five thousand tons of grain, 5,000 tons of flour, 4,000 tons of fats, 10,000 tons of sugar, 3,000 tons of peas, 1,000 tons of meat, 2,000 tons of condensed milk and 10,000 tons of seed of all kinds.

A Swedish tanker was bringing 13,000 tons of wheat from Argentina to Norway. In addition, the Argentine Government is shipping Norway 40,000 tons of wheat, which the Swedish Government has agreed to transport.

3 Ships Reported Sunk In Baltic

Stockholm, May 11 (AP)—Three ships carrying between 300 and 400 German soldiers and Baltic refugees were sunk by a plane east of the Swedish Baltic Sea island of Gottland Wednesday and no survivors have been found, Swedish press dispatches said today. The soldiers and refugees were reported to have fled from the Latvian city of Wondau.

NAZIS DROWNED CIVILIANS IN SUBWAY

In addition to the army propaganda post, in which he was charged with directing the political education of all officers and men, Scherbakov was chief of the Soviet Information Bureau and secretary general of the Central Communist Party in the Moscow district.

400,000 Nazis In Norway Quit Posts in Cities

Go to Rural Concentration Areas; Oslo Has Flare-Up; Allied Sky Troops Arrive

OSLO, May 11 (AP).—Sporadic shooting between Nazi diehards and Norwegian patriots broke out in Oslo early today, but by midnight tonight approximately 400,000 Nazi troops, the German occupation force in Norway, will have withdrawn from all cities and towns, it was announced.

A sharp duel between home-front forces and a small group of German S. S. (Elite Guard) men and Norwegian "Hirdmen" took place in the downtown area of Oslo, where the Nazi group had hidden in a building. Patriots swarmed to the roof from adjoining buildings and killed an undetermined number of S. S. and "Hirdmen" in a four-hour battle.

British Brigadier General Richard Hilton, chief of the Allies Control Commission in Norway, announced that the 400,000 Nazi troops in Norway at the time of its capitulation are withdrawing from all towns to concentration points throughout the country, where they will await return to Germany.

Hilton told a press conference that a full air-borne division of British and Norwegian troops has arrived in Norway and taken posts at strategic points. More are expected, he said. A few American civil affairs officers also have arrived, principally to work out plans for relieving Norway's food situation.

Russian troops in Norway's far northern provinces have stopped their advance in Finmark, Hilton said, adding that a demarcation line has been fixed by the Soviet Union and the Western Allies.

ance Music In Utrecht

Swiss, Alsatians Riot, Demand Open Frontier

Basel, Switzerland, May 11 (AP)—Attacks by Swiss and Alsatians on frontier guards from both sides in demonstrations for the resumption of free movement across the border resulted in the closing of the frontier at Lysbuechel today after several of a crowd of 500 were crushed and injured.

Police, armored cars and troops restored order. The series of incidents was attributed to V-E holiday jubilance as well as the desire to see frontier relations fully restored.

The Swiss estimated there were 110,000 refugees in Switzerland. Including 9,500 Soviet citizens. They said 43,000 refugees arrived in the last weeks of the European war, among them a number of Nazi airmen who flew into Switzerland with their families. The Swiss said there were no notable fugitives among them.

B-29'S PUT MINES INTO JAP WATERS

Bombers Seek To Disorganize Nippon's Shipping

MAY 12 1945

Guam, Saturday, May 12 (AP)—American Superfortresses are sowing Japan's harbors and Inland Sea with mines in a gigantic operation to disorganize Nippon's shipping while fleets of B-29's hammer the enemy's homeland factories and airfields.

The big bombers spanned the sea from their Marianas Islands bases yesterday in three attacks on the empire islands, hitting a vital seaplane factory in the Kobe area on Honshu Island and airfields on Kyushu.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, said the Superfortresses started on March 27 the first attempt in military history to lock a maritime nation in a complete aerial mine blockade.

Each Carries Ten Tons

The B-29's, each carrying around ten tons of mines, in nearly a dozen missions have planted the explosives in the Inland Sea and the harbors of Tokyo, Nagoya and other major Japanese cities.

Operations to plant the mines and maintain a close reconnaissance, to replace explosives swept up by the Japanese, are directed by Brig. Gen. John H. Davies of Piedmont, Cal., with the co-operation of the Navy which supplies the mines.

Aside from attempting to lock Japanese naval units in their bases, the mining missions also are aimed at hamstringing commercial craft. American officials estimated that 75 per cent of all of Nippon's transportation is waterborne.

Seaplane Plant Bombed

Nearly 150 superfortresses yesterday pounded the Kawanishi seaplane plant near Kobe only a few hours after 400 B-29's had devastated Japan's oil reserves and fuel plants at Tokuyama and Otake, on Honshu, and at Oshima.

A smaller fleet of the giant bombers also attacked the Oita and Saeki airfields on Kyushu Island, and later another force of around 50 B-29's bombed the Kyushu industrial cities of Miyakanojo and Nittigahara, and the oft-hit Miyasaki airfield.

All Planes Return Safely

Miyamanoko and Nittigahara are important industrial areas in Japan's scheme of dispersed workshops in homes near big factories.

[In Washington, the 20th Air Force headquarters said yesterday's attack on the Kawanishi plane plant was by visual means as well as instrument, and that results were "good."

All planes from both the mission and from the attack by the smaller fleet on airfields on Kyushu Island returned safely, headquarters said. There was little opposition from enemy aircraft although considerable anti-aircraft fire was reported.]

Supplements Attacks

Tokyo radio reported without confirmation that the American planes also hit "military facilities" on the southwestern tip of Shikoku Island, another link in the Japanese home chain.

Le May said the aerial mine laying operations supplemented the Japanese homeland bombing attacks in destroying Nippon's productive facilities.

Superforts Blockade Japan By Dropping Aerial Mines

MAY 12 1945

Ten Tons of High Explosives Are Laid in Enemy Waters by Each B-29 of 21st Bomber Command.

ERICKSON

Guam, May 11 (A. P.).—Superfortresses carrying out the largest aerial mining blockade in history have polluted Japan's Inland Sea and the Tokyo and Nagoya harbors with high explosives, Major-Gen. Curtis E. Le May announced today.

The Twenty-first Bomber Command chief said that nearly a dozen aerial mining missions had been carried out by the Superforts each equipped with approximately ten tons of mines.

Brig.-Gen. John H. Davies of Piedmont, Cal., commands the Tinian-based B-29s mining the enemy waters. Operations have not been confined to the areas mentioned today. Mines have been dropped in all major ports of Japan, and particularly in Shimonoseki Strait between Kyushu and Honshu islands.

Gen. Davies personally led the first mission on March 27 in the opening of the first attempt in military history to impose a complete mine blockade on a maritime nation.

Objective of Campaign.

The objective of the mine-laying campaign is to supplement the thunderous step-up in bombing of Japan's homeland islands by other Superforts. Carrying out of both operations can aid in destruction of Japan's productive power.

It is estimated 75 per cent of all Japanese transportation is waterborne.

Mines also were strewn in strategic areas to support the invasion of Okinawa. All missions were flown at night, generally under 10,000 feet altitude.

Parachutes from six to nine feet in diameter were automatically released from the Navy-made mines on contact with the water. Gen. Le May explained that an aerial mining campaign must be maintained to be successful. Aerial mines used to sink to the bottom. They explode when a ship comes near enough to active firing mechanism, and contact is not necessary. The mine blockade, however, remains effective only as long as it takes for the Japanese to clear a channel through fields.

Must Be Kept Polluted.

"Thus, while the Inland Sea is polluted with mines and Tokyo and Nagoya harbors are filled with missiles, the Twenty-first Bomber Command must be constantly alert to keep them so," the General's announcement stated.

A constant check on minefields is maintained by aerial reconnaissance. Japan is depending more and more on sea transportation because railroad and motor facilities are strained to the maximum. The destruction of raw materials stockpiles by incendiary and demolition bombing raids requires transfer of raw materials, and sea travel is the enemy's alternative.

"In particular," said Gen. Le-may's statement, "the transfer of Japanese fuel supplies which are stored in a few regions will be greatly disorganized. This will have a great effect in view of the fact the Japanese sources of oil and aviation gasoline from the south is now nearly cut off."

One Tinian-based Superfort mining mission was flown at high altitude over the Kure naval base on the Inland Sea. High altitude was necessary to avoid possible anti-aircraft fire from Japanese navy ships, many of which were in port.

JAPAN IS HIT AGAIN BY LARGE FLEET OF SUPERFORTRESSES

100 Blast Seaplane Plant and Five Other Targets Also Are Pounded.

ERICKSON

Guam, May 11 (A. P.).—Superfortresses attacked the Japanese homeland three times today, striking at three industrial centers and three airfields in a swift follow-up to yesterday's 400-plane blow.

In the heaviest assault today 100 to 140 Superfortresses attacked the big Kawanishi seaplane plant on Honshu, between Kobe and Osaka, while a smaller fleet blasted the Oita and Saiki air fields on Kyushu.

The latest attack was aimed at the important cities of Miyakanojo and Nittigahara, on Honshu and at the Miyakasaki airfield on Kyushu, Kyushu airfields, bases of the enemy planes used in Okinama, have been pounded time after time by Superfortresses.

No immediate reports of damage wrought by the third raid were made, and the bombing was done through undercast by precision instruments.

Japan's oil reserves were hammered for the first time in yesterday's 400-plane attack which included the Tokuyama, and Otake and Oshima oil storage areas. Not a plane was lost. The Japanese opposition was weak.

Describing the strike on oil targets, Col. Wiley D. Ganey of Andalusia, Ala., said: "The sky looked like a B-29 training school. Superfortresses were everywhere. I saw a column of smoke 15,000 feet high and a quarter of a mile wide rising over the target . . . and flames leaping into the air in a solid mass 300 to 1,000 feet high."

Capt. Phillip M. Greene of Larchmont, N. Y., a B-29 commander and veteran of twenty-five missions over Japan, reported: "We could see a huge field of oil storage tanks popping wide open and bursting into flames."

All B-29 commanders joined in general reports of excellent bombing results on the first big-scale raid on critical Japanese oil resources.

Reconnaissance photographs showed, meanwhile, that two important aircraft works, the Hiro Naval Airplane Factory and the Tachikawa Engine Plant, were damaged heavily in recent Superfortress raids on Honshu. A raid last Saturday damaged the Hiro factory 75 per cent. Superfortresses the same day caused 80 per cent roof area damage to the nearby Hiro naval engine and turbine factory. The Hiro works are five miles east of Kure. The Tachikawa engine factory in the Tokyo area was 80 per cent burned out in an attack of April 24, the photographs also showed.

Army Forces Smash Ahead On Okinawa

10th Army Launches Strongest Drive Of 41-Day Campaign.

MAY 12 1945

GUAM, Saturday, May 12—(AP)—Four divisions of the 10th U. S. Army launched the strongest attack of the 41-day old Okinawa campaign shortly after dawn yesterday despite numerous Japanese counterattacks by land and air throughout the preceding night.

A series of enemy aerial attacks on American shore installations and ships lying off Okinawa damaged three small naval units, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said in today's communique.

Shoot Down 40 Planes

More than 40 attacking planes were shot down.

On land, "practically all of the attacking Japanese were killed," Nimitz reported. The enemy made several night assaults on American front lines and a number of attempts at infiltration. All were frustrated.

Maj. Gen. Leonard C. Shepherd, Jr.'s Sixth Marine Division, which the previous day bridged the Asa river estuary, paced the ground offensive, advancing 800 yards to within 1,000 yards of Naha, Okinawa's bomb and shell-shattered capital.

In the center, these leathernecks and 77th Division Army troops gained heights dominating Shuri, medieval fortress city called the key to the Japanese defense system.

Fresh Outfits

All four of the assaulting divisions—the First and Sixth Marine and 77th and 96th Army—were fairly fresh outfits. The 96th had about a week's rest and the other three moved into the lines about a week ago.

Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's 7th Army Division presumably had been relieved from the east coast by the 96th Division after 40 days of tough fighting in the line.

Tactically, the most important gains were made in the center by tank-led troops of the First Marine and 77th Army Divisions. They fought the Japanese hand to hand in rough, high ground before Shuri. Maj. Gen. Pedro A. Del Valle's first division leathernecks occupied the village of Dakeshi near Naha.

Nimitz also reported 612 Japanese were killed Thursday, increasing enemy dead on Okinawa to 39,469.

He disclosed navy casualties from start of the Ryukyus campaign March 18 through Wednesday totaled 6,853. These were 1,283 officers and men killed, 3,498 wounded and 2,072 missing.

His last report on navy casualties, May 2, listed 5,551 total casualties, including 1,131 killed.

All-Out Naha Drive Is Seen Shaping Up

PORT

Guam, May 11 (AP)—A determined United States offensive against Naha, Okinawa's capital city, was shaping up today after the 6th Marine Division, newly committed to the island's southern front, bridged the Asa River estuary despite efforts of two Japanese human bombs to blow up the span.

Still another wide, winding river—the Asato—stands before Naha as a natural barrier to American troops. Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr.'s 6th Marine Division, the third fresh division thrown into the craggy, cave-infested southern front in a week, forced the crossing of the Asa in darkness early yesterday. The Marines are about a mile from Naha.

Two Japanese attempted to blow up the span by covering themselves with explosives and detonating the charges as they plunged onto the bridge. Their act served only to damage the span and delay the crossing.

Limited Gains Made

Elsewhere along the southern front, Marines and doughboys made "limited gains" yesterday, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communiqué reported today. He announced these other developments:

Japanese casualties through Wednesday total 38,857 killed, an increase of 2,322 in two days' fighting. American casualties through Monday were 16,425, including 2,684 dead, in ground fighting.

Sixty-nine Japanese were killed on Iwo Jima in the week of April 29-May 5, and 57 captured for total casualties there of 23,244 killed and 1,038 captured. Iwo was invaded February 19 and secured March 16.

A light naval force evacuated 494 Marshallese natives from Jaluit Atoll in the Marshall Islands in a daring rescue effected while Japanese counterattacked with machine guns and other light weapons.

Japs Resume Attacks

Under clearing skies, Japanese aircraft resumed their attacks on America's Okinawa forces late Wednesday and early yesterday, damaging two fleet auxiliaries. Six attackers were destroyed.

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported from Okinawa that Rear Admiral Lawrence F. Reifsnider's flagship escaped a suicide pilot's attack by only a few feet and that another pilot narrowly missed another ship. Neither vessel was damaged. (Reifsnider's last announced command was of transports.)

Japanese also bombed Yontan airfield on Okinawa, but the holes they blasted in a runway were repaired in two hours. Marine pilots downed four attackers.

Northern Area Secured

The northern three fourths of Okinawa is considered so secure that control of that area was passed to Gen. Fred G. Wallace as island commander. United States military Government officials are caring for 135,000 Okinawa civilians in that secured area.

The Navy's heavy ships shelled Japanese fortifications a fifth successive day, knocking out pillboxes, gun emplacements, motor transports and breaking up troop concentrations in rear areas. Carrier and Marine planes also supported ground forces.

Formosa Battered.

San Francisco, May 11 (A. P.).—Seventy Allied bombers and more than forty fighters battered Formosa by daylight today, concentrating on the port of Tainan, the Tokyo radio declared in a broadcast recorded here today by the FCC. They came in several waves from the Philippines, it was stated.

Tokyo also expressed concern over the mounting attacks from the Philippines, saying: "The enemy air force transferred to the Philippines from China bases has now completed preparations for air activities from bases in the archipelago."

Yanks In Third Landing To Trap Mindanao Japs

MAY 12 1945

By Dean Schedler

MANILA, Saturday, May 12 (AP)—American troops made a third landing on Mindanao island Thursday, surprising one of the principal Japanese forces remaining in the southern Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

Go Ashore Unopposed

Yanks of the 40th Division, veterans of a half dozen Philippine campaigns, went ashore unopposed at Macajalar Bay, on the north Mindanao coast, after a destroyer bombardment which concentrated on Japanese positions along the Sayre highway. They quickly established a beachhead and pushed four miles inland.

Australian and Dutch elements on Tarakan island, Borneo, pushed ahead two miles, expanding their hold on that rich oil area. They reached to within a mile and a half of the southern end of the island but the Japanese were fighting fiercely in the central part.

The new Mindanao landing formed the northern jaw of a pincers on the Japanese Sukidnon garrison in the interior, which already was menaced from the south by the U. S. 31st Division. MacArthur said it caught the enemy out of position and left him "incapable of serious opposition." His local defenses already had been dislocated by guerrillas.

"Throughout Mindanao," MacArthur said, "the enemy's garrisons are now divided and isolated from each other and from all outside sources."

The Japanese force at Davao, southeastern Mindanao, was under attack by the Yank 24th Division and was fighting with increasing vigor, but was unable to retreat northward to the interior because of the position of the 31st.

An army spokesman disclosed also that guerrillas under Col. Wendell Fertig landed about two weeks ago at Butuan Bay on the north central Mindanao coast in the first amphibious guerrilla operation under cover of American naval guns, and had been harassing the Japanese positions in that area.

Other guerrillas were jabbing at the Nipponese in the Agusan valley, in far northeastern Mindanao. In the extreme southern part, MacArthur reported, a Nipponese force was pocketed in the Sarangani area. Only fleeing remnants of the enemy remained on Gamboanga peninsula, to the southwest.

Converge On Ipo Dam

Two American columns converging on Ipo dam on Luzon island were less than four miles apart after a long drawn out maneuver to clear the area of entrenched Japanese. Ipo dam supplies Manila with water.

Medium bombers and fighters supported the Tarakan advance and also bombed enemy positions near Brunei Bay, on the northeast coast of Borneo, starting many fires.

Heavy bombers dropped 180 tons of explosives on Tien Ho and White Cloud, satellite air bases outside enemy held Canton, on the South China coast. Patrol planes again harassed Formosa targets.

MacArthur reported yesterday that Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's 24th Division was meeting stiff resistance around Davao and that the battle there was mounting in intensity.

The battle area was a triangular terrain bordered by the Talomo and Davao rivers.

Oil Field Penetrated

Some 600 miles to the southwest, on Tarakan island off the east coast of Borneo, Australian and Dutch troops had penetrated the Djoeata oil field, one of the objectives of their recent invasion. Enemy opposition was slight.

Meanwhile the drive for control of Manila's watershed area gained momentum, with the 43rd Infantry Division and guerrillas tightening their encirclement of the vital Ipo dam. It impounds water from the Angat river. A lengthy siege of that area, headquarters reported Friday, had cost the Japanese heavily in personnel, food and medical and war supplies.

Effectiveness of the air blockade of the South Seas was said by headquarters to have virtually ended organized Japanese commerce. In the first four months of this year nearly 2,000,000 tons of enemy shipping were reported sunk or severely damaged.

Yanks Make Gains On Mindanao

Manila, May 11 (AP)—Infantrymen of Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's 24th Division were reported today making steady gains against stiff resistance in a mounting battle with Japan's Mindanao island garrison near the captured port city of Davao.

The battleground was a triangular area between the Talomo and Davao rivers, due northwest of Davao City. The Yanks, who crossed the Talomo Tuesday, were faced with the tough job of rooting the enemy out of elaborate cave defenses.

A strong force of Marine divebombers closely supported the ground fight.

Evacuation Of City

A headquarters spokesman said perhaps 18,000 Japanese civilians had evacuated Davao City.

Davao and newly invaded Samal Island offshore are firmly in American hands. The port is one of the best in the Philippines.

On Tarakan Island, off Borneo, Australian and Dutch troops reached the edge of the Djoeata oil field, second largest on the oil-rich little island, against slight opposition.

Strong Japanese positions were reported in depth, however, between captured Api Hill and another eminence named Hill 105.

All above-ground oil installations at Djoeata had been destroyed.

Near Dam On Luzon

On Luzon, the 43rd Infantry Division, aided by guerrillas, closed in from four directions on Ipo Dam, which diverts one third of the Angat River into Manila's water system. Opposition was light.

MacArthur reported that American and Allied pilots flying the tight blockade of Japanese sea lanes have sunk or seriously damaged 1,892,082 tons of shipping in the first four months of this year.

"Enemy organized commerce in these lanes has practically disappeared," he said, "and only scattered and sporadic traffic is now attempted."

Predicts Jap Surrender.

Manila, May 11 (A. P.).—A lieutenant-commander in the Japanese Navy who surrendered recently to United States Sixth Division troops said today that he believed Japan would surrender in the near future. The officer, whose name was withheld, expressed belief surrender would follow sustained saturation bombing of Japanese metropolitan areas and industrial centers.

27th Division Honors 3 War Correspondents

Okinawa, May 11 (AP)—The 27th Division, former New York National Guard outfit, has elected three war correspondents to honorary membership in the organization.

In a ceremony at headquarters, Maj. Gen. George W. Griner, of Chapel Hill, N.C., division commander, presented the honorary certificates to Corespondent James Lindsley, Los Angeles, and Photographer Charles P. Gorry, Hillis, Long Island, N.Y., both of the Associated Press, and Langdon (Don) Semick, Butte, Mont., and San Francisco, of Fox Movietone News.

The certificates said the "General imposed great confidence and trust" in the trio and recognized them as "comrades under fire to the soldiers."

12,600 U.S. Losses, Jap Okinawa Claim

San Francisco, May 11 (AP)—In a totally unconfirmed report, Japanese imperial headquarters today claimed to have inflicted 12,600 American casualties and sunk or damaged seventeen ships in the Okinawa battle between April 29 and May 7.

Claimed as sunk in an imperial communiqué, monitored here, were two auxiliary aircraft carriers, one battleship, two cruisers, one transport, one submarine, and a craft "of unidentified category." Listed as "heavily damaged" were three auxiliary aircraft carriers, one transport and five craft "of unidentified category."

In addition, said the communiqué, 134 tanks have been "destroyed or set ablaze" on Okinawa.

The sole admission of American activity said American forces on Okinawa are "repeatedly attacking our position."

Singapore Seen As Next Goal For Mountbatten Men

Calcutta, May 11 (AP)—With Rangoon captured and the campaign in Burma virtually ended, troops of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia Command turned their eyes toward Singapore today as their next likely objective.

While some of Mountbatten's men have been in the jungles for a year or more and are much in need of rest, others are comparatively fresh and could be quickly made ready for a new campaign.

The latter include the forces which took Rangoon in a combined sea and air operation—just such troops as would be needed for a landing on the Malay Peninsula north of Singapore or on the island of Sumatra, across Malacca Strait from Malaya.

Backed By Fleet

This special group of paratroopers and amphibious troops is backed by a fleet growing in size week by week and likely to increase now that the European campaign is ended.

A drive to oust the Japanese from Malaya would compare with other operations in the Pacific which have been launched from bases 400 to 600 miles away from the objectives.

Trincomalee, the British naval base in Ceylon, is 600 miles across the Bay of Bengal from Sumatra, which lies between India and Singapore. Yet Trincomalee is the only suitable harbor on the eastern coast of India where the major elements of an amphibious expedition could be assembled. Even Rangoon offers little help, for it is a port far up a badly silted river.

There is the genuine prospect, however, that operations elsewhere in the Pacific may advance so fast that British forces will be able to walk into Singapore unopposed. Certainly, Japanese forces facing the Southeast Asia Command have neither air force nor navy to aid them. It is estimated that there are between 200 and 300 Japanese planes to defend the entire Sumatra and Malaya area, while no portion of the Japanese surface fleet has dared to venture so far south of the Japanese home waters. A few Jap submarines continue to operate in the Bay of Bengal but their job is increasingly difficult, as their facilities are limited and they are under constant Allied air attack.

Japs Could Be Cut Off

Without naval support to provide escape by sea, Japanese forces in Singapore could be completely cut off by attack across the narrow neck of Malaya itself.

The pressure on the Japanese, from Burma on the west to the Philippines on the east, has been concerted during recent months to hit the enemy on all fronts. Already American and British efforts in this theater are being divided in a plan to get at Japan's soft spots.

With Burma captured and the China supply line safe, the general expectation here is that India soon will be merely a supply channel to China so far as American forces are concerned.

THAILAND NOW BRITISH GOAL

Attacks Also Made To Clear Way To Malaya

MAY 12 1945

Calcutta, May 11 (AP)—British forces operating from their newly captured Burmese supply base at Rangoon, 780 sea miles from here, launched air and land attacks today to clear the approaches for an invasion of Thailand and Malaya.

Lieutenant General Messervy's 4th British Corps headquarters disclosed that the British had counted 16,730 slain Japanese in their drive through Burma, and estimated the total number killed at 50 per cent more. Three hundred prisoners have been taken since April 1, and 256 artillery pieces.

Mopping Up Continues

Heavy fighting was reported as land forces cleared villages in the area of the Pegu-Moulmein railway running east around the top of Martaban Gulf. Eastern Air Command heavy bombers attacked a Japanese supply dump at Mergui, guard point well down the Malay peninsula. Other bombers attacked buildings along routes east of the Rangoon-Mandalay railway, the Pegu-Toungoo sector and boats at Moulmein.

Mopping up of Japanese forces trapped in the rear continued, with 14th Army men fighting their way into Padan, 25 miles southwest of Minbu on the Irrawaddy River. Troops from Taungup cleared the road to Prome in the interior and pushed down to Sandoway at the west end of the Rangoon peninsula.

Goad's 'A Happy Guy'—He Wins Back His Wife

Calcutta, May 11 (AP)—Lieut. Harold W. Goad says he is "a very happy guy." He has just learned that his wife, who remarried after he was reported killed in action, plans legal action to end her second marriage.

"The thought of getting back to my wife was the biggest thing that kept me going all the time I was imprisoned," said Goad, who was held for eighteen months in a Rangoon jail.

"I am still pretty confused about it all, but there's one thing for sure, and that's that nobody is to blame."

Big Offensive Will Follow Hunan Blows

Smashing Of Chihkiang Airbase Precedes New Heavier Assaults—Paoching In Ruins—Nipponese Throw In Reserves.

By Spencer Moosa

CHUNGKING, May 11 (AP)—The smashing of the Japanese drive on the U. S. airbase at Chihkiang and counter-attacks along the entire Hunan province front are but preludes "to a general Chinese counter offensive," an Army spokesman declared tonight.

Troops Near Paoching

Already, the High Command declared, Chinese troops are six miles northwest of Paoching, the big Hunan Province base 125 miles east of Chihkiang from which the Japanese launched their ill-fated drive.

Paoching itself was in ruins after 100 U. S. 14th Airforce bombers unloaded 100 tons of high explosives on the city Wednesday in one of the heaviest aerial blows of the war in China.

The north and south pincers of a broad Chinese movement closed on the main highway about 40 miles west of Paoching, trapping large numbers of the enemy, the spokesman declared.

The Japanese threw in reserves in an attempt to halt this counter-drive, trying to salvage something from the wreckage of their Chihkiang campaign. Chihkiang is 250 miles southeast of Chungking.

The Chinese estimated that one-third of the 80,000 enemy soldiers who began the march on Chihkiang April 9 had been killed or wounded, much higher figures than those from the front by Associated Press Correspondent Clyde Farnsworth.

Go Into Action

Simultaneously, it was disclosed that Chinese troops who long had been standing watch on Communist-controlled territory in Shensi Province had gone into action against the Japanese.

These troops, the spokesman said, were attacking from three sides in an attempt to retake the Hupeh Province air base city of Laohokow, 350 miles northeast of Chungking.

These forces are under the command of Gen. Hu Tsung-Nan, one of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's most trusted lieutenants.

Severe fighting was in progress west of the Japanese bastion of Hsihsiakow, north of Laohokow.

The spokesman asserted 20,000 Japanese troops had been shifted over the Tientsin-Pikow Railroad south of the Great Wall to bolster coastal defenses against a feared American invasion.

Pursue Retreating Columns

The victory-flushed Chinese were lashing out all along the 75-mile Hunan front in pursuit of the retreating Japanese columns.

Besieged Wukang, 80 miles southeast of Chihkiang, was relieved. Sinning, 100 miles southeast of Chihkiang and 50 miles southwest of Paoching, was recaptured.

Chinese troops filtering through enemy lines closest to Paoching were engaged in battle by Japanese reserves.

Japanese caught by the closing of the pincers were under attack at Kaosha, about 50 miles west of Paoching.

The spokesman declared that four Japanese divisions, the 13th, 34th, 68th and 116th, were "pretty well mauled".

He said the Chinese counteroffensive was "well co-ordinated and well-planned" with a small number of better-equipped Chinese troops making a substantial contribution to the victory.

Jap Troops Encircled By Chinese Forces

Chungking, May 11 (AP)—Chinese troops, supported by United States 14th Air Force planes, have surrounded a large number of Japanese troops 40 miles west of Paoching after smashing an enemy drive on the American airbase at Chihkiang, a Chinese Army spokesman said today.

In a pincers movement, Chinese forces from the north and from the south met on the main highway leading to Chihkiang from Paoching, main springboard of the Japanese offensive in Hunan.

The spokesman said the Japanese were throwing in reserves in an attempt to halt the Chinese counteroffensive, which resulted in 1,000 enemy troops killed when the main assault on Chihkiang was crushed.

Third Are Casualties

The spokesman asserted that one third of an estimated 80,000 enemy troops employed in the drive on the airbase had been killed or wounded since April 9.

A previous estimate from Chihkiang was much lower.

A dispatch from Chihkiang, by Associated Press Correspondent Clyde Farnsworth, stated that in less than one month between 4,500 and 6,000 Japanese had been killed as Chinese ground forces and United States air support combined to halt the enemy offensive aimed at the base.

"This slaughter was made possible," he wrote, "by vast improvement in air-ground collaboration, the details of which are secret, plus a new fighting spirit among Chinese troops with whom the United States Army's Chinese Combat Command is working closely, supplying tactical advice."

Jap Air Power Cut

At the same time, Farnsworth added, Japanese air power has become almost nonexistent.

"It is a significant commentary on the waning Japanese airpower that Japan should have committed between 20,000 and 25,000 troops to the task of knocking out Chihkiang without being able to allocate any air support," he said.

Crushing of the major drive on the air base, possibly the turning point in the campaign to oust the enemy from the Chinese interior, led to encirclement to Japanese units at Tungkow, 70 miles east of Chihkiang, and at Shammen, 75 miles to the east.

Chinese troops advanced 9½ miles after turning back the enemy push at 4 A.M. Wednesday, the high command announced.

CHINESE PREPARE FOR HUNAN DRIVE

Chungking, May 11 (A. P.).—Chinese troops pushing back the Japanese on the seventy-eight-mile Hunan province front are fighting a "prelude to a general Chinese counteroffensive," an Army spokesman said tonight.

An American Army communique described Paoching, the reinforcement and supply funnel for the Japanese on the Hunan front, as a burned out city following attacks made on it Wednesday by 100 United States Fourteenth Air Force bombers and fighters. The American planes dropped more than 100 tons of bombs.

Earlier a Chinese Army spokesman said that Chinese troops, supported by American planes, surrounded a large number of Japanese in the area forty miles west of Paoching. The now smashed Japanese drive had been directed at the American air base at Chihkiang.

HALSEY SAYS JAPS WILL TRY PEACE FEELER

Admiral Tells Chaplains War Must Be Fought to Successful End.

HE WANTS TOKYO WEAKENED

Declares Pressure Will Be Brought on Home Front to Bring Strife to Close.

MAY 12 1945

Somewhere in the Pacific, May 11 (A. P.).—Predicting that the Japanese will put out a strong peace feeler in the near future, Admiral William F. Halsey said: "It would be criminal not to fight this war through to a successful conclusion."

In a speech before Army, Navy and Marine chaplains of the Pacific Ocean area yesterday, the Admiral said:

"There will be pressure brought to bear to accept this peace from parents at home who want to save the lives of their sons and other loved ones, but we must think also of our grandchildren as well as of our children. It would be criminal not to fight this war through to a successful conclusion that will leave the Japanese nation too weak to wage another war."

He told the chaplains that the job of combating pacifism, in the sense of disarmament after the war, is largely up to the clergy.

"The professional military man is perhaps the greatest of all pacifists in the sense of not wanting war. The professional knows all of the horrors of past wars and can foresee ones to come. However, he also knows the value of being forearmed."

Contending that the pacifist attitude which caused disarmament after the last war was partly responsible for the present conflict, he asserted:

"The Japs wouldn't have dared attack us if we'd been as strong then as we are now."

He congratulated the chaplains for the work they have done on the battleships and warships of the Pacific

U-Boat Surrenders

Halifax, Nova Scotia, May 11 (AP). A German submarine has surrendered to a Newfoundland-based RCAF Liberator in the North Atlantic—the first U-boat to give up to the Canadians since the cease-firing order in Europe, Eastern Air Command headquarters announced tonight.

2 Canadian Ships Hit In St. Lawrence Gulf

Ottawa, May 11 (AP) — German U-boats ventured far up the Gulf of St. Lawrence last Autumn and damaged the Canadian frigate Magog and a Canadian merchant vessel, Navy Minister Macdonald announced.

Three men were killed and three injured in the torpedoing of the Magog, but there was no loss of life on the merchant ship. Both ships remained afloat and were taken to port for repairs.

CANADA PLANS RELEASES

Volunteers for War in Pacific Will Be Brought Home First

OTTAWA, May 11 (AP)—The Government announced today that Canadian troops volunteering for service in the Pacific would be the first to be brought home from Europe.

On their return to Canada these men will receive thirty-day furloughs and then will be assigned to concentration areas for training and transport to the Pacific.

Men under 35 will receive preference for the Canadian Far East force, which will be composed entirely of volunteers.

The return of the remaining Canadian troops in Europe will be determined by a priority point score, based on length and type of service plus other factors, such as the number of dependents.

Those with high scores will be returned as soon as feasible and will receive thirty days leave with pay before discharge.

1,000 Poles Are Transplanted To Govern Frankfurt am Oder

By The Associated Press

The Lublin radio announced yesterday that 1,000 Poles, the first group to be settled in Frankfurt am Oder in Germany, would arrive there from Lodz in a few days to assume posts in the local government, industry, commerce and communications.

The announcement, from a radio operated by the Soviet-recognized Polish regime and reported by the Office of War Information, recalled the Big Three's Yalta Conference decision to award some German territory to Poland in exchange for Poland's surrender of some of its eastern territory to Russia. The Yalta conferees said the final decision on Poland's new western frontier should await the peace conference.

Frankfurt am Oder, an industrial city of some 75,000, is fifty miles southeast of Berlin by rail, situated on the west bank of the Oder River in the province of Brandenburg.

Lublin said groups of Poles would be transferred there "in connection with the resettlement of people in ancient Slav land that now returns to the mother country." Frankfurt was in Polish hands before the thirteenth century, when it became Germanic in the spread of Teutonic influence. It withstood a siege by the Poles in 1450.

Other groups of Poles already have been resettled in German territory overrun by the Russians. A Polpress dispatch from Warsaw on April 20 said the first of several thousands of Polish peasants were moving to new homes in East Prussia, western Pomerania and Silesia.

On March 22 the Polish Press Agency in Moscow said Provisional President Bierut had told the first Polish troops to reach the Baltic that Poland would get the seaports of Danzig and Stettin, as well as her pre-war sea outlet of Gdynia.

Army Discharges Begin Tomorrow

2500 To Be Released First Day From Camps in U. S. Under Point System.

ALL SERVED LONG OVERSEAS

Were Brought Back From Europe for Rest and Recuperation Under Rotation Plan.

Washington, May 11 (A. P.).—Approximately 2,500 soldiers will be released from the Army tomorrow under the point-rating system announced by the War Department yesterday.

The discharges will take place at Army separation centers in various parts of the country, the department said. The men, the first to be released under the new discharge plan, will be drawn from soldiers with long overseas service who had been brought back to the United States under the rotation system before the end of the war in Europe for rest and recuperation. Soldiers from all theaters are in the group.

High Point Scores.

The Army said that all have high-point scores based upon the length of Army service, time spent overseas, parenthood, combat awards and battle participation stars. A minimum score of eighty-five points is required to make a soldier eligible for discharge.

Separation centers which will handle the discharges of the men are operating at Camp Atterbury, Ind.; Camp Beale, Cal.; Fort Bliss, Tex.; Fort Bragg, N. C.; Camp Chaffee, Ark.; Fort Devens, Mass.; Fort Dix, N. J.; Fort Douglas, Utah; Jefferson Barracks, Mo.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Fort Logan, Col.; Fort Lewis, Wash.; Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; Fort McPherson, Ga.; Camp Shelby, Miss.; Fort Sheridan, Ill., and Fort Snelling, Minn.

Soldiers who are residents of the United States will receive overseas credit toward discharge for any service outside the forty-eight States and the District of Columbia. The War Department, announcing this today, said that soldiers who are residents of territories and possessions will not receive any credit for service in the area of their residence, but will receive credit for all service outside the territory or possession, including service in the United States.

Overseas service begins on the date of leaving a port of embarkation and ends on the date of return to a port in the United States or, in the case of soldiers who live outside the United States, to a port in the Territory or possession in which they reside. The credit will be computed for overseas service on and after September 16, 1940, and a fraction of fifteen days or more will count as a month.

In response to an inquiry today, the department made it clear that medical and ambulance corpsmen were on the same footing as all other enlisted personnel in figuring point credits for combat zone service and battle-participation stars.

Manpower Controls Will Be Revised

Move To Be Taken To Permit Plants In "Loose" Labor Markets To Resume Or Expand Civilian Production.

By Karl R. Bauman

MAY 12 1945

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP)—Manpower regulations soon will be revised to permit small plants everywhere and larger plants in "loose" labor markets to resume or expand civilian production.

Disclosed By McNutt

This was disclosed today by Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission in announcing what he called "a transitional post-V-E day program."

He emphasized, however, that WMC would maintain all its present regulations in areas where this is thought necessary to meet war production requirements.

He said details now are being worked out for clearing the way for plants employing 100 or fewer workers to resume or increase their present civilian output, and that a similar plan would be developed for larger plants where the labor supply is plentiful.

The "Post-V-E day program" will last until July 1, when there will be a compelte reclassification of all areas as regards the manpower situation.

McNutt predicted a "most difficult task in keeping war plants manned while recruiting new workers for expanding war and civilian production."

During the transitional phase, he said, it will be necessary to review all applications involving increases in civilian production, except for small firms in all areas, and larger firms in areas where the labor supply is adequate.

WMC Policy

Between now and July 1 WMC will follow this policy:

1. Manpower controls in group 3 and 4 areas (where labor is adequate or plentiful) may be lifted by area directors after consultation with local management-labor committees.

2. Manpower programs that include employment stabilization programs, employment ceiling programs, priority referral, and the 48 hour week will be maintained in group 1 and 2 areas, where the labor supply is short. In these areas, however, WMC directors will keep a close check on labor market conditions to "avoid allowing anything to interfere with the prompt re-employment of individuals being laid off from war production when other jobs are available." An area then may be shifted to a lower classification.

3. If unemployment appears in a group 1 or 2 area, the WMC director may, pending reclassification of the area, revise or lift employment ceilings to allow civilian producers to take on more workers.

After July 1

After July 1, this will be the situation:

In group 1 areas all manpower controls will be continued; in group 2 areas, manpower controls will be at the discretion of the area manpower director; all manpower controls will be eliminated in group 3 and 4 areas.

Because of cutbacks in war production, McNutt predicted a sharp decline in the number of group 1 areas within the next three months. As of May 1, 74 areas were in this classification and 111 in group 2.

The list of essential activities will be continued, but will be trimmed down until it includes only direct war and war-supporting production.

During the transitional period, workers, except in areas where unemployment might develop, must continue to obtain statements of availability in group 1 and group 2 areas in order to change jobs. After July 1, these certificates will be required only in group 1 areas, and in group 2 areas at the option of area directors.

To Free Workers

Elsewhere, after July 1, workers will be free to change jobs at will.

The 48-hour work week will be continued after July 1 for establishments in group 1 areas with, as now, exceptions for individual plants. In group 2 the 48-hour work week will be optional with area directors. The 48-hour week will be maintained on an industry-wide basis in some industries, but only as long as necessary to meet shortages. Such industries include textiles, logging and lumbering, and non-ferrous metal mining.

Thus the industry-wide 48-hour week will be eliminated in the steel industry, making steel plants subject to the same work week as other plants in the areas in which they are located.

OPA Plans To Hold Prices At '42 Level

However, Bowles Says Manufacturers Returning To Civilian Production Will Be Granted Increase Where Such Action Is Warranted.

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

MAY 12 1945

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP) — The OPA announced plans today to hold prices on most newly produced consumer goods down to 1942 levels.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles made known, however, that manufacturers turning again to civilian production will be granted price increases when OPA considers such action warranted.

Few Increases

He said at a news conference that he believes there will be "few instances" of such increases being passed on at retail.

The keystone of OPA's reconversion policy, Bowles said, is to encourage business to produce in record volume at low prices and high wages.

There is no more certain way, he added, to "smother the fires of inflation than by an avalanche of civilian goods and services."

The OPA chief said that while the potential for lowered production costs is "enormous" because of wartime experience, these must be weighed against increased labor and materials cost.

"If substantial increases of this kind were to be disregarded, and reconverting manufacturers compelled to shoulder burdens they could not bear, the program for full employment and rapid reconversion would be hindered," Bowles stated.

Four-fold Goal

The agency's four-fold goal during reconversion, Bowles said, will be to prevent inflation, promate full production and full employment, and, finally, lift price and rent controls "as soon as the inflationary danger disappears."

Acknowledging that some industry-wide price increases for products returning to the market may be necessary, Bowles said that a formula has been prepared to determine their extent.

It takes into consideration wage and material cost hikes since 1941, and is based on 1936-39 profit margins.

Small manufacturers will not have to wait for determination of an industry-wife financial position. Applications may be filed direct to OPA by manufacturers whose annual business volume was less than $100,000 in 1941 and who anticipate less than that in the first year after reconversion.

At 1942 Ceilings and Go Ahead

Any manufacturre who elects to tag his product at 1942 ceilings need not bother getting a go-ahead from OPA.

Predicting that there will be a temporary "bulge" in production costs at the beginning of the reconversion period, Bowles said that most businessmen had advised OPA "not to base prices on these early artificial costs."

He added that on the other hand some have advised that there be no change in ceilings "until there is reliable operating experience and we can tell definitely what changes are necessary."

"In our judgment," Bowles continued, "it would be clearly wrong to take this (latter) rigorous position."

He said that OPA would confer soon with wholesalers and retailers to determine how much of any increase granted to manufacturers they could absorb.

"Our belief," Bowles said, "is that there will be few instances in which increases in retail prices above 1942 ceilings will be necessary, and that in such instances the size of the increases will be relatively small."

WLB Announces Reconversion Pay Plans

Washington, May 11 (AP)—The War Labor Board today braced its "hold-the-line" policy against any wage shrinkage during reconversion, while OPA fitted its price lid to items about to return to the market.

As part of the Government's gradually unfolding "War Phase 2" policy, the WLB yesterday announced its wage program for the months of adjustment from a two-continent war to a one-front engagement. It calls for maintaining present high levels, with adjustments to be achieved through collective bargaining.

Today, Price Administrator Chester Bowles will disclose his plan at a news conference for pricing commodities which war forced to the side lines to make room for munitions.

Taft Plan Hits Snags

Meanwhile, a proposal by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) that Congress lift wage controls and ease price restrictions next January 1 met Democratic objections that it is too early to consider such steps.

In outlining WLB's wage program, Chairman George W. Taylor emphasized that the board's task is to avert a decline as well as a rise in wages.

Most of the tough work in revising pay schedules for plants shifting entirely or partially to civilian goods production, he said, will rest on employers and unions.

Up To Bargaining

The WLB "has put its chips on collective bargaining to do the job," said Taylor.

Employers will fix the schedules where there is no union to help, he said, adding that these schedules may be put into effect immediately, but must be submitted for board approval as early as possible.

"Until Victory Over Japan"

If the board changes the schedules they will not be made retroactive. This policy, Taylor said, should eliminate any delays in getting work started as a result of uncertainty over retroactivity.

"A comprehensive program for wage and price stabilization will be necessary until final victory over Japan," the WLB said in a unanimous statement.

Taft's proposal, portending a lively Congressional fight, was advanced as an amendment to legislation extending the Stabilization Act a year beyond June 30.

Chairman Wagner (D., N.Y.) of the Senate Banking committee, now considering the legislation, told reporters "certainly it ought to be an independent bill."

No Rush, Says Radcliffe

Senator Radcliffe (D., Md.) said it seemed to him to be "rushing things to try to decide one week after Germany's surrender what we should do next January." Wagner and Radcliffe are on a banking subcommittee with Taft which now has the extension measure.

Taft proposed that after December 31:

1. All wage controls be lifted. He said he believed that by the year's end there will be no tremendous labor shortage and that regulation of wages can be left to collective bargaining.

2. Price controls be removed from all "luxury" items. The price administrator would determine what is a luxury.

3. Maximum prices be required to allow a margin above cost equal to the average of the years 1938, 1939 and 1940.

Wage Policy Outlined

In its wage-policy statement, the War Labor Board listed these three methods for setting a wage structure during the reconversion period:

"1. In the case of a complete conversion of a plant, some or all of the key jobs following conversion will normally remain substantially the same in job content as before. Upon conversion, the rates for these common jobs may not be changed. They are to be used as guide rates for the establishment of wage rates for other jobs in the plant in such a manner as to result in a balanced wage-rate structure. This will preserve the general level of wage rates existing in the plant prior to conversion.

"Sweeping Nature" Changes

"2. The change in product or operations may be of such a sweeping nature that most of the jobs, including the key jobs, are substantially changed in job content. In such cases, or where civilian production is resumed in plants discontinued in wartime, the wage schedule should be fixed at the prevailing level of wages in the industry or area for comparable occupations. It is expected that this type of situation will be rare.

"3. There will be cases where only a portion of the facilities of a plant is being converted to the production of civilian goods. In such cases, where jobs on civilian production are substantially the same as those remaining on war production, no change in the rates for such jobs may be made incident to the present program. Where rates must be set for new or changed jobs on civilian production, the wage rates for the unchanged jobs shall be used as guides for the establishment of a balanced wage-rate structure. In those rare instances where all or most of the jobs on civilian production, including the key jobs, are substantially changed, the rates for the jobs on civilian production are to be fixed to provide a proper balanced relationship with the rates for the jobs remaining on war production."

TRUMAN IS SAID TO FAVOR PLAN OF TAX REVISION

Reviews Post-war Outlook With Authorities on Revenue Matters.

TAKES UP 5-POINT PROPOSAL

It is Estimated That It Would Help Business Cash Position by $5,700,000,000.

Washington, May 11 (A. P.).—President Truman reviewed the post-war tax outlook today with top congressional revenue authorities.

He talked with Senator George (D.-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Representative Doughton (D.-N. C.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, for thirty minutes.

Senator George said the President was in agreement with a five-point tax revision proposal put forward yesterday by the Treasury and by congressional experts.

"We gave the President the best information we had about the general tax program and policies under discussion," he said. "We discussed the five-point program in general terms, but not in detail. We didn't discuss individual taxes."

Small Firms Chief Gainers.

Congressional tax authorities estimated that the cash position of business will be improved by a potential $5,700,000,000 in the reconversion period under joint Congress-Treasury corporate tax revision proposals.

The five-point program proposes no changes in corporation or individual income rates, but is designed to accelerate the flow of the 10 per cent excess profits tax credit and tax refunds accruing to business under present law.

Small corporations would be the chief beneficiaries, through an increase in the specific exemption from excess profits taxes.

The Joint Congressional Committee today issued a statement explaining its position, as follows:

1. Federal expenditures can be expected to remain at a high level, although victory has been won in Europe, and thus the need for revenue will not be greatly lessened. With the war continuing on one front, it has been estimated that the Government will spend for war alone at the annual rate of about $70,000,000,000.

Employment Prospects.

2. It appears unlikely that there will be any serious general unemployment during the period of the Pacific war. This period can be expected to be one of reasonably full employment since the pent-up demand for goods and services is expected to offset the anticipated cut-back in war production.

3. Inflation will continue to be a danger during the period of the Pacific war. Tax reductions at this time might be an important factor in starting a runaway inflation, since they might increase the demand for civilian goods and services, which is already of excess of the limited production. Furthermore, tax reductions at this time might weaken our anti-inflationary controls.

4. The armed forces are still called upon to endure personal and economic hardships.

4-F ATHLETE RULE ENDED

Special Washington Exams For Rejectees Dropped

MAY 1 2 1945

Washington, May 11 (AP)—The Government's wartime crackdown on professional athletes ended today with a War Department announcement that special draft regulations affecting such cases are completely rescinded.

Leaders in professional sports quickly hailed the department's action as the "fair thing" to do in "clearing up the good name" of these athletes.

Professional athletes have been in a dubious position since James F. Byrnes, former war mobilizer, ordered the crackdown last December. Since then all cases in which such men were rejected for induction have been referred to the adjutant general for final determination. This led to complaints that some athletes were drafted when they were physically unfit and thus were victims of discrimination.

Action Explained

The War Department explained that by its latest action:

1. No more professional athletes "unable to meet the requirements of general (including combat) service" will be inducted into the Army.

2. Cases of men already inducted under the crackdown regulations will be reviewed individually and those found not rendering useful service due to physical condition will be discharged.

Baseball and football officials said: "This definitely puts us over the wartime manpower hump." Both sports have contended there are enough legitimate 4-F's to go around.

There now will be no danger of losing additional 4-F athletes to the services, they pointed out, and "quite a few top-flight players may be returned."

In addition, some athletes of major-league caliber will be among the 2,000,000 men that the army discharges as a result of Germany's surrender.

Number Not Available

The War Department did not have available today a list of professional athletes inducted under the provisions of the Byrnes order.

No new instructions have yet been received by the selective service to put into effect the War Department's latest changes, but that is considered merely a matter of procedure.

Under Secretary of War Patterson recently began an investigation of allegations of draft discrimination against 4-F professional athletes, brought to his attention by Representative Melvin Price (D., Illinois).

"We consider the War Department's inclusive action today to be the result of Patterson's probe," an aide to Price said. "It means that virtually all professional athletes who have been inducted under such conditions are to have their service status reviewed."

Local Boards To Take Over

The department later explained that all cases subject to review will revert to local boards since it would be contrary to policy to "handle them in a lump."

"The individual will be notified, of course, as well as his board," an officer said.

There are "less than 100 of these," he added.

Cases in which an athlete has been examined and rejected but not yet passed on by the War Department also will go back to the local boards.

Mrs. Truman Arrives For Mother's Day

Makes Trip To Washington In Army Transport Plane

WASHINGTON, May 11—(AP)—Mrs. Martha Truman, a smiling little lady in a blue coat on which a big orchid stirred in the breeze, stepped from a huge Army transport plane today to get an affectionate welcome from her President son.

Mrs. Truman, who came for a Mother's Day visit with the Chief Executive, looked pleased about everything but the fuss made over her first airplane ride and her first trip to Washington. She gazed at rows of cameramen and remarked to her son:

"Oh, fiddlesticks! If I had known that I wouldn't have come."

However, she graciously posed with President Truman and her daughter Mary, who flew here from Grandview, Mo., with her.

President Greets Her

President Truman's face was wreathed in smiles as he gazed down on his 92-year-old mother who looked so refreshed and gay in her gardenia-trimmed blue hat.

"And how are all at home?" the President asked when the first greetings were over.

"Oh, fine, just fine," she assured him.

Lt. Col. Henry T. Myers of Tifton, Ga., who flew the big C-54 here from Grandview, told reporters:

"She's certainly a grand lady."

Took Four Hours

Colonel Myers said the trip took four hours and 15 minutes and that "we had tail winds all the way."

"Mrs. Truman seemed to have enjoyed the trip very much," he said. "We averaged about 230 to 235 miles an hour."

The President shook hands with Colonel Myers, who piloted the same plane on the late President Roosevelt's trip to Yalta.

Long before the plane arrived at 3:20 p. m., Eastern War Time, the President and his daughter, Margaret, left the White House in their big, black limousine for the Washington National Airport.

Wanted Plane Ride

Mr. Truman told reporters his mother had often expressed the desire to ride in a plane and he was glad that facilities were available to carry her to Washington where she will participate in Sunday's day of prayers for the European victory.

The President in declaring the unconditional surrender of Germany last Tuesday issued a proclamation calling for a day of Thanksgiving on Mother's Day.

He told reporters that he had planned to fly to Missouri to be with his mother if she hadn't decided to make the trip.

After the picture taking at the airport the President drove his mother to the White House where she spent her first night tonight.

White House Being Readied For Truman's Mother

MAY 1 2 1945

Washington, May 11 (AP)—The White House bustled with preparation today for the arrival of President Truman's mother.

Mrs. Martha Truman, alert and cheerful for all her 92 years, plans to fly here from Independence, Mo., to spend Mother's Day with her son.

A Day Of Prayer

They will add their prayers to those of millions of other Americans Sunday in thanksgiving for victory in Europe and in hope for early peace in the Pacific.

By solemn proclamation, Mr. Truman set aside Sunday as a day of prayer when he announced the complete and unconditional surrender of Germany last Tuesday.

Her First Flight

He said it was appropriate that such an occasion fall on Mother's Day in honor of those who have given so much to the cause of freedom.

Subsequently, he arranged for his own mother to fly here for their first meeting since Mr. Truman took over the nation's leadership on the death of Franklin Delano Roosevelt April 12.

The White House said today that the President would go to the airport to meet his mother when the plane arrives this afternoon.

Acting Press Secretary Edey Ayers told reporters that the trip is Mrs. Truman's first flight. She is being accompanied by her daughter Mary and Capt. James K. Vardaman, the President's naval aide.

Calls Her "Mamma"

Ayers said that no definite time had been set as to the length of Mrs. Truman's visit other than that she would remain over Mother's Day.

Mr. Truman calls his mother "mamma" and beams happily when she tells him to "be good" or reminds friends he once plowed the straightest row of any farmboy in Missouri.

Gas 'Surplus' In East Denied

Washington, May 11 (AP)—It is not true, the Petroleum Administration for War declared today, that gasoline and fuel oil storage tanks on the East Coast are "overflowing."

PAW said it had been hearing rumors to this effect, but reported that supplies on hand in the East are not sufficient to justify any easing of restrictions immediately."

"The fact is that storage tanks are not overflowing," said Deputy Administrator Ralph K. Davies. "As soon as it is possible to release additional gasoline supplies to civilians the Petroleum Administration for War will do so."

N. A. M. Favors Restrictions on Cutting Tariffs

Wants President's Powers Limited; Stand Opposes That of U. S. Chamber

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers asked Congress today to deny the President additional tariff-cutting powers in reciprocal trade agreements, thus taking a position opposite to that of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

F. L. Hopkinson, chairman of the International Trade Relations Subcommittee of the N. A. M.'s World Trade Policy Committee, filed a statement with the House Ways and Means Committee saying a grant of additional tariff reducing authority at this time is "unnecessary and perhaps unsafe."

He said the N. A. M. favors extension of the reciprocal trade act in its present form for one year.

James A. Farley, former Postmaster General and former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, sent the committee a statement urging passage of the pending Administration-requested legislation to extend the trade act for three years with an amendment giving the President authority to reduce tariffs up to 50 per cent of the rates prevailing Jan. 1, 1945.

The President now has authority to cut tariffs up to 50 per cent under the rates in the Hawley-Smoot act of 1930, in trade agreements with other nations.

Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, Inc., told the committee, "it would seem advisable that the powers granted in the present act be not extended and that the act itself be not renewed for more than one year pending further studies of the domestic objectives of the United States."

"The reciprocal trade doctrine which now prevails," he said, "would make it appear that our major objective is international trade and that our domestic economy should adjust itself thereto. No economic policy could be more dangerous than this."

Representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce appeared before the committee earlier this week indorsing the three-year extension and the added-duty-reducing power, saying such a program would mean larger production and more jobs in this country.

U. S. Will Aid in Repair Of European Transport

Signs Pact With 6 Nations on Military Traffic

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP).—A provisional agreement on the use and rehabilitation of western Europe's war-wrecked inland transportation has been signed by this country and six other nations, the State Department announced today.

The agreement, designed to coordinate traffic and help in rehabilitation of what is left of railways, highways and inland waterways in Europe, was signed in London May 8 by representatives of the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Norway.

It sets up a provisional advisory organization with temporary headquarters in London. The announcement stated that the western Allies have been discussing with Russia and other European countries a draft agreement for a more permanent organization.

Charles P. Taft, head of the State Department's Office of Transport and Communication Policy, explained that Russia has not entered the provisional agreement because it had not yet approved the draft.

The function of the provisional organization is purely advisory and consultative, and it has no authority to give orders to any government or occupying authority, Mr. Taft stated.

Under the agreement, he explained, member governments recognize that they had a moral obligation to help each other in their present plight.

The primary purpose of the agreement is to facilitate the movement of military forces and supplies. It is also expected to aid in the movement of civilian supplies and in the repatriation of the millions of displaced persons.

Brigadier General C. D. Young, deputy director of the Office of Defense Transportation, has been named American member of the provisional executive committee.

Demand Is Made That Axis Pay Yank PW's

MAY 1 2 1945

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Representative Price (D., Fla.) proposed today that Germany and Japan be required to pay American war prisoners $10 for each day they were held captive.

Introducing legislation calling for inclusion of the proposal in any peace treaties, Price said:

"All the people of Japan and Germany—not just the leaders—are responsible for the horrible atrocities to prisoners we've heard about recently.

Surest Punishment

"One of the surest ways to make these guilty people realize the full error of their ways is to hit at their pocketbooks. They have broken every rule in the books and it is the only way we can effectively punish them."

30.24.25707

Under Price's measure, the $10-a-day payments would be made to the prisoner, if he survives, or to his estate.

The bill could not compel inclusion of the plan in a peace treaty, Price said, but would direct American negotiations to press for such action.

Truman Reported For New Tax Plan

Washington, May 11 (AP)—President Truman reviewed the postwar tax outlook today with top congressional revenue authorities.

He talked with Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance Committee for 30 minutes.

Senator George said the President was in agreement with a five-point tax revision proposal put forward yesterday by Treasury and Congressional experts.

Details Not Discussed

"We gave the President the best information we had about the general tax program and policies under discussion," George said.

"We discussed the five-point program in general terms but not in detail. We didn't discuss individual taxes."

The Senate-House Postwar Tax Committee and the Treasury Department had jointly announced the program that George estimated would make $2,500,000,000 available to business early in the reconversion period.

Aid for small business received major emphasis.

Five Points Approved

No recommendation was made for immediate legislation to cut individual or corporation income rates, but George expressed hope some such relief could be provided by 1946. However, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau told newsmen yesterday that the Administration's position is unchanged "with regard to the need for all revenues we can get during the war."

The joint Senate-House Committee, with the Treasury concurring, recommended for speedy action these five specific revisions:

1. Increase the excess profits tax specific exemption from $10,000 to $25,000, effective with the beginning of the 1946 tax year.

2. That the 10 per cent. postwar excess-profits tax credit be applied currently to 1944 and later tax liabilities. This would mean the Government would collect only an 85 per cent excess-profits tax, whereas 95 now is collected, with ten per cent refundable after the war.

3. Advance to January 1, 1946, the maturity date of outstanding excess-profits postwar refund bonds. These bonds have been issued on the ten per cent refundable part of the excess-profits levy.

4. Speed up refunds resulting from carry-backs of net operating losses and of unused excess-profits credits.

5. Hasten refunds resulting from the recomputation of deductions for amortization of emergency facilities.

Cash Position Aided

A joint statement issued by George and Doughton said the recommendations were designed to improve immediately the cash position of business and relieve small corporations from the excess profits taxes.

INDUSTRIAL SUGAR TO BE CUT 25 P.C.

OPA Also Says Less Is Available For Home Canning

MAY 12 1945

Cuba Freezes Sugar

Havana, Cuba, May 11 (AP)—All stocks of sugar held by producers, refiners and wholesale dealers for domestic consumption in Cuba have been frozen for three days by presidential decree, it was announced here today.

The drastic measure was taken, it was added, because sections of Cuba are suffering a shortage of sugar "despite the fact 250,000 long tons were set aside from this year's production to cover national sugar needs."

The Cuban Ministry of Commerce announced it planned a rigid rationing system.

Washington, May 11 (AP)—OPA officials disclosed late today that industrial users of sugar may be forced to take another 25 per cent reduction in their quota of that scarce product by midsummer.

In addition, the home-canning program, which last year took more than 1,000,000 tons of sugar, will be cut to 600,000 tons this year.

The predictions were made by OPA officials appearing before the House Food Committee investigating the current shortage of sugar.

70 Per Cent Allotted

Industrial users of sugar now are allotted 70 per cent of the amount they used in the base year of 1941. Bakers are allowed 75 per cent of the amount they used in 1941, while soft-drink bottlers, candy makers and similar sugar users get 65 per cent of their 1942 consumption.

Richard H. Fields, general counsel for OPA, presented a statement of Max McCullough, rationing administrator, which said:

"It appears that it will be necessary during the last half of the year to reduce the allotments of most industrial users to a level of 45 or 50 per cent of their 1941 use."

The allotment for sugar used in the manufacture of drugs also probably will be cut slightly, the statement said, but it will remain substantially at 90 per cent of 1941 usage.

Danger Forecast

Earlier in the hearing industrial users of sugar—candy makers, bakers, soft drink bottlers, etc—testified that a further slash in their supply would hamper their business to the danger point.

The reduction so far this year, said John J. Riley, representing the bottled soft-drink industry, "has resulted in a general increase in costs of production which is beyond the ability of most of the plants in the industry to withstand for any length of time." A cut to 50 per cent of 1941 might force many companies out of business, he said.

Fields estimated that sugar flowed into the black market at a rate of nearly 100,000 tons a year during the first three months of this year. He outlined black-market controls which, he said, are expected to shut off that drain on sugar stocks.

WMC TO EASE LABOR CURBS

'Post V-E Day Program' Aimed At Boosting Civilian Output

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Manpower regulations soon will be revised to permit small plants everywhere and larger plants in "loose" labor markets to resume or expand civilian production.

This was disclosed today by Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission in announcing what he called "a transitional post-V-E day program."

He emphasized, however, that WMC would maintain all its present regulations in areas where this is thought necessary to meet war-production requirements.

Will Last Until July

He said details now are being worked out for clearing the way for plants employing 100 or fewer workers to resume or increase their civilian output, and that a similar plan would be developed for larger plants where the labor supply is plentiful.

The "post-V-E day program" will last until July 1, when there will be a complete reclassification of all areas as regards the manpower situation.

McNutt predicted a "most difficult task in keeping war plants manned while recruiting new workers for expanding war and civilian production."

During the transitional phase, he said, it will be necessary to review all applications involving increases in civilian production, except for small firms in all areas, and larger firms in areas where the labor supply is adequate.

Policy Outlined

Between now and July 1 WMC will follow this policy:

1. Manpower controls in Group 3 and 4 areas (where labor is adequate or plentiful) may be lifted by area directors after consultation with local management-labor committees.

2. Manpower programs that include employment stabilization programs, employment ceiling programs, priority referral and the 48-hour work week will be maintained in Group 1 and 2 areas, where the labor supply is short. In these areas, however, WMC directors will keep a close check on labor-market conditions to "avoid allowing anything to interfere with the prompt re-employment of individuals being laid off from war production when other jobs are available." An area then may be shifted to lower classification.

3. If unemployment appears in a Group 1 or 2 area, the WMC director may, pending reclassification of the area, revise or lift employment ceilings to allow civilian producers to take on more workers.

After July 1, this will be the situation:

In Group 1 areas all manpower controls will be continued; in Group 2 areas manpower controls will be at the discretion of the area manpower director; all manpower controls will be eliminated in Group 3 and 4 areas.

Because of cutbacks in war production, McNutt predicted a sharp decline in the number of Group 1 areas within the next three months. As of May 1, 74 areas were in this classification and 111 in Group 2.

Will Cut "Essential" List

The list of essential activities will be continued, but will be trimmed down until it includes only direct war and war-supporting production.

During the transitional period, workers, except in areas where unemployment might develop, must continue to obtain statements of availability in Group 1 and Group 2 areas in order to change jobs.

After July 1, these certificates will be required only in Group 1 areas, and in Group 2 areas at the option of area directors.

Elsewhere, after July 1, workers will be free to change jobs at will.

Legislators Argue, But Vote Selves 'Expenses'

MAY 12 1945

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Some members said it seemed like a sneaky way to get a raise; others argued the public has no idea what an expensive thing it is to be a congressman.

The upshot—a shouting House majority voted yesterday to give each member $2,500 a year, tax free, as expense money to augment his $10,000 salary.

The House wrote the expense allowance and some employé pay increases into a $50,000,000 appropriation to pay the costs of Congress. The bill goes to the Senate, where members can knock out the House increases or vote themselves some expense money, whichever seems the better idea to them.

Some Indignant

Some of the more indignant House members—a howled-down minority—declared they wouldn't touch a dime of the expense cash. They said it was a subterfuge. They called it inflationary. They asked how Congress could expect the public's confidence with such goings on.

But their opponents said it was high time Congress gave itself a break in the pocketbook. They mentioned such expenses as entertaining constituents. They made the $10,000 salary sound like peanuts.

Missourian's Explanation

Representative Ploeser (R., Mo.) said he couldn't afford to be in Congress if it weren't for the fact he had a little business of his own back home.

"If we pass this bill, Congress will be the first to break the line against inflation," declared Representative Hope (R., Kan.).

"Are we mice or are we men?" countered Representative Celler (D., N.Y.). "Why should we be pinch-pennies with ourselves?"

Approval Spreads

The debate was fought on that line and when it was over the $2,500 spending money had been voted overwhelmingly—by a voice vote. Once the idea caught on, it spread rapidly.

Representative Slaughter (D., Mo.) said House clerks work harder than Senate clerks because of the confusion in the House—so the members voted a $3,000 a year pay hike—to $7,000—for the tally clerk, the journal clerks and the reading clerks.

Pages, Too

Representative Tarver (D., Ga.) asked what about the pages—and promptly won them an increase of $1 a day, making it $5 a day for the youngsters.

Representative Lanham (D., Texas) worried about Capitol police, but Representative O'Neal (D., Ky.) called a halt.

"We're beginning to write a pay roll here," he protested. "This isn't the way to do it."

So the cops lost out.

Army Flags At Half Mast Until May 14

WASHINGTON, May 11 (AP)—Flags at Army posts will remain at half staff until sundown May 14, end o fthe period of mourning set by President Truman for the late President Roosevelt.

The War Department said today the Army order of mourning originally fixed sundown tomorrow as the end of the period, but that this has been changed to conform with the President's proclamation.

To Direct Navy Public Relations

Washington, May 11 (A. P.).—Rear Admiral Harold Blaine Miller, a native of Newton, Iowa, today assumed duty as Navy Department director of public relations. At 42 he is the youngest Rear Admiral in the Navy.

He succeeds Rear Admiral A. S. Merrill, who is expected to return shortly to a sea command in the Pacific.

Admiral Miller has been serving as public relations officer on the staff of Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet and Pacific Ocean areas.

CAPTIVES MUST SEE HORROR PICTURES

Washington, May 11 (A. P.).—The Army is insisting that every German prisoner held in this country see the motion pictures depicting the horrors of the murder camps operated by their former Nazi masters.

The War Department disclosed today that the more than 343,000 German prisoners in the country "have been ordered to see" films made both by the Army and by commercial companies. In order that there be no chance for misunderstanding, the commentary for the films has been translated into German.

The Army is backing up this program with a second plan to send into each prison camp booklets of still pictures, with captions in German, also showing details of the Nazi mass murder assembly lines.

At the same time, the War Department said that German prisoners will find no more beer, cigarettes, candy and other similar items in the prison canteens after the existing stocks are exhausted.

Sweden to Resume Woodpulp Shipments

Washington, May 11 (A. P.).—Relief for America's depleted woodpulp and newsprint stocks is anticipated in an early resumption of wo—pulp shipments from Sweden and other European countries.

Sweden expects to resume such shipments within the next thirty days. This will in time relieve the strain on American supplies which have been drawn upon for shipments to the liberated countries.

Nacy Named Aid to Hannegan

Washington, May 11 (A. P.).—Richard R. Nacy, Missouri banker, today was named executive assistant to Chairman Hannegan of the Democratic National Committee.

Hannegan, who will assume office as Postmaster-General on July 1, will continue as committee chairman. Nacy, whose home is in Jefferson City, Mo., succeeds William M. Boyle Jr., who plans to return to the practice of law.

All Restrictions On Typewriter Output Lifted

Washington, May 11 (AP)—All restrictions on production and delivery of typewriters were removed today.

Typewriter manufacturers who still are producing war materials, however, cannot reconvert their facilities or transfer personnel to typewriter production until they have met their war-production commitments.

In addition, companies for the most part must rely entirely on excess and idle materials until July 1, when steel, copper and aluminum, the so-called controlled materials, will be released for civilian production.

SUGAR BEET MEN TO GET P. O. W. AID

Washington, May 11 (A. P.).—Sugar beet growers have been assured of enough prisoners of war to carry out cultivation operations through July.

Field representatives of the WFA were notified today that the War Department has agreed to make 85,000 prisoners available for farm work by the end of June. About 20,000 are doing farm work now.

Reports have been received by the WFA that some sugar beet growers in western and Great Lakes regions were considering plowing up beets and planting crops requiring less labor. Although the need for prisoners for late summer and early fall harvesting of beets and other crops may be greater than that of the current planting and cultivating season, no definite commitment on allocation of prisoners beyond July has been made by the War Department, WFA officials said.

These officials said, despite Army plans to start prisoners back to Europe in the near future, they are hopeful that prisoners will be available for the harvesting season. Last year a peak number of 75,000 prisoners were used by agriculture and food processors.

Subject To Internment

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Unofficial sources said tonight that the Japanese diplomats captured in Germany would be subject to internment.

It was indicated that the group would have special diplomatic status and would not be treated as ordinary prisoners of war.

These sources also explained that it might be possible later in the war to effect an exchange with Japan for Americans or other Allied prisoners held in that country.

Germans To See Horror Films

MAY 1 2 1945

Washington, May 11 (AP)—The Army is insisting that every German prisoner held in this country see the motion pictures depicting the horrors of the murder camps operated by their former Nazi masters.

Bowles Warns Against Inflation

New York, May 11 (AP)—Chester Bowles, OPA Administrator, warns "it was just at this stage of the last war that we lost the fight against inflation."

"The fear is in my mind that we may make the same tragic mistake again," he said last night at a dinner sponsored by the New York Board of Trade, where he urged that OPA be continued for an indefinite period.

8 of U-boat Crew Taken to Washington

Boston, May 11 (A. P.).—The Boston Globe in a copyrighted story said eight members of the crew of a German submarine, sunk a few days ago in the North Atlantic, were en route today under a heavy Marine guard to Washington.

The captives were brought here from Argentia, Newfoundland, and included a captain and lieutenant, the newspaper added.

German submarines were active in the North Atlantic until the closing days of the war and sank the collier Black Point off Point Judith, R. I., with a loss of one Navy man and eleven seamen.

Union Assails Army's Policy In Ward Plants

C.I.O. Asks Enforcement of W.L.B. Orders or an End to 'Military Shackles'

CHICAGO, May 11 (AP).—A national representative of Congress of Industrial Organizations workers of the government-seized Montgomery Ward & Co. properties declared today that the Army failed to carry out National War Labor Board directives and asked that they either be enforced or that "the military shackles" be removed.

Irving Abramson, national director of the organizing committee of the C. I. O., in a letter to Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, requested "that the Army either put into effect the order of the President of the United States, or . . . remove the military shackles that have been wrongly imposed on those who should have been the beneficiaries of the Army's protection rather than the victims of the government's failures."

Mr. Abramson maintained "we have co-operated in every possible way with the Army in maintaining labor stability. The company has made more profits under Army operation than it has been able to make without it. We have waited patiently and waited, hoping that the government would redeem its promises to enforce the government's directives.

"In the mean time, and while we wait, the government's policy of procrastination is slowly leading to the destruction of the union and the demoralization of the workers. We can wait no longer."

The C. I. O. leader said that as a result of the "token possession" by the army of several seized facilities turned back to the company, "the union . . . has not only been deprived of the benefits of the directives but has been stripped of its power to do anything about it. Workers in facilities returned by the Army don't even have grievance machinery available to them.

"The only effect of this token possession therefore was to present to Montgomery Ward & Co. a gift of immunity under the war labor disputes act to which only a sovereign government is entitled. The government has perforce not only refused to put the directives into effect but has given Mr. Avery (Sewell L. Avery, company chairman) its arm of protection, safeguarding Avery's defiance with government security against possible resistance."

Discharges Sought By Two Heroes

Fort Benning, Ga., May 11 (AP)—Only two of five Congressional Medal winners here, including Tech. Sergt. Charles E. (Commando) Kelly, plan to seek discharges from the Army.

Under a recent War Department ruling, Congressional Medal winners are eligible for discharge.

Kelly said he planned to apply for a discharge after finishing a nation-wide tour in behalf of the Seventh War Loan.

The Pittsburgh sergeant recently married. He intends to seek a defense job in Pittsburgh or go on a lecture tour in behalf of the war effort.

Wants More Information

Said Tech. Sergt. Homer Wise, of Baton Rouge, La.:

"I plan to apply for discharge and meanwhile will go on the bond tour until further information is officially received."

Lieut. Col. Samuel I. Parker, of Monroe, N.C.:

"I intend to stay in the Army until I think my services are no longer needed."

Lieut. Col. Orville Block, of Streeter, N.D.:

"I am staying until Japan is beaten."

Capt. Robert S. Scott, of Santa Fe, N.M.:

"I'll have to give it some thought before I can make a decision."

Mystery Cigs Aided MacArthur

Richmond, Va., May 11 (AP)—Packages of cigarettes—four to a pack—appeared mysteriously in the Philippines during the dark days of Japanese occupation to electrify the native population and to infuriate the Japs.

On the packages was the message, "I shall return," and the signature, "Douglas MacArthur, commander in chief, Southwest Pacific theater." This was the sign the native population had been looking for. MacArthur was their idol. Not only did he tell them he was coming back, but he sent cigarettes which were as scarce as food. The Japs had commandeered the entire tobacco supply.

Natives Encouraged

Thus natives were encouraged to resist and guerrillas increased their activity.

The Japanese made intense efforts to discover where the cigarettes came from. Packages inevitably fell into their hands.

The idea originated with the Office of War Information in 1942. Arrangements were made with a Richmond cigarette company to pack the cigarettes and to keep the manufacture a secret. The company revealed the story today with permission of the OWI.

Secrecy Observed

The company furnished the FBI with a list of employés assigned to the project. A wing of a factory was set aside for the work. Employés—mostly with relatives in the armed forces—were carefully selected. The product was shipped in plain cases. There was no trade imprint on the cigarettes themselves.

Submarines nudged to the Philippine coast and the populace helped unload the cargoes. Planes dropped cargoes at night.

Japs Mystified

The Japs were mystified by raiding parties of planes which avoided military targets and seemed to drop their "eggs" in isolated places. By the time the Japs reached these places there fas no sign of either bomb craters or anything else. The cigarettes were distributed far and wide.

Millions of cigarettes were dropped or landed secretly before MacArthur arrived himself to fulfill the promise which the tiny packages had kept before the loyal Filipinos.

Argentina Donates Wheat To Norway

San Francisco, May 11 (AP)—Norwegian sources said tonight that Argentina has made an outright donation of 40,000 tons of wheat to help feed Norway.

Shipping arrangements were not known to Norwegians here for the United Nations Conference. Their own vessels are now in the Allied shipping pool.

Yugoslav Asks U.S. Aid To 'Stop Civil War'

San Francisco, May 11 (AP)—A former Yugoslav Ambassador, Constantin Fotitch, today appealed to Secretary of State Stettinius to send American troops to his country to "stop civil war."

Fotitch said he was speaking on behalf of the Central National Committee of Yugoslavia in a letter addressed to Stettinius. A similar appeal, he told a news conference, has gone to British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

He asked, "in application of the decisions at Yalta," that the Allies:

1. Send a commission to Yugoslavia to investigate activities of Marshal Tito, Premier, and Draja Mihailovic, former War Minister and bitter rival of the present government.

2. Help establish in Yugoslavia "a real coalition government."

3. Send Allied troops "especially American, (to) stop and prevent further expansion of civil war in the country."

Ackerman Sees New Army Of China Aiding Victory

Calls American-Trained Force Modern in Every Detail

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11 (UP).—A virtually new Chinese Army is being trained by American officers and the United States can count on effective, important aid from China in the final destruction of Japan, Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of Columbia University's graduate school of journalism, said today.

Dean Ackerman has just returned to the United States by way of the Pacific after a round-the-world trip as a member of a three-man committee appointed by the American Society of Newspaper editors and government officials.

He said he preferred to talk about his discussions abroad after he has prepared a report. But he was eager to tell of his observations in China and in the Pacific.

"Our forces in the Pacific," Dean Ackerman said, "are going to be reinforced by a new Chinese army. The Chinese, in co-operation with our military men, are creating a new army. I visited one division which had been trained by American and Chinese officers. Its men had new uniforms, new weapons and new equipment. It was modern in every detail."

He said thousands of Chinese are leaving Japanese-held cities of China and making their way to Chungking to give their support to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

War Prisoners To Help Out At Ordnance Works

Radford, Va., May 11 (AP)—About 500 German prisoners of war will be used to aid construction of additions to the Radford ordnance works, Maj. Gen. Phillip Hayes, commanding general of the 3d Service Command, has disclosed.

A temporary camp is being built near here to house the prisoners, who are being assembled at Fort Eustis.

The plant, it was said, "manufactures materiels needed in the Pacific," and that, "due to the speed with which the German collapse came about, a new time element has arisen through the change to war on a single front where speed in prosecution is vital."

German Prisoners Seek To Fight Against Japs

Fort Sheridan, Ill., May 11 (AP)—A number of German prisoners of war at the base camp here have asked to join the American Army in the war against Japan and then return to their POW status for five years in an effort to earn American citizenship.

Lieut. Col. Ernst R. Schuelke, commander of the base camp, said the request was made through the prisoners' camp spokesman, who gave no indication of how many prisoners had joined in the request.

U.S. Training Chinese Pilots

Topeka, Kan., May 11 (AP)—Chinese airmen are being trained at Topeka Army Airfields to man both Liberator and Superfortress bombers, public relations officers disclosed today.

P-38's Fool Luftwaffe

MAY 12 1945

Los Angeles, May 11 (AP)—Some of America's P-38 fighter planes, converted into bombers, fooled the German Luftwaffe for the last year of the European war, Lockheed Aircraft Corporation disclosed today.

Lockheed engineers installed a modification, consisting of a droop snoot in the nose of P-38's, to conceal a bombardier and a Norden bombsight controlling 4,000 pounds of explosives.

The idea, said Lockheed, originated in England. Lieut. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle approved it and ordered the droop-snooter into quantity production.

Lockheed engineers said that the Germans, conserving their interceptors for use against comparatively slow heavy bombers, were caught napping as the P-38's suddenly began heavy precision bombings from high altitudes.

NEWS TRADE PAPER CONDEMNS AP 'BEAT'

Editor & Publisher Censures Kennedy for His Violation of Confidence, Backs Agency

Editor & Publisher, newspaper trade publication, in an editorial yesterday on the controversial "scoop" of The Associated Press on the unconditional surrender of Germany, asserted that the statement of Edward Kennedy, the AP correspondent at Reims who filed the story, was "inadequate," as he violated one of the cardinal principles of journalism in failing to respect a confidence.

However, the trade publication criticized the public relations staff of Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force for penalizing the entire AP organization for Mr. Kennedy's action. The editors also opined that it was an act of stupidity on the part of the Big Three to keep the surrender story a secret until it was announced by the heads of these Governments.

Statement Held Inadequate

The Editor & Publisher editorial said:

"In all fairness to Edward Kennedy of The Associated Press we have been reserving judgment on his case until he could plead his own defense. The charges against him by SHAEF and his fellow correspondents are serious and up until Thursday he was being tried and convicted by everyone in this country without hearing his side of the story.

"Now we have Mr. Kennedy's statement, carried by AP, and we consider it inadequate. If that is all he has to say in his own behalf, no other verdict than 'guilty' can be pronounced.

"We agree with Kennedy that no military security was involved and that it was political censorship. General [Dwight D.] Eisenhower might have made a pledge of secrecy to the Russians until simultaneous announcement could be made, but we fail to see how the Russian position was jeopardized inasmuch as a Russian officer was one of the signatories and Kennedy's story was not filed until the signing had been completed with representatives of all the Big Three. Moreover, by that time the German radio had announced it and the Stockholm radio had confirmed the surrender. It was no longer a secret.

"But Kennedy apparently violated one of the cardinal principles of good journalism—that of respecting a confidence. No amount of explanation after the event as to why the confidence should not be kept is justification for breaking it. * * *

Oppose Banning of AP

"The correspondents in Paris are indignant over Kennedy's action, and rightly so. * * * But these correspondents are ill-advised in asking General Eisenhower to bar The Associated Press from operating in Europe. AP didn't even know it had been suspended, or why, until International News Service and United Press carried the story. Nor did AP executives know any of the circumstances under which Kennedy had filed his story, and they were not allowed to find out.

"Since when have we adopted the principle that an entire organization must be penalized for the malpractice of one man?

"The Paris correspondents also declare they have no degree of confidence in the Public Relations Division of SHAEF, and we don't blame them. * * *

"And we would like to add that the arrangement between the Big Three to keep the surrender story under wraps until Truman, Churchill and Stalin could announce it was stupid. * * *

"We hope this will serve as a lesson to the military and political leaders of the Allied nations that a story of that magnitude cannot be kept secret. What is more important, the people are entitled to know the facts as soon as possible. They are not children to be fed news by the spoonful when someone in authority deems it advisable."

YUGOSLAVIA LAYS CLAIM TO TRIESTE

MAY 12 1945

San Francisco, May 11 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Ivan Subasic said today that Yugoslavia will lay claim to Italian Istria, including the port of Trieste, and a strip of Austrian territory, when the delegates gather for the peace conference.

The Italian Government has expressed fears in Rome that the present Jugoslav occupation of Trieste will lead to a regime that the Allies will recognize eventually on a de jure (legal) basis.

The Jugoslavs contend that Istria belongs to them. Dr. Subasic said that there were 700,000 Jugoslavs—Slovenes and Croats—in the Trieste and Slovene Littoral areas.

The Foreign Minister, who is confined to a San Francisco hospital with a slight stomach disorder, laughed at rumors which had spread through San Francisco for the past twenty - four hours that he had been shot. One rumor said an assassin had struck him with two bullets.

Dr. Subasic said that the German occupation and the fight for liberation under Marshal Tito had brought about "a great brotherhood" between Serbs and Croats, whose relations now are "excellent."

But he said that the rehabilitation of Yugoslavia would take years.

"We are in need of practically everything," Dr. Subasic explained. "Our first need is agricultural implements. Next we need materials to rebuild roads, railroads and communication systems. Third on the priority list is machinery for industry, such as textiles.

"Our people fortunately protected the mines and they won't be so difficult to start operating again."

Norwegians Want Quisling's Full Story Before He's Tried

San Francisco, May 11 (AP)—Norwegian officials said that Vidkun Quisling is due to get his day in court—no matter how long—before they expect to have him before a firing squad.

Here for the United Nations Conference, they anticipate learning a lot later from the puppet ruler who sold Norway out to the Germans and who now is in jail.

"We are not interested in speedy justice," Hans Olav, a member of the Norwegian legation in Washington, said. "Quisling will have months if that is the time it takes to get his treacherous story.

Want Complete Record

"We want to go into Quisling's dealing with the Germans before Norway was attacked and through his reign so that we will have a complete record for history."

"The Allies lost the best witness they ever had an opportunity to get their hands on—Mussolini," he contended.

"Hitler is gone, too. Mussolini would have been worth more to the Italians and the Allies alive than dead. His trial would have given us a priceless opportunity of finding out the inner workings of Fascism and Nazism."

May Be Arraigned Today

When Quisling is arraigned, he will be bound over for trial—charged with treason. Norway's highest crime. Arraignment today was expected, as Norwegian law requires prompt placing of charges. The trial itself will await preparation of the case.

The Norwegian Parliament abolished the death penalty in 1875, but three years ago it was reenvoked by the Parliament in exile in London, for punishing treason. It was specifically provided to deal with Quisling and men like him.

Also, to punish Norwegians who joined the Nazi party, there is the law of "public confidence." Persons convicted under this law would lose their right to vote, to operate a public business, or serve in the Norwegian armed forces. For these, life will be relegated more or less to labor, branded so that they will be outcasts. They will not be deported or imprisoned.

MAY 12 1945

Rebuilding Goal Detected In Trials Plan

San Francisco, May 11 (AP)—An American proposal to try organizations as well as individuals for war crimes was interpreted today as opening a legal road for the use of forced labor in rebuilding devastated Europe.

The proposition was reported receiving favorable consideration from representatives of Britain, Russia and France assembled here for the United Nations Conference. Presumably it was taken back to Moscow by Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov.

Acting as the personal representative of President Truman, Judge Samuel I. Rosenman worked with Secretary of State Stettinius in discussing the program with Foreign Ministers and their aides.

Disclosed By State Dept.

The State Department disclosed the plan which calls for organization of an international military tribunal to try the major individuals and organizations accused of atrocities and war crimes in Europe.

State Department officials explained that presumably the Nazi party or any of its adjuncts—and conceivably the German Army—could be charged before such a court with war crimes. If the organizations were convicted, the members then would become subject to penalties.

SS As An Example

Thus, if the German SS organization were found guilty, its individual members might be sentenced to hard labor in reconstruction work in Russia, France and England.

Such an arrangement would give court backing to use of Germans to rebuild what they had destroyed.

President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin agreed at Yalta to exact reparations in kind from the Germans. These may include the use of forced Nazi labor, as well as the dismantling and transfer of German plants to the devastated Allied areas.

The Moscow declaration of November 1, 1943, made provision for trial of persons charged with specific atrocities in the countries where those atrocities occurred. The American plan takes this into account.

Proposed Jurisdiction

Presumably the underlings who directed those atrocities and participated in them would face the local courts and those charged with the overall crime of having brought about the war would go before the proposed military tribunal for expeditious trial.

Nine Proposals Drafted to Alter World Assembly

Amendments to Dumbarton Oaks Plan Condensed for Parley Consideration

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11 (AP).—The United Nations Conference committee charged with outlining the political functions of the proposed World Assembly said today it had condensed all amendments into the following nine questions which will be voted on in the order listed:

(1) Should the General Assembly be enabled to make, on its own initiative, recommendations on any matter relating to the maintenance of international peace and security which is being dealt with by the Security Council?

(2) Should the Secretary General be required to notify the General Assembly of any matter relating to the maintenance of international peace and security which is being dealt with by the Security Council, and also required to notify the General Assembly immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with any such matter?

(3) Should a procedure be adopted whereby the General Assembly having received the Secretary General's report, may determine that the Security Council has ceased to exercise its functions with regard to any matter relating to the maintenance of international peace and security which is being dealt with by the Security Council and proceed to make a recommendation or recommendations with regard thereto?

(Should some further procedure be provided for deciding when the Security Council has ceased to deal with a matter, so that the assembly may be in a position to make recommendations at once?)

(4) Should the General Assembly be able to require the Security Council to investigate situations which might seem to the assembly likely to endanger world peace?

(5) Should the General Assembly be entitled to call the attention of the Security Council to situations which, in its opinion, are likely to endanger peace or are capable of doing so?

(6) Should the decisions of the Security Council on any matter relating to the maintenance of international peace and security be subject to ratification or veto by a fixed majority (such as three-fourths or two-thirds) of the General Assembly?

(7) Should the General Assembly be entitled to summon the members of the Security Council to appear before it to report on any measures the Security Council may have taken or may contemplate taking in dealing with any matter affecting international peace and security?

(8) Should the General Assembly be entitled to exercise concurrently with the Security Council the powers set out in Chapter VIII, Section A?

(9) Subject to any exceptions specifically provided, should the Assembly have general power to discuss and make recommendations in respect of any matters affecting international relations?

SMALL NATIONS WANT GREATER SECURITY ROLE

Developing Bloc Is Seeking More Authority Over Use of Force

MAY 12 1945

ASSEMBLY APPROVAL ASKED

Cuba Proposes Larger Council —American Plan on Regional Arrangements Promised.

San Francisco, May 11 (A. P.).—The United Nations conference appeared today to be developing a strong bloc of small nations determined to win themselves greater authority over the proposed use of force to prevent future wars.

The issue is coming sharply to the fore in conference committees considering amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan for the world peace organization as it was drawn up by Britain, China, Russia and the United States in Washington last fall. Here are the main current developments:

1. Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada told a committee on the functions of the Security Council, which is the exclusive, powerful core of the proposed organization, that any nation whose troops were to be used against an aggressor should be permitted a voice in the council's decision to take forceful action. Mexico and New Zealand indorsed this idea and Australia and several others are backing the principle.

2. New Zealand suggested that the proposed World Assembly of Nations—to which the Dumbarton Oaks plan would assign little authority—should have the right to approve or reject any Security Council action. This is opposed by the big Powers.

3. A Cuban proposition that the Security Council be enlarged from eleven member nations, as provided under Dumbarton Oaks, to fourteen or fifteen was debated in the committee on the council yesterday, but a decision was delayed pending further study.

U. S. Regional Plan Due.

The same general issue of the council's powers was tied into the behind-the-scenes dispute over regional security arrangements which has split the United States delegation down the middle.

Senator Andenberg (R.-Mich.) promised the regional arrangements committee last night that an American plan would be drawn up as soon as possible, and the delegation scheduled another discussion on the issue today.

Behind the United States deadlock is increasing pressure from Latin America for an independent security system in this hemisphere. This is reportedly opposed by those delegation members who contend that if the World Security Council is to have any chance of success it must be given full powers to act anywhere in the world.

On the other big conference issue—how to govern the ex-enemy territories of both world wars—the Big Five powers appeared to be steadily approaching an agreement. Russia and China yesterday submitted trusteeship plans. These, like that of the United States, would provide for creating strategic trusteeships over Pacific Islands and other places having military importance.

Colonial Freedom Issue.

Russia was reported to have tossed a potentially explosive proposition into the committee on trusteeships last night. This would commit the United Nations to the principle that Colonial peoples should be assured of eventual independence—which could become a hot point of debate for empire nations.

The conference committees which only this week had buckled down to work on amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan are working swiftly over the twenty-two changes submitted. One adopted yesterday fixed advisory qualifications for nations to be elected by a General Assembly of all United Nations to the Security Council. The amendment states that six countries may be chosen (1) according to their ability to help maintain world security and (2) according to their geographical locations.

Some differences between the other Powers and Russia continued to crop up. The latest came over a Russian proposal to have representatives of the World Trade Congress, a non-governmental organization, sit with the conference committee studying means of social and economic coperation among the nations. The committee voted to admit the observers along with representatives of the International Labor Office.

C. I. O. President Philip Murray protested in a statement accusing the United States delegation of responsibility for the trade-union rejection step.

LONDON, MAY 11-(AP)-THE LONDON NEWS CHRONICLE SAID TODAY THAT PREMIER MARSHAL STALIN HAD REPLIED TO COMMUNICATIONS FROM PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND PRESIDENT TRUMAN ON THE POLISH ISSUE, BUT A BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN DENIED ANY KNOWLEDGE OF SUCH A NOTE.

THE CHRONICLE SAID IT UNDERSTOOD STALIN HAD REITERATED RUSSIAN CHARGES OF ANTI-SOVIET CONSPIRACY AGAINST 16 POLISH UNDERGROUND LEADERS PREVIOUSLY DISCLOSED TO HAVE BEEN ARRESTED IN MOSCOW.

THE PAPER ALSO SAID IT UNDERSTOOD STALIN DENIED THE 16 HAD BEEN INVITED TO MOSCOW FOR "POLITICAL DISCUSSIONS" WITH THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT, AS REPORTED BY THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE IN LONDON.

THEIR ARREST HAS UPSET NEGOTIATIONS FOR A SETTLEMENT OF THE VEXING POLISH PROBLEM.

FUGITIVE.

THE MACHINERY FOR DETERMINING THE GUILT OR INNOCENCE OF THE TOP RANKING NAZIS AWAITS CREATION BY THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIAN, BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

THE ISSUE WAS REFERRED TO THEIR FOREIGN SECRETARIES FOR WORKING OUT DETAILS.

THESE FACTS WERE LEARNED, HOWEVER:

1. TRIALS UNDER PRESENT PLANS WILL BE PUBLIC, ON THE THEORY THAT THESE WILL PROVE THAT BEST LESSON POSSIBLE TO CONVINCE THE GERMAN PEOPLE OF THEIR ERRORS.

2. NEUTRAL NATIONS WILL BE DENIED A PLACE ON THE BENCH.

3. STRONG SENTIMENT EXISTS FOR THE TRIAL OF INDUSTRIALISTS WHO USED SLAVE LABOR, AS WELL AS THOSE WHO FORMULATED THE POLICIES WHICH MADE SUCH CONSCRIPTION OF FOREIGNERS POSSIBLE.

THE WAR CRIMES COMMISSION HAS HEADQUARTERS HERE AND HAS 16 MEMBERS. RUSSIA IS NOT ONE OF THEM. THE COMMISSION HAS THE POWER ONLY TO MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS WHICH MUST BE SUBMITTED TO THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE MEMBERS FOR APPROVAL.

IT WAS ESTABLISHED DEFINITELY THAT THE COMMISSION REGARDS AS WAR CRIMINALS ALL THOSE WHO DECREED, DIRECTED OR PARTICIPATED IN THE POLICIES WHICH RESULTED IN PLANNED UNDERNOURISHMENT, SLAVE LABOR, CONCENTRATION CAMPS AND ORGANIZED PROSTITUTION.

OUT OF THIS STRONG FEELING PRESUMABLY WAS BORN THE PLAN ADVANCED AT SAN FRANCISCO BY SAMUEL ROSENMAN, PRESIDENTIAL ADVISOR, TO PERMIT THE TRIAL OF ORGANIZATIONS ACCUSED OF ATROCITIES, AS WELL AS THE MAJOR WAR CRIMINALS.

THE ADOPTION OF THIS PROCEDURE WOULD, FOR EXAMPLE, PERMIT THE BLANKET TRIAL OF THE GESTAPO--A VOLUNTARY ORGANIZATION WITH A MEMBERSHIP OF APPROXIMATELY 200,000.

IF THE ORGANIZATION ITSELF WERE FOUND GUILTY, THEN THE NEXT STEP WOULD BE TO DETERMINE WHETHER AN INDIVIDUAL WAS A MEMBER AND SUBJECT TO A BLANKET PENALTY--THUS ELIMINATING THE TREMENDOUS TASK OF TRYING EACH PERSON SEPARATELY.

LONDON, MAY 11-(AP)-SIR JAMES GRIGG, BRITISH SECRETARY OF WAR, HAS OFFICIALLY THANKED GEN.EISENHOWER FOR AMERICAN "INITIATIVE AND SYMPATHY" IN THE LIBERATION AND REPATRIATION OF BRITISH PRISONERS, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

A LETTER FROM SIR JAMES TO EISENHOWER SAID:

"I WANT TO EXPRESS TO YOU MY DEEP GRATITUDE FOR THE WAY IN WHICH THE UNITED STATES FORCES HAVE TREATED OUR PRISONERS OF WAR. THE ADVANCE OF THE ALLIED ARMIES UNDER YOUR INSPIRING LEADERSHIP HAS BROUGHT FREEDOM TO THOUSANDS OF THESE UNFORTUNATE PRISONERS IN GERMAN HANDS. SOON, WE MAY HOPE, ALL OF THEM WILL BE FREE.

"THE SWIFT RETURN OF THESE EX-PRISONERS TO THIS COUNTRY IS, I KNOW, A TASK CALLING FOR THE HIGHEST DEGREE OF ORGANIZATION AND ENTHUSIASM. HAD IT NOT BEEN FOR THE INITIATIVE AND SYMPATHY DISPLAYED BY THE UNITED STATES STAFF, AIR FORCES AND ALL CONCERNED, THE REPATRIATION OF OUR MEN WOULD HAVE BEEN SERIOUSLY HAMPERED.

"AS IT IS, THEIR HOMECOMING HAS BEEN EFFECTED WITH THE UTMOST RAPIDITY AND THEY ARE LOUD IN THEIR PRAISE AND GRATITUDE FOR THE MANY KINDNESSES SHOWERED UPON THEM BY ALL RANKS OF THE UNITED STATES FORCES AT THE TIME OF THEIR LIBERATION AND DURING THEIR HOMEWARD JOURNEY.

"MAY I ASK YOU TO ACCEPT MY SINCERE THANKS AND TO CONVEY AN EXPRESSION OF OUR VERY WARM APPRECIATION TO ALL CONCERNED."

(ADVANCE)-EXETER, ENGLAND, MAY 11-(AP)-MINISTER OF PRODUCTION OLIVER LYTTELTON SAID TONIGHT THAT NOW WAS THE TIME FOR BRITAIN TO BEGIN "NEW PEACE PRODUCTION."

"WE CANNOT, BECAUSE OF THE GREAT DISTANCES WHICH SEPARATE US FROM THE THEATER OF WAR, BRING THE SAME WEIGHT, THE SAME NUMBERS TO BEAR UPON THE JAPANESE AS WE BROUGHT UPON THE GERMANS," THE TEXT OF A SPEECH SAID. "CONSEQUENTLY THERE WILL BE RELEASES FROM THE ARMED FORCES AND, WITH THE AID OF THIS MAN AND WOMAN POWER, WE MUST MAKE A BEGINNING IN OUR LIFE HERE AT HOME.

"ON D-DAY WE HAD 5,000,000 MEN AND WOMEN WORKING ON MUNITIONS AND THAT INTRICATE PATTERN OF WAR PRODUCTION CANNOT BE REARRANGED WITHOUT SOME DISLOCATION AND WITHOUT AN EFFECT UPON THE LIVES OF THE WORKERS. BUT THE NUMBER OF JOBS THAT WE HAVE IS FAR GREATER THAN THE NUMBER OF MEN AND WOMEN WE HAVE TO DO THEM.

"WHEN, YOU WILL ASK, ARE WE GOING TO BEGIN NEW PEACE PRODUCTION? THE ANSWER IS NOW."

LYTTELTON SAID THAT ONLY UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL COULD BRITAIN HOPE TO WIN HER WAY THROUGH THE MAZE OF DIFFICULTIES WHICH FACES THE WORLD TODAY AND CONTENDED THAT THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY DID NOT BELIEVE IN A LOW-WAGE POLICY, BUT IN A HIGH OUTPUT PER MAN.

"HIGH WAGES," HE MAINTAINED, "CAN ONLY BE SUSTAINED IN A COMPETITIVE WORLD BY HIGH PRODUCTION PER MAN, WHICH DEPENDS ON HARD WORK AND GOOD MACHINES."

LONDON, MAY 11-(AP)-BRITAIN'S WEEKLY MAGAZINES, INCLUDING THE LEFT-WING TRIBUNE, GENERALLY CONDEMNED RUSSIA'S ARREST OF 16 POLISH LEADERS IN THEIR ISSUES APPEARING TODAY AND WARNED THAT THE UNITY OF THE BIG THREE WAS THREATENED.

THE TRIBUNE DECLARED THAT PREMIER STALIN BY JAILING THE POLES "WAS VIRTUALLY DECLARING THE YALTA AGREEMENT TO BE NULL AND VOID," AND ADDED THAT "HE APPARENTLY PREFERS EXCLUSIVE RUSSIAN CONTROL OVER THE SO-CALLED SOVIET SPHERE OF INFLUENCE TO THE JOINT RESPONSIBILITY OF THE BIG THREE."

WHILE POINTING OUT THAT IT WAS JUSTIFIABLE TO PREVENT THE FORMATION OF ANY BLOCS OR LINK-UPS THAT MIGHT HAVE AN ANTI-SOVIET EDGE, THE TRIBUNE CONTINUED THAT:

"ALL THIS DOES NOT GIVE THE RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT THE RIGHT TO OVERSTEP THE LIMITS OF LEGITIMATE SELF-DEFENSE AND TO RAISE FALSE ACCUSATIONS WHICH ARE AN INSULT TO THE OTHER ALLIES AND TO BRITISH LABOR AND TO MAKE OF THE ARRESTED POLISH LEADERS AND OF THEIR FOLLOWERS IN POLAND SV

U.S. 8th Airforce Hdqs., May 11-(AP)-the medal of honor was awarded posthumously today to two pilots of a Flying Fortress who gave their lifes trying vainly to save their crew.

Recipients were Lt. Donald J. Gott, 21, Arnett, Okla., and Lt. William E. Metzger, 22, Lima, Ohio.

The fliers died [redacted] last Nov. 9 after their bomber "Lady Jeanette" was ribbed by flak over a railyard at Saarbruecken. Two engines were afire, a third was damaged and the planes interphone and electrical system was destroyed. The big bomber was ablaze from nose to tail by the time it got over friendly territory.

Gott, the pilot, ordered the crew to bail out. One whose leg was broken used the parachute of Metzger, the co-pilot, because his own was damaged. The radio operator-gunner had his right hand blown off at the wrist and was hurt too badly to parachute.

MAY 12 1945

The pilots elected to stay with him and try to land.

The plane blew up a few hundred feet on the ground, killing Gott, Metzger and the gunner.

Gott had received the air medal with three oak leaf clusters. He was one of the best liked pilots at the base. His fatal mission was his 28th. Metzger was on his third combat flight since joining the 452nd bombardment group.

"Gott was just the type of fellow to do a thing like that," said Sgt. Joe Du Pain, 5551 Enright St., St. Louis, squadron engineering clerk.

"He was the sort of fellow who would keep on to the target until his plane was shot out from under him," added Master Sgt. Sam Wood, Jr., Carrolton, Ky., chief of the fortress' ground crew.

The other crewmen--except the tail gunner who was killed when his parachute caught on the tail of the plane and ripped off his back--now are back in the United States.

PARIS, MAY 11-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS IN PARIS--AND PROBABLY ALL OVER EUROPE--WERE BUSY WITH PENCILS TODAY, FIGURING OUT THEIR INDIVIDUAL STANDINGS IN THE NEW GOING-HOME POINT SYSTEM ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY BY THE WAR DEPARTMENT.
UNDER THE SYSTEM FOR TROOPS IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER, MEN SCHEDULED TO GO HOME FIRST--UNLESS SPECIAL ABILITIES PREVENT THEIR BEING IMMEDIATELY REPLACED--ARE THOSE WHO HAVE AMASSED A TOTAL OF 85 POINTS BASED ON LENGTH OF SERVICE, MONTHS OVERSEAS, NUMBER OF CHILDREN, BATTLE STARS AND DECORATIONS.
IN A RANDOM SURVEY ON SOLDIER OPINION IN PARIS, TWO MAIN OBJECTIONS TO THE SYSTEM WERE ENCOUNTERED: THAT A MAN'S AGE AND THE NUMBER OF HIS DEPENDENTS OTHER THAN CHILDREN DO NOT COUNT. WILL GO HOME FIRST.
IN MOST CASES IT WILL BE THE YOUNGER MEN WHO WILL GO HOME FIRST, BECAUSE THEIR COMBAT RATINGS ARE GENERALLY HIGHER THAN MEN WHO WERE KEPT IN SUPPLY AREAS OR HEADQUARTERS JOBS BECAUSE OF AGE.
ONE 30-YEAR-OLD SOLDIER, WHO ASKED THAT HIS NAME NOT BE USED, SAID: "I'VE GOT AN INVALID MOTHER AND NOBODY BUT ME TO TAKE CARE OF HER. IT LOOKS LIKE I'M STUCK FOR ANOTHER TWO YEARS."
A MAN WORRIED ABOUT HIS AGE WAS MARIO FIORELLA OF 145 W. 55TH ST. NEW YORK CITY, WHO SAID HE WAS 40 YEARS OLD AND A PROFESSIONAL SINGER. FIORELLA HAS BEEN IN THE ARMY 30 MONTHS AND OVERSEAS 24 MONTHS. THAT GIVES HIM 54 POINTS, WITH ANOTHER 10 FOR TWO BATTLE STARS, BRINGING HIS TOTAL TO 64.
"I'M AN OPERA SINGER," HE SAID, "AND BY THE TIME I GET OUT OF THE ARMY ALL PRODUCERS WILL TELL ME I'M TOO OLD."
MOST POINTS EARNED BY ANY MAN ENCOUNTERED IN THE SURVEY WERE HELD BY S/SGT. JAMES PASKO OF 740 E. 82ND ST., CLEVELAND, WITH 47 MONTHS SERVICE, 14 MONTHS OVERSEAS, ONE CHILD AND 25 POINTS FOR BATTLE STARS AND DECORATIONS. HE HAS A TOTAL OF 98.

IF SHIPPING FACILITIES ARE ADEQUATE, 15,000 MORE WILL FOLLOW IN JUNE AND AT LEAST THE SAME NUMBER IN JULY. AT LEAST 2,000 U.S. FIFTH ARMY TROOPS WITH AT LEAST 15 MONTHS OVERSEAS, TWO YEARS IN THE ARMY AND SOME COMBAT EXPERIENCE ALREADY HAVE BEEN SELECTED.

SOME FORCES WILL REMAIN IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER FOR THE CLEANUP, WHILE SOME TECHNICAL PERSONNEL WILL GO DIRECTLY TO THE PACIFIC.

AMERICAN TROOPS THROUGHOUT THE EUROPEAN THEATER UNDER GEN. EISENHOWER'S COMMAND CHECKED THEIR ADJUSTED SERVICE RATING FORMS TODAY.

THE ARMY WILL NOT KNOW WHICH TROOPS WILL BE SENT HOME FOR DISCHARGE OR REASSIGNMENT, WHICH WILL BE SENT TO THE PACIFIC AND WHICH WILL REMAIN FOR SERVICE AND OCCUPATION DUTIES HERE UNTIL THE CARDS HAVE BEEN ANALYZED AND THE FINAL SCORES ANNOUNCED.

COMMUNICATIONS ZONE HEADQUARTERS SAID THE ARMY WOULD BE ABLE TO ANNOUNCE THE FINAL SCORE NECESSARY FOR DISCHARGE WITHIN 45 DAYS.

WHEN THE SCORES ARE TABULATED, THEY WILL BE SENT TO THE WAR DEPARTMENT, WHICH THEN WILL BE ABLE TO DETERMINE WHAT SCORE WILL BE LOW ENOUGH TO RELEASE 2,000,000 MEN WHILE RETAINING THE 6,968,000 NECESSARY TO OCCUPY GERMANY AND FIGHT JAPAN.

WACS IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER WITH A SCORE OF 44 WILL BE RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES AS SOON AS THE THEATER QUOTA OF 10,800 IS FILLED AND ADEQUATE REPLACEMENTS ARE AVAILABLE, COMMUNICATIONS ZONE HEADQUARTERS SAID.

MAY 12 1945

THERE ARE 8,000 WACS IN THE THEATER NOW WHO WILL BE CONSIDERED ESSENTIAL UNTIL THEY CAN BE REPLACED. WACS WHOSE SOLDIER HUSBANDS HAVE BEEN RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES FOR DISCHARGE WILL BE ABLE TO APPLY FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE, HOWEVER.

THE HEADQUARTERS ALSO ANNOUNCED THAT LEAVE ACCOMMODATIONS FOR AMERICAN SOLDIERS AWAITING OCCUPATION DUTY OR REDEPLOYMENT WOULD BE STEPPED UP FROM 28,000 TO 175,000.

LEAVE CENTERS HAVE BEEN MADE READY IN PARIS, THE UNITED KINGDOM, BRUSSELS AND THE FRENCH RIVIERA. MAINBURG, GERMANY, MAY 10 ---A GROUP OF NAZI-FINANCEDRADIO MONITORS WHO ASSERT THEY WERE RE-EDUCATED BY CONSTANT LISTENING TO ALLIED PROPAGANDA DURING THE WAR HAVE VOLUNTEERED TO ORGANIZE UNDER ALLIED SUPERVISION THE SIMILAR RE-EDUCATION OF 60,000,000 VANQUISHED FELLOW GERMANS.

THE GROUP CONSISTS OF 10 OFFICIALS AND EMPLOYES OF "INTERRADIO", A GOVERNMENT-CONTROLLED CORPORATION FORMED IN JANUARY, 1940, TO FURNISH COMPLETE REPORTS OF ALL FOREIGN BROADCASTS TO THE NAZI PARTY, THE GERMAN ARMY, FOREIGN OFFICE, PROPAGANDA MINISTRY AND DNB, OFFICIAL GERMAN NEWS AGENCY.

THE HEADQUARTERS OF INTERRADIO WAS IN BERLIN, AND DURING THE HEYDAY OF NAZI POWER THE PAYROLL NUMBERED 4,000 PERSONS OPERATING LISTENING POSTS IN VARIOUS PARTS OF GERMANY AND ALL OCCUPIED COUNTRIES.

The memorandum conveying the proposal has been forwarded to higher authorities. Meanwhile the self styled converts to Allied thought are interned and their technical equipment sequestered. APN

IN MID-APRIL THE BERLIN HEADQUARTERS STAFF AND KEY PERSONNEL HEADED BY KURT MAIR, THE CORPORATION'S DIRECTOR GENERAL, WERE EVACUATED TO CASTLE OBERLAUTERBACH NEAR HERE, WHERE A FEW DAYS AGO THEY WERE FOUND AND INTERNED BY U.S. THIRD ARMY AUTHORITIES.

MAY 12 1945

NOW, ACCORDING TO DIRECTOR GENERAL MAIR, INTERRADIO WOULD LIKE TO WORK FOR THE ALLIES.

IN A MEMORANDUM SUBMITTED TO CAPT. WYMAN WICKERSHAM OF KANSAS CITY, MO., WHO COMMANDS THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT DETACHMENT HERE, MAIR EMPHASIZED THAT, WHILE HE AND HIS STAFF WERE THE GOVERNMENT PAYROLL, THEIR JOB WAS TO REPORT FOREIGN NEWS AND PROPAGANDA EXACTLY AS RECEIVED. IT WAS SOMEBODY ELSE'S TASK IN THE PROPAGANDA MINISTRY, FOREIGN OFFICE OR DNB TO TWIST AND DISTORT SOME OF THEM FOR NAZI PURPOSES.

MAIR AND HIS COLLEAGUES HAD TO BE GOOD LISTENERS IN ORDER TO PERFORM AN ACCURATE JOB, WITH THE RESULT, ACCORDING TO MAIR, THAT AFTER FIVE YEARS OF LISTENING COMPLETELY CONVERTED THEM TO THE ALLIED VIEWPOINT.

MAIR ALSO EMPHASIZED THAT THE GERMAN POPULATION AS A WHOLE, ASIDE FROM THE FEW WHO RISKED DEATH OF IMPRISONMENT BY SECRETELY LISTENING TO FOREIGN STATIONS-WAS EFFECTIVELY SHUTXXX OFF FROM ALL CONTACT WITH WORLD OPINION, THEREFORE IT NEVER HAD A CHANCE TO BE REEDUCATED.

" MY COLLABORATORS AND I " MAIR SAID " ARE THE ONLY FEW PERSONS IN GERMANY WHO -TO SUCH EXTENT HAVE HEARD THE VOICE OF FOREIGN COUNTRIES WITHOUT INTERRUPTION DURING THE WHOLE WAR AND WHO ARE ACCURATELY INFORMED OF WORLD OPINION.

MAY 12 1945

"THUS FOR A LONGTIME WE HAVE KNOWN THE FACTORS OF THE PRESENTXI CATASTROPHE OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE AND WE ALSO KNOW THE GREAT SPIRITUAL ABYSS WHICH HAS TO BE BRIDGED IF THE GERMAN PEOPLE ARE TO RENEW THE CONTACTS WITH OTHER "ATIONS"

MAY 12 1945

THEREFORE ,GERMANY'S NUMBER 1 OFFICIAL LISTENER IN CONTINUED, INTER RADIOS MONITORING EXPERTS WANT TO THROW THEIR TALENTS INTO "COLLABORATION IN THE SPITITUAL AND POLITICAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE" BY DISSEMINATING THROUGH NXX THE PRESS AND RADIO INSIDE GERMANY THE SAME KIND OF INTERNATIONAL NEWS AND OPINION WHICH HERETOFORE HAS EVERYWHERE KEPT FROM THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE.

MAIR AND HIS COLLEGUES ARE WILLING TO GO EVEN BARTHER- THEY ARE WILLING TO COLLABORATE IN XXXXXXXXXXXXXX " THE CREATION OF A NEW GERMAN XXXXXXXX AUTHORITY" CAPABLE OF REPLACING THE OLD REGIME. AS LONG AS A YEAR AGO, MAIR SAID, THEY " CLEARLY SAW DEFEAT" AND BEGAN CAUTIOUS CONTACTS WITH PROMINENT "ON-NAZI GERMANS, HE SAID THAT HE HAD INTERVIEWS WITH A NUMBER OF PROTESTANT AND CATHOLIC BISHOPS AND XXXXX ALSO WITH CARDINAL FAULHABER.

HE STRESSED THAT THE ALLIED VICTORY WAS A" ACCOMPLISHED FACT " TO PROCEED FROM THE ALLIED MILITARY VICTORY TO DURABLE PAEACE IT SEEMS TO ME NECESSARY TO,OBTAIN XXXXXXXXXXXX VOLUNTARY COOPERATION" FROM THE GERMAN PEOPLE IN THE "EW FORMATION" OF POLITICAL CONDITIONS IN GERMANY", PROCLAIM A PROGRAM OF RESTORATION OF AGRICULTURE AND OTHER ESSENTIAL PRODUCTION" AND THE EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION" OF THE AVAILABLE FOOD," GIVE THE GERMAN PEOPLE "EW HOPE ".

ROME, MAY 11-(AP)-ALL NAZI TROOPS IN THE DODECANESE INCLUDING THE HOLD-OUT GARRISON OF 12,000 GERMANS ON THE RUGGED NORTHWEST COAST OF CRETE, HAVE SURRENDERED, THE ALLIED NAVAL COMMAND ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE SURRENDER OF THE MEDITERRANEAN ISLANDS INVOLVED AN OVERALL TOTAL OF 20,000, THE BALANCE BEING MADE UP FROM THE GERMAN TROOPS ON RHODES, MELOS, COO AND VARIOUS GROUPS OF SMALLER ISLETS IN THE AEGEAN SEA.

CRETE PREVIOUSLY HAD BEEN PARTLY OCCUPIED BY ALLIED FORCES. LANDING PARTIES PUT ASHORE ON THE OTHER ISLANDS MAY 9.

CRETE WAS FIRST LOST BY THE BRITISH AND GREEKS AFTER 12 DAYS OF FRIGHTFUL SLAUGHTER FOLLOWING THE LANDING OF NAZI PARACHUTE TROOPS ON MAY 20, 1941.

IN ABANDONING CRETE AT THE TIME, THE BRITISH WERE ABLE TO RESCUE 15,000 ALLIED TROOPS, OR MORE THAN HALF THE GARRISON OF THIS STRATEGIC OUTPOST OF GREECE.

MAY 12 1945

BY MID-1943 ALLIED AIR POWER HAD BEGUN TO MAKE THE NAZI CRETAN BASES AS COSTLY TO THE GERMANS AS THEY HAD BEEN TO WIN ORIGINALLY.

FOR THE FIRST HALF OF 1944 THE GERMANS MANAGED TO HOLD LIMITED SEA CONTROL IN THE AREA, BUT LOST IT DURING THE EARLY FALL AFTER INCESSANT ALLIED BOMBINGS AND STEPPED-UP BRITISH NAVAL OPERATIONS.

DURING THE LATTER MONTHS OF 1944 BRITISH NAVAL UNITS DEALT TERRIFIC BLOWS TO NAZI SHIPPING IN THE AEGEAN AND VIRTUALLY BLOCKADED THE GARRISONS ON CRETE, RHODES, AND MELOS.

CALCUTTA, MAY 11-(AP)- THE FIRST CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR TO BE BESTOWED IN THIS THEATER HAS BEEN AWARDED POSTHUMOUSLY TO LT. JACK KNIGHT, OF MINERAL WELLS, TEXAS. LT. GEN. DANIEL SULTAN ANNOUNCED TODAY.

KNIGHT WAS KILLED ON FEB. 2, IN A BLOODY SIX-HOUR FIGHT FOR A STRATEGIC HILL NEAR LOIKANG, NORTH OF LASHIO.

COMMANDER OF A DISMOUNTED CAVALRY UNIT, KNIGHT WHILE RECONNOITERING FOUND HIMSELF IN THE MIDDLE OF A HORSESHOE FORMATION OF ENEMY PILLBOXES. HE TOSSED GRENADES AT THE ENEMY AS HE CALLED FOR TROOPS TO COME UP.

KNIGHT WAS HIT IN THE FACE BY MORTAR SHRAPNEL, BUT ALTHOUGH HALF-BLINDED REGROUPED HIS SQUADS AND CONTINUED TO LEAD THE ATTACK UNTIL HE WAS FELLED BY A SECOND JAP GRENADE.

SGT. CURTIS KNIGHT, THE LIEUTENANT'S BROTHER, TOOK OVER THE TROOP COMMAND BUT WAS ALMOST IMMEDIATELY DROPPED WITH A WOUND UNDER THE HEART.

LT. KNIGHT ORDERED HIS BROTHER CARRIED TO SAFETY, THEN RAISED HIMSELF TO ONE ELBOW AND CONTINUED DIRECTING THE ASSAULT. HE STARTED TO CRAWL TOWARDS THE LAST PILLBOX WHEN HE WAS HIT A THIRD TIME AND KILLED.

CHIHKIANG, MAY 11-(AP)-IT WAS LEARNED RELIABLY TODAY THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE USED "HUMAN DETONATORS" TO RID THEIR AIR FIELDS AND OTHER PLACES OF SENSITIVE DELAYED-ACTION BOMBS DROPPED BY THE 14TH AIRFORCE.

THESE BOMBS, WHICH AMERICAN AIRMEN CALL "BUTTERFLY BOMBS," ARE DISCHARGED BY THE SLIGHTEST MOVEMENT, EVEN VIBRATION SET UP BY A MAN WALKING CLOSE BY. THEY ARE IDEAL FOR DENYING THE ENEMY THE USE OF ROADS AND AIRFIELDS.

IT IS NOW LEARNED THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE "BRIBED" CHINESE COOLIES TO PICK UP THESE BOMBS. NATURALLY, PROMISES OF SUCH THINGS AS RICE NEVER HAVE TO BE FULFILLED.

CHIHKIANG, MAY 11-(AP)-AN OBLITERATION RAID THAT WIPED OUT THE STAGING CENTER OF PAOCHING MULTIPLIED TODAY THE TROUBLES OF THE JAPANESE CAUGHT IN THE WRECKAGE OF THEIR WESTERN HUNAN OFFENSIVE.

REPORTS FROM THE FIELD SAID THAT JAPANESE FRONT FORCES ALREADY WERE RUNNING LOW ON AMMUNITION BEFORE THE BASE WAS STRUCK BY 100 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES WEDNESDAY IN ONE OF THE HEAVIEST STRIKES OF THIS WAR BY THE U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE.

THE JAPANESE OFFENSIVE FORCE OF 20,000 TO 25,000 HAS BEEN SLICED INTO SEGMENTS BY THE VALIANT CHINESE COUNTER DRIVES AND THE REDUCTION OF THESE ONE BY ONE MAY BE EXPECTED.

THE DESTRUCTION OF PAOCHING FOLLOWED ONLY AFTER REPEATED EFFORTS THROUGH PAMPHLETS TO WARN THE CHINESE CIVILIAN POPULATION OF THE DANGER OF REMAINING THERE AND FEW IF ANY CIVILIANS LIKELY WERE THERE WHEN 100 AMERICAN BOMBERS STRUCK.

THE WAY MAY NOW BE CLEARED FOR A CHINESE GRAND OFFENSIVE EVENTUALLY AGAINST THE JAPANESE SUPPLY CORRIDOR RUNNING THROUGH SOUTHEAST CHINA INTO SOUTHEAST ASIA.

THE CLOSE COLLABORATION BETWEEN THE CHINESE AND AMERICANS AS WAS SHOWN IN THE PAOCHING COUNTERDRIVE THAT SAVED THIS AIR BASE OF CHIHKIANG WAS ONE OF THE MOST HEARTENING TURNS OF THE WAR IN CHINA

IT REMAINS TO BE SEEN WHETHER THE JAPANESE ALREADY WITHDRAWN IN BULK FROM BURMA WILL ATTEMPT TO PULL BACK INTO CHINA FROM MALAYA, THAILAND AND FRENCH INDO-CHINA FOR THE FINAL KNOCKDOWN FIGHT.

A MILLION JAPANESE TROOPS NOW ARE SPREAD OVER CHINA AND A RETREAT FROM SOUTHEAST ASIA, IF IN ANY DEGREE SUCCESSFUL, WOULD ALTER THE MILITARY SITUATION IN CHINA SOMEWHAT IN THE ENEMY'S FAVOR.

BUT IF SUPPLIES ARE CUT OFF, CHINA MAY BE TURNED INTO A VAST SLAUGHTER GROUND.

MAY 12 1945

IT IS APPARENT EVEN NOW THAT THE SUPPLY SHOE IS PINCHING THE JAPANESE FOOT IN CHINA.

SEALANES TO SOUTHEAST ASIA ALREADY HAVE BEEN DENIED THE ENEMY AND LAND COMMICATIONS ARE SUBJECT TO INCREASING ASSAULT BY AIR.

"ENEMY NATIONS ARE CONSTRUING OUR ACTION AS CONSTITUTING A BID FOR PEACE, BUT THIS IS AN ENTIRELY MISTAKEN IDEA. JAPAN HAS CLEARLY STATED TO THE WORLD THAT SHE WILL FIGHT TO THE END AGAINST BRITAIN AND AMERICA AND, AT THE SAME TIME, MAINTAIN FRIENDLY RELATIONS WITH SOVIET RUSSIA."
THE SAME BROADCAST ADMITTED JAPAN STARTED THE WAR "ON HER OWN ACCORD FOR HER OWN REASONS," AND NOT "WITH THE IDEA THAT GERMANY WOULD TAKE SIDES WITH US." IT SAID THE FIGHT PUT UP BY GERMANY AND HITLER HAD "LEFT A DEEP IMPRESSION ON THE MINDS OF JAPANESE" AND ASSERTED THE "TRUE PICTURE OF THE JAPANESE SPIRIT OF TODAY" IS "TO AVENGE FALLEN GERMANY AND TO SMASH THE ENEMY."
ALTHOUGH CAUTIONING JAPAN TO EXPECT FROM ITS ENEMIES "AN EVEN MORE PERSISTENT CAMPAIGN OF PROPAGANDA WARFARE," THE TOKYO RADIO SAID THERE WAS NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT "SO LONG AS WE MAINTAIN OUR CORRECT COMPOSURE."
ANOTHER BROADCAST GAVE THE FIRST EVIDENCE THAT ACTION HAD BEEN TAKEN TO CREATE THE "NATIONAL VOLUNTEER ARMY" WHICH TOKYO HAS SAID WOULD DEFEND THE HOMELAND IN EVENT OF INVASION. THIS WAS THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT NIPPON'S EX-SERVICEMEN AND YOUTHS OF 16 AND OVER WHO HAVE NOT BEEN CONSCRIPTED WILL BE SUBJECT TO IMMEDIATE INDUCTION AFTER MAY 20.

(ADVANCE)...WASHINGTON, MAY 11-(AP)-A PROVISIONAL AGREEMENT ON THE USE AND REHABILITATION OF WESTERN EUROPE'S WAR-WRECKED INLAND TRANSPORTATION HAS BEEN SIGNED BY THIS COUNTRY AND SIX OTHER NATIONS, THE STATE DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCED TODAY.
THE AGREEMENT, DESIGNED TO COORDINATE TRAFFIC AND HELP IN REHABILITATION OF WHAT IS LEFT OF RAILWAYS, HIGHWAYS AND INLAND WATERWAYS IN EUROPE, WAS SIGNED IN LONDON MAY 8 BY REPRESENTATIVES OF THE UNITED STATES, THE UNITED KINGDOM, FRANCE, BELGIUM, LUXEMBOURG, THE NETHERLANDS AND NORWAY.
IT SETS UP A PROVISIONAL ADVISORY ORGANIZATION WITH TEMPORARY HEADQUARTERS IN LONDON.
THE ANNOUNCEMENT STATED THAT THE WESTERN ALLIES HAVE BEEN DISCUSSING WITH RUSSIA AND OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRIES A DRAFT AGREEMENT FOR A MORE PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.
CHARLES P. TAFT, HEAD OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S OFFICE OF TRANSPORT AND COMMUNICATION POLICY, EXPLAINED THAT RUSSIE AND OTHER POWERS HAD NOT ENTERED THE PROVISIONAL AGREEMENT BECAUSE IT HAD NOT YET APPROVED THE DRAFT. IT IS HOPED, HE SAID, THAT A MORE PERMANENT ORGANIZATION CAN BE CREATED SOON.
THE FUNCTION OF THE PROVISIONAL ORGANIZATION IS PURELY ADVISORY AND CONSULTATIVE, AND IT HAS NO AUTHORITY TO GIVE ORDERS TO ANY GOVERNMENT OR OCCUPYING AUTHORITY, TAFT STATED.
UNDER THE AGREEMENT, TAFT EXPLAINED, MEMBER GOVERNMENTS RECOGNIZE THAT THEY HAD A MORAL OBLIGATION TO HELP EACH OTHER IN THEIR PRESENT PLIGHT.
THE PRIMARY PURPOSE OF THE AGREEMENT IS TO FACILITATE THE MOVEMENT OF MILITARY FORCES AND SUPPLIES. IT IS ELSO EXPECTED TO AID IN THE MOVEMENT OF CIVILIAN SUPPLIES AND IN THE REPATRIATION OF THE MILLIONS OF DISPLACED PERSONS.

THE PROVISIONAL AGREEMENT MAY BE ABROGATED BY ANY MEMBER POWER UPON THREE MONTHS NOTICE, WHILE THE MORE PERMANENT ORGANIZATION CONTEMPLATED WOULD RUN FOR TWO YEARS WITH MEMBER POWERS ABLE TO WITHDRAW UPON GIVING 18 MONTHS NOTICE.

D68WX

THIS COUNTRY'S INTEREST IN THE AGREEMENT IS TO FACILITATE WITHDRAWAL OF AMERICAN TROOPS, SUPPLIES AND EQUIPMENT FROM EUROPE AND TO SUPPLY OCCUPATION TROOPS, TAFT SAID. HE ADDED THAT THIS GOVERNMENT'S ADHERENCE TO THE POST IS THROUGH AN EXECUTIVE AGREEMENT, WHICH HAS BEEN DISCUSSED WITH MEMBERS OF CONGRESS. HE SAID THEY RAISED NO OBJECTION.

GENERAL C.D.YOUNG, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF DEFENSE TRANSPORTATION, HAS BEEN NAMED AMERICAN MEMBER OF THE PROVISIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

TAFT SAID THE AGREEMENT WAS IMPORTANT NOT ONLY FROM THE STANDPOINT OF GETTING THE WRECKAGE OF EUROPEAN TRANSPORT FUNCTIONING AGAIN, BUT ALSO TO FORESTALL, BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT, MEMBER NATIONS FROM GRABBING WHAT REMAINS OF THE RAIL, HIGHWAY AND INLAND WATERWAY EQUIPMENT FOR THEIR OWN PURPOSES.

THE AGREEMENT ALSO SEEKS TO GUIDE THE REPLACEMENT OF DISPLACED ROLLING STOCK AND EQUIPMENT AND TO ADVISE ON ALLOCATION PROBLEMS.

MAY 12 1945

SAN FRANCISCO, MAY 11-(AP)-UNITED STATES DELEGATES WERE REPORTED IN AGREEMENT TODAY ON A COMPROMISE PROPOSAL WHICH WOULD RETAIN IN FORCE A REGIONAL DEFENSE SYSTEM IN THIS HEMISPHERE.

THE PROPOSAL IS BASED PRIMARILY ON THE CONCEPT THAT NATIONS HAVE AN INHERENT RIGHT TO BAND TOGETHER FOR SELF-DEFENSE. IT WOULD CONTINUE THE INTER-AMERICAN SYSTEM IN FORCE FOR THE DURATION OF THE WAR, THEN PUT IT UNDER A WORLD SECURITY COUNCIL, ASSUMING THAT AGENCY WAS SET UP BY THAT TIME.

THE AMERICAN PROPOSAL HAS NOT YET BEEN REDUCED TO FINAL FORM.

AS TENTATIVELY DRAWN IT WOULD LEAVE FOR FUTURE CONSIDERATION THE RECOMMENDATION IN THE ACT OF CHAPULTEPEC, SIGNED AT MEXICO CITY MARCH 3, THAT AMERICAN REPUBLICS MOVE LATER TO BIND THEMSELVES BY TREATY FOR MUTUAL DEFENSE.

ANY SUCH FUTURE ARRANGEMENT, UNDER THE LANGUAGE OF THE MEXICO CITY AGREEMENT ITSELF, WOULD HAVE TO BE "CONSISTENT WITH THE PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES OF THE GENERAL INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION WHEN FORMED."

THE AMERICAN-DISCUSSED PROPOSAL WAS CALCULATED TO PRESERVE THE OVERALL AUTHORITY OF THE PROJECTED WORLD LEAGUE AND YET SATISFY THE DEMANDS OF LATIN AMERICAN NATIONS TO KEEP INTACT THE AGREEMENT THEY SIGNED TO ACT TOGETHER UNDER THEIR RESPECTIVE GOVERNMENT'S WARTIME POWERS TO PRESERVE PRESENT BOUNDARIES.

MAY 12 1945

PROJECTED ON A WORLD WIDE BASIS, IT WOULD PERMIT ANY SIMILAR REGIONAL AGREEMENTS FOR MUTUAL DEFENSE. THUS THE AMERICANS, WOULD NOT BE PLACED IN THE POSITION OF ASKING SPECIAL CONSIDERATION FOR THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

THE FEAR OF THE UNITED STATES DELEGATES HAS BEEN THAT IF THEY INDICATED THIS COUNTRY WAS PLACING CHIEF RELIANCE FOR HEMISPHERE DEFENSE IN A REGIONAL AGREEMENT, RATHER THAN IN THE OVERALL POWER OF THE LEAGUE, EUROPEAN AND ASIATIC ALLIES WOULD CONCLUDE THEY HAD BETTER MAKE WHAT SECTIONAL PACTS THEY COULD RATHER THAN DEPEND ON THE WORLD ORGANIZATION FOR FUTURE SECURITY.

AT THE SAME TIME, DELEGATES HAVE NOT WANTED TO CREATE THE IMPRESSION THEY WERE WILLING TO JUNK AN AGREEMENT SIGNED ONLY A LITTLE MORE THAN A MONTH AND A HALF AGO--A PACT IN WHICH MANY LATIN AMERICAN NATIONS EVIDENTLY HAVE PLACED GREAT RELIANCE.

THE ANSWER SEEMED TO BE TO KEEP AT LEAST A PART OF MEXICO CITY'S AGREEMENTS IN FORCE BUT NOT TO MAKE ANY FUTURE COMITMENTS WHICH WOULD HAMSTRING THE LEAGUE'S WORLD POWER.

APPARENTLY AWAITING FINAL WORD FROM PRESIDENT TRUMAN ON THE QUESTION THE DELEGATION PLANNED TO MEET TOMORROW MORNING FOR ANOTHER AND PERHAPS LAST ATTEMPT TO REDUCE THE IDEA TO A FORMAL AMENDMENT.

165 JAP PLANES DOWNED DURING RAIDS ON FLEET

One Major Ship, Several Smaller Ones Damaged by Enemy Bombers.

MARINES ADVANCE

Battle Way into Takamotoji, North of the Asato River.

MAY 13 1945

GUAM, Sunday, May 13 (AP)—Leathernecks of the Sixth Marine division drove into a suburb of Naha, about 500 yards from Naha itself, as troops of the 10th U.S. Army made a general, slow, bitterly-fought advance along the southern Okinawa front yesterday.

Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner's 10th Army Yanks battled ahead doggedly on the second day of their new full-strength drive despite strong Japanese air attacks.

These attacks, made in strength Thursday and Friday, damaged one major fleet unit—probably a battleship or large carrier—and several other smaller ships, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said in today's communique.

Destroyer Bags 19 Planes

Paced by one destroyer which alone shot down 19 Japanese aircraft, carrier pilots and ships destroyed 165 of the attackers.

The destroyer's 19-plane record probably is an all-time mark for a ship of that size in one air attack.

(The old carrier, Hornet, claimed 26 Japanese raiders downed before she was mortally wounded Oct. 26, 1942, and the Battleship North Dakota claimed her guns downed 34 in defending another carrier in the same battle. The Hornet's claim was for one 80-plane attack; the North Dakota's for several attacks.)

The advance by Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd's Sixth Marine division into Takamotoji was the day's outstanding forward push. Takamotoji is north of the Asto river, which forms still another natural barrier to capture of Naha and its big airfield to the south. The Leathernecks, at a cost of scores killed, bridged the Asa river only two days ago in a daring maneuver.

The First Marine division and the 77th Army division in the center of the southern Okinawa line made progress against Japanese cave and ridge positions.

On the east coast, the 96th division captured important strongpoints and straightened its line which flanks Yonabaru airstrip.

Japs Cling to Airfield

The 96th troops hold positions a mile and a half beyond the southern end of the airstrip, but the Japanese have prevented capture of the field because they still hold commanding positions from which they can pour artillery onto the runway.

In operations presumably intended to deny islands flanking the Okinawa area to any Japanese use, cruisers and destroyers bombarded Minami Daito island about 200 miles east of Okinawa Thursday.

Yesterday, troops of the 10th Army invaded small Tori island, about 55 miles west of Okinawa. The island was occupied without opposition. Both Tori and Minami Daito were valuable to the Japanese for observation positions.

Street fighting was under way in Takamotoji as the Marines battled for entry into Naha itself after 42 days of the Central Pacific's most sustained bitter ground campaign.

Yanks Using Tanks

All four Yank divisions on the southern line are employing tanks. The 77th division effectively employed flame-throwing tanks against Japanese caves.

There is this disadvantage however to using tanks. After a tanked advance half a day often is required to mop up bypassed Japanese to the rear, one officer of the 77th division explained.

On Wednesday, Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitcher's fast carriers raided airfields and shipping on islands in the Amami group in the northern Ryukyus. It was in this strike that the major fleet unit was damaged.

This action ranged from the northern Ryukyus to American forces lying off Okinawa. A total of 72 Japanese airplanes were destroyed, including 40 over Okinawa. Ships' guns shared with carrier pilots in downing the enemy airplanes.

The Amami raid saw Yank pilots destroying four more Nipponese planes on the ground in low level attacks and damaging warehouses, installations and a number of luggers.

Attack Ships Off Corea

Navy search bombers again winged to the Korea area, sinking a coastal cargo ship and setting three cargo ships afire.

Aleutians-based Army Mitchells sank a small cargo ship and damaged two others in Kataoka harbor, Shimushu island, in the northern Kuriles. One Mitchell was lost.

Other bomb and rocket targets were radar installations on Minami Cape, Shimushu island; Kashiwadara on Paramushiro; Truk and Yap in the Carolines, Wake and the Palaus.

Apparently realizing the Americans were about to open their big offensive on Okinawa, the Japanese Thursday night launched numerous attacks on the ground and sent air squadrons against the Yank jumpoff positions and naval invasion craft offshore.

The enemy's ground attacks failed, with practically all the assaulting troops meeting death along the U. S. lines.

Through May 10, the day before the Yank offensive began, 39,469 Japanese have been killed on Okinawa, the American communique said.

Japanese strength on the island at the time of the invasion has been estimated at around 85,000 by American officers.

Yank ground casualties for the campaign on Okinawa and neighboring islands through May 7 totaled 16,425, with 2,684 dead. United States Naval casualties for the entire Ryukyu campaign, from March 18 through May 9, were 6,853.

Four U.S. Divisions In Big Push For Naha, Shuri

MAY 13 1945

Guam, May 12 (AP)—Four attacking American division and bitterly resisting Japanese were locked in close-quarter combat today along the entire Okinawa Island front where both sides frequently charged with fixed bayonets.

Perhaps 50,000 to 100,000 Japanese and Americans were involved in fighting over ridges and ravines along the 4-mile battle line. Flame throwers, tanks and blazing gasoline seared interlocking cave defenses as the first Yank two-corps offensive hammered to within a mile of the two major objectives—Shuri, a medieval type fortress in the center, and Naha, shattered west coast port and capital of the southern Ryukyus.

Greatest Yank Assault

"You won't see spectacular advances, because this isn't that kind of fighting," said Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., as his 10th Army opened its greatest assault yesterday while Japanese suicide planes attacked shipping offshore. "But you will see many Japs killed and you will see them gradually rolled back."

And that is the way it was, Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported from the front—bitter fighting all across the island.

Naval, land and aerial artillery supported the attack by the 1st and 6th Marine divisions and the army's 77th and 96th infantry divisions.

Navy Casualties

Testifying to the toughness of the naval campaign, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced the past week's naval casualties were 1,302. Total Navy casualties for the Ryukyus campaign, March 18 through Wednesday, were 6,853—1,283 officers and men killed, 3,498 wounded and 2,072 missing.

After hurling back infiltration attacks during the night Buckner loosed the greatest offensive of the 41-day-old campaign to crack the main Japanese defense of the vital island, 325 miles from Japan's homeland.

Both the 1st Marine Division on the West and the 77th Infantry Division in the center gained hilltops dominating Shuri.

Supplementing orthodox methods of routing out Japanese, Yanks poured large quantities of aviation gasoline down slopes into cave entrances and ignited it.

Double Iwo Jima Toll

Thirty-nine thousand four hundred and sixty-two Japanese dead have been counted in the Okinawa campaign—approaching double the figure of Iwo Jima.

Along the West Coast, the 6th Marine Division, which audaciously bridged the Asa River Thursday, advanced a half mile.

Most of the infiltrating Japanese—even one clutching a telephone wire—were sprawled in death at dawn as Buckner's newly-launched southern assault jumped off.

Three United States vessels were damaged by suicide planes in an attack linked with the ground assault. The enemy lost 40 planes, Nimitz announced.

Observing enemy movements in the Yonabaru vicinity, the 77th Division placed the area under heavy fire.

On the east flank, the 96th Division gained about 200 yards under heavy Japanese fire from the southwest slopes of Kuhazu area. In the Kibara village sector, assaulting 7th Division units were met with white phosphorous grenades.

RUSSIANS CLOSING TRAP ON GERMANS

Reds Capture 700,000 Foes In Final Mopping Up

London, Sunday, May 13 (AP)—Russian armies have captured more than 700,000 enemy troops and 63 Nazi generals in mopping up scattered resistance on the Eastern front since Germany's unconditional surrender Tuesday, Moscow said last night.

Thousands of these troops were being moved eastward by the Red Army. They were bound for Russia for the work of restoring ruined Soviet cities, villages and factories. "Before them now is no role of idle gentlemen," the Soviet newspaper Izvestia said.

The only area on the Eastern front where some German troops still resisted was in Czechoslovakia and Austria. But three Russian armies had closed a ring around the last remnants of Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner's "middle army group" in Czechoslovakia and the trapped Germans were being rounded up in a 1,200-square-mile pocket.

Supply Seizure High

In Austria, another Soviet army was clearing dispersed units of Nazi Colonel General Otto Woehler's army from hideouts in the Austrian Alps, but the last enemy surrender-resisters in the two countries were giving up the fight and surrendering.

In Czechoslovakia and Austria, 475,000 German captives had been seized. Along with the prisoner haul taken from Latvia to Czechoslovakia, the Russians bagged quantities of equipment and supplies.

Moscow's nightly war bulletin gave no fresh news of fighting advances, but reported that the German surrender in the Baltic pockets east and northeast of Danzig and Gdynia and on the Danish island of Bornholm, off Sweden's southeastern tip, had been completed. A total of 60,846 captives, including twelve generals, were checked into cages.

On the Courland Peninsula of Latvia other Russian forces were continuing the roundup of the remnants of 30 trapped Nazi divisions and the bag of 145,000 men, including 28 generals, Moscow said.

No Organized Resistance

The violators of Germany's unconditional surrender were being slashed unmercifully into small pockets by vengeful Red Army forces forced to fight on four days after the fall of Hitler's Third Reich.

The liberation of all Czechoslovakia—one of the first victims of Hitler's shattered plans for world conquest and the last European country to be seared by war—was imminent.

Only the 1,200-square mile, Bohemian pocket east and northeast of Prague remained to be freed, while scattered enemy forces south of the capital were surrendering in disorder between Russian and American lines.

In Austria, north and south of the Danube, other German units—their fighting lines gone—also were surrendering by the thousands. There was no organized resistance.

Konev Directing Mopup

Marshal Ivan S. Konev, commander of the 1st Ukrainian Army, was directing the overall mopup operations in Czechoslovakia from Prague, where the military commander of the capital announced that "peace and order" prevailed.

The Prague radio said Czechoslovak patriots were returning to their civilian occupations and that the first Czechoslovak units which had fought alongside the Red Army and Anglo-American forces were returning home.

While Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's 4th Ukrainian Army battled close to the escape gap southeast of Prague between the capital and the town of Bystrice, Moscow dispatches reported that great celebration had marked three new linkups between Russian and American forces.

Soviets Narrow Escape Gap In Czech Area

London, May 12 (AP)—Soviet armored forces slashed today at Nazi troops offering bitter resistance in Czechoslovakia as they attempted to flee westward through a rapidly narrowing corridor toward the American lines.

Other Russian troops had forced the surrender of the major portion of die-hard enemy units in northern Austria, and had effected three new junctures with the Americans in the holdout area.

Meanwhile, long lines of German prisoners moved toward the Soviet Union from every sector of the front, headed for reception centers where they will be classified according to occupations.

Bag Reaches 600,000

The total of prisoners taken between Wednesday and Friday has risen to the neighborhood of 600,000, including 45 German generals.

Ahead of the German prisoners, said Izvestia, "is no role of idle gentlemen, but the work of restoring ruined cities, villages and factories."

The Soviets already have brushed aside any criticism from abroad over using prisoners for labor, and hold it not only expedient but natural and normal for the Germans to repair the damage.

Still Fight In Berlin

Inside Berlin the Russians were meeting futile but savage resistance. Scores of fires were being set nightly in the shattered capital, as Soviet soldiers extricated the bodies of hundreds of civilians from subways flooded in last-act Nazi terrorism.

In Norway, where approximately 300,000 Nazi troops were reported completing their withdrawal and awaiting return to Germany, Vidkun Quisling's police chief and police minister were reported to have killed themselves rather than face capture by Patriots. Quisling remained in his Oslo cell.

Set Up Barricade

Sverre Riisness, Quisling's Minister of Justice, said Jonas Lie and Henrik Rogstad, police minister and police chief, respectively, committed suicide in a bunker outside Oslo where they had barricaded themselves. Riisness surrendered to Patriot forces.

In the meantime Gen. Nicholaus von Falkenhorst, who had commanded Nazi forces in Norway until last December, told his American 7th Army captors that his fatherland had fought "the most insane war in history."

The linkup with the Americans in Czechoslovakia was accomplished by Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainian army near Rokycany, 9 miles east of Pilsen, and by Marshal Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army below Prague in the area northwest of Ceske Budejovice.

More Towns Occupied

Malinovsky's troops occupied Gemuend and Zwettl in Austria near the Austro-Bohemian border, 75 miles northeast of Linz, and in this same area made the third juncture with the Americans.

Malinovsky forced the major part of Colonel General Woehler's German Army group to surrender in northern Austria. This group was fighting under the overall command of Field Marshal Ferdinand Schoerner's "middle army group," against which the Russians threw powerful armored and storm forces.

The corridor through which thousands of Nazi troops north and northeast of Prague were trying to withdraw toward the American lines was narrowed by General Eremenko's 4th Ukrainian Army. His troops closed the corridor to 12 miles with the capture of Kolin, Kutnahora and Tabor.

RED INFANTRY POWER LEADS

American And British Armies Are Better Equipped

Paris, May 12 (AP)—The Red Army's strength lies in overwhelming infantry power which travels light, but American and British armies are better equipped, more mobile and are far more mechanized.

While much has been heard of the famed Red Army artillery, nothing has been seen to compare with the flexibility of United States massed fire control.

These are some of the conclusions drawn from observation in answer to the question: Is the Red Army the world's most formidable fighting force?

In recent weeks as the Red Army fought its way to meet the Allied forces some of the mystery about it has been lifted. Along the Elbe American and British military men have gained a pretty fair view of the Red Army in action as Germans fought Russians right down to the river in clear sight of the Allied forces.

Reds Use Horses Widely

Here are some other impressions:

Close Russian air co-operation with the ground forces did not appear to pack the hitting power of American and British efforts.

It is apparent that despite the tremendous distances the Red Army has been able to cover it is not able to move with the speed that American forces are able to make on the offensive. A large proportion of Russian guns and transport are horsedrawn. This is particularly true in infantry divisions.

The Soviet strength in moving over vast distances has been in its overwhelming infantry and light-supply arrangements. The Russians live off the land, and judging by what has been seen of the Red Army thus far its supply tonnage per division must be less than half of what it takes to supply an American force in the field.

There is a great preponderance of anti-tank weapons and automatic fire weapons with the infantry. The Russians use small anti-tank guns in place of the tanks and tank destroyers which Americans attach to infantry divisions.

A large proportion of Russian infantry also carries tommy guns instead of rifles.

Every possible fighting man is put on the actual front. Russian divisional headquarters and other headquarters staffs are much smaller than American or British headquarters, and communications are much more sketchy.

The Germans have said they were defeated by the Russians because they were overwhelmed by men and tanks at critical points, with the infantry attacking regardless of losses.

Resembles Gypsy Camp

Russian officers also say they feel that the "spirit" of the army had more to do with defeating the Germans than equipment.

The Russian Army seen thus far on the move looks like a huge gypsy camp with soldiers hanging on running boards of captured cars, draped over the fenders and lying on wagons.

But it gets there.

It is easy to understand how in the heyday of the Luftwaffe German planes were able to tear Russian supply lines to pieces, but when the Red Army got air superiority this vast mass just started rolling and never stopped.

The Russians did not use any cub planes along the Elbe to direct artillery fire, which was not as accurate as the American fire.

The Russians appeared to depend solely on ground observers to direct their artillery and mortar fire. In the final battle at Tangermuende both were extremely spotty against easy targets.

One thing in which the Russians are far superior to the Americans and British is the art of camouflage. One could walk right over a tank before seeing it. This perfection probably dates from the days when the Red Air Force was inferior to the German and the protection from the sky was in hiding.

This trait is shown from the artillery right down to the infantry. The Americans, who since landing in Normandy always enjoyed air superiority, were much more careless in this respect.

There also has been no evidence of a close tie-up between planes and the ground forces in the Red Army, such as in the American Army, where ground crews could contact planes circling overhead.

There is little doubt that the Americans and British have attained greater technical perfection in equipment, at least as far as has been seen in Europe.

It also is true, however, that the Russian Army is far larger than either the American or British, and if the Allies had to expand their armies it is probable that their technical advantages would be spread thin.

2,500 Veterans Get Discharge Papers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Men who took it at Kasserine Pass and dished it out from New Guinea to Normandy—2,500 of them—went back to civilian life yesterday after years of the hardest soldiering in history.

They were the vanguard of some 1,300,000 to be released by the army specifically because they have done a man's full duty to country. Nearly all wore battle stars for the bloodiest combats of World War II. Rows of short gold stripes on sleeves betokened long service abroad, in many cases three years and more.

From military posts in various parts of the nation they walked out, still clad in khaki but no longer answerable to the bugler's call.

They have three months, if they wish, to get home from the point where they were discharged before they must take off their uniforms and hang them up in the family closet. On ceremonial occasions they can brush off the dust and wear them again, along with whatever battle decorations they won.

Those discharged yesterday were veterans of battle in Europe and the Pacific, home for rest but in most cases expecting to go back until they came under the point discharge system adopted by the army.

With a minimum of 85 points—for fatherhood, length of service, time overseas, and combat awards—required for discharge, the men's scores ranged up to the 158 points reported for Sgt. Irby Garner of Andalusia, Ala., who was given his papers at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.

For some of them freedom from military discipline, from the mud and toil and blood and sweat and noise of battle was still not quite believable.

Three hundred veterans who had seen much overseas service were among those who were discharged at Camp Atterbury, Ind. They had been awaiting recall to their organizations abroad.

Before turning the first dischargees loose, the army made sure they were acquainted with the rights and privileges accruing to them as war veterans.

It provided them with booklets covering not only how to go about getting their old jobs back but also what provision Congress made for them under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

In addition to those discharged yesterday, other thousands who have been in the army for a long time will be released, but many of them will be transferred to the Pacific to continue the war against Japan.

Some 2,000,00 men altogether are due to be released from the army within the next 12 months, 1,300,000 of them under the point system. The other 700,000 discharges will be due to wounds, over-age or other factors.

Of an estimated 1,200,000 youths expected to be eligible for training annually, the Army believes it can train 600,000 and the Navy 200,000. The others would be rejected or deferred.

Should the program discussed with the Military committee be approved, many of the 186,000 reserve officers now on active Army duty would be retained to provide the training.

among the veterans of fighting on all fronts who had been brought back for recuperation. An estimated 216,000 such men are eligible for release.

DAY DA

The War Department said that all 2,500 had high-point scores for length of service, overseas duty, combat and parenthood. A minimum of eight-five points is necessary for discharge and the Army expects to release 1,300,000 soldiers on this basis within a year.

The House Military Committee turned thumbs down today on proposals that Congress determine furlough procedure for veterans of the European war. Chairman May (D.-Ky.) announced that the committee would not consider at this time legislation dealing with the subject and told reporters:

"We are not going to interfere with operations of the Army. Who shall be furloughed and how they shall be furloughed is a matter for the Army's leaders to determine, and on the basis of their record in defeating Germany I believe we can have confidence in them."

Mr. May said that the decision to pigeonhole the legislation applied not only to the most recent proposal, introduced yesterday by Representative Smith (R.-Wis.), but "to all similar bills."

Need Not Fight Again

Paris, May 12 (A. P.).—The United States vast redeployment plan to shift fighting men from Europe to the Pacific began operation today, following an announcement by Gen. Eisenhower that combat troops who served both in North Africa and Europe would not have to fight in the Japanese theater.

"We must be sure," Gen. Eisenhower wrote to generals of his command, "that no soldier is sent to the Pacific who has fought in both North Africa and Europe.

"It may be that some soldiers in this category will not have sufficient points to be eligible for discharge. However, these men should be retained in the European theater for occupation, as they should not be required to fight another campaign."

Uppermost factor in the operation of the redeployment plan, said Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Deputy Military Governor of the United States Group Control Council, was "the problem of applying overwhelming force to bring the war against Japan to a quick end."

Troops which have amassed sufficient points based on service, dependents and decorations, will be discharged. When the scores are tabulated they will be sent to the War Department, which will determine what score will be low enough to permit the release of 2,000,000 men while retaining the 6,968,000 necessary to fight Japan and occupy Germany.

Among the foremost factors involved are the immediate training of troops now in Germany and France in Japanese tactics, and the matter of leave and accommodations for troops awaiting reassignment or discharge.

Some American service troops already were moving toward French ports for the beginning of the long journey to the Pacific area. Combat troops will begin moving in about six months.

It will be forty-five days before the Army knows the names of the men who will be sent home under the point system. Gen. Eisenhower's letter said "when the bell rings we must be prepared to release the high-point men in each combat division who are eligible for discharge, even though it results in an immediate reduction of divisional strength below the authorized figures."

He added that "we must not follow blueprint designs rigidly, but must apply the established policies with human understanding."

Gen. Clay said that American troops who will go to the Pacific will be trained in Japanese tactics while still in France and Germany.

Wacs in the European theater with a total of forty-four points will be returned to the United States as soon as the theater

Army Gives Discharge Papers To First 2500 War Veterans

All Mustered Out at Rest Camps in U. S. Under Point Rating Plan—House Group Leaves Procedure to Military

MAY 13 1945

Washington, May 12 (A. P.).—The Army handed discharge papers today to approximately 2,500 veteran troops—the first batch of men released to go home under the new point rating plan.

They were all mustered out at rest camps in this country, being quota of 10,800 is filled and adequate replacements are available, communications zone headquarters said. Wacs whose soldier husbands have been returned to the United States for discharge will be able, however, to apply for immediate release.

Headquarters also announced that leave accommodations for American troops awaiting reassignment under redeployment will be stepped up from 28,000 to 175,000 and that leave centers in Paris, Britain, Brussels and the French Riviera were being prepared for the anticipated rush.

BRITISH LOOK FOR POLL HINT

Churchill Speech Today May Indicate Election Date

London, May 12 (AP) — Britain anticipates that Prime Minister Churchill may give a hint during his anniversary broadcast Sunday night (3 P.M., E.W.T.) of when it can expect its first general election in ten years, the longest stretch this country has gone in modern times without choosing a Parliament.

There is almost unanimous opinion the election will be this year, probably either in July or in October. August and September generally are ruled out for voting as that is the time for gathering the harvest.

Hot Fight In Prospect

A hot fight aside from party platforms appears developing around Churchill's dual position as both leader of the Conservative party, a post he accepted five months after becoming Prime Minister, and leader of the nation's war effort.

Labor Ministers in the coalition Cabinet have stated that while they have pledged allegiance to Churchill the war leader they stand ready to fight Churchill the political leader.

Churchill's personal popularity is sure to be one of the Conservatives' strongest cards. The Labor Party organ, the London Daily Herald, already has struck the opposition note by calling for a campaign based on social issues rather than on the popularity of party leaders.

Both Have Security Plans

Both major parties have proposed a "cradle to the grave" security program, the most sweeping this country every has known, but are lined up squarely on opposite sides on the extent of postwar reform.

The Conservatives are sounding the theme of "free enterprise" while the Laborites are calling for drastic nationalization of industries such as coal mines, power and inland transport, and for Government control of the Bank of England.

The only chance party strategists have had to sample the sentiment of voters has been in by-elections. These are somewhat indecisive as a barometer since all major parties in the coalition Cabinet have been supporting national Government candidates.

Filled According To Truce

Under the election truce, when vacancies occur in Parliament through death or resignation, the party that held the seat is allowed to fill it, although independents and the Left Wing Common Wealth party have offered challenges.

One of the biggest political upsets of the war saw the defeat of a Conservative backed by Churchill and other members of the Cabinet at the hands of a Common Wealth candidate in the usually solid Conservative Chelmsford district nine days ago.

Foreign policy is not expected to be an important campaign factor as all parties are committed to the Churchill government's wartime role in the international field.

However. British intercession in Greece is likely to be a target and some bitter exchanges already have been made relative to the votes of both Conservative and Laborite members of Parliament during the days before and at the time of the 1938 Munich agreement.

Herbert Morrison, who was Labor party chairman and now, at 57, is Minister of Labor in the coalition, has been mentioned as his party's possible choice for the premiership.

Once Churchill has decided on the date for election and advised the King as to the dissolution of Parliament, the Labor ministers in the coalition Cabinet are expected to prepare to resign.

If the voting is put off until autumn they might remain until then. Otherwise Churchill has announced he would name a "caretaker" Government of the best men he could find of "any party or no party."

Suicides in Norway.

London, May 12 (A. P.).—Dispatches from Oslo today said that Vidkun Quisling's police chief and Police Minister have killed themselves. Quisling himself is a prisoner in the Oslo jail.

Sverre Riisness, Quisling's Minister of Justice, said that Jonas Lie and Henrik Rogstad, Police Minister and police chief, respectively, committed suicide in a bunker outside Oslo, where they had barricaded themselves against the Patriot forces since Norway's liberation day. Riisness surrendered to the Patriots.

R. A. F. Transport Loss Light.

London, May 12 (A. P.).—losses of less than one half of one per cent were incurred by the R. A. F. Transport Command in thousands of crossings of the Atlantic since its start, it was announced today. A summary of operations showed that up to mid-April 6,000 aircraft here were flown to Britain by pilots of the command and nearly 2,500 to West Africa and the Middle East.

AWARDED IN ABSENTIA

London, May 12 (A. P.).—Distinguished Service Crosses have been awarded in absentia to three officers who stayed with their hopelessly damaged Liberator until it blew up in an attempt to save three wounded gunners who could not bail out, the United States Eighth Air Force announced today.

Lieuts. Raymond E. Price, pilot, of Loraine, Tex.; Edward J. O'Rourke, co-pilot, of New York city, and John R. Tiedmann, navigator, of Burlingame, Cal., were cited. They are listed as missing in action, although none was seen to escape from the craft.

Two engines of their bomber were knocked out during an enemy fighter attack. The controls were damaged and the hydraulic system was destroyed. Several of the crew were wounded. When it became obvious an explosion was imminent, Lieut. Price ordered the crew to jump. Those who could did, but the others lay unconscious at their stations.

Lieuts. Price and O'Rourke decided to crash land the plane. Lieut. Tiedmann stayed aboard to put a parachute on a wounded gunner and push him overboard. A few seconds later the bomber exploded.

Norse Crown Prince Returning To Oslo

London, May 12 (AP)—Crown Prince Olav of Norway is expected to arrive in Oslo this weekend on a British warship, the Daily Telegraph said today.

The newspaper said Olav and two accompanying ministers would serve as the advance guard for the return of King Haakon and the main body of the Norwegian Government.

Negrin Bound For Parley

London, May 12 (AP)—Juan Negrin, who was Premier of Spain under the Republican regime, left England by air today for San Francisco, where exiled Spanish Republican leaders will meet to discuss unity.

No News on Big Three Meeting

LONDON, May 11 (AP).—The press secretary at No. 10 Downing Street declared today, "There is nothing definite to say at this moment" regarding unofficial reports that President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill are planning a meeting. Yesterday a spokesman at the Prime Minister's residence characterized as "rumors and speculation" reports that a meeting was impending of Truman, Churchill and Stalin.

A Foreign Office spokesman declined official comment on published reports that Stalin had written Churchill charging that the Yalta pledges had been broken.

U.S. Bombers To Give Britain Victory Salute

London, May 12 (AP)—More than 1,500 United States heavy bombers and fighters in battle formation will give England a victory salute tomorrow evening.

For an hour beginning at 7 P.M. they will fly over cities of the Midlands and southeastern counties and will circle around London's outskirts. The armada of 800 Flying Fortresses and Liberators and 700 fighters will rendezvous over Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Thames River residence.

Ten In, Five Waiting

London, May 12 (AP)—Coastal Patrol aircraft reported sighting large numbers of Nazi U-boats up in the Atlantic and North Sea ready to surrender and by late today at least ten had entered British ports with another five standing by to be received.

Most of the submarines were a considerable distance from American shores, but some were believed to be heading for United States and Canadian ports to give up.

[A Halifax dispatch said one U-boat was due to surrender at Shelburne, N.S., on Sunday.]

About 100 of the estimated 200 to 300 U-boats the Germans had in their fleet were believed to have been operating in the Atlantic when Germany surrendered.

Only Doenitz Knows

The London Star, quoting a German naval commander, said only Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz knew how many there actually were.

"We never knew because authorities did not want us to know how heavy our casualties were," the German said.

The formal surrender of the Nazi torpedo or E-boat fleet, which was concentrated around Dutch and Danish ports, was expected over the week end. A heavy fog had delayed the formal delivery of the boats into Allied hands by Rear Admiral Karl Bruning.

Most of the U-boats now under escort are north of Scotland, west of Ireland, in the Bay of Biscay and at the entrance to the English Channel, advices said.

May Not Have Heard

A naval spokesman said there may be several that still had not received surrender instructions because of damage to radio apparatus and their distances at sea. They may not be heard from for days.

The majority of the submarines have been found by the coastal command aircraft already surfaced and flying a surrender flag according to instructions. They are directed by the planes to the nearest rendezvous point or port.

Yanks 'Giving Britain Back To The British'

London, May 12 (AP)—Before the invasion of Normandy, American troops had "taken over" more than 3,000,000 acres of land in England, Wales and northern Ireland—one thirteenth of the total area—for training purposes, it was announced today.

But in the words of one GI, the Americans rapidly are "giving Britain back to the British."

Less than 50,000 acres out of the 3,036,332 still remain under American control according to an announcement from headquarters of the United Kingdom base. Until the end of the European war this area was used for training infantry replacements.

Yanks Vacating 'Little America' In London

London, May 12 (AP)—A "Little America" situated around Grosvenor Square, in the heart of London's fashionable Mayfair, will be largely vacated soon.

Nearly every building around the square has been occupied by United States Army forces.

The great ballroom of the Grosvenor Hotel was transformed into a consolidated officers' mess. Because meals were served in such volume and on an assembly line basis it became known as "Willow [illegible]."

[illegible]es of lords and ladies were [illegible]arters for administrative units. [illegible]any buildings were used as billets.

The army administrative staffs in London will be reduced rapidly. The British Ministry of Public Works is preparing to reclaim and recondition the buildings for return to their owners.

Captives Flown From Reich

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—Several hundred more Allied prisoners were flown out of Germany today by nearly 150 Flying Fortresses, while 550 other bombers took United States Eighth Air Force personnel on an aerial "sight-seeing tour" of bomb damage in Germany.

General Bor Arrives In Britain

London, May 12 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (General Bor), who commanded the unsuccessful Polish uprising in Warsaw last summer and later was captured by the Germans, arrived in Britain today by plane from Paris. Komorowski was flown here in an American Liberator and was received at the airfield by high Polish civil and military leaders, including Tomasz Arceszewski, Premier of the London Polish regime.

British to Release Some Men.

London, May 12 (A. P.).—Morning newspapers announced today that the first releases of men in the British armed services would begin June 18, but that demobilization in full would not begin until the end of the Japanese war.

The Daily Mail said that the gradual release of men by classes meant that 500,000, most of them married, would be in civilian clothing by Christmas.

The question of demobilization will be debated in Commons next Wednesday.

The first group to be released will include all men over 41 and were in the Army before the mid dle of 1941.

KING GEORGE LEADS VICTORY RITE TODAY

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—Led by King George and Queen Elizabeth, all Britain will give thanks tomorrow for victory on the first peacetime Sunday in Europe in almost six years.

In the first royal procession since the war the royal couple, who observed the Eighth anniversary of their coronation today at Windsor Castle, will drive from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral in an open carriage drawn by famous Windsor grays.

At St. Paul's Prime Minister Churchill and the Ministers of State will greet the King and Queen. Between the Strand and Fleet Street the procession will halt while the King receives permission of the Lord Mayor of London to cross the boundary of the ancient city—permission symbolized through the presentation of a sword and mace by the robed Lord Mayor, Sir Frank Alexander.

The thanksgiving week-end began on the warmest May 12 in thirteen years. Throngs flocked to the beaches while others returned to such peacetime week-end pursuits as boating and cricket. Thousands went to greynound race tracks.

KING LEOPOLD DELAYS RETURN TO BELGIUM

LONDON, Sunday May 13—(AP) A Reuters dispatch from Brussels said today that King Leopold III of Belgium had written his brother Prince Charles that his health did not allow him to "return immediately" to Belgium and asked the prince to carry on as regent.

Reuters said Leopold's action was announced in a communique from the Belgian Cabinet.

Londoners Again Go to Seashore

London, May 12 (A. P.).—Tens of thousands of Londoners left the capital to spend the first victory week end at the seaside and escape a heat wave which sent the temperature to 85 degrees.

Parks, pools and the Thames picnic grounds were jammed. Many pubs ran out of beer. Peacetime gayety returned to Brighton and other seaside resorts, where promenades were brightened by summer dresses.

Expect Some U-boats To Turn Up Here

London, May 12 (A. P.).—German submarines have been bobbing up in large numbers in the Atlantic and North Sea and at least ten have surrendered in British ports, while five others are standing by today to be received, according to advices reaching London. Some may make their way to the United States and Canada. (A Halifax dispatch said that one U-boat is due to surrender at Shelburne, N. S., tomorrow.)

The London Star, quoting a German naval commander, said that only Admiral Doenitz knew how many submarines Germany had in the Atlantic. "We never knew because the authorities did not want us to know how heavy our casualties were," the commander said.

Goering Treatment Irks Britons

London, May 12 (AP)—The News Chronicle said today that reports of the reception Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering received on his surrender to the United States 7th Army had angered the British people.

The editorial said the British particularly were angered by a report that Brig. Gen. Robert Stack, of the United States 36th Division, shook Goering's hand.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Kitzbuehel, Austria, on May 9 said both General Stack and Maj. Gen. John E. Dalquist, 36th Division commander, were present when Goering was received. The dispatch mentioned a handshaking ceremony, but the principals were not identified.]

"Once and for all," said the editorial, "Hermann Goering is an evil, cruel murderer to whom justice must be done. Because he is fat, he is not kind; because he laughs he is not merciful; by his record he is a criminal."

The editorial was entitled "Shaking Hands with Murder."

North England Champ, Con O'Kelly, Is Ordained

Hull, England, May 12 (AP)—Con O'Kelly, one of Great Britain's leading heavyweights a decade ago, has been ordained a Roman Catholic priest and will celebrate his first solemn high mass tomorrow.

The 36-year-old undefeated champion of northern England had 64 professional bouts and was never knocked out. He visited the United States in 1931 and drew with King Levinsky at Chicago that fall.

He was ordained Thursday after seven years of study.

Eire's Censorship Ends; Hit By Press

Dublin, May 12 (AP)—Newspapers today hailed the end of Eire's press censorship and generally declared it to have had the effect of putting the neutral Irish people in the false light of upholding Nazism.

Only the Irish Press, of which Prime Minister Eamon de Valera is the controlling director, praised the wartime control of information, saying it prevented the publication of news which was "probably . . . false."

The Irish Independent said the censorship was operated in a "stupid and clumsy and unjust manner."

The Irish Times declared the restrictions had been "as irrational as anything ever devised in the fertile brain of Goebbels."

Nazis Give Allies Key To Norway Installations

Edinburgh, Scotland, May 12 (AP). In spacious Craigie Hall mansion at near-by Cramond, 24 German officers today revealed to Allied military authorities secrets of the German military and naval dispositions in Norway.

Out of twenty suitcases the Germans pulled maps, charts and documents showing army, navy and air-force dispositions and placed them before American and British officers.

The Germans arrived by air and the conferences are expected to last three or four days.

Craigie Hall was closely guarded by troops—so closely that its owner, Lord Rosebery, regional commissioner for Scotland, could not get in when he called to inspect the property. He was turned away by an American major because he lacked a pass signed by the Scottish command headquarters.

Fight to Finish Channel Island Was Nazi's Plan

But Admiral Hoffmeyer's Officers Refused to Do It, Says Dame of Sark

ST. PETER PORT, Guernsey, Channel Islands, May 12 (AP).—Mrs. Sibyl Mary Hathaway, Dame of Sark, now awaiting the return of her American husband from internment, said today the German commander of the liberated Channel Islands had planned a fight to the finish.

Nazi Admiral Hoffmeyer, in charge of these English islands off the Normandy coast which were under German occupation from 1940 until V-E day, wanted to put up a desperate defense despite the unconditional surrender of Admiral Karl Doenitz' high command, she said.

He was forced to drop the plan, Mrs. Hathaway said, when his officers refused to stand by him. She said the bitter-end fight would have meant death and misery for the islanders, who were jubilant today at the arrival of the main British force.

Mrs. Hathaway, titular ruler of Sark and Guernsey, married Robert Woodward Hathaway, of New York City and East Orange, N. J., in 1929. Known to the islanders as Seigneur of Sark, although he does not technically hold the title, Hathaway was sent to civilian internment in Germany, where he continued to defend the interests of several score islanders interned with him.

FRENCH SEEK ROLE IN FAR EAST FIGHT

Admiral Says Allies Refuse Combat-Duty Request

Paris, May 12 (AP)—Admiral Pierre Barjot of the French general staff said today that the French wanted to fight the Japanese, "and we don't care where, but the repeated requests by the Government to send troops to the Far East for combat duty had been turned down by the Allied combined chiefs of staff.

"We can't understand the reason," the Admiral added.

Barjot said France had four divisions ready to go to the Pacific but there was no indication authorization would be given for the units to be shipped out.

Commandos Armed

The Admiral said the French completed the arming of a battalion of Commandos over a year ago and formally requested last November that it be sent to the Pacific. The unit was specially equipped and trained for jungle fighting.

"It took three months to get an answer," he said, "and when the answer arrived it was negative."

The French, he said, again requested permission to send troops to the Far East last March when fighting flared in Indo-China between the Japanese and the French garrison.

Japs Pinned Down

He said the French garrison of about 20,000 men had pinned down three full Japanese divisions, and that despite heavy losses French forces still were holding out in the mountainous jungle areas.

The Admiral declared that French requests to send medical supplies to the garrison also had been refused.

"Except in one instance we have never attached any conditions to our requests," he said. "We have not stipulated that French troops should be used only to liberate French territory. We want to fight the Japanese, and we don't care where."

Naval Units In Action

The French Admiral said complications apparently have arisen in part from ambiguity in marking the geographical limits of the respective commands of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied commander in chief in southeast Asia, and Lieut. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, American commander in China.

Indo-China, he said, apparently lies on the theoretical border between the two commands.

The Admiral said the French were referred from Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force to the Southeast Asia Command, to General Wedemeyer, to London and to Washington in presenting their requests.

Barjot said French naval units, including the battleship Richelieu, were in action in the Pacific.

Famed Luxury Liners Still To Carry Troops

Paris, May 12 (AP)—The Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mary, which between them delivered more than 1,000,000 soldiers to the European theater of operations in history's greatest trans-Atlantic troop shuttle, will continue to ply the Atlantic returning troops and casualties, it was disclosed today.

Operated jointly by American and British personnel, the famous British luxury liners transported troops and patients to and from the United States, starting three years ago. Transportation Corps headquarters said 80 per cent of the troops the two ships brought to this theater were American.

Each ship can carry a full division in one trip and the 85,000-ton Queen Elizabeth, largest liner ever built, has exceeded that at times.

3 U. S. Naval Officers Get Croix de Guerre

Paris, May 12 (A. P.). — Vice-Admiral Alan G. Kirk, commander of the United States naval forces in France, received the Croix de Guerre with palms from the French Navy today. The decoration carried with it the title of officer of the Legion of Honor.

Admiral Kirk's deputy chief of staff, Capt. R. A. F. English, and Lieut.-Commander P. S. Brine, who was liaison officer with the French Navy, also received the Croix de Guerre and were named chevaliers of the Legion of Honor.

Writer Ordered Home Because Of Berlin Trip

Paris, May 12 (AP)—Allied supreme headquarters disaccredited John Groth, artist and writer serving as war correspondent for the American Legion Magazine, and ordered his return to the United States today because he made an unauthorized trip to Berlin soon after it fell to the Russians.

Groth and Seymour Freidin of the New York Herald Tribune, were suspended by SHAEF when they returned from the German capital.

[In New York, the Herald-Tribune announced that it would appeal Freidin's case to the War Department in Washington.]

Freidin said today he had not been notified officially of the results of the investigation of his case by the Paris edition of the Heral Tribune will say tomorrow that its representatives "were advised informally that Freidin is to get the same treatment" as Groth.

Petiot Faces Criminal Trial

PARIS, May 12 (AP).—French police said today they had evidence that Dr. Henri Petoit was never connected with the French resistance movement and therefore would be tried on straight criminal charges in the killing of sixty-five persons and cremation of the bodies. Petoit insisted that his victims were persons who collaborated with the Germans.

Reims Honors Eisenhower

REIMS, France, May 12 (AP)—Reims, where the surrender of the German armies took place, made Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower an honorary citizen today and gave him the golden keys of the city. He accepted "in the name of the Allied armies who won the victory."

SHAEF Asks Reds Twice For Parley On Captives

SHAEF, Reims, May 12 (AP)—Nearly half of the estimated 200,000 British and 76,000 American prisoners of war still in Germany are believed to be within the Russian zone of occupation and supreme headquarters has twice requested a meeting or an agreement to arrange for their return.

Up to late today, there had been no reply from Marshal Ivan S. Koney, to whom the requests were addressed, one through the 21st Army Group and the other through Moscow. Presumably, the war prisoners still are waiting in the camps.

Col. E. F. Straub, of SHAEF's prisoner-of-war recovery branch, said there was every reason to hope for a meeting within the next day or two which might permit the direct recovery of the prisoners.

If that direct recovery were made possible at once and by air—and it cannot be foreseen what arrangements the Russians may approve—the last of these men might be on their way to England and the United States within two weeks to a month.

Planes—some of them big, four-engined heavies now freed from bombing duty—have been used to evacuate close to 90 per cent. of those so far brought back from prison camps in zones now occupied by British and American troops. Yesterday alone, 35,000 men came back by air.

Nazi Loot Found

With the British 2d Army, May 12 (AP)—Several hundred thousand dollars' worth of gold and silver cutlery and other articles looted by the Germans in Holland have been discovered in the Luneburg area, it was disclosed yesterday.

Augsburg, Germany, May 12 (A. P.).—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering left himself open for this one. The captured former Luftwaffe boss remarked to correspondents yesterday that American development of a fighter-bomber which could fly round-trip to Berlin was the biggest surprise of the war for the Germans.

"What about the Reichmarshal's statement that if the Allies ever bombed Berlin 'my name is Meyer?'" queried a correspondent.

Goering mopped his brow, blushed and waited for the next question.

Hermann Goering has admitted that he ordered the bombing of Coventry, radio London reported. The broadcast, which was recorded in New York by CBS, quoted Goering as stating: "Yes, I ordered the bombing of Coventry."

REICH FORD PLANT OPEN

Assembly of Motor Trucks Begun With Allies' Permission

COLOGNE, Germany, May 12 (AP)—The explosives-scarred Ford plant here has started the assembly of motor trucks for occupation forces under an American-organized industrial revival.

Renewal of operations was authorized by Supreme Headquarters May 4, the first truck was ready May 8 and the output now is approaching ten a day.

Lieut. Col. Maurice Driscoll of Winthrop, Mass., who started the project, said there was sufficient stock on hand for 100 trucks of two-and-one-half-ton size immediately, and that 90 per cent of the necessary equipment was available to turn out 3,000 vehicles.

The plant formerly employed 1,000 foreign workers. Its laborers now are Germans screened by military intelligence officers. The Ford works was bombed once by Allied planes, but it suffered more damage from the artillery of the retreating Germans in March.

7th Army Seizes Funk, 200 Other Nazis

With the U.S. 7th Army, May 11 (AP)—Dr. Walter Funk, president of the Reichsbank and German Minister of Economics, with 200 German ministerial personnel, including many top-ranking Nazis, has been seized by American 7th Army troops.

The same troops also took into custody Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese Ambassador to Germany, and 130 Japanese diplomatic personnel, the army announcement said.

Taken with Funk were Dr. Hans Heinrich Lammers, chief of the Reichschancellery, and Dr. William Ohnesorge, postmaster general.

Yanks Capture Sepp Dietrich.

With the United States Seventh Army, May 12 (A. P.).—Col.-Gen. Sepp Dietrich, commander of the Sixth SS Panzer Army, and his wife were captured today by the 636th Tank Destroyer Battalion, Thirty-sixth Division.

Master Sergt. Herbert Kraus of Cleveland recognized Dietrich after the military police had placed him in a prisoner cage.

"Dietrich doesn't look anything like an army commander — he's more like a neighborhood grocer," Kraus said.

Also prisoners of the Seventh Army are Dr. Walther Funk, president of the Reichsbank and German Minister of Economics, and 200 German ministerial personnel, including many top-ranking Nazis.

[The Russians last month reported that Dietrich was assassinated during the battle for Vienha.]

Yanks To Go To Berlin

With the 9th Army in Germany, May 12 (AP)—Indications here today were that at least one American division will participate in a token occupation of Berlin—probably the crack 2d Armored (Hell On Wheels) Division, veterans of Tunisia, Sicily and the European campaign. It is commanded by Maj. Gen. I. D. White, of Des Moines, Iowa.

A selected squad of war correspondents probably will accompany the token force.

Two Jersey Flyers Freed

LUNEBURG, Germany, May 12 (AP).—Sergeant Anthony J. Nicolo, of Paterson, N. J., and Nick Sidovear, of Alpha, N. J., were among the 6,000 airmen liberated by the Russians from the Barth prison camp in the Baltic region.

Doctor Declines Freedom While Many Are Ill

By Daniel De Luce

Siegburg, Germany, May 12 (AP). Within the death-ridden walls of Siegburg prison a typhus epidemic is being scientifically studied by a Dutch university professor who was liberated there by the American Army but prefers to finish his chosen task.

"I am just an average victim of Nazi persecution and I served half of an average term of two years hard labor in an average German penitentiary," said the professor, Dr. Lourens G. M. Bans-Becking. "But perhaps my detailed report on the ravages of typhus upon an average group of malnourished persons will prove of value when I submit it to the International Red Cross."

Ex-Stanford Instructor

Dr. Bans-Becking said he was a graduate student and then a teacher in Stanford University at Palo Alto, Cal., from 1919 to 1931, and for the next two years directed the Rockefeller Foundation Marine Station at near-by Pacific Grove. Then, he said as head of the Netherlands East Indies Bureau of Science, in charge of developing resources for a possible defense against Japan, he returned to Holland in 1940, almost on the eve of Hitler's invasion.

Twice Dr. Bans-Becking tried to escape from German occupation to England. The first time his rendezvous with a seaplane failed because of fog. The second attempt found his motor boat stalled 50 miles offshore with a wet magneto just as a Nazi trawler approached.

On Nazi Black List

He already was on the black list for leading a strike at Leiden University, where he was a professor of biology, to protest the ouster of a law professor for ignoring Nazi revisions in a book on the Dutch legal system.

Accused of espionage, communication with the enemy and attempting to escape from Holland, the little middle-aged scientist was sent to a foul cell in the Siegburg "Zuchthaus" (house of correction).

Calls Guards "The Scum"

"Our guards were the scum of Cologne and Coblenz," he said. "No matter how ill the prisoners became, the chief German doctor usually termed them 'fit to work.' In no time they had me cleaning latrines by day and working at a lathe on aluminum parts at night."

Dressed in GI khaki with a Dutch insigne on the shoulder straps, Dr. Bans-Becking smiled ruefully at the memory of how the Germans tried to ignore the presence of typhus in the prison only to have 30 of their own guards die of it.

"We had been virtually starving for months, living in filth, when the first case cropped up January 9. That old fool, the chief doctor, called it flu. I saw symptoms appear on one of my cellmates on February 24. Luckily, I remembered from the textbook long ago—I am no medic—what to look for: spots on the abdomen, a red margin around the tongue and fever coupled with a splitting ache in the back of the head.

300 Of 2,000 Die

"I convinced the Germans finally, but the epidemic was well under way by then. There were 300 deaths among 2,000 prisoners. The typhus cases numbered more than 1,100."

He explained that "chronic undernourishment, lack of clothing, abominable hygiene and neglect" all contributed to the effectiveness of the typhus louse.

"If a prisoner was less than 21 years of age, he had a 95 per cent chance to survive; if more than 60, his chance was nil," he said.

Dr. Bans-Becking said one consolation about falling victim to typhus is that in the four weeks of high fever before dying or starting convalescence "you live out of this world and among hallucinations."

"I know," he said. "I caught typhus, too, and have only been up again for a couple of weeks."

Praises Americans

He praised the behavior of the American infantry platoon now on security guard at the prison while the epidemic finishes its course. He said spraying with DDT powder and comprehensive inoculations with typhus vaccine provided by the American Military Government were "bringing the whole thing under control."

Dr. Bans-Beckling plans to offer his services again to Acting Governor General H. W. van Mook of the Netherlands East Indies Provisional Government, who is now reported to be in San Francisco.

"My wife and daughter were caught and interned by the Japanese when Java was seized," Dr. Bans-Becking said. "My two sons were listed as missing in action with our Navy in the Pacific. So I have reasons for going back."

Ex-Premier Of Spanish Republic Reported Freed

Moscow, May 12 (AP)—Francisco Largo Caballero, former Premier of the Spanish republic, has been freed from the Oranienburg concentration camp, the Polish agency Polpress said today.

It said he was arrested in France in 1943, where he had lived since 1939. He now is recuperating in a Polish military hospital, the statement added.

Russian Wants Papen Hanged

MOSCOW, May 12 (AP).—Commentator Nikolai Polyanov declared in the newspaper "Komsomol Pravda" today that "justice demands" the hanging of Franz von Papen, Nazi diplomat captured by American forces. He named Papen specifically in an article saying that "the time has arrived to get busy with those criminals who started the war in Europe."

F. B. I. to Get Ezra Pound

ROME, May 12 (AP).—Ezra Pound, poet and Fascist propagandist, will be turned over to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in Italy, presumably for return to the United States, where he is under indictment on a charge of treason, an Allied official said today.

Italian Chutists Lauded

Rome, May 12 (AP)—Italian parachute troops dropped behind enemy lines in the Po Valley the night of April 20 helped greatly to cause confusion among the retreating Germans, the Allied command disclosed today.

The Italians, all volunteers, were credited with killing or disabling at least 300 German troops and capturing more than 600. They wiped out a Nazi demolition party and saved the bridge over the Panaro River which the United States 5th Army crossed in pursuit of the enemy.

Archbishop Freed By Tito's Forces

Vatican City, May 12 (AP)—Carlo Margotti, archbishop of Gorizia, has returned to Rome following his release by Yugoslav troops who arrested him when they entered Gorizia May 2 and kept him in custody five days.

He said today that a Yugoslav "political commissar" informed him after long questioning that "we have decided to free you, but you are considered forever banned from Slovene territory."

[Gorizia is north of Trieste in northeastern Italian territory whose ownership is a subject of dispute between the Italians and Yugoslavs.]

The prelate, who reported to the Vatican state secretary today, said the commissar had informed him that his expulsion had saved him from a trial that "undoubtedly would have meant being condemned to death."

Margotti denied, however, a report by the unofficial Vatican News service that he had been sentenced to execution by a firing squad.

Sweden Called Danes' Arsenal

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 12 (AP)—The Swedish press quoted the Halsingborg Police Chief today as having said that Sweden was an arsenal for Danish patriots during the German occupation. He stated that 7,300,000 rounds of ammunition, 4,000 machine pistols and 5,000 hand grenades had been secretly shipped at night from Halsingborg to Denmark.

400 Nazis Drowned Fleeing Latvia

Stockholm, May 12 (A. P.).—Three ships carrying between 300 and 400 German soldiers and Baltic refugees were sunk by a plane east of the Swedish Baltic Sea Island of Gottland Wednesday and no survivors have been found, Swedish press dispatches said today.

The soldiers and refugees were reported to have fled from the Latvian City of Windau.

Gen. Montgomery Visits Copenhagen

Copenhagen, May 12 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery came to Copenhagen by plane today for a few hours' visit in the Danish capital and a reception by King Christian X.

Britain resumed her diplomatic representation in Denmark with the appointment of Rodney Gallup as charge d'Affaires in Copenhagen. It was expected that Sheldon Thomas would be appointed United States charge d'Affaires. Both Gallup and Thomas are members of the Allied Control Commission in Denmark.

Re-establishment of diplomatic relations not only means that the Allied governments recognize the new Danish Government but also, was felt in Copenhagen, foreshadows the reception of Denmark among the United Nations.

DOUGHBOYS NEAR BIG AIRFIELD IN NORTH MINDANAO

Two American Divisions Within 60 Miles of Link Up on Island.

PLANES AID TROOPS

Australians, Dutch Within Mile of Big Oil Field on Tarakan.

MANILA, Sunday, May 13 (AP)—The big Japanese Del Monte airdrome in North Central Mindanao, Philippines, came under the guns of the U. S. 40th division Friday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today, after the Yanks made a 14-mile advance from their invasion beachhead.

Elements of Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's division, which landed at Macajalar bay Thursday and advanced four miles the first day, pushed south along Sayre highway, taking the Alae road junction and reaching a point 60 miles from the 31st division which is fighting northward along the same road.

Planes Blast Japs

Skillful air support made the work of the Doughboys easy. Thirteenth Air force planes fire-bombed the Japanese positions flanking the road, driving the enemy back while Yank infantrymen dashed in and captured machinegun and mortar fortifications.

Del Monte is the site of the biggest pineapple plantation in the Pacific, outside of Hawaii, and has been developed into a formidable air base by the Japanese.

Maramag airfield was secured by the 31st, the communique said.

Meanwhile, the American 24th division fighting north of Davao city near the eastern Mindanao coast repulsed several Japanese night counterattacks and pushed the Nipponese into the hills between the Talomo and Davao rivers.

Yank and guerrilla forces fighting in the mountains of the Manila watershed in east central Luzon are within two miles of closing their pincers on Japanese forces in the vicinity of Ipo dam.

Naval units patrolling the east coast of Luzon destroyed several Nipponese small craft, and American bombers and fighters plastered all Japanese holdout defenses on the island with 450 tons of explosives.

Press Tarakan Invasion

Australian and Dutch forces pressing the invasion of Tarakan island, petroleum center off the northeast coast of Borneo, advanced one mile north of the Djoeata oil fields, meeting only scattered Japanese resistance. These Allied forces already have cleared one oil field of the enemy and taken an airfield.

Allied planes continued their shattering blows at Nipponese installations and shipping around Borneo's coasts, heavy bombers striking barracks and shipyards at Balikpapan on the southeast coast and starting fires in the Brunei bay area on the northwest shore.

Widespread destruction on Formosa resulted from blows by Philippines-based bombers and fighters, which staged low level night attacks on Taihoku factories, and then came in for daylight raids on plants at Kari, Okayama, Kagi and Mato. Railways and rolling stock also were hit.

Japanese airfields near Canton were put under aerial attack for the second straight day with 125 tons of bombs.

Shipping and rail lines from Shanghai south into French Indo-China, where the vital Nipponese naval base at Saigon has been virtually destroyed, also were attacked.

Two Freighters Left Afire

Japanese shipping losses in the aerial sweeps included two freighters left afire off Formosa, a 1-000-ton freighter-transport and four river boats set afire and several luggers wrecked off China and a freighter and several schooners damaged in the Lesser Sundas.

The Australian drive on Wewak, Japanese base on the New Guinea east coast, was accelerated with the landing of 6th division units east of the city. Other units of the Aussie division are approaching Wewak from the east.

MacArthur said royal Australian navy and air units, and U. S. Army Air corps planes, supported operations in the Wewak sector.

The drive on Wewak, bypassed in earlier Allied offensives toward the Philippines, is aimed at seizure of the city and capture of air strips.

MAY 13 1945

Jap Units Isolated On Mindanao

Manila, May 12 (AP) — Japanese garrisons throughout Mindanao were isolated from each other and cut off from outside aid, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today, as a result of a new American landing on that island, second largest in the Philippines.

Battle-seasoned Yarks of the 40th Division swarmed ashore unopposed Thursday at Macajalar Bay, on the island's north coast, to surprise and checkmate the enemy's garrison in Bukidnon province, in the interior. Rear Admiral A. D. Struble commanded the amphibious force.

The Bukidnon Japanese had been backing northward, trying to get away from the Yank 31st Division, coming at them from the south. The 40th Division operation constituted a landing in the rear of this enemy unit. MacArthur said it left the enemy "incapable of serious opposition."

Resistance At Davao

The Japanese at Davao continued fierce resistance. Nevertheless the Yank 24th Division gained against them.

Besieged Japanese on Tarakan, Borneo, also fought with tigerish fury and prevented Australian and Dutch assault units from capturing Djoeata oil field, in the central part of the island. However, the Diggers moved two miles south to within 1½ miles of the southern tip.

In the central part of Luzon, a guerrilla force won high ground 3,600 yards north of Ipo Dam, an important unit of Manila's water system which never has been relinquished by the Japanese. The United States 43d Division was closing in slowly from two directions on the entrenched enemy there.

Guerrilla Activity

Guerrilla forces have been active on Mindanao. An Army spokesman said Col. Wendell Fertig's forces landed a fortnight ago at Butuan Bay with American naval support. Another guerrilla force has been harassing Japanese in the extreme northern arm of Mindanao, MacArthur disclosed.

In the extreme southern part of the island enemy forces are caught in a pocket in the Sarangani area.

Far to the west, on Zamboanga peninsula, only fleeing remnants of the enemy remain. Zamboanga was the locale of the first Yank landing on Mindanao. The second took place on Illana Bay, to the east. The Macajalar landing was the third.

Of all the enemy forces listed, those at Davao and in Bukidnon province are the strongest, and they are sandwiched between the 40th, the 31st and the 24th divisions. Still another guerrilla force at the head of Davao Gulf has been jabbing at the enemy around Davao City.

Blood Is Diverted To Guam Area

Guam, May 12 (AP)—Whole blood donated by New Yorkers and originally consigned to Paris was believed here to be the first war-supply item freed from European assignment to reach the Pacific theater.

A shipment of 216 pints arrived at Guam today and was hurried to battlefronts in the Philippines and Okinawa.

The blood was from New York city and Brooklyn Red Cross centers. Guam addresses were superimposed on canceled Paris labels.

Lieut. Herbert R. Brown, of Rochester, N.Y., blood bank officer, said the shipment included the one hundred thousandth pint of blood received at this distribution center since the service was inaugurated last November 17.

Raids Make Saigon Base Useless, Belief

Manila, May 12 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, commander of the 5th Air Force, expressed the belief today that seven attacks on the Japanese shipping base at Saigon, French Indo-China, between April 22 and May 4 had rendered it virtually useless.

Whitehead based his opinion on aerial reconnaissance photographs.

An officer on his staff described the Saigon base as second to Singapore as an enemy naval repair base. Raids also knocked out a submarine base, oil fuel storage facilities and sunk, destroyed or damaged 95 merchant vessels and two Navy craft.

Strikes were made by Liberators, Mitchells and fighter-bombers.

Fifty-five buildings, including three machine shops and 37 warehouses, were destroyed along with two large and two small shipways, two jetties, a radio station and a drydock.

Marines Kill 24¾ Planes, Lose None, in 25 Minutes

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 12—In twenty-five minutes over Okinawa seven pilots ran up the highest recorded score for a single Marine squadron in an aerial battle. They shot down twenty-four and three-quarter Japanese planes, with no Marine losses. The Marine Corps explained today how they did it.

In fifteen minutes Maj. Jefferson D. Dorrah of Hood River, Ore., made six sure kills. Five planes each were knocked down by Maj. George C. Axtell Jr. of Laguna, Calif., and First Lieut. Jeremiah J. O'Keefe of Biloxi, Miss.

In ten seconds First Lieut. Normand T. Theriault of Woonsocket, R. I., downed two and one-quarter. In thirty seconds First Lieut. Edward L. Abner of Washington got two.

First Lieut. William L. Hood of Benton Harbor, Mich., made three and one-half sure kills. First Lieut. Charles S. Allen of Fort Worth, Tex., shot down one.

Okinawa Air Crash Kills Press Relations Officer

Yontan Airfield, Okinawa, April 17 [AP—Delayed]—An airplane crash in mid-April, less than two weeks after the invasion of Okinawa, claimed the life of Capt. Geoffrey Willoughby, of Milwaukee, press relations officer for the 10th Army's Tactical Air Force, and seven other men.

Only one man aboard the C-47 transport survived. The transport was spraying American-occupied areas with the insect killing DDT solution. Willoughby was along to get a story.

Booby Trench Is New Trap

OKINAWA, May 11 (Delayed) (AP)—Marines fighting along the western flank of the southern Okinawa front—within clear view of the smoke-shrouded, shattered hulk of Naha less than a mile ahead—have run into a new Japanese trick, booby trenches.

As the marines inched southward they encountered numerous shallow trenches, obviously little used. At first the marines set up machine-gun positions in them.

Then they learned Japanese strategy was to wait until the machine guns were emplaced and drop their mortar fire squarely into the trenches.

Marines now are digging their own trenches.

U.S. Flyers Get Freedom In Rangoon

Rangoon, May 12 (AP)—Twenty United States Army Air Force officers and nineteen enlisted men, abandoned by the Japanese as unfit to walk away from the Rangoon central prison, were liberated May 4 by the 15th Indian Corps, which had occupied the Burma capital the night before.

With the Americans left behind were 29 British officers. Seventy-five other American officers and men were among 400 prisoners of war marched away by the Japanese April 25 in a withdrawal northward toward Insein, where most, if not all, were believed rescued by troops of the British 14th Army.

Among the American liberated were Lieut. Col. D. G. Gilbert of Arlington, Va.; Lieut. Gus E. Johnson of Miami, Fla.; Lieut. Lionel F. Coffin, Duluth, Minn., and Master Sgt. Richard Montgomery of Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Refined Torture"

Sergt. Maj. John Finnerty, 30, of Eire, a member of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, who had spent three years and fourteen days at the prison, said the Japanese used "refined torture" methods.

He said new arrivals were thrown into solitary confinement and kept without water until they were too weak to respond to orders, providing excuses for atrocities.

The Irishman said in three years 1,000 prisoners had died of beriberi and dysentry.

On April 29, the prisoners said, the Japanese guards ordered "lights out"—although there never had been any lights. The next morning the guards were gone and the prisoners found a note in which the guards said they were afraid they had not treated the prisoners very well, adding, "If we meet on another front, we must all fight bravely."

Wing Commander L. V. Hudson, 29, Sydney, Australia, said the prisoners often were kept in solitary confinement for months.

RETREATING JAPS HIT ON ALL SIDES

Chinese Capture Three Towns Along Hunan Front

Chungking, May 12 (AP)—Chinese troops have fallen on retreating Japanese from all sides on the Hunan front following up the smashing of the Japanese drive on the American airbase at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, the high command said tonight.

Three towns were taken on the main Chihkiang-Paoching highway, including the important hub of Taohwaping, less than 25 miles west of Paoching, the main base of the Japanese drive.

Farther west behind the pincers the Chinese on Thursday took Tungkow 70 miles east of Chihkiang. They went on and surrounded the highway town of Kaosha, about 5 miles farther east where the Japanese made four attempts to break out. Kaosha fell the next day after the Japanese lost more than 600 casualties.

800 Casualties Inflicted

Other Chinese forces rolled back a parallel Japanese drive on Chihkiang made from Sinhwa, north of Paoching, took Shanmen, 75 miles east of the airbase, and fanned out, inflicting 400 casualties. Japanese northwest of Shanmen and another unit southward between Shanmen and Kaosha were surrounded.

The Chinese counterthrust carried to a point southeast of Yangchi near Sinhwa, inflicting 400 more casualties on the enemy who continued to retreat southeastward.

Hard Blows In Honan Area

In the southwest Honan sector far to the north, the high command also claimed the Chinese had dealt severe blows against the enemy west of the Japanese bastion of Hsihsiakow, potential springboard for an invasion of Shensi province and a drive southward on Chungking or northward on Sian, where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was detained in December, 1936.

The announcement said three successive blows were delivered against the Japanese in this sector. The high command claimed that in the first the enemy suffered 5,000 casualties, in the second 3,000 casualties and in the third, lasting from the evening of May 10 through May 11, a total of 1,313 killed. The Chinese captured five heights and passes and seized a large quantity of war material.

Fighting is continuing in the heights 6 miles west of Hsi-Hsiakow.

Chinese Score New Gains In Hunan

Chungking, May 12 (AP)—The Chinese high command said tonight that Chinese troops, scoring fresh successes on the Hunan Province front, had recaptured Tungkow and occupied Taohwaping.

In recent fighting Chinese troops on the Hunan front have smashed a Japanese drive westward toward the American airbase at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking.

Tungkow is 70 miles east of the airbase on the main highway to Chihkiang. Taohwaping, on the same highway, is less than 25 miles west of Paoching, the major base for the Japanese drive.

Chiang's V-E Remarks Bode Ill For Japan

Chungking, May 12 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek declared today "we are confident that in the not far distant future Japan will meet the same fate as Hitlerite Germany, and will not be permitted to escape the retribution she fully deserves."

Speaking at a tea party celebrating victory in Europe, Chiang was flanked by United States Ambassador Major General Patrick J. Hurley and British Ambassador Sir Torace Seymour. All Allied officers in Chungking were invited.

The Chinese leader hailed victory in Europe as "one of the greatest feats of arms" and paid tribute to "the three mighty Western powers of the democratic camp"—the United States, Britain and Russia—for securing it.

Generals Confer In China

Chungking, May 12 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, of Washington, D.C., deputy supreme commander in the Southeast Asia theater, arrived in Chungking today for conferences with Lieut. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, United States commander in China and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on carrying on the war with Japan.

JAP BASE BOMBED NEAR KAMCHATKA

Eleventh Airforce Headquarters, Aleutians, May 10 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Liberators peppered Japanese shipping Thursday at Kataoka naval base on Shumushu Jima, thirty miles south of Russian Kamchatka, with 250-pound general purpose bombs, headquarters reported. Results were unobserved. The bombing was made from high altitude by instruments through heavy overcast. Anti-aircraft was meager and inaccurate.

The presence of Japanese shipping in Kataoka indicated the enemy may be reinforcing the northern Kurile bases since Russia's denunciation of the neutrality pact with Japan early last month.

More American bombs were dropped on the Japanese staging area at Kashiwabara on northern Paramushiro.

Flyers Pound Foe Fleeing In Burma

Calcutta, May 12 (AP)—British air forces, flying from their base at Rangoon, began lashing at the withdrawing Japanese yesterday to clear the way for the invasion of Thailand and Malaya.

Land forces nearest Thailand's border east of Toungoo ran into stubborn resistance, however, as they hounded the enemy trying to quit Burma. Heavy fighting also was reported farther south near the top of Martaban Gulf on the route leading south to Moulmein.

The Southeast Asia communiqué today reported that planes of the Eastern Air Command had laid mines in enemy waters.

The British 4th Corps estimated that the Japanese already had lost more than 25,000 killed in the lost battle of Burma, an announcement said 16,730 slain had been counted and calculated that the total number would exceed that by 50 per cent.

British Press On Thailand And Malaya

Calcutta, May 12 (AP)—British forces operating from newly-won Rangoon launched air and land attacks yesterday to clear the way for an invasion of Thailand and Malaya. Other forces continued to advance south from Prome in the face of some enemy opposition.

Fourth British Corps Headquarters announced that British troops had counted 16,730 dead Japanese in their drive through Burma.

2 Airmen Fined After Brawl Over Dress In India Club

Calcutta, May 12 (AP)—Two veteran B-29 combat flyers have been fined by an army court-martial after a brawl that arose when their regulation uniforms were not considered fancy enough to admit them to the ballroom of the new United States Army Officers Club at the Kanarni Estates here.

A navigator paid $100 and a copilot $50.

The incident highlighted widespread dissatisfaction among India-Burma combat officers with the fancy dress demanded before they can rub elbows with their rear-area brethren at the Kanarni Estates, under noncombat-officer management.

Rule To Be Changed

The "battle of the bush jacket" comes in the now-it-can-be-told class, since steps have been taken to remove the main causes of dissatisfaction.

It began when the navigator and copilot, each with more than 400 hours of combat flight and three combat medals, arrived in town on leave and appeared at the Kanarni Club in regulation cotton shirts, standard garb all over the theater of action.

Limits Attendance

They were barred and informed they must wear either tunics, which are out of question in Calcutta's Turkish bath climate, or bush jackets, a nonregulation sort of long-skirted Norfolk jacket for hot weather borrowed from the British and optional in this area. The brawl followed.

Combat officers had long complained that the bush-jacket ruling virtually reserved the club, which cost plenty of money, for typewriter troopers, who had a corner on available bush jackets.

Brig. Gen. Robert Neyland, commander of Base Section 2, and other authorities here have held that the dress requirements contribute to better behavior.

The Kanarni management still is sticking to the bush-jacket requirement but has come down to the extent of putting in a stock of the jackets, which outposted officers can rent for 1 rupee nightly.

Shipping Off Korea Hit Again, Japs Say

San Francisco, May 12 (AP)—Tokyo radio reported United States aircraft attacked Japanese shipping off Korea for the second straight day today.

The broadcast, recorded here, said the attack was made by some of six Martin PBM seaplanes which reconnoitered the area. Yesterday's raid was by nine torpedo planes.

Japs Have Name For B-29: 'Mr. Bee'

San Francisco, May 12 (AP)—Japanese fighter pilots, who have been stung on more than one occasion by American Superfortresses, have nicknamed the big planes "Bee Ko," or "Mister Bee."

Other enemy pilot nicknames for American planes, as reported by Radio Tokyo in a broadcast monitored by the Federal Communications Commission:

P-38—Dried Sardine.

Grumman Fighters—Bumblebee.

'Crisis' Prayer Services Set In Japan

San Francisco, May 12 (AP) — Radio Tokyo after a day of unconfirmed claims of damage to American ships in Okinawa waters and of savage, spear-wielding Indonesian "volunteer" aid on Tarakan Island, off Borneo, gave notice of a national prayer meeting for "tiding over the crisis."

Continuing its home-consumption battle claims Radio Tokyo said in a broadcast intercepted here that Japanese sea units yesterday sank two ships of unidentified category and damaged an American carrier.

While making no comment on the United States invasion of northern Mindanao, Radio Tokyo beat its chest over a purported "counter-landing" on Samal Island, in Davao Gulf of Mindanao.

Indonesian Volunteers

Another unconfirmed battle claim stated that Indonesian volunteers fighting with spears had made attacks on Australian and Dutch troops on Tarakan Island.

Radio Tokyo also said 110,000 Japanese shrines will hold special services this month to ask Jimmu, the sun god, for "victory and tiding over the crisis."

Japanese propaganda machinery is to be given a refurbishing, the enemy radio said. The Suzuki Cabinet announced "drastic reorganization" of its propaganda and information setup to create a "powerful, simplified and mechanized" structure. One of the first moves was to combine the army and navy press sections into one group under army control.

Massacres Accompany Arab Victory Fetes

Algiers, May 12 (AP)—More than 50 Europeans were reported massacred in the Algerian department of Constantine by Arab agitators during victory celebrations, it was announced today.

The announcement said the governor general had taken strong action and police and the military had made many arrests. The announcement said victims were mutilated and houses were pillaged during the outbreak.

Canada's Role In Pacific

Moosomin, Saskatchewan, May 12 (AP)—Defense Minister A. G. L. McNaughton told a public meeting last night that Canada did not intend to send huge numbers of men to the Pacific "to slug it out hand-to-hand with a foe perhaps better fitted than we to survive in the jungle war," but "we will assist to smash the Jap forever with a minimum of men and a maximum of machines and explosives."

Canada's share in the Pacific war has been planned in the closest consultation with the Allies, McNaughton said, adding he felt "our share will be just and fair."

Court To Probe V-E Day Riots At Halifax

Halifax, May 12 (AP)—The Supreme Court of Canada will investigate V-E day riots which swept through Halifax and other communities, causing two deaths and damage estimated at $5,000,000, and the Government will consider "some appropriate steps" toward relieving the financial damage, Acting Prime Minister Ilsley said today.

More than 250 persons have been rounded up by police in the Halifax district since Tuesday and variously charged with theft, committing damage or breaking and entering.

Sailors Get 2 To 5 Years

Four members of the Royal Canadian Navy were added to the list of those sentenced for taking part in the disturbances. They drew prison terms ranging from two to five years.

Halifax was quiet today and curfew had been extended to midnight. The first dance for service personnel will be held tonight with a "limited attendance," and some theaters planned to open for the first time since Tuesday.

While city police were still rounding up straggling rioters, some civilians and service men gathered last night at a brewery which was looted last Tuesday. The crowd was driven away by police.

Restrictions Lifted

An order confining all military personnel to barracks in the Halifax area was lifted. Service men were instructed to conform with the civilian curfew.

Brigadier D. A. White, commanding the Halifax Military District, commended the "behavior of the great majority of the troops" and regretted that "a few soldiers misbehaved themselves and . . . brought discredit on their comrades."

At new Waterford, however, a 7 P.M. curfew was ordered after riots broke out again Wednesday and Thursday. A force of 100 soldiers, augmented by 50 mounted police, was maintaining order. Five men who, police said, threatened to start trouble, were arrested along with 23 youths accused of destroying property.

GREW DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF STALIN'S NOTE

MAY 13 1945

Says He Knows Nothing of Charge That Co-operation Has Broken Down.

POLISH DISCUSSIONS CONTINUE

San Francisco Committee Finds Way to Admit Poland to United Nations Group.

Washington, May 12 (A. P.).—Acting Secretary of State Joseph Grew said today he had no knowledge of any communication from Marshal Stalin to the effect that co-operation with the western Allies had become impossible. He voiced the disclaimer in response to questions about published reports that Stalin had written Premier Churchill, with a copy to President Truman, that the Yalta agreement had been broken and that he believed it futile to discuss the Polish problem further.

It was learned meanwhile that the Soviet Government has not replied to the request of Secretary of State Stettinius and Foreign Secretary Eden in San Francisco that Russia furnish information regarding the arrest in Moscow of sixteen former Polish underground leaders.

Moscow recently announced that these leaders, who had gone to Moscow from London to discuss the formation of a provisional government of Poland in accordance with the Yalta agreement, have been arrested. It was learned here that the only messages received recently from Stalin have dealt solely with the Polish government question and that the Soviet Government has not yet refused to provide information on the arrested leaders. These communications were all sent before the Eden-Stettinius request was made.

ROOSEVELT'S BOND APPEAL

MAY 13 1945

Late President's Statement Made For Seventh Loan

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Before his death, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a statement in support of the Seventh War Loan, which will open Monday.

The Treasury said today the statement was as follows:

"I don't need to tell you that we are still locked in a deadly struggle with our enemies—the enemies of our way of life—and the war is still the chief job of each one of us.

"To Speed Victory"

"The greatest production of which we are capable, faithful adherence to regulations that make it possible to supply our boys in battle with everything they need, and buying and holding war bonds—these are the things we at home must do to speed victory.

"In the past three years more than 85,000,000 of Americans have invested billions of dollars in bonds. Never before have so many people held such a direct share in a great national effort. To save—to buy and to hold all we can of war bonds—this is a small servic to ask of us who do not fight—ye it is one of the biggest things w can do for our fighting men."

VFW Makes Protest On Goering 'Coddling'

Washington, May 12 (AP) — The Veterans of Foreign Wars today protested what they called "coddling" by American military authorities of Nazi Air Marshal Goering.

In a broadcast talk, Omar B. Ketchum, the VFW's national legislative representative, said Goering, "instead of being immediately tossed in the clink with a grim warning that anything he said would be used against him by the War Crimes Commission, he was—according to press reports—received as a dignitary."

He added: "Shades of Belsen, Buchenwald and Dachau and the pitiful half ghosts of the living-dead unearthed in those concentration camps.

"No wonder Herr Goering sought sanctuary with the Yanks rather than the grim Russians."

Senator Morse Criticizes Press Policy in Germany

Declares U. S. Publications Should Circulate There

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP).—Senator Wayne Morse, Republican, of Oregon, called on the Adiministration today to "practice as well as preach" freedom of the press.

In a statement, Senator Morse described as "most unconvincing" the "excuses and rationalizations advanced by War Information Director Elmer Davis and S. H. A. E. F." for censorship regulations prohibiting circulation of American publications in Germany.

"The Administration," he declared, "should lift the censorship ban at once and it should proceed without further delay to practice as well as preach freedom of the press."

"The circulation of American papers and periodicals," he asserted, "would be a great demonstration to the German people of the vigor and strength of Democracy in action. I favor very firm controls over Germany, but not the adoption of dictatorial methods which violate the principles in defense of which we are fighting this war."

707 Arrive On Hospital Ship

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The first army hospital ship to reach this country since V-E day arrived at Charleston, S.C., on Thursday with 707 wounded men from the European theater, the War Department announced today.

Roosevelt Mourning Ends on Monday

Washington, May 12 (A. P.).—The month of formal national mourning for the late President Roosevelt will end at sundown Monday, May 14.

This was the termination date set in the proclamation issued by President Truman following Mr. Roosevelt's death on April 12. The armed forces, which had directed the usual "thirty-day period" for flying the flag at half-staff for their Commander in Chief, have directed posts and ships throughout the world to conform to the presidential directive, which will carry the observance through Monday sundown, local time.

Will Aid Philippines Inquiry

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—William Y. Elliott of Nashville, vice chairman of the War Production Board in charge of civilian requirements, was added today to President Truman's special commission to investigate conditions in the Philippines. Mr. Elliott was formerly head of the Department of Government at Harvard University.

Lend-Lease Pacts Being Reviewed

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Government is reviewing its lend-lease programs.

This was announced tonight by Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, who added that:

"Pending its completion, new shipments to Europe are being held up except those destined to countries now at war with Japan, or to countries through which redeployment of our troops now in Europe will be facilitated thereby."

Chest-Wound Recoveries Triple World War I Rate

Gen. Kirk Credits Record to Special 'Surgery' Teams

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP).—The rate of surgical recovery from chest wounds suffered by American soldiers in this war is three times as great as in World War I, Army Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk said today.

Asserting that chest wounds, along with head and abdominal wounds, are the most commonly fatal types of battle injuries, General Kirk declared that, whereas the death rate of chest-wounded men who lived long enough to reach surgery was 24 per cent in the last war, it is now 8 per cent.

"And this low rate has been achieved," said a War Department statement, "in spite of the fact that chest wounds are more serious in this war because of the increase in bomb fragments."

The Army attributes this record of chest surgery primarily to organization of special surgery "teams" at the front and developmen of a system of special hospital centers at home and abroad.

Major Sturhahn Named Aeronautics Assistant

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Major Edward M. Sturhahn, a native of Hartford, Conn., has been appointed executive assistant to T. P. Wright, Civil Aeronautics Administrator, it was announced today.

The announcement said Secretary Wallace, of the Commerce Department, had requested the Secretary of War to release Sturhahn from his duties with the aircraft scheduling unit of the Army Air Forces to accept the position.

One-time president and general manager of Dixie Flying Service, which operated planes south of Washington, Major Sturhahn for a time also was purchasing agent for Eastern Air Lines in Atlanta.

Truman Devotes Day To Mother

Washington, May 12 (AP)—President Truman marked the end of his first month in the White House today by making no official week-day engagements for the first time.

Officials said he wanted to devote as much time as possible today and tomorrow to his 92-year-old mother, Mrs. Martha Truman, who flew here yesterday from Missouri to spend Mother's Day with her son.

Today Is Day Of Prayer

By presidential proclamation, tomorrow—Mother's Day—has been set aside as a national day of prayer in thanksgiving for the victory in Europe.

It was stated the President would attend church services tomorrow, but that his mother probably would remain at the White House.

"She came through the trip in fine shape," a secretary said today. "She was in fine spirits this morning."

A huge angel fruit cake bearing 61 candles reached the White House today as a belated though welcomed gift to Mr. Truman in honor of his May 8 birthday.

Gift Of 117 Children

It came from 117 children of the Border Star Grade School in Kansas City, Mo. They had sent the President a photograph of a cardboard cake they used in a bond-selling drive on the President's birthday.

Somebody suggested they could please Mr. Truman even more by sending him the real thing.

The cake arrived by plane and taken to the White House by a TWA hostess, Miss Frances Dennstedt, of Kansas City. Secretary Matthew Connelly received it for the President.

Truman Names J. V. Hodgson to War Crimes Post

He Will Succeed Pell as U. S. Commissioner on United Nations Panel

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP).—President Truman today appointed Lieutenant Colonel Joseph V. Hodgson, as United States Commissioner on the United Nations Committee for investigation of war crimes.

He takes the place of Herbert Bell, who resigned. He has been serving as American Commissioner since January 1. Prior to that he was deputy commissioner.

Col. Hodgson, forty-six years old, is a native of Boyne Falls, Mich. He was attorney general of Hawaii until 1942, when he entered army service as a major. His home is in Honolulu.

He came to Washington in 1943 and entered the judge advocate general's office, then went to the European area of operations in May, 1944. ▸

C. I. O. Assails Vinson Plan of Reconversion

MAY 13 1945

Says It Would Allow U. S. To Be 'Caught Short' by Early Pacific Victory

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP).—The Congress of Industrial Organizations today sharply criticized Mobilization Director Fred M. Vinson's reconversion plan, contending that the nation would be "caught short" economically by an early Japanese surrender.

Ted F. Silvey, chairman of the C. I. O. Reconversion Committee, said in a statement that better "planning is necessary for the eventuality of an early surrender of the Japanese to prevent resultant economic prostration and mass unemployment.

"In the fortunate event that our armed forces achieve an early end of the war in the Pacific, we would be caught short in our domestic economic situation. The Office (of War Mobilization and Reconversion) should have a flexible and comprehensive program to meet any and all eventualities.

"The Vinson document mirrors only the narrow interests of each of the war agencies without the over-all perspective which the war mobilization and reconversion act requires that Director Vinson take in the interests of the whole nation."

Baruch Favors Sales

Other reconversion developments today found Bernard M. Baruch again urging the Surplus Property Board to follow a policy of "selling as much as possible as soon as possible."

The board reported that Mr. Baruch, co-author of the Baruch-Hancock report on war and post-war adjustment, advised members at a conference yesterday that until civilian industries are restored to volume production "it will be comparatively easy to dispose of things at good prices and with little disturbance to trade."

"If in doubt, sell," Mr. Baruch recommended.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today invited purchasers of government-owned surplus goods to make use of R. F. C. credit facilities. Turning its attention more and more to surplus disposal, the big lending agency said R. F. C. guaranties of bank loans, plus direct R. F. C. loans where local credit is not available, will enable industry to obtain the financing required to make purchases "with a minimum of paper work and delay."

Rise in Dry-Cell Batteries

The War Production Board said today that as a result of military cutbacks there will be plenty of dry-cell batteries for all civilian purposes in thirty to sixty days. Civilian output this quarter will be more than two and one-half times as many cells as were made available the first quarter of this year, when about 1,000,000 were released. These batteries are used for hearing aids, farm and portable radios, flashlights and many other items.

The W. P. B. revoked its restrictions limiting manufacture of patterns and quantities of various types of cutlery. This step is preparatory to release of the so-called controlled materials—steel, copper and aluminum—for consumer goods production after July 1.

The W. P. B. revoked its prohibition on manufacture of coin and token operated merchandise-vending machines, but emphasized that production of these machines will be limited by availability of materials and man power.

The W. P. B. also eased its restrctions on the use of aluminum foil for wrapping purposes. It authorized the use of priority ratings by manufacturers of such commodities as chewing gum and cigarettes.

The W. P. B. authorized electric, gas and water utility companies to expand their facilities up to $25,000 of materials. This is the first time since the start of the war that utilities have been permitted to construct additional line facilities without clearance through the W. P. B.

Scheduled cut-backs in brass mill strip production call for about 288,000,000 pounds monthly for military needs during the July-September quarter, reported the War Production Board. This compares with peak March production of 334,250,000 pounds, the agency has advised members of the brass-mill labor advisory committee.

The Combined Raw Materials Board reported today a general easink of the world supply of raw materials, but cautioned that some materials will remain scarce for a long time.

Natural rubber, hides and leather, cordage fibers, jute, lead, lumber and pulp and paper remain in short supply. Some of these items, the board said, will remain on the critical list until Far Eastern producing areas are free from the Japanese.

The board said that as the supply situation improves it is easing international controls wherever it can. It pointed out that supplies for liberated areas are becoming increasingly important, both from the standpoint of maintenance of their economies and from that of the contribution such areas can make to war production.

QUICK SURPLUS SALES ADVISED BY BARUCH

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch has urged the Surplus Property Board to follow a policy of "selling as much as possible as soon as possible."

The board said today that Mr. Baruch, co-author of the Baruch-Hancock report on war and post-war adjustment, conferred yesterday with its members and noted that until civilian industries are restored to volume production, "it will be comparatively easy to dispose of things at good prices and with little disturbance to trade."

"If in doubt, sell," he recommended, adding:

"Things like trucks, tires and all kinds of machinery that can be used in road building and in farm and civilian life should be turned loose quickly in order to bridge the hiatus between the current great demand and the ability to get production in volume.

"The disposal of these things, which are not needed for war purposes, both here and abroad, will be helpful in the distribution of food abroad and the movement of all kinds of products in this country."

He advised the board members, Guy M. Gillette, Robert A. Hurley and Edward H. Heller, that "no matter what you do in disposing of surpluses there will always be a minority—a very noisy one—who will say you did the wrong thing, no matter which horn of the dilemma you have chosen."

Military Chiefs Laud Wacs on 3d Anniversary

Gen. Marshall Hails Corps; Eisenhower, Clark and Arnold Praise Record

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP).—Wacs around the world got a pat on the back from top military leaders today on the third anniversary of the Women's Army Corps.

In a message of congratulations, General George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, said the Wacs were performing vital jobs and were helping to speed victory.

General Douglas MacArthur called them "good and faithful soldiers in the onward march to victory" and General Dwight D. Eisenhower said the corps had "built for itself an impressive record of conduct and of service and given the womanhood of America every right to be proud of its accomplishments."

General H. H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Forces, praised the "outstanding performance" of the corps and predicted it would play an "increasingly important role" in the war against Japan. From General Mark Clark in Italy came this compliment:

"I wish we had many more Wacs serving with the 15th Army."

Retired Navy Men To Be Inactive

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Improvement in the Navy's enlisted personnel situation will permit transfer of substantially all retired enlisted men to inactive duty by January 1, 1946.

A circular letter to all ships and stations from the Bureau of Personnel, made public by the Navy today, said exceptions would be made only in the case of those holding key positions who continue nt for active duty. All others, the bureau said, shall be released as their services can be spared.

The total number of retired enlisted men on active duty as of April 1 in each administrative command will be used in determining the rate of release, with 15 per cent to be released before July 31, and 15 per cent monthly through December.

Way Held Clear For REA Bill

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The White House was reported today to have given a favorable nod for a divorce of the Rural Electrification Administration from the Agriculture Department.

As a result, Administration men in the Senate said there would be no difficulty there over legislation to carry it out. It is due to come up Monday.

The proposal has been pressed for months by Senators Shipstead (R., Minn.) and Aiken (R., Vt.) with support on the Democratic side from Senator Wheeler, of Montana.

Shipstead has contended the REA, originally established in 1936 as an independent agency, had become involved in politics since it was transferred to the Agriculture Department in 1939. He said Harry Slattery, who resigned December 1 as REA administrator, was forced out because he would not "play the political game."

Voted In Committee

A Shipstead-Aiken-Wheeler bill for removal of the REA from Agriculture was attached by a 13 to 6 vote in the Agriculture Committee on April 28 to a measure by Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) to provide $600,000,000 additional for the agency. The REA already has lent more than $500,000,000 for financing of rural electric lines.

Supporting the divorce provision were the nine Republican members and Senators Wheeler, Bilbo (Miss.), Stewart (Tenn.) and Downey (Cal.), Democrats.

Since the bill was brought out of committee, action has been held up by: (1) The desire by Administration men to learn President Truman's attitude, and (2) the absence from the city of Senator Thomas (D., Okla.), chairman of the Agriculture Committee.

Indication From White House

Thomas returned Friday and said he had decided not to oppose the REA separation rider to the Lucas bill although he voted against it in committee. Other sources said the White House had advised that the President had no objection to it.

Senators interested in the legislation reported they had received no inkling as to whom President Truman might propose for head of the REA. Early this year, President Roosevelt nominated Aubrey

TROUBLE SEEN ON 2 MEASURES

Monetary Plans And Tariff Policy Up For Action

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Administrationists conceded today serious doubts of putting through their full program as Congress approached a two-way showdown on the first legislation dealing with postwar international co-operation.

Bretton Woods world-bank and monetary-adjustment plans, and postwar tariff policy were set for votes next week in the House Banking and the Ways and Means committees, respectively.

Both committees will produce legislation, but Administration leaders are not sure it will be what they want.

State Department Closes

The State Department closed its case before the Ways and Means Committee today for both Bretton Woods and its tariff proposals. The plea was presented by Charles P. Taft, brother of Ohio's Republican Senator Robert A. Taft and head of the department's office of transport and communications policy.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau told the Banking Committee the Bretton Woods agreements are needed for the success of the world security organization being drawn at San Francisco. The State Department argued that the tariff legislation would build world trade and contribute to peaceful relations among nations.

Possibilities Of Shifts

There still are possibilities of shifts in strength before the voting starts on both issues.

Ways and Means Republicans contend that further traff reductions would ruin many American industries and cause unemployment. Opponents of Bretton Woods have described it as the makings of "a world WPA."

LEND-LEASE HELP FOR RUSSIA ENDS IN EUROPEAN ZONE

Crowley Announces Suspension with Review of Program Planned.

CITE PACIFIC NEEDS

Shipments to Soviet Outside Europe to Continue, It Is Indicated.

WASHINGTON, May 12—(AP) Lend-lease to Russia through Europe is being suspended now that war there is over.

A statement of Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, said tonight the government is reviewing its lend-lease programs.

It is necessary, he said, "so that American resources will be distributed in such a way as to make the utmost possible contribution to victory in the major war which we have still to win."

Meanwhile, "new shipments to Europe" are being held up except to countries at war with Japan or through which redeployment of our troops now in Europe can be facilitated thereby.

Lend-lease to Russia by other routes apparently is not affected. An informed source said substantial amounts are going by ways which had not been disclosed.

Shipments to be Cut

The announcement was taken to mean that supplies going to Europe were more specifically sent for purposes of fighting the European war. It would appear to be an obvious development that shipments there on the same scale would not now be necessary.

Other countries in Europe getting lend lease are at war with Japan. Only Russia is affected by the embargo.

Russia was understood to have been notified of the development, but it was not known when. There was no indication whether she had made reply.

The Crowley statement, somewhat cryptic in its failure to name Russia specifically, or to go into detail, was issued late tonight without additional explanation.

Whether it had any connection with this government's recent stiffened attitude on diplomatic questions, particularly the Polish issue, was not apparent. Because of the late hour, official reaction was lacking.

Tito Gets Notice

The action followed by a few hours pointed notice to Marshal Tito of this government's views toward territorial changes. Tito long has had Moscow support.

However the fact that the statement came through Crowley's office and not from higher government levels, such as the State department or the White House, was seen as an effort to avoid the implication that the order is a slap at Moscow.

The Lend-Lease agreement with Russia is on a year-to-year basis. The last protocol, signed after long negotiations, was retroactive to July 1, 1944, and expires June 30, this year unless other arrangements are made. Since its terms have not been made public it is not known whether it automatically is extended.

Truman Asserts U. S. Will Help Hungry Europe

Tells Food for Freedom 'We Must and Can Find a Way' to Share Supplies

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP).—President Truman said today "we must and can find a way" to share available American food supplies with the starving peoples in liberated Europe.

The statement was in a letter to Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, president of Food for Freedom, Inc., organized two years ago to promote the use of food in building the peace.

The letter, made public by Food for Freedom, was in response to an appeal signed by Mrs. Morrow and leaders of twenty-one other civic, religious, farm and labor organizations expressing their desire "to share our food with the liberated peoples." The appeal was sent to the White House April 21.

In his reply Mr. Truman said:

"I am greatly encouraged by the letter of April 21 which you transmitted to me several days ago signed by the heads of a number of national religious, civic, farm and labor organizations.

"I am sure it must also encourage the United Nations representatives now meeting at San Francisco. Particularly is this true of the leaders of those nations laid waste by the destruction and brutality of Nazi-Japanese tyranny.

"No immediate means of giving hope to the victims of this tyranny can have so great an effect as the sharing with them by the people of our country of the food supplies we have available.

"The signers of the letter you forwarded to me expressed concern over reports that U. N. R. R. A. has been unable to obtain all the food supplies it has sought for to relieve starvation abroad. They explain that they speak for their organizations which have each voted support of U. N. R. R. A.

"Backed by such spontaneous popular expression we must and can find a way to accomplish their desires to share their food with others so badly in need.

"Please accept my thanks for placing the letter in my hands. You and other signers render a public service by giving active attention to the solution of the food problem at home and abroad."

Oter signers of the appeal to the President besides Mrs. Morrow were Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Albert Goss, master of the National Grange; James G. Patton, president of the Farmers' Union; William Green, American Federation of Labor president; Philip Murray, Congress of Industrial Organizations president; Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director of the American Association of University Women; Miss Lelia Massey, executive secretary of the American Home Economics Association, and Elmer L. Marshall, president of the American Veterans of World War 2.

Also, W. O. Lewis, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance; Ray Gibbons, director of the Council for Social Action of Congregational Christian Churches; Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of the General Federation of Women's Club; Mrs. Katherine Armatage, president of the League of Women Shoppers; Mrs. Henry A. Ingraham, president of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association; Mrs. Elizabeth Magee, executive secretary of the National Consumers League; Mrs. Joseph M. Welt, president of the National Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the National Council of Negro Women; Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the National Education Association; Miss Margaret A. Hickey, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women; Clyde Murray, president of the National Federation of Settlements; Mrs. Margetet F. Stone, legislative chairman of the National Women's Trade Union League, and Mrs. Harper Sibley, president of the United Council of Church Women.

Army Calls Peace Draft Way To Maintain Force

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Congressional advocates of a peacetime draft said today army leaders are convinced the draft is the only way a postwar military force of 4,500,000 "availables" can be maintained.

While the Army has insisted that it has no definite plans for the size of the postwar military establishment, it submitted to the House Military Committee this week a written statement containing these words:

"The active reserve will be composed of those individuals and units sufficient in types and numbers which will, together with the other components, constitute an over-all balanced force in the Army of the United States of 4,500,000 men."

"A Planning Figure"

That figure, an army spokesman said, is strictly "a planning figure" and represents the "availables" who could be called upon in a future emergency or "M-day." There are other figures based on other sets of assumed conditions.

Under present War Department plans, committee members said, at least 4,000,000 of the 4,500,000 would be reserves and National Guardsmen and, if the entire quota is to be filled, the remaining 500,000 presumably would be regular army personnel.

The War Department issued a statement last night, however, in which it said it was "not the fact" that it plans a peacetime standing army of 500,000 men.

Factors Involved

"The size of the regular Army," it added, "which the War Department will recommend after the war will depend upon the condition of the world, the commitments of the United States at that time and the military policy adopted by the Congress."

Committee members represented army spokesmen as asserting there were these two alternatives to the building up of a huge reserve through a peacetime draft law:

An "inadequate" defense establishment, or a huge standing army which would cost billions annually.

Hearings will start June 4 on peacetime draft legislation broadly requiring every able-bodied male citizen to take a year of military training as soon as he becomes 18. If it becomes law, the legislation may make each trainee liable for military service for six years after his return to civilian life following his year of training.

How They Would Be Divided

Of an estimated 1,200,000 youths expected to be eligible for training annually, the Army believes it can train 600,000 and the Navy 200,000. The others would be rejected or deferred.

Should the program discussed with the Military Committee be approved, many of the 186,000 reserve officers now on active army duty would be retained to provide the training.

Along with the outline of its tentative reserve program, the War Department has given the Military Committee copies of a statement by Gen. George C. Marshall, in which the army chief of staff expressed this view:

"There are two types of military organization through which the manpower of a nation may be developed. . . . One of these is the standing army type. . . . Under this system, leadership in war and the control of military preparations and policy in peacetime are concentrated largely and necessarily in a special class or caste of professional soldiers.

Not U.S. System

"This is the system of Germany and Japan. It produces highly efficient armies. But it is open to serious political objections. . . . It . . . has no place among the institutions of a modern democratic state based upon the conception of government by the people.

"The second type of military institution . . . is based upon the conception of a professional peace establishment (no larger than necessary to meet normal peacetime requirements) to be re-enforced in time of emergency by organized units drawn from a citizen army reserve, effectively organized for this purpose in time of peace. . . . The type of our military institutions was determined in the beginning by the form of our government and has not changed since Washington's administration. It will therefore be made the basis for all plans for a postwar peace establishment."

Bigger Subsidies On Meat Are Predicted

MAY 13 1945

Washington, May 12 (AP)—A Senate committee chairman said today that an OPA order giving still more subsidies to the meat industry probably will be issued next week.

If it meets objections raised by packers and cattle feeders to the present OPA price subsidy schedules, the order may clear the way for quick Senate action on legislation to extend the Price Control Act unchanged for another year from the June 30 expiration date.

Reports Formula Prepared

Chairman Wagner (D., N.Y.) of the Banking Committee said he understood OPA officials had about worked out a formula designed to settle the meat-price controversy. He has been holding the extension measure in committee pending these efforts.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles has advised the Agriculture Committee that he wants to appear before it next week to discuss the situation, Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) said.

Committee Meets Monday

The Agriculture Committee will begin work Monday on a report on its food investigations. Thomas said it will cover "findings of facts and conclusions" and asserted he was convinced that OPA must:

1. Give additional subsidies to feeders who fatten range cattle.
2. Give "additional relief" to meat packers.

Thomas has just returned from a visit to Oklahoma. He said that in personal investigations there he found no demand for an increase in the price of range cattle and saw no cattle in feeder pens.

Blames High Feed Prices

"The feeders claim the price they have to pay for feed is so high that they can't afford to feed," he said.

Thomas said he saw no necessity for amending the price control law, believing changes demanded by cattle and meat men could be handled by administrative action.

"But if OPA doesn't do a better job than it has done there will be amendments," he added.

POINT VALUES UP 4 POINTS ON LARD

Increases Also Ordered for Shortening, Cooking, Salad Oils.

WASHINGTON, May 12 — (AP) Price Administrator Chester Bowles tonight ordered higher ration point values for lard, shortening, cooking and salad oils, effective at 12:01 a. m., Sunday.

They will be increased to 10 points a pound from the present value of six points.

This action, Bowles noted, was forecast two weeks ago when the inter-agency committee on foreign shipments reported that "the free world's needs for this basic nutrient and industrial raw material, including the needs of liberated Europe, exceed prospective supplies by nearly 500,000 long tons."

The report also said that the United States "must be prepared to economize its use (of fats and oils) if any real contribution is to be made to this pressing problem."

The point value increase announced today does not apply to butter or margarine.

Bowles said the War Food Administration's revised allocation of fats and oils for civilian use during the April-June quarter is 814,200,000 pounds. The allocation previously approved for that period was 856,500,000 pounds.

OPA also announced that current quarter supplemental allotments of fats and oils to industrial users are being reduced. That cut, he said, will trim by about 20 per cent the rate at which these products are used by all except pharmaceutical manufacturers.

Service Journal Lists U.S.-Occupation Areas

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The Army and Navy Journal said today the American occupation zone in Germany would cover Bavaria, Wurtemberg and Thuringia with a supply corridor from British-controlled Bremen.

France, said the unofficial service journal, "will have a large part of the Rhineland with possibly some additions from the zone assigned to us."

The zones for Great Britain and Russia were not discussed in the article, but it has been assumed the British would occupy northern Germany and Russia the area generally east of the lower Elbe and the Mulde rivers.

The mention of a supply corridor from Bremen to the American zone apparently referred to the known reluctance of the United States to use the overburdened transportation systems of France in bringing supplies across from Atlantic ports to Germany for the American garrison forces.

WAY OUT FOR JAPS SEEN BY JOURNAL

Truman Opened Door To Peace Bid, Service Paper Says

MAY 13 1945

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The Army and Navy Journal said today that President Truman had "opened the door to a Japanese request for peace" by giving assurances that the people are not to be destroyed.

But the unofficial service publication said that it did not follow that Mr. Truman's remarks, made in his Victory in Europe proclamation, indicated any deviation from the purpose of his predecessor, Franklin Roosevelt, "to require Japan to evacuate China and surrender all the territory she acquired from that country, and to restore independence to Korea."

His Silence As To Hirohito

The Journal also saw significance in the omission from the President's statement of any demand for ousting of Japan's Emperor Hirohito.

The Journal commented that it was unlikely the President would have pledged that the Japanese people would not be destroyed "without the prior knowledge (of that pledge) of Great Britain." Moscow also certainly was advised of Truman's intention, the Journal said.

What It Would Mean To Japs

"Mr. Truman, in his interpretation of unconditional surrender for the Japanese, stated that it meant for them the end of the war, termination of the influence of military leaders, provision for the return of soldiers and sailors to their families, their farms and their jobs, and the independence of their country.

"Significantly omitted was the expression of any intention to oust the Emperor or to abolish the throne, an omission which will appeal to the conservative palace entourage which never wanted the war and which is anxious to terminate it even though the cost be loss of territory, abandonment of the ward lords' East Asia coprosperity sphere and denial of the power to possess a navy, a military air force and armies and the industry to provide and support them."

Bretton Woods And Tariff Face Test This Week

Leaders Doubt Programs Will Emerge Intact From Two House Committees

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP).—Administration leaders admitted today serious doubts of putting through their full program as Congress approached a two-day showdown on the first legislation dealing with post-war international co-operation.

Bretton Woods world bank and monetary adjustment plans and post-war tariff policy were set for votes next week in the House Banking and the Ways and Means Committees, respectively. Both committees will produce legislation, but Administration leaders are not sure it will be what they want.

The State Department closed its case before the Ways and Means Committee today for both Bretton Woods and its tariff proposals. The plea was presented by Charles P. Taft, brother of Ohio's Republican Senator Robert A. Taft and head of the department's office of transport and communications policy.

Bretton Woods Prospects

As the committees come to the voting stage, after weeks of public hearings, here's about how the issues stand:

Bretton Woods—Banking Chairman Brent Spence. Democrat, of Kentucky, voiced confidence that a bill can be pushed through which the Administration will accept and which will not require a second conference of representatives of the forty-four nations that drew the plans last summer for a $10,000,000,000 world bank for reconstruction and development loans and an $8,800,000,000 fund to stabilize world currencies.

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott, Republican, of Michigan, banking Republican leader, said he is preparing amendments proposing that long-term stabilization loans be put into the bank and that the fund deal only in currency transactions. The Treasury has not said whether it believes the world monetary program could get along satisfactorily under Mr. Wolcott's proposals, but it wants the legislation as drawn.

TARIFFS—The ten Ways and Means Republicans are aligned solidly in opposition and at least three of the fifteen Democratic votes are in doubt on Administration legislation proposing to extend the reciprocal trade act for three years with an amendment giving the President power to trim duties up to 50 per cent under rates prevailing Jan. 1, 1945. The President now has power to cut tariffs 50 per cent under the Hawley-Smoot rates. However, there seems to be assured strength in the committee to extend the reciprocal trade program for one year without the new power to cut levies.

Morgenthau Plea

Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau jr. told the Banking committee the Bretton Woods agreements are needed for the success of the world security organization being drawn at San Francisco. The State Department argued that the tariff legislation would build world trade and contribute to peaceful relations among nations.

Ways and Means Republicans contend that further tariff reductions would ruin many American industries and cause unemployment. Opponents of Bretton Woods have described it as the makings of "a world W. P. A."

MILLION VETERANS TO RESUME SCHOOL

Survey by the Federal Office of Education Shows Plan After War Service Ends

MAY 13 1945

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—A survey by the Office of Education of the Federal Security Agency indicates that about 1,000,000 men and women will go to school when they leave the armed services. About two-thirds of the white troops have definite plans for a career and about 17 per cent have tentative plans. About half of the Negro troops have definite plans.

About 1,000,000 men expect to enter or return to their own businesses, 850,000 plan to own and operate farms and 750,000 plan to obtain or return to jobs in national, State and local Government. Many plan careers in the professions, return to private business as employes or careers in the armed services.

Dr. Ernest V. Hollis, author of the study, remarks:

"Most veterans will want new or better jobs when they return to the civilian labor force. Fortunately situated men have worked to that end while in the armed forces. Many of these and their comrades expect to give full or part time to preparing for a career when they are elegible for benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights."

Youth Is Important Factor

Dr. Hollis says that more than 90 per cent of the men who definitely plan to return to school or college full time are under 25 years of age, 90 per cent have the formal requirements to enter or resume college work and 93 per cent are unmarried. Four-fifths of this group have all three characteristics and all except 3 per cent have at least two of them. However, one-third of the men who are eligible to return to college expect to take vocational training without regard for whether it is college level work.

The report states:

"Polls indicate that each State may expect at least 80 per cent of its native sons to return home for education and employment and that States with superior opportunities may expect up to one-fifth more veterans than they sent into the armed forces."

House To Keep Hands Off Furloughs

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The House Military Committee turned thumbs down today on proposals that Congress determine furlough procedure for veterans of the European war.

Chairman May (D., Ky.) announced that the committee would not consider at this time legislation dealing with the subject and told reporters:

"We are not going to interfere with operations of the Army. Who shall be furloughed and how they shall be furloughed is a matter for the Army's leaders to determine, and on the basis of their record in defeating Germany, I believe we can have confidence in them."

Applies To Similar Bills

May said the decision to pigeonhole the legislation applied not only to the most recent proposal, introduced yesterday by Representative Smith (R., Wis.), but "to all similar bills."

Smith's bill would make it mandatory that men who have served at least one year in the European theater of operations be returned to the contiental United States or to Hawaii—if the service men so elects—and furloughed for not less than 30 days.

The length of the furlough would depend on total length of European service, with the minimum 30-day period being increased by one day for each month of European service up to fifteen.

Under its provisions, a man with twelve months of European theater service would be entitled to a 42-day furlough.

Would Affect Occupation

Committee members said the Smith proposal would prohibit the use of seasoned fighting men in the occupation forces, since it would make the return of twelve-month men mandatory unless the individuals waived its provisions.

While "it is hoped that as many men as possible can be given furloughs," May said, "we should not make it mandatory, because to do so would tie the hands of our military leaders. They are the ones who know what men can be spared and what men cannot be spared for the war against Japan."

D.C. Sends Word To Tokyo One Jap Survived Sinking

MAY 13 1945

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The State Department today said it had notified Japan through the Swiss Government that only one person survived the sinking of a Japanese ship believed to be the Awa Maru.

It identified the survivor as Kantaro Shimoda, 45, who said he was a steward on the Awa Maru, a Japanese relief ship returning to Japan after carrying supplies to Allied prisoners in Japanese occupied areas.

The department said it had informed Tokyo on May 2 that Shimoda was in excellent health and was being held on Guam as a "protected person," which would accord him the most liberal treatment provided by the Geneva Convention.

On April 11 the State Department announced that the Navy had informed it that an American submarine sank a Japanese ship on April 1 with "no lights or special illumination visible at any time" 40 miles off the estimated course the Awa Maru was supposed to be traveling.

Japan subsequently announced that the ship had gone down with a number of high Japanese officials aboard, and lodged a protest with the American Government.

This Government has not yet replied to the protest because the Navy is still investigating the circumstances.

Bronze Swastika To Be U.S. Trophy

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The bronze swastika before which the Nazi faithful performed their rituals in the party's shrine city of Nuernberg is coming to the United States as a war trophy.

The War Department said today Gen. George S. Patton had requested permission to send the giant crooked cross to this country as a trophy. The War Department said it expected to turn the swastika over to the Army War College.

Nuernberg was captured on April 20 by the 3d, 45th and 42d Infantry divisions. The swastika is reputedly the first one used by the Nazi party.

Invasion Strategy Based On Colonel's Joke About Floating Docks

MAY 13 1945

MAY 13 1945

By Tom Reedy

Washington, May 12 (AP)—It's safe now to tell Jerry that he once had in his hands the key to the United States invasion of France and didn't know it.

It is a fantastic story of a huge gag that turned into strategy.

Army planners told it in strictest confidence to this writer many months ago. V-E day lifted the security ties.

What happened was this:

A group of officers was assigned to plan the logistics of the Normandy invasion.

Task Almost Impossible

They slaved night and day over the seemingly impossible task of putting men down on the beaches and then supplying them without port facilities.

A colonel after weeks of burning the midnight oil was virtually going around in circles, his head buzzing with figures that refused to add up. In tired disgust one night he sat at a typewriter and relaxed his sense of humor.

He wrote a purely jocular form on the "operations" of landing and supplying men, in good military style.

Must Tow Beaches

The colonel reached these conclusions:

1. Any length of beach is too short to take the number of vehicles belonging to the number of divisions that will be necessary to assault such a length of beach.

2. Unless immediate steps are taken to construct sufficient beaches in this country, to be towed across the channel already assembled, no assault can take place.

Thought Twister

The "logistic" study included this sage observation:

"The general principle is that the number of divisions required to capture the number of ports required to maintain those divisions is always greater than the number of divisions those ports can maintain."

The solution?

"Go to an area where no ports exist and the problem then will not arise."

"Sink Blockships"

The colonel set this up as his final objective:

"To evolve an organization for a captured port."

He concluded:

"In order to have the invasion take place in an area where there are no ports it is recommended that a port should be constructed on the selected area of the enemy coast by sinking as many concrete filled blockships in as small an area as possible.

"The capacity of this port is estimated by the Navy to be 200 ships per day from D minus 2 onward. This capacity is unlikely to be reached, however, as all small and medium coasters will undoubtedly be required as concrete filled blockships."

Gets All Over London

The five page "gag" was circulated among officers who doubled up in giggles, springled with sympathy for the lads who had to try to solve the problem.

Army men say the thing got all over London and one major said he could swear that German counter intelligence surely had picked it up. No one thought anything of that, then.

But, in the meantime, the planners got to thinking about artificial ports. Why not, they concluded.

Could Have Smashed Docks

So the idea was adopted virtually to float a new coastline across the channel as the jokester had suggested. Floating docks were constructed to be embedded in concrete when they hit Normandy and there were the ports, ready made!

It has been said since that these floating docks were the Allies' greatest "secret weapon" for that invasion; they constituted the imponderable factor that the Nazi hadn't reckoned with.

Assuming the major knew what he was talking about—that the Germans had the jocular reference to portable docks, it must be assumed that the Germans didn't know it to be anything more than a gag.

Coastline Floated

If they had got wise, bombers could have smashed the slow-moving docks as they were being towed across the Channel. Perhaps the early waves of assault troops might even have run out of ammunition and been thrown back into the sea.

Those are the thoughts that were going through the minds of the army planners sweating out the period between the circulation of the joke and the fruition of its idea.

That colonel has sworn off jokes.

"Operations Overboard!"

The colonel's memorandum was captioned:

"Operations overboard!"

The object of the project, it went on, was to:

1. "Provide some employment for a great number of officers."

2. "Justify the worst fears of the Ministry of War Transport."

3. "Prove that the cardinal principles of administration, movement and common sense may all be disregarded or overcome by improvisation."

Too Tough For Paper

The assault in question, the memorandum went on, "is really too difficult a problem to be discuseed on the quality of paper available."

The followup—good military language—was dismissed this way: "It is merely a question of following up where the assault has been; if there has been no assault, the problem is even easier."

The naval problem involved:

"The ruling factor is that there cannot be sufficient ports in the United Kingdom to accommodate all the naval forces that would be required to be accompanied by the maximum number of military forces that can be embarked in these ports."

Military Forces Ruled Out

Therefore, the conclusion:

"No military forces should be employed whatever. This would render the whole complicated problem very much simpler and not detract from the naval plan."

As for air support:

"The only disadvantage of air support is that it enables enemy territory to be captured too fast to be able to develop sufficient airfields to accommodate all the planes necessary to capture the territory so fast."

"Resistances" Cancel Out

The enemy was dismissed thus:

"No account need be taken of enemy resistance since no account will be taken of our own resistance to the enemy and the two will cancel out exactly.

"Enemy rate of reinforcement—this is a thoroughly distasteful subject."

"It will be necessary to plan that every British division can compete with at least two enemy divisions. If the enemy can concentrate a force of more than twice the number of our divisions, as he invariably can, it will be necessary to invade an area that is too small to hold them all."

The underground?

"The Patriots will require more supplies than the given number of troops can carry and at the same time liberate them. Conclusion—no Patriots can be liberated. Reliance must still be placed in Patriots (a) to prevent the enemy advancing until we are winning, (b) prevent the enemy withdrawing when we are winning."

Nelson Gives Up Diplomatic Post

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Donald M. Nelson has resigned as White House representative to "other governments" and President Truman has named Edwin A. Locke, Jr., to carry on his work in China.

Locke was Nelson's executive assistant on his missions to China, Russia, England and Australia.

The resignation of Nelson, former Sears Roebuck executive who left the chairmanship of the War Production Board to take over various special diplomatic assignments for the late President Roosevelt, is effective May 15.

Nelson organized a War Production Board for China and left it in the hands of assistants some weeks ago.

Nelson submitted his resignation April 16, but it was not accepted then. He later repeated it verbally, White House officials said, and Mr. Truman accepted it.

Accepted Reluctantly

In accepting Nelson's resignation, Mr. Truman said he did so reluctantly.

"Ever since May of 1940," he wrote, "you have been in Washington, at great personal sacrifice, rendering patriotic and effective service in helping to build the vast war machine which has finally spelled victory in Europe for the cause of decency.

"That same armed might which you did so much to help forge now will be concentrated on the other side of the world to bring the Japanese to unconditional surrender.

"I am sure that it must be a great source of pride to you as it is to gratitude to the American people to realize how much your continued devotion and energy has contributed to the victory that has been and to the victory that will be.

Wishes Him Happiness

"On behalf of the American people, I thank you and wish you much happiness and success in your future endeavors.

"As I stated to you in our talk, I am letting you go upon your promise to come back when we may need your services again.

"Until the work of your present mission is completed I am designating, at your suggestion, Mr. Edwin A. Locke, Jr., to carry on in your stead."

Nelson wrote the President that after his return from several trips to Russia and China he had long and private talks with President Roosevelt "about our economic relations with other countries."

Will Tell Truman

"I shall be glad at any time to tell you what we discussed in these conversations," Nelson said.

In a separate letter to Locke, the President said:

"In reluctantly accepting Mr. Nelson's resignation, I want to make sure that the work of his office in directing and servicing the mission which he has established in China is carried on. Mr. Nelson has told me that you have successfully handled the related executive work during the entire life of the mission.

"I want you to assume responsibility for and direction of the mission until arrangements are completed to wind it up—which I understand should be in from three to six months. For this purpose, your present White House office should be maintained, with such members of the present staff as you need."

The President told Locke his salary would be $10,000 a year. He said he hoped Locke would follow Nelson's "broad policies."

Native Of Boston

Locke, a 34-year-old native of Boston, lives in New Canaan, Conn. He entered the Chase National Bank in 1932 on his graduation from Harvard. After serving in Chase's Paris and London branches, as well as in the New York office, he came to Washington in 1940 to work with the National Defense Advisory Commission, the pioneer defense agency.

He served under Nelson when the latter was administrator of priorities, then under Secretary of State Stettinius when Stettinius replaced Nelson.

When the Supply, Priorities and Allocation Board was set up three months before Pearl Harbor, Locke rejoined Nelson as confidential assistant.

ALLIES TO CONTROL TRIESTE, TITO TOLD

Yugoslav Claims To City Must Wait, U.S. Says

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The United States tonight served notice on Marshal Tito that the Allied military will control Trieste and the surrounding area in northeastern Italy despite Yugoslav claims.

Noting that Marshal Tito, according to radio reports, is setting up a "National Federal Government of Slovenia" in Trieste, the acting secretary of state, Joseph C. Grew, issued a public statement reaffirming the policy of the United States that territorial changes should be made only after thorough study and full consultation among the governments concerned.

"Only on this basis can adequate consideration be given to the human, economic and political elements involved and a just and stable solution be found," declared Grew.

30 Questions In Europe

He said that solution of such territorial questions will be one of the most difficult problems of coming months, and that there are 30 or more such questions in Europe which require careful study before satisfactory decisions can be reached.

"Many months ago it was decided that the best way to avoid hasty and precarious territorial solutions in the Anglo-American theater of operations would be to establish and maintain an Allied military government in the disputed areas pending settlement by the orderly processes to which the United Nations are pledged," Grew recalled.

Tito Agreed, He Says

He said that the disputed Venezia Giulia area is temporarily of prime military importance because Allied occupation forces require a zone of administration including adequate port facilities and lines of communication to central Europe.

He said that Marshal Tito in February accepted the idea of such an Allied military government for this region.

"Notwithstanding this agreement, claims have now been advanced that by virtue of conquest Yugoslav forces are etitled forthwith to occupy and control the administration of this region," he added.

More Than Frontier Case

Grew declared that "the present problem is far more than a mere frontier controversy between two clamaints.

"It raises the issue of the settlement of international disputes by orderly process rather than by unilateral action. The disposition of Venezia Giulia, as of other disputed territories, must therefore await a definite peace settlement in which the claims of both dises and the peoples concerned will receive a full and fair hearing or be a matter of direct negotations freely entered into between the parties involved."

No Break With Russia

Grew also said today he had no knowledge of any communication from Marshal Stalin to the effect that co-operation with the western Allies had become impossible.

He voiced the disclaimer in response to questions about published reports that Stalin had written Premier Churchill, with a copy to President Truman, that the Yalta agreement had been broken and that he believed it futile to discuss the Polish problem further.

No Word On Russ-Allied Break On Poles: Grew

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Acting Secretary of State Joseph Grew said today he had no knowledge of any communication from Marshal Stalin to the effect that co-operation with the Western Allies had become impossible.

He voiced the disclaimer in response to questions about published reports that Stalin had written Premier Churchill, with a copy to President Truman, that the Yalta agreement had been broken and that he believed it futile to discuss the Polish problem further.

No Reply On Arrests

It was learned, meanwhile, that the Soviet Government has not replied to the request of Secretary of State Stettinius and Foreign Secretary Eden in San Francisco that Russia furnish information regarding the arrest in Moscow of sixteen former Polish underground leaders.

Moscow recently announced that these leaders, who had gone to Moscow from London to discuss the formation of a provisional government of Poland in accordance with the Yalta agreement, have been arrested.

It was learned here that the only messages received recently from Stalin have dealt solely with the Polish Government question, and that the Soviet Government has not yet refused to provide information on the arrested leaders. These communications were all sent before the Eden-Stettinius request was made.

20 Million Counterfeit Ration Coupons Seized in Brooklyn Raid

MAY 13 1945

NEW YORK, May 12—(AP) Twenty million counterfeit red ration coupons, described by Daniel P. Woolley, regional OPA administrator, as the largest seizure of its kind in OPA history, were found today in a Brooklyn home.

Woolley said the amount was equivalent to one month's ration allotment for approximately half of New York City's population.

OPA agents and police who raided the home also seized, Woolley said, counterfeit gasoline coupons for 2,500,000 gallons and counterfeit sugar coupons for 6,250,000 pounds.

Woolley said six members of a family living in the house were taken into custody for questioning.

Woolley said those taken into custody were a 63-year-old retired butcher, his two sons, both butchers, and his three daughters.

Paul L. Ross, regional OPA enforcement executive, said he believed the house was the "major drop"—or central point for deposit—of counterfeit ration coupons in New York and on the entire eastern seaboard.

An OPA official estimated that at current valuation in counterfeit circles the fake coupons were worth approximately $2,000,000.

The coupons were found, Woolley said, when police and OPA agents were called by firemen who had discovered some bogus gas coupons after extinguishing a fire in a garage under the house.

Nazi Party In Austria Liquidated

New York, May 12 (AP)—The Soviet-sponsored provisional government of Austria has passed a law suppressing the Nazi party and providing death sentences for its present members, Tass said today.

The Tass dispatch, broadcast by the Moscow radio to the Russian domestic press and recorded here, said that under the law all the Nazi party's property in Austria "is to pass into the hands of the Austrian republic."

The law demands the personal registration of Nazis who belonged to the party from July 1, 1933, to April 27, 1945, the dispatch said.

"All those who still belong to this party or are working for it are to be punished by death and deprived of all their property," Tass said. "Only in certain cases will the death sentence be commuted to imprisonment of from ten to twenty years."

OWI Tells Germans Truth About The War

New York, May 12 (AP)—Six East Coast short-wave transmitters are being used to bring to the German people "the truth about themselves" as well as details of the coordinated Allied program by which they will be governed, the Office of War Information announced today.

"Cold factual summaries of world news," which are "clearing up and correcting historic falsifications" fed to the German people by the Nazis, are included in the broadcasts, the OWI said.

War Laid To Germans

"Germans are being told repeatedly," the OWI statement said, "that they were the ones who started this war and brought untold misery by fostering and tolerating Nazism and its ultimate objective—to conquer the world by force.

"They are being told that they also will be held responsible for all crimes committed in the name of Germany, that the German people will not be accepted again into the family of civilized nations until they have proved beyond doubt that they are worthy."

"Reports On Democracy"

The OWI added that the Germans would be "re-educated by reports on how a free democracy operates, and on how the free world is united to work toward a permanent peace."

Broadcasts—all of them presenting facts on a "take-it-or-leave-it basis"—also are attempting to forestall any possible claims by German militarists that they were "victimized by Nazi inefficiency and incompetence," the OWI said.

Freed Prisoners Urged To Remain In Camps

New York, May 12 (AP)—General Eisenhower today requested Allied prisoners of war still in Germany to remain in their camps to enable authorities to work our co-ordinated plans for their transfer back to their homes.

The massacre, broadcast to the camps over BBC, was reported by the OWI.

General Eisenhower's message said Allied officers were en route to all prisoner of war camps with plans for releasing the prisoners and told the men "you can help yourselves best by staying where you are."

CAPTIVE SUB DUE IN U.S. TOMORROW

U-858 Delayed By Storms On Way To Cape May

New York, May 12 (AP)—The first enemy vessel to surrender in American home waters since the outbreak of the war—the German submarine U-858—is now en route to Cape May, N.J., where it is due Monday, the Navy said tonight.

Earlier the submarine had been expected to arrive at Cape May tomorrow but the Navy said it had been delayed by storms at sea..

Vice Admiral H. F. Leary, commander of the Eastern sea frontier, said the submarine made contact with United States fleet units several days ago and is being escorted on a prescribed course to Cape May.

In accordance with the rule promulgated by the Navy and the British Admiralty, the submarine, flying the black surrender flag, will come in on the surface with a large proportion of her crew on deck. Fourth Naval District officials will receive the surrender for Leary.

After the crew members have been removed as prisoners of war the submarine will be taken to Philadelphia, the Navy said.

New Flattop Is Called Symbol Of Will To Win

Portsmouth, Va., May 12 (AP)—The 27,100-ton aircraft carrier Tarawa, named for the historic battle which marked the turning point of the war in the Central Pacific, was launched at the Norfolk Navy Yard today before a throng estimated at almost 100,000.

Just before the Essex class flattop plunged into the Elizabeth River she was hailed by Marine Maj. Gen. Julian C. Smith as "a living symbol of America's determination to see this war through to a successful end."

Proof Of Determination

"It stands as proof that the spirit of our ancestors still lives, and of our will to fight for the heritage they bequeathed us," declared the Leatherneck General who commanded the 2d Marine Division during its invasion of Tarawa atoll, in the Gilbert Islands, in November, 1943. With him today as an honor guard were 24 Marines who fought in the Tarawa campaign.

"Bearing our flag on distant seas," Smith said, a moment before his wife splintered a bottle of champagne against the ship's bow, "the Tarawa will stand as a grim reminder to all aggressor nations who would involve the world in another war that there is a mighty force with which they must reckon."

Civilian Employes Present

As the Tarawa slid into the river a Navy band blared "Anchors Aweigh" and a tremendous cheer went up. The navy yard's 37,000 civilian employés were released from work for an hour and were permitted to bring their families.

The Tarawa's momentum was accelerated by the use of 45,000 pounds of wax on the ways, but was checked after she entered the water by 700 tons of chain drags attached to her sides to prevent her stern from crashing into wharves on the opposite side of the narrow river. In his address, Smith urged that the United States join with all "peaceably disposed nations" to preserve a just and lasting peace at the end of "this barbarous war."

"But above all," he added, "let us not forget that upon the security of our nation depends the security of civilization and enlightenment. Never again must we sink to a state of unpreparedness and complacency while aggressor nations are actually mustering their strength for our destruction.

"The sacrifices of the men of Tarawa, of the Normandy beachhead, of the far Pacific, must not be in vain," he asserted.

Md. Girl Takes Part

Mrs. Smith's maid of honor was Miss Cynthia James, of Havre de Grace, Md.

Guests at the ceremonies included Col. David M. Shoup, USMC, of Covington, Ind., who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for gallantry in leading Marines against the Japanese defenders on Betio Island at Tarawa, despite severe wounds and in the face of withering fire.

General Smith, who won the Distinguished Service Medal for his part in the Tarawa campaign, is now commanding general of the Department of the Pacific, with headquarters at San Francisco.

5,000 Persons Slain

Smith described in detail the assault on Tarawa, told how "in 76 stark and bitter hours an island was taken" and its 4,000 defenders and almost 1,000 Americans were slain. It was a battle for which there was no precedent, he added, and it set the pattern for future amphibious operations in the Central Pacific and was "the beginning of the end of Japan's dream of empire."

The battle showed definitely, he said, that "men well entrenched and determined to fight to the last ditch cannot be destroyed by bombarding alone, but only by other men imbued with greater determination to cross that ditch."

The Tarawa will carry more than 2,500 officers and men and more than 80 planes. Her speed will exceed 30 knots and the vessel is 888 feet in length.

REACH AGREEMENT ON SECURITY PLAN

Conference Drives Ahead as Peace Pattern Survives Two Tests.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12—(AP) The United Nations conference drove forward tonight under the dual impetus of a vote to concentrate peace-keeping power in the hands of 11 nations and an American delegation agreement on the hot issue of regional security systems.

Each decision has a long way to go before it is written finally into the charter of a world organization for preserving peace.

But the basic pattern for keeping peace, drafted at Dumbarton Oaks in Washington last fall by China, Russia, Britain and the United States, has survived two stiff tests.

The big powers had been insistent that the major instrumentality for ridding the world of war should be a security council of 11 members with broad powers to step into any situation threatening peace. A conference committee voted unanimously today to restrict the council membership to 11. Although some countries abstained from balloting.

Must Be Ratified

The decision still must be ratified by a conference commission under which the committee operates, and by the entire conference.

What it approved today was the original pattern for a security council drafted at the Dumbarton Oaks discussions by China, Britain, Russia and the United States.

These countries, with France, would have permanent council seats. The six remaining seats would be rotated among other nations at two-year intervals.

And the American delegation worked out a formula for giving regional blocs of nations the right to take emergency action to keep peace without depriving the council of over-all powers.

The action in the committee and ... the delegation were separate. Yet they were laced strongly together. And the attitude of Latin American nations posed a big question mark over both decisions.

For Cuba withdrew a motion to increase the security council's membership to 15 only after attaching a major reservation.

Cuban delegate Guy Cisneros said his country "withrdaws its proposal on condition that integration of the InterAmerican (security) system within the world organization be approved with necessary autonomy."

Whether the American formula for integration provides enough autonomy to satisfy Latin American nations is the question.

Apparently approved by President Truman, it would allow individual nations to bind themselves together for mutual defense in case of attack. But it would keep for the security council the right to step into any regional dispute and take action against an agressor.

Big Five Meets

Chiefs of delegations of the big-five nations—China, France, Russia, Britain and the United States—met this afternoon to go over the American proposal and conference problems in general.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain was reported to have tossed in a suggestion that the regional security program be broadened somewhat. He was said to see a need, particularly as the middle east is concerned, to grant regional systems more authority than the Americans proposed.

The big Five held another meeting following the afternoon session.

Apparently they were striving for harmony on all major conference issues now in prospect before British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden departs tomorrow for London.

Eden will travel by way of Washington, where presumably he will see President Truman.

Both the British and Americans, who largely have composed their own differences over trusteeships, now are reported taking a somewhat gloomy view of the chances for accord with Russia.

As some of them understand it, the Soviets would let the security council, rather than individual nations, designate strategic trustee areas and this might bring into play the ability of any one of the big Five to veto council action on steps for keeping peace.

The United States naturally would be hesitant to let Russia or anyone else control a decision on whether vital defense bases in the Pacific are strategic areas.

U.S. Delegation Ends Deadlock

MAY 13 1945

San Francisco, May 12 (AP)—The United States delegation was reported today to have broken its week-old deadlock over how to fit regional security systems into a world peace organization.

The solution, although tentative, is seen here as another long step in speeding the United Nations Security Conference toward a successful conclusion.

It is based on recognizing in a United Nations charter the right of all countries to make treaties for their own defense. Under such treaties, nations could give each other emergency assistance against an aggressor but then the projected World Security Council would be empowered to take control of the situation.

May Appease Small Nations

Officials said this plan should allay the fears of small nations that the council may not give them quick enough protection in an emergency. And they felt it would not weaken the over-all authority of the world agency to handle situations endangering peace.

Secretary of State Stettinius discussed the compromise American plan with Foreign Secretary Eden last night in an effort to begin obtaining a big-power agreement along the same line. Stettinius reports back to a delegation meeting today at which final United States accord on the formula is slated.

The reaction of Latin-American leaders battling for an independent security system in this hemisphere remains to be determined, but United States leaders were hopeful that the self-defense theory would meet their approval.

General Review Of Parley

The Eden-Stettinius talk also is understood to have covered a general review of conference work to date and problems ahead preliminary to Eden's imminent departure for London. There were reports he would fly by way of Washington, stopping off there long enough to call on President Truman.

One of the still unsolved problems is that of providing international supervision for trusteeship governments of lands taken from enemy countries in the two World Wars.

Russia Sides With U.S.

Britain and the United States are near agreement on the United States contention that areas suitable for military base development should be given into exclusive control of the governments which operate the bases.

On the same problem, Russia in an amendment submitted to the trusteeship committee of the conference, sided entirely with the United States. Russia also went along with an American proposal that a special council should be established in the proposed new peace league to head up the trusteeship system.

Russia said the council should include the Big Five powers as permanent members, which would give it about eighteen or twenty member nations, in comparison with the thirteen to fifteen members previously contemplated.

A more powerful position seemed to be in prospect for the league's proposed economic and social council. A committee voted unanimously last night that it would rank next to the powerful Security Council, in order to emphasize the importance of promoting economic, social, educational and similar activities on a world-wide scale as essentials of a lasting peace.

Soviet Changes Attitude

The Dumbarton Oaks plan, which China, Russia, the United States and Britain drew up at Washington last fall, provided that the council should be subordinate to the League Assembly.

Russia insisted then on concentrating on peace-enforcing arrangements, as in the Security Council, but has since swung over to the Anglo-American-Chinese argument that weight must be given to building a peace as well as to being ready to fight for it.

A conference committee assigned to study peaceful means by which the Security Council may try to settle future international disputes last night debated whether the big powers should have a veto in such cases. Canada proposed that an affirmative vote of any seven of the eleven council members should be enough to have the council take up a dispute and recommend a settlement. There was much argument reported but no decision.

French Proposal Is Stalled

A French proposal that the council be ordered to respect treaties in making its recommendations also was stalled when other nations on the committee said the council also should be told to respect the principles of justice and international law.

The break in the United States deadlock on regional security systems comes after days of intensive debate. One group of advisers had insisted that the Pan-American system set up recently at Mexico City should be allowed to function independently of the World Security Council. Another argued that such a special exemption would break down the whole concept of maintaining peace on a world-wide basis.

Yesterday the delegation went over seventeen amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan aimed at giving the Pan-American system specifically, or regional arrangements generally, some degree of autonomy.

Tentative Formula

Finally the delegation members decided they could get together on these principles in a regional security formula:

1. The world-wide authority of the Security Council should be preserved.

2. The right of any nation to make treaties for its own defense should be specifically recognized in the league charter. Essentially the Pan-American system now is a wartime agreement among the 21 American nations; it is planned after the war to convert it into a peacetime security treaty.

3. When a nation having a defense treaty with other countries is attacked, the other countries may carry out their treaty obligation to join its defense, as an emergency measure.

4. The Security Council should have the right to take control of the situation if and when necessary.

Way Open for Poles.

San Francisco, May 12 (A. P.).—The way was left open today for Poland to join the United Nations organization as a charter member, even though there is no Polish delegation here.

The membership committee of the conference voted that all Allied nations which sign or adhere to the charter will be original members. Poland is the only United Nations member not here.

Denmark could be included under this provision too. She has not been among the United Nations because of German occupation of the homeland.

As for the neutrals, their admission to the world organization will be determined later. It was decided the organization would be open to all peace-loving nations able and willing to fulfill the obligations of the charter.

Deadlock Broken.

In the meantime the United States delegation was reported today to have broken its week-old deadlock over how to fit regional security systems into a world peace organization. It is based on recognizing in a United Nations charter the right of all countries to have treaties for their own defense. Under such treaties nations could give each other emergency assistance against an aggressor but then the projected World Security Council would be empowered to take control of the situation.

Officials said this plan should allay the fears of small nations that the council might not give them quick enough protection in an emergency.

Secretary of State Stettinius discussed the compromise American plan with Foreign Secretary Eden last night in an effort to begin obtaining a big-power agreement along the same line. The talk also is understood to have covered a general review of conference work to date preliminary to Eden's imminent departure for London. There were reports he would fly by way of Washington, stopping off there long enough to call on President Truman.

SMALLER POWERS LOSE FIRST TEST AT SAN FRANCISCO

Committee Votes to Keep Peace Control in Hands of Eleven Nations.

San Francisco, May 12 (A. P.).—A committee of the United Nations Conference voted today to keep within the hands of eleven nations the major powers of a world organization for maintaining peace. Thus the smaller countries lost the first big test in their effort to win more authority for themselves in shaping the course of a peaceful world.

The vote was unanimous, although some countries refrained from balloting. The decision must be ratified by the conference commission, under which it operates, and by the full conference.

The issue can be reopened in the committee itself. The delegates of several small nations are reported to have said they may ask for a review in case they are unable to put across some of their additional demands, such as more power for a general astions in advising the council on security matters, or even authority to accept or reject council action.

What the committee approved today, after two days of heated argument, was the original pattern for a Security Council drafted by the four nations sponsoring the conference—China, Britain, Russia and the United States.

These countries, with France, would have permanent seats in the council. The six remaining seats would be rotated among other nations at two-year intervals. Under the Big Four plan, the council would have power to adopt measures not only for the peaceful adjustment of international disputes, but also the right to use force of arms if needs be.

Those Taciturn Russians

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12 (AP).—Because of the swarms of delegates here, the United Nations Information Office compiled a book of terse biographies. Delegations responded with fairly complete information, except for the Russians. There is a little information on Soviet Foreign Commissar Viacheslav M. Molotov and Ambassador Andrei Gromyko. For the other nine Soviet delegates, there are just names and a large blank white space following each.

Concessions at Parley On Equal Rights Hailed

Australian Says Women Won 'Important Recognition'

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12 (AP).—Big power concessions to demands for equal rights for women under the proposed world charter were hailed today by Mrs. Jessie Mary Gray Street, of the Australian delegation to the United Nations Conference.

"We didn't get all we wanted, but we did win important recognition," she told a reporter, citing a Big Four proposal that the charter foster human rights and freedoms "without discrimination against race, sex, condition or creed." There also are other guaranties of no discrimination because of sex, she added.

Mrs. Street, an energetic grandmother with a tinge of gray in her short, bobbed hair, long has been active in social work. She said she and others sought the equal-rights-for-women stipulation because "we have found too often in the past that there is discrimination unless there is a positive statement to the contrary."

Stassen Backing Willkie's 'One World'

San Francisco, May 12 (AP)—The American delegation came up to one of its major decisions of the United Nations conference today with the echo of Wendell L. Willkie's "One World" slogan ringing in its ears.

The apostle of internationalism in this case is Harold E. Stassen, commander in the Navy and former Republican Governor of Minnesota.

At issue in a closed meeting of the group is a decision about what to do to keep the American republics' Act of Chapultepec alive without turning the proposed world peace-keeping organization into simply a loosely bound series of regional alliances.

The issue is one which degelates consider of paramount importance. It poses the question: Are American republics willing, as a long-range proposition, to place their future security in the hands of a world organization? Or do they want to retain exclusively the decision on when and where to use force against threatened or actual aggression in the Western Hemisphere?

One World Slogan

Into these controversial discussions Stassen has brought again and again the "One World" slogan that Willkie used to sum up his views.

Stassen has told delegates, advisers, consultants and reporters that he will contest any settlement of the question likely to weaken the final authority of the league in keeping the peace in any corner of the world.

There are indications his views are shared to a great extent by his delegation colleagues, but Stassen has remained the vocal leader in pressing home this point.

Delegates apparently are near an agreement on a plan based on an amendment previously submitted by France which embodies the principle that nations bound by mutual-defense pacts have the right to act together against attack in an emergency. However, they would be required to make full reports to the world organization on the situation over which the league eventually would be expected to assume authority.

First Part Of Chapultepec

Such a solution would leave in effect the first part of the Act of Chapultepec. In this section the American republics agreed to act under their wartime powers for defense of any of their number who is threatened by aggression.

Left for future consideration would be a section the agreement under which the American republics proposed to bind themselves in the future by treaty for their mutual defense. Any such agreement, under the language of the Act of Chapultepec itself, would have to be in conformity with the new league's principles.

Filipinos Back Chinese Views On Trusteeship

Will Support Russian Plan to Make Independence Goal for All Colonies

By Margaret Parton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—The Philippine Commonwealth will support recent Chinese proposals regarding international trusteeships and will also stand with Russia on her suggestion that "independence" as well as "self-government" be declared an aim for all dependent peoples under the new trusteeship system of the international organization, Dr. Maximo M. Kalaw, vice chairman of the Philippine delegation, said here today.

Dr. Kalaw, who temporarily heads the delegation because of the illness of Brigadier General Carlos P. Romulo, said in an interview that although the delegates had not yet had time to study the Chinese proposals, which were presented Friday night to the committee on trusteeships by Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, their reaction was "highly favorable." He declined to comment on Soviet proposals aside from the one on independence.

The Philippines have recognized three principal positions on the trusteeship question, Dr. Kalaw said. The first is the original Russian proposal for eventual independence for all dependent peoples; the second is the United Kingdom proposal for placing all colonies on a trusteeship basis; the third is that all existing colonies of the United Nations be left as they are, and that the future trusteeship council deal only with dependencies taken from the enemy.

"Naturally," Dr. Kalaw asserted, "the Philippines being considered dependent, we would support the first proposal. But if this is not adopted—and there will certainly be opposition to its adoption—we are ready to support the English proposition for placing all dependencies on a trusteeship basis.

"We will do this on one condition: If the colonies are to be placed on a trusteeship basis with the object of preparing them for eventual self-government, we think the determination of when the trusteeship ends should be judged by an impartial committee, separate from the governing power."

As one of the earliest examples of trusteeships in action, Dr. Kalaw said, the Philippine commonwealth feels that she has a unique background on this question, and she stands ready, he reported, to submit her experience to the trusteeship committee or any other group.

"We have learned, for instance," he remarked, "that there are no fixed criteria for judging the capacity of any people for self-government. That is why we feel it is important the nation who is to judge this capacity should have no direct interest in the question."

CHETNIK LEADER TO HAVE A TRIAL

San Francisco, May 12 (A. P.).—Dr. Ivan Subasic, Yugoslav Foreign Minister, said today Draja Mihailovitch, Chetnik leader and former Yugoslav War Minister, would be tried for collaborating with the Germans and shot.

In answer to a question as to what would happen to the Serbian guerrilla leader, Subasic said:

"He will be shot."

Then the Foreign Minister added:

"He will be given a fair trial, but we have enough legal evidence now to convict him."

"EVERYBODY WOULD LIKE TO KNOW THE FACTS OF 1940," THE FORMER PREMIER SAID IN AN INTERVIEW, "AND I AM WILLING TO BRING THEM FORTH."

HE ASSERTED THE TRIAL WOULD BE VALUABLE BECAUSE PETAIN AND WEYGAND WERE HEROES OF THE FIRST WORLD WAR, AND MANY PEOPLE ARE LOYAL TO THEM.

"IN DEFEAT," REYNAUD ASSERTED, "I WAS SURROUNDED BY THE MEN WHO WANTED TO CAPITULATE--PETAIN, WEYGAND, ALL THE GENERALS AND MOST OF THE GOVERNMENT LEADERS."

HE SAID PRESIDENT ALBERT LEBRUN ASKED HIM TO REMAIN IN OFFICE DURING THE CAPITULATION, BUT THAT HE REFUSED.

"WHY DIDN'T THE GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE MOVE TO BRITAIN GOVERNMENTS OF HOLLAND AND BELGIUM," HE WAS ASKED.

MAY 13 1945

"I WANTED THAT," REYNAUD REPLIED, "BUT NO ONE ELSE DID. TWO ARGUMENTS WERE BROUGHT UP AGAINST MOVING THE GOVERNMENT TO BRITAIN. ONE WAS THE TOTAL LACK OF MILITARY PREPARATION THAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN ARRANGED BY WEYGAND. THE OTHER WAS THAT THE GOVERNMENT OF OUR COUNTRY COULD NOT HAVE BEEN RUN FROM OUTSIDE, AND ALL WE WOULD HAVE BEEN DOING WOULD HAVE BEEN SAVING THE MINISTERS' HEADS.

"TO THIS I GAVE IN ON JUNE 16 AND RESIGNED. THE NEXT DAY PETAIN ASKED FOR AN ARMISTICE.

"I WAS ARRESTED WITH MANDEL (GEORGE MANDEL, LATE MINISTER OF INTERIOR). WHEN THEY DELIVERED US TO THE GERMANS I MORALLY SLAPPED PETAIN'S FACE BY SAYING, 'WOULD YOU DELIVER YOUR FORMER CHIEF TO THE ENEMY?'"

REYNAUD SAID HE OFTEN TOLD HIS NAZI CAPTORS "YOU WON'T ONLY LOSE THE WAR, BUT YOU'LL BE CRUSHED."

HE SAID IN 1943 HE TOLD A GERMAN SS (ELITE GUARD) COLONEL WHO BOASTED THAT RUSSIA WAS "BEATEN":

"YOU MAY HAVE BIG VICTORIES IN RUSSIA BUT YOU WILL NEVER SURPASS THE URALS, AND EVEN IF YOU DID BEAT RUSSIA, DO YOU THINK THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA WOULD GET DOWN ON HER KNEES AND ASK FORGIVENESS OF YOU?"

OSLO, MAY 12-(AP)-OSLO POLICE PRESIDENT HENRIK MEYER DISCLOSED TONIGHT THAT NORWEGIAN PATRIOTS HAD KEPT CAREFUL RECORDS ON THE ACTS OF FOLLOWERS OF NAZI PUPPET PREMIER VIDKUN QUISLIN AND THAT WANTED PERSONS AMONG THE 40,000 MEMBERS OF THE QUISLING PARTY WOULD BE ROUNDED UP ONLY AS NEEDED.

MEYER SAID IN ADDITION TO QUISLING HIMSELF, 1,550 MEMBERS OF HIS NASJONAL SAMLING PARTY HAD BEEN ARRESTED IN THE OSLO DISTRICT SINCE THE GERMAN CAPITULATION BUT THE MASS OF EVIDENCE ACCUMULATED FOR USE AGAINST THEM WAS SO GREAT THE ORDINARY LEGAL PROCESSES COULD NOT HANDLE THE CASES IMMEDIATELY.

QUISLING'S CASE HAS BEEN POSTPONED, MEYER SAID, UNTIL A LEGAL GOVERNMENT RETURNS TO NORWAY. THE DELAY WAS TAKEN UNDER AN EXTRA-ORDINARY WARTIME ACT OF THE NORWEGIAN GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE THAT SUPERSEDED THE NORMAL 24-HOUR ARRAIGNMENT RULE. THE POLICE HEAD SAID QUISLING FOLLOWERS WHO HAD FLED TO SWEDEN WERE BEING HELD IN SPECIAL CAMPS AND WOULD BE RETURNED TO NORWAY FOR TRIAL AS FACILITIES PERMITTED.

QUISLING HIMSELF, ARRESTED TUESDAY, IS BEING HELD IN THE OSLO JAIL AS A COMMON PRISONER WITHOUT PRIVILEGES.

GERMAN TROOPS COMPLETED THE EVACUATION OF OSLO BEFORE THE DEADLINE LAST MIDNIGHT AND TODAY WERE IN DISARMAMENT CENTERS OUTSIDE THE CITY. THE ONLY UNIFORMED GERMANS STILL WITHIN THE CITY WERE NAVAL PERSONNEL ORDERED BY THE ALLIED CONTROL COMMISSION TO REMAIN WITH THEIR SHIPS UNTIL ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETED FOR DISPOSITION OF THE VESSELS.

THE LEATHERNECKS ALSO ENCOUNTERED A NUMBER OF DUMMY FIELD GUNS EVIDENTLY DESIGNED TO DRAW BOMBING ATTACKS.

SOUTH OF THE ASA RIVER, MARINE ENGINEERS REMOVED A NUMBER OF CLEVELY PLANTED MINES EXPLODABLE ONLY BY THE HEAVIEST VEHICLES. THE JAPANESE ALSO ARE DEPRESSING ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES FOR LOW LEVEL FIRE AGAINST TROOPS.

A REGIMENT OF THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN CONJUNCTION WITH 77TH DIVISION TROOPS STORMED AND CAPTURED THE CREST OF HILL 187 JUST SOUTH OF AWACAH VILLAGE. OTHER UNITS OF THE SAME REGIMENT CLEANED OUT THE SOUTHERN SLOPES. CAPTURE OF THE CREST FREED A 1,000 YARD STRETCH IN THAT AREA FROM HARASSING FIRE.

OFFICERS ESTIMATED MORE THAN 1,000 JAPANESE TROOPS IN THE HILL 187 AREA WERE KILLED OR SEALED IN CAVES.

ANOTHER REGIMENT OF THE SIXTH MARINE DIVISION--ONLY 600 YARDS FROM NAHA AT SOME POINTS--KNOCKED OUT MORE THAN 60 ENEMY MORTARS, TWO ARTILLERY BATTERIES AND OVER 80 LIGHT AND NINE HEAVY MACHINE GUNS.

ON THE LEFT FLANK (EAST COAST), THE 96TH DIVISION TOOK "CHARLIE" HILL AND STRENGTHENED POSITIONS ON GAJA RIDGE, BOTH ON THE APPROACHES TO AN IMPORTANT CONICAL HILL TO THE SOUTH.

THE BATTALION OF MAJ.JAMES H.STELL OF SHREVEPORT, LA., 1939 LOUISIANA STATE U. FOOTBALL ACE, MADE SOME GAINS. THESE TWO BATTALIONS ARE FIGHTING ALMOST DUE EAST OF SHURI, AN ENEMY DEFENSE CENTER.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: CROSSING OF THE ASA RIVER ESTUARY BY SIXTH MARINES GAVE THE LEATHERNECKS A COMMANDING POSITION FOR THE FINA DRIVE ON NAHA, OKINAWA'S CAPITAL. HERE IS THE FIRST EYEWITNESS OF THAT DARING MANEUVER).

BY 2ND LT.BEM (CORRECT) PRICE
(MAARINE COMBAT CORRESPONDENT FROM BIRMINGHAM,ALA., AND FORMERLY A MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF AT ATLANTA,GA., DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS).

ASA VILLAGE, OKINAWA,MAY 11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-MARINES OF THE SIXTH DIVISION ESTABLISHED A BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE ASA RIVER ESTUARY IN A BOLD PRE-DAWN MOVE AND THEN DIED BY SCORES IN THE STRUGGLE FOR CONTROL OF A VITAL ROLLING HILL OVERLOOKING THE CAPITAL CITY OF NAHA.

THEY FOUGHT AS ONLY VETERANS FIGHT. SOME RELAXED AND ATE OR READ WHILE AWAITING WORD TO MOVE OUT. SOME PUSHED FORWARD CAUTIOUSLY. OVERHEAD ALWAYS WAS THE RUMBLE OF FRIENDLY AND ENEMY ARTILLERY. SPORADIC JAPANESE MACHINE GUN FIRE CRACKLED ACROSS THE MEAGER PARAPET FORMED BY A TERRACED FIELD. TO THE RIGHT AND FRONT NAVY DIVEBOMBERS WORKED OVER THE CREST WITH MACHINEGUNS, ROCKETS AND BOMBS.

IN HIS HOLE TO THE RIGHT OF THE MAIN COASTAL ROAD THROUGH ASA, LT.COL.O. DONOHOO (CORRECT) OF LOS ANGELES, LOOKED UP WITH THE IMMOBILE FACE OF A MAN WHO WAS TERRIBLY TIRED AND UNDER TERRIFIC STRAIN. HE IS A BATTALION COMMANDER.

"THE SITUATION," HE SAID, "IS BAD. ONE COMPANY HAS HAD FOUR OFFICERS HIT. THEY ARE BEING HELD UP ON THE RIGHT BY HEAVY MACHINE-GUN FIRE, MORTARS AND ARTILLERY. ON THE LEFT IT IS A LITTLE EASIER. WE ARE GETTING HIT BUT WE ARE ACROSS AND WE ARE STAYING."

IN A SHELL CRATER NOT FIVE FEET AWAY MARINES WERE TALKING ABOUT THEIR DEAD AND WOUNDED. A WIREMAN STALKED AROUND THEIR HOLE AND NONCHALANTLY SPIKED HIS WAY UP A JAPANESE TELEPHONE POLE TO STRING COMMUNICATIONS LINE. HIS NAME WAS PFC.ANGELO PETRONI OF (443 W.

CAPT.JOHN LANIGAN OF (162 N.OAK ST.) LONDON,OHIO, ARRIVED WITH HIS COMPANY. A VETERAN OF THREE CAMPAIGNS AND 34 MONTHS OVERSEAS, HE DIDN'T BOTHER TO TAKE OCOVER. HE CALLED HIS PLATOON LEADERS OVER ONE BY ONE AND REVIEWES THEIR ASSIGNMENTS.

A PRIVATE WAS SITTING ON THE EDGE OF A MOUND. HE WAS A TALKER FOR TANKS -- A MAN WHO DIRECTS THE DRIVER FROM A TELEPHONE MOUNTED ON THE REAR. HE HAD JUST HOPPED OFF THE REAR OF HIS TANK TO RETRIEVE A PIECE OF GEAR WHEN THE VEHICLE LUMBERED ACROSS A LAND MINE. THE EXPLOSION SET THE TANK AFIRE.

"I COULD HEAR THEM INSIDE," HE SAID. "ALL THREE WERE BEATING AGAINST THE TOP WITH THEIR HANDS AND SCREAMING. THEY BURNED UP."

ACTUALLY THE BATTLE BEGAN THE NIGHT BEFORE.

AT 9 P.M. A PICKED GROUP OF ENGINEERS BEGAN CONSTRUCTION OF A FOOT BRIDGE. THEY COMPLETED THE JOB AT MIDNIGHT. THREE HOURS LATER, IN THE PITCH DARKNESS BEFORE DAWN, MARINES STARTED ACROSS.

TWO COMPANIES REACHED THE OPPOSITE SHORE BEFORE THE ENEMY WAS AWARE ANYTHING WAS AMISS. IN DESPERATION JAPANESE SENT A SUICIDE SQUAD TO DESTROY THE BRIDGE AGAIN. THEY SUCCEEDED BUT WERE KILLED. ENEMY MORTAR FIRE PROHIBITED RECONSTRUCTION BUT WITH DAYLIGHT THE REMAINDER OF THE BATTALION WAS ABLE TO PICK ITS WAY ACROSS TWISTED GIRDERS, SPLINTERED WOOD AND THE BODIES OF DEAD JAPANESE.

FOR MAJ.GEN.LEMUEL C.SHEPHERD'S SIXTH DIVISION THE LEATHERNECK CROSSING OF THE ESTUARY MARKED THE BEGINNING OF THE END OF JAPANESE ON OKINAWA. TERRIFIC FIGHTING LIES AHEAD BUT AT LAST ONE OF THE MAIN DEFENSE LINES HAS BEEN BREACHED.

MANILA, MAY 12-(AP)-THE THIRTY-THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION, FORMERLY ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARDSMEN, IS THE "MONEY OUTFIT" OF LUZON.

EARLY IN THE CAMPAIGN AN ACCIDENTAL ARTILLERY HIT UNCOVERED SIX TONS OF SILVER COINS BURIED IN PREWAR DAYS BY THE FILIPINOS.

RECENTLY THE THIRTY-THIRD PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE IN LIBERATING AREAS WHICH CONTAINED DOZENS OF GOLD MINES.

THE THIRTY-SEVENTH DIVISION ALSO FIGURED PROMINENTLY IN THESE ACTIONS.

MINES IN THE BAGUIO AREA OF NORTHERN LUZON INCLUDED THE BENGUET CONSOLIDATED, AND THE BALATOC WITH ITS FAMOUS BAR LODE. THEY PRODUCED HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF PESOS WORTH OF GOLD ANNUALLY BEFORE THE WAR. THE JAPANESE MADE NO EFFORT TO OPERATE THESE MINES FOR PRECIOUS METALS, AND CONCENTRATED ONLY ON PRODUCTION OF COPPER AND CHROMIUM.

MEN OF THE THIRTY-THIRD ALSO RECAPTURED LEPANTO CONSOLIDATED, THE ONLY MINE PRODUCING COPPER SOLELY. FROM LEPANTO 2,000 TONS OF COPPER A MONTH WERE SHIPPED TO THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN BEFORE PEARL HARBOR.

ANOTHER LIBERATED MINE WAS THE FLORANNIE WHICH PRODUCE GREAT QUANTITIES OF CHROMIUM.

MOST MINE MACHINERY WAS DESTROYED BY ARTILLERY WHEN THE JAPANESE TOOK REFUGE IN TUNNELS. SUBSEQUENTLY MANY OTHER ENEMY TROOPS WERE SEALED INSIDE THEIR REFUGES WHEN YANKS WALLED OFF TUNNELS WITH DEMOLITION CHARGES.

GOLD MINING IN THE BENGUET AREA OF NORTHERN LUZON DATES BACK TO THE EARLY DAYS WHEN IGOROT TRIBESMEN USED NUGGETS AS BODY ORNAMENTS AND TO MAKE GOLDEN BOWLS FOR THEIR PIPES.

OF THE LATE PRESIDENT, MARSHAL SMUTS TOLD THE ASSEMBLY OF DELEGATES:

"NO MOMENT IS GREATER OR MORE FITTING FOR THE PASSING OF THE HERO THAN THE HOUR OF VICTORY. SUCH WAS ROOSEVELT'S GOING, FROM THE PERSONAL POINT OF VIEW--THE INTOLERABLE BURDEN DROPPED WHEN THE GREAT TASK WAS DONE. THERE WAS THE ADDED GLORY OF THE GREAT LEADER KILLED BY THE HERCULEAN JOB HE HAD DONE---FOR SUCH, INDEED, WAS ROOSEVELT'S FATE."

THE FOREIGN MINISTER OF BRAZIL, PEDRO LEAO VELLOSO, WHO SUGGESTED THE TRIBUTE, TOLD THE GATHERING OF UNITED NATIONS DELEGATES THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAD POSSESSED "EXCEPTIONAL INTELLIGENCE, BUT HE WAS, ABOVE ALL, A MAN OF HEART AND A MAN OF FAITH. THERE WAS A DIVINE SPARK IN THE BRILLIANCE OF HIS SPIRIT, AND WE MUST INSPIRE OURSELVES IN THE LESSON OF HIS LIFE SO THAT WE MAY CRUSH THE REMAINING ENEMIES IN THE FAR EAST AND CONTRIBUTE THAT WHICH IS ASKED FOR US FOR THE HAPPINESS OF MANKIND."

(150) COURT
BY SIGRID ARNE

MAY 13 1945

SAN FRANCISCO, MAY 12-(AP)-THE NEW WORLD COURT SEEMED HEADED TODAY FOR A PROGRAM WHICH WILL BIND MEMBERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS TO ACCEPT ITS DECISIONS WITHIN A LIMITED FIELD.

THE SUBJECT HAS BEEN ONE OF THE THORNIEST DEBATED HERE. THERE IS GENERAL ACCEPTANCE THAT A COURT, WITHOUT POWER, IS OF NO USE. BUT THERE IS CONCERN, PARTICULARLY AMONG THE BIG POWERS, LEST THE COURT GAIN AUTHORITY TO DICTATE PURELY NATIONAL POLICY.

THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE CONSIDERING THE QUESTION NOW HAS BEFORE IT A PROPOSAL THAT NATIONS WHICH SIGN THE WORLD CHARTER WOULD AGREE TO ACCEPT COURT DECISIONS IN FOUR FIELDS:

1. IN INTERPRETATIONS OF INTERNATIONAL TREATIES.
2. IN ANY DISPUTE FOR WHICH INTERNATIONAL LAW NOW EXISTS.
3. WHERE THE COURT CAN ESTABLISH THAT A NATION HAS VIOLATED AN INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATION.
4. THE NATURE AND EXTENT OF REPARATION WHICH A NATION MUST MAKE TO MEET A VIOLATION.

BUT THE MANNER IN WHICH THE NATIONS WOULD SO BIND THEMSELVES IS CAUGHT IN ARGUMENT. SOME WANT PARTICIPATING NATIONS TO BE COMMITTED AUTOMATICALLY, OTHERS WANT ACCEPTANCE OF DECISIONS ONLY WITH ADVANCE NOTICE OF COMPLIANCE AND SOME WANT TO SPECIFY THOSE FIELDS IN WHICH THEY WILL OR WILL NOT BE BOUND.

ECONOMIC COUNCIL (270)

BY SIGRID ARNE

SAN FRANCISCO, MAY 12-(AP)-CANADIAN PROPOSALS TO OBLIGATE THE UNITED NATIONS TO TAKE DEF

CTION ON THE WORLD'S ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL ILLS TODAY PRESENTED ANOTHER BIG-VERSUS-LITTLE NATION CONTEST AT THE UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE.

CANADA PROPOSES THAT EACH UNITED NATION "AGREE TO CO-OPERATE FULLY WITH EACH OTHER....TO ATTAIN HIGHER LIVING STANDARDS AND ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PROGRESS."

THE WORD "AGREE" IS INTERPRTED TO MEAN THAT NATIONS WHICH JOIN THE ORGANIZATION OBLIGATE THEMSELVES TO SEEK DEFINITE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL IMPROVEMENTS.

NO REACTION HAS BEEN RECEIVED YET FROM THE BIG FIVE POWERS IN THE COMMITTEE WHERE CANADA IS TAKING THE DISCUSSION LEAD. BUT THE BIG FOUR DRAFT OF PROPOSALS FOR AN ECONOMIC COUNCIL WROTE A SECTION WHICH GAVE THE ECONOMIC COUNCIL VIRTUALLY NO POWER, AND WHICH WAS IMMEDIATELY CRITICIZED BY THE MIDDLE POWERS AS "TOO VAGUE."

THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION DISCUSSED THE CANADIAN AND OTHER MIDDLE-POWER AMENDMENTS ON ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL MATTERS TODAY, BUT REACHED NO DECISION.

CANADA ALSO RECOMMENDS THAT MEMBER NATIONS REPORT BACK TO THE ECONOMIC COUNCIL WHAT THEY'VE DONE TO MAKE GOOD ON WHATEVER ACTIONS THE COUNCIL RULES NEEDED TO PREVENT WARS WHICH MIGHT ARISE FROM PURELY ECONOMIC OR SOCIAL REASONS.

THIS LAST PROPOSAL IS EXPECTED TO CAUSE THE MOST HEATED DEBATE, PARTICULARLY SINCE RUSSIA HAS OPPOSED ANY ACTION WHICH WOULD BIND HER TO REPORT TO A WORLD BODY.

THE BIG FOUR MADE NO MENTION OF WHEN THE ECONOMIC COUNCIL SHOULD MEET. BOTH CANADA AND AUSTRALIA WANT IT PERMANENTLY REPRESENTED AT THE WORLD ORGANIZATION'S HEADQUARTERS.

FURTHER CANADIAN AND AUSTRALIAN PROPOSALS WOULD MAKE THE ECONOMIC COUNCIL MORE INDEPENDENT OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY THAN FIRST PROPOSED.

500 Superforts Hit Nagoya; Marines Closing in on Naha; Reds Free Czechoslovakia

LARGEST FLEET OF B-29S BATTER MUNITION CENTER

Liddley

More Than 3,500 Tons of Fire Bombs Rain on City In Daylight Attack.

GAIN ON OKINAWA

MAY 14 1945

Marines Approach Asato River, Last Water Barrier to Island Capital.

GUAM, Monday, May 14—(AP) A giant fleet of more than 500 Superfortresses dumped 3,500 tons of fire bombs in daylight today on the teeming industrial section of Nagoya, Japan's third largest city, in the largest B-29 raid of the war.

Twice before Nagoya, with a population of about 1,500,00, has been subjected to Superfortress fire attacks. A spokesman for the 21st Bomber Command expressed the hope that today's attack will prove a devastating blow to war industry there.

NIGHT

Results were not immediately known here.

Five great circles in the northern section of the Honshu island city were designated as target areas. these included the Chigusa factory of the Nagoya arsenal, producing heavy ordnance and ammunition components, a large electrical plant, leading machine tool firms and plants producing aircraft and munitions.

In addition the designated targets included thousands of home factories turning out electrical parts and various instruments.

The spokesman said fewer large factories are in the area than were the target for previous Superfort missions.

Other Blows fro mAir

The raid came as Japan's Tokyo radio reported 900 carrier-based planes and 20 or so Superfortresses hammered Kyushu, the southernmost Japanese mainland island in 14 coordinated waves from 5:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. yesterday (Sunday), Japanese time.

In addition, Tokyo said, two Liberator bombers carried out a low-level bombing of Miye prefecture, south of Kobe on Honshu, at noon today.

The last B-29 raid on Nagoya was March 30 when a small force of Superforts hit the Mitsubishi engine plant against light opposition. On March 18 and 19 Superforts destroyed three square miles of Nagoya.

Today's mission had a target area of nine square miles in north Nagoya, bordered on the south by the burned out Nagoya castle area and on the north by a horse-shoe bend of the Yata river. It includes railroad stations.

Nagoya's heavier industries were smashed in earlier raids, which burned out five and four-tenths square miles of the city.

Most of Nagoya's construction is more modern than most large Japanese cities, but nonetheless more than 90 per cent of the buildings are of typical flimsy frame and plaster.

At Medium Altitude

The bombers went in at medium altitude, attacking in a column of squadrons of 11 planes each.

The great ships, based in the Marianas islands, gathered close off the Japanese coast, showing American contempt for the quality of fighter opposition.

On the basis of 11-man crews manning the B-29s, more than 5,500 American airmen participated in this mightiest aerial strike ever levelled against Nippon.

The target areas designated for fire bombs were among the densely populated in Nagoya, with 22,000 to 75,000 residents per square mile. Spokesmen said Japan could not avoid heavy casualties.

So huge was the B-29 force that the first Superfort was an hour and a half flying time enroute home from Japan by the time the last one started from the Marianas bases.

Yanks Reach Capital In Okinawa Battle

MAY 14 1945

Marines Brave Artillery, Mortar Fire—Must Cross Asato River To Complete Naha's Conquest—City In Flames.

By Al Dopking

GUAM, Monday May 14 (AP)—U. S. Marines, amid intense artillery and mortar fire, reached the edge of Naha's business district yesterday but still had to cross the Asato river before conquest of the bomb-wrecked Okinawa capital can be claimed.

Japs Fight Fanatically

The Japanese in the northern section of the city fought fanatically to keep the tank-led Leathernecks from crossing that last last water barrier.

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland described Naha as "a skeleton city" after weeks of intense bombardment from naval guns, artillery and aircraft. Only a few broken walls remained standing in the city of 66,000 population.

DAY

Naha's streets were extensively mined and booby-trapped.

U. S. infantrymen and Marines gained up to 600 yards along the bitterly-held southern Okinawa battlefront yesterday during bloody fighting in which a Japanese counterattack was repulsed and seaborne landings behind Yank lines broken up.

Near the center of the line the 383rd Regiment of the 96th Division moved up Conical Hill, a key position before the towns of Shuri and Yonabaru.

Marines Take Ground

Immediately to the west the First Marine Division took high ground protecting Shuri after beating off a counterattack in which 100 Japanese were killed.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique today reported only slight changes in the western sector, where the Sixth Marine Division is bearing hard upon Naha, Okinawa's capital city.

In this area, however, the enemy attempted an amphibious landing behind the Yank lines in the Machinato airfield sector. This was broken up with a number of enemy boats destroyed by ships' and shore gunfire.

The Marines evidently still were about 500 yards from Naha, with a river barrier in-between.

Nimitz reported the Yanks were "under heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire, and progress was difficult."

Infantry Moves Ahead

In general, the infantrymen holding down the eastern half of the Okinawa front moved ahead 300 yards on their right flank and 600 on their left. The 77th Infantry Division, meeting exceptionally strong resistance, took high ground northeast of Shuri, Okinawa's second city.

The 383rd infantry regiment, meantime, approached the summit of important Conical Hill, which forms a protective barrier for both Shuri and nearby Yonabaru town.

Japanese planes again appeared in the Okinawa area yesterday morning but caused no damage, Nimitz reported.

Meanwhile American naval planes again penetrated Korean waters, heavily damaging a cargo ship and a small oiler.

Japanese forces on soouthern Okinawa are suffering heavy casualties but are still resisting desperately and using artillery against flame-spewing American tanks, front line dispatches reported Sunday.

Fight Into Suburbs

Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd's Sixth Marine division Saturday fought into the shattered suburbs of Naha, Okinawa's capital city. The leathernecks had 500 yards to go and a river to cross before they could enter the city.

The furious ground fighting was matched in the skies over Okinawa and other Ryukyu islands. The Japanese lost 125 planes Friday to American carrier and land-based aircraft, and ship and shore gunfire.

Nipponese bombs and suicide pilots damaged one heavy American fleet unit and several smaller craft, U. S. headquarters reported.

Naha, which had a population of 66,000 before the American April 1 invasion of Okinawa, will be the largest Japanese city to fall into Yank hands.

Capture Slowed

The capture of the city itself was slowed by the necessity of taking hills overlooking it, said Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent. But the approach to the suburbs was over flat land, enabling the Yanks to use tanks in a rapid 1000-yard advance.

In the center of the front the 77th Army Division was held up by Japanese strongly entrenched on a 100-foot mound of reddish clay called the "Chocolate Drop."

On the eastern flank the 96th Infantry Division cleaned up Amuru and Todaru villages, which on pre-invasion maps showed as a single village called Kibara, Haugland said.

One American destroyer won mention in Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique for shooting down 19 of the attacking Japanese planes Friday. The destroyer's officers said they believed their guns had set a record for enemy aircraft knocked down in one action by a war vessel that size.

Another destroyer claimed its ack-ack batteries blew 15 Nipponese planes from the skies during the hot eight-hour battle.

Fast U. S Carrier Force planes made low-level attacks on airfields and shipping in the Amami group, northern Ryukyus, destroying four grounded planes.

Nailing down a flanking island, units of Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner's Tenth Army, without oppostion, occupied Tori Shima, 55 miles west of Okinawa, Saturday. Tori is less than a mile long.

Two hundred miles east of embattled Okinawa, a light bombardment task force of cruisers and destroyers, with a carrier plane umbrella, smashed installations on Minami Daito Thursday.

4 SOVIET ARMIES ROUT REMAINING GERMAN TROOPS

Die-Hard Germans Also Give Up Fighting in Austrian Alpine Regions.

MILLION PRISONERS

WHEELER

Russians Claim Over 12 Million of Foe Killed or Captured in War.

LONDON, Monday, May 14.—(AP) Four Russian armies liberated the remainder of Czechoslovakia and Austria from the last main bodies of Nazi die-hards yesterday—five days after fanatical German troops violated Germany's surrender and fought on against the Red army, Moscow disclosed.

Some minor scattered and inconsequential forces possibly remained, but Moscow's communique last night announced surrender of 360,000 Nazi troops on all sectors during the previous 24 hours and said the First, Second, Third and Fourth Ukrainian armies had closed in on German holdout positions in the woods of Czechoslovakia and Austria's high Alpine regions and "were clearing the occupied area of isolated German troop groupings."

The enemy forces under command of Field Marshal Gen Ferdinand Schoerner and Col. Gen. Otto Woehler had resisted Germany's unconditional surrender since Tuesday. Schoerner himself has been named a war criminal by the Russians.

Generals Still at Large

Neither Schoerner nor Woehler was reported among the generals seized and the rebellious leaders presumably were still at large in the wild hill country of Bohemia.

While the last remnants of Germany's "Middle Army group" were rounded up from the forests and mountains of Bohemia and Northern Austria, Moscow announced that the total number of prisoners taken since Tuesday had swelled to 1,060,000. Ninety-one German generals were taken in the same period.

The gigantic bag boosted to 2,860,000 the number of German troops killed or captured since the Red army's end-the-war offensive began Jan. 12.

In nearly four years of war, the Russians have announced killing or capture of more than 12,600,000 Nazi troops.

Among those surrendering to Marshal Rodin Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army in Bohemia after a fruitless five-day attempt at a post-surrender war was the commander of the Third SS "Death's Head" tank division, a Maj. Gen. Backer.

Nazis Being Rounded Up

Moscow dispatches indicated that a few scattered Nazi units still were hiding out in Czechoslovakia's forests, but these rapidly were being corralled into prisoner camps to join the thousands of German troops being shipped across Poland to the Soviet Union where they will be put to work restoring Russia's war-ravaged cities.

Malinovsky's army and the troops of Gen. Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army; Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's Fourth Ukrainian group and Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian outfit took a huge quantity of war equipment in the last day's roundup in Czechoslovakia and Austria, Moscow said.

1,258 Planes Seized

The massive haul reportedly by the surrendering Germans included 1,258 planes, 1,842 tanks and 6,618 field guns.

Elsewhere on the Eastern front the Russians still were herding into concentration areas huge numbers of Nazi troops. In Latvia, more than 181,032 enemy troops were taken prisoner yesterday, while along the Baltic coats in the area of the ports of Danzig and Gdynia, another 74,939 were captured.

Several hundred thousand members of the German Wehrmacht were reported in Moscow dispatches to be still hiding out in numerous forests in the territory of eastern Germany overrun by Russian armies in their final victory surge across the Reich.

Dispatches said the last German remnants were using every trick to avoid being taken prisoner by the Red army. Thousands of German soldiers, including high-ranking officers, were abandoning their uniforms and donning civilian clothes in attempts to escape the Red army round-up.

Text of Churchill's Speech To Commons Yesterday

LONDON, May 13 (AP)—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's address tonight:

It was five years ago on Thursday last that His Majesty the King commissioned me to form a national government of all parties to carry on our affairs.

Five years is a long time in human life, especially when there is no remission for good conduct. However, this national government was sustained by Parliament and by the entire British nation at home and all our fighting men abroad, and by the unswerving cooperation of the Dominions far across the oceans and of our empire in every quarter of the globe. It became clear last week that so far things had worked out pretty well and that the British commonwealth and empire stand more united and more effectively powerful than at any time in its long romantic history. Certainly we are in a far better state to cope with the problems and perils of the future than we were five years ago.

Enemy Overran Europe

For a while our prime enemy, our mighty enemy, eGrmany, overran almost all of Europe. France, who bore such a frightful strain in the last gerat war, was beaten to the ground and took some time to recover. The Low Countries, fighting to the best of their strength, were subjugated. Norway was overrun. Mussolini's Italy stabbed us in the back when we were, as he thought, at our last gasp. But for ourselves, our lot I mean, the British Commonwealth and Empire, were absolutely alone.

In July, August and September, 1940, 40 or 50 squadrons of British fighter aircraft in the battle of Britain broke the teeth of the German Air fleet at odds of 8 to 1. May I repeat again the words I used at that momentous hour? "Never before in the history of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

The name of Air Chief Marshal Lord Dowding will ever be linked with this splendid event. But conjoined with the Royal Air Force lay the Royal Navy, ever ready to tear to pieces the barges, gathered from the canals of Holland and Belgium, in which a German invading Army could alone have been transported. I was never one to believe that the invasion of Britain with the tackle that the enemy had at that time was a very easy task to accomplish. With the Autumn storms, the immediate danger of invasion in 1940 had passed.

Then began the blitz. When Hitler said he would rub out our cities—that's what he said, rub out our cities. This was borne without a word of complaint or the slightest signs of flinching, while a very large number of people—honor to them all — proved that London could take it and so could our other ravaged centers.

But the dawn of 1941 revealed us still in jeopardy. The hostile aircraft could fly across the approaches to our island, where 46 millions of people had to import half their daily bread, and all that was needed for peace or war, these hostile aircraft could fly over the approaches from Brest to Norway in a single flight or back again, observing all the movements of our shipping in and out of the Clyde and Mersey and could direct upon our convoys the large and increasing numbers of U-boats with which the enemy bespattered the Atlantic—the survivors or successors of which U-boats are now being collected in British harbors. The sense of envelopment, which might at any moment turn to strangulation, lay heavy upon us. We had only the northwestern approach between Ulster and Scotland through which to bring in the means of life and to send out the forces of war.

Irish Prove Valor

Owing to the action of Mr. De Valera, so much at variance with the temper and instinct of thousands of southern Irishmen, who hastened to the battlefront to prove their ancient valor, the approaches which the southern Irish ports and airfields could so easily have guarded were closed by the hostile aircraft and U-boats. This was indeed a deadly moment in our life, and if it had not been for the loyalty and friendship of northern Ireland, we should have been forced to come to close quarters with Mr. De Valera or perish forever from the earth.

However, with a restraint and poise to which I say history will find few parallels, his majesty's government never laid a violent hand upon them, which at times would have been quite easy and quite natural, and we left the De Valera government to frolic with the German and later with the Japanese representatives to their hearts' content.

Yhen I think of these days I think also of other episodes and personalities. I think of Lieut. Commander Esmonde, VC., DSO., Lance Corporal Keneally, VC., Captain Fegen, VC., and a score of other Irish heroes that I could easily recite, and I must confess that the bitterness by Britain for the Irish race dies in my heart. I can only pray that in years which I shall not see, the same will be forgotten and the glories will endure, and that the peoples of the British Isles as of the British commonwealth of nations will walk together in mutual comprehension and forgiveness.

My friends, when our minds turn to the northwestern approaches, we will not forget the devotion of our merchant seamen and our minesweepers out every night and so rarely mentioned in the headlines, nor will we forget the vast inventive, adaptive, all embraccing, and in the end all controlling power of the Royal Navy with its ever more potent new ally, the air—these have kept the lifeline open. We were able to breathe, we were able to live, we were able to strike. Dire deeds we had to do. We had to destroy or capture the French fleet which, had it ever passed undamaged into German hands, together with the Italian fleet, would perhaps have enabled the German navy to face us on the high seas. This we did.

The dispatch to General Wavell all round the Cape at our darkest hour of tanks—practically all we had in the island—and this enabled us as far back as November 1940 to defend Egypt against invasion and hurl back with the loss of a quarter of a million captives and a heavy slaughter the Italian armies at whose tail Mussolini had already planned a ride into Cairo or Alexandria.

Great anxiety was felt by President Roosevelt, and indeed by thinking men throughout the United States, about what would happen to us in the early part of 1941. The president felt to the depth of his being that the destruction of Britain would not only be an event fearful in itself, but that it would expose to mortal danger the vast and as yet largely unarmed potentialities and future destiny of the United States.

Feared Spring Invasion

He feared greatly that we should be invaded in that spring of 1941—no doubt he had behind him military minds as good as any in the world—and he sent his recent presidential opponent, the late Mr. Wendell Willkie, to me with a letter in which he had written in his own hand the famous lines of Longfellow, which I quoted in the House of Commons the other day—

"Sail on, O ship of state—Sail on, O union strong and great.

"Humanity with all its fears, with all the hopes of future years, is hanging breathless on thy fate."

We were, however, in a fairly tough condition by the eary part of 1941, and felt very much better about ourselves than in the months immediately after the collapse of France. Our Dunkerque army and field force troops in Britain, almost a million strong, were nearly all equipped or reequipped. We had ferried over the Atlantic a million rifles and a thousand cannon from the United States, with all their ammunition, since the previous June. In our munition works, which were becoming very powerful, men and women had worked at their machines till they dropped senseless from fatigue. Nearly 1,000,000 of men, growing to 2,000,000 at the peak, although working all day had been formed into the home guard. They were armed at least with rifles. They were armed also with the spirit "conquer or die."

Later in 1941, when we were still all alone, we sacrificed unwillingly and to some extent unwittingly our conquests of the winter in Cyrenaica and Libya in order to stand by Greece, and Greece will never forget how much we gave, albeit unavailingly, of the little we had. We did this for honor. We repressed the German-instigated rising in Iraq, we defended Palestine. With the assistance of General De Gaulle's indomitable Free French we cleared Syria and the Lebanon of Vichyites and of German alienators and intriguers. And then in June 1941 another tremendous world event occurred.

You have no doubt noticed in your reading of British history, and I hope you will take pains to read it, for it is only from the past that one can judge the future, and it is only from reading the story of the British nation, of the British empire, that you can feel a well-grounded sense of pride to dwell in these islands, you have sometimes noticed that in your reading of British history that we have had sometimes to hold out all alone from time to time, or to be the mainspring of coalitions against a continental tyrant or dictator and we have had to hold out for quite a long time against the Spanish Armada, against the might of Louis XIV, when we led Europe for nearly 25 years under William III and Marlborough, and 150 years ago when Nelson, Pitt and Wellington broke Napoleon, not without assistance from the heroic Russians of 1812. In all these world wars, our island kept the lead of Europe or else held out alone.

Mistake Will Come

And if you hold out alone, there always comes a time when the tyrant makes some ghastly mistake which alters the whole balance of the struggle. On June 22, 1941, Hitler, master as he thought himself of all Europe, nay indeed soon to be master of the world, as he thought, treacherously, without warning, without the slightest provocation, hurled himself on Russia and came face to face with Marshal Stalin and the numberless millions of the Russian people. And then at the end of the year Japan struck her felon blow at the United States at Pearl Harbor, and at the same time attacked us in Malaya and Singapore. Thereupon Hitler and Mussolini declared war on the Republic of the United States.

Years have passed since then, indeed every year sems to me almost a decade. But never since the United States entered the war have I had the slightest doubt but that we should be saved and that we only had to do our duty in order to win. We have played our part in all this proces by which the evildoers have been overthrown. I advise you not to speak vain or boastful words. But from Alamein in October 1942, through the Anglo-American invasion of North Africa, of Sicily, of Italy, with the capture of Rome, we marched many miles and never knew defeat.

And then last year, after two years of patient preparation and marvelous devices of amphibious warfare—and mind you our scientists are not surpassed by any nation in the world, especially when their thought is appliied to naval matters—last year on June 6, we seized a carefully-selected little toe of German-occupied France and poured millions in from this island and from across the Atlantic until the Seine, the Somme and the Rhine all fell behind the advancing Anglo-American spearheads.

France was liberated. She produced a fine army of gallant men to aid her own liberation.

Germany lay open. And now from the other side, the mighty military achievements of the Russian people, always holding many more Germans on their front than we could do, rolled forward to meet us in the heart and center of Germany. At the same time, in Italy Field Marshal Alexander's Army of so many nations, the largest part of which was British or British empire, struck their final blow and compelled more than a million enemy troops to surrender. This 15th Army group, as we call it—British and Americans joined together in almost equal number—are now deep in Austria joining their right hand with the Russians and their left with the United States Armies of Gen. Eisenhower.

It happened that in the space of three days he received the news of the unlamented departure of Mussolini and Hitler. And in three days also surrender was made to Field Marshal Alexander and Field Marshal Montgomery of over 2,500,000 soldiers of this terrible warlike German Army.

United States Power

I shall make it clear at this moment that we have never failed to recognize the immense superiority of the power used by the United States in the rescue of France and the defeat of Germany.

For our part—Britain and Canada—have had in action about one-third of the men as the Americans, but we have taken our full share of the fighting as the scale of our losses shows. Our Navy has borne incomparably the heavier burden in the Atlantic ocean, in the narrow seas and Arctic convoys to Russia, while the United States Navy has used its massive strength mainly against Japan.

It is right and natural that we should extol the virtues and glorious services of our own most famous commanders, Alexander and Montgomery, neither of whom was ever defeated since they began togther at Alamein, both of whom have conducted in Africa, in Italy in Normandy and in Germany, battles of the first magnitude and of decisive consequences. At the same time we know how great is our debt to the combining and unifying command and high strategic direction of General Eisenhower.

Here is the moment when I must pay my personal tribute to the British chief of the staff with whom I have worked in the closest intimacy throughout these hard years. There have been very few changes in this powerful and capable body of men who, sinking all service differences and judging the problem of the war as a whole, have worked together in the closest harmony with each other. In Field Marshal Brooke, Admiral Pound, Admiral Andrew Cunningham and Marshal of the Air Portal, a power was formed who deserved the highest honor in the direction of the whole British war strategy and its agreement with that of our Allies.

It may well be said that never have the forces of two nations fought side by side and intermingled in the line of battle with so much unity, comradeship and brotherhood as in the great Anglo-American army.

Some people say "well, what would you expect if both these nations speak the same language, have the same laws, have a great part of their history in common, and have very much the same outlook upon life with all its hope and glory? Isn't it just the sort of thing that would happen?"

Others may say "it would be an ill day for all the world and for the pair of them if they did not go on working together wherever there is something to be done for freedom and fair play all over the world. That is the greatness of the people."

One Final Danger

There was one final danger from which the collapse of Germany has saved us. London and the southern counties have suffered for a year from various forms of flying bombs and rockets and our air force and our ack-ack batteries have done wonders against them. In particular the air force, turned on in good time on what then seemed very slight and doubtful evidence, hampered and vastly delayed all German preparations. But it was only when our armies cleaned up the coast and overran all the points of discharge, and when the Americans captured vast stores of rockets of all kinds near Leipzig, and when all the preparations being made on the coasts of France and Holland could be examined in detail, in scientific detail, that we knew how grave had been the peril, not only from rockets and flying bombs but from multiple long-range artillery, which was being prepared against London.

Only just in time did the Allied armies blast the viper in his nest. Otherwise the autumn of 1944—to say nothing of 1945—might well have seen London as shattered as Berlin. For the same period the Germans had prepared a new U-boat fleet and novel tactics which, though we should have eventually destroyed them, might well have carried anti-U-boat warfare back to the high peak days of 1942. Therefore we must rejoice and give thanks not only for our perservation when we were all alone but for our timely deliverance from new suffering from new perils not easily to be measured.

I wish I could tell you tonight that all our toils and troubles were over. Then indeed I could end my five years service happily, and if you thought you had had enough of me and that I ought to be put out to grass, I assure you I would take it with the best of grace. But on the contrary, I must warn you, as I did when I began this five years task—and no one knew then that it would last so long—that there is still a lot to do and that you must be prepared for further efforts of mind and body and further sacrifices to great causes if you are not to fall back into the ruts of inertia, the confusion of aim and the craven fear of being great.

You must not weaken in any way in your alert and vigilant frame of mind, and although a holiday or rejoicing is necessary to the human spirit, yet it must add to the strength and resilience with which every man and woman turns again to the work they have to do and also to the outlook and watch they have to keep on public affairs.

On the continent of Europe we have yet to make sure that the simple and honorable purposes for which we entered the war are not brushed aside or overlooked in the months following our success, and that the words freedom, democracy and liberation are not distorted from their true meaning as we have understood them.

Justice Must Rule

There would be little use in punishing the Hitlerites for their crimes if law and justice did not rule and if totalitarian or police governments were to take the place of the German invaders. We seek nothing for ourselves. But we must make sure that those causes which we fought for find recognition at the peace table in fact as well as word, and above all we must labor that the world organization which the United Nations are creating at San Francisco does not become an idle name, does not become a shield for the strong and a mockery for the weak. It is the victors who must search their hearts in their glowing hours and be worthy by their nobility of the immense forces that they wield.

We must never forget that beyond all lurks Japan, harassed and failing, but still a people of a hundred millions, for whose warriors death has few terrors. I cannot tell you tonight how much time or what exertions will be required to compel the Japanese to make amends for their odious treachery and cruelty.

We—like China so long undaunted—we have received horrible injuries from them ourselves, and we are bound by the ties of honor and fraternal loyalty to the United States to fight this great war at the other end of the world at their side without flagging or failing. We must remember that Australia, New Zealand and Canada, were and are all directly menaced by this evil power. They came to our aid in our dark times, and we must not leave unfinished any task which concerns their safety and their future. I told you hard things at the beginning of these last five years. You did not shrink, and I should be unworthy of your confidence and generosity if I did not still cry—forward, unflinching, unswerving, indomitable, till the whole task is done and the whole world is safe and clean.

CHURCHILL HITS DE VALERA STAND IN WAR WITH AXIS

Says Friendship of Northern Ireland Saved British from Disaster.

PRAISES U. S. HELP

Prime Minister Pledges Empire Will Help Crush Japs, Establish Peace.

LONDON, May 13 — (AP) Prime Minister Churchill tonight called for action to make certain that the United Nations world organization "does not become an idle name," and placed Great Britain shoulder to shoulder with the United States in the war against Japan.

Britain's war leader at the same time castigated the Irish government of Eamon De Valera for its failure to aid Britain while Germany was attacking her. He said Britain would have been forced to come to close quarters with neutral Eire during the 1941 blockade, except for the friendship of northern Ireland.

Churchill's 35-minute address to the empire, broadcast worldwide, lauded "the immense superiority of the power used by the United States" in the defeat of Germany and paid tribute to Gen. Eisenhower's leadership.

But he warned the British Empire:

"You must not weaken in any way.

"On the continent of Europe we have yet to make sure that the simple and honorable purposes for which we entered the war are not brushed aside or overlooked in the months following our success, and that the words freedom, democracy and liberation are not distorted from their true meaning as we have understood them.

"There would be little use in punishing the Hitlerites for their crimes if law and justice did not rule and if totalitarian or police governments were to take the place of the German invaders.

"We seek nothing for ourselves. But we must make sure that those causes which we fought for find recognition at the peace table in facts as well as words, and above all we must labor that the world organization which the United Nations are creating at San Francisco does not become an idle name, does not become a shield for the strong and a mockery for the weak,

"It is the victors who must search their hearts in their glowing hours and be worthy by their nobility of the immense forces that they wield."

Work Not Complete

Churchill made no direct reference to an election to end Britain's wartime coalition government but indicated he felt his work had not been completed. He said, however, he would step down "with the best of grace" if the people thought they had had enough of him.

He said "we have received horrible injuries" from the Japanese and "we are bound by the ties of honor and fraternal loyalty to the United States to fight this great war at the other end of the world at their side without flagging or failing."

Reviewing his five years as Prime Minister and head of the war cabinet, Churchill said that during the dark days of 1941 when they German blockade was so effective, the only route into England was between northern Ireland and Scotland, and added:

"Owing to the action of Mr. De Valera, so much at variance with the temper and instinct of thousands of southern Irishmen who hastened to the battlefront to prove their ancient valor, the approaches which the southern Irish ports and airfields could so easily have guarded were closed by the hostile aircraft and U-boats.

"This was indeed a deadly moment in our life, and if it had not been for the loyalty and friendship of northern Ireland, we should have been forced to come to close quarters with Mr. De Valera or perish forever from the earth.

"However, with a restraint and poise to which, I say, history will find few parallels, His Majesty's government never laid a violent hand upon them, though at times it would have been quite easy and quite natural, but left the De Valera government to frolic with the Germans and later with the Japanese representatives.

Praises Irish Soldiers

He added, though, that "bitterness by British for the Irish race dies in my heart" when he thought of the valor of many Irish soldiers in fighting for the emipre during the war.

Churchill said "Australia, New Zealand and Canada were and are all directly menaced' by Japan. "They came to our aid in our dark times," he concluded, "and we must not leave unfinished any task which concerned their safety.

"I told you hard things at the beginning of these last five years. You did not shrink, and I should be unworthy of your confidence and generosity if I did not still cry:

"Forward unflinching, unswerving, indomitable till the whole task is done and the whole world if safe and clean!"

Attack Saved London

Churchill disclosed that by reeling the German army back on its heels the Allied armies saved London from perhaps its worst blitz by a new Nazi weapon last Fall.

He said that in addition to flying bombs and rockets, the Germans were preparing to launch big attacks on the capital from multiple long-range artillery on the coasts of France and Holland.

"Only just in time did the Allied armies blast the viper in his nest," the Prime Minister said. "Otherwise, the autumn of 1944 might well have seen London as shattered as Berlin."

Churchill said in the same period the Germans had prepared a new submarine fleet and "novel tactics" which might well "have carried the anti-U-boat warfare back to the high peak days of 1942."

Speaking of the United States, the Prime Minister said:

"I shall make it clear at this moment that we have never failed to recognize the immense superiority of the power used by the United States in the rescue of France and the defeat of Germany.

"For our part we have had in action about one-third as many men as the Americans, but we have taken our full share of the fighting as the scale of our losses shows.

"Our navy has borne incomparably the heavier burden in the Atlantic ocean, in the narrow seas and Arctic convoys to Russia while the United States Navy has used its massive strength mainly against Japan."

Churchill, speaking throughout slowly and deliberately, also referred to "the mighty military achievements of the Russian people" who he said were "always holding many more German troops on their front than we could do."

"I wish I could tell you tonight that all our toils and troubles are over," Churchill said in his only indirect reference to an election. "Then indeed I could end my five years' service happily, and if you thought you had had enough of me and that I ought to be put out to grass, I assure you I would take it with the best of grace."

Churchill made no reference to such controversial questions as Poland.

BRITISH MONARCH ATTENDS SERVICE OF THANKSGIVING

LONDON, May 13—(AP) The King and Queen attended a national service of thanksgiving for the end of the European war today at St. Paul's and heard the Archbishop of Canterbury declare that victory had come in the West through God "because in our hour of greatest trial we kept faith."

"The heights are won here in the West, and in the East the summit is in view," the Primate told the congregation which included members of Britain's royal family, royalty from other lands, Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill and other high ranking Army, Navy, and government officials.

"Since long ago England gave up its aspiration for continental possesions and found its true self and destiny," the Archbishop said. "It has again and again been called up on to stand as a bastion of freedom among men.

"Often it has known painful years of endurance and at long last the reward of deliverance, under great leaders and great captains. In our turn, facing perils more terrible, by exertions more manifold and by sacrifices more costly than theirs, yet in the same spirit of free men, we have kept faith with them."

In bomb-scarred St. Paul's, which stands amid surrounding shells of buildings in one of the worst war-devastated sections of the city, the entire Empire's prayers of thanksgiving were led by the King and Queen.

The Archbishop, tall and dignified in his cape and mitre of ceremonial white and gold, led the procession through the crowded cathedral. Preceding the King and Queen also was the Lord Mayor of London, bearing the city's sword which has played a part in so many great occasions in London's long history.

Behind the King and Queen came King Haakon of Norway and on his left regal and erect walked the Queen Mother. She was calm and composed in her first appearance at a great national ceremony since before the war. She was present at a similar celebration 27 years ago.

The group was seated in the front row under the dome and the city's sword was placed on a table before the King. Just behind the King and to his left, sat Churchill.

A group of 96 men and 67 women workers drawn from essential war industries were seated for the service as the representatives of labor. Fifty London housewives represented the English women who had braved the worst of the enemies' bombing of London.

PLANES LIBERATE PRISONERS

LONDON, May 13—(AP) Approximately 300 Flying Fortresses today flew more Allied prisoners of war out of camps in southeast Germany.

'REACTIONARY' POLES ASSAILED BY MOSCOW

LONDON, May 13 (AP)—The Moscow radio declared tonight that disagreement over the "Polish affair" overlooked the Polish people and asserted that the problem would be solved on the basis of that people's determination "to be master of its own destiny and live in alliance and friendship with the Soviet Union."

The broadcast, quoting Pravda, did not mention directly the sixteen Polish leaders who disappeared and subsequently were disclosed to have been arrested by the Soviet Government, but it reiterated the charges lodged against them that they had obstructed the Red Army.

"Events have shown there is no black business that Polish reactionaries would not undertake for the achievement of their reactionary and criminal aims," the radio said.

"Agents of the London Polish Government have carried out sabotage acts in the rear of the Red Army, the army that at the cost of tremendous sacrifices freed Poland from the yoke of the German-Fascist invaders. Those acts took the lives of more than 100 Red Army officers and men."

Despite the "fury of the Polish emigré press," the broadcast continued, "the fact of the monstrous crime has been established and its organizers and executors brought to light."

Finn Reported Arrested

LONDON, Monday, May 14 (AP)—The Moscow radio, quoting a Tass agency dispatch from Helsinki, said early today that former Finnish Chief of State Police Antoni had been arrested and placed in a concentration camp.

BERLIN ON WAY OUT

LONDON, May 13—(AP) The Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio said today it was unlikely Berlin would become the seat of the Allied Control Commission because of the widespread destruction in the fallen capital.

Another announcement from the Luxembourg station said the German radio at Flensburg had been taken over by Allied authorities.

'BIG THREE' TALKS EXPECTED SOON

London Diplomatic Quarters Expect Truman, Churchill, Stalin to Meet.

LONDON, May 13—(AP) Diplomatic circles in London predicted tonight an early "peace in Europe" meeting of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin and expressed hope that the "Big Three" would meet in London.

Frank King, diplomatic correspondent for the British Press Association, said Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was expected to discuss possible dates and the place of the meeting today or tomorrow when he reaches Washington from San Francisco.

I addition to the Polish problem, other matters likely to be discussed by the "Big Three" include the punishment of major war criminals, occupation and control of Germany and the future of Austria.

The British are expected to announce shortly their representative on the Allied Control commission. King said the choice presently appeared to lie between field marshals Montgomery and Alexander.

FIGHTER GROUP TOPS WITH 1,021 NAZI KILLS

LONDON, May 13 — (AP) The Eighth Air Force's Fourth fighter group commanded by Col. Everett W. Stewart of Abilene, Kan., General Eisenhower's home town, grabbed off top honors of the European war for destruction of German planes.

Stewart's group blasted 1,021 Nazi planes—538 in aerial combat and 483 on the ground.

Runners-up in the record race were the fliers of the 56th group with 1,001 enemy planes to their credit, including 680 in the air. The Fourth flies P-51 Mustangs and the 56th flies P-47 Thunderbolts.

The Fourths, former originally from [illegible]erican fliers in the R.A.F., paid [illegible]ombat with 108 pilots listed as [illegible]ssing in action, 35 killed and [illegible]isoners of war.

Va., who fought off death for three hours to navigate his crippled bomber home from deep inside Germany. He died a half hour after landing at a British base.

DeValera Defers Reply To Churchill's Address

Expected to Review Eire Position In War on Wednesday

DUBLIN, May 13 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera had no comment tonight on Prime Minister Churchill's assertion that Britain "would have been forced to come to close quarters" with neutral Eire during the blockade of 1941 except for the friendship of Northern Ireland, the Eire government information bureau announced.

Eire's Dail (Parliament) meets Wednesday and it was considered possible De Valera might reply to Churchill then, reviewing Eire's position throughout the European war and her views on the Japanese war.

A rumor that Ireland was to be mentioned in Churchill's speech swept over the country during the day, leading to belief in some quarters that Churchill's Irish audience was the largest he ever had.

DOOLITTLE RAIDER FREED

D. M. Jones, Liberated in Reich, Flew in First Tokyo Attack

PARIS, May 13 (AP) — Major David M. Jones, a flight leader on the first American raid on Tokyo, who was later shot down over Bizerte, has been liberated after spending thirty months in German prison camps.

Major Jones was one of the pioneers in medium bombers, and commanded the first Marauder group sent to Africa after he had returned from the history-making raid on Japan.

His wife lives at Winters, Tex. His mother is Mrs. D. A. Jones of Charleston, Ore.

Allies May Have Custody Over Himmler

Nazi Executioner Formerly Arrested By Doenitz—Report Not Confirmed.

PARIS, May 13. (AP)—An officer returned from the front today said Heinrich Himmler, sinister executioner of the Nazis Reich, was in Allied custody after being held under house arrest by Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, but Supreme Headquarters declared it had "no confirmation of the rumor."

The officer reported Doenitz had held Himmler since just before the negotiations began for Germany's final surrender, and that he now was in the hands of troops of Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Grouj.

"Supreme Headquarters has issued no statement regarding the whereabouts of Himmler," an official announcement said. "It has no confirmation of the rumor reporting his capture."

Remaining Members

With Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering a captive, Himmler and former Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop are the top remaining members of the Nazi hierarchy to be accounted for—if Hitler and Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels actually are dead.

The poker-faced, spectacled Himmler, head of the notorious Gestapo and SS and police chief for much of Continental Europe, was feared and hated by millions. His power was second only to Hitler's.

Himmler ordered the massacre of Lidice in Czechoslovakia, led much of the persucution of Jews, ruthlessly eliminated opponents of Nazidom, and was a principal exponent of paganism.

The crimes he must answer for are stupendous. His name will forever be associated with two of the most infamous institutions of modern times — concentration camps and the Gestapo—for both of which he was responsible to Hitler alone. No court of justice could interfere with his acts, and no investigation into them was permitted. On occasions, Himmler even ignored direct orders from Hitler, continuing to hold persons whom Hitler had ordered released.

GESTAPO VICTIMS BURIED

Americans Force Germans to Inter Bodies of Political Captives

RATINGEN, Germany, May 13 (AP)—Chaplain William Swoope of Lebanon, Pa., read the funeral service today over the graves of eleven German political prisoners who had been slain by the Gestapo and SS troops in the last days of the Ruhr trap.

The bodies were exhumed from an old bomb crater in a near-by woods and carried to their new graves by the leading Germans of Ratingen, including the town's richest citizen. An American guard enforced the new burial.

New Evidence Places Goering Among World's Biggest Thieves

NEUSCHWANSTEIN CASTLE, Germany, May 13—(AP) U. S. Seventh Army authorities have uncovered—over the fat-fisted Reichsmarshal's own signature—sufficient evidence to convict Hermann Goering as one of the biggest thieves the world has even known.

Here in this gaudy graystone castle, investigators found sheafs of correspondence between Goering and Alfred Rosenberg, minister of civil administration in eastern occupied areas, explaining in minute detail just how his men were to go about looting museums.

A small fraction of the booty is here. Paintings, statues, silver and jewels worth millions of dollars under guard of the U. S. 10th Armored division while officers begin the long task of identifying each object and returning it to its owner.

Many came from the Rothschild collection in Paris. Others came from Kiev, others from Belgium. Among the oils are Rembrandts, Reynolds, Van Dycks, Bonheurs, Murillos, Rousseas, Gainsboroughs and Moreaus. Various objects cram this castle to its attic.

But the biggest find is a four-page letter from Goering to Rosenberg, dated Nov. 21, 1940, in which the Luftwaffe boss raved over the beauty of art objects he had found in France and insisted they must be brought to Germany.

Goering was so enthusiastic he told Rosenberg he would place the full strength of the Luftwaffe at his disposal to expedite the project. The Reichsmarshal emphasized, however, that no one should get the idea the wholesale removal of European art to Germany was for the personal and private glorification of himself or the Fuehrer.

There were to be two museums —one at Linz in honor of Hitler and another at a place as yet undecided to perpetuate Goering's memory. The latter he proposed to give the German people on his 60th birthday.

POISON ALCOHOL KILLS 400 REDS

NUERNBERG, Germany, May 13 —(AP) The death of more than 400 liberated Russian prisoners of war from drinking methyl alcohol was reported to U. S. Army authorities today by Lt. Michael Kopilow, Russian liaison officer.

The soldiers looted an abandoned German freight train near their camp in this area, Kopilow said, and found many cars loaded with 50-gallon drums of methyl which they mistook for potable alcohol. They mixed it with water and drank it.

Kopilow proposed that liberated officers be armed and formed into a security guard to maintain order and prevent such incidents. The camp in question, he said, included 1,600 officers and 8,000 enlisted men.

Third Army authorities assured him that Russian collaboration would be welcome.

There were so many cases of deaths from methyl alcohol that this is competing with typhus as a public health problem among displaced persons.

As German withdrawals became more disorganized, more warehouses and supply trains fell into American hands. At the same time combat troops were pressing forward so rapidly that such captured stores had to be left to military government detachments to guard. The AMG is seldom equipped to do this effectively.

In many cases a detachment of two officers and half a dozen enlisted men has been responsible for organization of the military government, restoration of essential utilities and maintenance of public health, law and order in an area equivalent to two American counties with a population of 40,000 to 100,000.

They appoint German civilian police and equip them with arm bands, but cannot arm them. These police know where warehouses, abandoned trains, and the like must be protected but without arms they usually are just brushed aside by any crowd bent on looting.

THIRD BRIDGE BUILT BY ARMY OVER RHINE

RHEINHAUSEN, Germany, May 13—(AP) A third railway bridge built by American engineers across the Rhine furnished a new link today between the Ruhr and Western Europe.

The bridge was completed V-E day and was named the "Victory bridge" by Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, commander of the U. S. 15th Army, when he dedicated it yesterday to "all who have fallen in the fight against Nazism."

The 2,815 foot bridge makes use of steel rails and ties requisitioned from the stockpiles of the Krupp armament plants.

Veteran engineers under Col. Helmer Swenbolt, Tucson, Ariz., finished it in six days and 15 hours.

Pope Greets Freed Countries

ROME, May 13 (AP)—Pope Pius XII sent messages today to Prince Charles, Regent of Belgium; Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg conveying his joy for the liberation of their countries and the hope that they would enjoy lasting peace.

War Crimes Suspects To Be Spared Interviews

Action Is Announced in Rome; No Reasons Given

ROME, May 13 (AP).—Army public relations officers said today that the War Department at Washington has clamped a ban on interviews with prisoners, internees or persons who are likely to face trial as war criminals. The reason for the order could not be learned immediately.

This action followed a week in which war correspondents in the Mediterranean theater have made many protests against what they termed political censorship. Most of the protests arose in connection with developing tension between the Yugoslavs and Italians in the Trieste area.

In most instances, the correspondents' reports on the situation in Trieste and the flight of Chetniks into Italy were released for publication after they had been referred to Allied headquarters by field censors.

Censorship officials said the ban on stories of political developments in the Mediterranean theater was at present being exercised only in cases of false reporting or interpretive stories which might cause friction among the Allied powers, thereby jeopardizing the war effort against Japan.

ARMY WILL SALVAGE EQUIPMENT IN EUROPE

ROME, May 13—(AP) Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson said today the War department hoped to salvage 70 per cent of the Army equipment in Europe for use in the Pacific war.

Patterson and Amon G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Star-Telegram, toured Rome's scenic spots after flying here from northern Italy, then left by plane for Paris.

Carter stood on Mussolini's balcony overlooking Rome's Piazza Venezia and gave a big cheer for Texas.

Troops Seek More Points

Infantrymen in Italy Want Combat Duty Recognized

WITH THE UNITED STATES 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, May 13 (AP).—American troops in Italy think the going-home point system is all right as far as it goes, but some combat infantrymen were of the opinion today that it doesn't go far enough. They suggested:

Award five or ten points for the Combat Infantrymen's Badge.

Award an extra point for each month's service with a front-line rifle company.

Award twice as many points for combat medals as for non-combat medals.

King Leopold May Be False Rumor Victim

Premier Von Acker Announes Belgian Papers May Be Curbed.

BRUSSELS, May 13, (AP)—Premier Achille Van Acker, announcing today that King Leopold would not return to Brussels for some time yet because of ill health, threatened to crack down on some Belgian newspapers which he said had "spread false rumors about the king."

The premier said he would take strong measures against the newspapers if they persisted in "speculating wildly and spreading untruths above this difficult and important constitutional problem."

The Belgian public became excited a week ago over the prospective return of the king, who was liberated near Strobl, 8 miles east of Salzburg, by U. S. Seventh Army troops. There has been speculation that the king might abdicate in favor of his heir, 14-year-old Prince Baudouin, with Prince Charles, the king's brother, continuing as regent.

Cabinet Approves Order

The Belgian cabinet in exile in Paris approved an order on May 30, 1940, depriving Leopold of his throne "in the name of the Belgian people." His brother was installed as regent last Sept. 21 by the Belgian parliament and leftist groups assert that under the constitution it is up to parliament to decide whether Leopold is in a position to fulfill his constitutional duties.

As a constitutional monarch Leopold has a role very similar to the position of the crown in the United Kingdom. He has the right to veto legislation—but he does not exercise it. He is the supreme executive—but he exercises his control through the cabinet, which in turn is responsible for all acts of government to the chamber of representatives.

He appoints his ministers, according to the constitution—but since they are responsible to the chamber of representatives they are generally the choice of the representatives.

In principle, a constitutional king rules but does not govern.

The king's decision not to return to Belgium immediately was announced by Van Acker—after he and other members of a delegation confered with Leopold at Salzburg. The premier released the text of a letter from Leopold to Prince Charles dated May 12 in which he said:

"My dear brother, after the long captivity I have endured, my state of health prevents me from returning to Belgium at once.

Much to Regret

"I have much regret in not being with my people immediately after my liberation. During my detention all my thoughts have been constantly with them. I beg you to continue until my return, the pursuit of the mission which you have accepted in the interests of the nation."

Asked if this was not a "diplomatic illness," Van Acker replied that Leopold really was not well after nine months detention in a fortress under SS guards who menaced him on several occasions. The anguish of the alternating hope and despair of being freed was bad for the king, the premier declared.

Van Acker said the talks with Leopold took place near Salzburg, with each delegate received separately by the king and subsequently all together. No suggestion or proposition of any kind was made to the king in the name of the government, Van Acker declared.

The premier said he did not know whether or when eLopold would return to Belgium.

Van Acker said the Royal children were with their father and in good health. He said reports that the king was suffering from an eye ailment were not true.

ALLIED SOLDIERS STAY IN TRIESTE TO OPERATE PORT

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 13—(AP) Western Allied soldiers will remain in disputed Trieste to operate the Adriatic port and Yugoslav soldiers will remain in occupation of major portions of the city, it was learned today.

That apparently was the main point of the agreement between Marshal Tito and an emissary from the headquarters of Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Allied Mediterranean commander.

The discussions arose when the Yugoslav government demanded withdrawal of the British-American forces occupying the port and part of the city. The Allied Mediterranean command insisted on the necessity of remaining in possession and operating the port to supply occupation forces in Austria.

(The Italian government had demanded occupation of Trieste and the Istrian peninsula by Alexander's forces, pending the peace settlement.)

Claim Is Formal

The opposition to the imminent Yugoslav occupation is mainly formal. The important question with a strong bearing on present Yugoslav activity is to what extent claims for Italian territories will be granted at the future peace tables.

Army Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Arsa Jovanovic said in an interview with the official Yugoslav news agency Tanyug that the region is under military occupation by the Yugoslav army "while its future will be solved by the Allies at the peace conference."

On the British-American side the talks have been purely on the basis of military necessity. In addition to Trieste's importance for the occupation forces it is likely to be vital for the delivery of UNNRA commitments to Czechoslovakia and parts of Poland.

Full Use Granted

Tito agreed to the full use of Trieste for Allied supplies.

Although American correspondents in Yugoslavia have been refused permission by the Yugoslav government to visit Trieste, it is no secret that the political occupation of the whole Istria area is going forward rapidly. This is simple for the Partisan forces since they had well integrated underground and skeleton administrative setups long in advance.

In addition to her claims to Italian territory, Yugoslavia maintains her frontiers also should be expanded to include parts of former Austria. Tito's forces already have invaded this area but details of their activities are not available.

(Reports from Austria said Yugoslav Partisans were taking over town administrations in the southern part of Carinthia and Styria provinces and that they had occupied points of the importan highway running from Klagenfurt to Graz.)

Dutch Seeking Recruits To Fight in East Indies

Some of the Volunteers Will Get Training in U. S.

APELDOORN, Holland, May 13 (AP).—Members of the Netherlands Interior Forces in western Holland will be asked to enlist for a campaign in the Netherlands East Indies, it was learned today as Canadian troops stood guard against German soldiers' escaping from the surrendered western pocket.

Captain Bern van Tuyll, Prince Bernhard's adjutant, whose wife lives at 340 East Fifty-seventh Street, New York, said the expeditionary forces would include both an army to be outfitted and trained primarily in England and marines who will be put through their paces in training camps in the United States.

Recruiting offices have been opened in previously liberated provinces and will be set up where they will give the interior forces every opportunity to continue their military careers more regularly, Van Tuyll said.

Prince Olav Hailed by Thousands As Quisling Cowers in Jail Cell

OLSO, May 13—(AP) Crown Prince Olav of Norway returned to his nation's capital today and was greeted by the biggest throng in Oslo's history while in a dingy cell in Oslo's largest prison Vidkun Quisling was reported "going mad."

The ex-president of the Norwegian puppet government was complaining about his food and nobody seems to care.

Olav landed from a British cruiser. He perched on the back of an open car and was driven to the royal palace. Wearing the battle dress of a general of the Norwegian army, he smilled and saluted the waving throngs who shouted "hiya, Olav!" at the triumphal procession moving through the streets.

Since dawn, thousands of Norwegians had lined the streets of Oslo, although the news that Olav was returned at 4 p. m., was being kept on an "official" basis for security reasons. It was estimated that 250,000 persons were in the streets.

Three cabinet members also were in Olav's party as well as British Lt. Gen. Andrew Thorne who will command the garrison. Olav and the royal family left their palace five years ago this month. King Haakon and others of the family are expected to return next month.

Meanwhile, at his first press conference this afternoon the new Oslo police chief, Henrik Meyer said that Quisling had made no statement since he drove to police headquarters in a big car loaded with trunks and bag of liquor and cigarettes on Wednesday.

Quisling's Russian wife is still living at her grand home west of Oslo.

Meyer also said that no bullet wounds were found on the body of Quisling's police minister, Jonas Lie who committed suicide yesterday at Skallum near Oslo. But the autopsy of his companion, Henrik Rogstad, former chief of the Quisling state police, showed two bullet wounds.

Puppets Fall Quickly

The Quisling hierarchy tumbled quickly. Five of his henchmen have given themselves up, at least two others have committed suicide and 1,500 more are crowding Oslo prisons.

Minister of Justice Sverre Riisnaes has surrendered after barricading himself for two days with Lie and Rogstad. The prisoner bag also includes former Minister of the Interiar Hagelin LaBou, Gen. Freulich Hansen, Oslo's "Quisling" Bishop Troyland and German Consul General Dietrich Hildisch.

It is almost certain that Reichscommissar Josef Terboven and Police General Wilhelm Reidiesh committed suicide Wednesday at Prince Olav's home at Skaugum, 12 miles west of Oslo, but Meyer said identification was not positive. The bodies were mangled when the two blew themselves up in a cellar.

British troops of the First Airborne division—the heroic Red Devils of Arnhem—are riding through the streets in trucks driven by silent, sullen Germans wearing the white armbands of surrender.

On some street corners stand armed German military police to keep order among the Germans. Hundreds of other Germans are marching voluntarily through Oslo's outskirts on their way to concentration camps where eventually all of Norway's garrison of 400,000 German troops will be collected.

Thousands Cheer

In Oslo's main thoroughfares stand thousands of flag-bedecked Norwegians shouting and waving flags at the vanguard of 10,000 Norwegian troops arriving from Sweden.

Loyal Norwegians just released from the infamous Grini concentration camp are dancing in the streets.

Others just stand and gape at this conglomeration of British, Germans, Quislings and armed patriots.

Maj. Gen. R. E. Rourquehart, commander of the First Airborne division, disclosed that there has not been a shot fired in anger in the past 24 hours and only four or five persons have been killed since the patriots began controlling Norway last Monday.

British troops are taking over Oslo, Stavanger and Kristiansand in a "bloodless coup." The rest of Norway will be occupied later.

Degrelle Held in Spain

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, May 13 (AP).—Leon Degrelle, Belgian Fascist leader and head of the Rexist party, who with five companions landed here May 8 by plane from Oslo, is being held incommunicado in a local hospital. Degrelle and his companions were injured when the plane crashed in landing.

The Spanish government transmitted a complete report of the arrival of the Fascist leader to the United Nations diplomatic missions in Spain. Like Pierre Laval, Degrelle is being held at the disposal of the Allies.

AIR FIGHTING GAINS AS JAP PLANES FADE

CHUNGKING, May 13—(AP) The rising battle in the skies over China found the U. S. 14th Air force increasing its flights by 15 per cent in April against almost non-existent opposition from Japanese pilots.

The increase in the number of sorties was registered over operations in March, and the tempo of Allied air combat in April was higher than for any month in 1944, said the monthly summary from Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters.

In the decline of Japanese air power, only seven Japanese planes were downed in aerial combat, but 53 others were destroyed aground. This brought the total since July 4, 1942, to 2,303 Japanese planes destroyed and 772 others probably destroyed.

CHINESE SEIZE FOOCHOW AIRPORT

Strike Foe in Area Where Japanese Fear Americans May Attempt Landing.

CHUNGKING, May 13—(AP) Chinese troops have fought into Foochow and captured an airport south of that east coast port, striking the Japanese in the very sector where the enemy fears the Americans may storm ashore, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Fighting also flared in the eastern seaboard area to the north, where the high command said troops and local militia Thursday attacked and occupied Sinchang, 65 miles southeast of Hangchow. This occupied capital of Chekiang province is about 300 miles north of Foochow.

The high command said that several columns of Chinese troops launched the attack on the old treaty port of Foochow Thursday morning, smashed enemy positions on the northwest Friday morning and entered the city that same evening where street fighting now is in progress.

Report Evacuation

The ease with which the Chinese seemed to have entered the city lent some credence to rumors that the Japanese had evacuated the city, which once figured high in their plans to fortify the coast against the expected American invasion from the east.

There have been reports, including one from an Army spokesman, that Japanese strategy on the mainland has been altered to concentrate strength north of the Yellow river in northeastern China far to the north of the present scene of fighting.

Chinese forces which drove the Japanese from Sinchang said the enemy was in retreat northeast in the direction of Hangchow.

In the interior, where the Japanese were turned back with heavy losses in an attempt to capture the Hunan province airbase of Chehkiang, further successes were claimed by the high command.

The Chinese said their forces occupied the highway town of Taohwaping, 23 miles west of the enemy base of Paoching, from which the ill-starred Japanese drive was launched.

Operating farther south, the right wing of the Chinese counterdrive cleared the Japanese from an area 12 miles beyond Wukang, 80 miles southeast of Chihkiang.

Encirclement Tightened

The lines of encirclement were tightened around a Japanese force north of Kaosha, which is on the main highway to Chihkiang some 50 miles west of Paoching.

Both here and in another pocket in the area of Shanmen, 25 miles north of Kaosha, the Japanese tried without success to break out with repeated counterattacks, the Chinese said.

Some Japanese were reported shedding their uniforms for civilian clothes and acting as snipers, but these were being wiped out.

Chinese farther north reported the Japanese suffered 100 casualties in fighting west of Hsihsiakow, southern Honan province stronghold from which the enemy might launch a drive southward toward Chungking.

Soong May Visit Moscow

Premier Expected To Sound Out Intentions in Far East

CHUNGKING, May 13 (AP).—Premier T. V. Soong is expected to visit Moscow on his way home from the San Francisco Conference in an attempt to strengthen Sino-Soviet relations and learn, if he can, Russia's intentions in the Far East, it was reported today.

The Chinese press has been appealing to Russia to enter the Pacific war. One rumor circulating in Chungking was that Russia had warned the Japanese troops to withdraw from the border areas of Manchuria, but this, like others of the same nature, could not be confirmed.

MOTHER'S DAY MARKED BY OKINAWA TROOPS

OKINAWA, May 13—Via Navy Radio)—(AP) Mothers' Day was observed as a day of prayer throughout the Okinawa area so far as possible under combat conditions.

The skipper of Vice Adm. Richmond Kelly Turner's flagship read President Truman's proclamation over the ship's loudspeaker just before church services, which were well attended.

On the island, services in each unit were especially well attended. Chaplains even managed to arrange brief prayer services for all but the foremost frontline units.

SAVES MAN UNDER FIRE

American Performs Cebu Rescue as Bullets Shred His Clothes

WITH THE AMERICAL DIVISION, Cebu, Philippines, May 10 (delayed) (AP)—They're calling Pfc Wilmer Swift of Downingtown, Pa., the "Gypsy Rose Lee" of the Americal Divisional, but the striptease that he did was strictly unrehearsed and involuntary.

Private Swift was with his company of the 132d Infantry Regiment crossing a bridge under heavy Japanese fire. One man was badly wounded and Private Swift went forward to pull him to safety.

Then came the strip tease.

One Japanese bullet tore off part of his pants. Two more slit through his jacket, while another clipped the heel off his shoe. He carried the wounded man to cover.

Japs' Vast Del Monte Air Center Is Captured

By Fred Hampson

MANILA, Monday, May 14 (AP)—Japan's vast Del Monte air center on northern Mindanao fell to elements of the U. S. 40th Infantry Division without serious opposition Saturday but in the Davao sector the 24th Division was fighting one of the bitterest battles of the Philippines campaign.

Wewak Captured

Australians, meanwhile, captured long-defended Wewak on New Guinea in a major triumph.

Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th, which invaded northern Mindanao on Thursday, swept over Del Monte, which includes three airfields and dispersed a Japanese force to the east.

The Yanks pressed two miles beyond Del Monte in a drive to join other American troops in the south and bisect the big island.

West of the captured Davao City, on southwestern Mindanao, the Japanese added rockets to their machinegun, mortar and artillery defenses as intensity of the fight mounted.

A battalion of the 24th Division, isolated on Wednesday by a Japanese counterattack, linked up with other Yank elements Friday when the American bridgehead at the Talomo river was widened.

Capture Plane Parts

At one point in the jungled Davao batle' zone Yanks smashed through Japanese lines and captured an estimated $1,000,000 worth of Japanese aircraft engines and plane parts.

Units of Australia's Sixth division, meantime, captured the long-contested city and peninsula of Wewak on northeastern New Guinea in a drive from the west. hTe Aussies reached the edge of the western airstrip.

Another Australian fore e which invaded the Cape Moen area, east of Wewak, on Friday, has consolidated its beachhead. Leading elements have driven three miles to within seven of a juncture with the western force.

MacArthur said the 31st division under maj Gen. Clarence Martin was making steady gains against moderate resistance. Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's 24th, which captured Davao city, scored advances in tougher fighting.

The 24th scattered a Japanese force in the Mt. Apo region southwest of Davao city and moved ahead in the bittlerly-contested Talomo river sector nearby.

In the Borneo campaign, the Australian and Dutch in vaders of Tarakan island conducted extensive patroling, with strong air support, and made only minor contacts with the Japanese.

Japs Report New Air Blow At Kyushu with 900 Planes

Enemy Claims Attack Made by Carrier Force 325 Miles from Okinawa.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13—(AP) Aerial hammering of Japan's Kyushu island by 900 Allied carrier-based planes and a score of American Superfortresses was reported by radio Tokyo today.

The coordinated blows by 14 waves of naval planes and the B-29s lasted from 5:30 a. m. to 2 p. m., Sunday, Japanese time, the Nippon radio said.

In broadcasting recorded by the FCC, the Japanese radio claimed that interceptors sent against the Allied task force inflicted "considerable damage." Tokyo guessed that the raids, directed against air fields and military installations, represented "an attempt to break the stalemate on Okinawa," 325 miles south of Kyushu, southernmost of the Nippon home islands.

Tokyo said the carrier planes came from an Allied task force spotted by Japanese reconnaissance aircraft about 220 miles southeast of Tanega Shima, an island just off the southern tip of Kyushu.

The Japanese radio, identifying the attacking planes as Gruman S-6-Fs, Vought-Sikorsky F-4-Us and Superforts, claimed that only slight damage was inflicted on Kyushu targets.

The Sunday sky attacks, Tokyo said, followed aerial assaults Saturday night on Kyushu by some 30 fighters and patrol bombers which used both incendiary and demolition bombs against air bases. Tokyo believed these planes flew from Okinawa.

There was no Allied confirmation of these reports.

Hamden Flier Uninjured In Collision With Jap

A U. S. FOURTEENTH AIR FORCE BASE IN CHINA, May 13. (AP)—Lt. Russell D. Williams of the "Black Lightning" P-51 squadron collided with a Japanese fighter plane that was disintegrating from the effects of his gunfire and lived to tell about it.

Lt. Williams, whose home is in Hamden, Conn., was flying his 100th mission when he sighted an enemy plane at 800 feet. He immediately dived, gave the Jap a six-gun squirt and started to pull up.

Williams' fighter was less than 100 feet astern of the enemy plane when it blew up. The enemy's left wing twisted off and the right wing, catching Williams' plane, tore a ragged three-foot hole in the leading edge.

Returning with the greatest difficulty to his base, Williams had to land "hot" at 190 miles per hour to avoid stalling.

This was Lt. Williams' fifth confirmed enemy plane. He has been awarded the air medal and the distinguished flying cross with clusters.

Kuriles Blow a Heavy One

ELEVENTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Aleutians, May 11 (Delayed) (AP)—American Army fliers sank at least one Japanese ship, damaged two more, including a warship, and barely missed a 7,000-ton troop transport at dusk today during a heavy raid on Kataoka navy base, Shimushu, in the Kurile Islands of far northern Japan.

Officers said it was possible an air-sea battle was still raging in that area.

Enemy vessels sunk or damaged in this, the hardest blow at Japanese shipping in the north Pacific in almost two years, included a 2,500-ton cargo ship blown up and destroyed and a frigate and a freighter blasted.

One Mitchell bomber, hit by Japanese anti-aircraft fire, blew up in the air.

Mitchell medium bombers and Liberators in strength surprised an enemy convoy, which sneaked into Kataoka preusmably under cover of fog.

The fog lifted as the American planes arrived over the target and they found the Japanese convoy, made up of about fifteen ships, including warship escorts, stretched over a two-mile area from Kataoka harbor south to Kashiwabara, troop-staging area on northern Paramushiru Island.

The presence of enemy troop transports plus cargo vessels in the convoy indicated that Japan may have decided to reinforce the northern Kuriles, which lie south of the tip of Siberian Kamchatka.

Tremor Shakes Lima, Peru

LIMA, Peru, May 13 (AP)—An earth tremor shook this city last night, but caused no appreciable damage, a survey disclosed today. The tremor was described as of fair intensity.

Mass Held for Mussolini In Chile Incites Disorder

By The Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 13—Headquarters of the National Police said today that four persons had been arrested and several injured in disorders that took place yesterday outside the Catholic Temple of National Gratitude during a mass for Benito Mussolini.

The newspapers said that many persons at the mass, which was attended mostly by Italians, had given the Fascist salute through out the service. The press carried varying accounts of the disorders, while today the Most Rev. José Maria Caro, Archbishop of the Catholic Church, presided at a service of thanksgiving for the return of peace in Europe.

The newspaper Chileno, which has been said to have pro-Fascist sympathies, carried a streamer headline, "Communists assault Catholic temple," while the Communist daily, Siglo, streamered, "Fascists utilize temple for anti-democratic provocation."

First U-Boat Surrenders To Royal Canadian Navy

By The Associated Press.

SHELBURNE, N. S., May 13—The Royal Canadian Navy took formal possession today of the first German submarine surrendering to Canadian forces since the German capitulation in Europe. The surrender was carried out about two miles off this naval base when German U-boat No. 889 was taken over by Capt. E. R. Miles, chief of staff to the Commander in Chief of the Canadian Northwest Atlantic Fleet.

The U-boat had been convoyed here by the frigates H.M.C.S. Buckingham and Inchcrran after it gave up off Newfoundland.

OFFICIALS REVEAL WORRY OVER FOOD PROBLEMS IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP) Ballooning needs of liberated peoples, plus the growing threat of black markets, are putting the war's heaviest strains on this nation's food rationing and price control system.

Many officials are frankly worried. Some fear the curbs may not be able to meet the tests as European necessities cut further into American supplies. Some predict more drastic control measures will be required. A few go so far as to say it may become necessary for the government to take over the food distribution system.

Week-end developments point up the increasing pressure:

1. President Truman in a letter to "Food for Freedom, Inc.," said we "must and can find a way" to share American food with starving peoples.

2. Apparently signaling what that way will be, OPA boosted the point price on salad and cooking fats from 6 to 10 points a pound, following up a recent official report that this nation "must be prepared to economize its use (of fats and oils) if any real contribution is to be made" to a pressing world shortage problem.

The fat ration cut is only the latest of numerous moves in the same diet-reducing direction.

Black Markets Spread

It is conceded on all sides that meat black markets have flourished for months. They are spreading to sugar, eggs and some lesser commodities in short supply.

Food officials fear that as it becomes necessary to cut civilian supplies further to help feed Europe, more and more consumers—all anxious and financially able to eat better than ever before—will turn to black markets for supplies.

The time could come, these officials explain, when insufficient supplies moved through legitimate marketing channels to meet military requirements and rations of those civilians who choose not to patronize black markets or who do not have access to them.

Warnings that excessive spending power might destroy the rationing system and bring on dangerous inflation were given early in the war by many economists and farm leaders. Among those issuing such warnings were Chester Davis, St. Louis banker and farm leader who served as War Food Administrator for a short while in 1943, and Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange.

Failure of the government to attempt to bring civilian buying power into balance with the supply of food and other civilian goods available at ceiling prices by means of an enforced savings plan was a factor contributing to Davis' resignation as food administrator.

In brief, the nation's financial ledger is something like this: Consumers are receiving an annual income of around $150,000,000,000. The amount of available consumer goods and services, including food, has a value of about $90,000,000,000 at present ceiling prices. Taxes take about $25,000,000,000. This leaves about $35,000,000,000. Some of this is invested in war bonds, but not all.

Buy More Food

Unable to get new automobiles, radios, refrigerators and similar products, civilians attempt to use much of this extra income to buy more and better food. Last year, when supplies of meats, sugar and other items now in short supply were much more plentiful, this extra income enabled Americans as a whole to eat better than ever before.

This year food supplies are much shorter. The amount allotted civilians has been reduced to the low consumption standards prevailing during the 1935-39 period, when a third or more of the population subsisted on inadequate diets.

Yet, civilians still have the money to pay for 1944's high food standard.

The pressure this creates is made evident by a government estimate that civilians would eat an average of at least 160 pounds of meat this year at current ceiling prices if it were available. The amount allotted civilians is sufficient, however, to provide an average of only 120 pounds.

Comparable situations exist with regard to butter, sugar, shortening, lard, canned fruits and vegetables and other items.

Despite all efforts to obtain greater production, food output this year is expected to be below last year's record level. Supplies may not approach demand levels before harvests of 1946.

WAR LOAN DRIVE WILL OPEN TODAY FOR 14 BILLION

Morgenthau Asserts 'Greatest Challenge to Democracy' Ahead.

SEEK NEW HIGH TOTAL

Connecticut Goal Is 119 Million; Campaign to Extend Through June 30.

WASHINGTON, May 13 — (AP) The Seventh War Loan drive was officially set off tonight by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., with the declaration that "the greatest challenge to American democracy still lies before us."

"That challenge is to our self-restraint, our self-discipline, our-self control," he said in a broadcast over the four major networks.

30.24-25751

"What is demanded of us is this —that we accept triumph without relaxation. The fruits of peace are not yet ripe for us to pluck."

The $14,000,000,000 bond drive actually swings formally under way tomorrow, Monday, May 14. Morgenthau told his audience millions of volunteer workers "will appeal to you to do your share—voluntarily, as free people—in finishing the greatest war in the history of the world."

The quota for individuals is $7,000,000,000—corporations the same amount. Of the individual's quota, $4,000,000,000 is the goal for "E" bonds, the low-priced war bonds bought by most Americans.

'E' Quotas at New High

Not in any of the six war loans already held have individual and "E" bond sales been as high as the quotas in what the Treasury calls the "mighty Seventh."

Morengthau quoted President Truman's statement that "our victory is but half-won. The West is free, but the East is still in bondage." Then the Treasury chief added:

"And in addition to this, the vast responsibility of reconstruction in Europe is upon us. We cannot shirk it without endangering all that we have already won in combat."

He said "there is no truce in this war for the men on Okinawa. The war is not over for the men who are already beginning to move from Europe to the Pacific."

He concluded:

"Let us demonstrate to the world again that free men—of their own volition—possess the self-discipline to shoulder their responsibilities. The buying of bonds is an act of simple faith—faith in ourselves, faith in the men who fight for us, faith in the future of democracy."

Use Iwo Jima Picture

The official symbol and poster of the drive is a now-famous scene from the war against Japan, based on the Associated Press photo of the flag-raising on Iwo Jima.

Ted R. Gamble, the 38-year-old Oregon theater executive who heads the Treasury's War Finance division, said at least 6,000,000 volunteer bond salesmen are ready for the seven-week campaign, in fact are already hard at work in many localities. More than the usual number of rallies, exhibitions, speeches, celebrity appearances, parades, and other events are scheduled from one end of the country to the other.

Treasury officials say war costs won't begin dropping until at least next fall, and consumer goods are scarcer than ever and money more plentiful, making it essential to finance as much of the war as possible out of consumers' pocketbooks in order to fight inflation.

Gamble said the advance payroll savings period of the drive, which started April 9, has been "highly successful." Employes who buy bonds through payroll deductions are stepping up these deductions over a three-month period, April 9 through July 7, and all bond sales in that period count toward the quotas of the drive.

Whole Nation Joins In Victory Prayers

President Truman Leads Thanksgiving—Attends Solemn Service At National Naval Hospital—Asks To Be "Humble In Victory."

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—President Truman led the nation in humble thanks today for European victory and joined in solemn prayers for world-wide peace.

Typical Service

In a service typical of others held throughout the nation his request that the German surrender be made an occasion for thanksgiving, rather than celebration, he asked strength to "keep us humble in victory."

The President drove 11 miles to the National Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., to worship with Sailors, Marines and WAVES in the chapel there.

With the congregation, he intoned:

"In thy gracious love and providence bless our sons and daughters in the Armed Forces of the Pacific. May peace speedily come there also."

The President is a regular church attendant, but today's visit to the Naval Hospital, where he visited five minutes with Cordell Hull, former secretary of state, a patient there, had solemn significance.

He was participating in the Mother's Day prayer services for which he called by proclamation when he announced Germany's unconditional surrender last Tuesday.

"Courtesy Call"

The President said his visit with Hull, the second since he entered the White House, was strictly a "courtesy call."

The Chief Executive's own mother, 92-year old Mrs. Martha Truman, a guest at the White White House after Friday's flight from Grandview, Mo., did not go to the services.

"Mama didn't feel up to the trip," he told reporters simply.

He was accompanied by his wife and daughter Margaret. Mrs. Truman's brother, Fred, her mother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace, and the President's sister, Miss Mary Truman, also went along.

Chaplains J. Jack Sharkley and John Weise conducted the interdenominational services.

"We now remember in pride, gratitude, love, sorrow and tenderness the innumerable company of those whose courage and sacrifice have made this hour possible," said Chaplain Weise. "They died for us. 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Chaplain Prays

Chaplain Sharkley prayed for the coming of the day "when nation shall not lift up sword against nation nor learn war any more."

He asked for "the uprooting of the causes of war, for the ending of prejudices of race and nation," for "the enduring liberation of the oppressed and for the lasting freedom of all thy children," and continued:

"O merciful father, we beseech thee so to send forth thy spirit into the world that all leaders of men everywhere, the rulers and spokesmen of the nations, may be instructed in the ways of peace, kept clean of pride and evil ambitions and so guided in all their doings that they may make the ways known upon the earth, thus saving health among all nations."

DRAFT MEASURES TO AID HOUSING

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP) Postwar housing legislation designed to encourage private construction and provide new aids for income groups just above the public housing level is being drafted.

Senator Ellender (D-La) disclosed today that he and Senator Wagner (D-NY) are working on the measure. Details are not complete, but Ellender said they hoped to introduce it in the Senate this week.

Decent Shelter is Aim

The Louisianan explained that subsidized public housing has been aimed to provide decent shelter for income groups which can pay up to $20 a month for housing while the FHA guaranteed mortgage plan aids persons who can put $40 a month or more into a home.

He and Wagner propose in their bill to reach the income groups between those two figures. The mechanics of how it can be done are among the matters not yet completed, but Ellender said the aim is to get private capital into this field by affording a cheap rate of interest.

"I think Federal policy should be to stimulate private enterprise to do as large a part of the post-war housing job as it possibly can do," he added.

Outlines Legislation

Ellender said the legislation will also include these features:

Consolidation of all Federal agencies dealing with housing. There are 16 such agencies and they currently are under one administration by executive order of the late President Roosevelt. This order holds good only for the war, however.

Provision in the new agency for a division to study technical advances in construction and seek ways to lower construction costs.

Truman Will Make Cabinet Changes Slowly

President Expected To Find Place For Judge Schwellenbach.

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—Best available opinion is that while another year may bring virtually an entire change in cabinet personnel, President Truman will move slowly in that direction.

Capitol Hill sources are confident, however, that Judge Lewis B. Schwellenbach, former senator from Washington, will be one of the early additions to the Truman administration.

Most observers think he will replace Miss Frances Perkins as secretary of labor.

Schwellenbach, now a federal district judge for eastern Washington, visited with the President at the Blair House recently and reportedly went home to think over Mr. Truman's plans for him.

Morgenthau Will Leave

Nobody seems to doubt that Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., will leave his post after the seventh war loan drive. A friend and neighbor of the late President Roosevelt, he is said to be willing to step aside to allow his replacement by a man of Mr. Truman's own personal selection.

One of the closest of Mr. Truman's friends in the holdover cabinet—Postmaster General Frank C. Walker—is stepping out June 30.

The President named Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of his own state of Missouri to that post when Walker asked to be relieved.

That is the first cabinet change since Mr. Truman entered the White House on April 12.

The other holdovers, for the most part, are expected to step out at gradual intervals extending over several months ,and perhaps even a year or more.

Wallace May Stay

There has been no indication, however, that the President has any plans for the present to replace Henry A. Wallace as secretary of commerce.

Wallace ,the former vice president, recently told reporters upon leaving the White House that he and the President understood each other.

Should Mr. Wallace become an active candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination the relationship might be altered.

So far the President has named to top-flight assignments:

John W .Snyder of St. Louis as Federal Loan Administrator, the post for which the Senate refused to confirm Wallace when former President Roosevelt appointed him as commerce secretary after ousting Jesse Jones.

Connelly Secretary

Matthew J. Connelly of Clinton, Mass., former Truman committee chief investigator, as confidential secretary.

Edward McKim of Omaha, Neb., as chief administrative assistant.

Chairman David E. Lilienthal of Wisconsin to a new nine-year term as a director of the Tennessee valley authority.

Ed Pauley of California, Democratic committee treasurer in the last campaign, as American member of the reparations commission on a cabinet level.

There have been other appointments of lesser importance.

Discussion on Capitol Hill and elsewhere in Washington has mentioned Attorney General Francis Biddle for a diplomatic assignment aboard in the event he steps out of the cabinet.

Some of the President's friends in the Senate have suggested Senator George (D-Ga) for the treasury post.

Others have mentioned former Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, now chairman of the surplus property board, for agriculture secretary, when Claude Wickard goes out. Gillette is understood to be anxious to leave his present post.

PRICE VIOLATORS FACE TAX PROBE

WASHINGTON, May 13 — (AP) The OPA announced today it had turned over to the Internal Revenue Bureau the names of more than 3,000 price violators.

The bureau, OPA said, will examine the tax returns of these persons to determine whether they have attempted to evade income tax obligations.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said that this new nationwide "program of cooperation" between OPA and the Treasury department "should contribute greatly to our efforts to curb black markets in all fields."

Bowles noted that while ordinarily violators of price regulations must be prosecuted within one year of the charge, the Treasury has three years to press a claim for taxes by civil suit, and unlimited time if the evasion involves fraud.

This means, he said, that even after OPA has gone out of existence "past ceiling price violations may prove costly."

PLANE 'PARKING LOTS' PRAISED BY INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP) Chicago's proposed experimental downtown airpark has been endorsed by Civil Aeronautics Administrator T. P. Wright as representing "exactly the sort of enterprise the aviation industry should be showing."

In a letter, made public today, to the National Aviation Trades association, originator of the project Wright declared:

"You are attacking the heart of the air transport problem, which has been seriously affected all these years by the necessity of locating airports far away from business centers.

"Unless the airplane can pick up its passengers and cargo from points close to their origin, and deliver them close to the final destination, air transport cannot perform its greatest service to the public."

LEND-LEASE HELP GIVEN TO BELGIUM

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP) Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley today announced the recent shipment of approximately $12,500,000 worth of lend-lease food stuffs and medicine to Belgium to help increase her war production.

Crowley's statement said that Belgium's reverse lend-lease materials to U. S. armed forces far surpassed in quantity and dollar value the direct lend-lease aid this country has given her. The Army estimates Belgium's contributions through last February at $48,000,000, Crowley said.

The recent cargoes reaching Belgium were reported to have included 14,000 tons of rye, 8,600 tons of cattle feed, 6,500 tons of soya beans, 3,400 tons of dried peas, 3,000 tons of dried eggs, 2,300 tons of seeds, 2,300 tons of fatbacks, 2,000 tons of lard, 1,200 tons of condensed milk, 1,000 tons of raisins and 1,150 pounds of penicillin.

One cargo vessel carrying an additional 8,500 tons was sunk on its way to Belgium, the report said.

AUTO FATALITIES CONTINUE DECLINE

WASHINGTON, May 13 — (AP) Deaths from motor vehicle accidents are continuing to decline, the Bureau of Census, Department of Commerce, said today.

According to a bureau estimate motor vehicle mishaps caused about 23,300 deaths in 1944, a death rate of 17.6 per 100,000 population. This compares with 23,823 deaths and a rate of 17.8 in 1943, which was 16 per cent below the 1942 rate of 21.2.

The report said that accidents of all kinds caused about 93,000 deaths in the United States in 1944, six per cent fewer than in 1943. The 1944 figure, which is an estimate, is based on a 10 per cent sample of death certificates, the bureau said.

The number of accidental deaths per 100,000 population for 1944 was estimated at 70.3, down from 73.9 in 1943, and down from 71.7 in 1942.

In 1943, the latest year for which complete figures are available, the bureau said, deaths resulting from falls numbered 24,179, moving from second place to lead all other causes with a rate of 18.0, and causing 366 more deaths than motor vehicle accidents.

Automobile accidents and falls plus the other four leading death causes—air transport accidents, drowning, burns except conflagration, and railway accidents except motor vehicle collisions—accounted for 70,888 or 71.6 per cent of all accidental deaths in 1943.

WALLACE PLEDGES AID TO BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP) Henry A. Wallace issued instructions aimed at making his Commerce department a positiv force in industries' change-over from war to peace.

The new secretary ordered agencies of the department to "take positive steps to provide business and industry with its many aids and services essential in meeting the immediate problems of reconversion."

He also told them to begin at once to plan for "such organization adjustments" as may be necessary to resume the "full complement of peacetime services to business."

He said the department, in cooperation with business, must prepare to assist in preventing economic collapse after the defeat of Japan "while at the same time we maintain our free enterprise economy."

Few in Washington have doubted that Secretary Wallace intends to try to make the Commerce department's influence felt in the postwar economy far more than it was in the New Deal and wartime periods.

What new methods he may develop and additional authority he will have are not yet clear, but today's statement bears out the belief that he has no intention of staying in the background now that the war is partly won.

His utterances since becoming secretary have strongly favored private enterprise and aid to business—especially little business.

Today he said that in all reconversion matters the department "will provide general economic counsel as well as specific assistance to business."

M'KELLAR'S PAY RISE 'EMBARRASSING' NOW

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—The House's vote for $2,500 "expense money" for its members has put Senator McKellar of Tennessee on something of a spot.

"It is most embarrassing," the Senate's dean confessed today. "I just don't know what to do."

It comes about this way:

Mr. McKellar is acting chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and has always fought against proposals to increase the pay of Congress members.

But when Vice President Truman moved to the White House as President, Mr. McKellar became the permanent presiding officer of the Senate and, under long-existing law, received a pay rise from $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

He had nothing to do with that increase but he wonders how other Senators may feel if, having just received a $5,000 increase himself, he should oppose any more money for them. While the expense allowance so far has been proposed only for House members, the general assumption is that a similar allowance for Senators will come up during Senate consideration.

The House-approved provision was written into the Legislative appropriation bill. This measure probably will come before Mr. McKellar's committee the latter part of this week.

Mr. McKellar is not saying what he will do, but indications are that he will just "sit tight" and let the other members do the talking.

28,992 Veterans Receive G. I. Jobless Benefits

Unemployment Rapidly on Rise Among Ex-Service Men

WASHINGTON, May 13 (UP).—Government officials and members of Congress are both puzzled and concerned over rapidly rising unemployment among veterans of this war.

Veterans' Administration figures show that for the week ended April 28, 28,992 jobless veterans—those able to work and who have applied for jobs—were receiving unemployment payments under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

An administration spokesman said he could not explain the situation. The United States Employment Service said the answer may be that the veterans have a natural desire to be at home and that there are no suitable jobs in their home communities.

The House Veterans committee is worried because large-scale demobilization is under way and at least 2,000,000 veterans will be poured into the labor market. Representative William G. Stigler, Democrat, of Oklahoma, a member of the committee, said the present unemployment rate is "particularly hard to understand in view of the labor shortage in war-industry centers."

The 28,992 figure was an increase of 1,300 over the previous seven days.

O. D. Hollenbeck, associate chief of the bureau of veterans placement of U. S. E. S., is studying the problem. He said his findings show so far that, while many veterans could be placed in other areas, they are showing a natural reluctance to leave home. This is particularly true in large cities such as New York.

RETURNING VETERANS TO GET FRESH FOODS

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP) When Johnny comes sailing home from European victory she will abandon dehydrated rations and dine on fresh milk, eggs, vegetables and apple pie during his voyage, the War Shipping Administration said today.

Harold J. O'Connell, director of the WSA Food Control division, said a master V-E feeding plan put into effect after long experimentation with ship refrigeration stows fresh frozen foods aboard WSA ships in Atlantic Coast ports for later issuance to veterans returning from overseas.

WINDSORS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP) The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, both deeply tanned and smiling, arrived here today by train from Florida. The Duke, who resigned as governor of the Bahama Islands March 15, said he and his wife expected to stay in New York City for about a month and that their future plans were uncertain.

NEW YORK, May 13 — (AP) Appointment of Capt. Hewlett R. Bishop as Atlantic Coast director of the War Shipping Administration, succeeding Walter W. The Atlantic Coast office handles cargo and ship movement from all Atlantic ports between Jacksonville, Florida and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Cooperation of Powers Needed For Peace, Dr. Seymour Says

NEW HAVEN, May 13—(AP) President Charles Seymour of Yale, declaring that the last peace settlement was wrecked in this country by perfectionists and isolationists, asserted today "we cannot afford to repeat the disaster."

Dr. Seymour, a member of President Wilson's staff of the American commission to negotiate peace in the last war, said in a "Yale Interprets the News" radio program that "the history of the League of Nations indicates conclusively that the sincere and intimate cooperative efforts of the great powers are basic to success."

"Today wars arise, directly or indirectly, from clashes among the great powers," he asserted, adding, "the important problem is to find ways of reconciling the great powers to peace with each other and to cooperation in furthering the interests of all nations small and large.

"Upon such cooperation must be founded whatever international organization finally results from the Dumbarton Oaks plan," declared Dr. Seymour.

The Yale head said "above everything we must learn to escape the untutored emotionalism which characterized our attitude at the end of the last war. On the one hand the excess of optimistic idealism that suggests that if only the proper formula of international organization can be agreed upon a lasting peace will be secured; on the other, the unreasoning cynicism of the nationalist who insists that the only safety lies in regarding every alien state as an inevitable enemy.

"Both attitudes are unrealistic and our American policy must be built upon a strict regard for the facts and a wise understanding of them. We cannot expect suddenly to achieve perfection. Politics is not mathematics," he concluded.

BATH, Me., May 13 (AP).—Nine-year - old Donna MacKenzie, youngest of sixty-five sponsors who have named vessels at the Bath Iron Works Corporation yard since Pearl Harbor, launched a destroyer today in honor of her father, the late Lieutenant Commander George K. MacKenzie jr., U. S. N., of New London, Conn.

The officer, whose widow, Mrs. Josephine Moore MacKenzie, and daughter live at 6391 Ocean Avenue, New London, was lost in action April 8, 1943, in command of a United States submarine. A native of Brooklyn, he won the Navy Cross for extraordinary heroism in sinking vessels of a Japanese convoy in enemy-controlled waters.

In today's ceremony Mrs. Eisenhower was presented a victory scroll of the Foundation and a bouquet. Gov. Andrew Schoeppel, unable to be present because of his mother's illnes, sent a message of congratulations.

Eden Leaves Conference; Small Nations Ease Claims

British Envoy to See Truman; Big Powers to Control Security Council.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13—(AP) British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden left the United Nations conference today at a moment when small-nation opposition to big-power plans for a world organization appeared to be wilting.

The major powers themselves now are in fairly close agreement, except on the issue of establishing international trusteeships over dependent territories and lands taken from the enemy in two world wars.

Perhaps pointing to a smoother course for the conference small powers have withdrawn a demand for greater representation on a security council in which peacekeeping authority will be concentrated. They also have shown an inclination to go along with a new formula for regional defense and security.

As Eden took off for Washington and London, the British delegation said he "leaves San Francisco with the knowledge that much progress has been made on the vital points and in the confident hope that the work of the conference is well on the way to a successful conclusion."

Like Soviet Commissar V. M. Molotov who preceded him, Eden left to help handle problems arising from the end of the war in Europe. As he flew eastward in a converted Liberator bomber, decked with the insignia of the RAF, Prime Minister Churchill was declaring in a broadcast that Britain will fight by the side of the United States against Japan "till the whole task is done and the whole world is safe and clean."

To See President

Eden will see President Truman in Washington.

Georges Bidault, French foreign minister, probably will be the next top diplomat to leave the Golden Gate. Thus any major disputes that may arise from now on among the Big Five—France, Russia, Britain, China and the United States—may have to be settled by word from Moscow, London and Paris.

The conference has few positive accomplishments on the official record to brag about from two and a half weeks of work. But the week ahead may produce more definite progress toward erecting the structure of a new world league to prevent war.

Committees have been sorting over the scores of suggested amenments to a world charter, boiling them down, combining some, rejecting a few. Now they are about ready for important votes.

May Drag On

But this 49-nation meeting still appears likely to drag on for three or four weeks.

The only conclusive actions taken thus far have been the setting up of working commissions and committees, and the admission to the conference of the Ukraine, White Russia and Argentina.

The last of the Argentine delegation and its advisors, fifteen in all, arrived by plane this morning as Eden was taking off.

The committees themselves have taken a few votes, but these are subject to approval of the commissions over them and of the entire conference.

Perhaps the most important was a decision to retain the original plan of a compact security council of 11 members—the five big powers as permanent members plus half a dozen others. The non-permanent seats would be rotated among small and middle-sized nations. They would occupy them for two year terms.

The security council is the agency which will have authority to use force to strangle aggression if it fails in efforts at peaceful adjustment of international quarrels.

Still to be decided at the committee level of action are small nation demands for more power for a general assembly of all the United Nations. Some of them want to give it the right to approve or reject security council action.

The big five want none of that. Their argument is that it would hamstring a world organization when it came to quick, forcible steps to preserve peace.

Britain, U. S. Reach Accord

Britain and the United States evidently reached general accord on most conference problems before Eden left. They still didn't see eye to eye on the question of regional security systems. But the differences are described by delegation officials as technical rather than basic.

The plan worked out by the United States provided that such systems as the Pan-American arrangement should have authority under mutual assistance pacts to take steps against aggressors. But the power of the security council to intervene would be safeguarded.

The British and Americans also had come together on trusteeships, but were looking somewhat uneasily at a Russian proposal that the security council decide what strategic areas should be placed under international guardianship.

The Anglo-American team, which has bucked the Russians on other conference issues, was dead set against the Soviet position on this piont. They feared it might let Russia or any other big five nation veto the designation of an area as strategic even though another power considered it a base vital to its security.

The British and Americans were waiting to see how Russia would react to their opposition. If there is any sign of a willingness to compromise, more big five discussions are likely.

Otherwise the issue may be tossed into the conference itself for final settlement.

Parley Accomplishments Mostly Unofficial So Far

Important Work of Big 5 Has Been Done Behind Scenes

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13 (AP)—After seventeen days of steady work the United Nations Conference, which opened April 25, has done very little—officially. Actually the full conference—all the delegates in formal session—have done only this:

1. Admitted Argentina, White Russia and the Ukraine as conference members.

2. Listened to many speeches.

3. Set up commissions and committees which will do the work of whipping together the rules and regulations for a new league to prevent future wars.

The commissions haven't done much except appoint the committees. And except for a few important votes the committees have only scratched the surface of the many amendments to be considered.

The big developments here have revolved around the agreements reached by the Big Five—the United States, the United Kingdom, Soviet Russia, China and France—on the proposals they have made in building a league.

ABOARD A NAVY BLIMP AT SEA, MAY 12--(DELAYED)--(AP)--BUTTON, BUTTON, WHO'S GOT THE SUB?

THE OCEAN'S HERE, A HARD SLATE-BLUE WITH LITTLE WHITE NIP-UPS WHICH PROBABLY ARE 10-FOOT WAVES -- BUT WE'RE LOOKING AT THEM THROUGH THE LOFTY GONDOLA OF THIS BIG DRUMMING BLIMP. IT IS SOMETHING LIKE LOOKING THROUGH A GLASS-BOTTOMED BOAT, ON STILTS.

ALL THE GREAT DETECTION EQUIPMENT IS HERE, STUFF THAT YOU WOULDN'T BELIEVE IN A FUTURISTIC COMIC STRIP. IT PICKS UP A WHALE, A HUGE BLOKE WHO COULD HAVE SWALLOWED THE WHALE WHO SWALLOWED JONAH; ALSO A FISHING SMACK, REMNANTS OF A HOME-BOUND CONVOY AND FINALLY A BABY FLAT-TOP AND HER ESCORT DESTROYERS. IT COULD PICK UP A DIME IN A LOBSTER'S CLAW.

BUT NO SUB. THE GERMAN U-BOAT 858, ONE OF THE NAZIS' LATEST MODELS AND THE FIRST TO SURRENDER TO THE UNITED STATES, WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN PICKED UP OFF THE NEW JERSEY COAST AND BROUGHT INTO PORT SUNDAY. IT WASN'T WHERE IT OR IT'S CONVOYING DESTROYER ESCORTS SAID IT WOULD BE, OR SAID IT HAD BEEN, AND THE NAVY DISCLOSED LATER THAT THE CRAFT, WHICH HAD EXPRESSED WILLINGNESS TO SURRENDER, WAS EXPECTED TO BE TAKEN INTO OFFICIAL CUSTODY MONDAY.

THE BLIMP BOOMED OUT TO IT'S OWN LIMIT OF RANGE AND THEN TOOK A PEEK FOR AN ADDITIONAL 70 OR 80 MILES BY MEANS OF IT'S INFALLIBLE DEVICES.

WE CAME HOME AFTER 18 HOURS, CONVINCED THAT (1) THINGS GOT A

30.24-25755

LITTLE FOULED UP; (2) THAT SOMETHING MAY HAVE GONE WRONG WITH THE SURRENDERING SUB AFTER IT GAVE OFF A POSITION; (3) THAT SOME NAZI SUB COMMANDER HAD ANOTHER DAY OR TWO TO PRACTICE HIS NEW IT-WAS-ALL-IN-FUN EXPRESSION; (4) THAT THE MATRONLY-LOOKING BLIMP IS QUITE A VEHICLE, IF YOU CAN OVERLOOK A CERTAIN WOMANLY RELUCTANCE TO PROCEED WITH HER FACE IN THE WIND.

"THERE'S NO TELLING WHAT JOBS THE BLIMP WILL BE PUT TO AFTER THIS WAR. JUST THINK WHAT THE BIG FISHING INTERESTS COULD DO WITH ONE OF THESE," ONE OF OUR OFFICERS ENTHUSED AS WE SWEPT ALONG WITH THE WIND AT 100 MPH.

"FISHING TRUSTS CAN SEND ONE OF THESE BLIMPS OUT AND USE RADAR FOR FINDING THE BIGGEST AND BEST SCHOOLS OF FISH. MIGHT EVEN FIGURE OUT A WAY OF LOWERING NETS AND HAULING IN A FEW CHOICE TONS."

THIS BLIMP WE'RE ON IS CALLED "BIG MIKE," PROBABLY BECAUSE IT IS BIG AND BECAUSE IT IS ONE OF THE NAVY'S FOUR CLASS "M" NON-RIGIDS. WHAT WITH THE TABOO ON RIGID AIRSHIPS LIKE THE LATE AND (ABOARD THIS SHIP) KEENLY LAMENTED ZEPPELINS, THIS IS UNCLE SAM'S BIGGEST LIGHTER-THAN-AIR CRAFT. PROBABLY THE WORLD'S BIGGEST. THE "ENVELOPE" -- AS THE BOYS CALL THE BIG BAG ABOVE US -- IS MADE OF 3-PLY RUBBERIZED FABRIC AND HOLDS HELIUM UNDER ENOUGH ADDITIONAL PRESSURE TO MAINTAIN IT'S FAT CIGAR SHAPE. IT IS 297 FEET LONG. IT'S GONDOLA REACHES 115 FEET ALONG IT'S BELLY AND TWO 550 HP PRATT AND WHITNEY'S DRIVE IT THROUGH THE AIR.

ONE THING YOU NOTICE ABOUT BLIMP TRAVEL IS THE EASE OF THE TAKE-OFF. THE LIEUTENANT IN CHARGE HALF-DRIFTED AND HALF-PLANED "BIG MIKE" OFF THE GROUND IN FRONT OF THE ENORMOUS HANGAR AT LAKEHURST, N.J. HE USED THE BIG BAG ABOVE AS A KIND OF AIR-FOIL. THE ATLANTIC GUSTS TOSSED US AROUND FOR A BIT BUT NOT AFTER THE BLIMP LEVELLED OFF. AND ONE BY ONE THE BLIMP BOYS, WHO HAVE NONE OF THE TENSION OR RACINESS OF THE HEAVIER-THAN-AIR FIGHTERS, CAME UP AND ASKED WITH QUIET PRIDE, "DID YOU EVER RIDE IN ANYTHING AS SMOOTH AS THIS?"

THERE ISN'T MUCH NOISE IN A BLIMP, THOUGH THERE IS LITTLE OR NO SOUND-PROOFING IN THE GONDOLA. NEITHER PILOT OR CO-PILOT HAS FOOT-PEDALS. THE PILOT SITS IN A COMFORTABLE CHAIR WITH AN UNOBSTRUCTED VIEW BELOW AND BEFORE HIM (HIS INSTRUMENT PANEL IS LOCATED WELL ABOVE HIS HEAD) AND HIS ONLY CONCERN IS A LARGE WOODEN WHEEL MOUNTED ALONG THE RIGHT-HAND SIDE OF HIS SEAT. IT REGULATES THE ELEVATION OF THE CRAFT. THE CO-PILOT HAS A STANDARD-LOOKING WHEEL WHICH CONTROLS THE SHIP'S BIG RUDDER. A BLIMP HAS TO HAVE PLENTY OF RUDDER ATTENTION OR IT WILL GO PROMISCUOUSLY WITH EVERY WIND THAT COMES IT'S WAY.

NO SMOKING IN THESE BLIMPS, A LITTLE TOUGH ON CHAIN-SMOKERS AFTER 12 OR 15 HOURS. AND AN EASIER MANNER AMONG OFFICERS AND MEN, WE SENSED.

"WHAT ABOUT DROPPING OUR GARBAGE SACK ON THE SUB IF WE SEE HER?" ONE OF THE ENLISTED MEN SAID TO AN OFFICER AT THE WHEEL.

THE OFFICER THOUGHT IT OVER FOR A TIME, AND REMEMBERED THE FEARFUL HORROR THE SUBS ONCE WROUGHT IN THESE WATERS.

THERE THEY FOUND A RUSSIAN FLAG FLYING BESIDE AN AMERICAN FLAG, AND BOTH AT HALF STAFF IN MOURNING FOR THE DEATH OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

MEANWHILE, TWO ELEMENTS OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY MADE CONTACT WITH THE AMERICANS. THE CONTACT PARTIES HAD TO FILTER THROUGH MASSES OF GERMANS CLOGGING THE ROADS AS THEY MOVED SLOWLY TOWARD THEIR BIVOUAC AREAS FOR THE FINAL SURRENDER. THESE WERE THE GERMANS SQUEEZED INTO THE FORLORN REDOUBT AREA BY THE COMBINED ACTION OF AMERICANS AND BRITISH ON THE NORTH AND SOUTH AND THE RUSSIANS TO THE EAST AND SOUTH-EAST.

THE RUSSIANS INSISTED ON FEEDING THE CONTACTING RECONNAISANCE SQUAD AND SHOWERED THEM WITH GIFTS, INCLUDING AUTOGRAPHED CURRENCY AND CAPTURED GERMAN PISTOLS.

"THEY WERE VERY FRIENDLY; THEY COULDN'T DO ENOUGH FOR US," ONE YANK SAID.

SIX WAR CORRESPONDENTS -- THREE RUSSIANS, TWO BRITISH AND ONE AMERICAN -- WERE IN ON THE JUNCTION OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY AND THE U.S. SEVENTH ON A BRIDGE OVER THE ENNS AT LIEZEN.

TWO MONGOL GUARDS PRESENTED ARMS AS THE WESTERN ALLIED WRITERS' VEHICLE APPROACHED. THE CORRESPONDENTS IMMEDIATELY WERE SURROUNDED BY RUSSIAN OFFICERS WHO EXPRESSED DELIGHT AT THE MEETING.

A COURIER MADE OFF AND LATER CAME BACK WITH THE RUSSIAN CORRES-PONDENTS.

THE RUSSIANS WERE TASS AGENCY MEN MAJ. VLADIMIR ARCHIPOV, MAJ. IVAN MELNIKOV AND LT. ILYA ZUCKERMAN. THE BRITONS WERE BBC CORRES-PONDENTS IAN WILSON AND LAUREN HAYHURTS. I WAS THE AMERICAN.

ZUCKERMAN TRANSLATED MY GERMAN FOR THE OTHERS AND EVEN TRIED A FEW WORDS OF ENGLISH IN THE HIGH-SPIRITED CONVERSATION. I CONFOUNDED THE RUSSIAN OFFICERS BY ANNOUNCING AT THE OUTSET "I AM UNABLE TO SPEAK RUSSIAN" IN RUSSIAN. IT WAS ALL I REMEMBERED FROM EIGHT RUSSIAN LESSONS SOME YEARS AGO.

ARCHIPOV GAVE WILSON HIS MAJOR'S STAR. ZUCKERMAN CAME UP WITH ONE OF HIS LIEUTENANT'S STARS FOR ME. IN EXCHANGE WE YIELED OUR WAR CORRESPONDENT'S FLASHES.

THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY WERE TRYING TO FIND PRINTING EQUIPMENT TO PUT OUT A FRONTLINE PAPER FOR THEIR TROOPS.

HE SAID HE EXPECTED "THIS WILL HAPPEN WITHIN A SHORT TIME."

THE PRINCE SAID HE RETURNED AS COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE NOR-WEGIAN ARMY.

OBVIOUSLY GLAD TO BE BACK, OLAV REMARKED THAT OSLO HAD COME THROUGH THE OCCUPATION BETTER THAN HE COULD HAVE HOPED. HE THANKED THE SWEDISH AND DANISH PEOPLES FOR HELPING HIS COUNTRY AND FOR SEND-ING FOOD PARCELS TO NORWEGIAN PRISONERS IN GERMANY. HE SENT SPECIAL GREETINGS TO HIS UNCLE, KING CHRISTIAN OF DENMARK.

MORE THAN 1,750,000 CITIZENS, CARRYING GARDEN TOOLS, LUNCH BASKETS AND PACKAGES OF SEED WHICH HAD BEEN SENT FROM AMERICA, LEFT MOSCOW AT 6 A.M. TODAY FOR FIELDS OUTSIDE THE CITY WHERE THEY HAD BEEN ALLOTED PLOTS OF GROUND.

THE FAMILY GARDENERS LEFT THE CAPITAL BY BUS, STREET CAR, SUBWAY, PRIVATE AUTOMOBILES, AND AFOOT.

THE GARDENERS WERE ORGANIZED IN MANY DIFFERENT WAYS -- BY FACTORIES, OFFICES, GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS AND TRADE UNIONS AND EVEN THEATERS, SMALL SHOPS AND APARTMENT HOUSES. THE GARDEN PLOTS WERE ALLOTED ON A BASIS OF THE SIZE OF THE FAMILY AND THE NUMBER OF PEOPLE IT CAN PUT TO WORK.

PRODUCE FROM THE GARDENS WILL GO TO THE INDIVIDUAL FAMILY WORKING THE PLOT. MAIN ITEMS APPEARED TO BE CARROTS, LETTUCE, ONIONS, POTATOES, TOMATOES AND MELONS.

MOSCOW, MAY 13-(AP)-A QUICK ARRAIGNMENT OF HEINRICH HIMMLER, HERMANN GOERING, FRANZ VON PAPEN AND RUDOLF HESS AS WAR CRIMINALS AND A STEPPED-UP MANHUNT FOR OTHER MISSING NAZIS APPEARS TODAY TO BE THE CHIEF CONCERN OF THE RUSSIANS.

THE RUSSIANS OPENLY EXPRESSED THEMSELVES AS BELIEVING MANY NAZIS WILL BE FOUND HIDING IN SWITZERLAND, SPAIN, SWEDEN AND ARGENTINA.

SUSPICION PERSISTS HERE THAT IT WILL TAKE STERN MEASURES ON THE PART OF THE UNITED NATIONS TO FERRET OUT WAR CRIMINALS IN THESE COUNTRIES. THE PRESS OVER THE WEEK-END SHOWED ITSELF OPENLY IN FAVOR OF THE SWIFTEST ACTION THROUGHOUT THE WORLD IN HANDLING THEM.

WRITING ON TRENDS IN THE TURKISH, SWEDISH AND SPANISH PRESS, THE "OBSERVER"--WHO WELL MAY BE ANYBODY--IN IZVESTIA TODAY ACCUSED CERTAIN SECTIONS OF THE FOREIGN PRESS OF PROPAGANDA TRICKS WHICH "REVEAL WHAT DIFFICULTIES THE UNITED NATIONS WILL MEET IN THEIR EFFORTS TO PUNISH WAR CRIMINALS."

AS FOR TWO OF THE WAR CRIMINALS, ADOLF HITLER AND PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS, THE RUSSIANS HAVE NEVER ANNOUNCED THEY WERE SATISFIED THAT THE BODIES FOUND IN BERLIN WERE THOSE OF THE FALLEN FUEHRER AND HIS PROPAGANDIST.

BUT BELIEF IS STRENGTHENED HERE THAT THEY MAY NOW BE DEAD.

ALL PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE BODIES, TOGETHER WITH VARIOUS OTHER EVIDENCE, ARE UNDERGOING THE CLOSEST SCRUTINY AND IT PERHAPS MAY BE SOME TIME YET BEFORE A DEFINITE ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE.

MADRID, MAY 13--(AP)--A REPRESENTATIVE OF FOREIGN RELIEF ORGANIZATIONS SAID TODAY THAT A NUMBER OF MEN WITHOUT COUNTRIES ARE HELD AMONG THE "POLITICO-CRIMINAL" PRISONERS OF SPAIN'S NOTORIOUS NANCLARES DE LA OCA CONCENTRATION CAMP.

THE INVESTIGATOR SAID HE TALKED TO 50 SUCH PRISONERS DURING A BRIEF VISIT TO THE CAMP AND DISCOVERED THAT AMONG THOSE HELD WERE "STATELESS PERSONS OF GERMAN, POLISH, AUSTRIAN, FRENCH AND ITALIAN ORIGIN AND RECOGNIZED ITALIANS, ARGENTINES, DOMINICANS, PANAMANIANS AND OTHERS, MOST OF WHOM HAVE LIVED IN SPAIN SINCE BEFORE THE CIVIL WAR."

"ALL THE FOREIGNERS HAVE BEEN ORDERED EXPELLED FROM SPAIN BUT THERE IS NO WAY FOR THEM TO LEAVE THE COUNTRY," THE WORKER REPORTED. "MANY OF THEM SAY THEY ARE COMPLETELY IGNORANT WHY THEY ARE IN THE CAMP. THE MEN COMPLAIN THEY ARE BEING TREATED LIKE COMMON CRIMINALS AND BEASTS."

HE SAID THE INMATES APPEALED TO HIM TO FIND SOME MEANS OF HALTING FLOGGINGS, REDUCTION OF THE ALREADY INSUFFICIENT FOOD RATIONS AND THE SHAVING OF HEADS -- ALL STANDARD MEANS OF DISCIPLINE.

THE PRISONERS REPORTED CASES IN WHICH INMATES HAD BEEN FLOGGED TO DEATH AND REPEATED PREVIOUS CHARGES THAT MOST OF THE CAMP'S OFFICERS AND GUARDS WERE PRO-GERMAN AND PRO-NAZI AND SHOWED THEIR PERSONAL FEELINGS TOWARD ANTI-NAZI PRISONERS.

MINISTER OF JUSTICE EDUARDO AUNOS, AFTER CONDUCTING FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS ON A PRISON TOUR TO SHOW STEPS TAKEN BY THE FRANCO GOVERNMENT TO ALLEVIATE JAIL CONDITIONS, SAID THERE WERE 18,000 "POLITICO-CRIMINALS" IN THE LISTS BUT THESE INCLUDE ONLY THOSE AGAINST WHOM CHARGES HAVE BEEN BOOKED FORMALLY AND WHO HAVE BEEN TURNED OVER TO THE MINISTRY OF JUSTICE.

PERSONS ARRESTED BY THE FALANGE POLICE FREQUENTLY ARE HELD FOR MONTHS IN JAILS OPERATED BY VARIOUS ORGANIZATIONS UNDER THE MINISTRY OF INTERIOR OR IN MILITARY PRISONS.

THERE HAVE BEEN REPORTS THAT THE GOVERNMENT SOON WOULD ANNOUNCE THAT EXECUTION OF POLITICAL PRISONERS WOULD BE STOPPED, BUT THE ORDER HAS NOT BEEN ISSUED AND AS FAR AS COULD BE ASCERTAINED SUCH EXECUTIONS ARE CONTINUING.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN NORTHERN MINDANAO, MAY 11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-WHEN THE JAPANESE TURNED AND RAN YESTERDAY THEY MADE A BIG MISTAKE--ONE THAT IS SURE TO SHORTEN THE MINDANAO CAMPAIGN.

WHEN TOUGHENED TROOPS OF THE 40TH U.S.DIVISION LANDED AT THE PRE-WAR PINEAPPLE CANNERY TOWN OF BUGOS, THE JAPANESE TOOK OFF FOR THE MOUNTAINS WITHOUT OFFERING OPPOSITION, PROBABLY THINKING THEY WOULD HAVE TIME TO DEFEND THE ONLY FEASIBLE APPROACH TO THE CENTRAL MINDANAO PLAIN.

BUT THESE JUNGLE-WISE VETERANS OF MAJ.GEN.RAPP BRUSH'S DIVISION MOVED SO FAST THAT BY MIDAFTERNOON TODAY THEY WERE MORE THAN 14 MILES INLAND AND, MORE IMPORTANT, UP ON A HARD, FLAT PLATEAU.

LED BY LIEUT.COL.MAURICE STRATTA, LOS ANGELES, THE TROOPS ARE ONLY A MILE FROM THE FAMOUS DEL MONTE PINEAPPLE PLANTATION AND THE NEARBY DEL MONTE AIRFIELDS. THEY ARE ONLY 60 MILES FROM MAJ. GEN.CLARENCE MARTIN'S 31ST DIVISION AT MARAMAG AIRDROME.

BETWEEN THESE TWO AMERICAN FORCES ARE THOUSANDS OF JAPANESE, AND HARD FIGHTING IS IN PROSPECT. THE NIPPONESE COMMANDER, ONE OFFICER POINTED OUT, LOST THE BATTLE WHEN HE LET STRATT'S BOYS GET AN EASY FOOTHOLD ON THE PLATEAU.

TO REACH THE HIGH COUNTRY THE YANKS CLIMBED 1,500 FEET FROM SEA LEVEL. THE ONLY FEASIBLE ROUTE WAS THE SAYRE HIGHWAY THROUGH A PRECIPITOUS GORGE.

EVERY CURVE IN THE ROAD CONTAINED ENEMY DEFENSES SET UP FOR INTENSE CROSS FIRE. NEAR THE TOP, WHERE THE JUNGLE GIVES WAY TO THICK GRASS, EACH KNOLL WAS DEVELOPED TO COVER THE HIGHWAY--YET ALL THESE DEFENSES WERE UNMANNED. BRIDGES WERE INTACT.

GUAM, MONDAY, MAY 14-(AP)-THE JAPANESE, DRIVEN TO DESPERATION BY THE WAR'S STUNNING IMPACT ON THEIR HOME SHORES, ARE THROWING PLANES WITH UNPRECEDENTED FEROCITY AGAINST U.S. PACIFIC FLEET AND THE QUESTION ARISES: HOW LONG CAN THEY PAY THE TOLL WE ARE EXACTING?

IN LESS THAN TWO MONTHS--SINCE MARCH 18, WHEN PRELIMINARIES TO THE OKINAWA INVASION STARTED--THE JAPANESE HAVE LOST 3,168 AIRCRAFT DESTROYED. SEVERAL TIMES IN THE PAST SEVEN WEEKS, A SINGLE DAY'S BAG HAS BEEN FROM 100 TO 200.

FROM MARCH 18 TO APRIL 18, THE FIRST MONTH OF THE RYUKYUS OPERATION, 2569 NIPPONESE AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED.

MANY MILITARY MEN BELIEVE THESE LOSSES STRUCK A CRIPPLING BLOW TO ENEMY AIR POWER, PARTICULARLY WHEN COUPLED WITH HEAVY B-29 RAIDS AGAINST JAPANESE INDUSTRY. NIPPON'S CAPACITY FOR AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION HAS BEEN ESTIMATED VARIOUSLY FROM 1,200 TO 1,500 MONTHLY, FAR UNDER RECENT MONTHLY LOSSES.

A MARINE WIR WING COMBAT PILOT ON OKINAWA TOLD ME A COUPLE OF WEEKS AGO HE BELIEVED THE JAPANESE ARE USING OBSOLETE PLANES IN OKINAWA SORTIES. SOME OF THEIR BOMBERS ARE COMING OUT WITHOUT REAR GUNNERS, HE SAID, AND MANY HE ENCOUNTERED DEFINITELY WERE OF OLDER TYPES.

MAY 14 1945

"LOTS OF TIMES IT'S LIKE SHOOTING SITTING DUCKS," HE SAID. "WE JUST OVERTAKE THEM AND SHOOT THEM DOWN. IT'S AS EASY AS THAT."

THIS MARINE FLIER ALSO SAID THE QUALITY OF JAPANESE PILOTS APPARENTLY IS DETERIORATING SHARPLY, PERHAPS REFLECTING THEIR SACRIFICE OF FLIERS IN SUICIDE ATTACKS.

"I THINK NOW THEY ARE JUST TEACHING PILOTS HOW TO TAKE OFF AND LAND," HE SAID. "IN THE CASE OF SUICIDE PILOTS, MAYBE THEY ARE JUST TEACHING THEM HOW TO TAKE OFF."

THE SECOND MARINE AIR WING DESTROYED 209 JAPANESE PLANES FROM THE START OF ITS OPERATIONS FROM OKINAWA EARLY IN APRIL TO MAY 10. A GLANCE AT FLEET ADM. CHESTER W.NIMITZ' COMMUNIQUES REVEALS EXTENT OF THE DAILY ENEMY LOSSES.

MAY 10--40 ENEMY AIRCRAFT SHOT DOWN.
MAY 9---168 DESTROYED.
MAY 3---17 DESTROYED.
APRIL 28-29--104 DESTROYED IN NIGHT-MORNING RAIDS

MAY 14 1945

FROM MARCH 18 TO APRIL 4, VICE ADM. MARC A.MITSCHER'S FAST CARRIER TASK FORCES DOWNED 841 IN COMBAT, 73 BY SHIPS' GUNFIRE AND 363 ON THE GROUND IN RAIDS ON ENEMY HELD ISLANDS.

THE UNITED STATES OF COURSE HAS NOT BEEN INFLICTING THESE LOSSES WITHOUT DAMAGE. A RECAPITULATION DISCLOSES THAT BETWEEN MARCH 18 AND APRIL 18, 18 AMERICAN VESSELS WERE REPORTED SUNK. THESE INCLUDED FIVE DESTROYERS, TWO MINECRAFT, ONE DESTROYER-TRANSPORT AND TEN AUXILIARIES.

THERE HAVE BEEN SOME LOSSES SINCE AND NUMEROUS AMERICAN VESSELS HAVE BEEN DAMAGED.

JAPANESE REACHED AN ALL TIME LOW IN AERIAL WARFARE APRIL 18 WHEN A SUICIDE PILOT CRASHED INTO A BRIGHTLY LIGHTED, PLAINLY MARKED HOSPITAL SHIP, THE U.S.S. COMFORT, KILLING 29 AND INJURING 33, WITH ONE MISSING.

NO SINGLE EVENT OF THE OPERATION SO INFURIATED AMERICAN TROOPS ON OKINAWA OR SOLIDIFIED THEIR DETERMINATION TO EXTERMINATE JAPANESE ON THE ISLAND.

DESPITE ALMOST DAILY ATTEMPTS, JAPANESE PLANES HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO INFLICT APPRECIABLE DAMAGE ON AMERICAN SHORE INSTALLATIONS ON OKINAWA. MOST WERE DEFLECTED OR DESTROYED BY THE OUTER SCREEN OF WARSHIPS.

A FEW GET THROUGH THE SCREEN. THEIR CHIEF OBJECTIVE SEEMED TO BE YONTAN AND KATENA AIRFIELDS, BUT NOT ONCE TO MY KNOWLEDGE WERE OPERATIONS ON EITHER SERIOUSLY INTERFERED WITH.

FALLING FRAGMENTS FROM OUR HEAVY ANTIAIRCRAFT PROBABLY DID MORE ACTUAL DAMAGE THAN COMBINED EFFORTS OF JAPANESE PILOTS. THERE IS NO GETTING AROUND THE FACT THEY WERE A NUISANCE, HOWEVER.

THE JAPANESE UNDOUBTEDLY ARE THROWING ALL AVAILABLE POWER INTO THE RYUKYUS AIR STRIKES ALTHOUGH IT IS ONLY REASONABLE TO ASSUME THEY ARE SAVING SOMETHING IN PREPARATION FOR AN ASSAULT ON THE HOME ISLANDS.

THESE BY ALL ODDS ARE THE HEAVIEST JAPANESE AIR OPERATIONS SINCE THE BATTLE OF GUADALCANAL IN THE SOLOMONS. THEY MADE FREQUENT RAIDS AT LEYTE, IN THE PHILIPPINES, BUT SELDOM IN FORCE.

DETERMINATION OF THE PRESENT JAPANESE AIR THRUSTS IS NOT SURPRISING IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT OKINAWA IS TO BECOME A BASE OF ALLIED OPERATIONS AGAINST JAPAN, ONLY 325 MILES TO THE NORTH.

OKINAWA, MAY 11-(DELAYED)-(VIA NAVY RADIO)(AP)-TWO U.S. DESTROYERS FOUGHT OFF REPEATED JAPANESE AIR ATTACKS FOR EIGHT HOURS AND TOGETHER AND INDIVIDUALLY SET RECORDS FOR THE NUMBER OF ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED TODAY.

ONE DESTROYER IS OFFICIALLY CREDITED WITH BRINGING DOWN 19 JAPANESE PLANES AND SOME OF ITS OFFICERS SAID THEY BELIEVED THE GUNNERS ACTUALLY GOT 22.

ANOTHER DESTROYER CLAIMED AT LEAST 15 KILLS. BOTH SCORES CONSTITUTED NEW RECORDS FOR SHIP'S ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, OBSERVERS SAID, AND GIVE ONLY A PARTIAL PICTURE OF THE HEROIC STRUGGLE WHICH UNITS OF THE FLEET ARE PUTTING UP TO KEEP OKINAWA FREE OF JAPANESE AIR ATTACK.

THEY SUCCEEDED PERFECTLY TODAY.

THE JAPANESE SENT AROUND A HUNDRED PLANES OF ALL TYPES--POWERFUL NEW BOMBERS, TORPEDO PLANES, DIVE BOMBERS, AND OUTMODED PLANES WHOSE ONLY APPARENT PURPOSE WAS SUICIDE.

MAY 14 1945

MORE THAN HALF OF THOSE PLANES NEVER RETURNED TO BASE. ONLY A FEW BOMBS AND SUICIDE PLANES HIT TARGETS, INFLICTING SOME DAMAGE AND CASUALTIES, BUT FAILING TO SINK A SINGLE SHIP.

THE SHIP ON WHICH THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MORGENTHAU'S SON, LIEUT. ROBERT MORGENTHAU, IS EXECUTIVE OFFICER, DOWNED TWO ZEKES AND ONE TOJO.

REAR ADM.L.F. REIFSNIDER'S FLAGSHIP SWERVED JUST IN TIME TO MISS TWO TORPEDOES AND MANAGED TO BRING DOWN ONE NIPPONESE PLANE.

THE JAPANESE RAIDED PERSISTENTLY FROM 1 A.M. TO 9:30 A.M. WITH THE BIGGEST AND STRONGEST ATTACKS COMING AFTER DAYLIGHT. SHORE GUNS SHOT DOWN A FEW THAT GOT OVER THE ISLAND, BUT AIR PATROLS ACCOUNTED FOR THE GREATEST NUMBER.

ATTACKS WERE THE HOTTEST WHERE THE TWO DESTROYERS BROUGHT DOWN THEIR AMAZING TOTAL. SAID MATTHIAS CASEY, SEAMAN 1/C OF DORCHESTER, MASS.

HOMER PEDERSON, SEAMAN 1/C, OF AMES, IA., SAID ONE 40MM GUNNER, ROBERT STONELAKE OF ERIE, PA., "GOT ONE PLANE BY HIMSELF. OTHER GUNNERS WERE FIRING AT OTHER TARGETS AND STONELAKE HAD A SUICIDE PLANE ALL TO HIMSELF AND SHOT IT INTO THE WATER WELL SHORT OF US."

WASHINGTON, MAY 13-(AP)-BRIG. GEN. HINES, HEAD OF THE VETERANS' ADMINISTRATION, TONIGHT URGED JOBLESS VETERANS NOT TO DRAW ON THEIR GI BILL OF RIGHTS UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS UNLESS "ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY."

HINES LIKENED THE READJUSTMENT ALLOWANCES PROVIDED BY CONGRESS TO A "ONE-WAY BANK ACCOUNT." UNDER PRESENT LAW, HE SAID THROUGH A DEPARTMENT SPOKESMAN, THERE IS NO PROVISION TO REPLENISH A VETERAN'S UNEMPLOYMENT FUND AFTER HE HAS DRAWN UPON IT FOR 52 WEEKS.

IF A VETERAN SHOULD REMAIN UNEMPLOYED FOR A FULL YEAR AFTER BEING DISCHARGED AND SHOULD RECEIVE UNEMPLOYMENT PAYMENTS DURING ALL OF THAT TIME HE WOULD HAVE NO GI BILL PROTECTION IF HE SHOULD LOSE HIS JOB AT A LATER DATE.

THE ADMINISTRATION ESTIMATED THE NUMBER OF UNEMPLOYED VETERANS ABLE TO WORK AT ONLY A LITTLE MORE THAN ONE PER CENT OF THE MEN WHO HAVE BEEN RELEASED BY THE SERVICES.

GEN. HINES IS DISTURBED MAINLY BECAUSE THE MEN WHO DRAW OUT PART OF THEIR UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS ARE FACED WITH DECREASED JOB INSURANCE.

MAY 14 1945

THE SPOKESMAN ADDED THAT IF CONGRESS SHOULD VOTE A BONUS FOR VETERANS, SUMS DRAWN OUT UNDER THE GI BILL PROBABLY WOULD BE DEDUCTIBLE FROM THE BONUS.

Americans on Okinawa Capture Key Hill, Then Occupy Airstrip in Hard Fighting

Overrun Key Hill At Shuri

Patrols Reported Operating Within Ruins Of Island's Capital.

FOE AGAIN HITS INVASION FLEET

One Major Ship And Two Light Units Damaged —Japs Pay Heavily.

By Al Dopking

GUAM, Tuesday, May 15 (AP) — Infantrymen of Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley's 96th Division captured the Yonabaru airdrome in a 2,400-yard surge down the east coast of Okinawa yesterday and overran a key hill nearby to form the jaw of a pincers on the fortress city of Shuri.

On the west flank, Maj. Gen. Lemuel Shepherd Jr.'s Sixth Marine Division still was held on the north bank of the Asato river in the northern section of Naha, but patrols presumably were operating well within the shattered ruins of the Okinawa capital.

Enemy Resists Bitterly

The Japanese were resisting bitterly all along the line with artillery, mortar and small-arms fire.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced this progress today in a communique which reported 46 Japanese planes shot down in attacks on American fleet groups. One major fleet vessel and two light units were damaged.

Japanese aircraft again pounced on the American invasion fleet off Okinawa Sunday evening, causing some damage to two light surface units. Twenty-five enemy planes were shot down, eight of them by destroyers' guns.

Enemy aircraft bombed installations ashore on Okinawa on Monday but failed to cause material damage.

U. S. carrier task forces were attacked by Japanese planes on Monday, and one ship was reported damaged. Twenty-one Japanese planes were shot down in this raid.

Third Major Airdrome Taken

Yonabaru airfield was the third major airdrome on the Okinawa mainland seized by the Yanks. They took the Katena and Yontan fields shortly after the April 1 invasion. Later a large airdrome nearby was secured.

A prime objective of the southward push is the Naha airdrome, about two miles south of Naha. This is the largest airdrome in the entire Ryukyu chain.

Nimitz reported that two rifle companies of the 96th Infantry Division completed capture of Conical Hill on Sunday. The hill is 2,500 yards east of Shuri. Its seizure, Nimitz said, "permitted our left flank to advance 2,400 yards southward along the east coast, bringing Yonabaru airstrip into our possession."

Heavy gunfire by ships of the Pacific fleet and bombing and strafing attacks on enemy positions by carrier and land-based planes closely supported the ground operations.

Since Okinawa was invaded the tenth Army has captured or destroyed 386 enemy guns of 70 millimeter caliber or larger.

British carrier planes bombed airfields on Mikayo Island in the Sakishima group of the southern Ryukyus on Saturday and Sunday, hitting buildings, dumps and other targets at Hirara town. A large oil fire was started. Two Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground.

Fleet patrol planes again penetrating waters around Korea sank a small oiler, a medium sized freighter and a small freighter-transport on Sunday. Another medium sized freighter transport was damaged and left burning.

Japs Lose Heavily in Vessels

Nimitz announced that from the beginning of the Okinawa campaign through Sunday, naval planes of Fleet Airwing One alone had sunk 71,906 tons of enemy shipping, damaged 70,150 tons and destroyed six aircraft. Three American planes were lost, but all personnel were rescued.

Planes of Fleet Airwing 18 damaged five small cargo ships, a lugger and a fishing craft south of Japan's main island of Honshu on Sunday. Two trains on the mainland coast were stopped with strafing and rocket attacks.

Conical Hill, from which the enemy directed heavy gunfire on the American lines, was assaulted Monday morning after several days of relentless pounding by artillery. It is 480 feet high.

Troops led by Capt. Stanley B. Sutton of Newton, Pa., and 1st Lt. Owen R. O'Neil of Doniphan, Mo. ascended the barren slopes of the hill under heavy mortar fire.

Marines Fight in Suburbs

As this key position was assaulted, Sixth Division Marines mopped up resistance pockets and fought in the suburbs of Naha, the island capital that is a city of debris.

The First Marine Division hurled back a savage counterattack by Japanese attempting to blunt the west prong of the pincer movement shaping up around the key defenses of Shuri, in the center of the enemy defensive wall. Two hundred and fifty enemy dead were counted yesterday morning after the assault failed.

Another 250 were reported slain in action in the afternoon around Dakeshi, where the 77th Infantry Division lunged ahead against Escarpment Hill No. 187 to consolidate its line with that of the First Marines.

An attempted amphibious landing behind the Marine lines on the west coast, north of the Asa River, was repulsed shortly after Sunday midnight. Forty Japanese were killed and their six landing craft destroyed.

Marine Lieut. Col. Robert W. Thomas of the Amphibous Corps said the enemy was using antitank guns, satchel charges and tank mines in an effort to stall the American offensive which is driving to clear the southern end of Okinawa. The remainder of this island only 325 miles from Japan already has been conquered.

Thomas, whose home is in Oswego, Ore., said the Nipponese had organized special antitank teams to try to cope with American armored units.

Hammer U. S. Forward Positions

Enemy artillery continues to hammer forward Yank elements through the day, laying down harassing fire at night. Their observers, Thomas said, are using carrier pigeons for communications with their batteries.

A seven-man patrol late Sunday got nearly across Asato river, last natural barrier before Naha, but was forced to turn back because of mud. One member, Pfc. Harold L. Maddocks of Fort Fairfield, Maine, said it was one of the scariest jobs he had ever had.

Bitter fighting raged last night around clusters of hills in the neighborhood of the enemy's eastern anchor position. The Americans drew withering fire from high ground still in Japanese hands along the coast.

In one of these local clashes units of the 77th division fought savagely for a height called Chocolate Drop Hill. During the battle an artillery observer, S-Sgt. John F. McFarland of Pawtucket, R. I., spotted a clump of trees he did not remember seeing before. It turned out to be an enemy tank, which had penetrated to within 100 yards of American tanks.

NEW JAP RESERVES ARE THROWN INTO FIGHT FOR OKINAWA

Yanks Drive Into Outskirts of Shell-blasted Capital—Attack Hill Position.

Guam, May 14 (A. P.).—Japanese threw in fresh reserves today and laid down thunderous artillery barrages in an effort to halt a powerful American offensive which had reached the outskirts of Naha, the shell-blasted and heavily mined capital of Okinawa.

The Marines advanced into the outskirts of Naha's business district, and foot soldiers carried out a fierce assault on a hill position near the center of the Okinawa line from which the Japs were directing their artillery fire.

Many enemy troops killed in the Okinawa sector wore new uniforms, indicating that they were probably reserves witnessing their first action in the bitter battle for Japan's "back door" island. The enemy's defense was growing more desperate every hour, and in addition to anti-tank guns and mines, savage one-man sorties by Japanese carrying satchel charges of explosives were increasing.

Cut Mainly to Rubble.

The Japanese artillery, roaring constantly by day, simmers down to a harassing fire by night as the enemy defends a city reduced largely to rubble.

The Marines, moving down the west coast, fought fiercely to the northern bank of the Asato, which runs through the city. Here the fanatical Japanese were throwing artillery, mortars and considerable small-arms fire into the tank-led American column in an effort to keep it from crossing the last water barrier before Naha.

Yanks Scale Conical Hill.

Behind the Marine lines a Japanese force attempted yesterday to make a counter-landing near the Machinato airfield but failed disastrously. Guns from ships and shore broke up the amphibious force and sank every landing boat.

Inland the First Marine Division broke up a strong counter-attack and then moved southeastward from the village of Dakeshi against the approaches to the major enemy stronghold of Shuri, the second city of Okinawa. The Yanks were steadily tightening a noose on Shuri, a veritable fortress city. The 383d Regiment, Ninety-sixth Infantry Division, scaled Conical Hill, about one mile from Shuri, and the Seventy-seventh Infantry Division, meantime, took high ground near Conical Hill. The Seventh-seventh was under some of the heaviest mortar and artillery fire of the Okinawa campaign.

A few enemy planes approached American shipping at Okinawa yesterday but caused no damage. A strong Jap air fleet on Friday damaged several fleet units. In all, ninety-three attacking planes were shot down. Seventy-six enemy aircraft were destroyed in other actions for a one-day total of 169.

A major unit of the American fleet was damaged by air attack the same day as carrier planes made low-level attacks on the Amami group of the Ryukyus, north of Okinawa.

Figures Show Low Okinawa Mortality Rate

Less Wounded Than In Any Other Central Pacific Action.

WITH THE TENTH ARMY ON OKINAWA, May 14 (AP) — The mortality rate of American wounded on Okinawa so far is among the lowest of any Central Pacific action.

Latest casualty figures on the Okinawa fighting show 3,967 American dead. This count is incomplete.

Col. Wm. Frederick B. Westervelt of Carlisle, Pa., Tenth Army surgeon, said today that less than 3 per cent of casualties had died in this campaign compared to an average of 6 to 8 per cent in other operations in this theater.

Even so, he said, it still is higher than in Europe where the mortality rate among wounded was 2.8 per cent. He attributed the higher mortality rate of Pacific war casualties to lack of combat type hospitals.

Wounded Moved

More than 6,000 of Okinawa's wounded Americans have been removed by plane to Guam, Honolulu, San Francisco and points east. The removal program is one of the biggest in this war particularly in distances involved.

The 6,000 patients flown average 20 hours each in the air, said Army Capt. John C. Turley, Memphis, Tenn., Okinawa's air evacuation surgeon for the Army transport.

Colonel Westervelt in speaking of the mortality rate said that heavy demand on combat hospitals by the European theatre left Pacific medics only with field hospitals "intended for garrison casualties rather than combat ones."

Now with the European war ended he expects the combat type out here.

Casualties Light

He said that while casualties were few in the opening days of the Okinawa campaign they now are mounting and sometimes are as many as 200 a day. He said, however, the casualty load is about as expected and hospital facilities never have bogged down although "some cases have to wait as long as 24 hours" before receiving attention.

Lt. Cmdr. H. E. Hinman, 120 Main St., Orono, Me., handles Okinawa air evacuations for the Naval Air Transport Service.

Since the start of operations, the army has flown out over 2,000 patients and the navy over 4,000. Both services fly C-54s.

Another Surrenders.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 14 (A. P.).—A German submarine surrendered today at Bay Bulls, ten miles south of St. Johns.

Eisenhower Cracks Down Sharply On Friendly Treatment of Nazis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, May 14 — General Eisenhower cracked down sharply on senior American officers for their reported friendly treatment of high German war prisoners today after the British press expressed hot indignation at the "sheer impertinence" of Nazi leaders and German officers since Germany's surrender.

"We have got to watch these Germans," The London Evening News warned. "Unless we are very careful, they are going to get away with it again."

Eisenhower said:

"My attention has been called to press reports of instances of senior United States officers treating captured Nazi and high German officials on a 'friendly enemy' basis. Any such incident has been in direct violation of my express and long standing orders.

Takes Drastic Measures

"Drastic measures have been set in motion to assure termination of these errors forthwith.

"Moreover," Eisenhower continued, "any past instances of this nature are by no means indicative of the attitude of this Army, but are results of faulty judgment of individuals concerned, who will be personally acquainted with expressions of my definite disapproval.

"In the name of this great force and on my own, I regret these occurrences."

While Eisenhower did not single out any officer for public censure, it was recalled that when Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering surrendered to the U. S. Seventh army last week at Kitzbuehl in Austria he was treated with considerable deference.

An Associated Press field dispatch said the former head of the Luftwaffe was given a lunch of chicken and peas in a hotel parlor after "brief greetings and a handshake" and later posted for pictures with Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, commander of the 36th division, and with Brig. Gen. Robert J. Stack, assistant division commander.

30.24 – 25763

The Paris radio carried a report, unconfirmed at Allied headquarters, that an unidentified American officer of high rank had dinner with Goering on at least one occasion since the latter's capture. Eisenhower said all the information he had came from press reports.

Storm of Indignation

The handling of Goering aroused a storm of indignation in London, where The News-Chronicle declared that "Hermann Goering is an evil, cruel murderer to whom justice must be done. Because he is fat he is not kind."

The Evening News termed "intolerable" the Flensburg radio announcement that German Field Marshal Ernst Busch had taken over command of the Schleswig-Holstein areas occupied by British troops.

The Evening Star said it was "sheer impertinence" that Busch should claim command of any area of surrendered Germany and declared that "these men should be caged up like prisoners of war. Doenitz (Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz) should be transferred immediately to a concentration camp for war criminals."

Concern was expressed openly that Nazi leaders and Prussian generals in Allied hands might create a postwar issue. So far there had been no public announcement by the Allied governments on how German leaders were to be treated, other than broad declarations that war criminals would be brought to trial.

The United Nations War Crimes commission has acted cautiously, keeping secret the names of persons they have listed for trial. All of today's heated editorials appeared before Eisenhower gave his expression of regret.

The conservative Yorkshire Post found it "disturbing to find a creature with Goering's deplorable record posing for photographs with an air of benign condescension before retiring into grandiose captivity in a castle."

The Communist Daily Worker quoted the Soviet government newspaper as declaring "it is surprising that this bandit Goering is being cared for instead of being tried and hanged immediately as a murderer and a gangster."

In view of Gen. Eisenhower's sharp statement today, London is watching with close interest the Americans' handling of Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, tank expert and former chief of the German general staff, who was captured yesterday by the Seventh.

4 RED ARMIES SMASHING LAST NAZI POCKETS

Overrun Holdout Areas in Czecho-Slovakia and in Austria.

360,000 GERMANS ARE TAKEN

MAY 15 1945

Mopping Up of Die-hard Troops Is Nearly Complete—SS General Is Seized.

London, May 14 (A. P.).—The last small pockets of German die-hard resistance in Czecho-Slovakia and Austria were being overrun by four Russian Armies today as the Moscow radio announced the rounding up of 360,000 additional Nazi troops in the past twenty-four hours.

Five days after fanatical German troops refused to lay down their arms and continued to fight against the Red Army, Moscow declared that troops of the First, Second, Third and Fourth Ukranian armies had closed in on Nazi positions in Austria's Alpine regions and the woods of Czecho-Slovakia and "were clearing the occupied area of isolated German troop groupings." It appeared the mopping up was almost complete.

The Russians announced that the total number of Germans captured since Tuesday had swelled to 1,060,000, boosting to 2,860,000 the number killed or captured since the final Russian drive began on January 12, and to 12,600,000 the number killed or captured in nearly four years of war, according to Soviet count.

Toll of Prisoners Grows.

German captives were being rapidly corralled into prisoner camps to join thousands of their comrades being shipped across Poland to be put to work restoring Russia's war-damaged cities. In the last day of the round-up in Czecho-Slovakia and Austria, Moscow revealed that equipment relinquished by the Germans included 1,258 planes, 1,842 tanks and 6,618 field guns.

The German forces which had resisted the Russians in violation of unconditional surrender terms were commanded by Field Marshal Gen. Ferdinand Schoerner and Col.-Gen. Otto Woehler, but neither officer was reported to be among Nazis seized. The Russians have named Schoerner a war criminal.

Among those surrendering, however, was a Major-Gen. Backer, commander of the Third SS (Death's Head) Tank Division, who gave himself up to Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army.

MAY 15 1945

Other Nazis Giving Up.

Huge numbers of Germans were being herded into concentration areas elsewhere on the eastern front. More than 181,032 Germans were taken prisoner in Latvia, while another 74,939 were rounded up in the Baltic coast area of Danzig and Gdynia.

Dispatches to Moscow said the last German remnants were using every trick, including changing their uniforms for civilian clothes, to avoid capture by the Red Army.

A dispatch from Radstadt, Austria, said the American Third Division made contact on May 12 with three armies—the Russian, the British Eighth and the American Third. The Russians were encountered on the south bank of the Ems River south of Liezen.

DOOLITTLE IS OUT AS 8TH AF CHIEF

Turns Over Command To Kepner, Heads For New Post

London, May 14 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle, who led the war's first bombing blow at Tokyo and then directed the United States 8th Air Force in its victorious blasting of Germany, turned over his European command to a colleague today amid immediate speculation that he would return to the Pacific conflict.

An official announcement from the United States Strategic Air Force in Europe said only that Doolittle would return to Washington headquarters of the United States Army Air Forces "for a new assignment," but in his final press conference here Friday the famous speed flyer showed his thoughts were centered now on the Japanese.

Part Of 8th To Pacific

"So far as Japan is concerned, our basic strategy will be weakening the enemy from the air to enable occupation of the land by ground forces," he explained, adding that the burden of bombing Nippon would be carried by the B-29 Superforts with B-17 Fortresses and B-24 Liberators employed as medium bombers.

Part of the 8th Air Force he headed will go directly to the Pacific although considerable numbers will be kept in the European theater as part of the Allied occupational air force and others will return to the United States for reassignment.

Doolittle was succeeded as 8th Air Force commander by Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, one of America's most distinguished aeronautical experts.

Is Scientific Pioneer

Known as a pioneer in work with Zeppelins and for balloon ascensions into the stratosphere, the 52-year-old Kepner has been commander of the 8th Air Force's 2d Bomber Division. Previously he headed its fighter command.

He holds virtually every aeronautical rating for both heavier and lighter-than-air craft. He has served in the Marines, on detached duty with the Navy and in both the army's infantry and cavalry.

A native of Kokomo, Ind., Kepner ran away at the age of 16 and has been in some branch of the fighting service ever since. His wife, Mrs. Jean Wilcox Kepner, lives at Clarksville, Tenn.

The Hard Way

Doolittle at 48 is one of the nation's best-known flyers—one whose name was familiar to millions long before he personally led the raid on Tokyo April 18, 1942. He started his army career as a private in 1917 and reached his present rank of lieutenant general the hard way.

He started making record-breaking cross-country flights in 1922 and became one of the nation's top speed merchants, winning the Harmon and Bendix trophies.

Returning to the air corps in 1940, he first helped gear American factories for plane production, then went to England on a special mission to study air warfare. He came back to lead the Tokyo attack by B-25 Mitchell medium bombers, which took off from a carrier. This feat won for him the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Doolittle took command of the 8th Air Force in January, 1944, and his achievements during the final assault on Germany have been credited even by leading enemy commanders as one of the chief reasons for the swift and crushing defeat of the Nazi armies.

Showdown Is Near.

London, May 14 (A. P.).—Sections of the British press today demanded that Grand Admiral Doenitz and German generals claiming authority in parts of the Reich be thrown into concentration camps. Concern was expressed openly that Nazi leaders and Prussian generals in Allied hands may create a post-war issue.

The London Evening Star said it is sheer impertinence that Doenitz and others—specifically Field Marshal Ernst Busch, who calls himself commander in the northern area—claim command of any area of surrendered Germany. Doenitz succeeded Hitler as Fuehrer while Berlin was falling.

"These men should be caged up like prisoners of war," the Star said. "Doenitz should be transferred immediately to a concentration camp for war criminals."

A showdown appeared imminent on Allied treatment of captured Nazi leaders and generals.

"We have got to watch these Germans," the London Evening News said. "Unless we are very careful, they are going to get away with it again."

The News called intolerable the Flensburg radio announcement that Busch had taken over command of the Schleswig-Holstein areas occupied by Field Marshal Montgomery's troops.

The American Army's handling of Field Marshal von Rundstedt and Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, and the diplomatic maneuvers of Baron Franz von Papen were being watched closely in this capital.

Himmler Reports Differ.

The whereabouts of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler remained in doubt today as unconfirmed reports that he was in Allied custody were followed by equally unauthenticated assertions that he is still hiding out somewhere in Germany.

A dispatch from Paris declared Himmler to be in Allied custody after being put under arrest by Doenitz, but Supreme Headquarters said it had "no confirmation of the rumor." A BBC broadcast later said Himmler was still at large but "officers of the German High Command have seen Himmler within the last few days and declared he was hiding near by, guarded by SS troops."

The Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio, meanwhile said Nazi Reichsmarshal Goering would be tried for the destruction of the Czech town of Lidice and the murder of its townspeople. The broadcast added that Czech and Polish representatives would act as prosecutors and that Walter Darre, former German food minister, accused of being Goering's assistant in the Lidice massacre also would face war crimes charges.

Associated Press Correspondent Howard Cowan cabled from Germany that United States Seventh Army authorities had uncovered evidence that Goering was one of the biggest thieves the world ever has known. Cowan said investigators had found correspondence between Goering and Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi minister of civil administration in eastern occupied areas, explaining in detail how to loot museums.

Churchill Pledges All Aid To Bring About Japan's Defeat

MAY 15 1945

London, May 14 (A. P.).—The efforts of the British Empire stood pledged by Prime Minister Churchill today to the twin tasks of perfecting the peace organization of the United Nations and to joining with the United States in inflicting total defeat upon Japan.

In a worldwide broadcast address last night he made it plain that with those tasks ahead, he does not intend to relinquish voluntarily the reins of Government.

He assailed the Irish Government of Premier de Valera for remaining neutral while Britain was under attack by Germany, and said: "If it had not been for the loyalty and friendship of Northern Ireland, we should have been forced to come to close quarters with Mr. de Valera or perish forever from the earth."

But while reserving bitter words for De Valera, the Prime Minister praised the "thousands of southern Irishmen who hastened to the battle-front to prove their ancient valor" and said that because of their acts "the bitterness felt by Britain for the Irish race dies in my heart."

Mr. Churchill disclosed that the Nazis had been planning to use, in addition to rockets and flying bombs, multiple long-range artillery against London. "Only just in time did the Allied armies blast the viper in his nest," he said. "Otherwise the autumn of 1944—to say nothing of 1945—might well have seen London as shattered as Berlin."

Plans for Peace.

In perfecting a peace organization "we must make sure that those causes which we fought for find recognition at the peace table in fact as well as word," Mr. Churchill declared, adding: "Above all, we must labor that the world organization which the United Nations are creating at San Francisco does not become a shield for the strong and a mockery for the weak. It is the victors who must search their hearts in their glowing hours and be worthy by their ability of the immense forces that they wield."

There had been predictions that Churchill would mention an election to end Britain's wartime coalition Government, but he offered only an indirect comment in that connection.

"I wish I could tell you tonight that all our toils and troubles were over," he said. "Then indeed I could end my five years' service happily, and if you thought you had enough of me, and that I ought to be put out to grass, I assure you I would take it with the best of grace.

"But, on the contrary, I must warn you, as I did when I began this five years' task—and no one knew then that it would last so long—that there is still a lot to do, and that you must be prepared for further efforts of mind and body and for further sacrifices for great causes."

Pays Tribute to Eisenhower.

He declared that Britain must never forget the Pacific war, asserting: "Beyond all lurks Japan, harassed and failing, but still a people of a hundred millions, for whose warriors death has few terrors. I cannot tell you tonight how much time or what exertions will be required to compel the Japanese to make amends for their odious treachery and cruelty. We—like China, so long undaunted—have received horrible injuries from them ourselves, and we are bound by the ties of honor and fraternal loyalty to the United States to fight this great war at the other end of the world, at their side without flagging or failing."

The Prime Minister praised the British generals for their leadership, and declared. "At the same time we know how great is our debt to the combining and unifying command and high strategic direction of Gen. Eisenhower."

put, Russian spearheads arrived the next day."

Prisoners Prepared Fields

The airborne return of 7,700 Americans and 1,500 Britons from Stalag Luft No. 1—described by the 8th Air Force as one of the greatest operations of its kind ever

Prisoners Tell Of Torture Of Flyers Downed In Reich

London, May 14 (AP)—German civilians tortured and killed some American airmen forced down in Germany, one of a large group of liberated American prisoners of war said today upon returning by air from a German camp at Barth on the Baltic.

Included among the 9,200 prisoners freed from the camp, Stalag Luft No. 1, north of Berlin, were several famed United States flying aces, including Lieut. Col. Francis S. Gabreski, of Oil City, Pa., and Col. Hubert Zemke, of Mussoula, Montana.

Set Record For 8th

Gabreski, as a Thunderbolt pilot, set the present 8th Air Force record of 28 enemy planes shot down in the air and also destroyed three on the ground. Zemke, a Mustang group commander, is credited with 19½ in the air and 11 on the ground.

Evacuation of the prisoners from Barth was completed today by heavy bombers of the 8th Air Force. One of those returned, Lieut. John C. (Red) Morgan, of Amarillo, Texas, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, told of the torture of American flyers by German civilians.

Morgan, whose parents now live in New York city, was captured when his Flying Fortress exploded after being struck by flak in an attack on Berlin March 6, 1944.

Picked Up By Gunners

"I was lucky to be picked up by German flak gunners as soon as I parachuted down," he said. "Some of the other fellows who were captured by civilians were tortured and killed."

Zemke, who became one of the commanders of the prison camp at Barth after its liberation by the Russians, said the German camp commander told him on April 30 that he was going to move the camp westward to escape the Red Army.

"I asked him what would happen if we refused to be evacuated," Zemke said, "He replied that he didn't want any bloodshed and would have to abandon us. That suited us and we decided to stay undertaken—was begun Saturday by heavy bombers.

In Germany the planes landed on fields prepared by the prisoners themselves.

The ex-prisoners—some in German hands nearly five years—were exuberant at the prospect of early trips home to the United States, although some had the Pacific in mind afterward.

The prisoners said they were overcrowded and underfed in the camp, and were packed most of the time in rooms filled with double-decker bunks, heated by tiny stoves that also were used for cooking.

Kept Alive By Red Cross

"The Germans gave us two slices of black bread and a dab of margarine for breakfast, a small bowl of watery soup for lunch and two small potatoes and two turnips for supper," said Lieut. Alvin A. Gould, a Medford (Ore.) bombardier. "Occasionally we got a small chunk of meat. The only thing that kept us alive was our Red Cross packages."

During one five-month period no Red Cross packages arrived, and "some of the men almost drove themselves crazy talking about food," said Lieut. Hubert W. Fraker, Oklahoma City.

The men reported that one of the few welcome breaks in the monotony of camp life was when they saw Flying Fortresses overhead on their way to bomb German targets.

Waved At Planes

"We used to rush outside and cheer and wave at the 'Forts' despite the guards' attempts to shut us up," said Sergt. P. G. Iaveaia, North Providence, R.I. "Finally orders came through for us to remain inside our shacks when the 'enemy' was overhead."

One prisoner who unwittingly walked out of his quarters during an American air attack was shot through the head by a guard, others related.

Capt. John W. Smith, of Dry Prong, La., said he would like to be put in charge of a German prison camp. "I wouldn't hurt those Heinees physically," he said, "but I sure could make their lives miserable."

Meanwhile, the RAF flew back more than 5,500 freed Allied prisoners of war today to bring its total to 32,747 in addition to 19,954 moved from forward airfields in Germany to rear bases on the continent.

New York Bombing Attempt Reported

London, May 14 (AP)—The army newspaper Stars and Stripes, quoting what it called "sources considered reliable," said tonight the Germans had attempted to bomb New York last election day, November 7.

[In Washington the Navy Department denied any such bombing attempt had occurred. A spokesman for the Eastern Defense Command in New York said "We have no information about it.]

The article was by Andy Rooney, staff writer, and was preceded by an editor's note, saying:

"The following story was written by a Stars and Stripes correspondent who was on temporary duty with the New York bureau in November, 1944. It was withheld by Stars and Stripes until after Germany's fall."

Believed From Submarine

The article itself said:

"The bomb, presumably a jet or rocket propelled projectile, was reported to have been launched from the deck of a German submarine lying off the Atlantic coast. The attempt failed when the V-bomb either fell short of New York or was shot down by fighter pilots alerted to watch for such projectiles.

"Soldier operators at Mitchel Field said they detected the projectile on its course toward the city and decided that it had dropped into the sea."

The story went on to say that officers declined to confirm or deny the report and that the War Department refused to comment the next day, but later the Army and Navy issued a joint warning that a V-bomb attack along the Atlantic coast was "entirely possible."

The account said strong fighter reinforcements were moved into the Atlantic coast area.

U.S., Britain Reportedly Ask Tito To Quit Trieste

London, Tuesday, May 15 (AP)—The London Daily Mail said today that Britain and the United States had formally asked Marshal Tito to withdraw all his forces from the Adriatic port of Trieste and the rest of Istria while the Daily Herald reported that a British cruiser and two destroyers had arrived at the port.

The British Press Association said, however, that reports that a joint note had been sent to Tito were not confirmed in official London circles and that there was "every hope of a satisfactory settlement being reached" over Yugoslav and Italian claims to Trieste.

The Daily Mail said Premier Stalin had been informed of the reported note, adding that Tito's claim to Trieste, which Italy obtained from Austria after the last war, was recognized but that the Allies argue that the claim must be examined and proved before a competent assembly.

Queen Elizabeth Given Cosmetics By WACs

London, May 14 (AP)—American cosmetics, including lipstick, face cream and nail polish were presented to Queen Elizabeth today when she visited WAC headquarters in celebration of the third anniversary of the activation of the Women's Army Corps. The WACs had saved the cosmetics out of their rations.

When Corporal Beulah Marshall, of Lincoln, Neb., told the Queen she had been driving in Britain for eight months the Queen remarked: "The blackout was very dreadful for you drivers but please God that is a thing of the past."

1,230,000 NAZI TROOPS SURRENDER TO SOVIETS

LONDON, May 14—(AP) Moscow announced tonight that more than 1,230,000 Nazis have surrendered to the Red army since Germany's unconditional surrender.

The broadcast Russian communique, which totaled exactly 57 words, credited the figure on the number of captives to the Soviet information bureau.

This was an increase of 170,000 prisoners over the total announced yesterday.

Moscow said that in the roundup of German troops, 101 generals had been taken prisoner.

The communique implied that all resistance had ceased in Czechoslovakia, but gave no indication that Field Marshal Von Schoerner or Col. Gen. Weller, who led the prolonged fighting there, had yet been captured.

RAF LISTS 8,500 BAG OF FIGHTER COMMAND

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—The Royal Air Force Fighter Command destroyed more than 6,500 German planes and shot down nearly 2,000 flying bombs in its epic defense of Britain and destructive offensive against the Luftwaffe, an Air Ministry recapitulation of its 5½ year history showed today.

The Fighter Command had its baptism of fire Oct. 16, 1939, when it downed three of a dozen German bombers attacking shipping in the Firth of Forth. Its first big job was putting an aerial umbrella over the Dunkerque evacuation, and RAF pilots downed more than 400 German planes during that fortnight.

Outnumbered as much as eight to one in the Battle of Britain in late 1940 and in 1941, British pilots flying day and night shot down at least 2,375 Nazi raiders while losing 375 of their own men. The single day record was established Sept. 15, 1940, when 185 German planes were shot down.

RECORD UNCUT DIAMOND IS FLOWN TO ENGLAND

LONDON, May 14 — (AP) The world's largest uncut diamond—big as a hen's egg and weighing 770 carats—has arrived in England by plane from Sierra Leone, West Africa, where a native workman found it in January.

Experts said the diamond has an exceptionally fine color and quality and is believed to be the biggest ever found in an alluvial deposit. Only the Cullinan diamond, which holds the world's record for size and value, and the Excelsior, also found in Africa, exceed the new find in value.

The stone was discovered in the mines of the Sierra Leone Selection Trust company.

Complete Blood Change Saves New-Born Infant

Solihull, England, May 14 (AP)—The life of a newborn infant has been saved through a series of transfusions which gave her a complete change of blood.

Weakness stemming from a discrepancy in the parents' blood had killed the mother's three previous children.

Her latest child was delivered in a Caesarean operation and received a transfusion five minutes later. Blood then was drained from the child and more transfusions given. Doctors said the infant was normal and healthy in three weeks.

AUSTRIA RESTORES 1920 CONSTITUTION

London, May 14 (A. P.).—The Vienna radio announced today that the Austrian Government had restored the National Constitution of the Republic adopted in 1920. This action by the Government of Dr. Karl Renner, set up with Soviet approval after the liberation of Vienna, was regarded among diplomats here as a probable bid for British and American recognition, which has so far been withheld.

The proclamation called on the Austrian people to co-operate in rebuilding the republic, and promised punishment of war criminals responsible for the Nazi rule of "rape, espionage, persecution and oppression." The Government further declared it hoped for peace and treaties of friendship with many countries against which Hitler waged war.

British Judge Frees Veteran Who Killed His Wife's Lover

Bedford, England, May 14 (AP)—A British veteran of four battlefronts, whose life the judge said was "shattered by the wantonness of a woman and the wickedness of a man who betrayed a friend," was released on good behavior tonight after having been convicted of manslaughter in the shooting of his wife's lover.

It took a jury only twenty minutes to acquit Edward W. Jones, a driver in the Royal Army Signal Corps, on a charge of murder, but it convicted this veteran of North Africa, Sicily, Italy and the Western front on the lesser charge of manslaughter.

Judge Releases Him

The judge immediately released Jones, declaring:

"I do not think it necessary to inflict punishment in your case. Therefore, I shall bind you over to be of good behavior for two years."

Jones told the court of returning home on leave last New Year's Day with gifts for his wife and children. He said his wife tried to shut him out of the house, and added that later he found his wife and Bennet Bush, 35, a maintenance engineer, in the same room.

All Those Nights In Holland

"I saw Bush coming toward me," he testified. "I remembered all those nights in Holland. I remembered the face of the woman I loved looking up at him in his arms, and I thought of the way in which he had deceived me and changed my wife from the sweetest thing on earth to a deceitful woman.

"I walked out into the yard . . . the world went black. I had no interest in life whatever. He had destroyed my castle and ruined my children's lives. . . . I didn't see Bush again. The next thing I knew a man was holding my arm and leading me into the office."

WHAT YANKS DO FOR EX-CAPTIVES

Liberated Prisoners Get 'Everything' in England.

MAY 15 1945

Chisledon, England, May 14 (A. P.).—When an American prisoner of war steps out of the plane that flew him here from Germany he finds the United States Army waiting with everything he dreamed about while hungering in Nazi prison camps—ice cream, candy bars, soft drinks, movies, soft beds, overstuffed chairs.

"Every possible effort must be made to give these repatriated men an appropriate welcome and reception and every possible endeavor will be made to insure their physical comfort," said Brig.-Gen. E. F. Koenig, United Kingdom base commander.

Three-fourths of all those returned by air are brought to the 347th United States Army Station Hospital here. Most stay just long enough to establish that they are fit to go to a clearing station for transport home. If they are too ill or weak to walk to the theater, where the seats are overstuffed armchairs, they are taken in wheelchairs.

Each gets food rations for a man and a half, unless severe malnutrition compels a special diet and medical treatment.

"Most liberated prisoners are suffering from malnutrition, some very severely," said Lieut.-Col. Gordon MacRae of Duluth, commanding officer of the 347th Hospital. "But by careful, good feeding all can be restored to full health."

As soon as they have put on enough weight to weather the trip home they are released from the hospital and sent to a special clearing station in London for transportation to the United States.

Irish Cops To Police Germany And Greece

Belfast, May 14 (AP)—Both Germany and Greece will soon see a figure—familiar in Britain and America—the Irish cop pounding his beat.

A group of specially trained members of the Royal Irish Constabulary will leave shortly for both of those countries.

Pro-De Valera Paper Assails Churchill Talk

Belfast, May 14 (AP)—The strongly pro-De Valera Derry Journal published in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, sharply rejected today Prime Minister Churchill's "cool insinuation that Ireland has something to be ashamed of."

It was the only nationalist newspaper to comment on Churchill's Sunday address. The paper said:

"His cool insinuation that Ireland has something to be ashamed of at the bar of history because of her very natural refusal after seven centuries of struggle for her own liberation to immolate herself on behalf of the power that so lately partitioned her . . . is certainly far from being the last word in history. So far as Ireland is concerned, it has long ere this known just what to expect from Churchill."

BLUM BACK IN PARIS

Paris, May 14 (A. P.).—The former Popular Front Premier of France, Leon Blum, liberated by American troops on May 4 from a hotel prison in the north of Italy, arrived today by plans at an airport near Paris.

Gen. de Gaulle sent a personal representative to meet the aging leader of France's powerful Socialist party, who was arrested by the Vichy government in September, 1940, and transferred to German imprisonment in 1943. A large number of important French political figures also were at the airfield to meet him.

AP Writer Receives Air Medal

PARIS, May 14 (AP)—Thoburn Wiant, Associated Press war correspondent, assigned to the United States Third Army, received today the Air Medal for fifteen combat missions he flew while reporting from United States Tenth Air Force bases in Burma and China. He is in Paris for a short rest after following General Patton's tanks for three months from Luxembourg to Pilsen, Czechoslovakia.

Aachen's Schools Are First To Open

Paris, May 14 (AP)—Allied headquarters announced today that the first Allied-approved schools to be opened in Germany will be at Aachen—first big German city captured by the Americans—and mass reprints of pre-Nazi schoolbooks will be utilized.

The civil-affairs division of supreme headquarters said it had received a formal request from authorities in Aachen, a city of 165,000 persons, to reopen the city schools.

Thousands of reprints of nine German textbooks thrown out by the Nazi regime now are ready for use in all German schools as soon as they are permitted to reopen.

No Nazi Teaching

The books were reprinted in quantity at Aachen and Bonn after being approved by the Allied Military Government.

The textbooks contain no Nazi teaching or militarism. The batch comprises six elementary readers and three arithmetics for use in the first, second, third and fourth grades. They were reproduced from a set of pre-1933 books found in Teachers College, Columbia University, New York.

Emergency Measure Only

The first printing of 5,000 copies of each of the nine textbooks was supervised by Lieut. Chester A. Axvall, a former public school administrator at Detroit Lakes, Minn. They were run off after civil affairs officers took over Aachen and Bonn printing plants and rounded up printers formerly employed in them.

Fifteen thousand additional copies will soon be printed, but supreme headquarters said the current run is of an emergency nature and that the Germans themselves will be required to produce textbooks in quantity when the German re-education program develops more fully.

At Least 28 AMG Men Killed, SHAEF Says

Paris, May 14 (AP)—At least 28 men of the Army's Military Government organization were killed in action during operations in the Mediterranean and European theaters, supreme headquarters' G-5 Division said today. The announcement said 107 were wounded and 12 others are missing.

A detachment of seven was engulfed at Clervaux in the Germans' Ardennes offensive. Most others were casualties by sniper fire, machine-gun fire, mines, shells and robot bombs.

FRENCH LEFT SEEKS REFORM

Coalition Bloc Drafts Demands On Gen. De Gaulle

Paris, May 14 (AP)—A coalition of French Leftist parties, winning 52 per cent of 600,000 municipal council seats in recent local elections, soon will present a demand to Gen. Charles de Gaulle for sweeping political and economic changes in the French social system, it was learned today.

Rolling up a big victory in two elections within the last month, the Leftist bloc will ask for nationalization of vital industries, the abolition of trusts and various guarantees for labor, political sources disclosed.

Government circles said the program would be received favorably by a number of ministers in de Gaulle's Cabinet, but the attitude of the Government as a whole was not known.

Fourth Of Seats To Communists

The municipal voting, including yesterday's runoff elections, did not directly affect the national government, but it sharply demonstrated the temper of the French people.

Communists in the bloc won approximately 25 per cent of the total number of seats.

Combined into the "National Council of Resistance," the program of the Leftist groups also calls for lowering the voting age from 21 to 18 years. The amendment, however, would affect men only and not women. The French Left, strong among youth, has expressed fears of conservatism among women, who voted for the first time this year.

Third Republic Laws Demanded

The program also calls for restoration of all laws of the Third Republic, a large-scale system of scholarships in lower grade schools as well as colleges and universities, and the creation of a powerful French Navy.

The parties also will demand speedy punishment for convicted collaborators and the confiscation of their property. The liquidation of all remaining Vichy Government institutions also will be asked.

The demand for the establishment of a powerful navy recalls a former demand of French Conservatives who wanted France to turn her back to the Rhine and develop her trade and empire.

SOME U.S. TROOPS ARE ON WAY EAST

They're Sent Direct To Pacific Because Of Essentialness

Paris, May 14 (AP)—Some American troops are considered so essential that they are being sent direct to the Pacific regardless of the points they have accumulated for discharge, it was disclosed today.

These units were marked for duty in the war against Japan even before redeployment day, May 12, said Lieut. Col. W. C. Hay of the redeployment plans branch in the European theater of operations.

One Point Cleared Up

Hay reported that most of the men now being discharged in the United States because they have a point total of 85 were overseas veterans who had been sent home for rest.

This cleared up one point in the vast redeployment program, since the War Department is not expected to announce the final critical score necessary for discharge until June 27.

The score will be worked out after all rating cards now being tabulated have been received. The redeployment of all American enlisted men will begin one week after the score is announced.

Review Board To Be Set Up

Hay said review boards, manned by veteran officers, would be set up in each major command area to handle the screening of candidates for discharge.

Names of those retained despite their scores will be submitted to headquarters by the boards with reasons for their detention.

While all American soldiers who have been prisoners will be returned to the United States, it will be up to the War Department whether they will be discharged or redeployed, Hays said.

Headquarters Tells Kennedy To Go Home

Correspondent Discredited For Breach Of Confidence—Leaves May 17 For U. S.

MAY 15 1945

PARIS, May 14 (AP)—Supreme headquarters disaccredited Edward Kennedy of The Associated Press today on a charge of breach of confidence in breaking prematurely the story of Germany signing terms of unconditional surrender and ordered him to leave May 17 for the United States.

Morton P. Gudebrod of The Associated Press also was disaccredited for taking "an active part in the premature release of a news story" and ordered to return to the United States, but was granted an extension beyond May 17 by Brig. Gen. Frank Allen Jr., chief of public relations.

Gudebrod is ill with pneumonia and is not expected to be discharged from a hospital for two weeks.

Robert Bunnelle, managing executive for the United Kingdom for The Associated Press, was reinstated.

Bunnelle Suspended

(Bunnelle, with headquarters in London, had been suspended as a war correspondent in the European theater during the investigation because Kennedy's dispatch passed through the London bureau of the AP.)

Allen noted in a statement that "the Associated Press has published its profound regrets for distribution of the story in advance of its authorization."

"With this statement," Allen said, "this regrettable incident is considered closed by Supreme Headquarters."

After Supreme Headquarters announced the decision, Kennedy issued this statement:

"My conscience is clear in this matter. I did what I considered to be my duty and informed SHAEF public relations in advance that I intended to do it. I am fully responsible for the action of Morton Gudebrod in this matter, as he acted under my instructions."

Text of Statement:

The text of the Supreme Headquarters statement:

"Investigation of premature transmission and release of the story of the unconditional surrender of German forces written by Edward Kennedy has been completed.

"The following actions have been taken as a result of the investigation and on the authority of the supreme commander:

"War Correspondent Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press, having deliberately violated a trust reposed in him by prematurely releasing through unauthorized channels and deliberately avoiding military censorship a news story concerning which he was pledged to secrecy, is disaccredited and ordered to return to the United States.

"War Correspondent Morton P. Gudebrod of the Associated Press, having taken an active part in the premature release of a news story through unauthorized channels, thus violating existing military censorship regulations, is disaccredited and ordered to return to the United States.

"War Correspondent Robert Bunnelle of the Associated Press, who was suspended, has been reinstated.

Published Regrets

"The Associated Press has published its profound regrets for distribution of the story in advance of its authorization.

"With this statement, this regrettable incident is considered as closed by Supreme Headquarters."

Virginia Irwin of the St. Louis Post Dispatch, Andrew Tully of the Boston Traveler, and John Groth of the American Legion Magazine recently were disaccredited for making unauthorized visits to Berlin and writing eyewitness accounts soon after the Russians captured the city. Their stories were passed by censorship.

James F. McGlincy of the United Press was disaccredited March 8 for a violation of regulations, but the cause was never explained officially.

McGlincy also was among six reporters suspended for 30 days for violation of censorship regulations in Paris last August, when they were alleged to have made voice broadcasts over the Paris radio describing the Allied entry into Paris without submitting to censorship.

The other five were Paul Manning of the Mutual Broadcasting Corporation, Seaghan Maynes of Reuters, Larry Leseur of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Robin Duff and Howard Marshal of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Besides the six correspondents now disaccredited, three are under suspension and two are under investigation.

MAY 15 1945

Seymour Freidin of the New York Herald Tribune and Tom Downs of the London Evening News were suspended for violating instructions not to go to Berlin, although Downs said he merely flew over the city in a plane.

Sam White of the Australian Consolidated Press was suspended for writing a story in U. S. Seventh Army territory while accredited to the Third Army.

T-Sgt. Ernest Leiser of Stars and Stripes, and Sgt. Mack Morrison of Yank magazine, are under investigation for trips to Berlin, but since they are in the Army, action in their cases will be a military matter.

Kennedy and Gudebrod were the seventh and eighth war correspondents to have their credentials taken up by SHAEF, unofficial records showed.

Reds Slow Prisoner Shift.

Reims, May 14 (A. P.).—The task of removing approximately 138,400 American and British war prisoners from the Russian zone of occupation in Germany could be accomplished by air transport in from two to four weeks, it was declared today.

Supreme Headquarters has requested a meeting with the Russians to arrange for the return of the prisoners, but no reply has been received. Soviet approval would be necessary before air evacuation could be employed.

Best available estimates at this advance SHAEF declared there were approximately 200,000 British and 76,800 American war prisoners in Germany. Nearly half are believed to be in the Russian zone, presumably still waiting in camps.

It is not certain that the Russians would agree to direct aerial evacuation. Soviet military authorities might move the prisoners to British and American forward positions, however, from which they could be flown.

Even that method would be weeks faster than a long transport route through Odessa or the south, over which some Allied prisoners have come.

Up to May 10—the latest date for corrected overall totals—45,096 Americans had been brought back to rear areas from camp zones and of these 17,712 were on their way from this theater back to the United States, or already there.

Swift return of prisoners is high on SHEAF's priority. What planes can do is testified by one day's work in Gen. Eisenhower's sector, when 35,000 men were evacuated.

NAZI CITADEL JUST A DREAM

Goebbels Used Imagination, German Architect Shows

By HOWARD COWAN

Berchtesgaden, May 14 (AP)—The idea of a national redoubt — an Alpine fortress where remnants of the German Army could hold out for years — was nothing more than a figment of Paul Joseph Goebbels's imagination.

The nonexistence of such a citadel was obvious enough after a thorough inspection of the Berchtesgaden-Ober Salzburg area, but Hines Nories confirmed it today beyond a shadow of a doubt. Nories is a 36-year-old engineer and architect who since 1936 has been digging tunnels and building fancy mountain homes for Adolf Hitler and his ilk. American army authorities pronounced him a safe risk, and he has been signed as Mayor of Berchtesgaden.

"They could never have been defended," the Bavarian engineer said, sweeping his hand toward the debris-strewn mountain sides.

Labor Camp Destroyed

"There are machine guns in the pillboxes and in the walls of the tunnels, but a little dynamite and, poof—it would be all over. Only two were complete—Hitler's and Bormann's. Goering's was almost done," he said.

"The tunnels never were designed as anything more than air raid shelters and places to store valuable items where they would be safe from bombing," said the man who carried out the orders of high Nazi leaders.

"We still were working up to April 25 when the big RAF raid came. One of our labor camps was destroyed but only six people were killed. That's when the houses were smashed—Hitler's, Goering's and Bormann's."

Hitler's Girl Friend There

"Goering was caught in that raid, and two days later he was arrested by the SS."

When I rummaged through the ruins of Hitler's house some rooms were strewn with face powder, toilet water and women's apparel and the aroma of fancy perfumes still hung over the place. I asked Nories if the big boss ever entertained.

"Oh, Hitler's girl friend always was around," the tall, blond Eva Braun," he replied.

Nories said he learned English from the Americans who used to visit Munich and Oberammergau.

Goering's Bathtub Amuses

"She's a very simple girl," he said of Hitler's woman friend, in a confidential manner. "She used to work for Heinrich Hoffman—Hitler's photographer."

"Where's Hoffmann?" I asked.

"Hah," Nories scoffed. "He's around waiting until he can take pictures of General Eisenhower. He's a business man, yes, a business man."

Nories told, with some mischievousness, about Goering's bathtub.

"It is a very big one," he said. "Goering had a bomber fly it up here from Berlin. It was too big to go in the doors or windows. I had to tear a wall out and hoist it in with a crane."

Bormann Generally Hated

Nories was right about its size. Gault MacGowan, broad-beamed New York Sun correspondent and I both fitted comfortably in it together. (It still had a ring around it.)

Nories shared Goering's expressed hate for Bormann, Nazi party secretary who ingratiated himself with the Führer and contributed to the wrecking of the Nazi party, according to Goering.

"He used to be in the building business himself," Nories said with a scowl. "We couldn't do anything to suit him. It wasn't good enough or it wasn't fast enough. It always was 'faster, faster, faster' with Borman. He's no good."

NAZI PANZER CHIEF IS TAKEN BY YANKS

Twelfth Army Group Headquarters, May 14 (A. P.).—Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, German tank expert and former chief of the German General Staff, was captured yesterday by the U. S. Seventh Army.

SHAEF Mission At Flensburg Gives Orders Direct To Doenitz

Flensburg, Germany, May 14 (AP). The German liner Patria, lying at dock here, is the living quarters and office of a mission from supreme Allied headquarters.

Aboard it dart scattered American generals who are in constant touch with Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl as well as other high German military and naval men and diplomats.

The Patria is moored within a block of the huge Nazi submarine school where thousands of men learned how to sink Allied shipping. Torpedoes, dismantled cannon and U-boat rigging of all kinds line the dock area, but there are no submarines anchored here.

On The Pulse

A mile farther on is the marine school and German signal school, where Doenitz and his staff have headquarters. Here the new "Führer" has his finger on the pulse of war-wrecked Germany.

The communications of the signal school, including a powerful radio transmitter, give Doenitz contact with the remainder of the country.

Direct wires link Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower with the Patria and the Patria with Doenitz's headquarters. In addition, officers of the SHAEF mission confer frequently with Doenitz and his staff in person.

It is difficult to explain the exact status of Doenitz, who has not been recognized as the head of the German state and whose position has mystified diplomatic circles around the world.

Doenitz's Orders Obeyed

However, it was believed necessary to maintain contact with a German military authority, and thus far Doenitz has been capable of giving orders and to a large degree seeing that they are carried out.

As one Allied officer explained, "he is the only man who has the authority and the power to carry out our orders."

Today I asked the general who heads the SHAEF mission to arrange an interview with Doenitz for me. He said he would not ask permission for an interview, but would wish me luck trying to get it.

I found a German captain of railways who could speak English and together we drove to Doenitz's compound. There armed German guards sprang to attention and refused admittance.

The garrison officer is a Captain Lut, a thirtyish, shaven-headed German with a starched posture, a balloon chest and a Nazi swagger. Records here show that he was top-scorer among U-boat sea raiders, sinking 110,000 tons of Allied shipping. He has been quoted as saying, "In the next war I am going to sink more."

BRITISH INTENSIFY HIMMLER SEARCH

FLENSBURG, Germany, May 14 —(AP) A dragnet is out for Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler in this area, with British security police and intelligence officers leading the search.

Danish underground organizers who have submitted important information to the Allies throughout the war insist that the arch Nazi is in this territory. Germans as well as Allies have been alerted to watch for him as well.

There is considerable talk that Himmler recently got in touch with Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz and asked his protection, but was told that if the Germans found him he would be turned over to the Allies.

British officers say they have nothing but rumors to go on, but the police gave the impression they definitely believed some of them. The reports have been too persistent and jibe too well to be overlooked.

General Crerar To Retire

Canadian 1st Army, May 14 (AP)—The 120,000 disarmed and surrendered Germans will start leaving Holland for Northwest Germany on May 25.

Four days before the Germans start leaving, Queen Wilhelmina is to take the salute from 14,000 or so picked Canadians parading in The Hague.

No details were available immediately.

RUSSIANS TELL GI'S HOW TO TREAT NAZIS

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY, in Austria, May 14 (AP)—The American squeeze that forced many Germans into the hands of the Russians was, in the words of the Soviet soldier, "khorosho"—swell.

Pfc. Michael Gaydos of Passaic, N. J., who served as interpreter when Seventh Army troops linked up with the Russians at Liezen two nights ago, said one of the Russians told him:

"It works out fine because we know what to do with Germans. We don't give them a white armband and a gun and let them patrol the roads. We don't let the German officers go around carrying sidearms. Keep pushing them toward us. We know what to do with Germans."

[In many areas of Germany and Austria under the surrender terms German officers are allowed to keep their pistols and some armed guards are allowed to keep the German prisoner columns in order.]

Gaydos said the Russians told him they moved decisively and quickly when they came into a German town.

"We go into a house and say: 'Are you Germans!' It they are, we say: 'You have three minutes to get out.' That is how the Germans acted when they came into Poland and Russia and we are paying them back. They didn't give three minutes to a lot of Russians."

AMERICANS WIN BATTLE AGAINST MICROBE ARMY

ROME, May 14—(AP) Behind the story of American battle victories in the Mediterranean is the story of victories over disease which, while not so spectacular, were equally as decisive.

Fighting through pest holes in which lurked malaria, typhus and other microbe enemies which in other times had decimated armies, American armies lost 585 soldiers to disease from the invasion of North Africa Nov. 8, 1942, through March 1945.

This compared with 2,394 deaths from non-battle injuries and approximately 29,000 from battle wounds.

This record of victory over an invisible enemy was made public today by Maj. Gen. Morrison C. Stayer, chief theater surgeon, through whose 50 Army hospitals passed 918,298 members of the U. S. armed forces with a death record of less than one per cent.

One of the first problems was a malignant type of malaria which in 1943 was fatal for one out of every 700 soldiers stricken with it. By 1944 the rate had been cut to one in 14,000.

Sulfa drugs kept dysentery under control. The work of delousing powder was equally effective.

Despite outbreaks of typhus—a louse-borne pestilence—among natives of Africa and Italy, there were only nine cases in the Army, all non-fatal.

For the first time in history, louse powder snuffed out a typhus epidemic. Almost the whole population of Naples was powder dusted during an outbreak in 1943.

Sanitation controls were so effective that only 161 cases of typhoid struck the armed forces.

The theater's doctors made one outstanding contribution of their own to medical science—the early diagnosis and treatment of jaundice, which sent 35,000 American soldiers to hospitals, Stayer reported.

He listed as the outstanding discoveries tests permitting early diagnosis for jaundice, the importance of "absolute rest in bed" in treatment, the "curative influence of diet in which beefsteaks and reconstituted dried, skimmed milk predominate," and a "stiff exercise tolerance test in determining whether a cure has been effected."

Among outstanding developments in battle casualty treatment, Stayer noted the Mediterranean theater was a pioneer in demonstrating the necessity of adequate, fresh whole blood for treatment of shock. He said 35 tons of whole blood were distributed within the theater.

In addition to caring for American soldiers, the Army hospitals in the Mediterranean also treated 113,386 British, French, Italian, Brazilian, Yugoslav, Dutch, Polish, Russian, Finnish, Greek and other patients.

Million Nazis Quit To Reds Since V-E Day

101 German Generals Are Taken Prisoner In Surrender Roundup.

MOSCOW, May 14, (AP)—Moscow announced tonight that more than 1,230,000 Nazis have surrendered to the Red Army since Germany's unconditional surrender.

The broadcast Russian communique, which totaled exactly 57 words, credited the figure on the number of captives to the Soviet information bureau.

This was an increase of 170,000 prisoners over the total announced yesterday.

Moscow said that in the roundup of German troops, 101 generals had been taken prisoner.

The communique implied that all resistance had ceased in Czechoslovakia, but gave no indication that Field Marshal von Schoerner or Col. Gen. Woenler, who led the prolonged fighting there, had yet been captured.

Roundup Swells Figures

The day's enemy roundup swelled to 3,030,000 the total Germans killed or captured since the Red Army launched its Spring offensive Jan. 12. By Moscow's count, 12,770,000 enemy troops have been slain or captured in almost four years of war on the eastern front.

Moscow's terse communique said: "The number of prisoners and the quantity of booty announced in the Soviet Information Bureau operational communique of May 13 increased during May 14 on all fronts by 170,000 German officers and men and 10 generals. Thus from May 9 to May 14 on all fronts more than 1,230,000 officers and men and 101 generals were taken prisoner."

Reds Pass Goal In New War Loan

Moscow, May 10 (A. P.).—Russia's new 25,000,000,000 ruble war loan was oversubscribed by 1,384,685,000 rubles, it was announced today. Some of the funds will go for reconstruction, but the majority was earmarked for defense and building up the Red Army.

QUISLING TO GET CRIMINAL TRIAL

Crown Prince Orders Regular Procedure In His Case

Oslo, May 14 (AP)—Crown Prince Olav, who returned to Oslo yesterday, has directed that Vidkun Quisling, puppet premier of Norway during the German occupation, be tried as an ordinary criminal, it was learned today.

Olav was reported to have issued his order in his capacity as Norway's highest justice official.

Quisling will appear before a police court for a preliminary hearing. Some authoritative sources said today that the preliminary hearing will get under way immediately, but the report was not confirmed by Oslo's police chief or the court before which the erstwhile dictator will appear.

To Get No Favors

Only official visitors have been permitted entry to Quisling's cell and the police president, Henrik Meyer, has directed that no favors shall be granted the Norwegian Nazi chieftain.

Quisling's Russian wife, Maria, is being held at Grini concentration camp, where Quisling had interned all his political enemies. She is under close surveillance.

Seven Oslo newspapers, which had combined to publish a single edition since the capitulation of the German garrison, resumed individual publication today. Each was six to ten pages in size.

OLAV SAYS NORSE WILL FIGHT JAPS

Oslo, May 14 (A. P.).—Crown Prince Olav returned to Norway last night, almost five years after he left to carry on the war from England, and announced that the Norwegian fleet was ready to enter the fight against Japan. He said Norway's chief problem was the disarmament of the Germans and Quislings and the evacuation of the Germans. The Germans were departing yesterday.

The Prince said King Haakon would soon return and that the Crown Princess would follow.

CHETNIK OFFICE SEIZED

Yugoslavs Take Mikhailovitch's Quarters in Belgrade

BELGRADE, May 14 (AP)—The Yugoslav Government announced today that the central organization of Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch's Chetnik forces in Belgrade had been captured and its leader, Capt. Sasha Mikhailovitch, had been killed.

The announcement said that a wireless operator at the headquarters had been captured and a further investigation was being made. The Government has long accused the Chetniks of collaboration with the enemy.

SAYS YUGOSLAVS WANT CARINTHIA

Belgrade, May 14 (A. P.).—The newspaper Politika, which reflects government views, laid claim today to the entire Austrian Province of Carinthia for the Yugoslavs, whose forces have entered the province in the Fifteenth Army Group occupation zone.

The newspaper said editorially there was "an important link" between the Adriatic port of Trieste which the Yugoslavs are claiming from Italy and Carinthia.

The Carinthian Slovenes definitely became part of the newly formed Austrian republic in 1920, on the basis of an Allied-conducted plebiscite.

BELGIANS SEIZE 3 MORE

Diplomat, Editor and Officer Accused of Collaboration

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 14 (AP)—Three more Belgians charged with prominent roles in collaboration with the Germans have been arrested and imprisoned pending trials.

Gerard Romsee, who acted as Minister of the Interior during the German occupation, was arrested when he returned to Belgium in a group of repatriated nationals.

Raymond de Becker, one time editor in chief of the pro-German edition of the newspaper the Soir, was arrested on a Paris-Brussels train.

Gen. Lambert Chardonne, who in 1940 was commander of the Belgian infantry regiment, Chasseurs Ardennais, is accused of having recruited men for the Rexist shock troops, called "Legion Wallonne," which fought against the Russians.

Ships at Copenhagen Seized

COPENHAGEN, May 14 (AP).—Crews of several German ships in Copenhagen harbor were attacked early today by 130 "freedom fighters" when they showed no signs of obeying surrender demands. One German was killed, 285 surrendered and the ships were seized. The fight was short.

Army Controls Communications

Stockholm, May 14 (AP)—Danish and Norwegian postal, telegraph and telephone communications abroad were placed under military control today until further notice.

Finland will deliver wood, paper and cellulose, while Russia will send Finland cereals, salt and raw materials.

It was also announced that a mixed committee will draw a new frontier in the Petsamo district ceded to Russia by the Finns.

Nagoya Is About Ruined

Only Two Of 500 American Fortresses Lost In Violent Raid.

WAR INDUSTRIES BELIEVED GUTTED

Greatest Aerial Blow Ever Thrown Against Nippon —Smoke Rises 17,000 Feet.

By James Lindsley

GUAM, Tuesday, May 15 (AP) — The fury of America's aerial assault on Japan mounted to a new pinnacle of violence Monday as a record pack of 500 mighty Superfortresses dumped 7,000,000 pounds of fire bombs on the great industrial city of Nagoya.

(Contrast with the enemy's claim of shooting down eight Superfortresses, Army Air Force Headquarters at Washington reported that only "two of our planes were lost to enemy action." This was a minute percentage of the number engaged in the attack).

The devastating attack, directed against some of Japan's most important war industries, was officially reported by B-29 headquarters only a few hours before Radio Tokyo said waves of Allied carrier planes were hammering Nippon's southern airdromes for the second day in a row.

Some of the 5,500 Yank airmen who took part in the Nagoya mission, hardest aerial blow ever thrown against Japan, said on their return to Marianas bases they believed the 3,500 tons of fire bombs dropped destroyed the sections of the city not devastated in previous raids. They agreed that Japanese interceptors were not anxious to challenge and that ack-ack fire was weak and inaccurate.

Smoke columns shot up some 17,000 feet over the target area and could be seen by returning fliers when 80 miles at sea.

Nagoya, 150 miles west by south of Tokyo on Japan's main Honshu Island, is the third city of the empire. The B-29s, carrying some 1,165,000 new type six-pound jelly gasoline fire bombs, came pretty close to unloading a bomb for every one of the city's 1,500,000 inhabitants.

Weather conditions were not too good for the 3,300-mile daylight mission but the bombardiers turned loose their deadly cargoes visually at medium altitude. The general area hit is just west of the sprawling Mitsubishi aircraft engine works which was almost completely wrecked in earlier raids.

The targets were within five great circles, covering a total of nine square miles in northern Nagoya. Under the Superfort bomb sights were the Chigusa factory of Nagoya arsenal, producer of heavy ordnance and ammunition components; a major electrical plant, and thousands of small home factories producing war materials. The area has a population of from 22,000 to 75,000 persons per square mile.

An American Army spokesman said Nagoya could hardly escape heavy casualties in such thickly settled regions.

Highly industrialized Nagoya is also an important railroad, highway and sea shipping center. About 90 per cent of its houses are of wood and plaster construction.

It is a fairly safe bet that this most concentrated incendiary attack of the Pacific war will be followed by even greater raids in the future.

A Japanese imperial communique, broadcast by Tokyo, acknowledged that fires raged in Nagoya for five hours. It claims streets were "indiscriminately" bombed with incendiaries and that eight B-29s were shot down and nine damaged.

Radio Tokyo reported, without American confirmation, that carrier planes from a U. S. task force operating several hundred miles south of Japan-proper returned to the attack on Kyushu air centers for the second consecutive day. Some 900 carrier planes and a score of Superforts were in the Sunday raids; the Japanese said. They added that the Monday raiders, totaling 500, struck Kyushu airfields and other dromes on neighboring Shukoku and southern Honshu islands.

Tokyo pictured Japanese fliers as fiercely attacking the task force of carriers and battleships and inflicting "considerable damage."

Losses Believed Light.

Guam, May 14 (A. P.).—Industrial Nagoya, Japan's third largest city, was attacked with 3,500 tons of fire bombs today by a record fleet of 500 Superfortresses, and returning crewmen reported "sweeping devastation" of the metropolis.

While there was no immediate report of American losses, plane commanders agreed they must have been very light, and said opposition was surprisingly small. Anti-aircraft fire was described as weak and inaccurate, and while many Jap fighter pilots took to the air few showed any disposition to fight.

The Emperor Wasn't Looking.

Capt. C. M. Wells of Decatur, Miss., a veteran of sixteen B-29 missions over Japan summed up today's fighter oppostiion: "I don't think those boys like to fight too well unless the Emperor is looking on. When we go over Tokyo, they usually give us hell, but those Nips today acted like they were scared to tackle us."

Sergt. Murray Sack, a gunner, of 195 Roebling Street, Brooklyn, didn't get to fire a shot.

"Four fighters started to come in but they changed their minds before they got in range," he said. "Then one whizzed directly by our right wing, but he was going so fast I couldn't get a bead on him, and he got away."

Sack said he got several good glimpses of Nagoya through smoke rifts and that "it looked like the whole city was ablaze."

Technical Sergt. Charles Wadas of Bayonne, N. J., reported it was not an easy mission.

"None of them are easy," he said, "but from the standpoint of ack-ack and fighters it was the simplest I ever have been on." It was his seventeenth mission.

The attack was the most concentrated incendiary raid of the Pacific war, as far as area is concerned.

Parade 1,800 Miles Long.

The B-29 air parade to Nagoya was more than 1,800 miles long. The Superforts passed over Iwo Jima for a navigation check—a fresh indication of the value of that island won by the Marines at heavy cost two months ago. Elements of the air fleet then rendezvoused off the Jap coast—and the first bombardier called "bombs away" at 8:15 A. M. The bombers went in at medium altitude, attacking in a column of squadrons of eleven planes each.

The first Superfort had dropped its fire bombs and was ninety minutes on its way home while the last plane was taking off from its Marianas base.

One six-pound fire bomb of a new design was carried today for almost every one of Nagoya's 1,500,000 inhabitants. Altogether 1,165,000 of the jelly gasoline bombs were dropped. They explode seconds after hitting the target and spew flaming gasoline over a sizable area.

A Jap comunique admitted fires were started in various sections of the city but claimed most of them were extinguished five hours after the raid began.

CAGAYAN VALLEY GATEWAY SEIZED IN STIFF BATTLE

Yanks Comb Japs Out of Mountain Caves in Northern Luzon.

MINDANAO FIGHT RAGES

Enemy Forces in Showdown Battle North of Captured Davao.

MANILA, Tuesday, May 15—(AP) Balete pass, an important 75-foot defile between 1,500-foot mountains in northern Luzon, fell to elements of the 25th and 37th infantry divisions Sunday after a month-long mountain top slugfest, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

On Mindanao island the 24th division fought an intense battle with stubborn and well-armed Japanese in a showdown fight near captured Davao City. Six banzai charges in company strength were beaten off Saturday and Sunday.

Conquest of Balete pass, gateway to the extensive Cagayan valley, represented a long stride toward the final cleaning out of the Japanese on northern Luzon. The pass controls the only road from the south into the Cagayan valley, hub of Japanese strength.

Dig Japs from Caves

The doughboys had to comb the Japanese out of a formidable network of mountainside caves flanking the road. Some of these caves were large enough to accommodate an entire company.

Associated Press Correspondent James Hutcheson reported from the 25th division command post that 7,000 Japanese dead had been counted in the bitter fight. Headquarters said the Japanese Tenth division had been "very badly mauled."

The 32nd division aided the capture of flanking the enemy on the parallel Villa Verde trail. The two columns were within two miles of a juncture at Santa Fe where the trail joins the main road at the entrance to the valley.

Stiff fighting still is in prospect, but it is downhill from there on.

On Mindanao the 24th division gained materially in the Cabagulo area north of Davao but were subjected to Japanese naval gun shelling from the northern tip of nearby Samal island, which has been invaded by units of the 24th.

In central Mindanao the 31st division liquidated a reinforced company of bypassed Japanese between Kibawe and Maramag on the Sayre highway, while to the north the 40th division consolidated the captured Del Monte airdrome center.

Advance on Tarakan

A headquarters spokesman said the Australians and Dutch invaders of Tarakan island, off Borneo, now control all usable portions of the island—roads, the town, the oilfields and airdromes.

East of Manila the 43rd infantry division was closing in on the Japanese garrison at the Ipo dam, sources of more than one-third of the capital's water.

Fighters and bombers dropped 250 tons of explosives in support of the Luzon ground actions.

On Mindanao, guerrilla forces have seized the port of Cagayan, capital of Misamis Oriental province, and the entire north coast of the island now is in America control, MacArthur announced.

His communique reported the Japanese Mindanao garrison was being driven steadily into the hill country in the center of the island. Systematic reduction of enemy strong points near captured Davao city was under way.

On Tarakan island, off Borneo, Australia and Dutch Indies troops scored local gains in desultory fighting. Minor Japanese counter-attacks were repulsed in the center and eastern sectors.

Borneo's air bases and supply facilities were heavily bombed. Coastal patrols sank eight cargo ships, nine barges and other small craft offshore.

Heavy bombers sweeping the Asiatic coast pounded rail lines and highways along the French Indo-China coast, wrecking at least nine bridges and quantities of rolling locomotives.

The freighters were set afire off Hainan island.

Australian troops have penetrated three miles inland from captured Wewak on New Guinea and were attacking enemy positions near the Sauri villages.

Yanks Drive to Split Mindanao

HAMILTON

Airfield Won—Wewak on New Guinea Coast Captured by Australians.

Manila, May 14 (A. P.).—Americans of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division hacked away at stubborn Jap lines near Davao city on Mindanao today while the Fortieth Division, capturing the extensive Del Monte air center, sped south to bisect the big Philippine Island. On northeastern New Guinea, meanwhile, Australians captured long-contested Wewak, by-passed earlier by American troops.

MAY 15 1945

The Japs were throwing everything they had into the fight northwest of Davao in an attempt to pin down the Twenty-fourth Division near Davao Gulf on Mindanao. The Nipponese used rocket fire in hope of stemming the steady Yank advance between the Talomo and Davao rivers.

DAY

Juncture of the three American divisions—the Fortieth to the north, Thirty-first in the middle and Twenty-fourth at the south—would cut this second largest Philippine island through the center and split the estimated 50,000 enemy troops garrisoned there. The Fortieth Division, which landed Thursday on Macajalar Bay, already was speeding toward a junction with the Thirty-first, less than sixty miles away at captured Maramag airfield in the highland interior.

Airfield Is Captured.

Against light opposition, the Fortieth stormed up narrow gorges onto the inland plateau, captured Del Monte, with its three airfields, and pressed two miles beyond. The fields offer the Americans a base from which to attack opposition to the south.

Wewak, a tough core of Jap resistance for more than two years, fell to Sixth Division Australians in a swift drive from the west. The Aussies, who landed Friday on the northeast New Guinea peninsula under cover of British fleet units, drove to the edge of the westernmost airfield. However, field dispatches emphasized that strong military resistance remains in the area. Aussies from the east, supporting the Wewak force in a pincers movement, were seven miles away.

On Tarakan Island, off Borneo, Australian and Dutch invaders sent out extensive patrols after overrunning the oil fields. They encountered but few Japanese.

Press On on Balete Pass.

Sixth Army troops on Luzon maintained strong pressure on Balete Pass leading to the extensive Cagayan Valley in the north, and tightened their pincers move on the Ipo Dam area east of Manila.

Despite bad weather, heavy bombers attacked Formosa factories and war installations while medium and fighter bombers swept low over airdromes, knocking out many parked aircraft. Targets were left "a mass of flame." Patrol planes in raids from Formosa to the Dutch East Indies and the tip of Indo-China sank fifteen freighters and five coastal vessels.

Slight Gain Toward Thailand

CALCUTTA, May 14 (U.P.)—British Fourteenth Army troops swinging eastward toward Thailand have made a "slight advance" east of Toungoo, an Allied communiqué announced today, and Japanese resistance in that area is crumbling.

British forces to the south have seized a large enemy motor transport pool, further hampering Japanese remnants attempting to flee to the Malay States. In the Irrawaddy sector in the west Lieut. Gen. W. J. Slim's forces pushed down the Rangoon-Prome railway line to a point ninety-one miles from Rangoon.

BLAST JAPS IN BURMA

Calcutta, May 14 (A. P.).—American warplanes pounded the retreating Japanese in Eastern Burma today after British heavy bombers had dealt enemy communications to Singapore a hard blow by destroying two spans of a bridge on the Malay Railway that links the great base to Thailand (Siam).

DAY

Southeast Asia headquarters said that Tenth R. A. F. Liberators hit the bridge, which is on the peninsula south of Chumphon. Chumphon is about 700 miles north of Singapore and 250 miles south of Bangkok, the capital of Siam.

Scores of Japanese trying to escape from Burma were being bagged by British troops moving south along the Irrawaddy River toward Burma's liberated capital of Rangoon and by West Africans further west along the Prome-Taungup Highway.

CHINESE PINCERS CLOSING ON JAPS

MOOSA

Two Columns Press Toward Paoching; Trapped Enemy Wiped Out.

MAY 15 1945

CHUNGKING, May 14 (AP) Two Chinese columns closed today on Paoching, Hunan province stronghold from which the enemy marched last month on the road to defeat and disaster in the battle for Chihkiang air base.

On the eastern seaboard, Chinese troops fought on through the streets of Foochow after entering the old treaty port opposite Formosa Friday.

In the Hunan counteroffensive, the Chinese High command said one column Sunday reached a point 15 1-2 miles northwest of Paoching, while another was pounding down the main highway 19 miles west of the city.

Jap Force Wiped Out

Twenty miles or more behind these columns, the High command said one trapped Japanese force had been wiped out and another had been chopped into five segments ripe for annihilation.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in an order of the day commended the American and Chinese air forces for their help in smashing the Japanese drive in Hunan province, long a central China battlefront.

"In the present western Hunan campaign," his order said, "the Chinese and American air forces have fought most gallantly.

"In supporting the Chinese ground forces, they repeatedly dealt heavy blows to the enemy and inflicted casualties. Besides separate awards, the two air forces are hereby commended."

Even as he spoke, the Chinese ground forces were mopping up the battlefield east of Chihkiang, which is 250 miles southeast of Chungking, and the air forces were raking the enemy's supply lines in eastern Hunan.

The High command said one pocket was completely crushed west of Gungkow, 60 miles west of Paoching on the main highway to the air base.

Another pocket east of nearby Kaosha, also on the main highway, was cut into five pieces. Two units tried to slip off southeastward by night but were overtaken and again encircled, the Chinese said.

Northwest of Paoching in the area of Yangchi, the Chinese reported they flung back a counter-attack and then captured two enemy strongpoints.

Warplanes Strike Shipping

With the vanishing Japanese air force unable to offer resistance, Allied planes roved unhindered over enemy communication lines, straffing ground troops, supply lines and river shipping.

The warplanes struck shipping on the Siang River all the way from the eastern Hunan railway city of Hengyang—75 miles east of Paoching—on for 150 miles northward through the provincial capital of Changsha to Tung Ting Lake.

In southern Honan province northeast of Chungking, Chinese closing in on a forested pocket west of the Japanese base of Hsihsiakow said they found the bodies of 41 Japanese soldiers who had committed suicide by hanging.

Chinese Drive Into Foochow, Possible U. S. Landing Point

East China Port Faces Formosa—Chiang's Troops Capture Airfield There—Fighting Flares in North, Too.

MAY 15 1945

Chungking, May 14 (A. P.).—For the second time since Foochow was occupied by the Japs in April, 1939, Chinese troops have entered that East China port facing Formosa, striking in the very sector where Japan fears American landings.

The Chinese High Command announced last night that several columns of Chinese troops had entered the old treaty port on Thursday and had captured an airfield to the south. Street fighting was reported in Foochow, although the ease with which the Chinese entered lent some credence to rumors that the Japs had evacuated the city, which they seized last October for the announced purpose of thwarting any American plans for a landing.

DAY

The Chinese also announced that fighting had flared in the eastern seaboard area to the north, where Chinese troops and local militia on Thursday attacked and occupied Sinchang, sixty-five miles southeast of Hankchow. This capital of Chekiank province is about 300 miles north of Foochow. The Japs driven from Sinchang were reported to be retreating to Hangchow.

Japs Seen Altering Strategy.

There were reports, including one from an Army spokesman, that the Japs had altered their mainland strategy to concentrate strength north of the Yellow River in northeastern China, far to the north of the present scene of fighting.

The Chinese claimed further successes in the interior, where a Jap drive on the American Fourteenth Air Force base at Chihkiang had been turned back with heavy losses to the enemy. A monthly summary from headquarters of Lieut.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of American forces in the China theater, said Fourteenth Air Force planes had increased their flights by 15 per cent in April.

The Chinese said their troops occupied the highway town of Tachwaping, twenty-three miles east of the enemy base of Paoching, from which the ill-fated Jap drive on Chihkiang was launched. Farther south, the right wing of the Chinese counter-offensive cleared enemy forces from an area twelve miles beyond Wukang, eighty miles southeast of Chihkiang. The Japs tried without success to break out with repeated counter-attacks north of Kaosha, some fifty miles west of Paoching, and in the area of Shanmen, twenty-five miles north of Kaosha.

Tokyo Broadcasts Portray Concern

Officials Urge Speedy Organization Of Volunteer Defense Groups—Premier Suzuki Urges Citizens To Have Faith In Homefront.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14 (AP)—A note of official concern over the morale on the Japanese homefront crept into Tokyo radio broadcasts today as Japan, hit by the rising fury of the American air attack, girded for her greatest crisis.

Premier Speaks

Urging speedy organization of volunteer corps to defend Japan against invasion, Premier Kantaro Suzuki told the 46 prefectural governors, assembled in Tokyo, that the faith of the homefront in its leaders is the key to victory."

"Unless the people believe in you and have faith in you," he added, "good results cannot be accomplished."

This and other broadcasts giving an insight into the war situation in Japan were intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission.

Governors Meet

The governors met while American carrier planes were reported by Tokyo to be scourging airdromes and other installations on Kyushu and Shikoku Islands for the second straight day. About 150 miles west and south of Tokyo, the great industrial city of Nagoya smoked from the heaviest fire raid yet made by Yank Superfortresses on Japan.

In its account of the governors conference, the Domei News Agency reported the premier reaffirmed that Germany's surrender had not altered Japan's determination to fight for realization of her war aims. He defined these as "self-existence and self-protection."

The governors were empowered to take whatever steps they deemed necessary. Suzuki said the government would "shoulder the responsibility for any drastic measures."

A Japanese overseas broadcast reported that the conference also discussed the increasing impact of air raids on the homeland. An attempt was made, however, to belittle the attacks. In that connection the newspaper Mainichi Shimbun was quoted as reporting that the governors of some of the key industrial areas claimed previous raids had caused only minor damage.

Constant Air Raids

On the other hand, Mainichi quoted Fumio Takuwauke, governor of the Kagoshima prefecture in oft-raided Kyushu, as saying that since arrival at his post April 26 "there has not been one day during which an air raid siren has not sounded." Takuwaue dismissed the effects with the statement that damage was "extremely small."

The carrier plane attacks, said the unconfirmed broadcasts, started at 5:30 a. m. Sunday (4:30 p. m. Saturday, EWT). They continued for more than eight hours, with some 900 American planes participating.

More than 500 carrier aircraft were reported in the second day's strike, starting at dawn today, Japanese time, (about 4 p. m. Sunday, EWT). The planes were based on a task force that had "approached closer to the Japanese mainland" since Sunday, the Domei agency. At first reported there were two U. S. task forces involved, Domei said the task force was under aerial attacks and was suffering considerable damage.

Claims that Japanese air units made another "devastating raid" on American warships near Okinawa and on Yank bases on the island today (Japanese Time) also were spread by Domei.

Two moves to "brighten" the lives of Tokyo's citizens were reported — relaxing a year-old ban on amusements and installing electric heaters in bath houses so they may "keep open regularly."

Canada Removes Curbs On Household Articles

Ottawa, May 14 (AP)—Orders restricting the manufacture of a wide range of household appliances and other consumer goods, including washing machines, vacuum cleaners, sewing machines and bicycles, has been lifted, the Prices Board announced today.

The statement carried with it a warning that consumers should not expect a supply of the articles affected to be available immediately.

Today's action revoking 32 orders does not affect price ceilings.

Canada Lifts Curb On Money For Trips

Ottawa, May 14 (AP)—The Foreign Exchange Control Board has announced lifting restrictions on use of United States funds by Canadians making pleasure trips across the border, and said they would be able now to obtain "any reasonable amounts" of U.S. funds for actual travel and expenses in connection with such trips.

The board announcement also said no foreign exchange permit would be required by Canadians taking out of Canada $50 or less in U.S. currency.

965 Candidates Seek 245 Seats In Commons

Ottawa, May 14 (AP)—A record total of 965 candidates was entered today for the 245 House of Commons seats to be filled in the June 11 Dominion general election.

The previous record was 892 in 1935.

The Liberal Government forces of Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King contested 236 seats. Cooperative Commonwealth Federation entered 206 candidates, and the Progressive Conservatives entered 204.

Peru and Canada Feel Earth Tremors

Prince George, B. C., May 14 (A. P.).—Three earthquakes rocked this northeastern British Columbia city in the last twenty-four hours. No serious damage was reported. The first tremor was felt Saturday, causing merchandise to topple from shelves in several stores. A second tremor was felt early yesterday by a second quake less intense and a third last night.

HIT KURILE CONVOY

Eleventh Air Force Headquarters, Aleutians, May 12 (Delayed) (A. P.).—After locating a fifteen-ship convoy in the foggy Kurile waters, northernmost Japan, Eleventh Air Force pilots succeeded in sinking two cargo ships and damaging four, probably five, returning pilots reported today.

Capt. Donald Hofferferth, Jackson, Mich., was credited with sinking a 2,500-ton freighter. He said the "scene was very calm as we flew in but it changed rapidly, with AA-fire from ships and shore guns plus fighter attacks from all sides."

One Mitchell exploded and crashed during the fight.

Sunk were the 2,500 ton freighter and a small freighter. Damaged and left burning were a frigate, two medium cargo ships and a freighter. Two near misses may have damaged a 7,000 ton transport, pilots reported.

CZECH QUISLING SEIZED

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP) The BBC said tonight that the Prague radio had announced the arrest of Dr. Emil Hocha, "the Czech Quisling." The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

Surrender Gives Hamsun A 'Nervous Breakdown'

New York, May 14 (AP)—The Swedish radio said tonight that Knut Hamsun, Norwegian author who won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1920, had suffered a "nervous breakdown" when he learned of Germany's surrender.

The broadcast, reported by the FCC, said the one-time Chicago trolley conductor "is being looked after by his wife, Maria, of equal Nazi fame." Hamsun's two sons have been arrested for pro-Nazi activities, the report added.

U-BOAT TAKEN BY AMERICANS OFF CAPE MAY

Navy Blimp Circles Over First German Sub To Give Up To Yanks

By W. J. EADS

Aboard a Navy Blimp at Sea, May 14 (AP)—Big Mike, the navy blimp, found her quarry today and circled overhead as a prize crew was put aboard the first Nazi U-boat to surrender to American forces since Germany quit fighting.

The transfer—the Nazi crew was searched and taken off—took place about 35 miles at sea off Cape May, New Jersey.

The sub, the U 858, convoyed to the formal surrender rendezvous by two destroyer escorts, was flying the American flag from her conning tower. As the blimp hove into sight through the morning haze only American officers and crewmen were atop the conning tower. The black flag of surrender already had been lowered.

Ship Takes Off Again

Big Mike, so called because it is the largest of the Navy's four class "M" nonrigid dirigibles, put out from its Lakehurst (N.J.) station Saturday morning to observe the surrender, but something went wrong with the arrangements and the blimp went back to its hangar after eighteen hours of search.

At 4.25 A.M. today, the ship again took off in perfect weather for the rendezvous. The young pilot, Lieut. O. H. Hess of Lindsey, Ohio, pulled the ship into the air so skillfully its rise was hardly perceptible. Aboard was Rear Admiral C. E. Rosendahl of Cleburne, Texas, veteran lighter-than-air navy man and chief of the naval airship training and experimental command at Lakehurst.

The trip to sea was as smooth and uneventful as riding in a good-sized automobile (and I never have been in the air before in any type of aircraft).

Sub Gives Its Position

An hour and a half out a message was received from one of the escorts with the sub giving its position. A little more than two hours out Big Mike overhauled six ships from Cape May en route for the formal surrender to units of the Eastern Sea Frontier Command of Vice Admiral H. F. Leary.

"You're going to get there before they do," Admiral Rosendahl remarked, and as we passed over the first cutter and saw people on deck Lieut. Com. F. A. Petrie, of Detroit, said: "There are some of your civilian friends."

Another radio report at 6.39 A.M., had the ships 18 miles out and four minutes later Admiral Rosendahl, sitting in the bow of the blimp, reported he had picked up the sub with his glasses.

Over Sub At 800 Feet

The haze was pretty thick, but in the dim distance a small patrol blimp could be seen circling over the Nazi pigboat and its two destroyer escorts. All three ships, the sub in the middle and an escort about 1,000 yards away on either side, were barely under way 47 miles southeast of Cape May. Apparently they were marking time to reach the rendezvous at the same time the ships from Cape May arrived.

Lieutenant Hess and the second pilot—Lieut. Wells B. McCurdy, of Seattle — brought their blimp in over the sub at 800 feet at 6.50 A.M. and circled it and the escorting craft as they moved slowly toward land. There were men on the sub's conning tower, but none on deck. The blimp circled lower and lower and at 250 feet the men aboard were identified as Americans. Apparently, when the escorts overhauled the surrendering sub several days ago American officers and men were put aboard and the Nazi crewmen kept below decks.

U-Boat Rusty And Battered

The U-boat looked rusty and battered, as though it had been at sea for a long time. Its number was barely discernible. However, it looked thoroughly businesslike, although it had no forward gun and the guns at the stern of the conning tower had been removed.

The escorts and their prize reached the surrender point at 8 A.M., the six ships coming in double file. As they approached a tug separated itself from the formation, pulled a distance back of the sub and launched a motorboat, filled with sailors and marines.

When the small boat reached the sub, the navy men went aboard and things began to happen. The Germans were brought up on the forward deck in groups and searched. The way they held their hands above their heads was reminiscent of pictures of Nazi soldiers giving themselves up in Germany.

Prisoners Transferred

Two were searched at a time and the things taken from them were placed on a cloth on deck. Meanwhile the tug pulled close to the sub and the searched prisoners were transferred by small boat to that craft. This search went on for more than an hour and at one point in the proceedings a school of porpoises rolled its way merrily through the water a short distance away.

The search of the prisoners required more than an hour and then the convoy with its prize headed for Cape May.

The blimp nosed for its home port, a smooth trip except for a little rolling in the air currents over land as it approached Lakehurst.

9 Billion Spent By U.S. Abroad

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Senator Tydings (D., Md.) announced today that an incomplete tabulation shows the United States Government spent $9,127,000,000 abroad in the past four and a half years while receiving $2,533,000,000 from foreign sources.

The information came from a clearing house established in the Foreign Economic Administration by the late President Roosevelt, at Tydings's suggestion.

The Maryland Senator said the reported receipts and expenditures were "somewhat incomplete," and did not take into consideration special arrangements under which United States armed forces obtained foreign currencies without concurrent dollar cost, in Germany, Italy and certain liberated countries.

$1,000,000,000 In Loans

The disbursements abroad from July 1, 1940, through last December 31, included $3,252,000,000 for food and materials procured by nonmilitary agencies (much of it for resale to private buyers in the United States) and around $1,000,000,000 in loans, advances and financial aid to other countries.

To round out the picture of the Government's foreign transactions, the report noted that as of December 31, 1944, lend-lease aid to foreign governments totaled $35,383,000,000, excluding $788,000,000 worth of goods consigned to commanding generals for subsequent transfer in the field to foreign governments.

$25,000,000,000 To British

Over $25,000,000,000 of the lend-lease aid went to various parts of the British Commonwealth, about $8,000,000,000 to the USSR, $290,000,000 to the American republics, $246,000,000 to China and the remainder to 15 other countries. Through 1944 at least $4,500,000,000 in reverse lend-lease had been received, the report said.

Tydings said "only very incomplete reports" have been received this far on installations—military, naval and industrial—owned or controlled by this Government abroad. To date, the report showed some 3,700 installations covering 1,188,000 acres and acquired at a cost of $1,687,000,000.

TENNESSEANS FIGHT TVA HEAD

Senators Declare Lilienthal Is "Obnoxious" To Them

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Tennessee's senators declared today that David Lilienthal, TVA administrator, "is personally and politically obnoxious, offensive and objectionable to each of us."

They climaxed their statement on the floor, however, by announcing they would not wage a further fight against his confirmation for reappointment as director of Tennessee Valley Authority. They said they would vote against him "and leave the matter there." Senate leaders expressed belief confirmation was assured.

The Tennesseeans, Stewart and McKellar, declared Lilienthal "is making a political machine for his own personal advancement" out of the huge power development.

Joint Statement Read

Stewart read a joint statement to the Senate, outlining their views on reappointment by President Truman of the man they have fought for years.

The statement said Lilienthal was originally appointed "without consulting us and he has been against us ever since." He was first named by President Roosevelt.

Lilienthal, it declared, has "made and published untruthful statements against us." The two Democratic senators accused him of "unscrupulous double dealing" and "keeping the Tennessee Valley Authority in politics."

Action Deferred

"We do not want the TVA in politics," the statement went on.

It asserted that Lillienthal had entered into a political alliance with Silliman Evans, publisher of the Nashville Tennessean, in "campaigns of indecency, untruthfulness and dishonor in every matter that pertains to the Tennessee Valley dams and to Tennessee."

Senator Hill (D., Ala.), the majority whip, said earlier that "there is not a doubt in the world" that the nomination will be confirmed.

However, action on it was deferred by the Agriculture Committee after Stewart advised he and McKellar wished to file their statement of opposition.

Lilienthal Questioned

Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) reported that Stewart said he and McKellar would "rest their case" on the statement.

This was interpreted by other senators as meaning the Tennesseans had decided against waging and all-out battle against confirmation.

Lilienthal was questioned briefly by the committee in a closed session about the operations of TVA and its future plans, Thomas said.

Others present reported the TVA chairman also engaged in an exchange with Stewart after the Senator said that TVA had tried to defeat him for re-election.

Denies Responsibility

Lilienthal replied that he was not responsible for what individual employés of TVA did and declared that no instructions were issued from TVA's top officials.

Stewart came back with the statement that Lilienthal made a speech which Tennessee newspapers interpreted as one of opposition to him.

Thomas said Lilienthal is expected back before the committee tomorrow and will be given opportunity to reply to the statement by McKellar and Stewart. He expressed the opinion that as the situation now stands there seems to be no occasion for public hearings on the nomination, but added that is a matter for the committee to decide.

DEFERS ACTION ON LILIENTHAL

Committee to Get Views of Tennessee Senators.

Washington, May 14 (A. P.).—The Senate Agriculture Committee today deferred action on the nomination of David Lilienthal for a new term as director of the Tennessee Valley Authority pending a formal statement of views from Tennessee's Senators.

Senator Stewart told the committee that he and Senator McKellar were preparing a written statement of their position and would file it tomorrow. Both had asked President Truman not to reappoint Lilienthal.

Chairman Thomas said that Senators Stewart and McKellar advised that they would "rest their case" on the statement. Consequently, Mr. Thomas added, he did not anticipate any public hearings on the nomination.

Lilienthal Before Committee.

Mr. Lilienthal was before the committee this morning in a closed session. Senator Thomas said he was asked many questions as to the operations of TVA, the amount of money expended and future plans of the agency, and commented: "He had a ready answer at the tip of his tongue for everything asked about the agency."

Mr. Thomas also stated that "quite a bit of time" was taken up with a discussion of Tennessee politics. He said Senator Stewart had asserted that the TVA had tried to defeat him for re-election.

Mr. Lilienthal replied, Senator Thomas said, that he was not responsible for what individual employees of TVA did, and that no instructions were given to employees from the directors of the TVA.

Mr. Thomas said Senator Stewatr retorted with the statement that Mr. Lilienthal had made a speech which newspapers in Tennessee interpreted as one of opposition to Senator Stewart's re-election.

The committee will meet tomorrow morning to receive the Stewart-McKellar statement.

INDEPENDENT REA VOTED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP) Legislation to reestablish the Rural Electrification Administration as an independent agency, and authorize it to embark on a new $600,000,000 program won Senate approval today.

Passage on a voice vote sent the legislation to the House.

Sponsored by Senators Lucas (D-Ill.), the measure authorizes the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to advance the REA $35,000,000 for use between now and July 1, $70,000,000 for 1946, and $200,000,000 each in 1947 and 1948.

It also provides $15,000,000 for planning for rural lines. Still another $80,000,000 for 1946 use, contained in the Agriculture department bill, gives the agency a total of $600,000,000 to spend and lend to bring power to farms in the next three years.

Senate friends of Guy M. Gillette, former Iowa Democratic senator, were talking him up, meantime, as the man they would like to see administer the program. The REA provides for a 10-year term for the administrator at $12,000 a year. This is the same salary Gillette now receives as chairman of the Surplus Property board.

Also mentioned in speculation about the post has been the name of W. J. Neal, now acting REA administrator.

TRUMAN MONEY PROGRAM CUT

House Appropriations Group Reduces His Figures

Washington, May 14 (AP)—President Truman's first budget recommendations to Congress were cut today by the House Appropriations Committee.

Reporting a $1,086,210,337 omnibus bill for House action, the committee rejected the President's single request for an increase in funds. It made still further cuts in two other items which he had trimmed below budget bureau recommendations.

The bill carries funds for the fiscal year starting next July 1 for the Labor Department, the Federal Security Agency, the War Manpower Commission and related agencies.

Original Estimate O.K.'d

The President's May 2 request for an additional $15,000,000 for grants to states for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children and aid to the blind was rejected, the committee approving the original budget estimates of $416,000,000 for this purpose.

Mr. Truman's suggestion that the War Manpower Commission's funds be cut by $10,339,900 was more than trebled by the committee, which lopped a total of $31,773,900 from original budget estimates of $93,872,900 for the WMC.

The President's third request dealt with in today's bill was followed more closely by the committee, which trimmed $44,563,400 from the Office of Education fund, whereas Mr. Truman had suggested a cut of $43,710,400. Almost the entire cut for the Office of Education was in funds for the defense training program.

WMC Cuts Analyzed

The reduction in WMC funds included $15,322,000 for employment offices and facilities, $5,000,000 for general administrative purposes, and $9,349,900 for the migratory workers' program.

The total in the bill was $77,201,946 below budget estimates and $49,188,135 under current year funds.

Major allotments in addition to old-age assistance grants included $56,350,510 for the children's bureau, $59,957,000 for the nurses' training program, $32,000,000 for grants to states for Unemployment Compensation Administration, and $50,000,000 for WMC employment office facilities and services.

WMC EXPENSES FOR NEXT YEAR PARED HEAVILY

Budget Estimates Cut More Than 30 Per Cent by House Committee.

$31,773,900 SLASHED AWAY

Other War Agencies' Activities Also May Be Curtailed Through Appropriations.

Washington, May 14 (A. P.).—The War Manpower Commission, the first war-time agency to have its finances reviewed on Capitol Hill since Germany's surrender, drew a deep cut today from the House Appropriations Committee. Sending to the floor a $1,086,210,337 supply measure for the Department of Labor, the Federal Security Agency and related offices for the fiscal year starting July 1, the committee slashed the WMC's budget estimates more than 30 per cent.

It recommended $62,099,000 for the agency headed by Paul V. McNutt. This was $31,773,900 below budget estimates and $49,260,384 under current year appropriations.

"It is prefectly manifest," the committee said in explaining its action, "that war production needs during fiscal year 1946 will be geratly reduced." Committee members said that other war agencies whose activities may be curtailed because of Germany's defeat will feel the financial ax when an overall measure carrying their funds reaches the House late this month.

Large reductions in the WMC budget included $5,000,000 from the general administartion fund and $9,349,900—the entire budget estimate—for carrying out the migratory workers' program. The committee cut $32,461,587 from budget estimates for numerous national defense items in the bill, leaving $260,372,013 for that purpose.

Mandatory Items.

It approved $789,761,000 for so-called mandatory items, such as grants to States for co-operation in programs established by law. The Labor Department received $68,391,085, a reduction of $2,138,215 from budget estimates.

The sum includes $44,189,500 to be granted to States for emergency maternity and infant care for the wives and children of service men. The committee emphasized that it intended the fund to be available to the wives and infants of service men who die or are discharged honorably after the pregnancy of the wife.

Other items in the bill include: Nurses' training program (national defense), $59,957,000; Office of Education, $17,935,018, a reduction of $44,563,400 from budget estimates, with virtually all the cut in national defense training items; old-age assistance, aid to dependent children and aid to the blind through grants to States under the social security act, $416,000,000; grants to States for unemployment compensation administration, $32,000,000; Employees' Compensation Commission, $17,962,000; National Labor Relations Board, $2,945,930, and National Mediation Board, $591,400.

British Report On Big Three Not Confirmed

Rumor Of Forthcoming Meeting Remains Mystery—Truman Sees Diplomats.

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP)—President Truman reviewed troublesome international issues with top flight British diplomats today but there was no official confirmation of English reports of a forthcoming Big Three meeting.

Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, told reporters he had "no idea" when the President will meet with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Eden and Clement Attlee, deputy prime minister, were closeted with the President for 35 minutes.

Emerging from the meeting Eden asserted the San Francisco world organization conference was not discussed, but that the three went into a host of other matters involving the interest of the two governments. Joseph C. Grew, acting secretary of state, sat in.

British Officials Fly

Both the British officials flew here yesterday from the West Coast.

"We did not discuss the San Francisco conference because that seems to be getting along well under the able guidance of Mr. Stettinius, the American Secretary of State," Eden said.

"We did review a number of other matters and we had no difficulty finding matters to discuss."

Asked when the Big Three will meet, he declared "I have no idea" and hurried from the White House.

Earlier Eden and Attlee conferred for 30 minutes with Grew.

Eden was vague at that time about details of the conference with Grew.

He said then too that he was satisfied that the San Francisco Conference was "going along well," and that the matters discussed did not concern the conference.

He said he was "on my way to London," but did not state when he planned to leave Washington.

Frank King, diplomatic correspondent for the British Press Association, reported last night that Eden was expected to discuss possible dates and sites for a Big Three meeting during his visit in Washington.

Whether he discussed such matters as the Polish problem and the punishment of major war criminals was not made clear.

B-29 FIELDS EXPANDED

Fourth 200-Plane Strip in Use on One Marianas Island

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—The Army Air Forces now have the field facilities to mount 800-plane Superfortress attacks against Japan from a single island in the Marianas.

This was disclosed today in a delayed Navy dispatch from "somewhere in the Marianas" reporting that Seabees on one unidentified island have turned over to the Army the last of four big bomber strips, each 8,500 feet long and capable of accommodating 200 B-29's. The island presumably was Saipan, Tinian or Guam—each used as base for the giant bombers.

PASSENGER TIRES UP 50 PER CENT

1,500,000 for Rationing in May: Reconversion Pace Slowed.

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP) A 50 per cent increase in rations of passenger tires for civilians this month was authorized today, but a slackening in the pace of reconversion became apparent.

The War Production board released 500,000 more tires for rationing by OPA in May, bringing total distribution to 1,500,000. Spokesmen for both agencies indicated another increase about as large may be expected for June.

However, even the June increase, if it is approved, would be insufficient to provide new tires for A-card motorists, officials said, in view of the big back log of unsatisfied demand from more essential users.

The action was accompanied by the lifting of production restraints on alarm clock and galvanized ware, but WPB said no substantial increase in supplies of those household items can occur until the military reduced its demand upon factories and material supplies.

There was growing evidence, moreover, that the government is applying the brakes to reconversion activity. This showed itself in two developments reported by persons close to policy formation:

First, WPB has decided, with the concurrence of War Mobilization Director Vinson, to keep in force throughout 1945 its machinery for allocating steel, copper and aluminum — the "controlled materials plan."

This policy is subject to change next fall, but at present WPB deems it wise to keep the allocation procedure as a protection for war and essential civilian production.

After July 1, civilian manufacturers will have access to the metals without priority, but will get only such quantities as mills are able to supply after meeting the urgent war and essential civilian needs.

Merely Raises Ceiling

Second, in lifting its five-month-old "freeze" on civilian production, WPB now plans merely to raise the ceiling instead of scrapping it completely.

The so-called freeze forbade WPB officials to increase their programs of civilian goods manufactured above the level of the October-November-December quarter of 1944.

This was a sharp restraint, since civilian output at that time was feeling the pinch of military reverses in Europe.

The new yardstick, still tentative but likely to be finally adopted would be this: No increase could be be authorized in a civilian product which would consume more metal than the highest quantity allotted for that product while the country was fighting a two front war.

The increase in passenger car tire allotments was attributed to reduced Army demands following the collapse of Germany. Tire manufacturers have been authorized to increase their output of civilian casings to 5,200,000 a month, a jump of 2,000,000 tires.

"Tires will be released in increasing numbers," WPB said as the production schedules climb.

SUGAR CRISIS LAID TO CCC

MAY 15 1945

Federal Groups Must Prevent Shortage, Republicans Say

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Federal agencies must prevent a sugar shortage in 1946 and 1947 or Congress must step in to protect the public, a Republican committee asserted today.

The group, composed of House members making a food study, declared the current sugar crisis is the fault of the Commodity Credit Corporation for "failure to encourage production in Puerto Rico and Cuba, where 60 per cent of our supply is grown." It charged the OPA handling of rationing had "accentuated" the shortage.

More acreage can be planted up to about June 15 for harvesting next year to furnish an added million tons if the CCC acts at once, the committee said in a report.

Cuban Stimulus Seen

"Likewise speedy action would induce sugar-beet growers to expand their production for the 1945 fall harvest," it stated.

Manuel Rionda, Cuban sugar broker, told the regular House Food Committee, as he discussed the potential size of Cuba's output:

"The mere announcement of the desire on the part of the United States to negotiate for increased supplies could give a substantial stimulus to (Cuban) production, even in the 1946 crop in Cuba."

Chairman Anderson (D., N.M.) declared Cuba has refused to sell its 1946 crop to this country unless the Government agrees to buy 1947 production as well.

Anderson made the assertion during Rionda's testimony in the committee's own investigation of the current shortage.

Report Is In Mill

Rionda said he knew of no current negotiations between this country and Cuba for the 1946 crop but that the subject had been discussed with the CCC.

"The United States Government is ready to buy Cuba's 1946 crop and the Cuban people won't sell it," Anderson continued. "Whose fault is that? Is that the fault of the United States Government?"

"I don't know," Rionda replied. "I know Cuba is disposed to sell it. It is a question of terms.'

A report on food investigations conducted by the Senate Agriculture Committee was in the mill. The group examined a proposed majority report by Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.), but took no formal action.

A Separate Statement

Thomas disclosed it includes a recommendation that price ceilings be abolished for any foods which come into plentiful supply. It calls for a "food czar," subsidies for cattle feeders and increased subsidies for meat packers.

Chairman Thomas A. Jenkins (Ohio) of the Republican Congressional Food Study Committee, declared in a separate statement:

"If those in charge of our food program want to bring order out of this chaos, they can do it today by centralizing both production and distribution of food under one competent head and by classifying food production as an essential war industry."

NAVY CUT DUE AT WAR'S END

Admiral King Estimates 30 Per Cent Reduction

Washington, May 14 (AP)—The Navy contemplates a cut of "at least 30 per cent" in the size of the fleet, once Japan is defeated.

The Senate Appropriations Committee disclosed today that it received this estimate from Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King during closed hearings on a $23,603,775,000 naval supply bill.

This recommended appropriation represented an increase of $203,273,735 above the amount approved by the House. Most of the increase was $180,000,000 for ordnance to be spent before July 1. No details were given on this particular item, but it is known the Navy has greatly stepped up production of rockets.

Proposed Cut Tentative

The bulk of the bill is to run the Navy during the fiscal year beginning July 1. Included are items of $6,999,112,000 for pay and subsistence for navy personnel; $2,790,000,000 for maintence of the fleet; $3,000,000,000 for ordnance; $2,481,050,000 for naval aviation and $2,950,000,000 for new ship construction.

King emphasized that the proposed postwar cut of 30 per cent in the fleet was tentative and that final plans would be determined by:

1. What the national policy is to be for the defense of the United States.

2. For the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

3. What commitments the United States may have in respect to the maintenance of world peace."

Thinks Japs Have 4,000 Planes

James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, told the committee he knew of no plan to allocate any fleet units to other Allied nations."

Forrestal estimated the Japanese have 4,000 effective planes. King said the Japanese have about twenty large destroyers left, not all of those in operating condition. No testimony was made public as to other enemy ship categories.

Admiral F. J. Horne, vice chief of Naval operations, testified he believed universal military training would be needed to maintain a postwar navy of about 50,000 officers and 500,000 men. The Navy now has about 300,000 officers and 4,000,000 men.

Lend-Lease And Russia

Washington, May 14 (AP)—The State Department said today that the test for future lend-lease to Russia is "adequate information regarding the essential nature of Soviet military supply requirements" and their importance as compared with competing demands.

A statement by acting Secretary Joseph C. Grew predicted "substantial reductions" in current deliveries, but made it clear that deliveries meeting the test will continue to go forward.

Same For Other Countries

The criterion, he emphasized, is the same as for other lend-lease countries.

The acting secretary did not mention the Soviet Union in direct connection with the Japanese war, in which that country is not involved. Other officials discussing the review of Russian lend-lease, however, had pointed out that Russia is preoccupying some 500,000 of the best Japanese troops along the Manchurian border and that this benefits this country's military interests.

"Since 1941," Grew's statement said, "the United States has agreed with the Soviet Union upon annual supply programs which have been embodied in protocols. In view of the changed military situation, programs of such duration are not now required.

MAY 15

Review Is Proposed

"Instead it is proposed that lend-lease shipments to the Soviet Union be reviewed and continued where they are justified on the basis of adequate information regarding the essential nature of Soviet military supply requirements and in the light of competing demands, as is the practice with respect to other lend-lease countries.

"It is anticipated that, on this basis, substantial reductions in current programs for the Soviet Union will be made."

The current protocol expires June 30.

"Not Two Separate Wars"

Grew said lend-lease in general is being reviewed in the light of the end of hostilities in Europe and the transition to war only on the Pacific front. But he emphasized:

"The war we are engaged in is one war, not two separate wars, and the end of organized resistance in Europe is not the end of the war."

In that connection he devoted himself principally to discussion of the needs of occupation armies in Europe, adding:

"Future supply programs will also be designed to meet new military situations as they arise."

New Military Situation

Any such new military situations presumably would be in connection with the Pacific war, since European conflict apparently has settled down to occupation and military government.

"Occupation and military control in enemy areas are required in Europe and cannot be effectively carried out on an unstable and a disorderly continent," Grew said. "The presence of American forces in war-devastated Europe, their supply and their redeployment in connection with continuing military operations will almost certainly require lend-lease shipments.

Authorized Under Act

"If the President (of the United States) determines that lend-lease supplies must continue to move to Europe for an additional period because the prosecution of the war requires it, he is authorized to do so under the (Lend-Lease) Act.

"Of course he is also authorized to furnish necessary supplies to foreign countries on the basis of continuing hostilities in the Pacific."

Ickes Sees Aluminum Bungle

Says U. S. Funds Built Canadian Plant That Competes With Ours—Asks End of Deal.

Washington, May 14 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Interior Ickes charged today that Government officials bungled aluminum production early in the war and that one result is a Canadian plant built with United States funds competing with American industry.

Testifying before the Senate small business committee, Mr. Ickes urged:

1. That independent operators be encouraged to acquire and operate Government-owned aluminum plants in competition with the Aluminum Corporation of America.

2. That the contract with Aluminium Corporation of Canada be canceled or negotiated to termination. This was for 250,000,000 pounds of aluminum at the Shipshaw, Canada, power plant.

Mr. Ickes said the Shipshaw plant was built with a $68,000,000 loan, interest free. Its existence was a "surprise" to him and to President Roosevelt until 1943, he said.

He contended that it never should have been built while the great power developments of the Pacific Northwest and the Bauxite producing areas of Arkansas were available.

Bonneville Chief Testifies.

Dr. Paul Raver, Bonneville power administrator, declared that war agencies never gave him a chance to know the power needs and always looked on Bonneville and Grand Coulee as more or less "incidental." Said Dr. Raver:

"From the lessons of the Shipshaw story, Congress should turn in the post-war period toward the problem of disposing of our Government-owned aluminum plants with one conviction: We have helped others more than was necessary and now let us adopt new policies deliberately to make the utmost use of the aluminum plants we have built here for the benefit of our workers and business men, and for our own future national defense."

Mr. Ickes said the Shipshaw contract was made by Metals Reserve Corporation, a subsidiary of Reconstruction Finance Corporation when Jesse Jones was chairman. He said "bungling" of the early aluminum requirements came from the OPM (Office of Production Management) — and its successor, the War Production Board. Dollar-a-year men, Mr. Ickes said, declared there was enough aluminum to go around in one breath and in another, would call it critically short.

Morse Says Situation Stinks.

Senator Morse (R.-Ore.) praised Mr. Ickes's summary of the aluminum-power situation and said that the handling of the job through the critical war years "just stinks."

Mr. Ickes said Alcoa built the Shipshaw plant because it had better labor conditions "from their viewpoint" in the province of Quebec.

"They got as far from the United States Government as they could and still sell us aluminum," he said.

The Canadian corporation is supposed to be independent of Alcoa, he said, "but they have the same board of directors and the same officers."

The aluminum policies of the OPM and the WPB served, he said, "to promote and strengthen that monopoly and its Canadian twin. There has been neglect of our own power resources and of the use of our own Government plants to the fullest extent possible."

Other private enterprise should be encouraged, he said, to either lease or obtain management contracts to run the Government plants, for "never again should this country be placed in the position of having to rely largely upon one company for so vital a war material as aluminum."

Instead of stockpiling the raw bauxite, he urged, these companies should process it and the Government could stockpile the finished aluminum. That would give the companies a good start, he said, and also relieve the heavy stockpiles of bauxite, such as the 400,000 tons in Arkansas.

POINTS ON FATS RAISED BY OPA

Lard and Cooking Oils Now at 10 a Pound

MAY 15 1945

Washington, May 14 (A. P.).—The feeding of liberated Europe became a housewives' problem today with a four-point increase in the ration value of lard, shortening and cooking and salad oils. These now require ten points a pound.

This OPA action, taken at 12:01 A. M. yesterday, was accompanied by a new attack on black market operators. The OPA announced that the names of more than 3,000 price violators have been turned over to the Bureau of Internal Revenue so that the Government may try to recover illegal profits.

This technic—similar to the one that sent Chicago's Al Capone to Federal prison—will permit the Government to determine whether the violators have attempted any income tax evasion. It will be used in all cases, a spokesman said, where OPA discovers price violations exceeding $500.

Elsewhere on the ever-widening food front:

A tentative majority report by Senate food investigators called for creation of a food czar to centralize all Government controls, increased subsidies for meat packers and inauguration of subsidy payments to cattle feeders.

President Speaks.

President Truman said: "We must and can find a way" to share American food with "others so badly in need." Mr. Truman wrote in reply to a letter from Food for Freedom, Inc., asking him to see "for the sake of the future peace and security of this nation and of the world . . . that our food commitments abroad are faithfully kept."

These commitments led to the sudden increase in point values for fats and oils. In announcing the boost, Price Administrator Bowles pointed to the recent report of the interagency committee on foreign shipments, which said that this country must share its food supplies "to aid morale in the United Nations and to prevent unrest and chaos in liberated countries."

The committee, headed by Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley declared that a substantial adjustment in the United States use of fats and oils would be necessary to meet the European deficit. Henceforth Americans will consume them at a rate of about thirty-six pounds a person a year, compared to the prewar average of 44.7 pounds.

COAL DELIVERIES ARE RESTRICTED

WASHINGTON, May 14.— (AP) Secretary of the Interior Ickes tonight imposed emergency controls on the delivery of anthracite to consumers in 12 Eastern states to meet a critical fuel shortage caused by the two weeks' stoppage of mining.

Ickes, acting as solid fuels administrator, forbade retail dealers, wholesalers and tidewater dock operators to deliver anthracite to any consumer having more than five days' supply of usable solid fuels on hand.

Affected are all the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, the counties of Fairfax and Arlington in Virginia and the city of Alexandria, Va.

Consumers who have five days' or less supply of coal in their bins may receive only one ton of hard coal, or enough to meet their minimum immediate needs for five days, whichever amount is larger.

Ickes also directed that preference in deliveries be given to hospitals, homes for the infirm, dairies, bakeries, laundries, poultry brooders and hatcheries, utilities, and buildings which manufacture their own power.

He authorized regional SFA representatives to relax the emergency rules where supplies permit. The Interior Secretary took action after a three-day lapse in negotiations between anthracite mine operators and the United Mine Workers union headed by John L. Lewis. About 72,000 miners have been off the job since May 1, when the old wage contract expired without agreement on a new one.

ICKES VISITS TRUMAN, SILENT ON COAL MINES

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP) Interior Secretary Ickes conferred with President Truman for 15 minutes today but declined to comment on the nature of their discussion.

At the Interior department, it was announced that Ickes would not make a statement today regarding the anthracite mine shutdown and the anthracite contract negotiations. Ickes took over the Pennsylvania hard coal mines at Mr. Truman's direction after the negotiations became deadlocked and last week conferred with operators and United Mine Workers' representatives in an unsuccessful effort to break the deadlock.

Ickes would not say whether he discussed the anthracite situation with Mr. Truman today.

Restrictions On Trade With Belgium Lifted

Washington, May 14 (AP)—The Treasury today removed all its restrictions on private trade with Belgium, as it did with France a month ago.

As in the case of France, practical difficulties exist to postpone trade on any important scale, but at least the financial machinery for payments now exists. Belgian assets in this country are still frozen, but the Treasury announced that dollar balances acquired by Belgian banking institutions since February 2, 1945, may be freely used to make payments in this country on behalf of Belgian nationals.

Minesweeper Lost Off Okinawa

Washington, May 14 (A. P.).—The loss of the minesweeper YMS-103 in the Okinawa area as the result of enemy action was announced today by the Navy. Casualties aboard the vessel, which carries a normal complement of about thirty, were reported as moderate. The next of kin have been notified.

The commander of the 136-foot ship was Lieut. (j. g.) Leslie M. Thornton Jr., son of Leslie M. Thornton of Kansas City, Mo. He took command of the YMS-103 in September, 1944, after serving as executive officer on the vessel. The Navy said that Lieut. Thornton was a survivor.

Norweb Is Named Envoy to Cuba

Washington, May 14 (A. P.).—President Truman today nominated R. Henry Norweb of Ohio to be Ambassador to Cuba.

Mr. Norweb, now Ambassador to Panama, was named to succeed Spruille Braden, recently designated as Ambassador to Argentina.

Senate Ups House Figure

Washington, May 14 (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee today approved a $23,603,775,000 naval supply bill, an increase of $203,273,735 over the figure approved by the House.

Among the increases was $180,000,000 for ordnance to be spent between now and July 1.

The Senate group voted $4,000,000 for the Lake Seneca (N.Y.) training station, a boost of $3,000,000 over the House figure. It said the House appropriation would require closing of the station by September 30, while it could be operated until July 1, 1946, on $4,000,000.

In deciding that Lake Seneca should continue operations, the committee made cuts in House-approved appropriations for three other training stations. These were San Diego, Cal., cut from $2,170,000 to $1,675,000; Great Lakes, from $5,700,000 to $5,300,000, and Port Deposit, Md., from $4,038,000 to $3,200,000.

The committee approved $1,500,000 for construction of a field house at the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Pullman Company Job Considered By Early

Washington, May 14 (AP)—Presidential Secretary Stephen Early may go with the Pullman company when he leaves the White House June 1.

Early said today that a post with the Pullman company as an executive with headquarters in Washington was under consideration but that no final decision had been made.

Long-time press secretary to the late President Roosevelt, Early had arranged to leave his White House job prior to Mr. Roosevelt's death.

Mr. Roosevelt announced on March 24 that Early was anxious to enter private employment but that he had persuaded him to remain on his staff until a successor could be found. The agreement contemplated Early's departure June 1.

When Mr. Truman entered the White House a month ago, he said he had asked Early to stay but the latter said he still desired to be free to enter private employment at the end of this month.

Increase In Canadian Paper Output Predicted

Washington, May 14 (AP)—An increase of five or six per cent in Canadian production of pulp and paper beginning with the third quarter of the year was predicted today by the War Production Board.

The agency said Canadian officials concurred in this estimate.

WPB Puts 6 Items On Urgency List

Washington, May 14 (A. P.).—The War Production Board today placed fiber containers and drums, steel drums and pails, and wooden boxes and kegs on the national production urgency list. This enables manufacturers to obtain higher ratings for man power in order to deliver high priority Government orders. The WPB said containers and packaging materials are urgently required to meet the increasing demands of the Army and Navy for shipping containers.

Becomes Truman Press Aide

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Charles G. Ross, former Washington correspondent of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will be sworn in tomorrow as press secretary to President Truman. Jonathan Daniels, retiring press secretary, told his last news conference today that he planned to resume his writing career.

Month Of Mourning For Roosevelt Ended

Washington, May 14 (AP)—At sundown today the month's period of mourning for the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt came to an end.

Flags on Government buildings and at military and naval establishments and elsewhere will again fly at full staff tomorrow.

Mr. Roosevelt died April 12. The month of mourning was proclaimed by President Truman.

To Outdo Raids On Germany

New York, May 14 (AP)—Japan can expect heavier bombings than Germany received and "is less capable of standing them," Brig. Gen. Haywood Hansel, who was commanding general of the 21st Bomber Command on Saipan at the time of the first Tokyo raid from that base, declared today.

The general referred to yesterday's 500-plane raid on Japan and said "the figure will continue to swell. The Japanese empire will get heavier bombings than Germany, and it is less capable of standing them."

British To Take Laval To France Soon, Report

New York, May 14—Pierre Laval, former Vichy chief of Government, will be returned to France within a few days aboard a British warship to face trial as a war criminal, the Paris radio said tonight in a broadcast monitored by NBC.

Laval was interned after he arrived in Spain aboard a German plane.

National Income Up $6,000,000,000

New York, May 14 (AP) — The magazine Sales Management said today the national income reached a record high of $148,416,000,000 in 1944, excluding $8,350,000,000 paid members of the armed forces serving overseas, or a gain of about $6,000,000,000 over 1943.

The publication's sixteenth annual survey of buying power said California led all other states with a $933,852,000 increase, while that in Connecticut, West Virginia, Nevada, Wyoming, Delaware, Maine and South Carolina was lower than in 1943.

Long Beach Rated At Top

Long Beach, Cal., held first place in per capita income rankings of cities at $2,555. The next nine, ranging down to $2,015, were San Francisco, Seattle, Sacramento, Hartford, Conn.; Pasadena, Cal.; Spokane, Oakland, Newark and Indianapolis.

The magazine said the five states of New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and California had 41.09 per cent of the country's income and accounted for 38.86 per cent of all retail sales.

Food sales increased 86 per cent over 1939, general merchandise 107 per cent, lumber, building and hardware 29 and drugs 83, Sales Management added.

DEWEY CALLS FOR ECONOMY OF ABUNDANCE

Says U. S. Faces Double Task of Feeding Itself and Succoring World.

ASSAILS SCARCITY PLANNING

Governor Dedicates 'MotherZero,' 1000-locker Frozen Food Storage Plant in Ithaca.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 14 (A. P.).—Gov. Dewey, asserting that America faces the double task of feeding her own people and "Helping the rest of the world to get on its feet," said today that the nation must substitute an economy of abundance for "the idea of planning for scarcity."

In a Statewide radio broadcast dedicating the new "Mother Zero" 1,000-locker frozen food storage plant, he said the nation tried an economy of scarcity for many years and "ended up facing a world war with one-third of the nation undernourished."

Asserting that the results "make it clear that we need and need badly a new approach to the whole subject," he said:

"We need most of all to abandon this idea of planning for scarcity and develop an economy of abundance. We need to learn better how to use nature's bounty than how to limit it. We must think more in terms of encouraging and rewarding the tremendous production, hard work and skill of the American farmer than in paying him to suppress his ability and his skill."

The "Mother Zero" plant, built by the Cooperative Grange League Federation, will serve consumers of the Ithaca area and also will be used as a practical research laboratory for Cornell University's School of Nutrition.

Sees World Crisis in Food.

"Right now," the Governor said, "the world faces a crisis in food. Millions of liberated people are at the starvation level. And their problem is ours, because we know that stable, free governments cannot be built by frantic, starving people.'

Declaring the nation can meet this challenge in two ways, the Governor stated: "We must help other people to the limit of our capacity. We must help them replant their fields and build up their herds again. Then, by continuing our own research and development, we can lead the world to a higher standard of nutrition."

He said that despite the fact that American people are the best fed people in the world, "we are still far from being really well nourished."

"Now why is it," he asked, "that one-third of all the men who went into the Army were undernourished? Was it because we did not produce enough food in this country?

"That is obvious nonsense. During the 20s and 30s we had surpluses of cotton and grain. The Government developed great programs to pay farmers to reduce production of corn, wheat and cotton, to kill little pigs and to store surpluses in the ever normal granary.

"We saw the ironic spectacle of good things to eat going to waste on farms and in orchards just because the prices would not pay for harvesting and marketing. At the same time there were millions upon millions of people who needed the food."

Referring to the "Mother Zero" freezer which will provide research data for the School of Nutrition and several farm and consumer co-operatives and businesses interested in food processing, Gov. Dewey said: "This plant is a symbol of some of the new thinking we need. We know that people cannot buy food unless they have the money and the purchasing power.

He predicted that eventually every one could have a freezer in his own kitchen, and added: "When we store grain it slowly deteriorates. But if we feed part of it to cattle, fatten them up, slaughter them and freeze the meat we have used up that part of the surplus. We have kept men busy and employed. . . . We have an important, new additional factor which provides greater industrial participation in agriculture, greater stability of employment and a new means of stabilizing production from year to year."

Forecasts of a large increase in consumption of meat, dairy products, eggs and vegetables mean, the Governor said, that the "family farm will find greater stability and ever-increasing importance in the kind of agriculture which will serve these new, and ever-rising, standards of diet of a healthy people."

"Here is the symbol of a new approach to problems which have always been treated separately but in reality are one," he added. "Government alone can accomplish nothing. It can never feed a people. But it can sponsor research and help bring its findings to the home and to the farm. This we are doing in the State College, in the great new research laboratories to be erected at the Geneva experiment station and in our food and nutrition services."

Albany Schools Ban Japan From Texts

ALBANY, N. Y., May 14—(AP)—Albany public schools today stapled the Japanese section out of existence in the pre-war textbook "The Old World and its Gifts," after a civic association protested it made the Nips too kindly.

The two pages on Japan were ordered stapled together by John W. Park, superintendent of schools, following complaint of the nearby Rotterdam, N. Y., Civic Association. Parks said he had received no direct protest.

"The book, used for reference by fifth and sixth grade pupils, characterized the Japs as "a clean, alert, intelligent people," who acquired new land because it is almost impossible for so many people to make a living on their small islands."

The Rotterdam education board and school superintendent planned a meeting to consider what disposition to make of the book.

BILL TO CURB NEWS MEN UP

Massachusetts Senator Asks Immediate Action

Boston, May 14 (AP)—Senator Clifford R. Cusson (R., Haverhill) told the Massachusetts Senate today that he was in favor of "dangerous laws," because "we need them if we're going to put these reporters and newspaper men where they belong."

Cusson asked for immediate action on a bill which would remove the word "knowingly" from a statute setting up penalties for making or publishing false statements about candidates for political office.

The present law forbids making misstatements about candidates and establishes the penalties for "knowingly" violating the law at a fine up to $1,000 or jail up to six months.

Called Dangerous Bill

Senator John W. Mackay (R., Quincy) won postponement until totmorrow, remarking that removal of the qualifying word "knowingly" "would make one subject to criminal prosecution for an innocent misstatement."

"This is a thoroughly dangerous bill," Mackay said, "and I think the Senate would be advised to go very slowly with it."

Cusson, who is chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Election Laws, defended the bill.

"If this is a dangerous law," Cusson replied, "then we need them if we are going to put these reporters and newspaper men where they belong.

Cut Off Retraction Provision

"This bill is intended to protect the members of this Senate," Cusson declared. "Only last week a newspaper made a misstatement about me—said I was in favor of a 1-cent increase in the gas tax, while I had written to the granges all over the state saying that I was opposed."

The bill, as filed originally by Representative Colin J. Cameron (D., Amesbury) had a provision that the penalties would not apply if the author of the misstatement published a retraction.

The committee on election laws cut off the retraction provision, however, before reporting the bill to the Senate.

Morgenthau Says 8th Loan Probably Will Come In Fall

Buffalo, May 14 (AP) — Formally launching the $14,000,000,000 7th War Loan drive in Buffalo, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., sounded a call tonight for a "return to serious business" after exultatio nover victory in Europe.

Our business, he said in a broadcast, is two-fold: "Taming and civilizing the Japanese in the East," and "helping to rebilt civilization in the West."

Luxuries Short For Long While

"Peacetime goods—the luxuries and pleasures we would like to enjoy—will be in extremely short supply for a long while to come," he declared. "The bulk of our productive resources must continue to be devoted to war and to binding up the wounds of war."

Earlier, Morgenthau told a press conference:

"Chances are good that we'll have an eight war loan in the early fall."

Government expenditures will be as high in the next five or six months as in the last five or six," he added. "Not only will there be no letup in expenditures, but also will need just as much revenue as ever—which includes taxes."

Stilwell Gives Warning

Gen. Joseph Stillwell, commander of the Army ground forces, who took part in the broadcast, with Secretary Morganthau asserted:

"This war is a good way from being won. We are just entering the inner ring of the Japanese defenses. These defenses are proving hard to break, and there is no reason to believe that they will become weaker as we approach the main islands of Japan.

"There is only one way to shorten the war in the Pacific; that is, to throw the full strength of our power against our enemy in the shortest possible time. To do this will take a lot of work, a lot of fighting and a lot of money. . . ."

'44 War Cost 86 Billion

Cleveland, May 14 (AP)—War, the world's biggest business during the past five years, cost the United States more than $86,000,000,000 during 1944, Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayres said today.

Writing in the Cleveland Trust Company's monthly business bulletin, the company's vice president reported war expenditures equaled other government disbursements in 1941 but by 1944 they had increased nearly seven times.

"War has been the world's biggest business during the past five years," said Ayres. "Now it has reached and passed the peak of its expansion and the processes of contraction have begun. They will continue for a long time, perhaps for another five years.

One Big Customer

"During the past five expansion years business has been dominated by one big customer, the national government. That customer has been insatiable in its demands, imperative in its specifications, intolerant of delays, and generous in its payments."

Terming these years "a period of educational experience for business," the retired army officer declared:

"Business men have had more experience in the practical arts of co-operation than ever before. In manufacturing, the vast expansion of subcontracting has made co-operation essential and within individual plants there has been more effective co-operation between managements and wage workers than ever before.

"In almost every field of business activity, managements have learned much about the training of new workers than they ever knew before. This is especially true with respect to the training of women, and of young beginners of both sexes.

New Series Of Problems

"Finally business has learned a great deal about government, and perhaps government has benefited from its increased contacts with business. A war economy is in large measure a planned economy, and both business and the general public have learned a great deal about that during these war years."

Referring to America's burden in battle-scarred Europe, Ayres said "our share of responsibility for the peacetime economy there is gravely heavy. Germany has been defeated, but the great surrender does not terminate our difficult tasks there. Instead, it substitutes a new series of problems of the most serious sort."

WARD OPINION CHANGE ASKED

U.S. Seeks Right For Seizure By Army In Wartime

Chicago, May 14 (AP)—The Federal Government today asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to adjudge Montgomery Ward & Co. a war-production plant subject to legal seizure by the Army in wartime.

Government and company counsel argued for 90 minutes, principally over a definition of "production," as the United States went before the three-judge court to seek reversal of a district court ruling that army occupation of sixteen Ward properties in seven cities December 28 was invalid.

Case Under Advisement

The United States Supreme Court earlier declined to rule directly on the question without exhausting lower court procedure. Under the District Court ruling of Judge Philip L. Sullivan on January 27, the Army retained possession of the properties pending a final judgment.

At the conclusion of today's arguments the Appeals Court, consisting of Judges Evan A. Evans, Otto Kerner and Will M. Sparks, took the case under advisement.

President Roosevelt directed the Army to take over the properties in an executive order in which he said Ward's defiance of War Labor Board directives endangered war production. Judge Sullivan ruled this action had no statutory or constitutional basis.

"A Word Of Broad Meaning"

Today's arguments were submitted by Hugh B. Cox, assistant United States Solicitor General, for the Government, and Stuart Ball, for the company.

Cox contended the nation's second largest mail order concern was engaged in war production because "production" is a word of broad meaning, not limited to manufacture alone. He said the storing, distributing and supplying of essential and critical goods was production and that the company thus was subject to seizure under the War Labor Disputes Act.

More Than Maunfacturing

Ball conceded the company recognized production is more than manufacturing but that "we believe the obvious meaning of the word is the bringing into existence of something that did not exist in that form before." He asserted none of Ward's factories and only a few of its retail outlets had been seized. Those occupied by the Army, he added, included plants where no strike had occurred or had been threatened.

The Government attorney asserted Ward's had applied for 35,000 priorities and "repeatedly represented that they were for articles essential to the war effort." Ball answered that the priorities were sought to replace merchandise carried in stock by other merchants dealing in general lines of merchandise.

United Air Lines Elects Eric Johnston

Chicago, May 14 (A. P.)—Election of Eric Johnston, Spokane, Wash., business executive and president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, as a director of United Air Lines was announced today by United's president, U. A. Patterson. Johnston takes the place of Sumner Sewall who recently became president of American Export Airlines.

LATIN AMERICAN AGREEMENT NEAR ON SECURITY PACT

Foreign Ministers of Nine Nations in General Accord on Plan.

FINAL DECISION NEAR

Big-Five Statesmen Try for Agreements on Trusteeships.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14—(AP) American republics neared agreement tonight on regional security, big-five statesmen tried for accord on trusteeships, and committees deferred showdowns on three other big, interwoven issues of the United Nations conference.

Foreign ministers of nine Latin American nations were described as in general agreement with Secretary of State Stettinius on a United States plan which would let Pan-American act to repeal armed attack if a world security organization failed to settle a dispute peacefully.

To Report Today

They went out to consult other Latin American statesmen and arranged to report back to Stettinius tomorrow. Cuban Ambassador Guillermo Belt predicted a final decision within 24 hours.

Delegates of the United States, France, Russia, Britain and China went into consultation tonight to attempt to solidify their views on establishment of international guardianships for dependent and strategic areas of the post-war world.

But in the working committees, delegates talked, but didn't vote, on these pertinent questions:

Should a general assembly of all the United Nations have authority to reject or approve action of the world organization's security council—the agency which under present plans would be the major peace-enforcement body?

Should the assembly be able, on its own initiative, to make recommendations on any peace-keeping matters being dealt with by the council?

Should a non-member of the council whose armed forces might be used to prevent war have the right to sit in when the council is deciding whether to apply armed might?

Big, Little Powers Tussle

Mixed up in these three questions is a tug of war going on between big and little powers. The big ones want peace-keeping authority concentrated among themselves. They argue they are the countries which will have to make the major contributions of fighting men and equipment.

Little countries contend they have as much interest in maintaining peace as do the more powerful states.

Should the assembly have the right to review council decisions, the whole concept of a world security organization as now drawn up would be destroyed.

Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex), an American delegate, argued against that power for the assembly, declaring the council must have undiluted authority to act promptly and continually.

Other committees debated whether a world charter should incorporate a Ukrainian proposal that each United Nation pledge "all working people the right to work," and over a New Zealand suggestion to guarantee the sanctity of treaties and the territory of each member state.

There were no decisions on those points, either.

Still another committee adopted a restriction on membership in the world organization. To original language stating that membership is open to all peace-loving states, it added that the condition that these states must, in the organization's judgment, be "able and ready to accept and carry out the obligations" in the projected world charter.

SOVIET HAS WON SOME BIG GAINS AT CONFERENCE

Moves Into Position Once Dominated by Britain and United States.

HAS THREE MAIN OBJECTIVES

Policy Is Seen Aimed at Russian Security, Future Influence and Moral Leadership.

San Francisco, May 14 (A. P.).—Anglo-American-Russian maneuvers for post-war world leadership are developing at top speed behind the scenes of the United Nations Conference. So far, Russia is credited by her western Allies with some major gains.

The Soviet Union, moving firmly into a situation once dominated by Anglo-American policies, is regarded by Anglo-American officials as seeking at least three main objectives in her foreign policy:

1. Arrangements for her own security—first by lining her strategic borders with governments Moscow considers friendly (in Poland, for example) and by laying down protective treaties, as with France and Britain; second, by helping develop and support the World Security organization being planned here.

2. Building up a case which will enable Moscow to bid for what it might call "moral leadership" of the world. This follows the line of showing Russia as a champion of democratic rights and freedoms and the western powers as defenders of conservatism. In keeping with it was Foreign Commissar Molotov's fight against admitting Argentina to the conference; his efforts to have the World Trade Union Congress represented, and his proposal that dependent peoples under trusteeship be promised eventual freedom.

Preparing Future Influence.

3. Preparing a firm basis for Russia's maximum influence in the power politics of the future. Russia's proposal that the Big Five sit in as permanent members of a trusteeship council is seen as a move in this direction; so is the Soviet recommendation that the proposed World Security Council, under Big Five control, have the final word on setting up military bases in international territories.

Russia's moves here are being studied intently by British and United States authorities because she is relatively new to the international scene. Only now are her post-war policies as a great military, political and geograhical power—and potentially a large industrial power—beginning to take shape.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden left for London yesterday, flying by way of Washington. Molotov had taken off four days earlier. Foreign Minister Bidault of France may be the next to leave.

The British delegation is now headed by the Earl of Halifax, Ambassador to Washington. It issued a statement saying that Eden leaves San Francisco with the knowledge that much progress has been made.

In London Prime Minister Churchill made an Empire broadcast in which he said "we must labor that the world organization which the United Nations are creating at San Francisco does not become an idle name, does not become a shield for the strong and a mockery for the weak."

Warns Against Distortion.
